

SCUTTLEBUTT FROM THE SPERMACETI PRESS – A COMPILATION (1985 – PRESENT)

Volume 1 – 1985 -- 2010

A Little about the History of Scuttlebutt from the Spermaceti Press -- by Peter E. Blau

Scuttlebutt from the Spermaceti Press has been published monthly ink-on-paper, with occasional illustrations and enclosures, for forty years. Much of the gossip is quite trivial, but most of it is Sherlockian or Doylean. And the subscription price will increase whenever postage rates increase.

The newsletter started in 1971 as sheets of paper, kept by my typewriter, so that I could write paragraphs of minor news for my friend John Bennett Shaw. Eventually others found out about what I called "information sheets" and asked for photocopies, and the number of copies required soon reached the point where I started charging for them to recover out-of-pocket costs. When I acquired my first computer in 1985, things became much easier and the format more consistent. Philip A. Shreffler, editor of The Baker Street Journal in 1987, suggested that readers of the Baker Street Journal might welcome the opportunity to read all that gossip, trivial and otherwise, and I finally named the newsletter, starting with the January 1988 issue.

The Spermaceti Press is the imaginary establishment from which my seasonal souvenirs for the Sherlockian birthday festivities in New York in January have been published for many years, named in honor of a real (and the only known remaining) spermaceti press, preserved at the Nantucket Whaling Museum, where it once was used not to publish anything for whalers, but rather to process sperm oil. And the name of the press seemed appropriate, considering my Investiture in The Baker Street Irregulars ("Black Peter") and the fact that when I named my press I was living on Holmes Road in Pittsfield, Mass., just up the road from Arrowhead, the home in which Herman Melville lived when he wrote Moby Dick.

Scuttlebutt is an appropriate pun, since it means gossip, and comes from the barrel (butt) of water used to provide drinking water for the crew of whalers and other ships. Gossip was as common around the scuttlebutt then as it is today around office water-coolers. I must confess that if I had realized how long it took to explain the name of the newsletter, I might have named it simply Gossip, but what's done is done.

This compilation of Peter's work will ease searches throughout all the files for specific subjects, such as comic books, movies, plays, etc. It is now broken up into two volumes: 1985 – 2010, and 2011 – Present due to the size of the files.

The compilation starts at March, 1985, when Peter migrated from a typewriter to a computer to develop the information each month.

For the sake of conserving the size of the file, images have been removed. This file only contains text. To access the files with images included, go to <http://redcircledc.org/index.php?id=39>

Clicking on the date below will take you to that section of the file.

You may reach Peter E. Blau at 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401 and blau7103@comcast.net.

Contents
Mar 85 #2: .....	3
Jul 85 #1: .....	9
Jan 86 #1: .....	21
Jul 86 #1: .....	32
Jan 87 #1: .....	44
Jul 87 #1: .....	57
Jan 88 #1: .....	71
Jul 88 #1: .....	84
Jan 89 #1: .....	99
Jul 89 #1: .....	113
Jan 90 #1: .....	127
Jul 90 #1: .....	143
Jan 91 #1: .....	158
Jul 91 #1: .....	172
Jan 92 #1: .....	186
Jul 92 #1: .....	200
Jan 93 #1: .....	216
Jul 93 #1: .....	231
Jan 94 #1: .....	246

Jul 94 #1: .....	261
Jan 95 #1: .....	278
Jul 95 #1: .....	294
Jan 96 #1: .....	310
Jul 96 #1: .....	325
Jan 97 #1: .....	342
Jul 97 #1: .....	357
Jan 98 #1: .....	372
Jul 98 #1: .....	387
Jan 99 #1: .....	402
Jul 99 #1: .....	415
Jan 00 #1: .....	431
Jul 00 #1: .....	446
Jan 01 #1: .....	461
Jul 01 #1: .....	475
Jan 02 #1: .....	491
Jul 02 #1: .....	505
Jan 03 #1: .....	520
Jul 03 #1: .....	533
Jan 04 #1: .....	546
Jul 04 #1: .....	562
Jan 05 #1: .....	577
Jul 05 #1: .....	593
Jan 06 #1: .....	608
Jul 06 #1: .....	622
Jan 07 #1: .....	638
Jul 07 #1: .....	653
Jan 08 #1: .....	668
Jul 08 #1: .....	683
Jan 09 #1: .....	699
Jul 09 #1: .....	715
Jan 10 #1: .....	730
Jul 10 #1: .....	744

Mar 85 #2:

1. Computer, meet readers. Readers, meet computer. For those who care, it's a mixed system: Leading Edge CPU, Leading Edge highresolution monochrome monitor, IBM PC keyboard, Volkswriter Deluxe software, and Epson RX-80 printer. For those who really care, I'll be glad to send you my essay on "How I Bought My Computer".
  2. Agatha Christie's PARTNERS IN CRIME (D5856a, D5857a, D4873b) has been published in a new edition (New York: Berkley Books, June 1984; 230 pp., $2.95), with a new cover tied to the television series on "Mystery!"
  3. Ted Schulz reports that Waldenbooks has a mystery book club, with a newsletter "Crime Times," and there is a S'ian cipher in "The Deep Waters" column in the first issue. Check your local shop. Ted also spotted (at Crown Books) GREAT MAGAZINE COVERS OF THE WORLD, by Patricia France Kerz (New York: Abbeville Press, 1982; $65.00 discounted to $29.95); one of the covers is the Aug. 1904 issue of the American edition of The Strand Magazine (non-S'ian), attributed (incorrectly) to Sydney [*sic*] Paget.
  4. The "Dinner with Sherlock Holmes" at the Dickens Inn in Philadelphia on Mar. 10 went very well, with more than 100 people on hand for the festivities (60+ S'ians, and the rest Dickensians, Victorians, or regular patrons of the Inn). The Master's Class is planning to make this an annual event, and if you'd like to be on the mailing list, write to Gideon D. Hill, 1810 South Rittenhouse Square #207, Philadelphia, PA 19103.
  5. Hammacher Schlemmer (147 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022; 800-368-3584) offers "The Classic Syphon" at $54.50 postpaid ($24.50 for a box of 40 refill cartridges); a cylindrical gasogene, 14" high, one-quart capacity, heavy Czechoslovakian crystal encased in chrome-plated mesh, and a handsome item.
  6. Reported by Jerry Margolin: MURDER SHE WROTE: THE MURDER OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, a novelization by James Anderson (New York: Avon Books, Apr. 1985; 208 pp., $2.95) of the pilot episode of the television series. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE GOLDEN BIRD, by Frank Thomas (Pinnacle Books, Apr. 1985; 3rd printing, with new cover). "Ms. Found in Cruet Set," by Sharon Farber, in Amazing Science Fiction Magazine, Jan. 1985; an amusing parody.
  7. It's hard to imagine that any of you failed to watch the premiere episode of the Jeremy Brett series, and Vincent Price's introduction, in which he quoted from Edgar W. Smith. So: from what piece was Price quoting?
  8. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES ENCYCLOPEDIA, by Orlando Park (New York: Avenel Books, 1985; 205 pp., cloth, $3.98 at Waldenbooks) is a new (discount) edition of D4261a.
  9. THE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Clarkson N. Potter, 1985; 808 pp., $6.95) is a new edition of THE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES TREASURY published by Avenel Books in 1984, and it is by far the best value-for-money facsimile edition of the public-domain Canon. Contents: "Stud" (illos by Hutchinson); "Sign" (illos by Townsend); ADVENTURES, MEMOIRS, "Houn", RETURN, "Wist", and "Bruc" (from the Strand), and a fine frontispiece portrait of the Literary Agent by Modeste Stein.
-
1. Mar 85 #3: A bit more on the British television film "The Masks of Death" (broadcast on Dec. 23, 1984, on Channel 4): I may have incorrectly credited this to the BBC, but Channel 4 is independent and the film was made by Tyburn Productions. There will be a review of the film in the summer 1985 issue of the SHJ, but in the meantime Nicholas Utechin reports that it was rather disappointing, with script and performances in general falling rather short of expectations. "Cushing was nice as an inevitably elderly Holmes and it was nice to see Sir John Mills add Watson to his distinguished list of performances."
  2. Anyone flying Northwest Orient or Western Airlines should check out the earphone entertainment. One of the channels has an interview with Ely M. Liebow on Sherlock Holmes' London.
  3. Reported by Ron De Waal: "On T. S. Eliot & Sherlock Holmes," by Frank Zingrone, in The Idler, Feb. 1985 (Box 280, Station E, Toronto, Ont. M6H 4E2, Canada; $2.25); on Eliot's debt to Holmes.
  4. New "Sherlockian Shopping" sales list from US-2 (563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652); new items include S'ian pens, bookmarks, and stained-glass suncatchers.
  5. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE TREASURE TRAIN, by Frank Thomas (New York: Pinnacle Books, Mar. 1985; 241 pp., $2.95); a third pastiche in the series that includes SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE GOLDEN BIRD (1979) and SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE SACRED SWORD (1980), with the same echoes of James Bond and Daddy Warbucks, and considerable derring-do.
  6. Reported by Ron De Waal: MURDER MOST FOUL (London: Octopus Books, 1984; $9.50); contents include "Bosc". BAEDEKER'S LONDON (London: The Automobile Association, 1984; 182 pp., $11.95 at B. Dalton); a pocket guide, with a separate map of London, that includes (p. 28) a quotation from "Stud". CHAPTER & HEARSE: SUSPENSE STORIES ABOUT THE WORLD OF BOOKS, edited by Marcia Muller and Bill Pronzini (New York: William Morrow, 1985; $18.95); contents include August Derleth's "The Adventure of the Spurious *Tamerlane*". THE GREAT EGG MYSTERY, by Margaret A. Hartelius (New York: Scholastic Inc., 1985; 24 pp., $2.95); Hilda Hound, the great detective, in S'ian costume, helps Dilly Duck find her missing eggs.
  7. Len Deighton's BERLIN GAME is out in paperback (New York: Ballantine Books, Jan. 1985; 344 pp., $4.50); minor S'ian allusions on pp. 335-336, and otherwise a fine novel of espionage and suspense.
  8. The first appearance of Logan Clendening's "My Personal Recollections of Sherlock Holmes" (D1960a) in the winter 1937 issue of The University Review from the University of Kansas City is still available, for $12.00 postpaid, from back-issue dealer John T. Zubal, 2969 West 25th Street, Cleveland, OH 41113.
  9. In case you've heard a rumor that "Mystery!" has decided to purchase only the first seven of the programs in the Jeremy Brett series (as I heard at the studios of WETA-TV when The Red Circle answered the telephones for their pedge drive), the rumor isn't true. "Mystery!" has purchased the second set of six programs, and they will air here some time in 1986.
-
10. Mar 85 #4: Berkley Books is reprinting its paperbacks of the Canon with new covers, adding a panel reading "Now a PBS television MYSTERY! presentation" -- I've seen ADVENTURES (31st printing, Dec. 1984), HOUN (29th printing, Dec. 1984), and CASEBOOK (27th printing, Mar. 1985).
  11. Published but not yet seen: Christopher Redmond's IN BED WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES (Toronto: Simon & Pierre, 1985; 208 pp., $29.95); "a discussion of the sexual elements in the Sherlock Holmes stories and in Conan Doyle's own life." Simon & Pierre are also planning fall publication of Andy and Bill Paton's SHERLOCK HOLMES ABC (64 pp., $9.95 in paper); "a very special book to introduce the great detective and the characters in his stories, suitable for 10 and up." The publisher's address is Box 280, Adelaide Street Postal Station, Toronto, Ont. M5C 2J4, Canada.
  12. A new S'ian cartoon by Pat Anderson in Playboy, Apr. 1985, p. 191 (tax time again, so it's the usual "I find your deductions amazing, Holmes").
  13. Mark M. Hime (Bibliotopus, Idyllwild, CA 92349) still has THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (first edition, first state, near fine, in dustjacket; the only known copy), and it's still available for $25,000.

14. THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, adapted by Malvina G. Vogel, illustrated by Brendan Lynch (New York: Playmore Inc., 1983; 238 pp., $1.25 discounted to $0.59 at Woolworth's); contains "RedH", "Spec", and "Copp" in a "Moby Books" paperback in the series that already includes SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES.
15. And one more item on the already-refuted rumor about "Mystery!" not purchasing more than seven programs from the new Brett series. According to Nancy Mills' article about Brett (Atlanta Journal and Constitution, Mar. 10, 1985), he is married to Joan Wilson, who produces "Mystery!" for WGBH-TV in Boston. Intriguing to imagine her telling her husband that his series isn't good enough for her to purchase all the episodes.
16. Biblio-query from Paulette Greene, about the "G. Washington Coffee" radioshow premiums: SHERLOCK HOLMES (D700a) and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (D104a). Were there any other titles in the series?
17. There *was* a 1984 Gaslight Award for excellence in S'ian research and writing, announced at the dinner of The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes in January. The award, and the $100 prize, went to Susan Rice for her article on "Woman's Place in the Holmes" in the winter 1983 issue of Baker Street Miscellanea.
18. The autumn 1984 issue of Baker Street Miscellanea is at hand, with a fine article by Philip A. Shreffler on "The Higher Criticism: Quo Vadimus?" and a warning of an impending increase in the subscription price (now $6.00 a year, from The Sciolist Press, Box 2579, Chicago, IL 60690).
19. "Organisasjonen ledes av en mann, den 80 ar gamle Dr. Julian Wolff, med myndig og lett diktatorisk hand," writes Per Egil Hegge in his long and well-illustrated article about the BSI annual dinner, in the Mar. 2 issue of A-Magasinet, the weekly magazine of the [Oslo] Aftenposten.

---

20. Apr 85 #1: One of the recent innovations in children's toy stores is the personalized book, in which the recipient is written into the story. If you have someone who's willing to spring for $16.45 (it's better to have someone else do it, to preserve the surprise), the address to write to for an order blank is FAO Schwarz, 745 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10222, and the book to order is THE MYSTERY OF SCENTED MOUNTAIN. The order blank is needed to supply the biographical details. And the book has S'ian artwork.
21. Reported by Ron De Waal: ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S HAUNTED HOUSEFUL (New York: Random House, 1985; $2.95 at B. Dalton); a new paperback edition of D218a (contents include "RedH"). THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE SPECKLED BAND AND MYSTERY OF THE SECOND STAIN, starring Gielgud and Richardson (San Francisco: The Mind's Eye, 1983; $6.98 at B. Dalton); an audio cassette. THE ENGLISH PUB, by Andy Whipple and Rob Anderson (New York: Viking, 1985; 111 pp., $25.00); with 185 full-color photographs, including one of the sign for Whitbread's "Sherlock Holmes".
22. Jeremy Brett helped publicize his new television series at a "reception for Holmes fans" in New York on Mar. 27; a UPI photo in the New Orleans Times-Picayune/States-Item on Mar. 29 showed Brett examining Marvin P. Epstein's manuscript of "The Priory School".
23. Book-of-the-Month Records is offering audio cassettes to non-members of the Book-of-the-Month Club, including a four-cassette set of Basil Rathbone's recordings (presumably the readings he did for Caedmon) at $22.95 plus $1.75 shipping (Sherlock Holmes #51-6670); Camp Hill, PA 17012 (800-345-8600 ext. 46), and they take plastic.
24. SHERLOCK HOLMES COMEDY TRILOGY, by Dick Charlton, is a collection of three new one-act juvenile (extremely juvenile) plays published by Contemporary Drama Service (Box 7710-T9, Colorado Springs, CO 80933); "preview" copies are $1.75 each (minimum order three copies) plus shipping, and a catalog is available.
25. Sports report: the Memphis State Tigers made it to the semi-finals and lost, but their starting forward, Baskerville Holmes, was honored as their most valuable player in the game.
26. Did anyone receive "visit interesting Pittsburgh" letters from students at the Milliones Middle School there? I got two of them, and haven't the slightest idea where they got my name and address (no mention of The Red Circle in the letters, or Sherlock Holmes).
27. Further to my earlier comment about our non-denominated "D" stamps and postal stationery not being valid for mail to foreign countries, Chris Redmond notes that a lot of this mail is arriving in Canada. The USPS headquarters reports that Universal Postal Union regulations require that foreign mail carry denominated postage, but some years ago the U.S. and Canada agreed not to worry about this ("you handle ours, and we'll handle yours") - but if an energetic U.S. postal clerk knows about the UPU regulations and doesn't know about the agreement with Canada, the clerk will return D-stamped mail to the sender.

---

28. Apr 85 #2: Catalog at hand from a book dealer asking $10.00 for a copy of my 1973 BSI dinner souvenir THE TITULAR INVESTITURES (D2865b). I still have extras, and if anyone wants one the price is $0.44 postpaid.
29. HI, THIS IS SYLVIA. I CAN'T COME TO THE PHONE RIGHT NOW, SO WHEN YOU HEAR THE BEEP, PLEASE HANG UP. That's the title of a book by Nicole Hollander (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1983); not about telephone-answering machines, but there is a S'ian cartoon on pp. 52-53.
30. Many PBS television stations worked hard to promote the Jeremy Brett series in the March issues of their monthly magazines for members, and one of the best efforts seen so far came from the Delaware Valley, with a two-page article by Scott Bond and Sherry Rose-Bond and a color cover reprinting the rarely seen artwork by J. Allen St. John from the Feb. 13, 1949, issue of the Chicago Sunday Tribune's Magazine of Books. If copies are still available, the address is Applause, WHYY, 150 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
31. In his introduction to the Jeremy Brett version of "The Naval Treaty," Vincent Price mentions other actors who have played the role of Sherlock Holmes: Sir John Gielgud, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Sir Ralph Richardson, George C. Scott, and John Barrymore. Which of these actors is not known to have played the role?
32. Reported by Ron De Waal: FALLET MED DE DOLDA SKATTERNA [THE CASE OF THE HIDDEN TAXES], a 14-page political pamphlet opposing the Labor government's tax system, illustrated in color with drawings of Holmes and Watson; available from Naringslivets Ekonomifakta, Hovslagaregatan 5, 111 48 Stockholm, Sweden.
33. Check your local Safeway. Their house brand milk (Lucerne) carton has deerstalker-and-magnifying-glass artwork for their "Be a Tooth SLEUTH" (as in Start Learning to End Unhealthy Tooth Habits) campaign during National Children's Dental Health Month. What with different sizes of cartons and different colors for different kinds of milk, the number of collectible variants guarantees healthy teeth for completists.
34. Compliments to Bob Burr, who was the first to identify the source of Vincent Price's quotation from Edgar W. Smith in the introduction to the first of the Brett television programs (Mar 85 #2). It was Smith's editorial "The Implicit Holmes" in the BSJ, Apr. 1946, pp. 111-112.
35. Reported by Dick Lesh: Rathbone films ("Woman in Green," "Secret Weapon," and "Terror by Night") on videocassettes at $12.60 each at K-Mart. And offers by Edward Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031) of SHERLOCK HOLMES ESQ. AND JOHN H. WATSON M.D., by Orlando Park ($2.98); MURDER INK, by Dilys Winn (4th printing, cloth, $2.98); THE PRIVATE LIFE OF DR. WATSON, by Michael Hardwick ($2.98); plus $3.00 shipping per order.
36. There is a report of a videocassette of "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970 film starring Robert Stephens) at $59.95 from Key Video, 1298 Prospect Avenue, La Jolla, CA 92037; this is the first time the film has been reported from a commercial distributor.

37. Apr 85 #3: SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE DEERSTALKER, by Terence Mustoo and Doug Flack (Hornchurch: Ian Henry Publications, 1985; 48 pp., £3.50 from the publisher, 38 Parkstone Avenue, Hornchurch, Essex RM11 3LW, England); a two-act parody of both the Canon and the music halls.
38. Reported by The Illustrious Clients: The "Nuts and Bolts Sherlock Holmes" with magnifying glass and pipe ($6.95 from Bit O'Norway & Pewter Palace, Van Buren House, Nashville, IN 47448).
39. HAWKSHAW THE DETECTIVE AND SHERLOCKO THE MONK AND OTHERS IN DETROIT, by Gus Mager, researched and indexed by Walter E. Young (Westland: The Stalker Press, 1984; 57 pp., $5.95 postpaid from the publisher, 32542 Sandra Lane, Westland, MI 48185); a brief history of Mager, and a detailed index to its appearances in the Detroit newspapers, but only a scanty sampling of the artwork.
40. IN BED WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Christopher Redmond (Toronto: Simon & Pierre, 1984; 207 p., $29.95 Canadian from the publisher, Box 280, Adelaide Street Postal Station, Toronto, Ont. M5C 2J4, Canada); neither prurient nor titillating, nor about the sexual habits of Sherlock Holmes (despite the title), the book is an excellent examination of the sexual attitudes brought to the Canon by its author and by its readers, including many S'ian scholars.
41. "The Tunbridge Teatime Terror" is the title of a Sherlock Holmes Mystery Weekend scheduled by The Men on the Tor at the Hotel Stamford Plaza (1701 Summer Street, Stamford, CT 06905) on May 17-19, 1985; $350.00 per person, including room, meals, and the assorted events.
42. Newt Williams notes, and quite correctly, that THE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (Mar 85 #2) contains "Wist" and "Bruc" from some source other than The Strand Magazine; the stories have been re-set, and there are no illustrations.
43. BEASTMARKS, by A. A. Attanasio (Willimantic: Mark V. Ziesing, 1984; 120 pp., $25.00 signed, $13.95 trade edition, from the publisher, Box 806, Willimantic, CT 06226); seven stories of philosophical fantasy, including "Sherlock Holmes and Basho" (6 pp.).
44. According to an update on Steven Spielberg's "Young Sherlock Holmes" in Cinefantastique (May 1985), the story involves the construction of a flying machine by Holmes and Watson, used to soar over London in pursuit of an arch criminal. Special effects are the work of ILM [Industrial Light & Magic, the people who did "Star Wars"] and include a hallucinogenic sequence in which inanimate objects come to life, via stop-motion animation and mechanical effects, to plague one of the main characters.
45. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES ENCYCLOPEDIA, by Orlando Park (New York: Avenel Books, 1985; 305 pp., cloth, $3.98 at Waldenbooks); a discount edition of D4261a.
46. Granada's London office reports that the second series of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" will be broadcast in Britain starting on July 2, 1985, and that "there is talk of a third series."

---

47. Apr 85 #4: More postal peculiarities. The postage rate from the U.S. to Canada is no longer exactly the same as the U.S. domestic rate. The cost of the first ounce is still the same (22 cents), but additional ounces to Canada (and Mexico) cost 18 cents each, not 17 cents.
48. Academic Industries (Box 509, West Haven, CT 06516) has a long list of $1.95 paperbacks in their "Pocket Classics" series, two of which are THE GREAT ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, new editions of the Pendulum Press comic-strip adaptations (D4697b and D4699b).
49. "A Concert of the Music Enjoyed by Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson" was presented at The Arts & Letters Club of Toronto on Apr. 17, 1985; the biographical and program notes (10 pp.) by L. David St. C. Skene-Melvin are available for $5.00 postpaid from Ann's Books and Mostly Mysteries, 225 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ont. M5A 2L2, Canada.
50. Sheldon Wesson, the poet laureate of The Red Circle, reported (in prose) to the scion in 1983 on the results of his assessment of the Canon, and his 12-page monograph on "The Sherlockian Triviality Index" is now available for $1.00 postpaid; his address is 1003 North Vail Street, Alexandria, VA 22304.
51. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE SACRED SWORD, by Frank Thomas (New York: Pinnacle Books, May 1985, 4th printing, with new cover; 240 pp., $2.95).
52. Sherlock Holmes is "intensely prejudiced, often bad-tempered, irritable with the people who might look to him for a little kindness, capable of a quite unmerited snub, grossly self-indulgent, arrogant, self-opinionated, and decidedly touchy about trivialities," said Vincent Price in his postscript to the PBS broadcast of "The Blue Carbuncle". From whom was he quoting?
53. Additional details at hand from Thomas L. Drucker (Dept. of Liberal Studies, University of Wisconsin-Extension, Madison, WI 53703) about the Sherlockian workshop on July 20-21, 1985: talks by Emily Auerbach, Thomas Drucker, E. N. Feltskog, David Hammer, Robert W. Hahn, Daniel P. King, Brad Kjell, Ely Liebow, Gayle Lange Puhl, Chris Redmond, J. W. Scheideman, Wayne Smida, David Skene-Melvin, Herbert Tinning, Joseph Wiesenfarth, and Robert A. Zimmerman, plus a gala dinner and three theatrical presentations.
54. Some of the Rathbone videocassettes are also reported (at $19.95 each) at Waldenbooks.
55. The Apr. 22, 1985, issue of Newsweek had a cover story on "The Big Thrill: Mystery Writers Are Making a Killing," with passing mentions of SH, a photograph of Otto Penzler and his library, and "Houn" in critic David Lehman's list of his ten favorite crime novels of the 20th century.
56. The German boom continues with SHERLOCK HOLMES (Berlin: Verlag Das Neue Berlin, 1985; 415 pp., DM18.00); translations of 15 stories, an Afterword by Alice Berger, and modernist illustrations by Klaus Ensikat. The book was printed in the German Democratic Republic; is there any other known East German edition of the Canon?

---

57. Apr 85 #5: Reported by Ron De Waal: "The Landscapes of Sherlock Holmes," by Yi-Fu Tuan, Journal of Geography, Mar.-Apr. 1985 (National Council for Geographic Education, Macomb, IL 61455; $6.00); one of the papers presented at the Sept. 1984 workshop in Minneapolis.
58. Compliments to Ann Byerly for knowing the source for Vincent Price's postscript statement about Holmes: Michael Harrison's preface to BEYOND BAKER STREET: A SHERLOCKIAN ANTHOLOGY (1976, p. xv).
59. Betty Pierce notes that it's worthwhile searching the discount tables for THE DICTIONARY OF IMAGINARY PLACES, by Alberto Manguel and Gianni Guadalupi (New York: Macmillan, 1980; $24.95); the listings include Camford, Fulworth, Uffa, and Baskerville Hall.
60. A number of scion publications have reported on the BSI annual dinner, but none so concisely as the April 1985 issue of The Hansom Wheels' newsletter THE PINK 'UN: "They had the usual recording of the 150 verses of 'We Never Speak of Aunt Clara' sung by James Montgomery, plus a 50-verse sequel sung by his son. Isaac Asimov sang the same song he had sung last year when he thought he was going to die, and he also told a joke about a horse."
61. The Blind German Mechanics, a new scion attempting to remedy the sad lack of attention paid to the life and accomplishments of Moriarty's notorious chief of staff, has begun publication of SHIKARI: WRITINGS OF COLONEL SEBASTIAN MORAN. The first volume is a 14-page pamphlet reprinting excerpts from HEAVY GAME OF THE WESTERN HIMALAYAS (1881), and the second will be devoted to THE ASSASSINATION DIARY; each pamphlet costs $1.00 postpaid from Wally Conger, 146-A North Canyon Boulevard, Monrovia, CA 91016.

62. There's a new "Collection of Mystery Classics" (from Bantam Books, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10103), in "elegant leatherette" bindings, on "archival-quality acid-free" paper, with special new introductions to "intensify your mystery-reading enjoyment," at $9.95 plus shipping per month (or $24.95 plus shipping per month for the deluxe edition in genuine leather bindings) -- and "Houn" will be included, eventually. The books in the photograph are of such uniform size that they may be paperbacks. Late news: the intro to "Houn" is by John Bennett Shaw.
63. The 1985 Weekend with Sherlock Holmes and John Bennett Shaw will be held on Aug. 9-11 at Stevens Technical Institute in Hoboken, N.J. John expects registration will cost $85.00, including a Saturday banquet, with air-conditioned rooms $50.00 double and $40.00 single. He is now rounding up the usual suspects for speakers and panels, and a brochure should be ready for mailing in May. You can get on the mailing list by writing to Herbert P. Tinning, 601 Gregory Avenue, Weehawken, NJ 07087.
64. Thanks to Mark W. Erdrich for Christopher Joyce's article on "The Detective from the Laboratory" in the November 15, 1984, issue of New Scientist; a lengthy discussion of the Home Office's new computer, which is called the Home Office (Large) Major Enquiry System. The FBI's counterpart is the Violent Crime Apprehension Program, and VICAP is certainly a far less imaginative name than HOLMES.
-
65. Apr 85 #6: What's the connection between Sherlock Holmes and Claus von Bulow? Claus von Bulow, now on trial for the second time for the attempted murder of his wife Sunny von Bulow, has a new "love interest," 47-year-old Andrea Reynolds, tall and Hungarian-born, who tends to get noticed, according to a long article in the Apr. 29 issue of New York, even though the defense lawyers are said to have told her to stay away from the courthouse. "Partly it is the clothing ... partly it is the figure ... partly it is the unmistakable aura that she is one formidable babe." Years ago, von Bulow, then single, used to play cards with Andrea and her second husband, wealthy French businessman Pierre Frottier, and more recently Andrea and her third husband, television producer Sheldon Reynolds, were regulars at von Bulow's side during his first trial, when Sheldon Reynolds was said to be working on the movie story of von Bulow's case. Andrea and Sheldon Reynolds filed divorce papers last year, and Sheldon Reynolds has complained that "my friend Claus, he stole my wife." And (finally) Sheldon Reynolds produced the "Sherlock Holmes" television series with Ronald Howard in 1954 and with Geoffrey Whitehead in 1981.
66. Jeremy Brett, by the way, is on view in New York, in a revival of Frederick Lonsdale's 1923 comedy "Aren't We All?" at the Brooks Atkinson Theatre, with Claudette Colbert, Rex Harrison, Lynn Redgrave, and George Rose.
67. The winter 1985 issue of The Armchair Detective has the "Spy" caricature of William Gillette on the cover, and a two-page report by Ann Byerly on "The Doings at Dubuque" in 1984 (she's in the photograph, providing musical accompaniment to the riverboat rendition of "Aunt Clara").
68. A MATTER OF TIME, by Glen Cook (New York: Ace Science Fiction Books, Apr. 1985; 268 pp., $2.95) is a minor S'ian item (passing references only) and an entertaining time-travel mystery novel.
69. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck: a gray sweatshirt with the S'ian caricature by Gerry Gersten, $16.00 plus shipping, from the Quality Paperback Book Club (Middletown, PA 17057).
70. Andy also has a bibliographic query on the souvenir booklet for the Royal Shakespeare Company revival of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" in the U.S.: how many versions are there? It's the $2.00 booklet with the white-swan-on-blue at the top of the front cover. There is one version (purchased at the Broadhurst in April 1975) with Wood as Holmes and Locke as Moriarty in the cast list on the left-hand center page and a four-page insert for the cast with Horgan as Holmes and Revill as Moriarty. And there are two versions with Neville as Holmes and Revill as Moriarty in the cast list on the left-hand center page; the inside covers are printed in sepia in one (presumed to be earlier), and in black in the other. And there's a version for the tour with Nimoy as Holmes in 1976. Any others?
71. Reported by Ron De Waal: a new British edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES (Hamlyn, £985; 1,083 pp., £4.95).
72. THE SIGN OF FOUR: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MURDER DOSSIER, edited by Simon Goodenough (Boston: Little, Brown, 1985; $19.95); the third in the series, and well-executed as usual.
-
73. May 85 #1: There have been questions about the August 9-11 Weekend with Sherlock Holmes and John Bennett Shaw in Hoboken, mostly from people asking, "why Hoboken?" One possible answer is recourse to the list of famous people who have received degrees from Stevens Institute of Technology, the latest being Frank Sinatra, who will receive an honorary doctorate in engineering on May 23. "It was his parents' intention and his own early dream to attend Stevens Institute of Technology and become an engineer," said Sinatra representative recently, "One could say that the honorary degree to be awarded will make that youthful ambition a reality." We are awaiting confirmation of a rumor that Sinatra will return in August to speak on "The Portrayal of Ethnic Italians in the Canon".
74. Playboy's "Coming Attractions" (June 1985, p. 40) describes Paramount's "Young Sherlock Holmes" as a "romance-mystery in which the youthful English shamus begins his lifelong friendship with Dr. Watson, falls in love and solves a mystery involving the supernatural."
75. Michael Harrison's many non-S'ian books are not only well written, but also out of print and hard to find; the latest catalog from Gravesend Books (Box 235, Pocono Pines, PA 18350) offers a number of them.
76. Bill Rabe, founder of The Mrs. Hudson Breakfast and originator of The Commonplace Book, is planning a new eight-page newsletter, The Agony Column, to be issued bimonthly beginning in February 1986; its purpose will be to provide timely announcements of meetings and publications, and to offer a written substitute for the oral debate of S'ian theses. An abbreviated sample issue and subscription form are available from W. T. Rabe, 909 Prospect, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783.
77. According to an interview with Granada Television International's managing director Barrie Heads (Electronic Media, Apr. 18, 1985), "We will make seven more Sherlock Holmes stories, then I think we will stop." So I guess we can expect a total of 20 stories. Heads also said that in 1984 Granada Television exported 3,300 program hours from 157 different productions to 71 countries; the best sellers were "Jewel in the Crown" and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes". The second series, by the way, will consist of "Gree", "Resi", "Norw", "Copp", "RedH", and "Fina". And Charles Gray, who was a fine Mycroft in "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution", will repeat the role in "Gree".
78. Dawn Addams died on May 7 -- she played the part of Doreen in Ronald Howard's "The Case of the Careless Suffragette" (D5529a).
79. Reported: Martin Gardner's "The Irrelevance of Conan Doyle" (D2108b) is collected in Gardner's SCIENCE: GOOD, BAD AND BOGUS (Buffalo: Prometheus Books, 1981).
80. Rick Hacker reports that his THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK (with discussion of SH's smoking habits) is going into a third printing, and is still $17.95 in pipe and tobacco stores (including the Tinder Box chain), and he will be happy autograph your copy if you send him the book and $2.00 for return shipping or a stamped-and-addressed return mailer; his address is Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213.
-
81. May 85 #2: Reported by Dick Lesh: "Touring Sherlock's London," by Murray Shaw, with color photos and a map, in American Way, Apr. 16, 1985 (American Airlines, Box 619616, MD 3A61, DFW Airport, TX 75261; $2.00). SHERLOCK HOLMES IN AMERICA, by Bill Blackbeard, discounted at $6.95 (or two for $8.00) plus $2.60 shipping per order, by Publishers Central Bureau, One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001. And a number of new items

- discounted by Edward Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031); his catalogs sound worth while for things like the Goodenough murder dossier version of A STUDY IN SCARLET at $4.95.
82. Reported by Marsha Pollak: DONALD DUCK: 50 YEARS OF HAPPY FRUSTRATION (HP Books, 1984); with a photograph (p. 59) showing Mickey and Goofy in deerstalkers from "Lonesome Ghosts". CLASSICS TO READ ALOUD TO YOUR CHILDREN, by William F. Russell (Crown, 1984; 351 pp., $13.95); contents include "Spec" with notes. SECRETS OF SOFTWARE DEBUGGING, by Truck Smith (TAB, 1984; $21.95); cover artwork has man in S'ian costume. INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY OF FILMS & FILMMAKERS, Vol. 1, ed. by Christopher Lyon (Macmillan, 1984; $50.00); with entry (pp. 427-428) for "Sherlock Jr." ANNO'S HAT TRICKS, by Akihiro Nozaki and Mitsumasa Anno (Philomel Books, 1985; $11.95); advertisement shows character in S'ian costume.
  83. Otto Penzler celebrated the Mystery Writers of America's Edgar Awards with an all-day signing party on May 11 at The Mysterious Bookshop, with authors including Dorothy Salisbury Davis, Stanley Ellin, William L. DeAndrea, and Stuart M. Kaminsky -- and there's a section of S'iana in his latest sales list -- 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019. The cover price of The Armchair Detective goes up to $6.00 with issue 18:3 (summer 1985), but the subscription price stays at $20.00 for four issues (same address); Otto writes that issue 18:4 will have a color cover of Jeremy Brett and an interview.
  84. Reported by Gideon Hill: four two-hour audiocassette sets in the Listen for Pleasure series: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (D4671b, read by Hugh Burden), THE SIGN OF FOUR (read by Tony Britton), A STUDY IN SCARLET (read by Tony Britton), and THE LOST WORLD (read by James Mason), available for $13.95 each (plus $1.50 shipping) from Robin's Book Store (attn: special orders), 1837 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103; they take plastic. Two full-color posters (14x36 in. and 27x41 in.) for the Cushing film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (D5161a), $75.00 each plus shipping from Cinemondo, 1916 Hyde Street, San Francisco, CA 94109; they take plastic.
  85. WHAT HAPPENED TO SHERLOCK HOLMES? THE LEGEND OF WILSON/THE AMAZING ATHLETE, by Terence White/Prince (Marina del Rey: Seagull Publishing Co., 1984; 100 pp., $9.95) is a pastiche with a thoroughly rejuvenated Holmes in 1927, subsisting on royal jelly, a wide variety of health foods, and a regimen of strict exercise; available from the publisher (add $2.00 for shipping) at 2915 Stanford Avenue #7, Marina del Rey, CA 90291.
  86. Reported: THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, by M. J. Trow (Macmillan, £7.95); a pastiche "with the bold inspector one of the best policemen in London and Holmes a shambling amateur being wrecked by drugs," a first novel written by Trow because "he was annoyed at the way Inspector Lestrade has always been depicted as one of the world's losers."
-
87. May 85 #3: "I am a reader and writer of mystery stories who thinks that the works of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle are a monument to boredom. A pox, I say, on the posturing Holmes and the goggle-eyed Watson. Anathema to The Baker Street Irregulars, that unholy gang of worshipers at the shrine of Sherlock. The next time they drink a toast to him, may their wine turn to sarsaparilla in the glass!" Stanley Ellin goes on to give reasons for the low esteem in which he holds the Canon, in his contribution to WRITING MYSTERY AND CRIME FICTION, edited by Sylvia K. Burack (Boston: The Writer, 1985; 208 pp., $12.95), a collection that also includes P. D. James' warmer appreciation of the "sense of place" created in the descriptions of the sitting room at 221B. The publisher's address is: 120 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116.
  88. If you'd like to meet Jeremy Brett, try Philadelphia on June 24, when he will be featured at a gala dinner-dance benefit for WHY (the local PBS station) -- only $175 a person for the evening.
  89. Chester Gould, creator of Dick Tracy, died on May 11. In 1976 he received the "Baker Street Tankard Award," awarded by Hugo's Companions to the one "who thirsts after justice for justice's sake." In THE GREAT DETECTIVES, edited by Otto Penzler (Boston: Little, Brown and Co., 1978, p. 239), Gould says that "because Sherlock Holmes is the greatest detective of them all, I decided to make Tracy look like Holmes: straight acquiline nose, square chin, generally sharp features."
  90. Correction to last month's item on the Hoboken workshop. John Bennett Shaw says that requests for additional information should be sent to Herbert P. Tinning at 80 Pine Street, Millburn, NJ 07041.
  91. I've had a letter from someone who is researching the sinking of the Loch Ness Monster -- the prop that sank in Loch Ness when they were making "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970). Does anyone have any stills or publicity photographs that show the Billy Wilder version of "Nessie"?
  92. Reported: THE TULPA, by J. N. Williamson, a Tower Books paperback in 1981, now reissued by Leisure Books; an occult novel in which a number of characters are thinly disguised S'ian dignitaries (including the author). THE LUNATIC FRINGE, by William L. DeAndrea, a Mysterious Press paperback reprint; a fine mystery-history (Teddy Roosevelt), with a minor reference to the Canon.
  93. Flier at hand for the workshop on "Sherlock Holmes: Science and Literature" in Madison on July 20-21; registration $40.00 (excluding dinner and accommodations), with July 1 registration deadline. Write to University of Wisconsin-Extension, Dept. of Liberal Studies, 610 Langdon Street, Madison, WI 53706.
  94. ". . . his main interests at the time were wimilar to those of most other teen-agers or sub-teen-agers: baseball (he worked partime selling popcorn at the Senators' stadium); pulp magazines--he read the Sherlock Holmes stories too; acting grown up; and girls," writes Derek Jewell in DUKE: A PORTRAIT OF DUKE ELLINGTON (New York: W. W. Norton & Co., 1980, p. 27); discovered by Ann Byerly.
-
95. May 85 #4: "The Building of a Sherlock Holmes Collection," by Peter L. Stern, in AB Bookman's Weekly, May 6, 1985; a detailed description of Marvin P. Epstein's collection, currently offered for sale by Pepper & Stern. The magazine also has an ad by The Arion Press (460 Bryant Street, San Francisco, CA 94107) for a new limited edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, illustrated by Michael Kenna with photographs of the English moors (no price given, but prospectus available).
  96. Martin Gardner's essay "On the Irrelevance of Conan Doyle" (D2108b) was reprinted, with a postscript, in Gardner's SCIENCE: GOOD, BAD AND BOGUS (Buffalo: Prometheus Books, 1981; 412 pp., $18.95), a collection of similar critical discussions of pseudoscience; the book is still in print.
  97. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES QUIZ AND PUZZLE BOOK, by Nigel Bartlett (Bristol: Abson Books, 1985; 44 pp., £2.50); a collection of Canonical quizzes, word searches, and crossword puzzles (the publisher's address is: Abson, Wick, Bristol BS15 5TT, England).
  98. Four more stories (Yell, Stoc, Glor, Fina) read by Robert Hardy are available in a two-cassette set as MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Argo, SAY 177, £5.95); these are not the older dramatizations (D5566a-D5569a). Four other stories were issued last year as THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.
  99. "Now, the detective's chief business is to provoke talk, and then to test its sincerity . . . the people whose loquaciousness is most precious to him are domestic servants . . . give me the detective who has a special talent for worming himself, without exciting suspicion, into the confidence of a caretaker, and under-valet, or a chambermaid, and I will make you a present of Sherlock Holmes." The author, who presumably had not read the Canon carefully, is M. Alphonse Bertillon, in an article on "Does 'Raffles' Exist? Or, The Myth of the Gentleman Burglar" (Strand, Oct. 1913).
  100. Carole Naddeo reports a second source for a videocassette of "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970): Movies Unlimited, 6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149; $59.95 (catalog #04-1789).

101. Reported by Ron De Waal: HORSE & PONY STORIES, edited by Janet Barber (London: Cathy Books, 1985; $4.95 at Waldenbooks); contents include "Silv" (first published by Sundial Books, 1979). SECRET PASSIONS, SECRET REMEDIES: NARCOTIC DRUGS IN BRITISH SOCIETY, 1820-1930, by Terry M. Parssinen (Philadelphia: Institute for the Study of Human Issues, 1983; 243 pp., $17.50); with a synopsis of "Twis" (pp. 63-64); address for ISHI is 3401 Science Center, Philadelphia, PA 19104.
102. Karen and Bill Palmer, proprietors of the restaurant Bogie's (249 West 26th Street, New York, NY 10001), now also have Bogie's Murderous Mystery Tours. Their first two efforts are a "Murder at Sea" mystery during a 7-day cruise on the SS Bermuda Star out of New York on Sept. 28, 1985, with Chris Steinbrunner as one of the special guests (contact Susan Rice, Gramercy Travel System, 444 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022); and a "Murder at the Grand" weekend, Oct. 25-28, 1985, at Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel (possibly the only interesting thing in Michigan that wasn't invented by Bill Rabe).
-
103. Jun 85 #1: The Apr. 1985 issue of Metropolitan Toronto Library Board News has considerable S'ian content, including an illustration of the Frederic Dorr Steele original artwork for "Bruc" ("It was a nice equipment for a respectable citizen") donated to the MTL by Peter A. Lemiski. Available free from the MTL (attn: Janice McNabb), 789 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont. M4W 2G8, Canada.
104. That imperfect copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887 is still available from Serendipity Books (1790 Shattuck Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94709) for $18,000 (rear cover, portion of spine, and two leaves of ads in facsimile). "Not a rare book," says the catalog, as "Lew David Feldman let the world know he had, and sold, three copies in day."
105. Plan ahead. The first 1986 S'ian seminar to be announced is "Sherlock Holmes: His Place in the Genre of Criminous Literature and the Works of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle," to be presented by The Bootmakers of Toronto on June 19-22 at Trinity College, University of Toronto. Requests for further details can be sent to David Skene-Melvin, 225 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ont. M5A 2L2, Canada.
106. Reported by Janice McNabb: TWELVE ENGLISHMEN OF MYSTERY, edited by Earl F. Bargainnier (Bowling Green: Bowling Green University Popular Press, 1984); an anthology of essays on authors from Wilkie Collins to Simon Brett (and not including ACD), with mentions of SH in Barrie Hayne's "A. E. W. Mason" and Nancy Ellen Talburt's "H. C. Bailey".
107. THE ZENDA VENDETTA, by Simon Hawke (New York: Ace Science Fiction Books, May 1985; 206 pp., $2.95); a time-travel novel, with the Time Commandos (heros) confronting the Timekeepers (villains) in Anthony Hopes' Ruritania. S'ian only in the presence in the Time Commandos' commander's private museum of the Jezail bullet removed from Watson's shoulder and sent by him to the commander, who was at Maiwand in the guise of Murray.
108. Richard Greene died on 1 June in London, ending an acting career that included more than 40 feature films and the role of Robin Hood in a long series on British television. In 1939 he was the studio's newest romantic lead when he played Sir Henry Baskerville in the Twentieth Century-Fox film and received top billing the cast and in the publicity.
109. Travelers London-bound might consider a two-hour walk "In the Footsteps of Sherlock Holmes" conducted on Saturday mornings by Streets of London (32 Grovelands Road, London N13 4RH; price is about $2.20, and there are a number of other non-S'ian tours.
110. "Sherlock Holmes and the Baskerville Curse" (67 minutes) and "Sherlock Holmes and the Sign of Four" (48 minutes) are animations produced by Burbank Films (Australia) and marketed here on videocassette by Pacific Arts Video Records at $59.95 each. Peter O'Toole (who was once considered for the lead in "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes") provides the voice of Sherlock Holmes. The animation is well above Saturday-morning-TV standards, but both stories are simplified (no boots are stolen at the Northumberland Hotel, for example), and slow and talky. Recommended only for rental viewing.
-
111. Jun 85 #2: BIALOSKY'S BIG MYSTERY, by Anne Kostick, illustrated by Jerry Joyner (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1985, $4.95); Bialosky is a deerstalkered bear in this children's "Golden Lift-and-Look Book".
112. Bouchercon XVI ("Murder by the Bay Returns") will be at the Sir Francis Drake in San Francisco, Oct. 25-27, with three-track programming, "The California Crime Novel" as guest of honor (Joe Gores, Joseph Hansen, and Collin Wilcox), and a session on "Sherlock Holmes v. A. Conan Doyle" -- their mailing-list address is Box 6202, Hayward, CA 94540.
113. Gideon Hill reports you can still obtain copies of back issues of Transactions & Studies of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia. The July 1978 issue ($5.00) had four S'ian articles (D5956b, D5963b, D5994b, D6005b) and the Dec. 1979 issue ($8.00) had a four-page reply to D5956b). Their address is 19 South 22nd Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103.
114. Stabur Graphics (23301 Meadow Park, Detroit, MI 48239) continues its S'ian line with a full-color 16x24" poster reprinting the Harvey Kurtzman cover from Mad #7 (Oct.-Nov. 1953); $5.00 (or $25.00 signed by Kurtzman) plus $2.75 shipping, or $70.00 (signed and framed) plus $5.00 shipping; they take plastic.
115. Prospectus at hand from The Arion Press (460 Bryant Street, San Francisco, CA 94107) for their deluxe edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, and it is indeed deluxe, designed by Andrew Hoyem, with 50 photographs by Michael Kenna and "text corrected by Terry Milne, collating the first English and American editions with the first serial publication," in an edition of 400 copies, at $300.00. There is also a poster available at $10.00. This is the second of their "mystery classics," the first being their 1983 edition of THE MALTESE FALCON. My friends in the fine-press world give Hoyem mixed reviews (at one point he was sort of the successor to the Grabhorns, but now he has considerable competition from presses that are better, and his book designs are sometimes quite unattractive), but the book will be sent on approval with refundable payment, so you have an escape hatch. And you can get a free copy of the poster with your purchase if you spot "the misstatement of fact embedded in the prospectus" (the misstatement, in the first sentence on the third page of the prospectus, should be readily apparent to any Sherlockian).
116. "The Goonies" according to one review, "is an artfully crafted movie, thrumming with energy and sometimes wit, and utterly uninvolving for anyone over the age of 12." Producer Steven Spielberg and screenwriter Chris Columbus are also involved in Paramount's "Young Sherlock Holmes" now in production in England.
117. "The Tunbridge Teatime Terror" offered an entertaining weekend for participants at the Hotel Stamford Plaza's mystery weekend on May 17-19, with arrangements by Tyke and Teddie Niver, who eventually revealed themselves to be Holmes and Watson ("Watson couldn't take off the wig and bosom," Holmes explained smoothly to N.Y. Daily News reporter Gus Dallas, "because they were stuck on with super stickum"). An Agatha Christie weekend is planned for Oct. 11-13, and the hotel's address is 2701 Summer Street, Stamford, CT 06905.
-
118. Jun 85 #3: There are two of John Ruyle's Pequod Press books available that have some S'ian content. GASTROPODS AND OTHER POEMS (1983, 36 pp., clothbound, $25.00) has "Sherlock, This Is Stupid Stuff" (revised from its appearance in The Vermissa Herald) and "On the Terrace" (a memorial to Dean W. Dickensheet). BATS: PARENTHETICAL POEMS (1985, 36 pp., clothbound, $30.00) has "To Vincent Starrett" (revised from its appearance in 221B OR NOT 221B?). His address is 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.

119. Reported: a French film under production from Umberto Eco's THE NAME OF THE ROSE, screenplay by Jean-Jacques Annaud and Alain Godard, being filmed in both French and English versions. Anyone have more information on this?
120. Newt Williams suggests that Pablo Sarasate's recordings of his own works may make him the only musician in the Canon who work has been preserved for our later enjoyment. Any other candidates?
121. Mary Cannon's "Booked & Printed" column in the July 1985 issue of Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine is a two-page appreciation of the Canon, followed by reviews of recent S'iana.
122. Can anyone identify the first appearance of Ogden Nash's poem "The Spring Sitting"? It was collected in THE OGDEN NASH POCKET BOOK (New York: Pocket Books, 1944), and includes the couplet "I'd rather be boiled in oil than work, / I'd rather read Conan Doyle than work."
123. "Doctor Arthur Conan Doyle's Patients in Fact and Fiction," by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key, in Medical Heritage, Mar.-Apr. 1985, pp. 80-98; a comparison of ACD's practice with his Canonical and non-Canonical stories.
124. William A. Barton offers apologies to those who ordered copies of the "Sherlockian Trivia" supplement and "The Play's Afoot" booklet back in January; he has had horrendous problems with the printer, and hopes to be back on track before too long. Bill will include a modest S'ian bonus with shipments to those who do not lose patience, and refunds are available to those who do (in which case please send him a copy of your cancelled check); if your check has *not* been cashed, please let him know. Bill's address is Box 26290, Indianapolis, IN 46226.
125. The USPS stamp program for 1986 includes a number of S'ian (well, sort of S'ian) issues: commemoratives honoring T. S. Eliot (creator of Macavity) and Vilhjalmur Stefansson (D2051b), and a regular stamp honoring Bret Harte (creator of Hemlock Jones).
126. Reported by Mel Ruiz: "The Mis-Adventures of Sheerluck Homes: The Mystery of the Creepy Hack Writer" (cassette P302), a parody of old-time radio, available for $3.98 (plus $1.40 shipping), from Adventures in Cassettes, Dept. S-610, 1401-B West River Road North, Minneapolis, MN 55411.
127. "Love Match Was 'Elementary' for Holmes Enthusiasts," according to the press release from the St. Olaf College News Service. The enthusiasts are St. Olaf College reference librarian J. Randolph Cox and Metropolitan Toronto Library assistant curator Janice McNabb, and the nuptials are planned for this fall.

-
128. Jun 85 #4: The Northeast Victorian Studies Association will sponsor a conference on "Victorian Work and Workers" at Yale University on Apr. 18-20, 1986. Program information available from Prof. Mary Davis, Dept. of English, Albertus Magnus College, New Haven, CT 06511 (and from me, if it turns out there is S'ian content).
  129. The 34th running of The Silver Blaze will be held at Belmont Race Track in New York on Sept. 13, 1985. Cost is $40.00 (including transportation from and to The Players); contact Thomas L. Stix, Jr., Box 96, Norwood, NJ 07648.
  130. Reported by Marsha Pollak: THE SEARCH FOR KING PUP'S TOMB, by Jim and Mary Razzi, with pictures by Ted Enik (Bantam/Skylark, 1985, $2.25); the latest adventure of Sherluck Bones and Scotson, battling Professor Morty-Mutty. THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, read by Richard Green, on seven 90-minute cassettes ($10.50 rental, $56.00 purchase new, $31.50 purchase used) from Books on Tape (Box 7900, Newport Beach, CA 92660).
  131. The fruits of Evelyn Herzog's recent visit to London include: SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1902 FIFTH TEST, by Stanley Shaw (London: W. H. Allen, 1985; £8.95); a new pastiche. TRUE CHARACTERS: REAL PEOPLE IN FICTION, by Alan Bold and Robert Giddings (Longman Pocket Companion Series, 1984; £3.95); with a one-page entry on Dr. Joseph Bell and Sherlock Holmes. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE DANCING MEN, a comic-strip adaptation by D. K. Swan (Longman Structural Reader, 1978; L0.55). 221B BAKER STREET: THE MASTER DETECTIVE GAME (H. P. Gibson & Sons, Littlers Close, London SW19; £8.50); the British version of D3957b. Garnier & Co. (37 Strode Road, London NW10 2NP, England) make plaques, pocket mirrors, and keyrings with the Baker Street Underground and the Baker Street W1 street sign motifs. The souvenir stock at The Sherlock Holmes in Northumberland Street includes ashtrays (£2.50), keyrings (£1.00), and T-shirts (£4.50). Baker Street Estates are estate management and property consultants at Sherlock Holmes House, 28 Baker Street, London W1M 1DF; their business card has a S'ian emblem. Plus note of mention of Sherlock Holmes in the lyrics of "Bang Bang," a rock and roll song by Pierre Robinson, as well as mention of Sherlock Holmes' dog (in the nighttime) on p. 14 of Barbara Hambly's ISHMAEL (Pocket Books, May 1985, $3.50), the latest Star Trek novel.
  132. Flier at hand for this year's weekend with John Bennett Shaw on Aug. 9-11, 1985; $85.00 including the Saturday night banquet. Contact address is: Sherlock Holmes Workshop, Office of the President, Stevens Institute of Technology, Castle Point, Hoboken, NJ 07030.
  133. SHERLOCK HOLMES IS ALIVE!, by Kiyoshi Tanaka (Tokyo: Nova Publishing, 1984), is the first primer on Japanese S'iana, including a history of Japanese translations of the Canon, a S'ian who's who, a list of world-wide S'ian societies, courses for various school levels, and much more, all in Japanese (265 pp. with illus by Tanaka and Pagnet); $7.00 plus $2.00 surface shipping or $4.00 airmail shipping, from Kiyoshi Tanaka, 8-7 Baba cho, Isogo-ku, Yokohama City, Kanagawa, Japan 235.
  134. Does anyone know anything about a five-minute radio series "Roger Ramjet"? In one (undated) episode he helps Armlock Hurts and Dr. Whatsis foil Professor Mayoryorty's theft of Scotland Yard.

---

Jul 85 #1:

135. Assorted S'iana in print in England: A PUZZLE FOR SHERLOCK HOLMES (D5095b), by Robert Newman (London: Transworld/Carousel, 1981; 169 pp., L0.85). THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MURDER DOSSIER, edited by Simon Goodenough (Exeter: Webb & Bower, 1984; £9.95). THE SIGN OF FOUR: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MURDER DOSSIER, edited by Simon Goodenough (Exeter: Webb & Bower, 1985; £9.95). THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, the 13 stories in the first and second Granada series, with a cover photograph of Brett and Burke (London: Granada, 1984; 365 pp., £7.95).
136. I occasionally hear from people who have had problems with mail-order dealers of various sorts, the problems involving not receiving merchandise ordered, not receiving refunds for merchandise incorrectly sent, and not receiving any response to enquiries. While it is possible for one enquiry (or a response) to be lost in the mails, lack of response to a second enquiry may indicate that the dealer isn't paying attention to you. And there is a very effective way to get the dealer's attention: write a letter to the postmaster at the appropriate city, giving a factual explanation of the problem and saying that you would like to file a complaint against the dealer for fraudulent use of the mails. Standard post-office procedure is to contact the dealer, requesting an explanation, and mail-order dealers tend to pay close attention to letters from postal inspectors.
137. Responding to requests on how one obtains a copy of the new Bantam Books edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (with new introduction by John Bennett Shaw), one possibility is responding to the advertisement in the July issue of The Dial (the magazine published for some PBS stations). There's no obligation other than payment for THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES when it arrives.
138. Has anyone visiting London noticed the "Sherlock Holmes Centa" on Baker Street, near Paddington Street? David H. Galerstein spotted it on a map of London from the British Tourist Office; the Centa is apparently a movie theater, but I don't recall hearing of it before.

139. "Selected Cases of Sherlock Holmes" (Spec, Gree, SixN) on two 90-minute cassettes, narrated by Grover Gardner; $19.95 plus $2.50 shipping from Audio Book Contractors, Box 40115, Washington, DC 20016.
140. "A Castle in Connecticut" by Caroline Crosson, in Amtrak Express, June-July 1985; on Gillette's home and interests (PPI Publications, Box O, Huntington, NY 11743). Reported by Gideon D. Hill, who also notes the appearance by Meiringen and Reichenbach Falls on the "Traveler's Guide to the Alps" insert map in the April 1985 issue of National Geographic.
-
141. Jul 85 #2: "Detective: The Beggar" by William C. Thomas (EQMM, Sept. 1985), is his second appearance in the magazine, with his second poetic tribute to "Twis" (the first was "Detective: The Bar of Gold" in EQMM, Aug. 1983). Thomas continues his intriguing practice of not mentioning the title of the story or the detective in his poems.
142. "The Red Leech" by Maryam Wade (Mike Shayne Mystery Magazine, July 1985) is a grade C+ pastiche.
143. John Bennett Shaw reports that a Los Angeles advertising agency is searching for a Sherlockian who owns a Honda. If you qualify, the firm is Needham Harper Worldwide Agency, and you can call collect and ask for Judy at 213-208-5000 extension 266. I'm sure there's no connection, but some time ago Ted Schulz sent in an item from the San Francisco Chronicle on a literary vanity license plate reading BSKRVLS that was seen on a Honda. See BSJ, Mar. 1984, p. 61.
144. The promotion for Martha Grimes' newest Richard Jury mystery, HELP THE POOR STRUGGLER (Little, Brown and Co.), notes that "You'll find him gently interrogating a colorful cast of suspects in manor houses and pubs (including the pub of the title) around bleak Dartmoor, where the Hound of the Baskervilles once bayed." Richard Jury fans can let me know if there's actually a reference to the Hound in the book.
145. Yet another ocean cruise for mystery fans (not the one mentioned May 85 #4): a "Murder Overboard" trip to Bermuda on the Queen Elizabeth 2, from New York on Sept. 2-7, 1985. The mystery will be planned by David Landau of Murder to Go, and Evan Hunter (Ed McBain) will be on hand. Cheapest fare is $695 for an inside cabin, and the most expensive is $9,320 for a luxury split level apartment suite. Flier available from Cunard, 555 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10017.
146. Reported by Dick Lesh: POLYPHONIC MOTETS OF LASSUS on an excellent very hi-fi German recording, $25.00 from George Tobias, 1306 Skylark Drive, Omaha, NE 68144. Also: SHERLOCK BEEFO UNCOVERS THE MYSTERY OF THE 5TH QUARTER, a 16-page illustrated pamphlet published by the South Dakota Cow Belles (members of the South Dakota Beef Council), free from Mrs. Harold B. Anderson, Highmore, SD 75345.
147. A while back (Jan 85 #5) I recommended BIGELOW ON HOLMES (D1932b), the splendid index to the Writings Upon the Writings edited by Donald A. Redmond. I still recommend it, but the instructions for ordering are slightly different: the cost is $16.05 (Canadian) postpaid, and if your check is on an American bank you should use the current exchange rate to convert to U.S. dollars. Order from the Metropolitan Toronto Library (789 Yonge Street, Toronto M4W 2G8, Canada).
148. It took a while to track this down, and it turns out to be non-S'ian, but: THE CASE OF THE KIDNAPPED DOG, by Ron van der Meer (London: Macmillan's Children's Books, 1983), is a "do-it-yourself pop-up book" (no cutting, no gluing, but you get to put it together) in which the detective is Hercules Watson. Available from Merrimack Publishers Circle (47 Pelham Road, Salem, NH 03079) for $9.95.
-
149. Jul 85 #3: SELECTED CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES includes three cases (SPEC, GREE, and SIXN), quietly and faithfully read by Grover Gardner. The boxed set of two 90-minute audio cassettes is available from Audio Book Contractors (Box 40115, Washington, DC 20016) for $19.95 (plus $2.50 shipping).
150. Ron De Waal reports four of the Rathbone/Bruce films on videocassette at $19.95 each, at B. Dalton stores. And Lewis Gardner's adaptation "Sherlock Holmes and the Case of the Sussex Vampire", reprinted from Scholastic Scope (D4385b) in SCOPE ENGLISH ANTHOLOGY, edited by Stephen M. Lewin and Allene Feldman (New York: Scholastic Book Services, 1983); the SBS address is 730 Broadway, New York, NY 10003.
151. Scott and Sherry Rose Bond have returned from their trip to Baker Street (in Manchester, at the Granada studio) and a visit with producer (now executive producer) Michael Cox, who confirmed the rumor that David Burke will not play Watson in the third set of seven programs. Burke is now under contract to the Royal Shakespeare Company, and the new Watson will be Edward Hardwicke, son of Sir Cedric Hardwicke (who also played the role, on radio). The third set of programs, now considered to be the second series, will be called "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" and will start with "The Empty House", continuing with "The Six Napoleons", "The Second Stain", "The Man with the Twisted Lip", "The Abbey Grange", and (probably) "The Priory School" (and Cox wasn't sure what the seventh story would be). [For those who have forgotten, the first set of programs consisted of Scan, Danc, Nava, Soli, Croo, Spec, and Blue, and the second set has Gree, Resi, Norw, Copp, RedH, and Fina.]
152. Sherry also noted the death this month of Joan Wilson, wife of Jeremy Brett and the WGBH-TV (Boston) producer responsible for "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mystery!"
153. THE FRIENDS OF BOGIE'S RETURN TO BAKER STREET is the second audio cassette produced by the inspired crew who have provided dramatic entertainment at the January dinners of The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes. This time their proposition is that Holmes was a jack-of-all-trades, and master of none, presenting him as a travel agent, poet, and veterinarian, among other potential occupations. The 30-minute cassette is available for $9.00 postpaid from ZPPR Productions, 34 Gansevoort Street, New York, NY 10014. An earlier cassette, THE FRIENDS OF BOGIE'S AT BAKER STREET, is also available at the same price.
154. Gunnar E. Sundin has set a July 29 publication date for his SHERLOCK'S LONDON TODAY: A WALKING TOUR OF THE LONDON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with routes for 11 tours, identifications of 400 S'ian sites, and 100 photographs and maps; $19.00 postpaid from Sherlock's Bookshop, 492 South First Avenue, Des Plaines, IL 60016. His set of four 17x22" maps of VICTORIAN LONDON (handsomely reproduced from a set produced by the Weekly Dispatch in 1861) is still available ($13.95 postpaid), along with a new 360-item sales list of S'iana.
155. Bruce R. Beaman (Box 745, Stevens Point, WI 54481) is offering a number of S'ian items; send him a #10 SASE for a copy of his sales list.
-
156. Jul 85 #4: All the residents at 221 Baker Street were blessed with Scottish names, according to John T. Kerr (president of the Kerr Family Association), with Holmes being a sept name of the Home Family in the eastern Borders, thus providing the connection for an article on Holmes, Watson, Mrs. Hudson, Dr. Bell, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in the May 1985 issue of The Border Line: Newsletter of the Kerrs and Carrs. The KFA address is Box 8868, Durham, NC 27707.
157. ANNO'S HAT TRICKS, by Akihiro Nozaki and Mitsumasa Anno (New York: Philomel Books, 1985; 44 pp., $11.95) is S'ian only for its cover artwork and minor interior illos, but it's a charming and imaginative explanation of binary logic for children (and I venture to predict that some parents will have to concentrate in order to keep up with their kids).
158. A subscriber (who did not request anonymity, but will receive it anyway) reports a button reading "No shit . . . Sherlock" sold by the Button-Up Co., 1202 East Maple, Troy, MI 48083 (price not known). It's all too easy to make buttons to order with do-it-yourself kits, of course, and there are probably more varieties around than there are different T-shirts.

159. There's a new paperback edition of Martha Grimes' THE MAN WITH A LOAD OF MISCHIEF (Dell, $3.50), the first of her series about Inspector Jury; the book has a couple of allusions to the Canon, but the deerstalkered man on the cover of the 1982 paperback is missing from this one.
160. Sherlock Snoopy is featured on a 9x12" portfolio cover (for students, I guess), manufactured for Butterfly Originals for Plymouth Inc., Bellmawr, NJ 08031 (price not known).
161. "A Weekend in Toronto with Sherlock Holmes" is the official title of the seminar mentioned earlier (Jun 85 #1), to be sponsored by The Bootmakers of Toronto at Trinity College, University of Toronto, June 19-22, 1986. An agenda flier is available, and mailing-list requests should be sent to: SH86, 225 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ont. M5A 2L2, Canada.
162. "When a Doctor Turns to Crime", by Ely M. Liebow, in Chicago Medicine, June 7, 1985 (Chicago Medical Society, 515 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, IL 60610; $1.00); a two-page article on Conan Doyle as a doctor.
163. There have been a number of mentions in the press of a modern version of "The Lost Special", reported by Pravda on June 2, 1985. "A train consisting of 28 freight cars with crushed rock left the Tomashgorodsky factory on June 24, 1983," Pravda said, "It left, but it didn't arrive." And by the time the Soviet bureaucracy finished its investigation, it was impossible to solve the mystery, "since all the documents concerning shipments were kept for only one year and then destroyed." "Even Sherlock Holmes from Baker Street in London could have lost his way in the paper labyrinth," Pravda suggested.
164. Herb Tinning is the source for the only recent news from Elstree Studios, a quip from Regina Nadelson in European Travel & Life (May-June 1985) on the possibility that Steven Spielberg's "Young Sherlock" will be called "E.T. Goes to Eton".
-
165. Jul 85 #5: Ron De Waal reports a revised edition of Julian Symons' BLOODY MURDER: FROM THE DETECTIVE STORY TO THE CRIME NOVEL (D898b) (New York: Viking, 1985; $£4.95). In his chapter on "The Case of Sherlock Holmes", Symons suggests that "the tone of mock-scholarly facetiousness" in the Writings About the Writings "must make them rank high among the most tedious pieces of their kind ever written."
166. "The Baskerville" is a new London restaurant, near Baker Street Station across from Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum, according to Jon Burroughs of The Illustrious Clients.
167. Donald A. Redmond continues his research on "Sherlock Holmes Among the Pirates: The Sign of Four 1890-1930" and would be interested in hearing from owners of editions of "Sign" published by Hovenden Co. (New York), Human Life Publishing Co. (Boston), and I. M. Ottenheimer (Baltimore), and TALES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES from Orange Judd Co. (New York). Don's address is 178 Barrie Street, Kingston, Ont. K7L 3K1, Canada.
168. A TOUCH OF THE CLASS, edited by Michael H. Kean and published by The Master's Class of Philadelphia in 1981, is one of the better scion anthologies; 94 pp., illustrated, and still available for $13.50 postpaid from Victoria M. Robinson, 299 Summit House, West Chester, PA 19382.
169. THE STORY OF MR. GEORGE EDALJI, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, edited and with an Introduction by Richard and Molly Whittington-Egan (London: Grey House Books, 1985; 124 pp., £15.00 postpaid from the publisher, 12A Lawrence Street, Chelsea, London SW3, England) (or £18.00 postpaid for the 100 numbered copies signed by the editors); far more than a reissue of the rare pamphlet published by ACD in 1907 reprinting his two-part article from the Daily Telegraph, this book also includes a later three-part article on his "Special Investigation" and, published for the first time, the full text of his "Statement of the Case" against the man he believed was the prime suspect in the Great Wyrley outrages.
170. Wally Conger reports that a police officer is called "a Sherlock Holmes" and that the famous barkless dog is mentioned in Ross Thomas' new novel BRIARPATCH. And S'ian references in L. Neil Smith's SF novel THE NAGASAKI VECTOR, which features a sleuthing coyote with a marked resemblance to Philip Jose Farmer's "Ralph von Wau Wau".
171. Reported: ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Don Richard Cox (New York: Frederick Ungar Publishing Co., 1985; $13.95); presumably a biography. DETECTIVE AND MYSTERY FICTION: AN INTERNATIONAL BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SECONDARY SOURCES, by Walter Albert (Madison: Brownstone Books, 1985; 779 pp., $60.00); I believe this is essentially non-S'ian, based on Albert's operating assumption that our world is more than adequately covered by Ron De Waal.
172. Lenny Picker reports that James Moriarty is one of the defense lawyers in "U.S. v. Badalamenti", an organized crime case popularly known as the "Pizza Connection". I am reminded of one of the more inspired titles for a federal law, which is now known mainly by its acronym: RICO. Fans of Edgar G. Robinson will need no reminder of who Rico was, and RICO is the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act.
-
173. Jul 85 #6: The Sherlock Holmes Centa in Baker Street is indeed a movie theater (Jul 85 #1), but I still don't know where the word "centa" comes from. The "London Map" is nicely done, and available from the British Tourist Authority, Literature Distribution Center, 25-15 50th Street, Woodside, NY 11377.
174. Reported by Ron De Waal: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF DR. FREUD, by Michael Shepherd (New York: Tavistock Publications, 1985; 30 pp.); an essay based on the 1984 Squibb History of Psychiatry lecture, delivered at the Institute of Psychiatry, London, in June 1984 (the publisher's address is 733 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017). And "A Double-Barrelled Detective Story" by Mark Twain (D6128a), in Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine, Sept. and Oct. 1985.
175. TV Guide reports that "Sherlock Holmes and the Baskerville Curse" (the Australian animated film featuring Peter O'Toole as the voice of Holmes) will be shown on Showtime cable TV on Aug. 2 and Aug. 8.
176. Dr. Alvin E. Rodin reports that one of the papers at the May meeting of the American Osler Society was "A Modern Version of Osler's Bedside Library," detailing the results of a survey of the favorite books and authors of society members. Sir William Osler led the list, followed by Harvey Cushing (who wrote a biography of Osler); the Bible was third, William Shakespeare was fourth, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was fifth, "far outdistancing such authors as Hemingway, Mark Twain, Maugham, Kipling, Camus, Poe, Conrad, Defoe, etc."
177. What was the lowest depth to which Conan Doyle ever sunk, during his long literary career? See page 275 in the Apr. 1886 issue of Cassell's Family Magazine, and the picture of two girls and a boy in a yacht; the picture was sent to Conan Doyle with a commission to write a story to match it. The result was "Touch and Go: A Midshipman's Story", and the assessment of it is by Conan Doyle himself, recorded by P. G. Wodehouse in some hitherto unpublished notes auctioned at Sotheby's last year. See "New P.G. Wodehouse Material" by Richard Osborne, in Encounter, July-Aug. 1985, at hand from Steven Rothman.
178. Steve and Summer Canyon arrived in London on July 22, according to a report from Jon Lellenberg, and the continuing sequence will obviously be of interest to S'ians.
-
179. Aug 85 #1: SHERLOCKIAN ESOTERICA is an aptly named 60-minute audio cassette compiled by William R. Smith in 1980, with contents ranging from classic contributions by Red Smith and William S. Baring-Gould to material as new as one of Isaac Asimov's melodious appearances at a BSI annual dinner. The cost is $8.00 postpaid, and Bill's address is 15 West Hillcrest Avenue, Havertown, PA 19083.
180. "The three most memorable men of the twentieth century so far are Winston Churchill, Adolf Hitler and Sherlock Holmes," according to Alistair Cooke, quoted by Jeremy Brett in an interview in the summer 1985 issue of The Sherlock Holmes Journal.

181. The SHJ also reports a S'ian chess set with pieces 2 to 3 inches high, sculpted in wax and cast in polyester resin, at £30 from A. Payn, 80 Osborne Road, Hornchurch, Essex, England. And many S'ian references in DELIGHTFUL MURDER: A SOCIAL HISTORY OF THE CRIME STORY, by Ernest Mandel (Pluto Press, £3.95).
182. I haven't seen tins of the Danish "Baker Street No. 221B" pipe tobacco in stores recently, but there is a source mentioned in the July 1985 issue of The Tonga Times: Anne Neely, 1804 Spring Lane, East Stroudsburg, PA 18301; a 2-oz tin costs $5.80 postpaid. And the House of Nisbet "Sherlock Holmes" bear doll (14") is available for $69.95 from Dollsville Dolls, 373 South Palm Canyon Drive, Palm Springs, CA 92262. And a search "for that Pondicherry Lodge look" ends at Laura Ashley shops, with a new Indian-look print called Pondicherry. The Tonga Times is the quarterly newsletter for miniaturist members of The Mini-Tonga Scion Society; $3.50 a year from Dee Snyder, 8440 Nashua Drive, Lake Park, FL 33418.
183. "Some letters display a simple naxvete," according to Julia Reynolds, in an article on Holmes' secretary Sue Brown, in My Weekly, Sept. 10, 1984, "like the enquiry from a midshipman in the US Naval Academy who wrote, 'Dear Sherlock Holmes. We have just completed a study of your mysteries in our "Detectives in Fiction" course and I wonder if you would be so kind as to let me know what is your favourite mystery—from a purely logical point of view, of course. I enclose one dollar to cover postage.'" It's nice to know that our future admirals are being exposed to literature, but one does wonder about the teacher . . .
184. "I realized that no one had ever done original shows from Conan Doyle," Jeremy Brett told Judy Klemesrud (N.Y. Times, May 26, 1985). "The one exception was Basil Rathbone in 'The Hound of the Baskervilles.'" Brett also said that the Granada series has been sold to 42 countries, and that the third set of seven episodes will be filmed this fall. "And then I hang my pipes up," he said with a smile.
185. Yet another criminous Moriarty, reported by Paul C. Merz: W. Patrick Moriarty, an Orange County businessman, pleaded guilty to seven counts of fraud as part of a plea-bargain agreement with the government, and then testified against a bank official charged with conspiring with Moriarty in an alleged money-laundering scheme. But the federal jury in Los Angeles voted for acquittal. "They flat didn't believe the man," said an observer, "I would love to defend anybody with Moriarty as a complaining witness."
-
186. Aug 85 #2: Owners of Douglas Norman's THE GHOST OF THE WIZARD OF OZ will welcome the appearance of his new collection THE SIGN OF THE FORESKIN (Watsonville: The Iron Dyke Co., 1985); the 24-page collection of limericks is available from his Agent, Mr. John Ruyle (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707); $27.50 (signed by the author and bound in discreet cloth) or $12.50 (garish paper wrappers). The prospectus (Loomings from The Pequod Press, a collector's item in its own right) pronounces the book to be "unmitigated smut, the kind that makes even old Baron Dowson himself recoil in horror."
187. Julian Symons' harsh judgement of the Writings About the Writings in the 1972 edition of BLOODY MURDER: FROM THE DETECTIVE STORY TO THE CRIME NOVEL (D898b) is missing from the chapter on Sherlock Holmes in the revised edition (New York: Viking, 1985; 261 pp., $14.95), but his appreciation of the Canon itself is unchanged: "Certainly what needs to be stressed today is something that should be a cliché, and unhappily is not: that if one were choosing the best twenty short detective stories ever written, at least half a dozen of them would be about Sherlock Holmes."
188. Vagabond Travel (665 North Plankinton Avenue, Milwaukee, WI 53203) has scheduled a motor coach tour "In the Footsteps of Sherlock Holmes" from Sept. 27 to Oct. 6 at $679.50 a person, and it's an interesting itinerary: Milwaukee, Chicago (dinner with the local S'ians), Cleveland (ditto), the Vermessa Valley and Pocono Pines (Gravesend Books) and New York (dinner with the local S'ians at Bogie's), Mystic Seaport and Gillette Castle, Hyd Park (FDR Library), Rochester (screening of the Barrymore "Sherlock Holmes" at Eastman House), Niagara Falls and Toronto (the Metropolitan Toronto Library and dinner with the local S'ians at Sherlock's on Sheppard), Detroit (a final dinner with the local S'ians), and back to Milwaukee. Robert W. Hahn will be providing commentary throughout the tour.
189. Rupert Holmes, the author of a musical adaptation of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" that will open in Central Park on Aug. 21, was the subject of a major interview in the Washington Post (yes, Washington shuts down in August, so there's hardly anyone here worth interviewing), and the Post's photograph of Holmes shows a "Sherlock Holmes Faces Death" poster in the background. We await a report from any of our New York correspondents on possible S'ian references in the musical.
190. A SHORT ACCOUNT OF COX & CO. AT CHARING CROSS is a carefully researched 30-page monograph by James O. Duval, published in 1981 and still available for $5.00 postpaid from Jim at 72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303.
191. Gale Sondergaard died on Aug. 14. She won an Oscar for best supporting actress for "Anthony Adverse" (1936) and was nominated for "Anna and the King of Siam" (1946), but is best known in the S'ian world for her performance as Adrea Spedding in "Spider Woman" (1944).
192. THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES in Bantam's "Collection of Mystery Classics" at hand, nicely printed and bound, with a six-page introduction by John Bennett Shaw; $9.95 plus $1.94 shipping, and as far as I know you can get it only by signing up for their series (Box 958, Hicksville, NY 11802) and then cancelling if you don't want the non-S'ian titles to follow.
-
193. Aug 85 #3: Hoboken. You've all seen the agenda (on the back of the Red Circle's announcement in the last mailing, in case you haven't got round to reading the last mailing yet), so I won't go into detail on everything. About 140 on hand for the festivities (from 17 states and 2 Canadian provinces, according to one report), which makes it the largest ever of John Bennett Shaw's workshops. And it was one of the best-run, with great credit due to Herb Tinning, who was featured in the spring issue of the Stevens alumni bulletin in a photograph showing Herb swinging from a vine in Ecuador, and Bob Thomalen. Two local newspapers sent reporters to the workshop on Friday afternoon, resulting in front-page coverage on Saturday (not much is happening in Hoboken, now that Dr. Sinatra has departed), and an AP reporter was on hand as well (please send me copies of any wire-service reports you may see).
194. ZDF Television crew was on hand from Mainz to film the Saturday dinner, and they will eventually air a major documentary on Sherlock Holmes and the Sherlockian Phenomenon. They had already filmed a special SHSOL meeting in London in July, and left Hoboken in hot pursuit of John for more filming in Santa Fe. Julian and Eleanor Wolff were at the dinner, and Julian awarded an Investiture ("The St. Pancras Case") to Michael Hardwick, and there were so many toasts and so much associated entertainment that John cancelled his evening lecture to avoid interfering with the usual room parties.
195. Edith Meiser reminisced with great affection about the actors who played Holmes and Watson in her radio series (one of the nicest things about the workshop was the presence of many Manhattanites who never get to some of John's more far-flung sites). George Fletcher talked about the history (past, present, and future) of the BSJ, proudly displaying blue-line copies of the March and June 1985 issues. Harlan Umansky's tribute to the artistry of Norman Schatell was notable for a total absence of any slides showing Norman's work, but there was a fine display in one of the other rooms of Norman's splendid ritualistic and anthropological sculptures.

196. Charles A. Meyer won one of John's infamous quizzes with an astounding score of 94 (out of 100), much to John's embarrassment (and much to the despair of some of the other traditional quiz experts who scored the usual 35 or 40). And there were the traditional rumors that John won't have any more workshops, which only means that so far no one has invited him ("Have quizzes, will travel" is John's motto).
197. Extra copies of the workshop packet (with various souvenirs, fliers, pins, etc.) are available for $6.00 postpaid from Herbert P. Tinning, 80 Pine Street, Millburn, NJ 07041. [N.Y. Times, Aug. 10]
-
198. Aug 85 #4: Andy Jaysnovitch (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) the second volume in his series of videocassettes from the 1954 television series starring Ronald Howard and H. Marion Crawford. The new cassette contains "Pennsylvania Gun", "Reluctant Carpenter", "Belligerent Ghost", and "Careless Suffragette", and costs $29.95 postpaid (be sure to specify VHS or Beta format). The first cassette (with "Eiffel Tower", "Exhumed Client", "Night Train Riddle", and "Harry Crocker") is still available at the same price.
199. Ray Walsh's THE MYCROFT MEMORANDA is now available in an American edition (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1984; 186 pp., $11.95); Sherlock Holmes yet again in pursuit of Jack the Ripper.
200. Reported: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF DR. FREUD, by Michael Shepherd (New York: Methuen, 1985; $5.95 in wrappers); "the similarities between Holmes and Freud have been remarked by several observers . . . Shepherd brings together a large body of fact and theory to argue that the association is not fortuitous" (can be ordered direct from the publisher's sales department, 29 West 35th Street, New York, NY 10001).
201. "The Happenstance at Humberstone Hollow" will be an Agatha Christie Weekend ("1929...it started out as a family reunion of the high and mighty from which some never returned...") on Oct. 11-13 at the Hotel Stamford Plaza (2701 Summer Street, Stamford, CT 06905; $175.00); Tyke and Teddie Niver helped arrange the last mystery weekend at the Stamford Plaza, and may be involved in this one. Tyke and Teddie took a brief vacation from Sherlock's Music, visiting Disneyworld and staying in the "Tonga" section of the Polynesian Village, and report that one of the souvenir shops had a miniature (5x7") pub sign for The Sherlock Holmes (made by the Mini Pub Sign Company, Gosport PO12 3RE, England).
202. There are two variants of the first printing of the first American edition of Dorothy L. Sayers' THE OMNIBUS OF CRIME (New York: Payson and Clarke, 1929) [D182a]; in the first variant the printing on pages [2] and [4] is toward the top of the pages, and in the second variant the printing is toward the bottom of the pages. Comparison with later (Garden City) editions suggests that the first variant has precedence.
203. Dick Lesh, who reported (Jul 85 #2) on a hi-fi German recording of POLYPHONIC MOTETS OF LASSUS, now reports that the record is sold out. But he can supply a high-quality stereo tape for $10.00 postpaid, from Richard D. Lesh, 2631 Flintridge Place, Fort Collins, CO 80521. And LITERARY HOUSES: TEN FAMOUS HOUSES IN FICTION, by Rosalind Ashe (New York: Facts on File, 1982) is now available for $5.98 plus shipping from Publishers Central Bureau (Dept. 357), One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07131; one of the houses is Baskerville Hall. Also from PCB (Dept. 353): "Mr. Magoo's Storybook" on videocassette at $16.95 plus shipping; includes D6098b (with Mr. Magoo as Dr. Watson) and three other episodes (Frankenstein, the Count of Monte Criso, and Dick Tracy).
204. Ed McBain's THE HECKLER is back in print (New American Library/Signet paperback, $2.95), and recommended for its intriguing use of the plot of "RedH".
-
205. Aug 85 #5: The five programs from Agatha Christie's "Partners in Crime" that aired on PBS-TV at the end of 1984 were only half of the series; ten programs were done in England, including "The Case of the Missing Lady" (which has the most S'ian flavor of all the stories in the book). The ten programs are available on videocassettes ($24.95 each) from Pacific Arts Video Records, Box 22770, Carmel, CA 93922; they also offer a two-hour videocassette ($59.95) of "The Secret Adversary" (Christie's novel about Tommy and Tuppence Beresford). And a 67-minute videocassette ($59.95) of "Sherlock Holmes and the Baskerville Curse" (the Australian animation with Peter O'Toole doing the voice of Holmes); the other three long stories are due for issue soon, along with "Barbara Woodhouse Goes to Beverly Hills" (a 60-minute TV program broadcast by ITV/London on Dec. 30, 1981, with a 4-minute segment on lost-pet detective Sherlock Bones).
206. GUIDE BOOK AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE ASCENT OF HOLMES PEAK, by Richard S. Warner (Tulsa: Perceivers Press, 1985; 16 pp., $4.00 postpaid from the author, 3168 South Rockford Drive, Tulsa, OK 74105); issued to celebrate the formal dedication of Holmes Peak, located northwest of Tulsa and towering 314 meters above sea level, and the only landmark named in honor of Sherlock Holmes with the official approval of the U.S. Board on Geographic Names. Recommended.
207. THE ADVENTURE OF THE ECTOPLASMIC MAN, by Daniel Stashower (New York: William Morrow, 1985; 203 pp., $12.95); yet another long-lost manuscript, setting Sherlock Holmes and Harry Houdini in pursuit of a thief whose crimes threatens both the monarchy and Houdini's reputation. Stashower's style and execution are no match for Watson's, but the story is entertaining.
208. The Heron Classics Series, published in England, includes the complete Canon in six attractive volumes: ADVENTURES (#345), CASE BOOK (#346), HIS LAST BOW and VALL (#347), MEMOIRS and HOUN (#348), RETURN (#349), STUD and SIGN (#350). The books are available from the Strand Book Store, 828 Broadway, New York, NY 10003, at $2.95 each (plus $2.00 shipping per order); they take plastic if your order totals at least $15.00.
209. Flier at hand from Capra Press (Box 2068, Santa Barbara, CA 93120) announcing Nov. 15 as the publication date for Howard Lachtman's SHERLOCK SLEPT HERE: BEING A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE SINGULAR ADVENTURES OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE IN AMERICA, WITH SOME OBSERVATIONS UPON THE EXPLOITS OF MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES ($10.95 postpaid).
210. ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Don Richard Cox (New York: Frederick Ungar, 1985; 251 pp., $15.50); a survey of ACD's life and literary work, intended for students of literature, about 60% devoted to the Canon and 40% to his other fiction and non-fiction, with detailed plot summaries and some discussion.
211. The March and June 1985 issues of the BSJ exist in actual copies as well as blue-lines, Philip Shreffler reports with a well-deserved sigh of relief, and subscribers should receive them as soon as arrangements for a second-class mailing permit are completed. Non-subscribers can become subscribers by sending $12.50 to the Fordham University Press, University Box L, Bronx, NY 10458.
-
212. Aug 85 #6: Further to my earlier mention (May 85 #4) of audio-cassette readings from the Canon by Robert Hardy, there are four two-cassette packages, priced at £5.95 each in England, and Hardy does a splendid job; I've seen a few of them in stores here, and am trying to track down the distributor. FOUR SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES (Argo SAY 2) has 3Stu, Suss, Gree, and Chas; MORE SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES (Argo SAY 98) has Dyin, Shos, Musg, and Croo; MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Argo SAY 108) has Yell, Stoc, Glor, and Fina; and THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Argo SAY 109) has Empt, Soli, RedC, and Maza.
213. Helen Heinrich (7 Palfrey Street, Stony Brook, NY 11790) reports plans for a celebration at the Garden City Hotel in Garden City on Long Island on Oct. 19 (with due honors to Sherlock Holmes, of course); write to Helen for a copy of their flier.
214. THE PENGUIN CLASSIC CRIME OMNIBUS, edited by Julian Symons (New York: Penguin Books, 1984; 378 pp., $5.95), is a fine anthology, with "Copp" and Edward D. Hoch's ingenious pastiche "The Most Dangerous Man" (D5992b).

215. A timely warning from Paul Merz on "The Edison Twins: The Case of the Missing Guitar", a 30-minute TV program scheduled for the Disney Channel on Sept. 1 and 5. "There's a mysterious stranger in town! He has a deerstalker hat, an Inverness cape, and an uncanny ability to solve mysteries." It's elementary that Joseph Bell will be a big help to the Edison twins in unriddling the first two cases in this three-part serial. "The Case of the Odd Job" will air Sept. 21, and you can learn Bell's identity in the third episode, in October.
216. Carol Brener reports in her latest newsletter/saleslist that her special list of S'iana is now available; send SASE to Murder Ink, 271 West 87th Street, New York, NY 10024.
217. Reported by Ron De Waal: one-hour audio cassettes of "Five" (#8869) and "Norw" (#8870), read by Hugh A. Rose; $8.95 each at Waldenbooks [you may be able to order these on plastic by calling 800-543-1300 operator 390].
218. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: "The Adventures of the Red Leech", a pastiche by Fraser Sherman, in Eldritch Tales #11 (1051 Wellington Road, Lawrence, KS 66044; $6.00 postpaid).
219. "New York is no place for a civilized man," according to H. L. Mencken. "Nothing good has ever come out of it, and nothing good ever will come out of it. It degrades, it vulgarizes, it dehydrates, it demolishes, it belittles -- it is a sewer, a cesspool, a garbage can. . . All I can say in favor of New York . . . is that it's better than Boston." Other than providing a bit of cheer for most of the readers of these information sheets, there is a S'ian context for the quote, which appears in part IX of "The Clendening Investigation", a continuing series by Jon L. Lellenberg in The Kansas City Daily Journal, the scion newsletter of The Great Alkali Plainsmen, all in honor of one of the more energetic, as well as eccentric, early S'ians.
-
220. Sep 85 #1: Discovered by Jon Lellenberg: THE BOOK BOOK, by Steven Gilbar (New York: Bell Publishing Co., 1985); "a compendium of lists, quizzes, and trivia about books," with a number of references to ACD and SH, including "Writing Holmes for Money or Sherlock You Survived: 10 Best". The ten best, according to Gilbar, are: THE CASE OF THE PHILOSOPHER'S STONE (Collins); THE EXPLOITS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Doyle and Carr); DR. JEKYLL & MR. HOLMES (Estleman); THE INCREDIBLE SHLOCK HOMES (Fish); SHERLOCK HOLMES OF BAKER STREET (Baring-Gould); THE RETURN OF MORIARTY (Gardner); I, SHERLOCK HOLMES (Harrison); EXIT SHERLOCK HOLMES (Hall); ENTER THE CASE (Hodel and Wright); THE SEVEN PER CENT SOLUTION (Meyer); THE HOLMES-DRACULA FILE (Saberhagen); and THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Starrett). The authors, intended to be listed in alphabetical order, aren't; have you spotted five additional mistakes in Gilbar's list?
221. The S'ian gathering at the Garden City Hotel on Long Island on Oct. 19 starts with brunch in the Vanderbilt Room and ends with a tour of historic Garden City, all for $30.00; there's a deadline of Oct. 1 for reservations, but you might be able to squeeze in; contact Helen Heinrich, 7 Palfrey Street, Stony Brook, NY 11790 (516-751-5054).
222. The program for Bouchercon XVI (in San Francisco, Oct. 25-27) will include The Sherlock Holmes Hour. According to their newsletter: a surprise or two here; perhaps the Master himself will be in attendance to answer questions put to him by the Literary Agent A. C. Doyle.
223. The Heron Classics Series set of the Canon in six volumes (Aug 85 #5) turns out to be a reprint of THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COLLECTED EDITION from John Murray/Jonathan Cape (D287b), with occasional illustrations added. And three of the volumes (ADVENTURES, CASE BOOK, and MEMOIRS/HOUND) are no longer available from the Strand Book Store. A few years back, Heron advertised the set in seven volumes, but I don't know if it was actually issued in that format.
224. Steven Spielberg's "Young Sherlock Holmes" is reported scheduled for release on Dec. 6. According to Paul Attanasio of the Washington Post, "everyone who's seen it agrees that the Chris Columbus script is a wow."
225. Alvin E. Rodin reports a "Sherlock Mobile Homes" sales office near Dallas. Do you all check for "Sherlock" in the business listings in the new telephone book each year? In addition, of course, to the annual search for a "Garrideb" in the personal listings; is it really possible that there are *no* Garridebs?
226. THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, by M. J. Trow (New York: Stein and Day, 1985; $14.95); the American edition of a British pastiche "with the bold inspector one of the best policemen in London and Holmes a shambling amateur being wrecked by drugs," a first novel written by Trow because "he was annoyed at the way Inspector Lestrade has always been depicted as one of the world's losers."
227. John E. Carroll reports that Evelyn Ankers died on Aug. 30; she played Kitty in "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror" (1942) and Naomi Drake in "The Pearl of Death" (1944).
228. Sep 85 #2: Did everyone spot the five additional mistakes in Gilbar's list of "10 Best"? The correct titles should be THE CASE OF THE PHILOSOPHER'S RING, THE INCREDIBLE SCHLOCK HOMES, ENTER THE LION, and THE SEVEN-PER-CENT SOLUTION. That's four; what about the fifth mistake?
229. The Mind's Eye (Box 6727, San Francisco, CA 94101; 800-227-2020) offers 12 of the 1954 Gielgud/Richardson radio programs on six cassettes for $29.95 (plus $3.00 shipping); they take plastic.
230. Pam N. Bentien (42 Garner Street, Cohoes, NY 12047) offers a S'ian notepad, with 50 sheets (that's the illustration, at the left), for $1.50 postpaid. Can you identify the artist and the case?
231. The SHSOL's 1985 Christmas card will feature "The Cab-Stand Loafer" drawn by H. M. Brock for George R. Sims' book LIVING LONDON. Ten cards with envelopes cost $7.00 postpaid (checks payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London) from Capt. W. R. Michell, The Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset TA13 5JX, England.
232. Waldenbooks has a Waldentapes double-cassette ($14.95) package of Poul Anderson's THE GUARDIANS OF TIME (D5794a), read by Fred Melamed.
233. "The Adventures of the Red Leech", a pastiche by Fraser Sherman, in Eldritch Tales #11 (1051 Wellington Road, Lawrence, KS 66044; $6.00) (checks payable to Crispin Burnham).
234. The second edition of Owen Dudley Edwards' THE QUEST FOR SHERLOCK HOLMES (Harmondworth: Penguin Books, 1984; 380 pp., £4.95) has a new two-page author's note correcting a few of the errors in the first edition and suggesting that "it is a pity that such reviewers as disliked the book did not use their space for the discovery and denunciation of these errors instead of merely repeating one another's aesthetic preferences."
235. I've been playing with The Souvenir Edition again, concentrating on A STUDY IN SCARLET; this is the George Newnes edition with the attractive "Egyptian" design on the cover (with or without SOUVENIR EDITION on the title page), and I'd like to hear from people who have copies of A STUDY IN SCARLET, in hopes of identifying additional variants. I know that some of you have copies, and have enclosed a more formal query for you with this mailing; if there are others out there, please let me know. Eventually I will get round to the other titles in The Souvenir Edition, but for now I am interested in A STUDY IN SCARLET.
236. Baker's Plays (100 Chauncy Street, Boston, MA 02111) is now the distributor for Performance Publishing Co., and their latest catalog includes two additional items of interest. R. H. Bibolet's SHERLOCK HOLMES' FIRST CASE (D4463b) is a lively two-act combination of four cases (Musg, Five, Croo, and Copp), and Jurgen Wolff's OLD DETECTIVES NEVER DIE involves an aged Holmes in a one-act comedy for younger actors.
-

237. Sep 85 #3: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF DR. FREUD, by Michael Shepherd (New York: Tavistock/Methuen, 1985; 31 pp., $5.95); Holmes and Freud are described as "two magi meeting appropriately in the no-man's-land between fact and fiction" in an entertaining monograph based on a lecture at the Institute of Psychiatry in London in 1984.
238. Reported by Ron De Waal: a new edition of ROUND THE FIRE MYSTERIES from Greenhill Books (208 pp., £7.95); this is D831a retitled, with "The Man with the Watches" and "The Lost Special". From Lionel Leventhal Limited, 206 Hampstead High Street, London NW3 1QQ, England. Also: MURDER IN THE FIRST REEL, edited by Bill Pronzini, Charles G. Waugh, and Martin Harry Greenberg, with an Introduction by Isaac Asimov (New York: Avon Books, 1985); contents include "Musg". Also: "RedH" included in LITERATURE: BLUE LEVEL, edited by David W. Foote and Brenda Pierce Perkins (Evanston: McDougal, Littell & Co., 1984); with teacher's manual (McDougal, Littell & Co., Box 1667, Evanston, IL 60204). Also: Michael and Mollie Hardwick's adaptation of "Dyin" (D5243a) and Isaac Asimov's limerick on "Dyin" (D1942b) in CASCADE: CURRICULUM AND WRITING, edited by Richard J. Smith and Max F. Schulz (New York: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1982); with teachers manual. Also: Olive J. Morley's adaptation of "Seco" (D4501b) in THE WORLD ANTHOLOGY, edited by Robert R. Potter and Roger B. Goodman (New York: Globe Book Co., 1983); address is 50 West 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010.
239. THE AFFAIR OF THE UNPRINCIPLED PUBLISHER, a pastiche by Lawrence Garland reporting on an encounter between Thomas J. Wise and Sherlock Holmes, was published by Oak Knoll Books in 1983 in an attractive hand-printed 21-page pamphlet; copies are still available at $37.00 postpaid from Paulette Greene, 140 Princeton Road, Rockville Centre, NY 11570.
240. John Keane ("Sherlock Bones") has computerized his business, according to an article in Atari Explorer, summer 1985, and he is now using his Atari 800XL to write a manual that covers the petfinding business from A to Z. "If you'd like to use your electronic Watson to start your own petfinding agency, call Sherlock at 415-788-1137, or use your word processor to write him at: 20 Darrel Place, San Francisco, CA 94133."
241. Geoff Bradley (9 Vicarage Hill, South Benfleet, Essex SS7 1PA, England) has published the first issue of CADS: Crime and Detective Stories, a 56-page fanzine much in the format of Ethel Lindsay's The Mystery Trader and Allen J. Hubin's original version of The Armchair Detective. Catherine Cooke's "A Couple of Minutes from Baker Street" is a report on the collection at the Marylebone Library, and Paulette Greene has a bibliographic query on an unusual variant of MYSTERY (the 1952 anthology that includes a reprint of D4446a). $3.00 (currency) or $4.00 (dollar check) for the issue.
242. A newsletter for pipesmokers reports that the Tinder Box chain has been acquired by Vilizan Cigar, U.S. Tobacco Co., and other creditors. "Speculation is that Tinder Box, which moved from a pipe and tobacco shop into other areas, will be brought back into the main stream for tobacco users." Meanwhile, their latest catalog offers the hand-crafted wooden Sherlock Holmes clock ($185.00) and the hand-carved "Sherlock Holmes/Dr. Watson" pair of meerschaum pipes ($160.00). Tinder Box, P.O. Box 830, Santa Monica, CA 90406.
-
243. Sep 85 #4: Correcting my report (Aug 85 #3) on the Hoboken workshop, Michael Hardwick was Investitured as "The Sign of the Four". "The St. Pancras Case" was awarded earlier to James J. De Stefano. And I neglected to mention that Julian made a special award to John Bennett Shaw: the Queen Victoria Medal, produced by the Royal Mint in 1897 for the Queen's Diamond Jubilee and awarded only rarely by the BSI.
244. Alvin E. Rodin continues to keep the memory green; on Sept. 20 he was at the University of Manitoba's Department of Pathology, lecturing on "Permeation of Medicine by a Literary Character: Arthur Conan Doyle's Master Detective, Mr. Sherlock Holmes". And Richard L. Kellogg contributed an article on "Heredity and the Great Detective" to the fall 1985 issue of Network: The Newsletter for Psychology Teachers at Two-Year Colleges.
245. It was Dean W. Dickensheet's suggestion, in his speculations "Upon the Victorian Reticence of John H. Watson, M.D." (Baker Street Miscellanea, summer 1980) that Watson's description of the abuse suffered by Beryl Stapleton was "a fine piece of periphrastic obfuscation." A more detailed account is now at hand from J. C. Charles, in "The Ordeal of Beryl Stapleton," a rather graphic seven-page extract from Watson's notes available (to adults only) for $4.75 postpaid from The Filmoods Co., Box 475, Scarsdale, NY 10583.
246. Thanks to all who sent copies of the Associated Press Dispatch by Bob McHugh on the Hoboken workshop; it ran on Aug. 11 in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Dayton Daily News, Marion (Ind.) Chronicle-Tribune, Chicago Sun-Times, Tulsa World, and Galveston Daily News, and on Aug. 15 in the San Francisco Examiner. Any others out there?
247. The Boy's Own Paper, in which a number of Conan Doyle's stories were first published, from 1883 to 1887, had a weekly "Correspondence" column; it did not publish letters from readers, but rather only the editors' answers to those letters. The Feb. 19, 1887, column included this poignant item: "JIM.--Your pigeon is dead by now, so we need not reply. Nursing young pigeons that go light is a thankless task."
248. "It is astonishing how this old and worn-out story, which I must have first read more than 50 years ago, gripped my attention and held it in suspense until I reached the last page . . . I was again under the spell of a master craftsman of the storyteller's art, as I had been when first reading 'The White Company' in my early teens, or when I had to refrain from reading my sister's copy of the 'Last Tales of Sherlock Holmes' for fear of coming upon the passage where Holmes is pushed, apparently to his death, over the cliff by Professor Moriarty." Barbara Tuchman, in the Christian Science Monitor, Aug. 5, 1985.
249. Subscribers have now received the March and June 1985 issues of the BSJ, so if you haven't, you aren't. And if you don't renew for 1985, you won't find out what else editor Shreffler has accomplished. There *is* a December 1984 issue, somewhere, and it will arrive, eventually, and I'm sure that both editor and publisher will appreciate your not cluttering up their mailboxes with anguished enquiries that aren't accompanied by checks for subscription renewals.
-
250. Sep 85 #5: Richard Masloski (24 Lannis Avenue, Newburgh, NY 12550) continues to turn out fine Sherlockian sculptures (cast in Hydrocal with bronze patina): his 17" seated Holmes costs $125.00 (UPS paid); the 12" bust of Holmes costs $95.00 (UPS paid).
251. Edgar Wallace was a fine writer, as well as one of the most prolific in modern literature, and there is a S'ian connection (he wrote the dialog for the film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in 1932). The Edgar Wallace Society publishes a quarterly newsletter which will be of interest to his admirers; membership costs £7.00 (checks to John A. Hogan, 7 Devonshire Close, Amersham, Bucks. HP6 5JG, England).
252. The second set of Granada broadcasts started in England on Aug. 25 with "Copp" and is continuing weekly.
253. "In my opinion, Holmes is one of the truly great comic characters in our literature . . . he is the classic caricature of the Amateur Detective, in whose person the whole art of detection is made ridiculous. I don't believe that Doyle consciously intended this ridicule - and yet it is what makes Holmes lovable and immortal." Christopher Isherwood, in EXHUMATIONS (D2062a).
254. Topics covered in the Victorian Military History Institute's monthly newsletter and quarterly journal range from "the organisation of the British army during this period to the Zulu Wars of South Africa, from the war correspondents who covered 'Queen Victoria's little wars' for the newspapers of the day to the Afghan Wars on India's Northwest Frontier, from the grand strategies to the individuals on all levels," according to a flier recently at hand. Membership in the society costs $25.00 a year, and a sample issue of its newsletter is available for a 39c SASE sent to Jerry L. Russell, Box 7401, Little Rock, AR 72217.

255. Are you still trying to spot the last mistake in Gilbar's list? There are 12 books on his list of "10 Best".
256. Adaptations of the Canon for young readers require both simple text and striking illustrations, and the combination is not often found. One of the best examples is the "Sherlock Holmes Library" (Empt, Spec, Fina, and RedH), adapted by David Eastman and illustrated by Allan Eitzen in four 32-page books priced at $2.50 each in the current catalog from Troll Associates, 320 Route 17, Mahwah, NJ 07430.
257. "Lord Mountbatten: The Last Viceroy" is scheduled on Masterpiece Theatre on PBS-TV in Jan. 1986, with two S'ian actors in the cast: Nicol Williamson will play Mountbatten, and Ian Richardson will play Jawaharlal Nehru.
-
258. Sep 85 #6: The spring 1985 issue of Baker Street Miscellanea at hand, with much on and by Michael Harrison, and a fine excerpt from Chris Redmond's work-in-progress on ACD's 1894 tour of the United States. $7.50 a year (quarterly) from The Sciolist Press, Box 2579, Chicago, IL 60690.
259. THE SEARCH FOR KING PUP'S TOMB, by Jim and Mary Razzi, with illustrations by Ted Enik (New York: Bantam Skylark, 1985; 62 pp., $2.25); Sherlock Bones and his old friend Scotson again, in a pleasant children's book. INSPECTOR KETCHEM'S CRIME BOOK, by Robert Quackenbush (New York: Avon/Camelot, 1984; 48 pp., $2.25), is only faintly S'ian (one of the 20 short puzzles is "The Hound of Baskerville Mystery").
260. Stein and Day (Scarborough House, Briarcliff Manor, NY 10510) have sent a mailing to scions offering M. J. Trow's THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (Sep 85 #1) to scion members at a 20% discount (from the $14.95 retail) on orders placed by Oct. 31; they take plastic.
261. Gerald Shannon has prepared a 5th first day cover for The Prof. Moriarty Memorial Society, with one of this month's commemorative stamps showing horses and a cachet with a Paget illustration. $1.00 each, plus a #10 SASE, to Shannon at Box 14474, West Allis, WI 53214.
262. James Powell's series of stories about the great detective Ambrose Ganelon has been running for a while in EQMM -- and there's is a new villain in "The Bridge of Traded Dreams" (Dec. 1985): Prof. Moriarty.
263. Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 5614 East Second Street, Long Beach, CA 90803) has a new pewter tie-tack/lapel-pin with SH in high relief ($6.98), and much more, in his new catalog, available on request.
264. Reported by Richard G. Smith: the Steinbach "Sherlock Holmes" nutcracker (12" high) at $65.00 in the mail-order catalog from Red Wing Pottery Sales, Red Wing, Minn. (800-328-1115).
265. Rohn Porcelain Inc. (2731 North West Avenue, Elmhurst, IL 60126) is offering a Sherlock Holmes (high-fired, hand-decorated, 9" high including wood base) designed by Ed Rohn at $155.00 plus $2.00 UPS; they take plastic, and offer a 10% discount on orders of ten or more. Their promo includes recommendations from Bob Hahn and Tom Joyce.
266. "A Sherlockian Treatment of the Mystery to the Dedication of Shakespeare's Sonnets", by R. F. Fleissner, in Clues: A Journal of Detection, spring-summer 1985 (Bowling Green University Popular Press, Bowling Green, OH 43404).
267. Magico Magazine plans a return to magazine publishing. The Scrapbook was the first venture, with two quarterly issues published in 1980 at $5.00 an issue (the first issue was limited to 35 copies). Now Kelvin I. Jones has been asked to edit The Sherlockian, a new quarterly that is intended to "offer the highest level of scholarship in addition to quizzes, pastiches and book reviews," and to "rival such well established organs of The Higher Criticism as The Baker Street Journal, Baker Street Miscellanea, and The Sherlock Holmes Journal."
-
268. Oct 85 #1: Anyone interested in truly rustic living might want to try a log home. Details available from Sher-Lock Log Homes, Box 1101, Ellsworth, ME 04605.
269. Roy H. Bobbin's "Maltese Falcon Hunt Society" is now the "Mystery Hunt Society" and the first issue of his quarterly newsletter "Mystery Hunt" presents an overview of the burgeoning mystery weekend craze. A special issue on S'ian activities is in the works. $10.00 a year; Roy's address is 988 Faris Drive, San Jose, CA 95111.
270. THE PRIVATE EYE CARTOON BOOK, by Marc Bilgrey (New York: Andrion Books, 1985; $7.00); a collection of amusing cartoons (one S'ian), with a suggestion that Los Angeles is "Cleveland with palm trees." Available from the publisher, 230 Park Avenue #1624, New York, NY 10169.
271. Articles about the 35th birthday of "Peanuts" serve as a reminder of the childhood enthusiasms of Charles M. Schulz. In PEANUTS JUBILEE: MY LIFE AND ART WITH CHARLIE BROWN AND OTHERS (New York: Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1975), Schulz said that "in my high school years, I became a Sherlock Holmes fanatic and used to buy scrapbooks at the local five-and-dime and fill them with Sherlock Holmes stories in comic-book form." And in his contribution to BOOKS I READ WHEN I WAS YOUNG, edited by Bernice Cullinan and M. Jerry Weiss (New York: Avon Books, 1980), Schulz wrote, "When I was a teenager, the three books that gave me the most enjoyment and probably led me on to more reading were the Sherlock Holmes stories, *Beau Geste*, and *Ivanhoe*."
272. Paramount Pictures Corp. has given a hint of its target audience for "Young Sherlock Holmes" in a "Dear Sherlock Holmes fan" letter sent to societies this month. They want to know how many members of your fan club are under 25 years old, and how many over 25 years old.
273. The Santa Teresa Press (Pepper & Stern, Box 2711, Santa Barbara, CA 93120) is planning Dec. 1985 publication of a facsimile of Marvin P. Epstein's manuscript of "The Priory School" accompanied by an original essay by Len Deighton on Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes. 350 numbered copies at $45.00 (the 26 deluxe lettered copies at $165.00 are already sold out).
274. Otto Penzler's "Holiday Catalogue" at hand (with a section on S'iana); available from The Mysterious Bookshop, 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.
275. If you have not received the Sept. 1985 issue of the BSJ, you didn't renew your subscription (or you have a malevolent mailman).
276. "Old Baron Dowson has gone on another rampage, this time revealing the secret Ritual Chants of the Tide-waiters of San Francisco Bay," and The Pequod Press is now publishing the true and authentic version of THE TIDE-WAITERS' RITUAL (16 pp.; $25.00 hardbound, $10.00 paperbound); order from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
-
277. Oct 85 #2: Steven Spielberg is having troubles, according to a report by Marilyn Beck in the San Francisco Examiner (Sept. 19, 1985, forwarded by Ted Schulz). The troubles are "the sort every filmmaker would love to have. He's got three movies scheduled to open within days of each other in December (Paramount's 'Young Sherlock Holmes,' Universal's 'The Money Pit' and Warner Bros.' 'The Color Purple') and is trying convince the studios to spread out the release dates so the flicks don't compete against one another.
278. Ted also reports an interesting real-estate offer at 2151 Sacramento Street in San Francisco: the "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Townhouse" described as one of San Francisco's noteworthy architectural houses. "This luxurious townhouse was built in 1881 and was once occupied by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle," according to the offer; the townhouse has since been converted into three apartments and is available for $1.3 million. ACD never lived in the house, but he was a visitor, in June 1923, to meet Dr. Albert Abrams, who did live there. Abrams had invented a "radio heterodyne" that he used to detect cancer, syphilis, and other diseases, and ACD was greatly impressed. He discusses his visit to San Francisco, and Abrams, in OUR SECOND AMERICAN ADVENTURE (1924).

279. In case you didn't recognize the dot-matrixing, those were my labels on the sales list you received from Ilene Fauer at US 2 -- and the sales list was labeled and mailed here per my policy of keeping firm control over the mailing list.
280. Andrew Malec's illustrated, 16-page catalog for "Investigating Sherlock Holmes," the traveling exhibit now on tour in Minnesota, is available for $4.25 postpaid. Checks payable to the University of Minnesota Art Museum and sent to the UMAM, attn: Cori Kulzer, 110 Northrop Auditorium, 84 Church Street SE, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
281. "Sleuth Nero Wolfe, Minus His Author, Takes on a New Case" was the headline in the Wall Street Journal (Oct. 14, 1985) on Steve Weiner's story about the decision by Rex Stout's heirs to authorize a new novel by Robert Goldsborough. The story also touched on other detectives, quoting John Bennett Shaw on S'ian pastiches and parodies: "Many have been dreadful, he says, placing Holmes in the wrong city, century, or state of mind."
282. Foreign Affairs (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offers a well-illustrated catalog featuring S'ian collectibles such as sculptures by Richard Masloski and Jay Piersanti, and figurines by Cassin-Scott and Imrie-Risley.
283. The S'ian world benefited greatly from the talents of Orson Welles, who died on Oct. 11. In 1938 he adapted Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" and played the title role in the broadcast on his Mercury Theatre on the Air (D4583b), and in 1954 he was a fine Moriarty in the BBC broadcast of "The Final Problem" (D5338a).
284. Andy Jaysnovitch (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) continues to expand his sales list of the 1954 Ronald Howard TV shows; a third cassette (with D5525a, D5528a, D5532a, D5542a) is now available for $32.95 postpaid.
-
285. Oct 85 #3: Videotape alert: "A Cotswold Death" will be broadcast on cable by the Arts & Entertainment Network on Dec. 4 and Dec. 11, 1985. This is a 1981 BBC television program, and Mike Whelan has reported many S'ian references. According to the press sheet: "Ian Richardson plays Inspector Anthony Arrowsmith who bemoans the fact that he is the last in the honoured tradition of gentlemen sleuths. He arrogantly plays 'Sherlock Holmes' to his hapless 'Dr Watson' - the harrassed but capable Detective-Sergeant Baxter (Timothy Spall)."
286. A new aerogram will be issued on Dec. 4, honoring Halley's Comet, Mark Twain, and the centennial of the publication of THE ADVENTURES OF HUCKLEBERRY FINN. There is mention of "a comet vintage" in the Canon (Stoc), and Mark Twain was the author of "The Double-Barrelled Detective Story" (D6128a).
287. Reported by Jim Duval: a S'ian greeting card on p. 41 in a catalog from Current Inc., Express Processing Center, Colorado Springs, CO 80941; it's one in a set of eight cards for $1.85.
288. SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1902 FIFTH TEST MATCH, by Stanley Shaw (London: W. H. Allen, 1985; 160 pp., £8.95); a pastiche featuring an Australian who arrives in England just in time to become involved, with a credibly drawn Sherlock Holmes, in a mystery connected with one of the most famous matches in the history of cricket (a sport described here, as is traditional, in language as incomprehensible as Frisian or Catalan).
289. "The Mis-Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" is a 30-minute radio series parodying old-time radio, broadcast by WBAL-FM (New York) beginning in 1983; a number of episodes are available at $5.00 postpaid for each cassette, and list of programs can be requested from Denouement Productions, 1 Michael Avenue, Kendall park, NJ 08824.
290. Great Britain has issued a set of five commemoratives honoring British Film Greats, including David Niven and Charles Chaplin. Neither actor performed in S'ian films, but they did perform in S'ian plays.
291. "Rosemary Herbert is distinguished by having successfully disguised herself as a man in order to attend a full meeting of a Baker Street Irregulars banquet. When the group--to remain unidentified--toasted '*the* woman,' she rose and said, 'Here, here!'--while the company looked on, unaware of the cuckoo in the nest." From the fall 1985 issue of The Armchair Detective, whose editor is presumably unaware that there is no toast to *The* Woman at the annual dinner of the BSI (that toast is made during the pre-dinner cocktail hour, when the anteroom is so crowded that it is impossible to sit, much less rise to the occasion). Her interview with Jeremy Brett, published in the same issue (with a color photograph of Brett as Holmes on the cover), is a fine one. TAD is costs $20.00 a year; 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.
292. YOUNG SHERLOCK: THE ADVENTURE AT FERRYMAN'S CREEK, by Gerald Frow (London: Dragon/Granada Publishing, 1984; 140 pp., £1.50); the second adaptation from the ITV television series. Young Sherlock, now 18, is in Lincolnshire investigating an ancient curse and a modern mystery.
-
293. Oct 85 #4: Carole Naddeo reports that Pacific Arts Video now offers all four of the long stories (animated) on videocassettes with Peter O'Toole as the voice of Holmes; distributed by MCA to your local videostores. Carole also reports that Conan Doyle was featured on CBS-TV on Oct. 9 in their 60-second "American Treasury" spot, keyed to the public reaction to his story in Cornhill on the mystery of the Marie Celeste.
294. ENCYCLOPEDIA OF MYSTERY AND DETECTION, edited by Chris Steinbrunner and Otto Penzler (San Diego: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1984; 436 pp., $13.95); a trade paperback reprint of an important reference work (D1861b).
295. Kelvin I. Jones (18 Ross Street, Rochester, Kent ME1 2DF, England) writes that he welcome unsolicited submissions for The Sherlockian (Sep 85 #6); no decision yet on the publication date and price for the magazine.
296. Bowling Green State University Popular Press (Bowling Green, OH 43403) is having an inventory-reduction sale (ending Dec. 30); their list includes John Ball's THE MYSTERY STORY (D609b) and Elliot L. Gilbert's THE WORLD OF MYSTERY FICTION (D98b) at $1.00 each, and other mystery titles at similar prices.
297. Canadians are fortunate -- the new Granada series has started there. The series has been announced for Jan. 2, 1986, in the U.S.
298. The 1986 Sherlock Holmes Calendar from Sherlockian Enterprises (Frank A. Hoffmann, 734 Richmond Avenue, Buffalo, NY 14222) will honor international Holmesians; $9.00 postpaid. Calendars for 1982-1985 are still available at $7.25 each postpaid.
299. More on the "Heron" series (Aug 85 #5 and Sep 85 #1): I don't know anyone who ordered the set who got all the volumes, and I'm not sure why, as the people I've heard seem to have received different titles in their short sets. Ron De Waal reports that the set was first issued in 1982 in eight volumes (with STUD and SIGN in one volume). In the new six-volume issue, MEMOIRS and HOUN are in one volume, and HIS LAST BOW and VALL are in one volume, and there are minor differences on the title pages and title-page versos; I don't know if Sheilaigh Noble's frontispiece was in the 1982 set.
300. Reported from England: THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (Penguin, £2.50); a selection of the best S'ian pastiches. LETTERS TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (Penguin, £4.95, in November); a selection of letters from the Abbey files. LETTERS TO THE PRESS, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, edited by John Michael Gibson and Richard Lancelyn Green (Secker & Warburg, £15.00, in November).
301. A-1 Adventure Travel (1099 Bower Hill Road, Pittsburgh, PA 15243) is advertising an excursion to England "In the Footsteps of Sherlock Holmes" on Mar. 13-24, 1986. Eight nights in London, one night at Moretonhampstead Manor in Dartmoor ("the reputed Baskerville Hall"), etc.

302. The Firesign Theater's record of THE GIANT RAT OF SUMATRA (D4635b) is listed (#1369446) in the latest catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011); $6.98 plus $2.50 shipping.
-
303. Oct 85 #5: "Victorian Work and Workers" will be the theme of the Northeast Victorian Studies Association's twelfth annual conference at Yale University's Center for British Art on April 18-20, 1986. Additional info available from Mary Davies, English Dept., Albertus Magnus College, 700 Prospect Street, New Haven, CT 06511.
304. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CROSSWORD, by Albert and Julian Rosenblatt (St. Paul: Norwegian Explorers, 1985; 24 pp., $15.00 cloth/signed, $10.00 cloth, $4.00 paper); the story of the famous SRL puzzle, and of some of the first members of the BSI, entertainingly told.
305. THE PLAY'S AFOOT! is a collection of three two-act comedies written by William A. Barton for The Illustrious Clients; 48 pp., $8.00 postpaid from the author, Box 26290, Indianapolis, IN 46226.
306. Reported by Brian MacDonald: THE LAST STRAW, by Lynn Johnston (Andrews, McMeel & Parker, 1985, $6.95 in paper); a collection of "For Better or For Worse" cartoons, with two S'ian on p. 58. Starlog, Nov. 1985, with items on "Young Sherlock Holmes" (pp. 10, 51), Christopher Lee (p. 33), and Peter Cushing (pp. 89-92); $6.00 from their back issues dept., 475 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016.
307. Reported by Bob Burr: Simon & Schuster videotapes of the Granada series at $39.95 each: "Scan" and "Spec" in November, "Blue" and "Danc" in February. And a brief article on SH on p. 211 of the OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC.
308. Carol Ensley (3174 Glendale Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90039) offers S'ian T-shirts ($12.00) and sweat shirts ($25.00), handsomely hand-painted in full color from her designs or yours; write for a flier.
309. The Oct. 24 broadcast of "America" (the ABC television magazine show) included a six-minute segment on "Sherlock Holmes Takes Over America" with a short clip from "Young Sherlock Holmes" and a longer interview with John B. Shaw from Albuquerque. The obviously fake books behind John during his interview lend some credence to an earlier suggestion by Jon L. Lellenberg that the world-famous Shaw collection is in fact an expert "trompe l'oeil" wall painting.
310. CLIENT'S CASE-NOTES, the 1983 anthology published by The Illustrious Clients, contains an entertaining assortment of articles, pastiches, and poems written by members of the scion. 58 pp., clothbound, $16.75 postpaid, and copies are still available from its editor, Brian R. MacDonald, R.R. 3, Box 281, Fairland, IN 46126.
311. Further to my earlier (Aug 85 #5) mention of Pacific Arts' videocassettes of the "Partners in Crime" television series, I neglected to mention the minor S'ian allusions in two of the programs. "The Affair of the Pink Pearl" begins with Tommy attempting to use the methods of Sherlock Holmes, but switching to the methods of Dr. Thorndyke. And in "Finessing the King" (on TV, but not in the book), Tommy and Tuppence go to a fancy-dress ball dressed as Watson and Holmes. Not having seen "The Case of the Missing Lady" (not broadcast in the U.S.), I don't know how much S'ian flavor was carried over from the book to television.
-
312. Oct 85 #6: Reported by Ron De Waal: a new edition of THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHERLOCK HOLMES QUIZ (D4009b), by Dale Copps (San Francisco: Sleuth Publications, 1985; 127 pp., $5.00). YOU CAN FOOL ALL OF THE PEOPLE ALL THE TIME, by Art Buchwald (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1985; $16.95); includes "The Great Media Mystery" (a column that ran in the Washington Post on Aug. 30, 1984, as "Dallas Detective"). CHAPLIN: HIS LIFE AND ART, by David Robinson (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1985; 792 pp., $24.95); with commentary on "The Painful Predicament of Sherlock Holmes" and "Sherlock Holmes" (in which Chaplin played Billy and his brother Sidney played Count Von Stalberg during the 1903-04 tour), and an appendix on "The Tours of 'Sherlock Holmes' 1903-1906".
313. "Sherlock Holmes of 221-B Baker Street" by Roy Nuhn, in Hobbies, Oct. 1985; a 4-page article on S'ian collectibles. Reported: SHERLOCK SLEPT HERE, by Howard Lachtman ($9.95 from Capra Press in November): a discussion of ACD's American tours and the American aspects of his stories.
314. HARDCOVER, by Wayne Warga (New York: Arbor House, 1985; 274 pp., $15.95; a mystery thriller set in the world of the modern antiquarian bookseller, where the collectibles include Adrian Goldstone's copy of the 1888 Ward Lock first edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET.
315. I've mentioned (Jul 85 #4) the new paperback printing of Martha Grimes' THE MAN WITH A LOAD OF MISCHIEF. Compulsive completists will rush to their local paperbackers for a copy of Dell's "free! take one!" sampler, a 2-in-1 volume containing excerpts from five novels by Robert Barnard and five novels by Martha Grimes; the excerpt from THE MAN WITH A LOAD OF MISCHIEF is, of course, the chapter that starts with a S'ian allusion.
316. THE MYSTERY AND SUSPENSE ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR 1986, compiled by Basil Saintoine (Pittstown: Main Street Press, 1985; $7.95) contains some 18 S'ian and semi-S'ian citations for various dates.
317. "The Guns of Sherlock Holmes" by Garry James and Scott McMillan (D2529b) has been reprinted in the 1986 Guns & Ammo Annual.
318. The Cremona Fiddlers of Williamsburg are working on their plans for the 1987 "Weekend with John Bennett Shaw and Sherlock Holmes" -- targeted for William & Mary in August. Will the Sage of Santa Fe be idle in 1986?
319. "Kit and Kitty: From Haverford to Frankford" by Steven Rothman, in Horizons, summer 1985; a pleasant and informed discussion of KITTY FOYLE and Christopher Morley.
320. Bob Thomalen reports that more than 200 people signed up for Tyke Niver's "The Happenstance at Humberstone Hollow" mystery weekend at the Hotel Stamford Plaza this month -- with the cast of characters including Thomalen as Inspector Poirot ("more like Inspector Clouseau than Charles Boyer"), and Chris Steinbrunner as family solicitor Sir Ellsworth Rainey.
321. Tom Clancy's THE HUNT FOR RED OCTOBER is now out in paperback (Berkley, $4.50); it's a fine book, though non-S'ian (except for its demonstration of how far we've come since the days of the Bruce-Partington plans).
-
322. Nov 85 #1: The Aug. 1985 issue of Bias Line, a newsletter for costumers and technicians, has detailed discussion and patterns for "A Coat for Sherlock Holmes" as well as an article on S'ian costume by Bobby Ann Loper; $2.00 from CosTume Tech, 140 Glendale #243, Lakeland, FL 33803.
323. Reported by Ev Herzog: animation cels, signed by Chuck Jones, including Daffy Duck as Holmes ($575.00) and Porky Pig as Watson ($350.00), at T.R.'s (780 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10019); these are new issues in limited editions (200 each) rather than originals. Jerry Margolin reports the same cels at $245 each from Gallery Lainzberg in Cedar Rapids (800-553-9995). And Walt Disney Productions reports that "Basil of Baker Street" is scheduled for summer 1986 release; production cels from that film will be available from Disney in late summer 1986.
324. The Sherlock Snoopy portfolio covers (Jul 85 #4) are no longer available from the firm, but you get one for $2.00 postpaid from Gideon D. Hill, 1810 South Rittenhouse Square #207, Philadelphia, PA 19103. Gideon also reports that the miniature pub sign for The Sherlock Holmes (Aug 85 #4) is included in the sales brochure from London Pipe & Gift Shop, 43803 North 15th Street West, Lancaster, CA 93534 ($6.95 plus shipping). And that there's a new Sherlock teddy bear (17" high, jointed, nicely detailed) available for $43.00 from Louise Ranker, 3131 Mulberry Street, Toledo, OH 43608. And that single copies of the July-Aug. 1985 issue of Pet Care Report (with S'ian artwork) are available free from Purina (800-251-4039) (800-255-1330 in Tennessee). And for sewing S'ians: plans for a Sherlock bear in MAKING BEARS (#GP-475), by Nancy Sutherland-Holmes; $5.98 postpaid

- from Gich Publishing Co., 9 Studebaker, Irvine, CA 92718. And Eric G. Anderson's article on "American Kings and Their Castles" (including William Gillette), in Private Practice, Aug. 1985 (Box 12489, Oklahoma City, OK 73157; single copies free).
325. Reported: "The Case of the Gring's Mill Goblin" by Thomas R. Dulski, in Analog, Dec. 1985; Oliver Wendell Baker and Dexter Woodside (previously in "The Case of the Chemist's Cache" in the Jan. 4, 1982, issue). I have given up trying to understand magazine publishing; on Nov. 9 the Dec. issue of Analog has already been pulled from the newsstands, replaced by the mid-Dec. issue.
326. "Mrs. Hudson Stays for Tea" by Gilbert Youmans, and "Detective: Prologue in Baker Street" by Phyllis White, in EQMM, Jan. 1986, as the magazine's annual birthday tribute.
327. "About the same time was published another historical romance of the second class (for to nothing short of Sir Walter shall we give a first-class in this department), 'Micah Clarke,' by Mr. Conan Doyle." Sir James Matthew Barrie, in his essay "Q." in AN AULD LICHT MANSE AND OTHER SKETCHES, first published in 1893 and reprinted in 1970 (Freeport: Books for Libraries Press); also discovered by the MTL.
328. Reported by the Metropolitan Toronto Library: NOTABLE QUOTES, by Leigh Rubin (Panaorama City: Rubes Publications, 1981; $6.00) and AMUSING ARRANGEMENTS (ditto, 1985); cartoon books, each with one S'ian cartoon (publisher's address is 14447 Titus Street, Panorama City, CA 91402).
-
329. Nov 85 #2: Herman Herst Jr.'s THE COMPLEAT PHILATELIST (an explanation of the perils, pitfalls, and pleasures of stamp collecting), now in its third printing, is available (114 pp., paper, $6.25 postpaid) from the author (Box 1583, Boca Raton, FL 33429). Also a few autographed copies of his out-of-print NASSAU STREET (his reminiscences about his career as a stamp dealer), at $9.95. Neither is S'ian (his S'ian pastiche "Dirty Pool" is in STORIES TO COLLECT STAMPS BY), but both are entertaining.
330. Announcement at hand for the 33rd Annual William Gillette Memorial Luncheon at the Old Homestead in New York on Jan. 10, 1986; this is well-attended, and reservations are required; if you're not on Lisa McGaw's mailing list, you can write to her at 15 Willow Terrace Apts., Chapel Hill, NC 27514.
331. Another item on the agenda for the birthday festivities is Otto Penzler's annual Open House at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) on Jan. 10, from 11:00 to 6:00; S'ians and their guests are most welcome, and there is as usual the possibility of S'ian authors on hand to sign their books.
332. The Master's Class will meet at 4:30 pm on Jan. 12, for drinks, dinner, and a program featuring the Philadelphia Savoy Company and papers on the theme of G&S and SH; the meeting will end in time to make the last trains to New York and Washington. Details available from Gideon D. Hill, 1810 South Rittenhouse Square #207, Philadelphia, PA 19103.
333. Roger Johnson reports that Granada is now filming "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" with Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke. The seven programs will be "Empt", "Twis", "Prio", "Reig", "Abbe", "Seco", and "Musg".
334. John E. Stephenson and Ronald Lies have founded a new scion called Poor Bibliophiles International, and plan to publish The Little Bookshop at the Corner of Church Street Journal; details available from Stephenson (535 West Easter Place, Littleton, CO 80210).
335. Jerry Margolin (3556 S.E. Stark, Portland, OR 97214) would appreciate hearing from anyone who can identify a character named "Mrs. Rundle" in any of Conan Doyle's works.
336. The Nov. 1985 issue of Starlog (475 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016; $3.95) has a number of minor items: ad and promotional photograph for "Young Sherlock Holmes"; S'ian refs in articles on Farmer, Lee, Spielberg, and Cushing; and refs to "The Lost World" in articles on Harryhausen and O'Brien. And an ad for back issues including #7 (full-page color photo of Robby the Robot in S'ian costume) (reprint, $5.00 postpaid) and #11 (article about "The Prisoner") ($4.50 postpaid). And an ad for a videocassette of "The Prisoner: The Girl Who Was Death" (the episode in which Patrick McGoohan appears in S'ian costume); $39.95 plus $2.55 UPS from Starlog Video Shopper (same address).
337. Reported by Jim Duval: S'ian graphics in an 8-page pamphlet "Sherlock and the Crystal Clear Solution" (promoting Acrylite insulating windows) from Cyro Industries, Woodcliff Lake, NJ 07675.
338. It's official: the second Granada series starts on PBS-TV on Jan. 2, 1986.
-
339. Nov 85 #3: MURDER IN THE FIRST REEL, edited by Bill Pronzini, Charles G. Waugh, and Martin Harry Greenberg, with an Introduction by Isaac Asimov (New York: Avon Books, 1985; 344 pp., $3.25); ten short stories on which films have been based, including "Musg" (source for "Sherlock Holmes Faces Death").
340. Yet another source for video of the 1954 Ronald Howard series: Video Specialists International (182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 18612) offers 10 cassettes ($29.95 each plus shipping) with 2 programs each (according to my notes, 27 of the 39 programs are now available from various video sources).
341. Bill Barton reports that there are six copies left of THE PLAY'S AFOOT, his collection of three two-act comedies written for The Illustrious Clients (48 pp., $8.50 postpaid, from William A. Barton, Box 26290, Indianapolis, IN 46226). And Dec. 31 is the deadline for orders for THE FINAL PABLUM, his next play ($3.50 postpaid). Bill is also planning to publish a VICTORIAN ADVENTURE role-playing game and a GAMER'S GUIDE TO VICTORIAN LONDON supplement; send an SASE to Winterhawk Games/Paranoia Unlimited (same address) for details.
342. More philatelic S'iana: on May 22 the U.S. will issue four miniature sheets (9 stamps in each sheet) showing all deceased U.S. presidents; Lincoln is mentioned in the Canon, and Roosevelt and Truman were members of the BSI, and Hoover had Gillette to lunch in the White House . . .
343. There are three known issues of the Heritage Club edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: 1952, 1957, and 1971. How can the three issues be distinguished? There are two known issues of the Heritage Club's newsletter Sandglass for THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: "Number I:17" (1952) and "Number IR:17" (1957). Was there a third issue of the newsletter in 1971? Can it be distinguished from the 1957 issue?
344. The November issue of Communication (the monthly newsletter from The Pleasant Places of Florida) offers a set of four S'ian hi-ball glasses ($15.00 postpaid), and the scion's latest publication DIRTY POOL AND PHILATELIC PHILANDERING, a 24-page pamphlet with a reprint of Herman Herst Jr.'s 1966 pastiche "Dirty Pool" and a well-illustrated investigation of Sherlockian philately ($5.00 postpaid); for a copy of the newsletter, send a #10 SASE to Ben Wood, 4408 Gulf Drive, Holmes Beach, FL 33510. Ben also reports a column of S'ian puns in the Dec. 1985 issue of Games.
345. "The Yellow Globe" (billed as a Charlie Chan Mystery Weekend of Murderous, Mischievous Intrigues) will be the next event (Feb. 14-16, 1986) at the Hotel Stamford Plaza (2701 Summer Street, Stamford, CT 06905).
346. According to Howard Lachtman's report (Stockton Record, Nov. 3) on Bouchercon, "there was even a celebration of 'Sherlock Holmes in San Francisco' that came complete with a contemplative bust of the Great Detective, a reading of a Sherlockian sonnet by Mrs. Anthony Boucher, and a local real estate agency's offering (at $1.3 million) of a Frisco town-house in which Sir Arthur Conan Doyle acutally came to tea in 1923. Ideal for the collector who has everything." Bouchercon in Baltimore in 1986, and in Minneapolis in 1987.
-
347. Nov 85 #4: What with trade screenings for exhibitors, and special invitational screenings, and preview screenings, many of you have probably already seen "Young Sherlock Holmes" (which will be opening on or about Dec. 4 in every American city that has electricity), so I won't say much about it

- except that I thought it great fun, and well executed for its target audience. There were some familiar faces, heavily disguised in the case of Nigel Stock (Mr. Waxflatter, Elizabeth's uncle), who has played Watson in the BBC TV shows with Douglas Wilmer and Peter Cushing, and in his own one-man show "221B" on tour in Britain. Patrick Newell (Bentley Bobster, the first murder victim) is Blessington in "The Resident Patient" in the Granada series (not yet broadcast in the U.S.), and he played Lestrade in Sheldon Reynolds' second TV series (and he was "Mother" in "The Avengers").
348. One of the better recent comments on the film is from the Dec. 1985 issue of American Film: "Making a movie about the famous detective and his pal Watson meeting as prep-school classmates makes a lot of sense once you realize that (a) movies with adults in the leads may win Oscars but play to half-empty theaters, and (b) most of today's (young) moviegoers probably think Sherlock is Larry Holmes's weird brother."
349. Reported by Mark Erdrich: BERLIN FUGUE, by J. C. Winters (Avon, $3.95); an espionage thriller ("good airplane reading") with S'ian allusions.
350. Michael Innes' THE MYSTERIOUS COMMISSION, a suspense novel with pleasantly S'ian overtones, is back in print from Penguin Books (1985; 192 pp., $3.50).
351. Newt Williams reports, in the Nov. 1985 issue of The Camden House Journal, on a source for well-made deerstalkers: Hatterdashery (attn: Michael Loeffler), 1862 East Shelby Street, Seattle, WA 98112.
352. THE HOLMESIAN FEDERATION #6, edited by Signe Landon (14985 256th Street SE, Issaquah, WA 98027; 86 pp., $3.50 postpaid) presents more cross-over pastiches, from Star Trek to Doctor Who.
353. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, adapted with comprehension exercises (New Delhi: Vikas Publishing House, 1985); available from Advent Books, 141 East 44th Street, New York, NY 10017. "Sherlock Holmes' Christmas Goose" adapted (from "Blue") by Paul T. Nolan, in Plays, Dec. 1985 (120 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116; $3.00). TREASURY OF GREAT SHORT STORIES (Minneapolis: Amaranth Press, 1985; $10.95 at B. Dalton); contents include "Spec".
354. Reported by Gideon Hill: four audio cassettes from Discourses (Lawn Cottage, Camden Park, Royal Tunbridge Wells, Kent TN2 4TN, England) with two each of the eight Hardy/Stock dramatizations (D5566a-D5569a); £5.50 each postpaid. Celestial Arts/Ten Speed Press (Box 7327, Berkeley, CA 94707; 800-841-2665) offers the "Beyond 221B" poster (D2238b) and a reproduction of the one-sheet for "Spider Woman" at $3.50 each plus shipping.
355. THE NAGASAKI VECTOR, by H. Neil Smith (New York: Ballantine Books, 1983; 242 pp., $2.75); science fiction, with minor S'ian allusions.
-
356. Dec 85 #1: SHERLOCK SLEPT HERE, by Howard Lachtman (Santa Barbara: Capra Press, 1985; 174 pp., $9.95); accurately subtitled as "a brief history of the singular adventures of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in America, with some observations upon the exploits of Mr. Sherlock Holmes," with a summary of the highlights of ACD's four visits to the U.S., comments about the American aspects of the Canon, and a reprint of "Nobl".
357. Lachtman uses the word "paltry" to describe the £25 Conan Doyle accepted for "A Study in Scarlet" -- and that's the conventional wisdom: Conan Doyle didn't receive very much for the story. But -- that's 500 shillings, and "one of the most expensive hotels" charged Frank Moulton 8 shillings a day for a room in 1886, and that's 62.5 days. How many of today's fledgling authors would refuse an offer for their first book of the cash equivalent of a room for 62 days at one of the most expensive hotels in London?
358. Announcement at hand for the Jan. 10 dinner of The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at Keen's; if you're not on the mailing list, contact Evelyn A. Herzog (235 West 15th Street #4B, New York, NY 10011) -- and if you want to attend and haven't made your reservation already, it might be best to phone (212-929-3527).
359. Reported by Richard Wein, in the 1985 J. C. Penney Christmas catalog: an etched-glass pipe cabinet, 15x3x20 inches, solid mahogany with glass door etched with portrait of SH, $24.99.
360. The spring 1985 issue of the Rex Stout Journal at hand, with discussion of the S'ian connection in Ken Darby's "The Genius of Nero Wolfe"; $7.00 a year (two issues) from John McAleer, 121 Follen Road, Lexington, MA 02173. John is also ready to publish QUEEN'S COUNSEL: CONVERSATIONS WITH RUTH STOUT about her brother; $8.00 postpaid, and the printing run will cover only prepaid orders.
361. Reported by John Kerr, in the latest catalog from Publishers Central Bureau (One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001): a boxed Sandy Hook Records $4.98 audio cassette of the 1939 Rathbone broadcast of "The Bruce-Partington Plans" and the 1948 broadcast of "Mr. Chameleon" (see D5554a); discounted prices on the three Murray Hill record sets (D4653a, D4655a, and MORE SHERLOCK HOLMES ADVENTURES with 9 of the 1954 Gielgud broadcasts); and a $7.99 set of three audio cassettes of the Murray Hill MORE SHERLOCK HOLMES ADVENTURES.
362. "Roses and the Arts: A Humanistic and Horticultural Engagement" is the title of a conference at Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio, on May 8, 1986, with one of the four sessions on "The Sherlockian Background of Eco's *The Name of the Rose*." Details available from Robert F. Fleissner (367 East Cassilly Street, Springfield, OH 45503); Bob also forecasts a book ANATOMY OF A BEST SELLER about Eco's book.
363. "Were I a schoolmaster in possession of wealth, and about to found a library for boys, my corner-stone should be a large mass of the works of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: *The White Company*, *Micah Clarke*, *Brigadier Gerard* (the best), and *Sherlock Holmes*." Andrew Lang, in his monthly column in Longman's Magazine, Apr. 1903.
-
364. Dec 85 #2: "I often argue," writes Stephen Jay Gould, in THE FLAMINGO'S SMILE; REFLECTIONS IN NATURAL HISTORY (New York: W. W. Norton, 1985), "that the best test for legends is the extent of their seepage into popular culture. In *Sherlock Holmes and the Spider Woman* (1944), one of the innumerable, yet wonderful, Rathbone-Bruce anachronisms that pit Holmes against Hitler and assorted enemies, Holmes unmasks an entomologist *poseur* (and murderer of the true scientist) by catching several subtle fallacies in his speech. The phony calls terraria 'glass cages,' but then really gives himself away when he says of black widow spiders: 'They eat their mates, I'm told.' Holmes responds: 'You said you were told the black widows eat their mates. Any scientist would know it.'" Gould doubts the existence of sexual cannibalism (citing a recent study of matings in Chinese praying mantises in which no female ever decapitated or ate a male), and is persuaded that it is a phenomenon without proven examples. Discovered by Dick Rutter.
365. The item at right is from John Harris' list of Christmas books (The Atlantic, Dec. 1985).
366. "Revenge from Reichenbach," reads the London headline, reported by Bob Burr (Plugs & Dottles, Dec. 1985). The Sherlock Holmes Hotel ("named after the famous fiddling detective and coke-head") will gain a main entrance on Baker Street by demolishing the Ristorante Moriarti.
367. "Expect Baskerville Holmes to reach his full potential and earn national acclaim this season," predicts Anson Mount in the Jan. 1986 issue of Playboy, rating Memphis State as 1st in the Metro Conference and 15th in the nation's college basketball teams.
368. "Pitdown Man Hoaxer's Identity Revealed" is the headline in the [London] Daily Telegraph (Nov. 4, 1985). Glyn Daniel and Peter Costello have determined that the hoaxer was Samuel Woodhead, close friend of Charles Dawson. Costello has an article about his investigation in the Nov. issue of Antiquity (see Dec 85 #4).
369. Crime Times (the Waldenbooks Mystery Club Newsletter) generally has some S'ian mention in every issue, and it's worth checking at your local shop; there's a short quiz on "Sherlockiana" in the Nov. 1985 issue.

370. "Shades of Old Sleuth and Sherlock Holmes," wrote Jack London in PEOPLE OF THE ABYSS (1903). See D4021a, D2172b, and D2173b for more information on the Sherlockian aspects of Jack London, whose portrait appears on the 2c stamp to be issued on Jan. 11 in the Great Americans Series.
371. Movies Unlimited (6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149; 800-523-0823) has many more S'ian cassettes than "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" mentioned earlier (May 85 #4), according to Ron De Waal. Their catalog (with a small portrait of SH on the cover) costs $5.95.
-
372. Dec 85 #3: Thanks to Paul Herbert for information on how to distinguish the three issues of the Heritage Press edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Nov 85 #3). In the first issue [1952], the Steele illustration ("The key to the riddle was in my hands") appears (incorrectly) f.p. 610; in the second issue [1957] and third issue [1971], that illustration appears (correctly) f.p. 620. In the third issue, the Heritage Club device appears above the copyright notice on the title-page verso; there is no device in the first and second issues.
373. YOUNG SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Alan Arnold (New York: Pocket Books, Dec. 1985; 207 pp., $2.95); an uninspired novelization of the film.
374. Reported from England: THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA, by Gaston Leroux (W. H. Allen, £9.95); Peter Haining's introduction includes two brief essays from S'ian journals suggesting that SH might have been involved. THE WINE LISTS, ed. by Robert Joseph (Guinness Books); includes Stanley MacKenzie's list of Canonical references to wines. Ms. C. J. Martin (Woodlea, Lancaster Lane, Parbold, near Wigan, Lancs. WN8 7AA) offers pencil or ink sketches copied from the Paget illos in the Strand; £9.00 and up.
375. ZEN NUDISM, by John Ruyle (Berkeley: Pequod Press, 1985; $30.00 cloth, $15.00 paper); "the author displays all the range and vigor that have made his work blaze across his generation like the comet Kohoutek" (one of the 26 short poems is "Pickwick & Sherlock"). John's 1986 plans include a new adventure of Turlock Loams, and new editions of THE ADVENTURE OF THE SOLEDAD CYCLIST and THE ADVENTURE OF THE FIVE BUFFALO CHIPS, and his address is 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
376. THE MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF RAGSBY, written and illustration by Barbara Alexander (San Diego: Oak Tree Publications, 1985; 32 pp., $8.95); a nice children's book, with two dogs (dressed as Sherlock Bones and Dr. Whatsit) rescuing a kidnapped teddy bear.
377. Reported by Ron De Waal: SCIENTIFIC ROMANCE IN BRITAIN 1890-1950, by Brian Stableford (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1985; 372 pp., $29.95); a history of British science fiction, with a 7-page section on ACD. MY LIFE IN PICTURES, by Charles Chaplin (London: Peerage Books, 1985; 320 pp., $12.99); a reissue of D4235b). And three Dell paperback reissues, Dec. 1985, with new covers: ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S GAMES KILLERS PLAY (D5613a), DEATH CAN BE BEAUTIFUL (D4744b), and BOYS AND GHOULS TOGETHER (D4749b).
378. Anne Baxter died on Dec. 12. She played Irene Adler in the 1984 British television film "The Masks of Death" (with Peter Cushing as Holmes).
379. Cerebro Lithographs (Box 1221, Lancaster, PA 17603) has a number of labels from the Sherlock Holmes Rum-Soaked Crooks cigar boxes: the two versions of the small (4-inch) label at $8.00 and $6.00, the large label ($7.00), and the top sheet ($1.50); plus $1.50 shipping if your order is under $25.00, and they take plastic.
380. Reported by Carole Naddeo: A PERSONAL FINANCE GUIDE FOR YUPPIES, EX-HIPPIES AND QUIET '50S FOLKS, a S'ian marketing pamphlet available (free) from Chang Labs, 5300 Stevens Creek Boulevard, San Jose, CA 95129.
-
381. Dec 85 #4: The Dec. 1984 issue of the BSI was mailed early this month, and it is reported that only a few subscribers sent their copies back to Fordham with complaints that it was the wrong issue. The Dec. 1985 issue was mailed shortly thereafter, accompanied by well-justified sighs of relief from editor Philip Shreffler and publisher George Fletcher.
382. Never believe that there's nothing new to be discovered in the Sherlock Holmes stories. Who was Rodger Presbury?
383. "Valley of Fear" (presumably the Australian animation with Peter O'Toole as Sherlock Holmes) is scheduled ten times on Showtime cable, on Jan. 2, 6, 17, 21, 26, and 29. And the latest word from PBS-TV is that "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, Part II" will start on Feb. 13, 1986.
384. Peter Costello's article "The Piltdown Hoax Reconsidered" is in the Nov. 1985 issue of Antiquity (King's Hedges Road, Cambridge CB4 2PQ, England; £5.00); it's a preview of Costello's book, to be published next year, and Costello has uncovered a great deal of evidence indicating that the cuprit was Samuel Allinson Woodhead.
385. Bogie's Murderous Mystery Tours is planning "Murder by the Letter" at the Parker House in Boston on June 27-29, 1986; the cast (and possibly the victims) will include eminent Sherlockians Noel and Leslie Novel. Details available from Dreamjourneys, 516 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair, NJ 07042.
386. Reported by Jon Lellenberg: THE ENGLISH PUB, by Rob Anderson (Viking; 111 pp., $25.00); the review in Time (Dec. 16) featured a color photo of the sign from The Sherlock Holmes.
387. A copy of the program for Bouchercon XVI at hand, with a reprint of Anthony Boucher's sonnet "San Francisco to Sherlock Holmes" (D4416a); I don't know if extra copies are available, but you can write to chairman Bryan Barrett, Box 6202, Hayward, CA 94540.
388. Renegade Press (apparently a comic-book publisher) is planning a Sherlock Holmes series to begin in Mar. 1986 with "The Beryl Coronet" (text from the Canon and artwork by Dan Day); the series will be black-and-white and bimonthly at $1.70. I've no further information; if anyone has an address for Renegade Press, please let me know.
389. Credit Donald A. Redmond for the discovery of Rodger Presbury. He was the counterfeiter shot by Killer Evans, in the original periodical appearances of "The Three Garridebs" in 1924 and 1925. Presbury appears as Rodger Prescott in THE CASE-BOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in 1927.
390. Query: who owns "Bengis copy A" of the 1902 Souvenir Edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET? The Souvenir Edition is the one in blue cloth, with Egyptian design stamped in gold, and this copy is the one dated 1902 on the title page, with Bengis' penciled notes on the front flyleaf. I need some bibliographic information not included in Bengis' published description.
391. Gilles Daigle and Patricia Helik (275 Manse Road #55, West Hill, Ont. M1E 4X8, Canada) are preparing to create a computerized concordance of the Canon; suggestions and comments welcome.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 86 #1:

- The most important news from the annual dinner was Julian Wolff's announcement that he was retiring from the leadership of The Baker Street Irregulars (having held the job longer than anyone else, Julian said, he decided to be the first to get out alive), and that he was handing over the reins to Thomas L. Stix, Jr. And Tom's first official act, as the new Wiggins of the BSI, was his announcement that Julian will continue as our Commissionaire Emeritus. Tom's address is 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
- Nancy Pond (daughter of Walter Pond) was The Woman, honored at the BSI pre-dinner cocktail party and by The Women at dinner at the National Arts Club. The BSI dinner featured the traditional agenda, including Philip R. Brogdon's fine toast to Sherlock Holmes as Watson's, and our, best friend. John Bennett Shaw displayed, explained, and defended a life mask of Sherlock Holmes, apparently taken by M. Oscar Meunier, and Isaac Asimov doubled as tenor and baritone in a Canonical parody of Gilbert and Sullivan (Holmes was a much better musician than Sullivan, said Asimov, who then demonstrated his conclusions by singing some of Gilbert's songs set to different music chosen by Holmes).

3. Irregular Shillings were awarded to Eric Beckman (Stapleton), David L. Hammer (Major-General Stoner), Joseph Fink (The Martyrdom of Man), John Constable (The Crooked Man), Robert E. Robinson (The Hansom Cab), Gordon R. Speck (Colonel James Barclay), Bob Bisio (Shinwell Johnson), Richard B. Shull (An Actor and a Rare One), Barton A. Eberman (The Hound of the Baskervilles), James P. Suszynski (The Dying Detective), Don Werby (Old Abrahams), C. Paul Martin (Dr. Leslie Armstrong), Andrew Malec (The Strange Old Book Collector), and Steven Rothman (The Valley of Fear). And Two-Shilling Awards were given to Chris Steinbrunner, Henry T. Folsom, John B. Koelle, Edward F. Clark, William P. Schweickert, Philip A. Shreffler, and Theodore G. Schulz.
4. Other Friday events were The Martha Hudson Breakfast at the Algonquin, The William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead, Otto Penzler's open house at The Mysterious Bookshop, The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at Keen's, the post-dinners gathering at Keen's, and the post-Keen's gathering at the Notre Dame suite at the Royalton. The ASH dinner agenda included Sherry Rose-Bond's poetic history of the Adventuresses, a slide show by Helen E. Heinrich, and a new Sherlockian performance by The Friends of Bogie's.
5. Saturday's events included Julian and Eleanor Wolff's reception at the Grolier Club (on Julian's 81st birthday), and a Sherlockian invasion of Bogie's (enlivened by an attempted robbery in the parking lot across the street). On Sunday south-bound travelers dined in Philadelphia with The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club, where Daniel S. Knight assembled a group of devoted Savoyards for some authentic Victorian musicalities.
6. Press coverage was liberal, starting with the N.Y. Times on Jan. 5 (an appreciative article by BSI Karl E. Meyer), continuing with the N.Y. Post on Jan. 10 (a long article by Marilyn Stasio with a sidebar by Chris Steinbrunner), and ending with the Washington Post on Jan. 11 (an article filed from their New York bureau with quotes from Christian Steinbrunner, Andrew Peck, Jon Welenberg, and others).

---

7. Jan 86 #2: THE BOZZ CHRONICLES is an intriguing bi-monthly from Epic Comics, with Bozz being an extremely alien time traveler in London in the latter half of the 19th century. Nothing S'ian in the 1st issue (Dec. 1985), but Bozz appears in a deerstalker and cloak in the 2nd issue (Feb. 1986), and Jerry Margolin has been informed by someone in the field that a future issue will be more S'ian. Marvel Comics Group, 387 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016; $1.50 an issue.
8. Those Hare-Krishna look-alikes in the Egyptian temple in "Young Sherlock Holmes" were Hare Krishnas, according to an item in the Dec. 1985 issue of Mademoiselle. "Their peanut-butter cookies were quite tasty," according to Nicholas Rowe. And Alan Cox noted that director Levinson "had to keep telling them to scowl. Hare Krishnas have the most peaceful expression I've ever seen." Confirmation in the Young Sherlock Holmes Official Souvenir Magazine ($2.95 at bookshops), with plot synopsis, photographs, design sketches, etc.; published by Ira Friedman, Inc., 10 Columbus Circle #1300, New York, NY 10019. There is also YOUNG SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE STORYBOOK, adapted by Peter Lerangis (New York: Simon and Schuster, 1985; $7.95), with lots of color photos. And an album of the soundtrack music (MCA-6159; $7.98) (there's also a cassette, of course). And the film is featured in Scholastic Scope (Nov. 29, 1985); $2.25 for the teachers' edition; 730 Broadway, New York, NY 10003.
9. The Armchair Detective (winter 1986) has William A. S. Sarjeant's six-page report on "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes in Minnesota" (John Bennett Shaw told the gathering that "Sherlock" was the trade-name of a type of chastity belt), and Louis Phillips' "The President on Baker Street" (a one-page summary, uncredited, of Edgar W. Smith's A BAKER STREET FOLIO).
10. The Promised Valley Playhouse in Salt Lake City had a new production of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" from Oct. 17 to Nov. 9, 1985, and the program had a full-color S'ian cover illo; Ron De Waal has extra copies (no charge), and his address is: The Libraries, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, CO 80523.
11. Aljean Harmetz's long article on Michael D. Eisner ("The Man Re-animating Disney") in the N.Y. Times Magazine (Dec. 29, 1985) includes a large color illo from "Basil of Baker Street" (due for release this summer).
12. Sherlockian philatelists can put last year's Sinclair Lewis stamp and this year's Jack London stamp on the same album page. In 1910 Lewis proposed to London a series of stories about the World Police, to be unified by a central character, the Man of the World Police. "He need not--should not, and, with you writing, would not--be in the least like Sherlock Holmes, but Holmes offers suggestions, nevertheless," Lewis wrote. Cited from THE MAN FROM MAIN STREET: A SINCLAIR LEWIS READER (New York: Random House, 1953, p. 124) by Robert L. Coard in his article "Sinclair Lewis, Max Gottlieb, and Sherlock Holmes" (Modern Fiction Studies, autumn 1985, p. 565-571), at hand from Robert F. Fleissner.
13. Avon has reissued EARTHMAN'S BURDEN, by Poul Anderson and Gordon R. Dickson (D5795a) with a new cover (189 p., $2.95); their "Adventure of the Misplaced Hound" is still one of the best SF/SH items in print.

---

14. Jan 86 #3: Paulette Greene (140 Princeton Road, Rockville Centre, NY 11570) offers THE LAST CASE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, a new pastiche by Trevor H. Hall ("Dr. Hall pieces together the puzzle of Ivy Johnson Bull's life with the assistance of Sherlock Holmes's only son, Dr. S. J. H. M. V. Holmes-Adler, F.R.S."); $31.50 postpaid.
15. "I'm not interested in money," said Gaby Goldscheider to a reporter from The Times (Nov. 30, 1985) in a discussion of her new Sherlock Holmes Book Club of Great Britain (32 Hornton Street, Kensington W8). The article is on "Keeping the Books in Profit" in the paper's "Family Money" section, and discusses the investment value of S'ian. The club is open from Thursday to Saturday, sometimes Sunday, with coffee served, but only by appointment (01-937-7311).
16. For those who have not yet visited all of the places visited by Sherlock Holmes, the Smithsonian Resident Associates Travel Program offers two guided tours of Tibet, in June and September, with stops in Shannan, Gyantze, Xigaze, and Lhasa. There was no Baedeker's Handbook for Tibet in the 1890s, but if there had been it surely would have included a warning note similar to the Smithsonian's: "In addition to an ambitious travel program in each city, you will be traveling great distances over rugged terrain at high altitudes and through undeveloped areas with few amenities. This is an exciting opportunity for Associates fully prepared to meet the challenges of a rugged environment."
17. It is unlikely that SH's articles and monographs were actually written as scientific papers, but he certainly agreed with the advice ("be exacting and unemotional") offered by Michael J. Katz in ELEMENTS OF THE SCIENTIFIC PAPER (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1985; 130 p., $20.00 cloth, $6.95 paper); Katz's "step-by-step guide for students and professionals" uses appropriate Canonical quotations as headings for three chapters.
18. General Gordon is no longer considered to be the unmitigated hero that he was when his portrait was newly framed by Watson, and we're a year late, since the centenary of Gordon's death at Khartoum was celebrated on Jan. 26, 1985, but ... Jack Kerr reports Denis Judd's article on "Gordon of Khartoum: The Making of an Imperial Martyr" in the Jan. 1985 issue of History Today. Another article was "The Enigma of Chinese Gordon" by Donovan Fitzpatrick, in MD (Nov. 1985). It would appear, from the lack of any citation by Ron De Waal, that there has never been a S'ian article about Gordon (an opportunity, obviously, for the militarists in our ranks). If you'd like to see the last letter Gordon ever wrote, it's in the May 1892 issue of The Strand Magazine, in the "Illustrated Interview" with Lord Wolseley.
19. There's a discount edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MURDER DOSSIER (London: Peerage Books, 1985; $7.98); printed as a book, without the wedding ring and other clues found in the first edition. Also SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED SHORT STORIES (London:

Chancellor Press, 1985; 986 p., $7.99); all the short stories, with some but not all of the illustrations from the Strand. The books are reported so far only in Coles bookshops in the U.S.; Peerage Books and Chancellor Press have the same London address as Octopus Books (perhaps an appropriate name).

-
20. Jan 86 #4: Who wrote the first short story ever published in Punch?
  21. "Young Sherlock Holmes" opened in Australia on Dec. 19, with mildly enthusiastic reviews, and two weeks later was being advertised as "Young Sherlock Holmes: The Pyramid of Fear". And one review included Alan Cox's description of how his hallucination scene was filmed, with the reviewer's comment, "previous screen Watsons have endured many things in the course of their relationship with Holmes, but lying stretched out on a studio floor being attacked by puppet pastries has not been one of them." All this from Derham Groves, who happily announces that he and Ping are now proud parents of son Huey, born on Dec. 30.
  22. "You can depend on a woman for anything except constancy. Not that I disapprove of women, except when they attempt to function like domestic animals. When they stick to the vocations for which they are best adapted, such as chicanery, sophistry, self-advertisement, cajolery, mystification, and incubation, they are sometimes superb creatures." (Nero Wolfe, quoted by Ken Darby in his Lakeside Talk at the Bohemian Grove in July 1983.)
  23. Barbara Iris Ulan (aka A Tangled Skein) offers a made-to-order first edition for dyed-in-the-wool S'ians: a hand-loomed V-neck pullover vest emblazoned with a portrait of SH, with background mouse-colored (light grey to tan, dependent on the breed) and motif in scarlet, priced at $45 to $75 according to size. For an illustrated flier with full details, send a #10 SASE to Barbara at 165 East 35th Street #10-I, New York, NY 10016.
  24. The final official definite formal announcement from PBS' "Mystery!" is that "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" will air beginning Feb. 6. The cases, in order, will be "Gree", "Resi", Norw", "Copp", RedH", and "Fina".
  25. The first short story published in Punch appeared in the Jan. 3, 1900, issue: "The Debut of Bimbashi Joyce" by Arthur Conan Doyle. I've not seen this noted before; credit the back of the dust jacket for T. S. Blakeney's SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OR FICTION?
  26. "A Genuine Monster" is the title of Edward R. Ricciuti's article in the Jan. 1986 issue of Audubon about Cyanea capillata (with mention of the Canonical "Lion's Mane"). Reported by Richard G. Smith, who also notes a suggestion in Glamour (Jan. 1986): "Burrow into a fluffy comforter (buy one for less at a January white sale) and brave the spine-tingling chill of a Sherlock Holmes mystery. January 6 is the famous sleuth's birthday."
  27. Filming for the $18 million movie of Umberto Eco's "The Name of the Rose" has ended on location at a 12th century monastery near Frankfurt, and the company is moving to Rome, according to Time (Jan. 6, 1986). William of Baskerville is played by Sean Connery. F. Murray Abraham (of "Chariots of Fire") also has a role, according to earlier reports.
  28. I occasionally see reports, or reports of reports, that the Abbey National Building Society has moved away from Baker Street (to Brighton, among other places. Not to worry -- on Oct. 7, 1985, Jeremy Brett (as Sherlock Holmes) unveiled a bronze plaque honoring the detective at 221B Baker Street, where Abbey still maintains its head offices.
-
29. Jan 86 #5: "Autumn in Baker Street" is scheduled for Oct. 11-12, 1986, at Bear Mountain, N.Y., combining "scholarship with friendship, emotion with reason, and explication with participation." A flier is available from Bob Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
  30. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: THE READER'S ANTHOLOGY, edited by Robert R. Potter, with a dramatization of "Sherlock Holmes and the Speckled Band" by Alice Delman (with illustrations, notes, and a Teacher's Resource Manual); Globe Book Co., 50 West 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010. Also (same publisher): THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D650a) in a new (1984) edition with illustrations by Nat Glattauer. THE SHOPS AND INNS OF LONDON, including The Sherlock Holmes, in a 655-piece jigsaw puzzle, 18 by 25 in., $10.00, available from Adam York, Hanover, PA 17331.
  31. The Hounds of the Baskerville (sic) are celebrating the Vincent Starrett Centennial Year during 1986; if you'd like to be on their mailing list, write to Robert J. Mangler, 103 Broadway, Wilmette, IL 60091.
  32. "The matter seems to me to be of such importance that I grudge every day that passes without something having been done to bring it to realization," wrote Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in a letter published in The Times (Mar. 11, 1913). The "matter" was the Channel Tunnel, which he supported for many years, and in another letter in The Times (Dec. 9, 1922) he suggested that "in money alone it is impossible to compute how much was wasted by our insane policy of obstructing the boring of the tunnel in pre-war days."
  33. Wally Conger advises fans of the 1984 movie "The Adventures of Buckaroo Banzai" that The Banzai Institute (c/o Twentieth Century-Fox, Box 900, Beverly Hills, CA 90213) offers free membership in the official Buckaroo Banzai Fan Club: The Blue Blaze Irregulars.
  34. Ron De Waal reports an interesting pairing of epigraphs in Irving Wallace's THE SEVENTH SECRET (New York: E. P. Dutton, 1986): "Though a good deal is too strange to be believed, nothing is too strange to have happened" (Thomas Hardy) and "When you have eliminated the impossible, whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth" (Sir Arthur Conan Doyle).
  35. Also reported by Ron De Waal: THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, illustrated by Ian Beck (London: Octopus Books, 1985; 348 p., $5.98 at B. Dalton); with THE CELEBRATED CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES as half-title. THE WORKS OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, frontispiece by Modeste Stein (London: Longmeadow Press, 1985; xxiv+808 p., $14.95 at Waldenbooks); almost the same as the earlier Avenel Books edition (Stud through Bruc), with an additional Introduction by Patricia Horan. And a large deerstalker and magnifying glass on a 4-page pamphlet on SURVIVING SEC SCRUTINY: SECURITIES PRACTICE, from Callaghan & Co., 3201 Old Glenview Road, Wilmette, IL 60091.
  36. Ferret Fantasy (27 Beechcroft Road, London SW17 7BX, England), losing some storage facilities, is offering some publications at half price, including MY EVENING WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES (a 1981 collection of early parodies compiled by Richard Lancelyn Green and John Gibson); $12.50 per copy postpaid for orders of five or more copies, deadline Mar. 1, 1986.
-
37. Jan 86 #6: John Hawkesworth has earned acclaim for a long list of television series, from "Upstairs, Downstairs" through "Danger UXB" and "The Flame Trees of Thika" to "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" but his first major success, for which he won a Screenwriters Guild Award, was his work on series of Conan Doyle series broadcast by BBC-2 in 1967.
  38. THE ADVENTURE OF THE SMILING JUDGE, a new pastiche by Mary Fantina "from the papers of Sherlock Holmes," has Holmes describing Watson's successful solution of a case during the Great Hiatus; the 19-page pamphlet is $3.00 postpaid from the May Press, 32 Old Army Road, Bernardsville, NJ 07924.
  39. "The overall look of the picture, the feeling that you have about the film's visuals--that's the function of a production designer," explains Norman Reynolds in an interview in Starlog (Feb. 1986) Reynolds was the production designer for "Young Sherlock Holmes," and he certainly did a fine job. "We built quite a big set on the backlot, which was cobbled streets and period buildings. I looked for London locations, but it has become very difficult now. Many buildings have been demolished, and there's very little in the way of cobbles left. And if you do find a piece of cobbled street, there are yellow lines and parking meters and venetian blinds and modern drapes and TV aerials. So, finally, we built a section of London that worked for the film." The school was another challenge: "We couldn't find a public school that had everything we wanted, so we went to Eton for some scenes, and

- to Belvoir Castle for others. We also used Radley College in Oxford, Radcliffe Camera and Brasenose College in Oxford --all integrated into one, as the same school. And it works, too--it has the best of all those places."
40. A new, and more detailed, flier at hand for "A Weekend in Toronto with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes" on June 19-22, 1986. Write to The Bootmakers of Toronto, 225 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ont. M5A 2L2, Canada.
  41. "Upstairs, Downstairs" fans will welcome the news that fourteen episodes are available on videocassette ($43.90 each postpaid) from Corinth Video, 410 East 62nd Street, New York, NY 10021 (800-221-4720).
  42. "Lord Mountbatten: The Last Viceroy" has started on PBS-TV, with two Sherlockian actors in the cast: Nicol Williamson as Mountbatten, and Ian Richardson as Nehru.
  43. The facsimile of Marvin P. Epstein's manuscript of THE ADVENTURE OF THE PRIORY SCHOOL is at hand, introduced and signed by Len Deighton, and well produced and highly recommended (90 p., $48.95 postpaid from Pepper & Stern, Box 2711, Santa Barbara, CA 93120). Not only is the book the closest most of us will get to owning a manuscript, it's also a fine way to see how a story is written (and rewritten). And there are several places where new light will be shed on identifications of people and places.
  44. I believe that all of you have now received a copy of my seasonal souvenir ("ICH HABE DIE EHRE IHNEN DOKTOR MORS VORZUSTELLEN!"), either at the birthday festivities in New York or enclosed with this mailing. If I've missed anyone, let me know.
-
45. Feb 86 #1: Anthony Boucher's THE CASE OF THE BAKER STREET IRREGULARS (D5834a) has been reprinted in paperback (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1986; 252 p., $3.95), with Otto Penzler's intro from the 1980 Gregg Press edition; a fine book, and recommended.
  46. It's not S'ian, as far as I know, but fans of Dorothy L. Sayers may be interested in THE LORD PETER WIMSEY COMPANION, by Stephan P. Clark; $49.95 postpaid from The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019), according to a review in Playboy (Apr. 1986).
  47. I've had one request for an address for the Culture Press, publisher of Robert T. Weidaw's THE CHRONOLOGION (Dec 85 #2). A careful examination of John Harris' reviews of "Christmas Books" in the Atlantic (Dec. 1985) suggests that all of the books are ghosts.
  48. Bantam has issued a "Win a Mystery Weekend!" booklet to promote their computer game SHERLOCK HOLMES IN "ANOTHER BOW" (you don't need a computer or their game to solve the mystery). Available, according to Bantam, at all stores that carry the game, and but not directly from Bantam Books (the store also gets a prize if you win).
  49. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: the current catalog from Scholastic Inc. (Box 7502, Jefferson City, MO 65102), with (new) THE RED-HEADED LEAGUE AND OTHER MYSTERY PLAYS, including "RedH" (D4383b) and "Bery" (D4353b), and (old) THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND AND OTHER PLAYS (D4450b); $2.95 each. Also mention of ACD in SCOPE ENGLISH ANTHOLOGIES on p. 32.
  50. The Newcastle Mint (6512 Belgrave, Garden Grove, CA 92645) has announced "The Sherlock Holmes 100 Year Commemorative Art Medal Collection" 72 art medals, 3 cm. in diameter, minted in pure gold on fine pewter ($20.00 each) or in pure silver ($30.00 each) to be issued monthly beginning in March, in an edition strictly limited to 1,500 numbered sets, with a subscription deadline of Feb. 15, 1986. The announcement was received Jan. 31, along with a letter offering additional brochures and saying that they will be happy to extend the Feb. 15 deadline, so I assume that there's still plenty of time for people to sign up for this $1,440.00 (or $2,160.00) collection.
  51. Sherry-Rose Bond and Scott Bond reported on their trip to Manchester and the Granada studio "In Search of Sherlock Holmes" in a long article in the Feb. 1986 issue of Applause (KHYY-TV, 2300 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103).
  52. Forecast by St. Martin's Press in June: THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE: A MEMOIR OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, FROM THE PAPERS OF EDWARD PORTER JONES, HIS LATE ASSISTANT, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr. (256 p., $15.95).
  53. Daniel Thomas' MAD HATTER SUMMER, which I heartily recommend (BSJ June 1985 and BSM spring 1985), has been discounted at $2.95 in the Feb.-Mar. 1986 bargain-books catalog from Edward R. Hamilton.
  54. Newton M. Williams died on Jan. 28, and it's a sad loss indeed. He was a good friend to The Occupants of the Empty House and to many others, and an enthusiastic Sherlockian.
-
55. Feb 86 #2: Sound Track Album Retailers (Box 7, Quarryville, PA 17568) is closing out FAMOUS DETECTIVE HOLMES (Muramatsu ANL 1018), the Japanese soundtrack from a cartoon from the studio that did "The Adventure of Sherlock Hound" (that was on HBO in Nov. 1983); $16.95 plus shipping, and they take plastic.
  56. Jack Kerr (216 Laurel Building, King & Frazer Roads, Malvern, PA 19355) offers free photocopies of reviews of "Young Sherlock Holmes" from the Wall Street Journal (Dec. 5, 1985) and Time Magazine (Dec. 9, 1985).
  57. Dr. Steven Wagner, owner of the "Life Mask of Sherlock Holmes" displayed and discussed at the 1986 BSI annual dinner, has been persuaded to have copies made from the original (which has been identified as the work of M. Oscar Meunier of Grenoble); copies of the moulage, with a detailed description, will cost $40.00 including UPS delivery, and orders may be placed with John Bennett Shaw, 1917 Fort Union Drive, Santa Fe, NM 87501.
  58. Waldenbooks is selling "Bearlock Holmes" (the 10-in. Sherlockian teddy bear) at $19.95 (plus $2.50 shipping if by mail); they take plastic. Waldenbooks, attn: Marketing-Mystery Club, Box 1084, Stamford, CT 06904.
  59. The British broadcast of the second Granada series generated some comment in the press. Nancy Banks-Smith, in the Guardian, noted that we (and Watson) have only Holmes' word for Moriarty being "anything but a perfectly respectable professor kind to dumb students and meticulous in his tax returns." Holmes, however, "is clearly off his head," she writes, and wonders how many innocent lives must have been saved by Watson's habit of abandoning his patients at a word from Holmes. Watson "seems to use his head solely to stop his ears banging together," she concludes. John Naughton, in The Listener, suggested in one review that "David Burke as Watson continued to be as useful as a hatstand in a Turkish bath," and in another that "whether one likes it or not, however, Mr. Brett's rendition of the character has now reached the point where it might almost be called an interpretation, and enshrined in American PhD dissertations. In contrast, David Burke's portrayal of Watson as a well-intentioned pair of short planks laid end to end, though hilarious, has been much more conventional."
  60. Frank Langella is returning to the role of Sherlock Holmes, according to an item in the N.Y. Times (Jan. 31, 1986), in "Sherlock's Last Case" forecast for Broadway in October. The 1974 Charles Marowitz play (D4468b) was revised for production in Los Angeles in 1984. Langella will be remembered as a fine Holmes in the 1981 HBO telecast of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes". The BSI birthday festivities in 1979 included a Thursday-night theater party for "The Crucifer of Blood" -- if Langella's play is a success, perhaps some energetic New Yorker will make similar arrangements for 1987.
  61. "Young Sherlock Holmes" received one Oscar nomination, for best visual effects. Also nominated in that category were "Cocoon" and "Return to Oz". The film is reported to have cost $16 million, $1 million under budget. And Toronto Star film reviewer Ron Base had a sarcastic suggestion for a sequel: Sherlock Holmes goes back to the future, encounters a cute little alien creature, and defeats an evil shark.

62. Feb 86 #3: The Granada series earned considerable praise for its fidelity to the Canon, even though some liberties were taken (such as the early introduction of Watson in "The Crooked Man"). But the changes rung on "The Greek Interpreter" were a thorough disappointment.
63. Paula Salo's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MOTHER GOOSE, illustrated by Larry Marty (Burbank: Sherlock in L.A. Press, 1985; 26 p., $10.00) contains Canonical matches for 16 short nursery rhymes (including one that begins, "Hickory, Dickory, Doc./Your brother's watch was in hock."); available from the publisher (2712 Scott Road, Burbank, CA 91504).
64. Ron De Waal reports that B. Dalton has the $7.98 discount edition of the Simon Goodenough murder dossier of A STUDY IN SCARLET published in book form (Jan 86 #3).
65. Thanks to Al Rosenblatt for a correction: F. Murray Abraham, forecast in the film of "The Name of the Rose" (Jan 86 #4), won his Oscar in "Amadeus" (not "Chariots of Fire").
66. Gideon Hill reports being told by a Disney publicist that the studio is concerned by the poor box-office performance of "Young Sherlock Holmes" and has decided to change the title of "Basil of Baker Street" to something "less Sherlockian."
67. The spring 1986 catalog from Historical Products (Box 220, Cambridge, MA 02238) includes the usual assortment of T-shirts, sweatshirts, tote bags, etc., all available with their Steele portrait of Holmes or their Canonical quotation ("I abhor the dull routine of existence. I crave for mental exaltation.") And their calendar notes the Canonical event that occurred on Apr. 27, 1890.
68. Sherlock Holmes was on television in the U.S.S.R. in 1985, not in the Granada series, but rather in a Soviet series (presumably "Priklucheniya Sherloka Kholm'sa i Doktora Vatsona", the series that was launched from Lenfilms Studios in Leningrad in 1979). The series is well produced, according to a report in the London Daily Star (July 23, 1985), except for errors such as "the occasional glimpse through the Baker Street chimney pots of the grand, soaring architecture of the Winter Palace, once the home of the Tsars of all Russia and the spot where the Russian Revolution got under way with a vengeance."
69. "I don't know if you share my growing conviction that Conan Doyle was not a dog man," Nancy Banks-Smith wrote in the Guardian (Aug. 26, 1985). "A dog has only to raise its handsome head in Doyle to have its brains blown out. The Hound of the Baskervilles (as large as a small lioness) got five barrels in the flank from Holmes. The mastiff in The Copper Beeches (as large as a calf) was as affable a dog as ever wagged its tail ingratiatingly at a cameraman (straight between the ears) and what about Watson's bull pup? When he first met Holmes Watson mentioned he owned a bull pup (size unspecified) because these things can be accounted a flaw in a fellow lodger. 'Oh, that's all right,' said Holmes 'with a merry laugh.' Ha Ha indeed. Do we ever see hair or hide of that dog again? We do not. Undoubtedly it fell victim to Holmes's reckless target practice in Baker Street."
-
70. Feb 86 #4: Michael Cox, producer of the Granada series, responded to Nancy Banks-Smith's query, in a letter to the Guardian (Aug. 29), suggesting that she has "reopened one of the great Sherlockian mysteries: what became of Watson's bull-pup?" Cox notes Jack Tracy's statement that "To keep a bull-pup, in Anglo-Indian slang, means to have fits of quick temper." But there are no bull-pups in Partridge to support this view, according to Cox, "so Holmes remains suspected of foul play." The Anglo-Indian (actually army) slang was identified by Jacques Barzun (D1547b).
71. New "interactive fiction" computer games mentioned in the Feb. 1986 issue of American Libraries, from Codewriter (5605 West Howard, Niles, IL 60648): CASEBOOK OF HEMLOCK SOAMES 1 & 2 and CASEBOOK OF HEMLOCK SOAMES 3 & 4 (both for Atari), and SHERLOCK HOLMES RETURNS (for Commodore); $19.95 each.
72. Len Lawson (1206 Notre Dame Court, Livermore, CA 94550) is using his Corona (IBM PC compatible) and dBASE III to compile a data base of SH and ACD periodical appearances, and wonders if there are others doing similar work. Is there a Sherlock Holmes bulletin board? Is anyone interested in one?
73. I have found a source for BOZZ CHRONICLES #1, the comic book mentioned earlier (Jan 86 #2), and other comics as well, at reasonable prices: Mindbridge Ltd., 4351 Ebenezer Road, Baltimore, MD 21236.
74. Gerald Weissmann's "The Game Is Afoot, or Holmes and Watson at Bellevue" (Discover, Mar. 1986) at hand from Ely Liebow. "William Goldring told a group of us that perhaps we could learn as much about clinical medicine from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle as from Cabot and Adams (our somber textbook of physical diagnosis)," Weissmann writes of his student days. And he notes that the Holmes legend is based on the premise that diagnostic skills can be taught: "Watson's slow progress over time is painful, but inevitable. He's the true patron saint of the medical student."
75. "Young Sherlock Holmes" screenwriter Chris Columbus interviewed Billy Wilder for American Film (Mar. 1986). Discussing "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes", Wilder said, "I should have been more daring, but unfortunately, the son of Conan Doyle was there. I had wanted to make Holmes a homosexual. . . That's why he is on dope, you know. Look, we have been freed now from the Green Office of the Johnson Office or that stupid thing. In many respects, it's terrifying, because now any idiot and any pornographer can do anything. But for the ones who are a little bit discriminating, who do it delicately, a grand new thing is opened. But that was after Private Life. Just the saddest thing about [the film] is that it was a waste of a year and a half of my life."
76. More info on the schoolbooks reported (Jan 86 #5) from the Globe Book Co. (50 West 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010). THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is a revised 3rd ed. of D650a, with new illos but without the radio adaptation of "Lion" ($5.83). THE WORLD ANTHOLOGY, edited by Robert R. Potter and Roger G. Goodman, has Olive J. Morley's dramatization of "Seco" ($16.78, with student's workbook at $2.94 and teacher's resource manual at $2.50). THE READER'S ANTHOLOGY, edited by Robert R. Potter, has Alice Delman's dramatization of "Spec" (same prices). Shipping extra, and you can call 800-221-7994.
-
77. Feb 86 #5: A tantalizingly incomplete report from a non-Sherlockian that "Young Sherlock Holmes" has appeared with a different title raises the possibility that Paramount has test-marketed the film with a new title that might have more appeal to movie audiences. Does anyone have more information on this?
78. Jim Duval reports that the Quality Paperback Book Club (Camp Hill, PA 17012) is offering members a $7.85 set of two 10-ounce ceramic mugs with portraits of Sigmund Freud and Sherlock Holmes (the Gersten caricatures).
79. Jorge Luis Borges' poem "Sherlock Holmes" (translated by Richard Outram) is in Descant #51 (winter 1985-86); this is the magazine's mystery issue, at $12.00 (P.O. Box 314, Station P, Toronto, Ont. M5S 2S8, Canada).
80. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES ABC BOOK, by Andy and Bill Paton, with a Foreword by Bob Coghill (Toronto: Simon & Pierre, 1985; 64 p., $9.95 Canadian); prepared for young readers by young authors (the Patons are teenagers), with Canonical artwork and relevant discussion for each letter of the alphabet (from "Adler" to "Zoo"), and nicely done.
81. Bernie O'Heir reports that the "Young Sherlock Holmes" one-sheet is available for $8.00 (plus $2.50 shipping) from Movie Poster Service, Box 517, Canton, OK 73724.

82. "An Afternoon with Sherlock Holmes and Conan Doyle" is scheduled for Mar. 22 at WSU in Dayton, Ohio. Details available from Dr. A. E. Rodin, Wright State University Medical School, Box 927, Dayton, OH 45401.
83. Chris Redmond (125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada) offers copies of THE TALE OF COPPERELLA, a well-executed 8-page pamphlet ("wherein are related the adventures of a sweet young lady, and also the doings of a noted detective") issued in Oct. 1985; $2.00 (U.S.) postpaid.
84. Does anyone have Microsoft Windows? This is one of the new "alternative operating environments," and it displays a series of icons at the bottom of the monitor to indicate which applications programs are memory-resident utilities; one of the icons is a Sherlockian silhouette, according to an illo in the Feb. 25, 1986, issue of PC Magazine, but I have no idea what it indicates. For those who don't "talk tekkie," there's some new computer software that uses a little picture of Sherlock Holmes to show you that it can do something, but I don't yet know what.
85. Barbara J. Raheb (P.O. Box "O", Tarzana, CA 91356) is offering the complete set of her CHRONICLES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (45 miniature volumes) in a 1740 Chippendale wood cabinet, at $525.00.
86. And a flier at hand from Peter E. Melonas (Baker Street Enterprises, 1726A Sycamore Square Mall, Memphis, TN 38134) offering his S'ian posters.
87. If you're going to be in Chicago this spring, Ely M. Liebow will be presiding over one of the Lyceum Seminars at the Newberry Library, giving ten weekly lectures on "The Fiction of Arthur Conan Doyle" beginning on Mar. 25.
-
88. Feb 86 #6: Hascom Publishers (Box 1396, Provo, UT 84603) has sent a flier offering THE SECRET CONAN DOYLE CORRESPONDENCE, by Leslie Vernet Harper, at $6.95 pre-publication (it's scheduled for Apr. 15); Arthur Conan Doyle, Jacques Futrelle, Nellie Bly, Emma Goldman, and Teddy Roosevelt trying to prevent the assassination of Arthur Balfour.
89. I don't know how many newspapers have special Valentine's Day "personal" sections, but they're worth checking. Norman Davis reports an "I.A. Forever. S.H." in the Chicago Sun-Times this year (and occasionally) in past years. And the Washington Post usually has one to Irene Adler with a thoroughly non-S'ian message in a non-Canonical code.
90. And a hearty raspberry to Vincent Price's script-writer for claiming (in the introduction to Granada's "The Copper Beeches") that William Gillette introduced the Holmesian calabash. There's no evidence for this, photographic or otherwise; Gillette used a curved wooden pipe.
91. Forecast for April: SON OF HOLMES, by John T. Lescroart (New York: Donald I. Fine, 223 p., $15.95; bon vivant Auguste Lupa, the son of Sherlock Holmes and an opera star, makes his detecting debut in France in World War I. According to the publisher's publicity, the author attended a Martha Hudson dinner in Arlington, Mass., fifteen years ago, "and never recovered from the experience."
92. A new saleslist/newsletter at hand from Carol Brener (Murder Ink, 271 West 87th Street, New York, NY 10024), reporting that Daniel Stashower's THE ADVENTURE OF THE ECTOPLASMIC MAN is one of the nominees for the Mystery Writers of America's Edgar for best first novel by an American (their awards dinner is May 9 in New York). She offers LETTERS TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (highlights of correspondence to Holmes), at $6.00 (this is a Penguin paperback which I've not yet seen), and forecasts (March) DELL BOOK OF QUIZZES & PUZZLES FOR LITERATURE LOVERS, by Lane & Bartlett ("an Anglophile's Eden" with a Holmes section), at $7.00, and (May) Michael Hardwick's SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES at $9.00 (presumably a trade paperback), and (June) Stashower's ECTOPLASMIC MAN in paperback at $3.50, and (July) paperback reprints of John Dickson Carr's NINE WRONG ANSWERS at $3.50 and Anthony Boucher's NINE TIMES NINE (not in De Waal, but it has many S'ian references) at $5.00.
93. The March issue of Dial has a nice color photo of Holmes and Moriarty on location in Switzerland for the Granada version of "The Final Problem".
94. Wally Conger reports that a videocassette of the 1937 film "Silver Blaze" is available at $19.95 at Waldenbooks and B. Dalton (and from Kartes Video Communications, 10 East 106th Street, Indianapolis, IN 46280).
95. Mycroft's Isolated CoMpanions are planning their Ninth Annual 125th Birthday Bash for Sherlock Holmes in Cleveland on May 17, 1986. Additional information available from Dwight J. McDonald, 1711 Cypress Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44109.
96. There are now 80 people on the info-sheets mailing list. And why not, suggests Norman Davis: Sherlockians invented "trivial pursuit."
-
97. Mar 86 #1: A bibliographic query. Please check your older copies of A STUDY IN SCARLET. I am trying to find copies published by Ward, Lock & Co. (in any binding) in which the publishing history (after the title page) ends with a 1901 printing of the Third Edition. If you have such a copy, please send me a photocopy of the publishing history, and of page xvii. Eventually this will help sort out the Souvenir Edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET. And maybe I can figure out the other three titles in the Souvenir Edition before the end of the century.
98. Simon & Schuster Video has finally announced their videocassettes of the Granada series, with three cases (SCAN, SPEC, and BLUE) to be issued on Mar. 26 at $39.95 each.
99. The Jan.-Feb. 1986 issue of the Metropolitan Toronto Library Board News celebrates the founding of The Bootmakers of Toronto ("now the largest active Sherlock Holmes society meeting regularly in North America") and the Library's acquisition of the rare pamphlet with Conan Doyle's speech to the Edinburgh Burns Club in 1901. If you'd like to see 1971's beardless Cam Hollyer, the MTLB address is 789 Yonge Street, Toronto M2W 2G8, Canada.
100. Reported by John Stephenson: "The Case of the New Pipe Smoker" (a small S'ian pamphlet), at Walgreen's or other pipe stores handling Dr. Grabow pipes. Video Classics (Box 10069, Burbank, CA 91505) is offering 18 of the 1954 Ronald Howard TV programs (and some other S'ian items) at $9.99 each. "Splash Briefs" (Regal Way, Faringdon, Oxfordshire SN7 7BX, England) with a S'ian figure gazing through a magnifying glass, captioned "It's got to be here somewhere" (nylon, one size fits all, £1.35).
101. Movie Poster Service (Box 517, Canton, OK 73724), who offered (Feb 86 #5) the one-sheet for "Young Sherlock Holmes", write that they have older material and ask for want lists.
102. The Feb. 1986 issue of Nutshell News has an article on one-inch-scale dolls (including SH) made by Debbie Olsen (Nostalgia by the Inch, 4205 36th Avenue Drive West, Bradenton, FL 33505); send a #10 SASE for her flier.
103. Reported from Toronto: WHATEVER HAPPENED TO LADY CHATTERLY'S LOVER?, by Martin Levin (Kansas City: Andrews, McMeel & Perker, 1985), with a page on what really happened after the Reichenbach battle ("the Norton divorce was a messy cause celebre..."). THE BENIGN HUMORISTS, by Richard S. Carlson (Archon Books, 1975), with discussion of Wodehouse and Conan Doyle in the chapter on "Benign Humor and Escape Literature".
104. The first issue (Feb. 1986) of The Agony Column has appeared, with Bill Rabe's perceptive response to complaints from Canonical purists that "Young Sherlock Holmes" can't be any good because we know that Holmes and Watson first met at St. Bart's: how did Holmes greet Watson at St. Bart's? "How are you? You have been to Afghanistan, I perceive." Not an opening gambit with a stranger, Bill suggests. The Agony Column (8 pp.) will be published quarterly at $5.00 a year; W. T. Rabe, 909 Prospect, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783. And The Old Soldiers of Baker Street of the Two Saults (Old SOB'S) will meet on May 26-29 at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island ("the Miami Beach of the north," Bill once claimed).

105. Mar 86 #2: "Many historical references to the origins of forensic science, even to ancient times, exist in the vast literature of humanity. It was not, however, until Sir Arthur Conan Doyle with intriguing foreshadowing suggested the use of scientific crime detection methods, through his fictional character Sherlock Holmes, that modern forensic science began its development. Holmes applied principles of serology, fingerprinting, firearm identification, and questioned document examination long before these techniques and their utilization were to be recognized and accepted in modern investigation." Yale H. Caplan, in his editorial on "Justice in the Forensic Sciences" in the Journal of Forensic Sciences (Jan. 1986).
106. John T. Lescroart's SON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Donald I. Fine, 1986; 233 p., $15.95) is S'ian only in its occasional references to the parentage and inherited abilities of the protagonist: Auguste Lupa. He is a large man, partial to yellow shirts, beer, and gourmet meals, and this tale of war-time espionage and murder in France in 1915 is more a tribute to the Neronian Canon than to ours.
107. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: a long article, with color illos, on "Young Sherlock Holmes" in American Cinematographer, Mar. 1986 (ASC Holding Corp., 1782 North Orange Drive, Hollywood, CA 90028; $2.95). A S'ian story by J. N. Williamson in Espionage Magazine, Apr. 1986 (Box 1184, Teaneck, NJ 07666; $2.50). Minor S'ian refs in James L. Swauger's PETROGLYPHS OF OHIO (Athens: Ohio University Press, 1984). A series of "Soundscape" audio cassette/slide programs (including one on "Sherlock Holmes: The Legend and the Stories") from Heritage International (3 Richard Court, Alston Road, Barnet, Herts. EN5 4EZ, England); £12.00 plus £5.50 shipping.
108. New sales list at hand from Ilene Fauer (US 2, 563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652) with S'ian aprons, baseball cards (no, not the one featuring John Bennett Shaw), and much more.
109. Ray Milland, who died on Mar. 10, was once scheduled to direct and star in a movie about Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. "The Mystery Man" was to be the next picture at Republic, Louella O. Parsons announced in March 1955. Based on an original story by Marty Rackin, the film was to deal with ACD's early life as a medical student and to emphasize his interest in the spirit world rather than his family life.
110. LETTERS TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (Harmondsworth: Penguin Books, 1985; 235 p., $6.95); a representative selection from Holmes' mail (still about 700 letters a year to 221B Baker Street), and while many are prosaic requests for autographs and photographs, the variety of the correspondence (and correspondents) is fascinating.
111. I'm still exploring the six (or perhaps seven) variants of the Heritage Club set of the Sherlock Holmes stories. Does anyone have the Heritage Club prospectuses offering the 35th and 36th series?
112. Andy Jaysnovitch (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) now offers four videocassettes, each with four programs from the 1954 Ronald Howard series ($29.95 per cassette plus $3.00 shipping); send for his flier.
-
113. Mar 86 #3: Trevor H. Hall's THE LAST CASE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES at hand: a 50-page monograph combining his interest in the haunting of Borley Rectory ("the most haunted house in England," according to the late Harry Price) and in Sherlock Holmes, Hall discusses Holmes' attitudes toward marriage and women and uses a pastiche format (Dr. Holmes-Adler, the Cambridge scientist, is Holmes' son) to present new information about Ivy Johnson Bull, the wife of the Rector of Borley. $31.50 postpaid from Paulette Greene, 140 Princeton Road, Rockville Centre, NY 11570.
114. Reported by Brian MacDonald: SHERLOCK HOLMES: SELECTED STORIES (D736a) in a new edition from Avenel Book ($3.95 at Waldenbooks). A S'ian cartoon on the back cover of MAD'S AL JAFFEE FREAKS OUT (Warner, $2.95). HOPPOPOTAMUS PLAYS DETECTIVE (Wuzzles Collector Series #5); a stuffed wuzzle with a small laminated booklet showing Hoppopotamus in S'ian costume. And a deerstalkered fox in the closing credits of the TV show "Crazy Like a Fox".
115. Forecast in Britain: Alan Arnold's novelization YOUNG SHERLOCK HOLMES (Grafton Books, £1.95). YOUNG SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY BOOK (Grafton Books, £2.95). Terrance Dicks' THE DISAPPEARING DIPLOMAT (Blackie, £6.50) and reissues of Dicks' THE MISSING MASTERPIECE (D5267b) and THE CINEMA SWINDLE (same). Simon Goodenough's dossier of THE VALLEY OF FEAR (Webb & Bower, £9.95). Robert Bloch's NIGHT OF THE RIPPER (Robert Hale, £9.95). Allen Sharp's "choose-your-own-plot" SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE MEYRINGEN PAPERS (Cambridge University Press, £1.95). And in progress: Peter's Haining's history of Sherlock Holmes on television.
116. And there are some British editions already in print: SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE, edited by Asimov/Greenberg/Waugh (Severn House, £8.95); Ellery Queen's QUEEN'S QUORUM (Greenhill, £15.00); Dilys Winn's MURDER INK (Souvenir, £10.95); and ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S YOUR SHARE OF FEAR with August Derleth's "The Adventure of the Intarsia Box" (Severn House, £8.95).
117. Reported by Jerry Margolin: S'ian cover and dramatization "The Red-Headed Club" in Scholastic Sprint (Jan. 10, 1986); 730 Broadway, New York, NY 10003; $1.00. A deerstalkered teddy-bear alien in Escape to the Stars #4 (1985); a small-press comic published by Visionary Graphics, Box 4760, College Station, TX 77844; $1.25.
118. LETTERS TO THE PRESS, by Arthur Conan Doyle, edited by John Michael Gibson and Richard Lancelyn Green (Iowa City: University of Iowa Press, 1986; 377 p., $19.95); the third in the series (the others being UNCOLLECTED STORIES and ESSAYS ON PHOTOGRAPHY), and not yet published in Britain. It's a fine selection of ACD's letters to newspapers and magazines, running the gamut of topics from well-known (Edalji, Slater, spiritualism, politics) to the less-known (baseball, censorship, speed traps).
119. Dick Lesh reports that on Mar. 8 his PBS station broadcast a one-hour show "The Many Faces of Sherlock Holmes" (hosted by Christopher Lee). The program was produced by Avery Productions (they also do "The Golden Years of Television"). At least one PBS station (Washington) has decided not to buy the program from the network ("quality not up to our standards"). Has the program aired anywhere else other than Fort Collins?
-
120. Mar 86 #4: Reported by Jack Kerr: Publishers Central Bureau (One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07131) is now offering the 12 records of the soundtracks of the Rathbone Universal films at $3.98 each (or all 12 for $36.00); obviously little demand, now that the VCR is so prevalent.
121. Plan ahead. John Bennett Shaw ("our favorite all-round Sherlockian," according to Senex Junior) will return to Stanford University for a week of Holmesian fun and games, Aug 16-23, 1987.
122. And when should we commemorate the birth of Sherlock Holmes? Stanley MacKenzie, interviewed in London by UPI, notes that spring 1986 is the real centenary, because A STUDY IN SCARLET was written in March and April 1886.
123. Jerry Margolin reports that the latest word from Disney is that July 25 will be the release date for "The Great Mouse Detective" (that's their new non-Sherlockian title for "Basil of Baker Street").
124. "American criticism today is like telephoning long distance and having someone under the age of five answer the phone," Gregory McDonald said last year at a crime writers' luncheon in New York. The quote is in the first issue of Mysterious News (Feb. 1986), a 16-page magazine to be issued five times a year (and available to direct-mail customers of The Mysterious Press, 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019); non-S'ian, well produced, and informative.

125. Reported by Jon Lellenberg: G. Cabrera Infante's HOLY SMOKE (New York: Harper & Row, 1986; 329 p., $16.95); a compendium of cigar lore and literature, according to the review in the N.Y. Times (Feb. 7, 1986), with discussion of Holmes' monograph on the difference between various types of cigar ash.
126. The Longman's "Heritage of Literature" series includes the nine volumes of the Canon and THE LOST WORLD, added to their list in 1979 and 1980 in a uniform paperback format, and still in print in England at £1.00 to £1.95 a volume. The S'ian volumes are reprints of the Murray/Cape edition, without the Introductions but with two new general introductions and back-of-the-book notes.
127. "Young Sherlock Holmes" was nominated for an Oscar for best visual effects, but "Cocoon" was the winner in that category.
128. Reported by Ron De Waal: DETECTIVES A TO Z, edited by Frank D. McSherry, Jr., Martin Greenberg, and Charles G. Waugh (New York: Bonanza Books, 1985; $7.95); contents include "Copp".
129. ROUND THE FIRE MYSTERIES (London: Greenhill Books, 1985; 207 pp.; £7.95) is a facsimile reprint (except for the title) of ROUND THE FIRE STORIES (with "The Man with the Watches" and "The Lost Special").
130. Bruce Williamson's "The Year in Movies" in Playboy (May 1986) includes mention of Nicholas Rowe ("best young Spielberg"), but unless I missed it, they never reviewed the film -- which has opened in Britain as "Young Sherlock Holmes and the Pyramid of Fear".
-
131. Apr 86 #1: A new series of "Active Books" audiocassettes includes SHERLOCK HOLMES, with an Introduction and four stories (Scan, RedH, Iden, and Musg) ably read by William Barker. The two-cassette package costs $9.95, from Dercum Press, Box 1425, West Chester, PA 19380.
132. A few copies of the scarlet "Silver Blaze Necktie" are still available for $11.95 postpaid, from Thomas L. Stix, Jr., 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648. And a reminder that the Silver Blaze at Belmont will be held on Sept. 12; write to Tom if you'd like to receive the announcement.
133. ACD's signature is not uncommon, on books or short notes, but letters with significant content are seldom available. One such letter, non-S'ian, is nevertheless of interest: writing to Harry Houdini in the spring of 1920, ACD suggests that Houdini's astonishing escapes from sealed containers are achieved by dematerialization ("my reason tells me that you have this wonderful power, for these is no alternative"). The three-page letter, quoted at length (though not entirely correctly) by Ernst and Carrington in HOUDINI AND CONAN DOYLE (D2106b, p. 99), is being offered in a mail auction closing on Dec. 1, by Gregory B. Edmonds, Box 2741, Columbia, SC 29202.
134. John Ruyle (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707) is celebrating the 15th anniversary of the first appearance of the great Turlock Loams with a new Crow's Foot Edition of THE ADVENTURE OF THE FIVE BUFFALO CHIPS (D5154b), revised and with a new Preface; $28.50 cloth, $13.50 paper.
135. Correction (thanks to Mendax Major): the report on the 1987 festivities planned at Stanford (Mar 86 #4) came from Senex Senior, not Senex Junior. There is as yet no confirmation of the rumor that the Stanford agenda will include a lubricious discussion by MM and SS of the Sherlockian references in the poetry of Petrarch.
136. "Come to the Parker House in Boston for the auction of a rare Sherlockian document. But be careful! Death has the highest bid!" That's the promo for the "Murder by the Letter" weekend scheduled by Bogie's Murderous Mystery Tours on June 27-29. Details available from Stevens Travel Management, 432 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016 (800-223-1028).
137. Everything has a S'ian connection, people suggest . . . "By the Sword Divided" now on PBS' "Masterpiece Theatre" is adapted from a novel by Mollie Hardwick.
138. Planning has begun for a "Final Problem" tour from England to Switzerland in late April and early May of 1987, with Scott Bond and Sherry Rose-Bond as escorts. Details available from Trade Winds Travel, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
139. THE CONTENTS OF A LUMBER-ROOM: A CATALOGUE OF THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COLLECTION (City of Westminster: Department of Leisure Services, 1986; 95 p., £7.00 postpaid from the Marylebone Library, Marylebone Road, London NW1 5PS, England). The collection at Marylebone, the only public collection in Britain, was housed in a solitary bookcase 20 years ago, but in recent years it has expanded considerably; Catherine Cooke's introduction discusses both the Abbey House exhibition and the collection itself.
-
140. Apr 86 #2: Ted Schulz reports that the Video Classics series of $9.99 cassettes of the 1954 Ronald Howard series (Mar 86 #1) has two programs on each of the 18 cassettes; thus 36 of the 39 programs are available. For compulsive completists, "Christmas Pudding" (D5532a) is available on one of the Andy Jaysnovich cassettes, but I have no record of anyone offering "Texas Cowgirl" (D5513a) and "Violent Suitor" (D5534a). Video Classics is at Box 10069, Burbank, CA 91505; Andy Jaysnovich is at 6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859.
141. Reported by John Stephenson: British paperback reprints (from W. H. Allen) of John Gardner's THE RETURN OF MORIARTY and THE REVENGE OF MORIARTY. Also: VOICES 1870-1914, by Peter Vansittart (New York: Avon Books), with a section of quotes from ACD and SH. Also that Rick's Movie Graphics (1105 North Main Street #3E, Gainesville, FL 32601) sells the press kit for "Young Sherlock Holmes" (with 18 stills) for $25.00.
142. Forecast by Roger Johnson from England: BRIGADE: THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, by M. J. Trow (Macmillan, May, £8.50); a sequel to THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE. And filming in progress on "The Abbot's Cry" with Peter Cushing and John Mills, a Tyburn Films sequel to "The Masks of Death" (1984 on British television).
143. Rick Hacker (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213) offers a sepia-photograph poster (8.5 x 11 in.) showing SH smoking a calabash while reading THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK; $7.50 postpaid.
144. Forecast for May: a trade paperback edition of Michael Hardwick's SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES (New York: Henry Holt & Co.; 208 p., $8.95). And a trade paperback of Robert Bloch's THE NIGHT OF THE RIPPER from Doubleday, with a cameo appearance by ACD.
145. Bouchercon XVII will be held at the Sheraton Inner Harbor in Baltimore on Oct. 10-12, with Donald E. Westlake as guest of honor. Regular membership costs $25.00 (higher after July 1), and supporting membership costs $10.00 (you can upgrade to regular if you want to attend). Bouchercon XVII is being run by Gail Larson, The Butler Did It, 10449A Green Mountain Circle, Columbia, MD 21044.
146. The acting script for Charles Marowitz's play "Sherlock's Last Case" (due on Broadway this fall with Frank Langella as Holmes) is available from Dramatists Play Service (440 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016) for $3.35. Also available (same price): Dennis Rosa's "Sherlock Holmes and the Curse of the Sign of Four" (D4521b) and F. Andrew Leslie's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (D4481b). Book-rate postage is 95c per order.
147. Add Paul B. Smedegaard to your list of Sherlockian politicians. In his first try for public office, he won election to the city council in Racine, Wis., this month. "I felt all along it would be a very close election," the new alderman said of his 487-to-430 victory.
148. A second set of programs from Agatha Christie's "Partners in Crime" starts on "Mystery!" on PBS-TV on May 1, and "The Case of the Missing Lady" will air on May 15. This is the most S'ian of the published stories.
-
149. Apr 86 #3: There's a large-print edition of ELLERY QUEEN'S LOST LADIES (the collection includes Robert L. Fish's "The Adventure of the Disappearance of Whistler's Mother"); 512 p., $15.95 from the publisher: John Curley & Associates, Box 37, South Yarmouth, MA 02664.

150. Jim Duval reports that the Gibson/Green UNCOLLECTED STORIES BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE is discounted at $4.98 (plus $2.95 postage) by Publishers Central Bureau (Dept. 410, One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001; a fine book, with many seldom-seen stories by ACD, and a number identified for the first time as having been written by him.
151. M. A. Dabritz, whose 3" bronze statue of Holmes sold out quickly in 1980, now offers a pair of figures (Holmes with magnifying glass examining a walking stick, and Watson with bowler hat and Gladstone bag) as a $95.00 set on a cherrywood base that can hold a Cross pen and pencil set ($29.00 extra); shipping is $4.50. Additional details from A Cast of Characters, 1631 S.E. Main Street, Portland, OR 97214.
152. The Midwest Chapter of the Mystery Writers of America, noting that 1986 is the 100th anniversary of the birth of Vincent Starrett (winner of the MWA's Grand Master Award), and that his grave in Chicago is unmarked, is raising funds to provide a marker for the grave. Contributions to the Starrett Memorial Fund are welcome, and checks may be sent to MWA Midwest, Box 8, Techy, IL 60082.
153. Gideon Hill reports that the Apr. 15 episode of the TV game show "The $25,000 Pyramid" had a category "Holmes Sweet Holmes" with instructions to name items in a Sherlock Holmes movie; the list consisted of pipe, London, butler, laboratory, clue, Watson, and mansion. They've used the category before, according to my notes, with a somewhat different list. And here's my own question for S'ian cinemaphiles: of the 12 Rathbone-Bruce films in the Universal series, how many have a laboratory? and how many have a butler?
154. The April issue of The Agony Column at hand from W. T. Rabe (909 Prospect, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783) with much of interest, including Bill's warning that "subscriptions of those who fail to contribute over a three-year period will be discontinued and refunded pro-rata." And news of David L. Hammer's new Gasogene Press, announcing plans to publish FOR THE SAKE OF THE GAME, the sequel to his THE GAME IS AFOOT; "it seems important, says Dave, "that there be a Sherlockian press which will be publishing rather than reprinting."
155. A bit of Hollywood gossip (from Forbes, Apr. 28): Sidney Ganis, who worked for George Lucas, has moved to Paramount as marketing chief. Paramount "prays it hit bottom last Christmas when both major holiday releases bombed. One, 'Young Sherlock Holmes,' a Steven Spielberg presentation, had seemed particularly promising. But knowledgeable observers say it wasn't marketed properly--many Americans thought it was a foreign film."
156. There is a new pair of hand-painted wall plaques, of Holmes and Watson, from Bossom in England. $35.00 each postpaid from R. Jack Davis (Davis and Son, Long Leaf Mall, Wilmington, NC 28403).
-
157. Apr 86 #4: "He is the King of Bohemia, and he reigns over a world of red herrings and black eyes, trench coats and shallow graves, and butlers who did it and maidens who won't," according to Jerry Schmetterer, in an article about Otto Penzler in the Mar. 1986 issue of On the Avenue. What would do if he found himself in Sussex one day and met Sherlock Holmes? "I would ask him to autograph a first edition of The Hound of the Baskervilles." Nominees and winners of awards from the Mystery Writers of America will be honored at Otto's MWA Open House Party at the Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street in New York) on May 10 from 11:00 to 7:00, with many authors on hand to autograph their books.
158. Mike Shayne Mystery Magazine ceased publication with the August 1985 issue, according to Edward D. Hoch's column in the spring 1986 issue of The Armchair Detective; if you didn't notice, it was probably because the magazine had no proper distribution in recent years, but it did publish occasional S'ian items.
159. And on p. 214 of the new TAD, Louis Phillips quotes a story from THE PROPERTY BASKET, the autobiography of the English actor Robert Speaight: "Only a few years ago I was one of a rather large dinner-party in Minneapolis. We sat at different tables, and when the meal was over a tall and rather melancholy figure came over to me from the other side of the room. He was a very distinguished physicist who had won the Nobel Prize for the discovery of Cortisone. 'Do you see anything odd in my appearance?' he asked. He seemed to be impeccably and conventionally dressed, and I replied that I could see nothing odd about him at all. 'My tie,' he persisted. I looked closer and discerned what might have been the emblems of a hat and a pipe woven into the silk. 'The Sherlock Holmes Society,' he went on. 'I have made all my important scientific discoveries by applying the methods of Sherlock Holmes.'"
160. Reported by Ron De Waal: a new edition (New York: Bell Publishing Co., 1986; 160 p., $3.98 at B. Dalton) of Ruth Lake Tepper's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CROSSWORD PUZZLE BOOK (D3929b). Large-print editions of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES and THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES from North Books, Box 337, Peace Dale, RI 02883; $18.00 each in cloth, or $14.00 in paper.
161. It was Philip S. Hench who was wearing the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's tie; he won the Nobel Prize for Physiology and Medicine in 1950. And it's his Sherlockian collection that is now at the Wilson Library at the University of Minnesota.
162. If you don't have Bill Blackbeard's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN AMERICA (and you ought to), it's available for $14.75 postpaid from Chris Voigt, 2600 East Main Street, Lot 33, Merrill, WI 54452.
163. "The Piltdown Problem Solved", by Charles S. Blinderman, presents yet another explanation of the Piltdown Hoax, in the Feb.-Mar. 1986 issue of the Journal of Irreproducible Results (Box 234, Chicago Heights, IL 60411; $1.50) (or $5.90 a year for 5 issues). The JIR (the official organ of the Society for Basic Irreproducible Research) has been described as "the funniest thing to happen to science since Archimedes ran naked through the streets of Syracuse."
-
164. May 86 #1: Rex Stout's DEATH TIMES THREE (New York: Bantam Books, 1985; 213 p., $3.50) presents three previously uncollected Nero Wolfe novellas, with an introduction by John J. McAleer (one of the stories is published for the first time, an event which McAleer suggests "is on a par only with the discovery of an eightieth Sherlock Holmes story").
165. The S'ian references in part 4 and part 6 of "Charters & Caldicott" on "Mystery!" on PBS-TV are also in the novelization by Stella Bingham (New York: Penguin Books, 1986; 180 p., $3.95).
166. There's a paperback reprint of Daniel Stashower's Holmes-and-Houdini pastiche THE ADVENTURE OF THE ECTOPLASMIC MAN (New York: Penguin Books, 1986; 203 p., $3.50).
167. New to me (at a local charity book sale) and possibly still in print: TANTALIZING LOCKED ROOM MYSTERIES, edited by Asimov/Waugh/Greenberg (New York: Walker and Co., 1982; 303 p.); contents include "Spec".
168. Wally Conger reports an article in the Los Angeles Times (Apr. 20) on Frank Langella's plans for "Sherlock's Last Case" on Broadway this fall. Staging the play will cost $850,000, according to Langella, and "it's hard to ask people to come up with thousands of dollars that they could lose in 24 hours. But already we've got two-thirds of the money."
169. Reported: discussion of SH in one of the essays in Anthony Burgess' BUT DO BLONDES PREFER GENTLEMEN?: HOMAGE TO QUERT YUIOP AND OTHER WRITINGS (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1986; 589 p., $24.95).
170. Reported by John Stephenson: a paperback reprint of John Dickson Carr's THE NINE WRONG ANSWERS (D5849a) from Ingram in June. And a computer game "Baker Street Detective" (for Apple and Commodore 64) at $9.95 from Artworx Software Co., 150 North Main Street, Fairport, NY 14450.

171. "Young Sherlock Holmes: The Pyramid of Fear" went into general release in Britain on Mar. 14, receiving mixed reviews. The other major release in that week was a new movie starring John Cleese, and it was that movie that received major attention from most reviewers.
172. Reported by Jerry Margolin: a paperback reprint of William Kozwinkle's TROUBLE IN BUGLAND (Boston: David R. Godine, 1986; $9.95); for those who didn't get the 1983 first edition, it's a collection of S'ian mysteries featuring Inspector Mantis and Doctor Hopper, with imaginative illos by Joe Servello.
173. Reported: THE DANCING MEN, by Duncan Kyle (Collins, 1986); a mystery novel with no S'ian connection except the title.
174. Thimbles have become the fourth leading world-wide collectible this century, according to Thimble News. And Francesca China makes two thimbles honoring Holmes and Watson, imported by Heirloom Editions, 25100 South Normandie Avenue, Harbor City, CA 90710. Their wholesale price is $11.00 each (minimum order $100.00), or they will be happy to tell you who your local Heirloom Editions retailer is.
-
175. May 86 #2: "Detektivgeschichten" is a weekly television series broadcast by ZDF in Germany, and on Feb. 22 the program was a Kulturdokumentation uber den Meisterdetektiv Sherlock Holmes," showing the 1985 Hoboken workshop, John Bennett Shaw and his collection, London and a meeting of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, the Reichenbach and some British Sherlockians re-enacting the battle, and the nearby "Moriarty" pub.
176. ALIMENTARY ALERT! The Fourth Irregular Quinquennial Holmesian Dinner will be held at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., on May 16, 1987. More information will be available, eventually, from Albert M. Rosenblatt, Box 221B, Pleasant Valley, NY 12569; write to him to ask to be put on his mailing list for a formal announcement. By the time you read this, it is possible that no rooms will be available at the Beekman Arms in Rhinebeck (914-876-7077). An acceptable alternative is the new Montgomery Inn at 67 Montgomery Street, Rhinebeck, NY 12572 (914-876-3311).
177. THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE: A MEMOIR OF SHERLOCK HOLMES FROM THE PAPERS OF EDWARD PORTER JONES, HIS LATE ASSISTANT, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr. (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1986; 246 p., $15.95); a new pastiche, and a fine one. A member of the original Baker Street irregulars until he was 16 years old, Jones asked Holmes to be taken on as an apprentice detective, and by 1900 had become a valued assistant; this is Jones' story, of a case that brought him and Holmes to the Romney Marshes, fraught with mystery and danger. Holmes is thoroughly credible, the mystery appropriate, and the book well written.
178. "The Great Mouse Detective" opens nationwide on July 2, according to Walt Disney Pictures. "The mysterious kidnapping of a master toymaker sets into motion the most entertaining comic caper of all time as the great mouse detective Basil matches wits with his old rival, the villainous Professor Ratigan." Vincent Price provides the voice for the criminal genius ("a character whose large ego is matched only by his aptitude for crime, Ratigan is embarrassed by his rodent origins and prefers to think of himself as a large mouse rather than the rat he actually is"). The studio publicity notes that "a new story was meticulously crafted using the characters from Eve Titus' popular children's book, Basil of Baker Street," but the 38-page pressbook carefully avoids mention of S*****k H*****s. The voice of Basil is provided by the British actor Barrie Ingham, who played Dr. John Thornkyke in "The Moabite Cipher" in the television series "The Rivals of Sherlock Holmes" broadcast in Britain in 1971 and in the U.S. in 1972 (that credit is not mentioned in the pressbook, of course). Music by Henry Mancini, with three songs: "The World's Greatest Criminal Mind" (an upbeat music-hall melody in which Ratigan's thugs salute their infamous leader while cavorting merrily in a spirited parody of a Busby Berkeley number), "Goodbye, So Soon" (a sardonic ballad in which Vincent Price demonstrates a fine vocal range while describing the longstanding relationship between the two rivals), and "Let Me Be Good to You" (written and sung by Melissa Manchester, a zesty number in delivered in high style by a chanteuse in a sleazy river-front pub where Basil and Dawson go in search of Ratigan). And . . . at the very end of the long list of credits, well after the "breakdown and inbetween artists" and "ink & paint supervisors," there is a list of "additional voice talents" that includes Basil Rathbone (Sherlock Holmes) and Laurie Main (Watson).
-
179. May 86 #3: The twelfth (and final) episode in The Adventures of Turlock Loams is A SCANDAL IN BULIMIA, fresh from the Pequod Press and priced at $28.50 (cloth) or $13.50 (paper) postpaid from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707. "The shrewd detective once again uncovers a monstrous scheme by his elusive nemesis Coroner Sandals, the John Bennett Shaw of crime."
180. "Harlan Ellison's Watching" in the July 1986 issue of Fantasy & Science Fiction is a long essay on "Young Sherlock Holmes", which Ellison describes as "109 minutes of just simply awful, lamebrained and inept crapola from the team that brought you Gremlins." Ellison also has some kind things to say about the Sacred Writings ("the adventures we read over and over from our first thrilling exposure to the canon till that final rereading of 'The Adventure of the Retired Colourman' moments before we go to meet Sir Arthur in person on the other side"), and will continue his discussion in his column in the Aug. 1986 issue of F&SF.
181. Reported: a going-out-of-business sale by Sherlockian Enterprises (Frank A. Hoffmann, 734 Richmond Avenue, Buffalo, NY 14222), closing out his stock of T shirts, calendars, brass plaques, leather items, and such.
182. Martin Gabel died on May 22. He played Moriarty in the 1964 musical "Baker Street" (D5166a).
183. BAKER STREET DETECTIVE, by David Fogel, is a new computer adventure game from Artworx Software Co., 150 North Main Stret, Fairport, NY 14450 ($9.95 for Apple or Commodore 64). "You are Sherlock Holmes, the world's greatest detective, and you have just been presented with two new mysteries to solve. In the case of A Wasted Winess, Inspector Lastrade asks you to investigate the mysterious death of the government's star witness during an extortion trial. In the Scourge of the Executioner, you try to find a link between the murder of a bank president, and a bank robber who wears an executioner's hood."
184. SHERLOCK HOLMES'S LONDON: FOLLOWING THE FOOTSTEPS OF LONDON'S MASTER DETECTIVE, by Tsukasa Kobayashi, Akane Higashiyama, and Masaharu Uemura (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1986; 128 p., $14.95). This is the American edition of A PICTORIAL RECORD OF SHERLOCK HOLMES'S LONDON, published in Japan in 1984 and reported with considerable enthusiasm here recently. "S'ians who fail to acquire this volume will inevitably be exposed as lacking both sense and sensibility" (BSJ, Dec. 1986).
185. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, one of five Arctic explorers honored by a set of commemorative stamps issued on May 28, was a friend and admirer of ACD. "In his home Conan Doyle is not merely a sturdier Watson and a kinder Holmes," Stefansson wrote (D2051b). "He is also a gentler Sir Nigel and a mellow blend of all the host of his nobler characters."
186. Robert Burchfield has finished editing the four-volume, 5,750-page Oxford English Dictionary Supplement, and one of the new entries under "wonder" is "wonder-woman," cited from the example "A wonder-woman in every way." The citation is credited to A. Conan Doyle and appears in the Canon. Who was the wonder-woman?
-
187. Jun 86 #1: HOLY SMOKE, by G. Cabrera Infante (New York: Harper & Row, 1985; 329 p., $16.95), is a fascinating, humorous, and expert discussion of the history of cigars (and cigarettes and pipes), with occasional references to the Canon.
188. "Violet de Merville, young, rich, beautiful, accomplished, a wonder-woman in every way," was the description given by Sir James Damery (Illu), and now found in the Oxford English Dictionary Supplement.

189. Recommended by Dick Lesh: THE UNIFORMS OF THE WORLD'S GREAT ARMIES: 1700 TO THE PRESENT, edited by I. T. Schick, with many British Victorian uniforms in full color (item #20659); originally $24.50, discounted to $2.95 (plus $3.00 shipping per order) from Edward R. Hamilton, Falls Village, CT 06031.
190. Reported from Britain by Roger Johnson: Granada's "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (seven programs with Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke) will be broadcast beginning in July. Baskerville's is a new restaurant, with extensively S'ian decor, in Alsopp Place, near the London Planetarium. Published: SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE MEIRINGEN PAPERS, by Allen W. Sharp, a choose-your-own adventure in the "Storytrail" series (Cambridge University Press, £1.25); SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1902 FIFTH TEST, by Stanley Shaw, a paperback reprint of his cricket pastiche (Star, £1.95). Forecast: MICHAEL HARDWICK'S COMPLETE NEW GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES (Weidenfeld & Nicholson); a revised edition of THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COMPANION. And a heavily illustrated centenary volume by A. J. Eyles (John Murray).
191. The latest issue of Communication at hand from The Pleasant Places of Florida, with the latest offers from Baker Street Emporium, including all 13 of the Granada "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" on 3 VHS cassettes at $20.00 (value for money indeed). Write to The Reverend Dr. Benton Wood, 4408 Gulf Drive, Holmes Beach, FL 33510.
192. Arion Press (460 Bryant Street, San Francisco, CA 94107) has announced their next limited edition: Raymond Chandler's THE BIG SLEEP, at $425. Copies of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES are still available (at $300), or you can wait for the trade edition ($16.50) announced for fall 1986 by North Point Press.
193. LAST LAUGHS, edited by Gregory McDonald (New York: Mysterious Press, 1986; $16.95); the MWA annual, with Edward D. Hoch's "The Most Dangerous Man" (D4992b).
194. BUT DO BLONDES PREFER GENTLEMEN? HOMAGE TO QWERT YUIOP AND OTHER WRITINGS, by Anthony Burgess (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1986; 608 p., $24.95), is a massive collection of his literate essays and book reviews, including his review of Owen Dudley Edwards' THE QUEST FOR SHERLOCK HOLMES.
195. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, honored by a commemorative stamp issued on May 28, was a friend and admirer of ACD. "In his home Conan Doyle is not merely a sturdier Watson and a kinder Holmes . . . he is also a gentler Sir Nigel and a mellow blend of all the host of his nobler characters." (D2051b).
-
196. Jun 86 #2: Sherlock Holmes Security Inc. was one of the 17 companies in Florida and Alabama seized by the government on May 30 in a federal undercover drug bust targeted against a $1 billion cocaine ring that imported nearly four tons of the drug into the U.S. in the past four years. The company, where much of the planning for the operation occurred, was owned by Henry Edsel Holmes, who was one of 30 people arrested and charged with violations of the "drug kingpin" statute.
197. Gasogene Press (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004) will publish FOR THE SAKE OF THE GAME: BEING A FURTHER STUDY OF THE ENGLAND OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in July at $22.95 (plus $2.00 shipping); this is the second volume of David L. Hammer's researches. Gasogene (which is David L. Hammer) will reprint his first volume, THE GAME IS AFOOT, in 1986, and has also scheduled two books by Michael Harrison: LONDON BY GASLIGHT (reprint) and SHERLOCKIAN MEMORIES (new).
198. I suspect this won't be much help to fanatic collectors, but: Smucker's Plush Toy Offer (Box 935, Medina, OH 44258) offers a 14-inch Disney's The Great Mouse Detective "Basil" Plush Toy in return for $12.95 and front labels from two 18-ounce jars of Smucker's jams/jellies/preserves and a special coupon that was included in a newspaper insert here, with a deadline of Aug. 31. It is of course possible that the toy will also appear in toy stores.
199. CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is a new black-and-white comic book published by Renegade Press (3908 East 4th Street, Long Beach, CA 90814). The first issue (May 1986) has the full text of "Bery" copiously illustrated by Dan Day, who has used Rathbone and Bruce as his models but often seems more concerned with art than with accuracy. Six issues are planned, with the second devoted to "Danc" and then new stories. Cover price is $1.70, or you can order direct ($2.00, or $7.00 for a six-issue subscription).
200. Tom Dunn (20-37 120th Street, College Point, NY 11356) is publishing a second printing of Book I of The Pipe Smoker's Ephemeris, at $50.00. Book I is a fully indexed, 541-page, cloth-bound reprint of the first 15 years (spring 1965 through autumn 1979) of TPSE, Tom's massive irregular newsletter for The Universal Coterie of Pipe Smokers, whose ranks include many S'ians who over the years have indulged in much S'ian commentary. TPSE is a true labor of love, mailed free for the asking to anyone who expresses an interest (financial contributions welcome, but not required).
201. The Candy Cruncher is a small pamphlet for children, with text by Anna L. Carlson and illustrations by Diana Wynne showing "Candy Cruncher" in S'ian garb while pursuing his quarry ($1.95 from PMG International, 1104 Summit Avenue #100-B, Plano, TX 75074).
202. Reported by Brian MacDonald: a computer named Sherlock in OPERATION SHERLOCK #1: THE A.1. GANG, by Bruce Coville (Signet paperback, $2.25). Holmes Mouse and Watson Mouse in four "Adams Wood" mysteries by Stewart Cowley (Derrydale Books/Crown, $2.00 each); the titles are WHO STOLE THE MIRROR, WHO SPILLED THE PAINT, WHO STOLE THE PRIZE, and WHO ATE THE CAKE. And THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Collier paperback, $4.95) with a new cover illo by Richard Ross.
203. Jun 86 #3: The Bettmann Archive is offering portraits of 65 historical personalities, including Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, printed from original negatives. The portraits cost $45.00 each (plus $6.95 shipping), and their illustrated brochure costs $1.00. Bettmann Originals, 136 East 57th Street, Dept 1B, New York, NY 10022.
204. John Bennett Shaw will hold two Sherlock Holmes workshops next year: July 24-26 at William & Mary College in Virginia, and Aug. 16-23 at Stanford University in California. Write to Ray Betzner (124 Wickre Street, Williamsburg, VA 23185) to join the mailing list for the July event.
205. A few minor items: a deerstalker as a clue in the cover-quiz on "famous doctors" (Games, June 1986); a S'ian reference in one panel of a parody on "Moon-Fighting" (Mad, July 1986); a S'ian panel in "The Last of the Hollywood 'B' Movies" (Giant History of Cracked, Oct. 1986).
206. Reported by John Stephenson: DETECTIVE ARTHUR SEE-A-WORD PUZZLES (Western Publishing Co., $1.29); Detective Arthur in S'ian costume, in a Golden Book for children.
207. Holmes and Watson appear on the box containing the LONDON MURDER MYSTERY GAME (Buffalo: Tuco, 1985; $10.00), a role-playing party game for four to eight players, but not among the actual characters, which include Shanda Lear, Onda Mayke, Philip de Glass, and Vic Tim.
208. "The alarm clock beside Bisker's bed called him to his daily life at halfpast five... Striking a match, he lit the hurricane lamp standing on the wooden kerosene case beside the bed. Then he took up one of two pipes, in the bowl of which had been compressed the dried 'dottles' taken during the previous day from the other pipe. Bisker was a connoisseur in the art of nicotine poisoning, and he favoured an extra-strong dose before rising in the mornings, to be followed with mere ordinary doses during the day. To avoid wasting time, the special dose was loaded into the pipe overnight." Discovered by Evelyn Herzog in Arthur Upfield's THE DEVIL'S FOOTSTEPS (a 1946 Napoleon Bonaparte mystery).
209. Jorge Luis Borges died on June 14. His translation "La Liga de los Cabezas Rojas" was first published in 1943, and reprinted in the July 1947 issue of the BSJ, and his poem "Sherlock Holmes" was published in the winter 1985-86 issue of Descant.

210. THE ADVENTURE OF THE ECTOPLASMIC MAN, by Daniel Stashower, was nominated for the Mystery Writers of America's Edgar for best first novel, but the winner in that category was WHEN THE BOUGH BREAKS, by Jonathan Kellerman.
211. The musical "Baker Street" is seldom seen, but it will run Aug. 12-31 at the Berea Summer Theatre at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio. Mrs. Hudson's Lodgers are planning a theatre party on Aug. 16; details available from Tom Stetak, 15529 Diagonal Road, La Grange, OH 44050.
212. More plans for next year: The Sherlock Holmes Society of London will make a "Pilgrimage to Switzerland" from Apr. 30 to May 9, 1987; details available from Cdr. G. S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England.
-
213. Jun 86 #4: There are, of course, still a few months in 1987 without any already-announced S'ian activity, but I'm sure there will be more in store. So far: BSI annual dinner in New York (Jan. 9), SHSOL excursion to Switzerland (Apr. 30-May 9), CIA dinner in Hyde Park (May 16), JBS at William & Mary (July 24-26), JBS at Stanford (Aug. 16-23).
214. The next chapbook from The Pleasant Places of Florida will include Duane Damon's new pastiche "The Adventure of the Wolf's Head Stick" and an excerpt from David Kahn's book THE CODEBREAKERS; $2.00 postpaid prepublication (July 4) and then $2.50, from Ben Wood, 4408 Gulf Drive, Holmes Beach, FL 33510.
215. The latest sales list from Video Specialists International (182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 18612) includes two VCR cassettes filled with longunavailable items ranging from "Sherlock Holmes Baffled" (1900) and "The Mystery of the Leaping Fish" (1916) to "The Singular Case of the Plural Green Mustache" (1964) and "The Celebrated Archives of Mr. Sherlock Holmes" (1970).
216. Atlanta is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the publication of GONE WITH THE WIND, and one article notes that while author Margaret Mitchell didn't get involved in the casting battles which were waged over the movie, she did have a favorite for the role of Rhett Butler: Basil Rathbone. "Frankly, my dear Watson . . ."
217. Reported by Bob Thomalen: an "inside joke" in the film "Back to School", in which Rodney Dangerfield, having decided to get a college degree, argues with his business professor, saying, "Now look, Sherlock . . ." The joke is that the business professor is played by Paxton Whitehead, who played Sherlock Holmes on stage in "The Crucifer of Blood" (1978).
218. Nigel Stock died on June 22 in London. In 1983 Nicholas Utechin called him "the best Dr. Watson of his generation in the media," and the praise was well-deserved. He played Watson in two BBC television series (with Douglas Wilmer in 1964-65 and Peter Cushing in 1968), on four phonograph records (with Robert Hardy in 1970-71), and in his one-man tour in "221B" (1983). He also recorded readings from the Canon for BBC radio in 1969 and 1976-77.
219. And more news from Britain, reported by Roger Johnson: SHERLOCK HOLMES MEETS ANNIE OAKLEY, a new pastiche by Stanley Shaw (W. H. Allen, £9.95); his SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1901 FIFTH TEST MATCH appeared in 1985. THE TELEVISION SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Peter Haining (W. H. Allen, £14.95, in Aug.); heavily illustrated in color and black-and-white. And THE SHERLOCKIAN, the quarterly journal edited by Kelvin I. Jones, will debut in Aug.
220. Baskerville Holmes, the forward for the Memphis State basketball team, has been drafted. By Milwaukee, in the second round of the NBA draft. For those who tuned in late, it is reported that his mother has liked the 1939 Rathbone film, and saw it again not long before he was born.
221. Reported by Russ Geoffrey: 221B BAKER STREET, another computer adventure game (Atari, Commodore, Apple); $29.95 from Intellicreations, 19808 Nordhoff Place, Chatsworth, CA 91311.

Jul 86 #1:

222. If you've been wondering why PBS-TV hasn't shown reruns of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes", it may be that they paid for only one airing. The series started on USA cable on June 27.
223. Flier at hand for The Silver Blaze at Belmont on Sept. 12. This will be the 35th running of the race, and Dorothy and Tom Stix will be handing over the reins to their successors at the end of the festivities. Details from Thomas L. Stix, Jr., 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
224. "He shows quite remarkable talent in planning the capture of mice, little birds, and insects," Violet Hunter said of Edward Rucastle (Copp). In 1985 Britain issued a set of five stamps honoring the centenary of the Royal Entomological Society of London. Three of the stamps show insects mentioned in the Canon; can you identify the contexts?
225. Add another event to next year's calendar: Sherlockon II, at the Marriott Hotel in Torrance, Calif., on Mar. 13-15, 1987, sponsored by The Blustering Gale(s) from the South-West. Details from Sherlockon II, Box 1226, Lawndale, CA 90260.
226. Rumored: a new publisher for the Solar Pons pastiches by Basil Copper: reissues of the four volumes published by Pinnacle, plus two volumes that died with Pinnacle.
227. TV Guide (July 5) reports on plans for "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" as a TV-movie/pilot on CBS. "It seems that back in the old days, the evil Moriarty tricked Holmes into ingesting bubonic plague bacteria--whereupon Holmes had his companion Dr. Watson freeze and hide him in Watson's country home until a cure could be found. Cut to the present: Watson's American great-granddaughter discovers the detective and thaws him out." This has been in the works since 1981, when it was reported as written and produced by Bob Shane (in consultation with Michael Hodel, Sean Wright, and Nancy Senter) and the Aaron Spelling organization for an ABC-TV movie-of-the-week; later that year the project was suspended when, according to Hodel, Spelling demanded more changes in the second draft than Shayne was prepared to make. And (from a later press report) Kevin Connor ("North and South II") will direct, with shooting to start on July 21, for broadcast next season.
228. "Victorian Pleasures: Food, Fun, and Games" will be the theme of the next conference of the Northeast Victorian Studies Association, on May 1-3, 1987, at Wheaton College in Norton, Mass. Details available from Earl E. Stevens, Dept. of English, Rhode Island College, Providence, RI 02908. They have also issued a call for papers, which should be sent to Prof. Judith Wilt, Dept. of English, Boston College, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167.
229. Forecast: WELCOME TO AMERICA, MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES: ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE'S 1894 LECTURE TOUR, by Christopher Redmond, due this fall from Simon & Pierre (P.O. Box 280, Adelaide Street Postal Station, Toronto, Ont. M5C 2J4, Canada); write to the publisher to enroll on their mailing list.
-
230. Jul 86 #2: Forecast: a series of ten DANGER MOUSE books from Little, Brown and Co. in October, at $3.95 each. They are also offering a life-sized Danger Mouse costume to stores planning in-house appearances and autographings, and posters and badges. The books are a spin-off from the British 10-minute cartoon series, first broadcast in Britain in 1981 and showing here on the Nickelodeon cable channel. "Dangermouse, the world's greatest detective, and his faithful assistant, Penfold, the world's most obvious coward, operate from a letterbox on Baker Street, helping their boss, Colonel K, solves crises that range from exploding custard that is taking over the world to a weather machine run amok."
231. MORE WHO'S WHO ON SESAME STREET (Racine: Western Publishing Co., c1982, 99c) is a new coloring book, with one page devoted to Sherlock Hemlock.

232. Add Tim Pigott-Smith to the short list of actors who have portrayed both Holmes and Watson. He played Holmes in a BBC Radio 4 broadcast of "Vall" on May 24. And he played Watson in the Royal Shakespeare Company's revival of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes". How many others on that short list can you identify?
233. Pause for a moment to consider how many books have been written and published, and how many subjects there might be that have never been dignified by such treatment. However short the list might be, the count is now reduced by one. Encountered in a recent dealer's catalog: THE MUCK MANUAL: FOR THE USE OF FARMERS. A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE CHEMICAL PROPERTIES, MANAGEMENT, AND APPLICATION OF MANURES, by Frederick Falkner (London: John Murray, 1846); a new edition, with a glossary of chemical terms, and an index.
234. SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin Harry Greenberg, and Charles G. Waugh, first published in 1984, is now available in a trade paperback (New York: Bluejay Books, 1985; 355 p., $8.95); a fine anthology of S'ian tales from the fields of fantasy and science fiction.
235. THE YOUNG DETECTIVE'S HANDBOOK, by William Vivian Butler (Boston: Atlantic Monthly Press, 1981; 144 p., $4.95); with S'ian references in text and illustrations.
236. Flier at hand from Mostly Mysteries (225 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ont. M5A 2L2, Canada), offering the original artwork for one of Gus Mager's 1924-25 "Sherlocko" cartoon strips, at $1,500.
237. "PLEASE GIVE THE YARD A CALL, WATSON." presents Gar Donnelson's exploration of the use of the telephone in the Canon. The well-illustration pamphlet (10 p., $2.50 postpaid) is available from its author, at 430 Steinway Road, Lincoln, NE 68505.
238. James C. Cleary's THE BUTLER OF HURLSTONE: A COMPARISON OF SOURCES, first published in the Sept. 1982 issue of Prescott's Press and now expanded and annotated, presents some startling (and occasionally scandalous) discoveries in the personal journals of Richard Brunton (16 p., $4.95 postpaid from the author, at 28 Pengilly Drive, New Rochelle, NY 10804).
-
239. Jul 86 #3: "Sherlock Holmes I read now with the same pleasure as I did then, and am contently finding myself in good company. T. S. Eliot once told me that he thought The Speckled Band one of the great short stories in the English language, and as I recalled to him the classic opening chapters of The Hound of the Baskervilles his slow, his slightly sepulchral, voice completed the quotation: 'Mr. Holmes, they were the footsteps of a gigantic hound.'" From THE PROPERTY BASKET, by Robert Speaight (Collins and Harwill Press, 1970), quoted by Louis Phillips in the summer 1986 issue of The Armchair Detective.
240. The same issue of TAD has "A Conversation with John Gardner" by Joseph E. Bitowf, in which Gardner comments on his Moriarty series. $20.00 a year; 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.
241. William Passen (1955). Donald McDonough (1976). David Pearce (1977). Three Investitured members of The Baker Street Irregulars, without known addresses. Can anyone offer help, or a clue?
242. Nessiteras rhombopteryx, perhaps the most famous of Scotland's tourist attractions, and its counterpart Belua aquatica champlainiensis in Lake Champlain, have been the targets for much research, but it should be noted that there is a Loch Ness Monster, assembled in the loch and abandoned there when it sank during filming of "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" in 1969. "Nessie's Movie Double" is one of the chapters in a new book by Joseph W. Zarzynski, who suggests that "possibly one day Sherlock Holmes devotees in their ever-active quest for Sherlock Holmes memorabilia, may launch an expedition to locate and retrieve Billy Wilder's creation. MONSTER WRECKS OF LOCH NESS AND LAKE CHAMPLAIN (111 p., $9.95 postpaid), is available from M-Z Information, Box 2129, Wilton, NY 12866.
243. "I'm hoping to have one more stab at Holmes," Peter Cushing said in a recent interview. "Now he's very old and tottering around with his bees. But it's a good script. If I can only stagger through Holmes--he never stops talking and moves with such speed. I thought, 'Oh, crikey. Roller skates please, props.'" He's referring to "The Abbot's Cry" (the sequel to the 1984 British television film "The Masks of Death"), and the new film will also have Rex Harrison, Nanette Newman, Patrick McGoohan, and Trevor Howard ("None of us are in the first flush of youth," Cushing noted).
244. According to a newspaper report forwarded by Jerry Margolin, not long after the title of the film "Basil of Baker Street" was changed, "some little imp posted a memo on the Disney animation department's bulletin board, with the department chief's name affixed, announcing the renaming of all the studio's animated classics in the mundane style of the latest film. 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs' became 'Seven Little Men Help a Girl', 'Alice in Wonderland' became 'The Girl in the Imaginary World', and 'The Wooden Boy Who Became Real' was the improved version of, well you get the idea. Studio execs were not amused, but then studio execs are the kind of people who come up with titles like 'The Great Mouse Detective'."
245. Chris Redmond (125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada) has extra copies of several issues of BAKER STREET PAGES (D4187a and D4188a), 50c each or offered in trade; if your run is incomplete, write to him.
-
246. Jul 86 #4: "I'm going on the premise that he is not the Sherlock Holmes, but almost an identical personality in today's world, only instead of sparks of intuition he uses scientific means to solve his cases." That's Richard Matheson's description of "The Evidence Never Lies", a TV pilot for Lorimar about the work of Prof. Leon MacDonald, "the country's greatest criminalist."
247. The "Mystery Classics" series of Hear-a-Book audio cassettes includes 35 of the tales, read with enthusiasm and style by Hugh A. Rose or Leonard Sloane. The cassettes cost $4.95 (no shipping charge for readers of the BSJ), and a list of titles is available from Westlake House, 31220 LaBaya Drive #110, Westlake, CA 91362.
248. There's a press report that a distributor is "dusting off" the 1954 Ronald Howard series, pasting the episodes into TV movies for next season.
249. Credit Rich Koelle for discovering the accompanying article in the Philadelphia Inquirer. And credit Jack Koelle for identifying the Canonical connection, quoting the London Standard (in Sign): "The prompt and energetic action of the officers of the law shows the great advantage on such occasions of a single vigorous and masterful mind."
250. More news on the grand gourmet S'ian dinner at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987. Rooms at the Beekman Arms (914-876-7077) are being filled quickly. The dinner will be black tie, and the price $50.00 a person. Checks payable to Albert M. Rosenblatt, whose address is Box 221B, Pleasant Valley, NY 12569.
251. Reported by Ron De Waal: "The Adventure of the Mnemonic Norwegian" by Robert W. Hahn, in Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine, Sept. 1986. "Mickey Mouse and the Seven Ghosts" in Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse #219 (Oct.) and #220 (Nov. 1986). THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with an afterword by Frederick Busch (New York: New American Library, 1986; 251 p.); Signet Classic paperback.
252. ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S A MYSTERY BY THE TALE (anthology #22, fall 1986, $3.50) has a reprint of Penelope Wallace's "The World According to Uncle Albert". The story begins, "My uncle was mad about Sherlock Holmes," and continues, "I'd once pointed out to him that there were other crime writers. It was like telling a religious bigot that there were other churches."

253. Flier at hand for "Autumn in Baker Street" at Bear Mountain on Oct. 11-12. Philip Brogdon will be one of the speakers, lecturing on "A Look at Black Detectives, with an Emphasis on Practitioners of the Sherlockian-Deductive Method, Including a Look at Individual Detectives Who Are Prohibited from Using the Sherlockian Method, Either Because of Personality Conflict or for Other Reasons." Write to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
-
254. Jul 86 #5: More on the new version of the 1954 "Sherlock Holmes" series with Ronald Howard, reported by Marsha Pollak from an ad in Variety: "a major host will recreate the spirit of Baker Street" and the series will be re-released, partly in color, in 90-minute and two-hour formats, in the fall of 1987. Whitehall Productions, Ltd., distributed by R. T. Donnelly Enterprises, 21588 Rambla Vista Drive, Malibu, CA 90265.
255. Marsha also spotted an item about Rupert Holmes, who wrote the music and script for the musical "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" (which won five Tony awards). Rupert Holmes is really David Goldstein, "a man who loves to drink Rupert Knickerbocker beer and an avid fan of ace sleuth Sherlock Holmes," according to the Dallas Times Herald (June 3, 1986).
256. "You mean these Baker Street societies and all that. Grown men being silly. I can't say that I've had time to read any of the stories. When I do get time for reading, which isn't often, I prefer an improving book."
257. That's the reply of Miss Lemon, secretary to Hercule Poirot in HICKORY DICKORY DOCK, when asked if she is acquainted with THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. And that, in turn, is from "Some Canonical Traces in the Detective Works of Agatha Christie", by David McGowan, in the summer 1986 issue of The Sherlock Holmes Journal, which also contains Jessica McMahon's interview with Edward Hardwicke, Jeremy Brett's new Watson.
258. Fantomas, described by his latest publisher as a character so sinister that he makes Professor Moriarty look like a common shoplifter, created a sensation when he first appeared in France in 1911, launching a series of sequels and films that were highly popular and that are now almost totally unknown. An English translation of FANTOMAS, the first of the series written by Marcel Allain and Pierre Souvestre, has been reprinted (New York: William Morrow and Co., 1986; 324 p., $17.95), offering an introduction to one of the true criminals in literature. There is nothing S'ian about the book (Inspector Juve is intelligent and tenacious, but Fantomas always escapes), but the novel is a stylish presentation of a long-forgotten era.
259. "The Great Mouse Detective" is an enjoyable film -- favorable reviews so far from the N.Y. Times and the Washington Post, as well as from a few smaller papers -- and it ranked #9 on the Associated Press list of the ten top-grossing films for the weekend of July 4-6 with an estimated gross of $3.2 million, and #10 for the weekend of July 11-13, with an estimated gross of $3.4 million. For comparison, "Karate Kid Part II" was #1 both weekends with grosses of $6.3 and $6.7 million. For the weekend of July 18-20, "Aliens" led the list, with a gross of $10.0 million, and "The Great Mouse Detective" didn't make the top ten.
260. Tyke Niver reports that the Military Collectors Guild (906 South Main Street, St. Charles, MO 63301) offers a number of items for Canonical militarists, including John S. Farmer's THE REGIMENTAL RECORDS OF THE BRITISH ARMY ($18.95) and a regimental badge for the Fifth Northumberland Fusiliers ($15.00). And J. Blades & Co. (Box 503, Carmel-by-the-Sea, CA 93921) offers a good selection of regimental neckties (not to be worn when traveling in the British Isles, of course, as "we would not want to be responsible for any unsuspecting American being branded a bounder and a cad by an outraged, but otherwise civil, Briton").
-
261. Jul 86 #6: The Hounds of the Baskerville (sic) have confirmed some of their plans for the commemoration of the Vincent Starrett centennial: an exhibit of Starrett books and papers at the Cultural Center of the Chicago Public Library in October, with reading from Starrett's works on the afternoon of Oct. 24; a symposium on Starrett as writer, newspaperman, and Sherlockian, at the Newberry Library on the afternoon of Oct. 25; and a dedication of a memorial to Starrett at Graceland Cemetery on Oct. 26. Contact: Robert J. Mangler, 103 Broadway, Wilmette, IL 60091.
262. The answer to the philatelic challenge: "I, my old housekeeper, and my bees have the estate all to ourselves," Holmes wrote (Lion). The bufftailed bumble bee (Bombus terrestris), one of Britain's commonest bumble bees, undoubtedly was one of the inhabitants of Holmes' retirement estate in Sussex; the Canon also includes mention of bee-farming (Seco) and bee culture (Last), but these are, perhaps, more likely to refer to honey bees than to bumble bees. Britain's largest beetle, the stag beetle (Lucanus cervus), is a prime target for collectors; "He was pinned like a beetle on a card," was Stanley Hopkins' description of Peter Carey (Blac). And old Sherman said of his slow-worm that "It keeps the beetles down." (Sign) With two different references to beetles in the recorded cases, it is of course appropriate that there are two different beetles in the set; the seven-spotted lady bird (Coccinella septempunctata) is also a beetle.
263. And another philatelic item: The British film industry was honored with a set of five stamps issued in 1985, and two of the stamps show actors who not only appeared in S'ian plays, but also may have played the same part.
264. Charles Chaplin, shown in a photograph by Lord Snowden, was Billy in touring productions of William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" from 1903 to 1906, and with Gillette himself in "The Painful Predicament of Sherlock Holmes" in London in 1905. David Niven, photographed by Cornel Lucas, is far less famous as a S'ian actor, but he wrote in his autobiography THE MOON IS A BALLOON (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1972) that during his final term at Sandhurst he "found time to produce a couple of concerts and to play the juvenile lead in The Speckled Band."
265. THE HOUNDS OF THE VATICAN; OR, HOLMES'S LAST BOW, by G. Randolph Holms (New York: Vantage Press, 1986; 130 p., $10.95) reveals what the world's greatest consulting detective has been doing since he solved the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Edmund Aubrey's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN DALLAS; the story involves malevolent Freemasonry, echoes of the film "Murder by Decree", a conspiracy against both church and state, and the eventual destruction of world order. G. Randolph Holms is a pseudonym, concealing the identities of three "international merchant bankers" who use an Elizabethan (II, not I) Holmes to present their own views on the catastrophe which civilization now faces.
266. Reported: SHERLOCK'S LOGIC, by William Neblett (University Press of America, 1986; 290 p., $26.50 cloth, $11.25 paper); SH's grandson attempts to solve a murder mystery in the first third of the book, with the rest devoted to an exposition of elementary logic.
-
267. Aug 86 #1: Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse (and three other Disney comic book titles) are now issued by Gladstone Publishing (Box 2206, Scottsdale, AZ 85252); I've been told that Gold Key went bankrupt, causing a six-year drought that has only now ended. "Mickey Mouse and the Seven Ghosts" is in Mickey Mouse #219 (Oct.), #220 (Nov.), and #221 (Dec.). The story is a rerun of the daily strips that began on Aug. 7, 1936; Mickey, Goofy, and Donald are the Acme Detective Agency, with Goofy deerstalkered and calabashed.
268. THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with an Afterword by Frederick Busch (New York: New American Library, 1986; 251 p., $2.25); Signet Classic edition of "the only full-length Holmes novel," according to the back-jacket blurb.
269. Reported: "Sherlock Holmes Meets Dracula" (a new comedy with Tony Randall as Holmes and Sid Caesar as the Count) is now being filmed on location in Transylvania.
270. The second annual Sherlock Holmes dinner at the Dickens Inn in Philadelphia will be held on Sept. 21, 1986. Details available from Gideon D. Hill, 1810 South Rittenhouse Square #207, Philadelphia, PA 19103.

271. And another report on "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" planned for CBS-TV: Sherlock Holmes (frozen and revived) will be played by British stage star Michael Pennington, and Jane Watson by Margaret Collins (who was on "Foley Square").
272. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck. The Granada series "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" will be broadcast by PBS on "Mystery!" beginning on Feb. 5, 1987. And Paramount has released a videocassette ($24.95) of the 1970 film "The Molly Maguires" (non-Sherlockian, but of course with strong echoes of "The Valley of Fear").
273. John E. Stephenson reports that the Holmes and Watson ceramic thimbles, made by Francesca China and imported by Heirloom Editions, are available from Sherlock's Home, 5614 East Second Street, Long Beach, CA 90803; $22.98 each or $42.00 for the pair, plus $1.75 shipping.
274. ADVENTURING IN ENGLAND WITH DOCTOR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: ENCOUNTERS WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, DISCIPLES AND MEDICINE, by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key (Beavercreek: KeyRod Literary Enterprises, 1986; 121 p., $13.50 postpaid from the publisher, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385); a journal of Rodin's second trip to England, furthering his crusade to rescue Conan Doyle's medical reputation from the widely-held belief that he was a failed physician who turned to literature.
275. Advertised: THE RED-HEADED LEAGUE, with illustrations by Sidney Paget, the second in a series of miniature editions from The Press of Arden Park (861 Los Molinos Way, Sacramento, CA 95864); $35.00. A SCANDAL IN BOHEMIA, issued in 1984, was nicely done.
276. Reported: Basil Rathbone's autobiography IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER (D5092a), reprinted by Buccaneer Books (Box 168, Cutchogue, NY 11935); price not known.
-
277. Aug 86 #2: "Holmes is still a master at deduction, but he has yet to master the culture and technology of the 1980s," according to a CBS-TV press release forwarded by Ted Schulz. "Holmes is thrown by (and sometimes into) everything from swimming pools to airplanes to disposable." That's "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," again, and don't ask what it is that's supposed to be disposable. The film-for-TV stars Michael Pennington and Margaret Colin, supported by Lila Kaye, Barry Morse, and Connie Booth. Connie Booth played Mrs. Hudson and Francine Moriarty in "The Strange Case of the End of Civilisation as We Know It" (1977), and Barry Morse played Holmes on the Canadian television program "Magic Shadows" (1975).
278. Bill Barton reports that his role-playing game CTHULHU BY GASLIGHT has been published by Chaosium Inc. (Box 6302, Albany, CA 94706; $22.00 postpaid), and that it has a scenario "The Yorkshire Horrors" that is based on Baring-Gould's suggestion that Holmes was involved in a case there in 1896.
279. BRIGADE: FURTHER ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, by M. J. Trow (London: Macmillan, 1986; 219 p., £8.50); a sequel to THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1985, with an American edition as THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE). The basic premise is that Lestrade was much maligned in the Canon, and he once again demonstrates his expertise at detection, disguise, and amorous dalliance; the humor is broad and occasionally slapstick, with a cast of cameo characters that extends from Kaiser Wilhelm to an infant Basil Rathbone.
280. Television viewers may remember a 1985 "60 Minutes" report on BBC Radio, and mention of the fact that one of the buildings occupied by the BBC is the old Langham Hotel ("where Sherlock Holmes once met Moriarty," according to Morley Safer). Roger Johnson now cites a report in the London Standard that the BBC, having failed to demolish the Langham Hotel, is now preparing to sell that venerable edifice. There are three mentions of the Langham in the Canon, and you can look them up in Tracy's ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA.
281. The latest news from Rhinebeck is that the Beekman Arms is now fully booked for the weekend of May 16, 1987. Other motels and inns in Rhinebeck and Hyde Park are listed in the flier that will be mailed to those who send in reservations for the C.I.A. dinner (black tie, $50.00 a person, checks to Albert M. Rosenblatt, Box 221B, Pleasant Valley, NY 12569). Al judiciously warns that the dinner will surely be over-subscribed, and that reservations will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. He also recommends a re-reading of A STUDY IN SCARLET, and reports that an excellent description of the Third Quinquennial Sherlock Holmes Alimentary Festival will be found in Beverly Wolov's review in the Sept. 1982 issue of the BSJ.
282. Albert and Julia Rosenblatt's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CROSSWORD (reviewed BSJ, Mar. 1986) is not, as I had heard, out of print; copies in wrappers are still available at $4.00 (from the Norwegian Explorers, 1473 Fulham Street, Saint Paul, MN 55108), and it's a fine book.
283. The Arion Press $300 limited edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (reviewed BSJ, Dec. 1985) has been reprinted in a trade edition at $16.50. The new edition is a smaller book (reduced about 20%), and the publisher is North Point Press, 850 Talbot Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94706.
-
284. Aug 86 #3: "My God!" cried John Nieminski, "What a blind beetle I have been!" And so did Hall Pycroft (Stoc), adding a third beetle reference to last month's list. John also wonders if David Niven played some other part in "The Speckled Band" than Billy, who, certainly a juvenile, and a lead of sorts, was surely too young for even a young Niven. John suggests that the play might have been adapted from ACD's version, with Niven playing the cheetah or the baboon, in roles beefed up for the occasion. Perhaps, but there's another possibility: Niven in drag in the role of Enid Stonor, given the exclusion of the fair sex from the ranks at Sandhurst. After all, there's a precedent, what with Holmes appearing in drag in "The Mazarin Stone".
285. And on to this month's philatelic item: a portrait (by A. Ramsey) of George III, King of Great Britain and Ireland (1760-1820), issued this year in the Australian Bicentennial series. It was Holmes who said (Nobl) that "I am one of those who believe that the folly of a monarch and the blundering of a minister in far-gone years will not prevent our children from being some day citizens of the same world-wide country under a flag which shall be a quartering of the Union Jack with the Stars and Stripes." The monarch was George III. I don't know of a stamp honoring the blundering minister.
286. The [Lowell, Mass.] Sunday Sun has been running the comic strip "Walt Disney's Treasury of Classic Tales: The Great Mouse Detective" and by July 13 (the first strip I've seen), Ratigan was making his balcony appearance with the robot Queen.
287. Chris Caswell, who is Sherlock's Home (5614 East 2nd Street, Long Beach, CA 90803) confirms that he stocks the Holmes & Watson thimbles (Aug 86 #1), as well as S'ian chess sets, and reports that he is expecting a shipment of S'ian spoons and pipe-holders. Write for his catalog.
288. And back to the world of comic books. Cases of Sherlock Holmes #2 (July 1986) has "Danc" illustrated by Dan Day (who provides barely veiled but firm buttocks on Elsie Cubitt); the next issue will have a pastiche (The Vourdalak) by Gordon Derry. The Bozz Chronicles #1 was marginally S'ian, and non-S'ian in #2-5. If your home town is sufficiently civilized to have a shop specializing in comic books, I recommend a visit, if only to browse titles such as "Boris the Bear Slaughters the Teenage Radioactive Black Belt Mutant Ninja Critters".
289. Seen in a discount bookstore: A STUDY IN SCARLET: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERY (adapted by Nigel Flynn) and THE SIGN OF FOUR: A SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERY (adapted by Richard Widdows), with illustrations from the Burbank Films (Peter O'Toole as the voice of Holmes) animations (New York: Gallery Books, 1985; 56 p., $3.98 each). There were four animations, so "Houn" and "Vall" may be along eventually.
290. Also discounted (at $2.98): THE LUNATIC FRINGE, by William L. DeAndrea (New York: M. Evans and Co., 1980); a well-written mystery, with one minor reference to the Canon.
-
291. Aug 86 #4: Copies of THE FOURTH CAB (D887b) and THE BEST OF THE CABS (a 1980 selection from the three earlier anthologies) are still available ($7.50 each postpaid) from J. Devereux deGozzaldi, 79 Frankland Road, Hopkinton, MA 01748; both books contain fine contributions by members of The Speckled Band of Boston.

292. Lenny Picker reports that Frank Langella wants Denholm Elliott as Watson in this fall's Broadway production of "Sherlock's Last Case". "Now on-screen with 'A Room with a View'" (according to the newspaper item), Elliott was Stapleton in the 1978 Cooke-Moore film "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and Dr. Mortimer in the 1983 Richardson-Churchill TV film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles".
293. Nominations have been announced for the Bouchercon XVII "Anthony" awards, with "Young Sherlock Holmes" one of five candidates for "best movie" -- the others are "Blood Simple", "Fletch", "Jagged Edge", and "Witness". There is a new address for Bouchercon XVII (The Butler Did It, 2020 North Charles Street, Baltimore, MD 21218) and the convention is Oct. 10-12.
294. Reported: references to ACD, SH, and the Hound in Ray Bradury's new novel MURDER IS A LONELY BUSINESS (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, $15.95).
295. Stanley MacKenzie (64 Bassett Road, London, W.10, England) has celebrated the centenary of the publication of the first Sherlock Holmes story with a splendid commemorative postcard that shows D. H. Friston's frontispiece, a photograph of ACD, and (in full and glorious color) the cover of Beeton's Christmas Annual; the cost of the cards (postpaid by surface mail) is $6.00 for ten, $48.00 for 100, and $84.00 for 200.
296. Aug 86 #5: There is very little published information on The Sherlock Holmes Society (the predecessor of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London), one interesting exception being Maurice Campbell's address to the SHSOL on Jan. 5, 1967, which was reprinted in the SHJ (D4528a). The SHS held its first dinner on June 6, 1934, and Dick Sheppard, then a Canon of St. Paul's was elected President. "He was chosen because of his services in persuading Conan Doyle to resume the publication of Holmes' Adventures on an I Zingari cricket tour. The persuasion, I was told, took the form of sitting on Doyle as he lay on a sofa after lunch until the promise had been given."
297. "To test a trivial theory that none of the many millions who bought, borrowed, or otherwise acquired the number-one international best-seller of the early eighties had ever actually read it in its entirety, I spoke with some people to whom that book is presumably dearest--namely, those who were spending $20 million to film it." That's the lead in Robert Katz's article in American Film, Sept. 1986, on "The Name of the Rose" -- although Katz, who was on location in Italy when the monastery was torched, didn't get to interview too many of the people working on the film.
298. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: SAM THE DETECTIVE AND THE ALEF BET MYSTERY, a beginning Hebrew reader written and illustrated by Amye Rosenberg (New York: Behrman House, 1980); with Sam being a Sherlockian bear.
299. A helpful reader has supplied leads for two of the three "missing" members of the BSI, but I'm still trying to find William Passen (1955). I also need leads for Terry Belanger (1968), Berth Lindfors (1968), Russell L. Merritt (1960), and Peter A. Ruber (1964), who aren't where we thought they were. Please let me know if you have any helpful hints.
300. Andy Peck has sent an item from the May 1986 issue of Manhattan Inc., with a report on Michael King of King World (the television syndicators, who distribute "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy!"). "We bought the Basil Rathbone Sherlock Holmes movies and 'The Guns of Will Sonnet' and 'Branded' for $5 million from Leo Gutman," King told the interviewer.
301. Bret Harte, author of the parody "The Stolen Cigar Case" (D5920a), will be honored on the $5.00 stamp to be issued in 1987 in the Great Americans Series. William D. Jenkins has discussed some Canonical echoes of Harte's work (D2583a).
302. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE BOOK OF THE SLEUTH: FOURTEEN CLASSIC TALES OF MYSTERY & SUSPENSE, edited by Alan K. Russell (Poole: New Orchards, 1986; 380 p., $7.98 at Waldenbooks); contents include "Spec" and "Prio". And four "Basil of Baker Street" items (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1986): DISNEY'S THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE (Golden Look-Look Books, 24 p., $1.50); DTGMD: BASIL'S GREAT ESCAPES (Golden Look-Look Book, 24 p., $1.50); DTGMD: A COLOR AND ACTIVITY BOOK (Golden Book, 60 p., $0.99); DTGMD: A COLORING BOOK (Golden Book, 60 p., $0.99).
303. Can anyone supply a mailing address for Different Worlds Magazine? I've had a report that the July-Aug. 1986 issue has an article on Solar Pons, and the Library of Congress doesn't have an address for the magazine.
304. Aug 86 #6: Oh to be in England, now that April's here . . . if it's April 1911, when the Strand published an interesting advertisement:
-
305. Sep 86 #1: It's a rising market for Conan Doyle manuscripts. "The autograph of Conan Doyle's uncollected story 'A Regimental Scandal' just made its lower estimate of £4,000 to a private buyer," according to a press report on an auction at Christie's on May 29. You can read the story in UNCOLLECTED STORIES, the collection edited by John Michael Gibson and Richard Lancelyn Green.
306. Reported by James O. Duval: THE DELL BOOK OF QUIZZES AND PUZZLES FOR LITERATURE LOVERS: CROSSWORDS, NAME GAMES, QUIZZES, AND WORD SEARCH PUZZLES TO CHALLENGE AND DELIGHT ADMIRERS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, THE BRONTE SISTERS, SHERLOCK HOLMES AND JANE AUSTEN, by Maggie Lane and Nigel Bartlett (Dell, 1986, $6.95), with a S'ian section by Bartlett.
307. If you've never been to the New York bookshop Murder Ink, you can see Carol Brener (and her cat Clouseau) on the cover of the Nov. 1986 issue of EQMM.
308. "Lite Reading" is the head on the N.Y. Times comments on a Workman cassette tape that will dispense "Ten Classics in Ten Minutes" -- and the Times has responded by offering a whole library in one minute. One of the books in their library is THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, summarized by the Times as: "Dog scares heir, heir hires Holmes, detective meets dog, heir spared, Watson tells all, o'er moor and fen." (And that's considerably longer than their summary of Toynbee's THE STUDY OF HISTORY: "What rises, falls.")
309. T. S. Eliot's enthusiasm for Sherlock Holmes is well known (see Jul 86 #3) (and BSI, Sept. 1985, p. 188, and the many items bibliographed by Ron De Waal); he was honored by this year's "literary arts" commemorative, issued on Sept. 26.
310. Granada's "Return of Sherlock Holmes" was widely reviewed in the British press, with reports of plans for a fourth series to be filmed in 1987, with six more stories (for a total of 26). Brett's feelings toward Holmes have changed, according to one interview: "He used to complain that the role was turning him into a recluse, but these days, to his surprise, he enjoys playing him." "I now want to do all the stories," Brett said, "there are 34 more! I couldn't have imagined that a year ago." In another interview Brett explained that the series "has proved so popular in America that Sherlock Holmes societies have been formed." "I went to a convention in the U.S. and was the only one dressed normally," he added, "all the men and women were wearing deerstalkers and smoking pipes. It is a great cult over there."
311. "William Gillette: A Connecticut Yankee and the American Stage" was shown to The Red Circle on Aug. 29, and it's a splendid production. The 30-minute documentary includes an appreciative narration, a long interview with Helen Hayes, an impersonation of the actor (by Garrett Walters), and Gillette himself (in the Fox Movietone interview filmed at Seventh Sister). Available on videocassette ($50.00 postpaid) from Connecticut Heritage Productions, 46 Bretton Road, Middletown, CT 06457.
312. Reported: Sherlock Hemlock in "The Mysterious Stranger" in THE SESAME STREET TREASURY, VOLUME 2, in supermarkets and such.
-
313. Sep 86 #2: The SHSOL Christmas card (see BSI, Sept. 1986, p. 189 for the photograph of the Brixton Road) will cost $7.00 for a packet of ten, postpaid by airmail; checks (payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London) can be sent to Capt. W. R. Michell, The Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset TA13 5JX, England.

314. Bill Goodrich has supplied a swarm of beetles to add to the three noted earlier: "what a blind beetle I have been" (Prio), "I was such a blind beetle" (Card), the "beetle-ridden, mouldy old coffin of a Chin China coaster" (Glor), a "beetling crag" (Stud), and a "beetling forehead" (Houn). Bill's "reference guide" to the 1960 Doubleday edition of the Canon (revised from the earlier appearance in BSM #1-24) will be published by Gasogene Press.
315. GREENWICH KILLING TIME, by Kinky Friedman (New York: William Morrow/Beech Tree Books, 1986; 196 p., $13.95); a new murder mystery, with a number of minor S'ian allusions.
316. Forecast: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY, a pastiche by L. B. Greenwood, from Atheneum in Nov. (192 p., $12.95). POTBOILERS: THREE BLACK COMEDIES (including SHERLOCK'S LAST CASE, by Charles Marowitz), from Marion Boyars Publishers in Sept. (192 p, $18.00 cloth, $9.95 paper).
317. ELEMENTARY, MY DEAR WATSON: THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CENTENARY, by Graham Nown, from Salem House in Dec. ($19.95). THE HISTORICAL ROMANCES, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, a two-volume set from New Orchard/Sterling, on the discount tables.
318. A new (and revised) Crows Foot Edition of THE ADVENTURE OF THE SOLEDAD CYCLIST (D5162b) been published by John Ruyle (Pequod Press, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707); $28.50 (cloth) or $13.50 (paper).
319. The Canon is now widely available in Britain, and in a variety of formats. World International Publishing has issued six of the stories (BOSC, FIVE, COPP, REDH, SPEC, and SILV) in individual volumes with attractive covers and appropriate interior illustrations, priced at 75p each.
320. Lenny Picker reports that he was told by a Lorimar Pictures executive that the Peter Cushing TV film "The Masks of Death" will be broadcast here before the end of the year.
321. THE MYTHOLOGY OF THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, by Kelvin I. Jones, first published in the Sept. 1982 issue of Wheelwrightings, has been reissued as a separate 12-pp. pamphlet ($5.50 postpaid from the author, 18 Ross Street, Rochester, Kent. ME1 2DF, England). Kelvin's plans for a continuation of the series include THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE HOUND and THE PSYCHOLOGY OF THE HOUND. He is also editing the magazine THE SHERLOCKIAN, with the first issue announced for October.
322. And here's a bibliographic discovery: P. J. Pirages (Box 504, McMinnville, OR 97128) offers the first 48 numbers of The Strand Magazine, in single issues (for $3,500). One number marked "Special Reprint", two others "Second Edition", and one "Third Edition". I have never seen a copy of the Strand with such markings.
-
323. Sep 86 #3: "Many of the skills portrayed by the fictional character Sherlock Holmes and the skills used by the early American scouts and trappers can be developed by the modern investigator," Colorado private investigator Nelson K. Jennett told more than 100 delegates from 17 countries at the 61st annual convention of the World Association of Detectives this month in Singapore. He recommended "reading the scene as Sherlock Holmes would, being on the lookout for the small traces of physical evidence which were overlooked by the criminal and often overlooked even by the seasoned investigators."
324. The 35th running of The Silver Blaze, at Belmont on Sept. 12, was a fine occasion, with record attendance (more than 80). Richard A. Wein received an Investiture ("Silver Blaze") from Julian Wolff, and Dorothy Stix received a Queen Victoria medal from Julian in recognition of all the work she has done in making arrangements for the race. Stephen L. Stix and Richard A. Wein will be in charge of The Silver Blaze in future years.
325. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASQUERADE MURDERS, by Frank Thomas (Los Angeles: Medallion Books, 1986; 250 p., $2.95); murder and financial chicanery, investigated by an energetic Holmes and a sharp-shooting Watson.
326. The seven stories in Granada's new series "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" are: Empt, Prio, Seco, Musg, Abbe, Twis, and SixN. At least five of the stories have been broadcast in Canada; I've seen some of them, and the high quality of the series continues. Edward Hardwicke is fine as Watson, though I think David Burke was a bit better (a stronger actor); on the other hand, Hardwicke didn't have all that much to do on the programs I've seen so far. Granada, having already announced plans to do a fourth series with six more stories, now hopes to start filming in October on a two-hour version of "The Sign of Four".
327. "Clue: Movies, Murder, and Mystery!" was a one-hour special on CBS-TV on Sept. 17, with a number of S'ian bits and pieces, but there wasn't anything special about this uninspired collage of clips, stills, and dull comment by Martin Mull. But the "Read More About It" public service announcement that followed the program did have Mickey Spillane recommending THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF MYSTERY & DETECTION, by Chris Steinbrunner and Otto Penzler.
328. If anyone encounters The Crowborough Edition with the signed limitation page missing from Vol. 1, the page was recently offered for $100 by Tollett and Harman (175 West 75th Street, New York, NY 10023). God help us. It's bad enough when someone removes a signature or inscription from a book in order to paste it into an autograph album, but some sort of special torment should be reserved for anyone responsible for felony libricide.
329. Older items reported by John Bennett Shaw: THE FIRESIDE BOOK OF CARDS, edited by Jacoby and Morehead (New York: Simon and Schuster, 1957), with the text of "Empt" in the section on whist. A SECOND COMPANION TO MURDER, by Spencer Shaw (New York: Knopf, 1962), with a chapter on Oscar Slater and several pages on Conan Doyle.
330. "Young Sherlock Holmes" has been issued on videocassette by Paramount Home Video ($79.95).
-
331. Sep 86 #4: An 8-page "Profile: Arthur Conan Doyle" by Mike Ashley, and ACD's "Lot No. 249" are in the winter 1986 issue of Night Cry (Montcalm Publishing Co., 800 Second Avenue, New York, NY 10017; $2.95).
332. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE VICTORIAN SHORT STORY: DEVELOPMENT AND TRIUMPH OF A LITERARY GENRE, by Harold Orel (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1986; 213 p., $29.95); with 3 pages on the SH stories and a Paget illo.
333. MANNEN PA KLIPPAN, by H. Paul Jeffers (Hoganas: Bra Deckare, 1986; 230 p.); a Swedish translation of MURDER MOST IRREGULAR.
334. THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Michael Hardwick (London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1986; 255 p., £12.95); similar in approach to Hardwick's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COMPANION, but with greater emphasis upon the stories (and a better introduction to the Canon). Forecast by St. Martin's Press in 1987.
335. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES LETTERS, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (London: Secker & Warburg, 1986; 266 p, £14.95); a spectacular collection, beginning with the 1887 reviews of A STUDY IN SCARLET and continuing with a fine selection of letters, articles, and comment published in newspapers and magazines, and with the usual perceptive commentary by Green. Forecast by the University of Iowa Press in 1987.
336. The Six Napoleons have published the first issue of THE PLUM IN THE PUDDING (the scion's 40th anniversary seemed a decent occasion on which to publish a magazine), edited by Stephen J. Cribari (Mercantile Bank Building #612, 2 Hopkins Plaza, Baltimore, MD 21201); well designed and typeset, with three good articles; $3.00 postpaid (or $5.00 a year for at least two issues).

337. There's still time to take advantage of "a unique opportunity in the heart of London's West End" (according to an advertisement in the Wall Street Journal on Sept. 12), purchase of "an island site of 1.65 acres to include the former Langham Hotel" (Aug 86 #2). The offer is freehold, for sale by tender, and the closing date is Nov. 28. Contact Richard Ellis, Berkeley Square House, London W1X 6AN, England.
338. "The Name of the Rose" is off and running, in limited distribution. The good news: it's an enjoyable film, with splendid atmosphere and fine acting by Sean Connery and Christian Slater (in the Holmes and Watson roles). The bad news: there have been many deletions (after all, the film is only two hours and fifteen minutes long), and a few changes, and all those who have been hoping that seeing the movie would allow them to pretend to have read the book, won't be able to get by with that subterfuge. Reported to have cost $20 million, the film will not, I think, be a box office success; they have kept all the sex (but of course there wasn't much of that in the book) and they have left out a lot of the violence. They have also left out some of the Sherlockian material.
339. Reviews so far have been luke-warm, with each reviewer finding something to praise as well as something to complain about. "As always, Connery makes a decent detective," wrote Rita Kemply in her review in the Washington Post, "but he lacks the eccentric authority of a Basil Rathbone or Sidney Toler's mystical Charlie Chan. Forgive me father, but I don't care who dunit."
-
340. Oct 86 #1: THE BUTLER DID IT, SINGING is a two-act "musical spoof" based on Tim Kelly's 1977 play "THE BUTLER DID IT" (D4453b), with book by Tim Kelly, music by Arne Christiansen, and lyrics by Ole Kittleson; the musical retains the character Peter Flimsey ("he's in the Sherlock Holmes school), but it's a fringe item. Baker's Plays, 100 Chauncy Street, Boston, MA 02111; $4.05 postpaid.
341. THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE: A MEMOIR OF SHERLOCK HOLMES FROM THE PAPERS OF EDWARD PORTER JONES, HIS LATE ASSISTANT, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr., paragraphed earlier (May 86 #2) includes a statement that: "The characters of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. John Watson are based on the creations of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Obviously, this book was not written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Further, it has not been sponsored or authorized by the estate or heirs of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle or by any person or company licensed by them." The book was scheduled for publication on June 30, but was delayed until last month, when an apologetic advertisement was published in the Sept. 5 issue of Publishers Weekly.
342. Reported: BASIL OF BAKER STREET, by Eve Titus (Pocket Books/Archway, $2.50); a movie tie-in with Disney artwork on the cover. THE FOURTH MAD DECLASSIFIED PAPERS ON SPY VS. SPY, by Prohias (Warner); with a S'ian panel in "The Model Detective".
343. 221 "A" Baker Street Associates (Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035) has announced a two-record set with two of the 1945 Rathbone radio broadcasts ("The Unfortunate Tobacconist" and "The Paradol Chamber") at $27.50 postpaid (with a $2.50 rebate to members of Sherlockian societies after Mar. 15, 1987, if you order before that date). There has been a mailing to scions, and you can write to the company for more information.
344. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: THE SESAME STREET TREASURY in supermarkets, with Sherlock Hemlock in Vol. II, and on the endpapers in all volumes. Sherlock Hemlock also in Sesame Street Magazine, Oct. 1986.
345. It has taken much longer than I thought it would, but the personal-computer world now has a calendar program that is useful to Sherlockians. There are many programs around that will tell you the day of the week for any date in the 20th century, but they won't work for the 19th century because the programmers couldn't quite handle the fact that 1900 wasn't a leap year. Now there is POP-CAL, an elegant little pop-up calendar that will handle everything from Jan. 1583 to Dec. 9999. The program was published in PC Magazine (Oct. 14), and can be downloaded from PC-IRS (212-696-0360).
346. My thanks to those who have sent addresses or leads for those missing members of the BSI -- and the list of those who are still missing is now much shorter: Bernth Lindfors (1968), William Passen (1955), and Peter A. Ruber (1964).
-
347. Oct 86 #2: Reported by Jackie Geyer: the (British) Catalpa Press series by Rodney Engen on "The Artist and the Critic" includes RICHARD DOYLE as its second title, with more than 150 illustrations (including some in color); "attention is given to his relationship with the rest of his gifted artistic family, including his nephew, Arthur Conan Doyle," according to the flier from Books of Wonder (132 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10011), and the book costs $49.95.
348. Gideon Hill reports that animation cels from "The Great Mouse Detective" are available ($185.00 each) from Pam Martin (Cel-ebration, 45 Salem Lane, Little Silver, NJ 07739). And that there was a six-part "With Crime in Mind" series in the British Medical Journal in 1980 on six crime writers who use medical details in their stories, with occasional S'ian references; photocopies available from Gideon (1810 South Rittenhouse Square #207, Philadelphia, PA 19103) in return for a 66c SASE.
349. Playhouse Video (part of CBS/Fox) has issued videocassettes of Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" at $29.98. The films have long been available from other companies, but since these are Fox issues they have presumably been struck from the master negatives or prints (which is not necessarily the case with cassettes from other companies).
350. For those who collect non-S'ian books that use the titles of SH stories, there's THE DANCING MEN, by Duncan Kyle (New York: Holt, 1986; 256 p., $16.95); it's a political thriller. Can anyone name another book in this category? In the "close, but no cigar" category, there are THE CRIMSON CIRCLE, by Edgar Wallace (1922); THE SCARLET CIRCLE, by Jonathan Stagge (1943); WISTERIA COTTAGE, by Robert M. Coates (1948); COPPER BEECH, by Ariadne Thompson; and THE DANCING MAN, by P. M. Hubbard (1971).
351. Forecast: THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by William S. Baring-Gould (from Clarkson N. Potter in Dec., one vol. in a slipcase, $55.00).
352. The 1987 birthday festivities will include a reception on Saturday, Jan. 10, from 3:00 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue. The reception will be open to all Sherlockians and their friends, and will honor Julian and Eleanor Wolff. Open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $20.00 a person until Dec. 15 ($25.00 a person thereafter and at the door). Your check, payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
353. Reported by Jerry Margolin: IT'S A MYSTERY, CHARLIE BROWN and THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE (book-and-cassette sets, $5.98 each) and FREDDIE THE DETECTIVE (record album with Walter R. Brooks' Freddie the pig on the cover, $9.98), from Victor Hotho & Co., Box 9738, Fort Worth, TX 76107.
354. MYSTERY READER'S WALKING GUIDE: LONDON, by Alzina Stone Dale and Barbara Sloan Hendershott (Lincolnwood: Passport Books, 1987; 294 p., $16.95); there are other detectives, and while SH is not neglected, he is only one of many whose associations with London addresses and buildings are noted in the eleven walks in this guide for those who would also like to follow in the footsteps of such as Alleyn, Ghote, Halley, Poirot, and Wimsey.
-
355. Oct 86 #3: Frank Thomas' pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASQUERADE MURDERS (Sep 86 #2) is not available in book stores, but Medallion Books (5455 Wilshire Boulevard #1700, Los Angeles, CA 90036) has kindly offered to send a copy of the book, without charge, to S'ians who are not members of Medallion's book club.
356. Bouchercon XVII in Baltimore was enjoyable, and there were more than 400 people there (considerably more than we had in Washington in 1980). The Friday night entertainment was "Stage Fright" -- presented by "The Sherlock Holmes of Thought" (aka Michael Elliott, aka Elliott M. Black of the Hounds of the Baskerville) -- mentalism and magic with a S'ian theme. The only other S'ian item of any significance was the Saturday evening panel on "Castles in the Air" -- a discussion of television by a panel that included Bob Shayne, who screened a short videotape segment from a rough cut of the - new CBS television film "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" -- Sherlock Holmes, having been revived in London and visited Boston, is in a hotel disco bar in Seattle (where he fails to understand a bar girl's proposition) -- Holmes then returns to his room, where he is confronted by an unfriendly FBI agent (whose karate is more than a match for Holmes' jujitsu), and the FBI agent is then murdered in the hallway by a mysterious stranger (who neglects to murder Holmes and bathrobed Jane Watson). Shayne told me that the program will air this spring, and if CBS has any sense, they won't give critics an advance screening. Bouchercon XVIII will be in Minneapolis, masterminded by Steve Stilwell and Becky Reineke (write to Box 2747, Loop Station, Minneapolis, MN 55402, to enroll on their mailing list) and Bouchercon XIX will probably be in Los Angeles (San Diego was competing, but only Los Angeles had a con suite with free drinks).

357. Gayle Lange Puhl's line of S'ian jewelry, displayed and sold at the 1986 workshop in Toronto, is available by mail, and a price list is offered by Reighard Pottery, 32 West Main Street, Evansville, WI 53536.
358. Two people have quoted the report on the report of the reprint edition of Basil Rathbone's IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER (Aug 86 #1), but have announced the book as published rather than reported. Having received no reply to my query to Buccaneer Books, I can only note that this would not be the first time that a reported Buccaneer edition has not been published, and suggest that people note my use of the word "reported" -- I have no objection if others quote from these carefully anonymous info sheets, but it's better if you're accurate. Later: Mel Ruiz reports that he has heard from Buccaneer that the book is not yet ready.
359. THE MYSTERY AND SUSPENSE ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR 1987, compiled by Basil Saintoine (Pittstown: Main Street Press, 1986; $7.95), has many references to Sherlock Holmes and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
360. Gideon Hill reports that Peter Cushing's "The Masks of Death" was broadcast on Prism cable in June 1986. It's also now available on videocassette, at $59.95, from Karl-Lorimar Home Video (17942 Cowan Avenue, Irvine, CA 92714) or your local video store.
361. Gideon also reports that an hour of the polyphonic motets of Lassus was broadcast on Oct. 19 by Minnesota Public Radio.
-
362. Oct 86 #4: A bibliographic query on the first printing of THE OMNIBUS OF CRIME, edited by Dorothy L. Sayers (New York: Payson & Clarke Ltd., 1929) [D182a]: I have seen copies with the list of other books by Sayers on page [2] positioned toward the top of the page, or toward the bottom. Is either variant a first issue? I have also seen copies of the dust jacket with and without "Read em and Creep! Christopher Morley" overprinted in white. Is either variant a first issue?
363. A. Payn (80 Osborne Road, Hornchurch, Essex RM11 1HE, England) has sculpted an attractive Sherlockian chess set, cast in antiqued polyester resin (Holmes/king and bobby/pawn are shown at left). Cost: £45.00 postpaid, with payment by international money order.
364. WALK, DON'T DIE: HOW TO STAY FIT, TRIM AND HEALTHY WITHOUT KILLING YOURSELF, by Fred A. Stutman of The Sons of the Copper Beeches, includes a report on "Sherlock Holmes and the Case of the Jangled Jogger" ($18.95 cloth or $9.95 paper, from Medical Manor Books, 3501 Newbery Road, Philadelphia, PA 19154).
365. "Elementary, my dear Watson," said Sherlock Holmes. Not in the Canon, as all true S'ians know. But: where did Sherlock Holmes first utter that famous phrase? One possibility is the William Gillette play "Sherlock Holmes", but not in any of the versions of the script published during Gillette's lifetime. The phrase does appear (in Act II, Scene 2, on page 53) in the Royal Shakespeare Company acting edition published by Samuel French in 1976, but that version was revised for the RSC production, and it is likely that the phrase was inserted for the revival, because by then everyone knew that Holmes said it. So: who was the first Holmes to say, "Elementary, my dear Watson"?
366. The Pleasant Places of Florida have issued a small 1987 calendar (three months per page, with S'ian illos, and a list of red-letter days at the end); $2.50 postpaid from Ben Wood, 4408 Gulf Drive, Holmes Beach, FL 33510. This will likely be the only 1987 S'ian calendar.
367. If you would like to live in the "real" Baskerville Hall, you now have two opportunities, according to an article in the Oct. 16, 1986, issue of the London Standard. Brook Manor, the home of the infamous Richard Cabell, has been put up for sale for £150,000. And if you prefer Hayford Hall (see Howard Brody's article in the Dec. 1979 issue of the BSJ), it's available for £300,000.
368. "I'll tell you what art is," Arthur Conan Doyle wrote to Robert Barr in 1894. "It is to do that which you set out to do. Start to make a man laugh, and make him laugh, and that's art." From a collection of 21 autograph letters offered (for $5000) by David L. Holmes (230 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, PA 19102).
-
369. Oct 86 #5: "Admirers of the exploits of the great detective Sherlock Holmes and his colleague Dr. Watson will particularly enjoy a visit to the Sherlock Holmes pub in Northumberland Avenue since Sir Arthur Conan Doyle lived in the fine 18th century building and wrote many of his stories there." That's one of the stops on "The London Pub-a-round," an evening entertainment offered by The Britainshrinkers (10 Queen Street, Mayfair, London W1, England), from a brochure forwarded by Ted Schulz.
370. THE SECRET CONAN DOYLE CORRESPONDENCE, edited by Leslie Vernet Harper [a pseudonym of Charles Youngblood] (Provo: Hascom Publishers, 1986; 212 pp., $11.95 postpaid from the publisher, Box 1396, Provo, UT 84603). Both mystery novel and exposition of the Mormon faith, based on the journals and correspondence of Samuel Harper, a British detective forced into exile in the U.S. because of his knowledge of the identity of Jack the Ripper. Harper's later adventures involved Jacques Futrelle, Nellie Bly, "Red Emma" Goldman, and Arthur Balfour, and a meeting with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, an old friend with whom Harper has long corresponded on a "Dear Arthur" and "Dear Sam" basis, and with whom Harper has had lengthy conversations at the Diogenes Club.
371. Steven T. Doyle (3209 East 10th Street #8C, Bloomington, IN 47401) reports that he is editing The Sherlock Holmes Review, a new quarterly ($8 a year), and is soliciting material for the first issue, due Dec. 1986/Jan. 1987.
372. Pamela Granovetter and Karen Thomas McCallum have compiled A SHOPPING LIST OF MYSTERY CLASSICS (including, of course, all nine volumes of the Canon), with a listing of specialist dealers; the 96-page booklet allows users to mark titles as read, wanted, and owned, and is available for $5.35 postpaid from The Copperfield Press, 306 West 11th Street, New York, NY 10014.
373. Brochure at hand for the "Final Problem Tour" (Apr. 22-May 9, 1987) to England and Switzerland, escorted by Scott and Sherry Rose Bond (contact Trade Winds Travel, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106).
374. ATTENTA: there will be Sherlockian articles in Fortune (Nov. 24) and in Smithsonian (December); both magazines should be on the newstands by mid-November.
375. Reported by Ron De Waal: ALFRED HITCHCOCK: TALES OF TERROR, edited by Eleanor Sullivan (New York: Galahad Books, 1986; $8.99); contents include August Derleth's "The China Cottage".
376. One of the more unusual formats for the Canon is intended for travelers: short stories printed on single sheets of paper, folded map-style to pocket size. There are three volumes available, with twelve stories in each volume, and one of the stories is "The Red-Headed League". A flier is available from Tales for Travellers, 333 Randolph Street, Napa, CA 94559.

377. A couple of minor children's items in a series of "Who Did It Sticker Mysteries" (with an owl in S'ian costume as series logo) from Scholastic Inc. (730 Broadway, New York, NY 10003): THE GREAT EGG MYSTERY, by Margaret Hartelius, has Dilly Duck in S'ian costume, and THE HIDE-AND-SEEK MYSTERY, by Judy Waltham, has only the series logo; $2.95 each.
-
378. Oct 86 #6: Two new videocassettes, reported by Maureen Green: MISTER MAGOO ...MAN OF MYSTERY (including "Sherlock Holmes" with Magoo as Watson), from Paramount Home Video; and WHEN LONDON WALKED IN TERROR (vol. 1 of "Leonard Nimoy Goes in Search of...", with "In Search of...Sherlock Holmes"), from U.S.A. Home Video.
379. New catalog at hand from Historical Products (Box 220, Cambridge, MA 02238) with the usual T-shirts, sweatshirts, totebags, aprons, and cloth calendars featuring historical personalities (including a Steele portrait of SH) and interesting quotations (ditto).
380. Roger Johnson reports a new edition (expanded and revised) of Alexander Kelly's JACK THE RIPPER: A BIBLIOGRAPHY AND REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE (D2251b); available for £7.95 from Elaine Dunncliffe, AALSED Publications Officer, Woodhall Library, Cole Green Lane, Welwyn Garden City, Herts., England.
381. "Holmes for the Holidays" at hand from US 2 (563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652); a new sales list of S'iana, including holiday cards, stuffed bears, aprons, buttons, notepads, baseball cards, and much else.
382. Anthony Boucher's NINE TIMES NINE, a Sister Ursula and locked-room mystery (with many S'ian references) first published in 1940 (as by H. H. Holmes), has been reissued in paperback (New York: International Polygonics, 1986; 255 p., $4.95).
383. The advertisement below is from the Oct. 1901 issue of the American edition of The Strand Magazine. Can you identify the source of the Conan Doyle quotation?
-
384. Nov 86 #1: "Holmes is the triumph of Victorian postivism in his cerebral performances," suggests Stefano Tani," but is at the same time decadent in his habits, even, finally, his intellectual habits, since he contrasts markedly with the gentle and essentially intelligent humanist Watson." Tani's THE DOOMED DETECTIVE: THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE DETECTIVE NOVEL TO POSTMODERN AMERICAN AND ITALIAN FICTION (Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 1984; 183 p., $18.95) concentrates on the development of the "anti-detective novel," with discussion of Umberto Eco's THE NAME OF THE ROSE as an important example of the genre.
385. "The Sherlock Holmes" is open for business at 1650 Bourbon Street in Edmonton, Alberta -- it's a division of Tippling House Limited, so one can assume drinks are available, but I don't know about dinner.
386. Reported by Jack Kerr: minor S'ian references (p. 177, 265) in CORONER AT LARGE, by T. Noguchi (Pocket Books).
387. SAM THE DETECTIVE AND THE ALEF BET MYSTERY, by Amye Rosenberg (New York: Behrman House, 1980; 64 p., $3.95), features an imaginative S'ian bear assisting children in learning Hebrew; you can order from the publisher at 235 Watchung Avenue, West Orange, NJ 07052.
388. John Nieminski has responded to my query (Oct 86 #2) about non-S'ian books with S'ian titles, with some additional titles listed in Allen J. Hubin's CRIME FICTION, 1749-1980: A COMPREHENSIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY (Garland, 1984) (a book without which, John suggests, no self-respecting mystery fan or S'ian trivialist should be): A CASE OF IDENTITY, by Leonard Brain (Hale, 1970); A CASE OF IDENTITY, by Richard Marsh (U.S. title of THE TWICKENHAM PEERAGE, Methuen, 1902); THE CROOKED MAN, by Shelley Smith [pseud. of Nancy H. Bodington] (Harper, 1952, American title of MAN ALONE, Collins, 1952); THE EMPTY HOUSE, by Michael Gilbert (Hodder, 1978; Harper, 1979); THE EMPTY HOUSE, by Francis Grierson (Butterworth, 1933; Appleton, 1934); THE EMPTY HOUSE, by Irina Karlova (Hurst, 1944); THE VALLEY OF FEAR, by John Creasey (Long, 1943); THE VALLEY OF FEAR, by Robin Gar (Millifont, 1935); THE VALLEY OF FEAR, by Francis Addington Symonds (Amalgamated Press, 1921); and THE YELLOW FACE, by William Murray Graydon (Amalgamated Press, 1921). And there is the Ellery Queen short story "The Three Students" (Playboy, 1971, and EQMM, Nov. 1973). The two books from Amalgamated Press, John notes, feature Sexton Blake, the Baker Street detective.
389. VIDEOTAPER ALERT! "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (with Michael Pennington as Sherlock Holmes and Margaret Colin as Jane Watson) will be broadcast by CBS-TV on Sunday, Dec. 28, from 9:00 to 11:00 pm.
390. Avram Davidson's pastiche "The Singular Incident of the Dog on the Beach" is in Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine, Dec. 1986.
391. "Sherlock Holmes and the Red-Headed League" is a new musical adaptation performed by Theatreworks/USA (131 West 86th Street, New York, NY 10024; 202-595-7500), and scheduled for their theater in New York Jan. 24-Feb. 1, 1987. And at Lisner Auditorium in Washington on Mar. 10, 1987, and at the Bardavon 1869 Opera House in Poughkeepsie on Mar. 22, 1987. And they'll be happy to accept bookings elsewhere.
-
392. Nov 86 #2: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY, by L. B. Greenwood (New York: Atheneum, 1986; 184 p., $13.95); a welcome exception to the general rule that most S'ian pastiches are at best only poor imitations of the recorded cases.
393. Reported by Lenny Picker: Batman and Robin and Sherlock Holmes scheduled in Detective Comics #572 (the 50th anniversary issue of the comic).
394. "In Search of Sherlock Holmes" is one of the London walks described in a booklet sponsored by the Wimpy Food chain. A free copy of "Wimpy Walks" is available from the British Tourist Authority, 40 West 57th Street, New York, NY 10019. For those who don't speak British, "wimpy" is a British trade name for a hamburger.
395. The S'ian "Wimpy Walk" ends in Northumberland Street at The Sherlock Holmes, "where it is said a certain Mr. Conan Doyle resided for a time in an hotel on the very same site." There is a similar statement in the flier for "The London Pub-a-round" (Oct 86 #5). A faithful reader (who is an expert on Conan Doyle's various residences) has asked me to refrain from reporting such statements without noting that there is no evidence that Conan Doyle lived or resided in Northumberland Street.
396. "William Gillette: A Connecticut Yankee and the American Stage" (the fine 30-minute documentary paragraphed Sep 86 #1) is available on videocassette ($50.00 postpaid) and on 16mm film ($600.00 purchase and $50.00 rental) from Connecticut Heritage Productions, 46 Bretton Road, Middletown, CT 06457.
397. Flier at hand from Frank A. Hoffmann (734 Richmond Avenue, Buffalo, NY 14222) announcing his Sherlock Holmes Calendar for 1987 (Sherlockian Ladies Edition) at $9.00 postpaid. The flier also includes items from Phase 2 of his Sherlockian Enterprises close-out sale.
398. A postscript to my report (Oct 86 #3) on Bouchercon XVII: "Young Sherlock Holmes" (one of the nominees for best movie in the "Anthony" awards) did not win ("Witness" was the first choice in the fan voting). But the Private Eye Writers of America have their own "Shamus" awards, and the vote for best first P.I. novel went to Wayne Warga's HARDCOVER, which has minor S'ian allusions.
399. THE HISTORICAL NOVELS (Poole: New Orchard Editions, 1986; 1112+1176 p., $19.95) (distributed here by Sterling Publishing Co.) is a welcome reprint of the two-volume collection published by John Murray in 1931 and 1932. Contents: THE WHITE COMPANY, SIR NIGEL, THE EXPLOITS OF BRIGADIER GERARD, ADVENTURES OF GERARD, MICAH CLARKE, THE REFUGEES, RODNEY STONE, and Lady Doyle's 1931 preface.

400. British news from Roger Johnson: production on "The Abbot's Cry" (the BBC's second Peter Cushing TV film) has been postponed until March because John Mills (Dr. Watson) is appearing in a West End play. Granada will begin production on "The Sign of Four" in January or February, and a fourth series of short stories (including "Wisteria Lodge" and probably "Silver Blaze") is planned for 1987-88.
-
401. Nov 86 #3 Some paperback reprints from Britain: SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1902 FIFTH TEST, by Stanley Shaw (London: W. H. Allen/Star Book, 1986; 160 p., £1.95). TEN YEARS BEYOND BAKER STREET, by Cay Van Ash (London: Futura, 1985; 436 p., £2.50). THE RETURN OF MORIARTY, by John Gardner (London: W. H. Allen/Star Book, 1983; 383 p., £2.50). THE REVENGE OF MORIARTY, by John Gardner (London: W. H. Allen/Star Book, 1984; 306 p., £2.25. And a hardcover British edition: SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin Harry Greenberg, and Charles G. Waugh (London: Severn House, 1985; 355 p., £9.95).
402. I have seen a videocassette of "The Masks of Death" (the BBC's first Peter Cushing TV film), and I think it rates a passing grade. Holmes and Watson versus the Germans, just before The Great War, with Anne Baxter as Irene Adler, and Ray Milland and Gordon Jackson in supporting roles.
403. Danger Mouse (the world's number one crime fighter) and his faithful assistant Penfold first appeared in 1981 in a British television cartoon series created by Brian Cosgrove and Mark Hall; the series can also be seen here on cable television (Nickelodeon), and Little, Brown and Co. have issued a series of children's picture books, paperbacks, and lift-the-flap books featuring the intrepid mouse and his hamster friend, who live in a secret hideaway beneath an ordinary London mailbox on Baker Street.
404. Thanks to eagle-eyed Wilfrid de Freitas for spotting an announcement in the personal columns of The Times (Oct. 29): "CHALLENGER - Pterosaurs sighted Matto Grosso - Expedition departs Oct 30. Room for two more guns - Summerlee." And a second announcement (Nov. 3): "STEPHEN - I thought I could trust your discretion. Yet there it is in print in Room Too More Guns: the intriguing history of the Personal Columns of The Times published for all to see. I'll never speak to you again. M." One might suspect that the two announcements are a subtle advertisement for a new book, which will surely be of interest to those who share Sherlock Holmes' enthusiasm for the agony columns.
405. Also an advertisement in the Nov. 2 issue of The Sunday Times: "SHERLOCK Holmes lived nearby this Edwardian 3 bed gnd flr flt close Baker St. 116 yrs £130.000."
406. Reported by Ron De Waal: Sherlock Hemlock in THE CASE OF THE MISSING DUCKIE (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1980; 24 p.). And the same story in SESAME STREET STORY LAND: A SELECTION OF FAVORITE SESAME STREET STORIES (New York: Western Publishing Co., 1986; $12.95).
407. In the current catalog from Fearon Teacher Aids (David S. Lake Publishers, 19 Davis Drive, Belmont, CA 94022): I.M.A. BOOKSNOOP'S AMAZING, ASTOUNDING, ASTONISHING LIBRARY SKILLS KIT, by Elaine Prizzi and Jeanne Hoffman (128 p., $10.95), with S'ian cover art. MINDSTRETCHERS: LEVEL TWO: WHO DONE IT?, by Pat Carr and Steve Tracy ($1.95) also has S'ian artwork.
408. SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE'S CELEBRATED CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: Octopus Books, 1986; 318 p., £6.95) contains 18 stories, each with one of Sidney Paget's illos from The Strand Magazine; the book also has 12 new full-color illos by the modern British artist Graham Ward.
-
409. Nov 86 #4: A while back I mentioned (Feb 86 #1) The Newcastle Mint's offer of "The Sherlock Holmes 100 Year Commemorative Art Medal Collection" limited to 1,500 numbered sets and consisting of 72 art medals to be issued monthly in pure gold on fine pewter ($20.00 each) or in pure silver ($30.00 each). According to the latest issue of the Grimpen Mire Gazette, delivery actually did start in mid-March, dispelling the suspicion of many that no one would be silly enough to order the set.
410. Raymond L. Holly's article "The Bee-Farmer and the Priest: Sherlock Holmes and Father Brown" appeared in the Aug. 1986 issue of Telicom (Journal of the International Society for Philosophical Enquiry); copies available ($2.00 postpaid) from Bob Birch, Box 2364, Falls Church, VA 22042.
411. You may have noticed the recent press reports about Jeffrey Archer, the deputy chairman of the Conservative Party in Britain, who resigned when a newspaper caught him paying off a prostitute ("We know no spectacle so ridiculous as the British public in one of its periodic fits of morality," Thomas Macaulay once suggested). Jeffrey Archer is also a novelist, and was reported to have been hired by Steven Spielberg (or Paramount) to translate Chris Columbus' script for "Young Sherlock Holmes" into British.
-
412. The weekend celebration of Sherlock Holmes' birthday seems to have stabilized, since there are no new events that I know about. But there are, as usual, many items on the agenda.
413. Friday begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast at 9:00 at the Hotel Algonquin, at 59 West 44th Street; no reservations required. Then the William Gillette Luncheon at 12:00 at the Old Homestead, at 56 Ninth Avenue (Lisa McGaw, 15 Willow Terrace Apartments, Chapel Hill, NC 27514). And then the dinners for The Baker Street Irregulars at 24 Fifth Avenue, and for The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at the Club 1407 Restaurant, at 1407 Broadway (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235 West 15th Street #4B, New York, NY 10011).
414. Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 to 6:00; S'ians and their guests are most welcome, and there is as usual the possibility of S'ian authors on hand to sign their books.
415. On Saturday there will be a reception, honoring Julian and Eleanor Wolff and open to all S'ians and their friends, from 3:00 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue. Open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $20.00 a person until Dec. 15 ($25.00 a person thereafter and at the door). Checks, payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709. And, although the gathering is not formally scheduled, it is likely that a many Sherlockians will dine on Saturday evening at Bogie's (249 West 26th Street).
416. On Sunday, southbound travelers (and others) are welcome at the annual dinner of The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club in Philadelphia (Victoria M. Robinson, 299B Summit House, 1450 West Chester Pike, West Chester, PA 19382).
-
417. Nov 86 #5: THE EVIDENCE NEVER LIES: THE CASEBOOK OF A MODERN SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Alfred Allan Lewis (New York: Dell, 1987; 258 p., $7.95), describes the career and some of the important cases of criminalist Herbert Leon MacDonell, a modern specialist in bloodstain evidence, fingerprint identification, and firearms identification and ballistics; his expertise in interpreting evidence has served his clients well.
418. Reported by Brad Keefauver: THE BEST OF TREK #11, edited by Walter Irwin and G. B. Love (Signet paperback), with Patricia Dunn's "A Problem of Identity: Was Holmes a Vulcan?"
-
419. It occurs to me to suggest that there are still a few months in 1987 that do not yet have a S'ian event of international or national significance, in case anyone wants to plan one.
- Jan. 6: Sherlock Holmes Society of London centenary dinner, in London.
- Jan. 9: Baker Street Irregulars annual dinner, and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes dinner, in New York.
- Mar. 13-15: Sherlockon II: A Second Holmes-Coming, in Torrance (Sherlockon, Box 1226, Lawndale, CA 90260).

Mar. 14: The Relationship Between Arthur Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes: A Centennial Symposium, at Wright State University (Dr. Alvin E. Rodin, Wright State University School of Medicine, Box 927, Dayton, OH 45401).

May 16: Holmes Centennial Dinner at the Culinary Institute of America, in Hyde Park.

Apr. 22-May 9: "Final Problem" Tour from England to Switzerland (Trade Winds Travel, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 10106).

Apr. 30-May 9: Sherlock Holmes Society of London Pilgrimage to Switzerland (Cdr. G. S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England).

July 24-26: John Bennett Shaw workshop, at the College of William & Mary (Ray Betzner, 2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, VA 23185).

Aug. 16-23: John Bennett Shaw workshop, at Stanford University (Theodore G. Schulz, 17 Mount Lassen Drive, San Rafael, CA 94903).

Sept. 12-22: a medical history conference based in London, directed by Alvin E. Rodin, with emphasis on Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes (Nicholas Dewey, BCM, Box Dewey, London, WC1N 3XX, England).

Sept. 19-20: Autumn in Baker Street, at Bear Mountain (Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709).

Sept. (date uncertain): The Silver Blaze, at Belmont (Richard A. Wein, 65 Briarwood Lane, Plainview, NY 11803).

-
420. Nov 86 #6: Peter Cushing's AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY (London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1986; 157 p., £9.95) gives only passing mention to his various appearances as Sherlock Holmes, but it is an entertaining account of the actor's life and career.
421. Thanks to Paul Merz for an advance warning: Gary Larson's newspaper cartoon "The Far Side" will be Sherlockian on Dec. 5.
422. Discovered by Richard Wein: THE WORLD'S 72 TOUGHEST GOLF HOLES, by Tom Hepburn and Selwyn Jacobson (Los Angeles: Price/Stern/Sloan, 1984; $19.95 at B. Dalton); one of the selections is The Morialta Golf Club's 5th hole (dubbed "Sheer Luck"), with an appropriately S'ian description.
423. SHERLOCK HOLMES: A CENTENARY CELEBRATION, by Allen Eyles (London: John Murray, 1986; 144 p., £10.95) (New York: Harper & Row, 1986; 144 p., $22.50); a survey of "the first hundred years of the Sherlock Holmes phenomenon," with spectacular illos: full-color reproductions of eight of Steele's covers for Collier's, some of the more artistic covers from later issues of the Strand, theater posters and lobby cards, and stills from films and television, plus much more material in black and white.
424. In case you didn't do the arithmetic, £10.95 at the current conversion rate ($1.42) is $15.55 (and that's 69% of $22.50). Twenty years ago if a book was published simultaneously in Britain and the U.S., the British edition was about 60% cheaper; then things evened out, but now the discount seems to be back.
425. For the completist S'ian philatelist, the USPS has re-engraved the 1983 1c coil stamp showing an 1880s omnibus (BSJ, Dec. 1983, p. 248). The new and slightly different version will be shipped to post offices in December.
426. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck: SHERLOCK HOLMES SAVED GOLF, a second S'ian golf book by Bob Jones (Box 582, Pebble Beach, CA 93953; $12.00 postpaid).
427. Marilyn Wellemeier's article on "Pursuing a Mysterious Passion" in the Nov. 24 issue of Fortune discussed passionate mystery collectors, and included mention (and a photograph) of Tyke Niver, as well as an address for queries about joining S'ian societies. So far there have been twelve requests.
428. Sotheby's auction in London on Dec. 18 will include a "group of papers relating to Conan Doyle," including "a letter by the literary agent A.S. Watt, to Lady Doyle, detailing tangled negotiations with MGM for the filming of Sherlock Holmes stories (1937)." First I've heard of MGM considering a series.
429. Tyke Niver reports a catalog of regimental and old school ties available from Ben Silver Neckties Limited (149 King Street, Charleston, SC 29401), including the tie for Edinburgh University at $28.00 (in case you'd like to wear ACD's old school tie).
430. "I went out to Charing Cross, to see Major-general Harrison hanged, drawn, and quartered; which was done there, he looking as cheerful as any man could do in that condition." Samuel Pepys, in his Diary.
-
431. Dec 86 #1: "Even as a small child I dreamed of going on faraway expeditions to collect insects and other animals. This book set my imagination on fire, and I was thereafter a nesiophile, a lover of islands, the concrete symbols of new worlds awaiting exploration. The compulsion was one of the mental factors that led me in later years to develop (with Robert H. MacArthur) the theory of island biogeography, which has become an influential part of ecology." The book is THE LOST WORLD, cited by Edward O. Wilson in THE HARVARD GUIDE TO INFLUENTIAL BOOKS: 113 DISTINGUISHED HARVARD PROFESSORS DISCUSS THE BOOKS THAT HAVE HELPED TO SHAPE THEIR THINKING, edited by C. Maury Devine, Claudia M. Dissel, and Kim D. Parrish (New York: Harper & Row, 1986; 300 p., $18.95).
432. ATTENTA: on Dec. 3 I was informed by the Hotel Royalton that they are not accepting reservations for the birthday weekend, because the hotel will be closed at the end of 1986, for total renovation. They may be open in early January, I was told, "but don't count on it." Those who have already made reservations at the Royalton may or may not have received a later warning from the hotel. Verbum sap., as the saying goes.
433. All is not lost, however. Mary Ellen Rich, of The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes, works for Stevens Travel (212-696-4300 or 800-223-1028), and she is arranging for alternate accommodations for Sherlockians who don't want to take a chance at the Royalton.
434. Spotted by Betty Pierce: Jeremy Brett, in the Henry Fonda film of "War and Peace" (cast as Nicholas, an officer in red uniform and funny wig).
435. Reported by Chris Caswell, from Disneyland, on the recently renovated Mr. Toad ride, in the window of a London building: Sherlock Holmes' profile. Watch for it near the end of the ride, Chris warns.
436. Chris also notes that regardless of the quality of the recent TV show "Clue: Movies, Murder, and Mystery!" (Sept. 17 on CBS-TV), the program was filmed to a large extent in his bookshop Sherlock's Home, even showing their British facade and awning.
437. Videocassettes reported by Paul Martin from Video Yesteryear (Box C, Sandy Hook, CT 06482): "The Copper Beeches" (1912) and "The Man with the Twisted Lip" (1922), both silent with music score, correct projection speed; and "The Triumph of Sherlock Holmes" (1935).
438. "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (scheduled by CBS-TV for Dec. 28) was, as you now know, a non-return. CBS announced early in December that the show was being preempted by the two-hour pilot for "Outlaws" (a new series that will start on Jan. 3). The latest news is that "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" will air on Jan. 10, at 9:00 pm.
439. Lenny Picker (119 81st Avenue, Kew Gardens, NY 11415) lacks only one of the Jeremy Brett programs ("Fina"), and would appreciate hearing from anyone who can lend an off-the-air tape of the show for copying.
440. Lenny also reports that a new collection of Basil Copper's Solar Pons pastiches is scheduled next year from Academy Chicago Publishers.
-
441. Dec 86 #2: Reported by Ron De Waal: THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE (New York: Random House, 1986; 42 p., $5.95); Disney's Wonderful World of Reading #55. THE ART OF MYSTERY & DETECTIVE STORIES, by Peter Haining (Secaucus: Chartwell Books, 174 p., $9.98); a reissue of MYSTERY! (D708b). THE VICTORIAN SHORT STORY: DEVELOPMENT & TRIUMPH OF A LITERARY GENRE, by Harold Orel (Cambridge University Press); with Paget's battle at the Reichenbach on the cover, and discussion ("By the 1890s, when Arthur Conan Doyle began his Sherlock Holmes stories in The Strand, the Victorian short story had become a commercially lucrative art-form, and probably the most popular literary product of the late Victorian age.") THE

- CELEBRATED CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Minneapolis: Amaranth Press, 1986; xxiv+808 p., $12.95 at B. Dalton); foreword by Donald Flanell Friedman, and the public-domain stories (Stud through Bruc).
442. 221B BAKER ST.: A GRAPHICS MYSTERY ADVENTURE (Chatsworth: Datasoft/Intelli-Creations, 1986; $29.95); a computer game (with 30 cases), based on the board game (D3957b). A second casebook, with 30 more cases and a second disk, costs $14.95. Commodore 64/128 and Apple II versions are available now, and an Atari version is due next month; an IBM version (graphics card required) is expected in the spring. At your neighborhood software shop, or from IntelliCreations, 19808 Nordhoff Place, Chatsworth, CA 91311.
443. The Nov. 1986 issue of Mysterious News at hand from The Mysterious Press, 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019; 16 pages of articles by and about their authors and their books, and a subscription is free for the asking.
444. SHERLOCKIAN POEMS ON VARIOUS OCCASIONS, by John Ruyle (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707), is the latest Pequod pressing, with 16 poems (old and new); "owing to the omission of smut, prices are the same as for our other books of poetry" ($30.00 cloth, and $15.00 paper).
445. Reported by Roger Johnson (and confirmed by Andy Peck): a colorized version of "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" on videocassette at $29.95 from Hal Roach Studios (their address is 1600 North Fairfax Avenue, Hollywood, CA 90046).
446. THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by William S. Baring-Gould (New York: Clarkson N. Potter, 1986; 1,536 p., $55.00); a new one-volume edition, sturdily bound and boxed ("It is the nearest thing to a complete encyclopaedia of Sherlockiana that we have," Julian Wolff suggested in the BSJ when the "Annotated" was first published 20 years ago, and the description is still thoroughly correct).
447. Richard R. Rutter's article "'There Shall Be No Monthly Meetings': An Introduction to the Baker Street Irregulars" ran in the Oct. 1986 issue of Imprint (The Publication of the Associates of the Stanford University Libraries); $7.50 postpaid (checks payable to Stanford University) from Imprint, C. H. Green Library, Stanford, CA 94305.
448. Presumably you have all seen Fred Strebeigh's article "To his modern fans, Sherlock is still worth a close look" in Smithsonian (Dec. 1986). Some of its readers' letters will be published in the Feb. 1987 issue. And the article will be digested and reprinted in Reader's Digest (Mar. 1987).
-
449. Dec 86 #3: I continue to receive enquiries from the press about what Sherlockians plan to do to celebrate the centennial of the publication of the first Sherlock Holmes story. Please let me know if you hear of events that weren't on the list in the November information sheets.
450. There's a "Sherlock Holmes Pub" music box (hand-made in England), six inches high, with a Reuge Swiss Musical Movement (that plays "There is a tavern in the town"), priced at $78.50 (shipping extra). Illustrated flier available from Precious Little (Helen Wesson, 1003 North Vail Street, Alexandria, VA 22304).
451. The Edgar Wallace Society is as devoted to its hero as we are to ours, and has just published issue #72 of its newsletter "The Crimson Circle" (£6.00 a year for membership and subscription, and the editor is John A. Hogan, 7 Devonshire Close, Amersham, Bucks. HP6 5JG, England).
452. And The August Derleth Society is celebrating the end of its tenth year of celebrating the many-faceted literary career of the creator of Solar Pons. Membership, including their quarterly newsletter, costs $5.00 a year (to Frank Attix, 3333 Westview Drive, Madison, WI 53713).
453. "Her face appeared in a picture frame in a Baker Street set for a TV series, identified as none other than Irene Adler, always 'the woman' for Sherlock Holmes," according to an interview with Vincent Price in the Washington Post. That's Vincent Price's wife, Coral Browne, and I assume that her picture was used in the Boston set for Price's introduction, rather than in the Manchester set for the 221B interior.
454. SHERLOCK CHICK'S FIRST CASE, by Robert Quackenbush (New York: Parents Magazine Press, 1986); a new children's book.
455. Another 1987 tour, reported by Mel Ruiz: Connoisseur Tours present "a unique trip for Sherlock Holmes buffs through the districts in England where the world's most remarkable detective pursued his remarkable career, with John T. Morse, professor of physiology at Berkeley and noted Sherlock Holmes scholar," July 23-Aug. 4. Flier from Directions Unlimited, 344 Main Street, Mount Kisko, NY 10549.
456. Mel also reports that Buccaneer Books reports that their edition of Basil Rathbone's IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER has "no available date set." The book was published in 1962, so the first term of copyright extends through 1990 (in case they're waiting for the book to go into the public domain).
457. "BITTE RUFEN SIE SCOTLAND YARD AN, WATSON" is the German edition of Gar Donnelson's monograph on Canonical telephones and telephoning. $2.95 postpaid from Gar Donnelson, 430 Steinway Road, Lincoln, NE 68505.
458. More comic books. The Renegade Press CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #4 (Nov 86) has "SixN" (and the next issue will have "Engr"). DETECTIVE COMICS #572 (Mar 87) celebrates the 50th anniversary of the magazine, with a story about Sherlock Holmes. Gladstone's WALT DISNEY'S MICKEY MOUSE #224 (Mar 87) and #225 (Apr 87) has a deerstalkered Dippy (later known as Goofy) in a reprint of "The Crazy Crime Wave" from the 1933 daily strips.
-
459. Dec 86 #4: There aren't many Sherlockian stamps on the U.S. schedule for 1987, but Jan. 26 is the issue date for the commemorative honoring the 150th anniversary of Michigan statehood. The stamp shows a white pine, the official Michigan state tree. And there's a Canonical reference to the lumber camps of Michigan . . .
460. There will be a "Sherlock Holmes Mystery Weekend" in Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 13-15, 1987, with the mystery and other entertainment devised by Murder by Invitation (a firm with which Bob Thomalen is involved in various roles and disguises); details from the Bridgeport Hilton Hotel, 1070 Main Street, Bridgeport, CT 06604.
461. Richard G. Smith reports an announcement in the Dec.-Jan. 1987 issue of British Heritage, of a planned special section on SH (presumably in the Feb.-Mar. 1987 issue).
462. Reported from England by Roger Johnson: ROOM TWO MORE GUNS, by Stephen Winkworth (Allen & Unwin, £10.95); a history of the personal columns in The Times ("of marginal but considerable S'ian interest," according to Roger). There have been major improvements at the Sherlock Holmes Hotel in Baker Street: the frontage and ground floor have been completely altered, with new S'ian decorations (including the inverness and deerstalker now worn by the commissioner), and handsome bronze busts and figurines on sale. And Leslie Bricusse (who wrote "Pickwick") is reported to have written a SH musical, to feature Robert Powell as Holmes and William Rushton as Watson.
463. Someone will receive a pleasant Christmas present: the manuscript of "The Adventure of the Mazarin Diamond" [that's the original title] went to auction at Christie's in New York on Dec. 19, with an estimated price of $20,000-25,000. The 19-page manuscript was first reported in 1970, when it was auctioned at Sotheby's in London for £400 to Lew David Feldman, who sold it in 1972 to Miss Melissa Kalt (from whom it has now gone to auction at Christie's). And (later) I have been informed that the manuscript sold for $45,000 to Mark Hime, the California dealer/collector.
464. The winter 1986 issue of The Sherlock Holmes Journal at hand, with news of plans for a Sherlock Holmes Museum, including a reconstruction of the sitting-room at 221B Baker Street, at Meiringen in Switzerland. Part of the museum should be open in time for the spring 1987 tour by the SHSOL.
465. The SHJ also reports that were 10.4 million viewers tuned in when the Granada version of "The Empty House" was broadcast in the U.K. in July (that's 18.2 percent of the 57 million people in the U.K.). In this country the weekly Nielsen ratings measure TV households (87.4 million); in the third week of December, 35.1 percent watched "The Cosby Show" (#1) and 19.1 percent watched "Highway to Heaven" (#20).

466. A pleasant discovery by Jerry Margolin: Gallery Lainzberg, the leading specialist in animation cels. They offer production cels (actually used in the film) from "The Great Mouse Detective" ($195.00) and limited-edition cels by Chuck Jones of Sherlock Daffy and Watson Porky ($295.00 each), and a full-color catalog is available; their address is 200 Guaranty Building, 3rd Avenue and 3rd Street SE, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

---

Jan 87 #1:

1. The birthday festivities were, as usual, both hectic and enjoyable, with pre-weekend publicity starting on Jan. 4 with a long piece by Anthony Burgess in the N.Y. Times Book Review, followed by an Associated Press dispatch in the N.Y. Times and the Washington Post, a brief mention in USA Today, and other items as yet unseen.
  2. The BSI bid an unfond farewell to the Regency Hotel (and its $6 drinks), and moved to the ballroom at 24 Fifth Avenue, where Edith Meiser was *The* Woman, honored at the BSI pre-dinner cocktail party and by *The* Women at dinner at the National Arts Club.
  3. The BSI observed the usual traditions (highlighted by Albert M. Rosenblatt managing to rhyme POSSLQ in his poetic toast to Mrs. Hudson) and welcomed foreign guests Ake Runnquist from Sweden and Kiyoshi Tanaka from Japan, and Thomas L. Stix, Jr., formally introduced the BSI's other officers, John Bennett Shaw (Simpson) and Robert E. Thomalen (Cartwright). James C. Cleary presented a polished and well-illustrated slide show on Sherlock Holmes and Sherlockians, Norman M. Davis fervently defended The Chicago Four (those much-maligned Canonical Chicagoans), Steven Rothman reported on the history of the BSI necktie and his discovery of Helen Hare Cain (the Betsy Ross of the BSI), William D. Jenkins discussed pastiches and parodies, and Chris Steinbrunner reminisced about long-past and more recent annual dinners.
  4. Irregular Shillings were awarded to Ray Betzner (The Agony Column), Robert C. Burr (The Rascally Lascar), T. Michael Kaylor (*Practical Handbook of Bee Culture*), George R. Skornickel, Jr. (Heidegger), Kiyoshi Tanaka (The Japanese Cabinet), Edward J. Vatz (A Typical American Advertisement), and Richard S. Warner (High Tor). Two-Shilling Awards were given to Walter Klinefelter and Ezra Wolff.
  5. And there were other Friday gatherings: The Martha Hudson Breakfast at the Algonquin, The William Gillette Memorial Luncheon at the Old Homestead, Otto Penzler's open house at The Mysterious Bookshop, the Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes' dinner at the Club 1407, and impromptu festivities in the sixth-floor wein-celler at the Dumont Plaza. At the ASH dinner, Patricia Guy reported on Canonical wines, Marina Stajic and Eileen Katz reenacted an interview between Mary Morstan and her gynecologist, and The Friends of Bogie's presented their newest inventions.
  6. Saturday's events featured the cocktail party honoring Julian and Eleanor Wolff. The brief formal agenda featured Ezra Wolff's poetic report on the annual dinner, a presentation to Julian Wolff by George Fletcher, an award of a gilded Queen Victoria Medal to Eleanor Wolff in recognition of her long service as the BSI's most devoted camp-follower, and Isaac Asimov's new Sherlockian song (this year to the tunes of "Yankee Doodle" and "Der Tannenbaum"). Many Sherlockians then dined at Bogie's, whence some departed for their hotels and homes in time to view the CBS television movie "The Return of Sherlock Holmes". And on Sunday south-bound travelers dined in Philadelphia with The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club.
  7. I have updated my listing of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women. $1.00 postpaid for a print-out.
-
8. Jan 87 #2: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (Ware: Omega Books, 1986; 1,116 p., £20.00) has all 60 stories, 58 reprinted in facsimile from the Strand (with all the illos); "Stud" and "Sign" are unfortunately not reprinted in facsimile from their first appearances in print, and one can only hope that an enterprising publisher will eventually offer THE COMPLETE ORIGINAL SHERLOCK HOLMES.
  9. Too late for last month's mailing: "The Real Adventures of Sherlock Jones and Proctor Watson" premiered on KMTF-TV (Fresno) on Jan. 4, 1987. This is a PBS ten-episode half-hour children's series using puppets to portray "the 30-inch-high detective and his canine companion" who help their human friends in a variety of escapades; it's not a networked show, so check with your local PBS station to see if or when it might be broadcast.
  10. "Young Sherlock Holmes" was possibly perceived to have done better in Britain than in the U.S. At least Disney were willing to title their film "Basil, the Great Mouse Detective" when it opened in Britain in Oct. 1986 (to favorable notice in the press).
  11. The "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Townhouse" at 2151 Sacramento Street in San Francisco, advertised at $1.3 million (Oct. 85 #2), has finally been sold, "for just under a million," according to Herb Caen's column in the San Francisco Chronicle (Dec. 19, 1986).
  12. John D. MacDonald died recently. Interviewed by Ed Hirshberg (in the 1979 Writer's Yearbook), MacDonald was asked if Travis McGee might be a better detective if he were "more committed--like Sherlock Holmes, for example, who never thinks of anything else but just concentrates completely on his job." "I think a total commitment of the hero--*really* total commitment --equals boredom," MacDonald replied. "Sherlock Holmes is too much of a smartass anyway--too many peculiarities, too much cerebration."
  13. The Greek Interpreters of East Lansing celebrated their 40th anniversary in 1985 by publishing a history of the scion; THE GREEK INTERPRETERS includes their scion reports and a joint pastiche, all reprinted from the BSI, and is available for $5.00 postpaid from Howard Brody, 2726 Fontaine Trail, Holt, MI 48842.
  14. ELEMENTARY MY DEAR WATSON, by Graham Nown (Topsfield: Salem House, 1986; 143 p., $19.95); an illustrated celebration of the centenary, concentrating on the Canon and ACD's S'ian career, and the criminals and detectives to be found in the Victorian underworld.
  15. Sterling E. Lanier's giant-rat pastiche "A Father's Tale" (D5042b) is reprinted in THE CURIOUS QUESTS OF BRIGADIER FFELLOWES (West Kingston: Donald M. Grant, 1986; 254 p., signed by author and artist, $30.00); a fine collection of Lanier's stories, illustrated by Ned Dameron (available from the publisher, West Kingston, RI 02892).
  16. Check the discount tables for 33 BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Gibson and Green, offered at $7.98 in a new catalog from Publishers Central Bureau (One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001); it's a reissue of the 1984 Doubleday edition of UNCOLLECTED STORIES.
-
17. Jan 87 #3: ACD's poem "The Athabasca Trail" was written during his Canadian tour in 1914, and published widely in newspapers before its appearance in the Apr. 1915 issue of Cornhill Magazine. Chris Redmond (125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada) would appreciate hearing from anyone who knows of early appearances of the poem.
  18. THE LITTLE, BROWN BOOK OF ANECDOTES, edited by Clifton Fadiman (Boston: Little Brown 1985), includes anecdotes (non-S'ian) about Joseph Bell, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Paul Gore-Booth, Ronald Knox, Christopher Morley, and Rex Stout. During his days in the Foreign Office, Gore-Booth once received an urgent cable from the Middle East: "Ruler has died suddenly. Please advise." Gore-Booth replied: "Hesitate to dogmatize, but suggest burial."
  19. Reported by Bob Burr (Plugs & Dottles, Jan. 1987): Baskerville Holmes, former Memphis State starter, pleaded innocent to a charge he roughed up a former girlfriend on his wedding day.
  20. Copies of THE SHSF FANTHOLOGY 2 (D1929a) and THE SHSF FANTHOLOGY 3 (D1930a) are still available from Ruth Berman (2809 Drew Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55416); postpaid prices are $1.50 for D1929a, $2.00 for D1930a, and $3.00 for both. Ruth also reports that her S'ian story "Professor and Colonel" will be in MATH IS STRANGE, an anthology edited by Rudy Rucker and due from Arbor House in May.

21. THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Bantam Books, 1985; 266 p., $2.50) has the 13 stories dramatized by Granada in the first two series, an interesting Introduction by Jacques Barzun, and striking modern graphics on the cover. THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Penguin Books, 1987; 181 p., $3.50) has the 7 stories in the third Granada series, and is the authorized tie-in to the series (with the poster art-work on the cover).
22. Discovered by Ev Herzog: THE CURSE OF BATTERSLEA HALL, written by Richard Brightfield and illustrated by Ted Enik (New York: Bantam Books, 1984; 118 p., $1.95); a "choose your own adventure" children's book with a friendly hound named Baskerville and a deerstalkered (though non-S'ian) protagonist. THE MUMMY (Loughborough: Ladybird Books, 1985; 51 p., $2.13); ACD's "Lot No. 249" retold for children by Raymond Sibley and illustrated by Angus McBride. MONSTERS YOU NEVER HEARD OF, by Daniel Cohen (New York: Pocket Books/Archway, 1986; 101 p., $2.50); with passing mention of the Hound of the Baskervilles in the chapter on "Demon Dogs".
23. For completists: the 2nd printing of Lloyd Biggle's pastiche THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE (May 86 #2 and Oct 86 #1) is a true variant, containing proper acknowledgement to Dame Jean for permission to use the Sherlock Holmes characters. The press run was also much smaller than for the 1st printing.
24. Andy Jaysnovitch (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) now offers six videocassettes, each with four of the 1954 Ronald Howard TV program (and three more cassettes are in the works); write to Andy for details.
25. For miniaturists seeking a bear-skin rug, a golden pince-nez, a Persian slipper, or a dried snake-skin: a flier at hand from Shirley (9269 Mission Gorge Road #113, Santee, CA 92071).

---

26. Jan 87 #4: Mike Ashley (4 Thistlebank, Walderslade, Chatham, Kent ME5 8AD, England) is working on a biography and bibliography of Algernon Blackwood, and wonders if anyone has noticed the Canonical echoes in Blackwood's stories "The Nemesis of Fire" and "The Camp of the Dog". There is no De Waal citation for Blackwood, and one item cited by Green/Gibson; if you know of any other connections with SH or ACD, please let Mike know.
27. Reported by Lenny Picker: Rolland Smith (co-host of the new CBS-TV "Morning Program") has named his son Conan, after ACD. Marvel's MUPPET BABIES #13 features "The Casebook of Kermlock Holmes" with Kermit as Holmes, Fozzie as Watson, and Miss Piggy as the Client. Academy Chicago will publish the unedited version of Basil Copper's THE DOSSIER OF SOLAR PONS in March (Copper says that Pinnacle took great liberties with their 1979 edition). And Medallion Books will publish Frank Thomas' SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MISSING MASTERPIECES (this summer, according to Medallion).
28. REFLECTIONS ON A SCANDAL IN BOHEMIA, illustrated by Jeff Decker, with an Introduction by Jack Tracy (New York: Magico Magazine, 1986; 98 p., $20.00); a good anthology, with reprints of the story and essays by Christ, Jones, and Montgomery, and new material by Green, Johnson, Kean, Keefauver, MacDonald, and Shreffler. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE ORIGINS OF PSYCHOLOGY, by Richard L. Kellogg, with an Introduction by John Bennett Shaw (New York: Magico Magazine, 1986; 90 p., $15.95); a collection of older articles and new essays. THE EXPLOITS OF BILLY THE PAGE, by Willoughby Lane (New York: Magico Magazine, 1986; 57 p., $15.95); a collection of short pastiches, in each of which a celebrated Baker Street detective is moderately involved (the detective is unnamed, but can hardly be confused with Sexton Blake). And the first issue of Magico Magazine has also appeared, edited by Kelvin I. Jones and with articles by Hardwick, Johnson, Hunt, Kean, and Healy; $3.50 (Magico's address is Box 156, New York, NY 10002).
29. Richard Lancelyn Green, in his essay on the manuscript in REFLECTIONS ON A SCANDAL IN BOHEMIA, reports a solution to the mystery of the second "resting hand" used by Conan Doyle on seven pages of the ms. The second hand has been identified by Adrian Conan Doyle as that of Conan Doyle's sister.
30. For Sherlockian philatelists: I have a small supply of coil pairs of the new re-engraved version of the 1-cent "omnibus" stamp, and the precancelled version of the 4.9-cent "buckboard" stamp, and an even smaller supply of the unprecancelled version of the 4.9-cent "buckboard" stamp. If you need these items, let me know and I'll enclose them with the next mailing.
31. THE ULTIMATE ALPHABET AND WORKBOOK, by Mike Wilks (New York: Henry Holt, 1986; $22.45), is an interesting concept: 26 detailed paintings, showing 7,777 objects beginning with the relevant letters; the workbook lists 12,000 possible objects (the person correctly identifying the most objects will win $15,000). The workbook lists "deer-stalker" and "detective" (the deerstalker is not particularly well-drawn, and the detective not found).
32. "Inside and Outside Sherlock Holmes: A Rhapsody" by Kim Herzinger, in Shenandoah (The Washington and Lee University Review), 1986, v. 36. n. 3, is an enthusiastic investigation of the importance of Sherlock Holmes and the Canon. Box 722, Lexington, VA 24450; $3.50.

---

33. Jan 87 #5: Caedmon (1995 Broadway, New York, NY 10023) offers SHERLOCK HOLMES ADVENTURES (Blue, SixN, and Blan) performed by John Wood on a two-cassette set ($14.95). Their catalog also lists THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES performed by Nicol Williamson ($14.95 on cassettes, $19.98 on records), Walter Brooks' FREDDY THE DETECTIVE performed by Pat Carroll on one cassette ($8.95), the four S'ian recordings by Basil Rathbone, and a number of T. S. Eliot's S'ian items.
34. Reported by Dana Richards: "Alphamagic Squares" by Lee C. F. Sallows, in Abacus (fall 1986), refers to (and shows the first page of) THE ORIGIN OF TREE WORSHIP, a privately printed 19th-century work of scholarship devoted to a study of Druidical practices and the spread of the yew cult among Celtic and Germanic peoples in pre-Christian Europe; the book was privately published in 1887, and apparently misplaced in 1888, but a copy (presumed unique) was recently discovered during a reorganization of bookshelves at the British Library.
35. Dana also reports that Milton Bradley's VCR game CHUTES AND LADDERS has a scenario with Sherwood Holmes and Dottie Watson (not in Canonical costume). And that there is a Canonical reference in Arthur C. Clarke's THE SONGS OF DISTANT EARTH (Del Ray, 1986, p. 189).
36. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES LETTERS, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (Iowa City: University of Iowa Press; 266 p., $19.95); a spectacular collection, beginning with the 1887 reviews of A STUDY IN SCARLET and continuing with a fine selection of letters, articles, and comment published in newspapers and magazines, and with the usual perceptive commentary by Green. Their special offer is $15.95 plus $1.50 shipping if your order is received by Mar. 15, and the press' address is Iowa City, IA 52242.
37. "Sherlock Holmes and Cleveland, Ohio" will be sponsored by Mrs. Hudson's Lodgers on Nov. 7 (details available from The Stetaks, 15529 Diagonal Road, La Grange, OH 44050).
38. An illustrated flier at hand from Tahtsa Ventures Inc. (Box 931, Burns Lake, B.C. V0J 1E0, Canada), offering a Sherlock Holmes Commemorative Tobacco Humidor in a limited edition of 500, at $195.00 postpaid.
39. There was a bit of post-birthday publicity from New York: on Jan. 10 the National Public Radio series "Weekend Edition" ran a six-minute report taped at the Algonquin on Friday morning (with interviews with Lellenberg, Byerly, Peck, Herzog, Stix, Davis, and Shaw), and Herbert Mitgang's article (also based on Friday-morning interviews) ran in the N.Y. Times on Jan. 17.

40. Reported by Tyke Niver: THE ROYAL NORTHUMBERLAND FUSILIERS (a history of the regiment), by Basil Peacock; $15.00 plus $1.25 shipping, from Owen D. Kubik, 3474 Clar-Von Drive, Dayton, OH 45430. COLLECTING: THE PASSIONATE PASTIME, by Susanna Johnston and Tim Beddow (Harper & Row, 1986); with a well-illustrated chapter on the SH room created by Richard Lancelyn Green.
41. And a bisque porcelain miniature of Mickey in S'ian costume, $9.95 plus $1.50 shipping from The Disney Miniature Collectors Club (The Disney Collection, Box 1797, Sherman Turnpike, Danbury, CT 06816), *if* you're a member of the club and sign up for their monthly shipments.

---

42. Jan 87 #6: On Jan. 23 the "CBS News Nightwatch" program included a 17-minute segment on Sherlock Holmes, with Lem Tucker interviewing Robert Parker, Dorothy Salisbury Davis, and Nicholas Meyer; the three authors took the subject seriously, but Tucker didn't. For those who have never heard of the program, it's the one you watch if you can't get to sleep and can't stand any of the late-late-night movies. I have an off-the-air cassette, and copies will be available, eventually.
43. "For the Love of Holmes" by Derek Nelson, in MD, Jan. 1987, is a long article about Sherlockian doctors, from Gray Chandler Briggs on, with a group photograph taken at a meeting of The Master's Class in Philadelphia (in which Drs. Hill, Smith, and Kean are featured).
44. Haffmans Verlag AG (Hubenstrasse 19, CH-8057 Zurich, Switzerland) are continuing with their translations of the Canon, the latest being DAS TAL DER ANGST (DM 28.00), with explanatory notes by Hans Wolf.
45. According to an article in the Chicago Tribune (Nov. 14, 1986), cited by John Stephenson, "The Great Mouse Detective" has been banned in Norway as unsuitable for children under 12 (it was approved for all audiences in neighboring Finland, Sweden, and Denmark). Disney plans to issue a subtitled videocassette for Norwegians.
46. 1001 MIDNIGHTS: THE AFICIONADO'S GUIDE TO MYSTERY AND DETECTIVE FICTION, by Bill Pronzini and Marcia Muller (New York: Arbor House, 1986; 879 p., $39.95), is a splendid reference work, offering essay-reviews of the best, most important, and most interesting titles in the genre; the Canon is carefully considered (by Edward D. Hoch), and the authors of pastiches and parodies are not neglected, but the real value of the book is in its broad coverage of the field.
47. An auction at Sotheby's in London in July 1986 included two letters from Conan Doyle, dated Dec. 29, 1892, and Jan. 6, 1893, to Mr. Cargill, apparently a graphologist, thanking him for providing ACD with ideas for an episode in a Sherlock Holmes story, and expressing some trepidation at writing to him "for fear you should discern imbecility in the dots of my i's, or incipient brain softening in my capitals." The story? "I would like now to give Holmes *a torn slip of a document*, and see how far he could reconstruct both it and the writers of it."
48. "Sleight of Hand" is a new mystery thriller scheduled to open at the Cort Theatre in New York, with three weeks of previews beginning Apr. 6. The author is John Pielmeier ("Agnes of God") and the stars are Harry Groener ("Cats") and Jeffrey DeMunn ("K2"), and the premise involves both magic and mystery ("an amateur magician performs a new trick with fatal consequences bought one day in advance, cost $15 the 1st week, $20 the 2nd week, and $25 the 3rd week).
49. The first issue of The Sherlock Holmes Review (edited by Steven T. Doyle, quarterly at $8.00 a year, 3209 East 10th Street #8C, Bloomington, IN 47401) has 28 p., and contributions from Harry How (reprint), Spencer W. Kennedy (on the ms. of "RedC"), Stafford G. Davis (on the literary influence of ACD), Robert F. Fleissner (on Holmes and Frankenstein).

---

50. Feb 87 #1: More on Lee C. F. Sallows' article on "Alphamagic Squares" (Jan 87 #5) in Abacus (fall 1986 and winter 1987): it's a two-part article (with a color photograph in the first part showing the first page of THE ORIGIN OF TREE WORSHIP), and there will be a letter to the editor and a reply by Sallows in the next issue, expanding on the Sherlockian significance of THE ORIGIN OF TREE WORSHIP as the foundation-stone in the development of the alphamagic formulas. Abacus: The Magazine for Computer Professionals is published quarterly ($26.00 a year, or $6.50 each for single issues) by Springer-Verlag (175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010).
51. All subscribers should now have a copy of my seasonal souvenir for the birthday festivities, received during the New York weekend, or with the January or February info sheets; if you've been neglected, let me know.
52. The commemorative honoring the 150th anniversary of Michigan statehood (Dec 86 #4) was issued on Jan. 26.
53. David Hammer reports "Elementary, My Dear Gillette", a one-page article by Susan Corbett in Country Life (Jan. 8, 1987); mainly contemporary reviews of Gillette's play.
54. Reported by Paul Merz: Baker Street Bar & Grill, a restaurant in Fresno, Calif., with a thoroughly S'ian menu. And by Mel Ruiz: "Topper Returns" (1940) on videocassette from Video Classics, Box 10069, Burbank, CA 91505 (box shows Topper with deerstalker and calabash in his role as ghost detective); and "The CM-37 Mystery" (a filmstrip set with "Spec", "Bosc", "Scan", and "Copp") from Society for Visual Education, 1345 West Diversey Parkway, Chicago, IL 60614.
55. Announced by KeyRod Literary Enterprises (3041 Maginn Drive, Beaver Creek, OH 45385): THE APHORISMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Jack D. Key and Alvin E. Rodin (52 p., $8.95 postpaid); 200 aphorisms containing the epitome and essence of Holmes' wit and wisdom.
56. SONTEx (Apartado 35435, Barcelona, Spain) offers "2 Stories of Sherlock Holmes" (an audio cassette with "Dyin" and "Chas" read in simplified English, accompanied by a booklet with the text) at $8.50 (they take American checks and plastic).
57. We're still trying to find a few long-unheard-from members of the BSI -- please let me know if you have any clues to the whereabouts of Alvin E. Blomquist (1955), William Passen (1955), Peter A. Ruber (1964), and Bernth Lindfors (1968).
58. STARRETT VS. MACHEN: A RECORD OF DISCOVERY AND CORRESPONDENCE, published by Michael Murphy at his Autolytus Press in 1977, was not widely distributed. Vincent Starrett was Arthur Machen's earliest supporter in the U.S., but in 1924 Starrett and Covici-McGee were accused of pirating two of Machen's books; Starrett refuted the charge, and his correspondence with Machen is presented here along with Starrett's writings on the subject. Non-S'ian (except for Machen's thanks for a copy of THE UNIQUE HAMLET); copies are available from Pepper & Stern (Box 2711, Santa Barbara, CA 93120) at $20.00 (or $30.00 for the deluxe issue with hand-marbled edges).

---

59. Feb 87 #2: Discovered by Ev Herzog: Stephen DiLauro's article about Paul Davis (who did the poster and tie-in paperback covers for the Granada series) in the Jan. 1987 issue of American Artist (1515 Broadway, New York, NY 10036; $2.25). And a rock group called "They Might Be Giants" (samples of their non-S'ian music can be heard on their dial-a-song number, 718-387-6992). And KEATON COMEDIES: A TOBY BRADLEY ADVENTURE, by Harold D. Sill, Jr. (Reading: Addison Wesley, 1977); a children's book in which Toby is time-transported to 1924, and helps Buster Keaton film "Sherlock Jr."
60. The February issue of Smithsonian has four letters to the editor, with compliments, complaints, and explication occasion by Fred Streibigh's December 1986 article on SH and S'ians.
61. Signe Landon (14985 256th Avenue SE, Issaquah, WA 98027) has announced THE HOLMESIAN FEDERATION #7 (with five S'ian stories) for this month, at $4.00 postpaid. Back issues are also available.

62. Ladbroke's Sherlock Holmes Hotel (Baker Street, London W1M 1LB) is selling figurines of Holmes (6" head and shoulders) and Watson (10") at £35.00 each; no photo or other info available.
63. Reported: THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr., in a three-in-one volume from the Detective Book Club (Roslyn, NY 11576) -- I don't know if the DBC sells single volumes, but they're seen at all the charity sales.
64. Forecast: AN INTRODUCTION TO THE DETECTIVE STORY, by LeRoy L. Panek, with discussion of ACD, in May from the Popular Press (Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, OH 43403). SON OF HOLMES, by John T. Lescroart, in March from Leisure Books (240 p., $3.25).
65. In the supermarkets: THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE (#12555) and THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE: BASIL'S GREAT ESCAPES (#12556); Golden Look-Look Books (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1986; $1.50 each).
66. More on 33 BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (Jan 87 #2), the reissue of the 1984 Doubleday edition of UNCOLLECTED STORIES, edited by Gibson and Green: it's published by Avenel Books and distributed by Outlet Books.
67. George Locke, proprietor of Ferret Fantasy, has written (as Ayresome Johns) a mystery novel called PATTERN OF TERROR, in which one of the characters is a fanatical Holmes collector, seeking a rare, important, and possibly unique Sherlock Holmes book (a proof copy of first British edition of THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with "Card" included). No publisher has been found yet, but hard-bound photocopies of the 82,000-word typescript can be purchased for $60.00 plus shipping (27 Beechcroft Road, Upper Tooting, London SW17 7BX, England).
68. Reported by Jack Kerr: six of the Granada programs ("Spec", "Scan", "Soli", "Blue", "Nava", "Danc") on VHS cassettes ($39.95 each) from Signals, Box 70870, Saint Paul, MN 55170 (800-424-9424); these are the Paramount/Simon and Schuster cassettes, presumably also available at your local videostore. A special section on SH (and a S'ian cover) in the Feb.-Mar. 1987 issue of British Heritage (Box 8200, Harrisburg, PA 17105; $3.50).
-
69. Feb 87 #3: Marjorie Weinman Sharmat is continuing her "Nate the Great" series (children's books with Nate generally in S'ian costume in the illos by Marc Simont); NATE THE GREAT AND THE MISSING KEY, NATE THE GREAT AND THE SNOWY TRAIL, and NATE THE GREAT AND THE STICKY CASE (49 p. each) are announced for March from G. P. Putnam's Sons at $10.95 each.
70. Gar Donnelson continues his explorations of Sherlock Holmes's world with 'YOUR BEER SHOULD BE EXCELLENT', a new monograph discussing the beer, breweries, and public houses mentioned in the Canon. The well-illustrated pamphlet (22 pp., $3.50 postpaid) is available from its author, at 430 Steinway Road, Lincoln, NE 68505.
71. Dell is continuing its paperback reissues of Alfred Hitchcock collections ($2.95, each with one of August Derleth's Solar Pons pastiches): BOYS AND GHOULS TOGETHER (D4749b), GAMES KILLERS PLAY (D5613a), and SKULL SESSION (D5663a).
72. Reported by Andy Peck: a "Mark of the Hound Holmesian Sweatshirt" (hound footprints and the appropriate Canonical quote); $25.00 plus $2.50 shipping from Murder by the Book, 1574 Pearl Street, Denver, CO 80210.
73. Ann E. Whetstone's "Bloody Collections" in Scott Stamp Monthly, Feb. 1987, discusses mystery stories that involve philately (with mention of August Derleth's "The Adventure of the Penny Magenta") and photographs of the Nicaraguan set honoring Interpol; Box 828, Sidney, OH 45365; $3.00.
74. Reported by John Stephenson: DETECTIVE MICKEY MOUSE (New York: Golden Books 1985); Little Golden Book #100-58. I THINK THAT IT IS WONDERFUL AND OTHER POEMS FROM SESAME STREET (New York: Golden Books); Little Golden Book #109-9, with Sherlock Hemlock in "A Silly Mystery. BIG MAX, by Kin Platt (New York: Harper & Row); a reissue of D6171a. THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE READ-A-LONG BOOK AND TAPE (Disneyland/Vista Records, Burbank, CA 91521); also available with book and record. PSYCHOLOGY, by David G. Myers (New York: Worth Publishers, 1986); a textbook with a one-sentence quote from the Canon (publisher's address is 33 Irving Place, New York, NY 10003). DEADLY ERNEST, by Daniel Lynch (Zebra Books, $3.95), with a fictional medical examiner who is a Sherlock Holmes fan. A S'ian flier from the Bureau of Business Practice, Waterford, CT 06386. A S'ian "Detective Kit" brochure from the American Society of Personnel Administration, 606 North Washington Street, Alexandria, VA 22314. And "A New Day Dawning: An Interview with Dan Day" [Day is the artist for the Renegade Press S'ian comic book series] in The Comics Journal, Sept. 1986; 4359 Cornell Road, Agoura, CA 91301; $2.95.
75. John also reports THE TRIUMPH OF SHERLOCK HOLMES [the 1935 Wontner film] and THE "SILENT" MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES ["The Copper Beeches" (1912), "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" (1927), and "The Man with the Twisted Lip" (1922)]; videocassettes, $29.95 each, from Video Yesteryear, Box C, Sandy Hook, CT 06482. Note: Video Specialists International (182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 18612) has this material, and more, on two longer cassettes.
76. And that the soundtrack of "Young Sherlock Holmes" was nominated for a Grammy for best instrumental composition.
-
77. Feb 87 #4: Gary Lovisi's RELICS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is a 52-page pamphlet concentrating on relatively recent ephemera, with reproductions of cartoons, advertising artwork, magazine covers, and theater programs, as well as brief comments on newspaper, magazine, and fanzine articles. $3.00 postpaid from Gryphon Books, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228.
78. A minor change in dates for the John Bennett Shaw workshop at Stanford, now Aug. 16-23, 1987. A detailed flier will be available in April from Bruce R. Parker, Stanford University Medical Center S-058, Stanford, CA 94305.
79. Reported by Ron De Waal: "Sherlock Holmes Is Dying" [a dramatization of "Dyin"], by Paul T. Nolan, in Plays: The Drama Magazine for Young People, Nov. 1986 (8 Arlington Street, Boston, MA 02116).
80. The manuscript of "The Adventure of the Mazarin Diamond" is now available for $75,000 from Mark Hime (Idyllwild, CA 92349); the auction price at Christie's (Dec 86 #4) was $49,500 (including the 10% house commission).
81. Royal Doulton Limited is celebrating the centenary with a new edition of their 1973 "Sleuth" character jug (that's the one with the handle formed by the pipe and magnifying glass); the new edition is 18 cm high, with Holmes in scarlet coat and brown hat, 5,000 copies commissioned by and available only from Lawleys by Post (Swift House, Liverpool Road, Newcastle, Staffs. ST5 9JJ, England). £19.50 plus £1.50 shipping, and they take (and ask that American customers use) credit cards.
82. DARK BANQUET: A FEAST OF TWELVE GREAT GHOST STORIES, edited by Lincoln Child (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1985; 255 p., $15.95), includes ACD's "The Horror of the Heights".
83. Reported: WHAT I TELL YOU THREE TIMES IS FALSE, by Samuel Holt, from Tor Books in February ($14.95); "an actor-turned-detective joins a group of actors-portraying-detectives -- Sherlock Holmes, Miss Jane Marple, and Charlie Chan -- as they attempt to protect themselves from, and find the identity of, a killer in their midst."
84. Peter E. Melonas offers a new "Duel at Reichenbach Falls" print (16x20"), $7.50 postpaid from the Sherlock Holmes Tobacco and Mystery Shop, 1726A Sycamore Square Mall, Memphis, TN 38134; write for a flier.
85. According to the Walt Disney Company's 1986 annual report, "24 artfully crafted books based on Basil of 'The Great Mouse Detective' sold half the initial one-million-volume run soon after release" in France.

86. Different Worlds Magazine, a bimonthly covering the world of adventure games, had Michael Szymanski's discussion of "The Adventures of Solar Pons" in the July-Aug. 1986 issue, and Dave and Frankie Arneson's "Sherlock Holmes & the Baby" (a new case for the game SHERLOCK HOLMES: CONSULTING DETECTIVE) in the Nov.-Dec. 1986 issue. 2814 19th Street, San Francisco, CA 94110; $3.00 an issue, or $15.00 a year.
87. The Feb. 2, 1987, issue of People had a five-page celebration of the centenary, with a fine assortment of photos of Sherlockian actors.
-
88. Feb 87 #5: "Fox's 'The Name of the Rose,' if regarded as an art film, did well in sophisticated markets. But since it was a big-budget picture, it has to be considered a flop. It was not a Fox-financed film, but a pick-up in which Fox invested several million dollars plus distribution and marketing costs. The studio may make some money back on ancillaries, but it's too bad Fox didn't have the foreign rights: the film is making a killing in Europe." Anne Thompson, in the San Francisco Examiner, Dec. 15, 1986, spotted by Ted Schulz.
89. "Conan Doyle is probably the world's most ripped-off writer, but none of the copycats has ever replicated the Victorian London that lives these books." Martin Levin, in the San Mateo Times, Dec. 20, 1986, also spotted by Ted. THE CLERICHEWS OF PAUL HORGAN (Middletown: Wesleyan University Press, 1985; 112 p., $15.95 cloth, $8.95 paper) includes one S'ian verse, accompanied by a portrait of Holmes by Joseph Reed.
90. I've had a request for a current source for deerstalkers, which I've seen in a catalog from the Deerskin Trading Post, 119 Foster Street, Peabody, MA 01960 -- are there other sources?
91. Art Ronnie (Columbia Pictures Television, 3300 Riverside Drive, Burbank, CA 91505) has a sales list offering copies of Sherlockian film and television scripts (at $10.00 or $5.00 each), plus some audio tapes and books.
92. Participants at the "Sherlock Holmes in Minnesota" conference in 1984 received some nice collectibles, including two 12-pp. booklets now offered to the public: E. W. McDiarmid's THE REAL SHERLOCK HOLMES (an examination of Adrian Conan Doyle's campaign promoting his father as the model for Sherlock Holmes) and James P. Shannon's "A FIXED POINT IN A CHANGING WORLD" (a discussion of Philip S. Hench and his collection); $3.50 each postpaid. Also available: Andrew Malec's THE FREDERIC DORR STEELE MEMORIAL COLLECTION (a well-illustrated 20-pp. pamphlet published in 1987 to commemorate the acquisition of the collection by the Univ. of Minnesota ($4.50 postpaid). All three items can be ordered from Special Collections, Univ. Libraries, Univ. of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
93. Ely M. Liebow, joining Northeastern Illinois University's celebration of its 25th anniversary, will lecture in Chicago on Mar. 19 on "The Birth of Sherlock Holmes--Without Benefit of Anesthesia." Ely also discovered a 1961 LP recording of "King Richard the Second" with cast including Jeremy Brett as Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, and Edward Hardwicke as Duke of Surrey, Green, and Second Herald. The cast also included John Gielgud, Leo McKern, and Keith Michell, all of whom have appeared in Sherlockian drama -- Gielgud and Michell as Holmes, and McKern played . . .
94. Bouchercon XVIII will be held on Oct. 9-11 in Minneapolis, with Lawrence Block as guest of honor and Steve Stilwell in charge of the convention; registration is $25 until July 1, then $35, or $10 for supporting members (Box 2747, Loop Station, Minneapolis, MN 55402).
95. The latest publication of The Pleasant Places of Florida is Bill Ward's SONNETS BY THE MAJOR (24 p., $5.00 postpaid from the PPOF, 4408 Gulf Drive, Holmes Beach, FL 33510).
-
96. Feb 87 #6: Sir Hugh Carleton Greene died on Feb. 19. He was a journalist in print and radio, and director-general of the BBC from 1960 to 1969. He wrote the Introduction to the Murray/Cape edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET (D697b), and edited four anthologies in his "Rivals of Sherlock Holmes" series (D4943b-D4946b).
97. The Swiss National Tourist Office (Swiss Centre, New Coventry Street, London W1V 8EE, England) has sent an 18-page detailed announcement of the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's "Pilgrimage to Switzerland" from Apr. 30 to May 9. The cost of the tour is £530, there are still a few places open, and anyone interested should contact the SNTO quickly (their London telephone number 01-734-1921).
98. David Susskind died on Feb. 22. His two-hour syndicated television series "The David Susskind Show" included a program on "Sherlock Holmes Is Alive and Well" in which Susskind attempted to interview Nicholas Meyer, Samuel Rosenberg, Albert M. Rosenblatt, and John Bennett Shaw; the program was taped on Dec. 3, 1974, and apparently first aired on Dec. 27, 1974. I hope that there's a tape preserved somewhere, but I don't know of one; it was a fascinating show, with Susskind's poorly prepared questions occasionally bluntly ignored by his guests.
99. Fred Strebeigh's "The Greatest Detective Who Never Lived" (digested from Smithsonian, Dec. 1986) is in the Mar. 1987 issue of Reader's Digest.
100. Cait Murphy's "The Game Is Still Afoot", a long and perceptive article on S'ian scholarship, is in the Mar. 1987 issue of The Atlantic.
101. The second issue of THE PLUM IN THE PUDDING at hand, handsomely produced and well edited, with contributions by five Baltimore S'ians. $5.00 a year from Stephen J. Cribari, Mercantile Bank Building #612, 2 Hopkins Plaza, Baltimore, MD 21201.
102. There's a color photograph of members of The Master's Class of Philadelphia in Derek Nelson's article "For the Love of Holmes" in MD Magazine, Jan. 1987; 30 East 60th Street, New York, NY 10022; $3.75.
103. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: Judith Conway's DETECTIVE TRICKS YOU CAN DO, (Troll Associates, 1986); boy, girl, and dog in S'ian costume throughout. Troll Associates are at 320 Route 17, Mahwah, NJ 07430.
104. John Dickson Carr's PANIC IN BOX C, reissued in paperback (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987; 273 p., $3.50) is a fine murder mystery featuring Dr. Gideon Fell, and an early (and not irrelevant) mention of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes".
105. Peter Loffredo, creator of the fine film about William Gillette (Sep 86 #1 and Nov 86 #2), reports a reduction in the price for 16mm color prints, to $395.00. Videocassettes are still $50.00; orders to Connecticut Heritage Productions, 46 Bretton Road, Middletown, CT 06457. John T. Lescroart's Neronian pastiche SON OF HOLMES has been reprinted in paperback (New York: Leisure Books, 1986; 256 p., $3.25).
-
106. Mar 87 #1: Donald A. Redmond's SHERLOCK HOLMES: A STUDY IN SOURCES is listed in the discount catalog from University Press Books in America (Columbia Univ. Press, 136 South Broadway, Irvington, NY 10533); the book is item XT3919, the price is $14.95 plus $3.00 shipping, and they take plastic.
107. Flier at hand from Gaslight Publications (112 East Second, Bloomington, IN 47401; plastic accepted) announcing ON THE SCENT WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Walter Shepherd (85 p., $14.95 plus $1.00 shipping); a new work, though with the same title as Shepherd's 1978 book.
108. Samuel Holt's WHAT I TELL YOU THREE TIMES IS FALSE (New York: Tor Books, 1987; 249 p., $14.95) is an entertaining murder mystery in which the sleuths (and suspects) include actors noted for portraying Miss Marple, Charlie Chan, and -- Sherlock Holmes.
109. "Nate the Great" is a deerstalkered young detective who stars in a pleasant series of children's books by Marjorie Weinman Sharmat, with illos by Marc Simont. There are now nine NATE THE GREAT titles, published by Coward-McCann, and seven of the books are also available in paperback from Dell.
110. A more detailed forecast: THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr., in paperback from Penguin in June at $3.95.
111. Some British items, reported by Andrew Jay Peck: A STUDY IN SCARLET, adapted by Michael Hardwick (recording on BBC tape, £5.50); ARTHUR AND THE BELLYBUTTON DIAMOND, by Arthur Coren (recording on Talking Tape TTC/KO5); CASEBOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, read by Robert Hardy (Argo);

- THE SPECKLED BAND, read by Donald Pickering (Pickwick PTB601); YOUNG SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE PYRAMID OF FEAR (read-along cassette by Rainbow Communications, £1.99); BASIL OF BAKER STREET, by Eve Titus (Knight, £1.50); BASIL AND THE PYGMY CATS, by Eve Titus (Hodder & Stoughton, £2.95); THE MURDER OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by James Anderson (Star paperback, £1.95); THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES AND OTHER PLAYS, by Michael and Mollie Hardwick (John Murray, £1.75); SHERLOCK HOLMES (Gillette), adapted by Tim Kelly (Hanbury Plays, £2.50); SHERLOCK MEETS THE PHANTOM, by Tim Kelly (Hanbury Plays, £2.30); SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE DEVIL'S FOOT, edited by Peter Haining (Severn House, £6.95); THE COMIC CROOKS, by Terrance Dicks (Blackie, £6.50).
112. "A Study in Scarlet: The HemoQuant Assay for Occult Fecal Blood" is an article in the Feb. 1987 issue of Communique [Mayo Medical Laboratories] (Mayo Clinic, Rochester, MN 55905), reporting on a new procedure in which iron is removed from heme, which is non-fluorescing, to yield porphyrins, which do fluoresce in ultraviolet light. The fluorescence is scarlet, thoroughly appropriate for a procedure that meets most of the requirements of the "Sherlock Holmes" test.
113. The Dramatic Publishing Co. (Box 109, Woodstock, IL 60098) offers four S'ian scripts: THE INCREDIBLE MURDER OF CARDINAL TOSCA, by Alden Nowlan and Walter Learning ($3.50); THE VERY GREAT GRANDSON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Bill Majeski ($3.50); THE RED HOUSE MYSTERY, by Ruth Sergel from Milne's book ($3.50); and THE FAMILY JEWELS, by Andy Gregg ($1.75). THE FAMILY JEWELS is a one-act play about the famous detective Shirley Holmes.
-
114. Mar 87 #2: "When Edward J. Perkins became a lowly staff assistant in the Foreign Service 15 years ago, he took to rereading all the Sherlock Holmes detective stories that had fascinated him in the past," according to an article by Juan Williams in The Washington Post Magazine (Mar. 1, 1987). "But this time he didn't read just for pleasure. He studied Holmes. In the great detective he saw a character who knew how to use logic and cunning to foil his adversaries. Perkins had his own adversaries to worry about--the Ivy League white males who dominated the State Department." Perkins is now the U.S. ambassador in South Africa.
115. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: DETECTIVE TRICKS YOU CAN DO, written by Judith Conaway and illustrated by Renzo Barto (Mahwah: Troll Associates, 1986; 47 pp.), with the young detectives in Sherlockian costume. Troll is at 100 Corporate Drive, Mahwah, NJ 07430. THE RAINBOW BEARS GIANT STORY COLORING BOOK, by Nancy Lee Fuller, is giant indeed (17x22"); Pepper, one of the five Rainbow Bears, appears in S'ian costume (Stoneway, Box 548, Southeastern, PA 91399; $1.50).
116. Flier at hand for "A Centenary Adventure in England with Dr. Arthur Conan Doyle and Mr. Sherlock Holmes" (BCM, Box Dewey, London WC1N 3XX, England); the conference will be Sept. 12-20, in and around London, with Dr. Alvin E. Rodin as tour leader.
117. Further to the earlier report (Jul 86 #4) of plans for a reissue of the 1954 Ronald Howard television series, the new series will be called the "Sherlock Holmes Trilogies" and will consist of thirteen 90-minute movies, available for television, cable, and home video. Patrick Macnee will be host and narrator, filmed at Edinburgh Studios on a 19th-century set with the assistance of Richard Lancelyn Green. No release date as yet.
118. Reported from Britain by Roger Johnson: Granada's "The Sign of Four" is scheduled for broadcast at Christmas, and there will be a "Sherlock Holmes Centenary Season" at the National Film Theatre in December. M. J. Trow's third pastiche, LESTRADE AND THE HALLOWED HOUSE, was published by Macmillan in Jan. (£8.95). Peter Haining's new collection, SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CREEPING MAN, is due from Severn House in Mar. (£8.95). Allen Sharp's third "storytrail" book, SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE CASE OF THE DANCING BEES, is due from Cambridge University Press in Apr. (£1.50). Tsukasa Kobayashi's SHERLOCK HOLMES' LONDON has been published by B. A. Seaby (£10.95). John Buxton Hilton's new Inspector Brunt mystery, SLICKENSIDES, features two mysterious characters calling themselves Holmes and Watson, competing with Brunt to investigate a disappearance in a village in Derbyshire in 1911 (Collins, £8.95). ACD's THE MYSTERY OF CLOOMBER and THE GREAT SHADOW are due from Greenhill in Mar. Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031) has three items of interest in his 2/20/87 discount-book sales list: CHAPLIN: HIS LIFE AND ART, by David Robinson (#51064), a massive biography with detailed coverage of Chaplin's appearances as Billy ($5.95); ROGER MOORE, by Paul Donovan (#91073), a biography with minor discussion of "Sherlock Holmes in New York" ($3.95); and ARTHUR C. CLARKE'S WORLD OF STRANGE POWERS, by John Fairley and Simon Welfare (#31430), with references to ACD's interest in spiritualism ($7.95). Add $3.00 per order for shipping.
-
119. Mar 87 #3: Reported by Lenny Picker: unabridged audio cassettes of THE ADVENTURES (read by Patrick Tull) and THE MEMOIRS (read by Alex Spencer) due from Recorded Books (620 West 26th Street, New York, NY 10001) in April ($39.95 for each set of seven cassettes); their catalog also lists the four long stories. Robert Goldsborough's second Nero Wolfe pastiche DEATH ON DEADLINE (with a story involving Lon Cohen and the Gazette) due from Bantam in April.
120. Princess Nina Mdivani Conan Doyle Harwood died on Mar. 3 in London. Nina was *The* Woman at the cocktail party before the BSI annual dinner in 1975, and contributed an Introduction to the 1975 reprint of TALES OF TERROR AND MYSTERY (D329b), but she was not (as at least one obituary suggests) the last of the royal Georgian clan of Mdivanis. They were Georgian, but they weren't royal; Alice-Leone Moats, in THE MILLION DOLLAR STUDS (New York: Delacorte Press, 1977), gives considerable attention to Nina's brothers, all of whom married rich Americans, and little to Nina, who married Denis Conan Doyle and then Anthony Harwood. Nina (as Baskervilles Investments Limited) for a time controlled the Conan Doyle literary estate.
121. Further to my note (Oct 86 #2) about non-S'ian books that use the titles of SH stories, Dick Lesh notes that Rathbone's film "Dressed to Kill" (1946) was matched by "Dressed to Kill" (1980). Well, yes, and there's the double bill of "Spider Woman" and "Kiss of the Spider Woman" . . .
122. Dick also reports that Rathbone's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" is available on videocassette at $29.95 from Diversions (Box 1834, Newark, NJ 07101). Also the old Murray Hill three-record sets at $7.99 each: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES/THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (film soundtracks), SHERLOCK HOLMES: TALES FROM BAKER STREET (6 Rathbone radio shows), and MORE SHERLOCK HOLMES ADVENTURES (6 Gielgud radio shows). Add $3.50 shipping per order.
123. The British post office plans to issue at least one stamp booklet honoring SH in 1987 -- the booklet covers will be S'ian, not the stamps (there have been many such thematic booklet covers in recent years) -- and a flier at hand from Henry Murray (Arlington Supplies, P.O. Box 143, London N13 4XN, England) offers the booklet at $2.50 and a first day cover at $6.95, as well as their own commemorative cover (postmarked Jan. 8) honoring ACD as a Mason at $4.65. Add $1.00 shipping per order.
124. Per my query (Feb 87 #5) on sources for deerstalkers, the only current report is a local one: available for $25.00 from Hats in the Belfry, 1237 Wisconsin Avenue, Washington, DC 20007.
125. Andy Warhol died in February. According to Chris Steinbrunner (THE FILMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, 1978), "as far back as 1972 pop artist Andy Warhol was reported to be teamed with Rex Reed in an 'underground' variant of the Sherlock Holmes saga, with Reed also playing Watson; this has yet to reach the screen."

126. Ron De Waal has tracked down the comic book MUPPET BABIES (387 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016; $0.75); issue #13 (May 1987) has Kermlock Holmes in "The Strange Case of the Missing Mermaid Costume".
-
127. Mar 87 #4: Albert M. Rosenblatt ("known as Albie to friends," according to the N.Y. Times) has been sworn in as New York State's chief administrative judge. He will administer a court system that has an annual budget of $800 million, about 2,000 judges, and 12,000 other employees, and disposed of more than three million cases in 1986 (that's ten times the total dispositions in federal courts in all 50 states). Al intends to continue his S'ian interests, and impressed the N.Y. Times reporter by correctly naming all four of the long stories.
128. Flier at hand from artist Stefanie K. Hawks (Box 50453, Knoxville, TN 37950) offering S'ian prints, postcard, and stationery.
129. The Mystery Writers of America nominees for best motion picture screenplay include "The Great Mouse Detective" and "The Name of the Rose" -- the Edgar winners will be announced on May 8. "The Name of the Rose" is available on videocassette (Embassy Home Entertainment, $79.95). And a bit of trivia: F. Murray Abraham, who won an Oscar for "Amadeus" and then played Bernardo Gui, the inquisitor, in "The Name of the Rose", began his screen career in a S'ian film: "They Might Be Giants", in which he played the Usher.
130. Harlan Ellison was in Toronto for a lecture on Feb. 8, according to an article at hand from Cam Hollyer. Ellison suggested that those in search of success must read and re-read only one essential book: the collected Sherlock Holmes stories. "They teach you deductive logic. They teach you observation. They teach you to see what is going on around you. The more you see, the more you understand. And the quicker and cleverer you are at spotting and reading people and things, the less you can be manipulated."
131. Videotaper alert: "Young Sherlock Holmes" will be on The Movie Channel on Apr. 10, 12, and 15.
132. If your PBS station was pledge-driving on Mar. 12, you may not have seen the Vincent Price end-of-the-program piece if the station substituted a plea for donations (unless you also watched the repeat daytime broadcast); Price commented on the interesting increase in Holmes' fee, and announced that in the next program Holmes will be involved with the Mafia.
133. Forecast (for November, from Villard Books): THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND, by Michael Hardwick, with illos by Steranko. Villard hopes that the book will be "the first in a series of Sherlock Holmes novels, in the same vein as John Gardner's extremely successful series of 007 novels," according to Villard's editorial director Peter Gethers, quoted in Publishers Weekly.
134. THE ADVENTURE OF BLUE PETER, by John Ruyle, is the first episode in the long-anticipated Memoirs of Turlock Loams; a welcome addition to the Turlockian Canon, and finely printed, as usual, at The Pequod Press. $28.50 (cloth) or $13.50 (paper), from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
135. Reported from London: a new pub sign at The Sherlock Holmes (the real pub sign, not a souvenir), with a new Holmes resembling Peter Cushing. No mention of when the new sign was installed, or how many S'ians have visited the pub without observing the change.
-
136. Mar 87 #5: Found by Mel Ruiz: "Buster Keaton Scrapbook" on videocassette from Prestige Home Theatre, with two 30-minute TV shows: "This Is Your Life" and "The Detective" (from a short-lived series starring Keaton, broadcast in the early 50s; in this episode "Buster is a sleuth, the likes of which Sherlock Holmes never saw"). Mel reports that the detective is Sam Spade, but Keaton does use a magnifying glass, and has a bloodhound named Watson. I have no idea what series this is from, but it might be "Life with Buster Keaton", a series syndicated in 1951 or 1952; according to the TV reference books, the series consisted primarily of reedited Keaton shorts from the 1930s and 1940s, plus comedy vignettes in which he played "a man struggling to cope with life's endless problems."
137. Dick Rutter, now resident in Germany, reports a source for two items: the nutcracker (30 cm high, at left, about $45.00) and a "Rauchermann" in which one can burn incense (25 cm high, at right, about $25.00); shipping extra, VISA accepted, and you can order from Walter H. Hirschmann, Am Stadtwald 8, 8489 Eschenbach/Opf, West Germany.
138. A new sales list received from Ilene Fauer at US 2 (563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652); the new items include centennial note pads and magnets.
139. There's a series called "Mad Movies with the L.A. Connection" on cable (Nickelodeon); they do parodies of old movies, and two of the programs are based on Rathbone's "Secret Weapon" and "Dressed to Kill". Please let me know if you tape these or any other S'ian programs in the series.
140. Copies of the S'ian multi-color 14x24" poster for Sherlockon II, held this month in Torrance, are available for $3.00 postpaid from Sherlock in L.A. Press, 2712 Scott Road, Burbank, CA 91504.
141. "It is true that Holmes sometimes confused induction with deduction, and that he came to the incredible conclusion that there is as much wisdom in Hafiz as there is in Horace. And to speak plainly, he did on a few occasions express an unhealthy interest in continental philosophy. But he made no other mistakes, and what is the very last importance, he defeated a man whose treatise on the binomial theorem has had a European vogue." Marvin Levich, in "Bookmarks: the Return of Metaphysics, and of Sherlock Holmes" in the spring 1987 issue of Reed: The Quarterly of Reed College (3203 S.E. Woodstock Boulevard, Portland, OR 97202); forwarded by Jerry Margolin.
-
142. Mar 87 #6: The Mysterious Bookshop's spring catalog at hand, with a S'iana section. Also the spring issue of Mysterious News, with a short article by Len Deighton and news about Mysterious Press books (100 planned for 1987); the address for both is 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019. The press is also co-sponsoring a day-long mystery-fiction conference on May 16; details available from Jerry Weiss, Dept. of English, Jersey City State College, 2039 Kennedy Bouevard, Jersey City, NY 17305.
143. Reported by Andy Peck: a "Sherlock Holmes Centennial Collection" of audio tapes of 12 Rathbone/Bruce radio shows, $26.90 from The Source, Box 795232, Dallas, TX 75379.
144. Reported by Roger Johnson: filming of Granada's "Sign" is almost complete. In Sept. they will start on the fourth (and final) series (according to Michael Cox, the new shows "almost certainly" will be "Devi", "Bruc", "Silv", "Wist", and a two-part "Houn").
145. "The Adventure at the Crossroads" is a Sherlockian mystery weekend set for Apr. 10-12 at the Vintners Inn (4350 Barnes Road, Santa Rose, CA 95401).
146. "The Many Faces of Sherlock Holmes" (the one-hour television special with Christopher Lee as host), broadcast here and there in 1986, is reported available on videocassette at $79.95 (sorry, company not known).
147. Reported from England: a S'ian commemorative plate from Caverswall China Ltd., Berry Hill Road, Stoke-on-Trent, England.
148. In case your PBS television station didn't broadcast "The Real Adventures of Sherlock Jones and Proctor Watson" (Jan 87 #2), here's a sample:
-
149. Apr 87 #1: Reported by Brian R. MacDonald: SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE'S CELEBRATED CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (see Nov 86 #3), with 18 stories and 12 new color plates by Graham Ward (London: Octopus Books, 1986; 318 p., $9.98 at B. Dalton). RUNNING AND BEING: THE TOTAL EXPERIENCE, by Dr. George Sheehan (Warner paperback, $6.95); the chapter on "Racing" has S'ian artwork. BIALOSKY AND THE BIG PARADE MYSTERY, by Justine Koman with illos by Tom Cooke (Big Little Golden Book #10262; $1.19); with a deerstalkered teddy bear.
150. THE CLASSIC ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (Stamford: Longmeadow Press, 1987; 636 p., $7.95) is on the discount tables at Waldenbooks. The book is a new issue of THE COMPLETE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (D270b) and THE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES

- published by Castle Books in 1976 and 1980, with all the stories illustrated by Sidney Paget, in facsimile from The Strand Magazine, with a new color jacket illustration by Eric Kincaid.
151. Reported by Paul Merz: a 12-page article by Frank D. McConnell on ACD and SH and "Detecting Order Amid Disorder" in the Wilson Quarterly, spring 1987 (600 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, DC 20024; $5.00). "What Arthur Conan Doyle did 100 years ago was not simply to invent one of the imperishable figures in the history of English literature but also to provide a form of storytelling, a way of thinking, that has been of inestimable value throughout this troubled century. Only the entrenched snobs of academic criticism should be able, at this date, to ignore the importance of the form and its creator. To most readers, recognition of that importance is, as the Master himself was fond of saying, elementary."
  152. Paul also reports Michael Ffinch's G. K. CHESTERTON (Harper & Row, $18.95); a new biography blurbed as drawing upon recently discovered material (letters, poems, and a Sherlock Holmes story) to give a very different picture of a major literary figure.
  153. The New York International Antiquarian Book Fair (Apr. 2-4) featured sales and exhibitions celebrating the centenary and (according to the ad spotted by Tom Stix), an informal talk by Gahan Wilson on "The Enduring Influence of Sherlock Holmes."
  154. Also from Tom is Enid Nemy's column in the N.Y. Times (Mar. 27, 1987) about Sherlock Holmes' search for Dr. Watson. Frank Langella's search, that is. Langella has everything needed for his $1 million production of Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" except a Watson. The play, described as "an exploration of ego and envy, as well as a thriller," is scheduled in Washington (June 19-July 25) before opening on Broadway.
  155. At hand from Alan R. Kaplan is the Oregon State Bar Bulletin (Aug.-Sept. 1986), with Rathbone and Bruce on the cover and as frontispiece to Teresa Carp's article on "Hiring a Legal Investigator". 1776 S.W. Madison Street, Portland, OR 97205; $2.00.
  156. The Franklin Library (Franklin Center, PA 19091) is launching the "Franklin Library of Mystery Masterpieces" with 50 monthly titles at $14.50 each plus shipping; one of the titles, according to a recent advertisement, will be GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.

---

  157. Apr 87 #2: "To say that MI5, the British Secret Service, was and remains the mastermind behind the Piltdown hoax is to provoke outrage by readers of decent sensibilities," Charles J. Blinderman suggested in an article in the Journal of Irreproducible Results (Feb.-Mar. 1986). But he also concluded that "only the British Government could have had a motive sufficient for the initiation of this hoax and the resources to carry it out so comprehensively." Blinderman has now addressed the matter more seriously, in his new book THE PILTDOWN INQUEST (Buffalo: Prometheus Books, 1986; 261 p., $22.95); his work is carefully researched, and his book is written with style and humor. His chapter on Conan Doyle (hardly a serious candidate as culprit, according to Blinderman) is, unfortunately, written as a S'ian pastiche, and Blinderman is not an accomplished pasticheur.
  158. The Journal of Irreproducible Results, I should add, has been described (accurately) as "the funniest thing to happen to science since Archimedes ran naked through the streets of Syracuse." Box 234, Chicago Heights, IL 60411; $5.90 for five issues.
  159. The latest mail-order catalog (749M) from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) offers THE CONAN DOYLE STORIES (76 tales in a reissue from the 1929 John Murray edition) at $6.95, and videocassettes of six of the Granada programs (Scan, Blue, Spec, Danc, Nava, Soli) at $29.95 each.
  160. Bantam's two-volume paperback edition of SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE NOVELS AND STORIES is finally in the bookstores ($4.95 each volume), with an Introduction by Loren D. Estleman, who fervently defends Dr. Watson against his detractors.
  161. LESTRADE AND THE HALLOWED HOUSE (Macmillan, £8.95), the third novel in M. J. Trow's series about Lestrade, received an approving review in Punch.
  162. Michael Hardwick's SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES (BSJ Jun 85) has been issued as a trade paperback (New York: Henry Holt, 1986; 208 p., $7.95). Hardwick's THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES (BSJ Mar 87) has been published in an American edition (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1986; 255 p., $16.95).
  163. Reported by Dana Richards: SEVEN CLUES TO THE ORIGIN OF LIFE: A SCIENTIFIC DETECTIVE STORY (BSJ Mar 87) has been reissued in wrappers (Cambridge Univ. Press). THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN, by G. K. Chesterton, annotated by Martin Gardner, has a lengthy comparison of Father Brown and Sherlock Holmes (Oxford Univ. Press, 1987; an American edition due soon).
  164. SLICKENSIDES, by John Buxton Hilton (London: William Collins, 1987; 164 p., £8.95), is an interesting murder mystery set in Derbyshire in 1911; the detective, Inspector Brunt, sorts through the local suspects as well as two London outsiders who appear to be (but aren't) Holmes and Watson.
  165. THE CRIMSON CIRCLE is the 24-page newsletter of The Edgar Wallace Society (write to John A. Hogan, 7 Devonshire Close, Amersham, Bucks, HP6 5JG, England; membership including subscription is £6.00). And the newsletter often has S'ian material; the Feb. 1987 issue reprints Wallace's "Sherlock Holmes on the Cambridge" (D5224b).

---

  166. Apr 87 #3: I have completed work on the computer file of Sherlockian societies (407 societies, including 181 active societies). The numbers will change, of course, as the file is revised. A print-out (37 pages) with names of all societies, and contact names and addresses for all active societies, is available for $2.50 postpaid. Labels are available for mailings to active societies, at $10.00 a run.
  167. Sound Track Album Retailers has a new address (Box 487, New Holland, PA 17557), and their latest catalog relists the record of "Young Sherlock Holmes" (MCA 6159) at $9.95; shipping extra, and they take plastic.
  168. The Occupants of the Empty House have just published the 100th issue of The Camden House Journal, their monthly newsletter (and there are only a few other scions with that fine a track record). At the end of 1986 they also published BEEMAN'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL, a 28-page pamphlet with articles and artwork by members; copies are still available for $3.00 postpaid from William R. Cochran, 517 North Vine Street, DuQuoin, IL 62832.
  169. The "Sherlock Holmes Centennial Collection" (Mar 87 #6) has six cassettes with twelve of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows, from "The Bruce-Partington Plans" (1939) to "The Night Before Christmas" (1945), on high-quality recordings; $31.90 postpaid from The Source, Box 795232, Dallas, TX 75379.
  170. Kiyoshi Tanaka brought a few copies of his 1987 Sherlockian calendar to the birthday festivities in New York, and it is a handsome production, with an attractive full-page illustration by Kiyoshi for each month. Copies are still available from Kiyoshi Tanaka, 8-7 Babacho, Isogo-ku, Yokohama City, Kanagawa 235, Japan, for $10.00 postpaid; please send currency, not checks (Japanese banks charge even more for foreign checks than British banks do.)
  171. Dr. N. Joel Ehrenkranz discussed "A. Conan Doyle, Sherlock Holmes, and Murder by Tropical Infection" in a 4-page article in Reviews of Infectious Diseases, Jan.-Feb. 1987; reprints may still be available from the author (1295 N.W. 14th Street, suite M, Miami, FL 33125).
  172. Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804) reports that he stocks deerstalkers, as well as bowlers for Watson and genuine helmets for your local bobby; write for details.
  173. The Easton Press (47 Richards Avenue, Norwalk, CT 06857) is planning a deluxe three-volume COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES 100TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION at $37.50 postpaid per volume; this will be a reissue of the Heritage Press edition, bound in leather, with full-color Steele frontispieces.

174. At hand from Charles Shields: "Adventures of a Young Balzac", an article by Michael Murphy on Vincent Starrett's newspaper career in Chicago, in the spring 1987 issue of Inland: The Magazine of the Middle West (Inland Steel Co., 30 West Monroe Street, Chicago, IL 60603).
175. THE HOLMESIAN FEDERATION #7 (Feb 87 #2) at hand, with Tina Rhea's "Pax de Deux" (Sherlock and Irene post-Reichenbach), four other pastiches, and some fine illos by Stefanie Hawks; 91 p., $4.00 postpaid from Signe Landon (14985 256th Avenue SE, Issaquah, WA 98027).
-
176. Apr 87 #4: 1988 will be the centenary of Jack the Ripper's bloody visits to Whitechapel, and Alexander Kelly has revised and expanded his JACK THE RIPPER: A BIBLIOGRAPHY AND REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE (D2251b); it's an expert review of who's written what about Saucy Jack, and available for £7.95 from the Association of Assistant Librarians, 55a Lordship Lane, East Dulwich, London SE22 8EP, England.
177. The Renegade Press comic CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #6 (Mar. 1987) has "The Resident Patient" with more of Dan Day's artwork. Six issues may indeed be the longest recorded run of a S'ian comic book.
178. Flier at hand for "Fiddling Around with Sherlock Holmes" (also known as the "Centennial Weekend with John Bennett Shaw") at the College of William and Mary on July 24-26, 1987; write to Ray Betzner (2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, VA 23185).
179. MERCENARIES, SPIES & PRIVATE EYES is a boxed-set role-playing game from Sleuth Publications (689 Florida Street, San Francisco, CA 94110), with a 124-page rulebook, 32-page adventure, character sheets, and dice; $20.00. The game is much like Dungeons & Dragons, requiring a game-master to run (and invent) the scenario, which might be Victorian London, with Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty as three of the many possible characters.
180. Erratum (Mar 87 #3): Princess Nina Mdivani Conan Doyle Harwood died on Feb. 18 in London, I am informed by a reliable reader.
181. The Quality Paperback Club (Camp Hill, PA 17011-9968) has again offered its members its Sherlock Holmes sweatshirt (with the caricature by Gerry Gersten), at $16.00. I'm not sure that it's available to non-members, however. If you'd like to join the club (right now you get three books for $1.00, with no further purchase obligation), Andrew Jay Peck (24 Fifth Avenue #829, New York, NY 10011) will be happy to supply details.
182. GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is a "Best Loved Audiobooks" two-cassette package from Random House/Reader's Digest ($14.95), with four cases (Twis, RedH, Spec, Blue) capably read by Robert Lindsay; the text of the stories follows the 1966 Reader's Digest Association book (D687a).
183. Scholastic Voice (Mar. 23, 1987) has much S'ian, including "The Speckled Band" adapted for radio by the Hardwicks, "The Last of Sherlock Holmes" by Tim Kelly, and an interview with Tim Kelly. 730 Broadway, New York, NY 10003; $2.25 for the Teachers' Edition.
184. The Feb. 1987 issue of Tourist in London Magazine (a courtesy hotel and in-flight magazine) has Michael Mahoney's two-page article on "Sherlock Holmes' London" and a S'ian color cover; Lee Publications, 98 Plashet Road, London E13 ORQ, England.
185. Richard D. Lesh (2631 Flintridge Place, Fort Collins, CO 80521) has found a few copies of the handsome medal issued by The Maiwand Jezails in 1980 to commemorate the centenary of the Battle of Maiwand. The medal (BSJ Sep 1982, photo on p. 191) is silver-plate over bronze, green ribbon, $30.00 postpaid and insured.
-
186. Apr 87 #5: Has anyone done any research on M. Oscar Meunier of Grenoble? Donald A. Redmond (SHERLOCK HOLMES: A STUDY IN SOURCES, 1982, p. 111) notes a Belgian engraver named Jean-Baptiste Meunier, born in 1821, and the firm of Henri Meunier & Co., artists' colourmen, in the Earl's Court Road. But there was also the Belgian sculptor Constantin Meunier, who exhibited in several Salons des Beaux-Arts in Paris, including one in 1893; he was favored by Siegfried Bing (the inventor of "art nouveau"). Another of Bing's artists was James Ensor, a Belgian who was a member of the XX Group in 1902; it is in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" that Holmes "was entirely absorbed in the pictures of the modern Belgian masters."
187. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is a four-cassette package presenting careful readings of four cases (RedH, Iden, Musg, Twis); $15.99 from the Great American Gift Co., 33 Portman Road, New Rochelle, NY 10801.
188. Some British news, via Roger Johnson: the Folio Society (202 Great Suffolk Street, London, SE.1, England) will publish their new edition of "Houn" (with illos by Edward Bawden) in August. Tyburn Productions plans to start production "within the next few months" on "The Abbot's Cry" (with Peter Cushing and John Mills). That's Entertainment records will issue an album of Patrick Gowers' music from the Granada series.
189. Here's another one of those "name an actor" questions: name a professional actor who has played both Billy and Watson. The answer is on the next page, so don't wait to think about it.
190. We've had Sherlock Holmes musicals, and a Sherlock Holmes ballet. Now John Bennett Shaw reports "The Hound of the Baskervilles" presented in dance, mime, and music by the National Tap Dance Company in Toronto on Mar. 29.
191. Also from John is a newspaper report: "For the past two years, a Tokyo sleuth calling himself Doctor Yu has headed a firm named Sherlock Holmes Japan, which will locate your lost love for you, very discreetly, and give you the details you want." The cost is $120 in Tokyo, $140 in the rest of Japan, plus a $45 bonus if the search is successful (they claim a 99% success rate), and the company is taking in about $1,350,000 a year.
192. Flier at hand for Bouchercon XVIII (Murder in the North Country) at the Ritz Hotel in Minneapolis, Oct. 9-11. Lawrence Block will be guest of honor, and there will be a full day of alternate S'ian programming, with John Bennett Shaw, to celebrate the centenary. The address is Box 2747, Loop Station, Minneapolis, MN 55402; registration is $25.00 until July 1, $35.00 thereafter, and $10.00 for supporting membership.
193. In the course of my research for the list of Sherlockian societies, I have found 12 inactive societies for which we have no information on who the founder or contact was. I would appreciate hearing from anyone who knows anything about: The Boulevard Assassins of Paris, The Boulevard Assassins of Suburban Detroit, The Cascade Canoneers, The Deal-Top Monographers, The Lion's Mane of Grand Rapids, The Puzzled Squires of Downey, The Resident Patients of Montana State University, The Retired Colourmen of Essex, The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Canonical Criminals, The Sons of Sherlock Holmes, The Students in Terror, or The West of Tokyo Interpreters.
194. Apr 87 #6: COLLECTING: THE PASSIONATE PASTIME, by Susanna Johnston and Tim Beddow (New York: Harper & Row, 1986; 136 p., $24.95), is a fascinating book, based on interviews with British collectors and fully illustrated with color photographs. One of the collectors is Richard Lancelyn Green, who has created a Sherlock Holmes room at Poulton Hall.
195. Reported by Tom Stix: Xavier Roberts Collectors Dispatch, winter 1987, with an illustrated story "The Case of the Black Feather" featuring Cabbage Patch doll Otis Lee in S'ian costume. The magazine is published by the BabyLand General Hospital, 19 Underwood Street, P.O. Box 714, Cleveland, GA 30528; $3.00.
196. "Sherlock Holmes and the Poirot Connexion" is a new pastiche by Julian Symons, in the Apr. 1987 issue of The Illustrated London News; the color cover by Paul Slater is better than the pastiche.
197. Chris Redmond's WELCOME TO AMERICA, MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES (his report on ACD's 1894 visit) is now announced for publication this spring. Additional information available from Simon and Pierre, P.O. Box 80, Adelaide Street Postal Station, Toronto, Ont. M5C 2J4, Canada.
198. The professional actor who has played both Billy and Watson is Christian Slater, who played Billy (with Frank Langella as Holmes) in the 1981 HBO television version of William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes", and Adso of Melk (with Sean Connery as William of Baskerville) in the 1986 film "The Name of the Rose".

199. THE COPPERFIELD CHECKLIST OF MYSTERY AUTHORS, edited by Pamela Granovetter and Karen Thomas, follows the format of A SHOPPING LIST OF MYSTERY CLASSICS (BSJ Mar 87); ACD is one of the 100 authors, with 25 titles listed. The 128-page book is available for $7.00 postpaid from The Copperfield Press, 306 West 11th Street, New York, NY 10014.
200. The British stamp booklet (Mar 87 #3) honoring "Stud" was issued on Apr. 14, and will be followed by three more (dates not set) honoring "Houn", "Spec", and "Fina".
201. Our circulation department, noting that every mailing this year has been six pages, calculates that the cost of printing and mailing requires an increase in the subscription price, to $8.00 a year. Editorial departments never argue with circulation departments, of course, so future renewals will be at the new price.
-
202. May 87 #1: "The Jewel in the Crown" is back on PBS-TV, starting May 24. Ronald Merrick is played by Tim Pigott-Smith, who played Dr. Watson in the Royal Shakespeare Company's revival of "Sherlock Holmes". And there are minor references to Sherlock Holmes in episodes 12 ("The Moghul Room") and 13 ("Pandora's Box").
203. There will be more Sherlockian stamps issued this year than I predicted. A pane of 50 different stamps showing North American wildlife will be issued on June 13. The animals include a bighorn sheep and a bison, to name only two specifically American animals found in the Canon. And there are many more candidates, if you're willing to stretch a bit (the badger and the rabbit in "Sign" probably weren't American, nor the foxes in "Houn", and there are others). The pane might make an interesting visual quiz.
204. And a commemorative honoring New Jersey statehood will be issued on July 15. I trust you all know who was born in New Jersey . . .
205. And a postal card honoring the 150th anniversary of John Deere's invention of the self-scouring steel plow will be issued on May 22. Howard Garrideb advertised "steam and hand plows" but may not have meant anything that old.
206. David G. Kirby (Rupert Books, 59 Stonefield, Bar Hill, Cambridge CB3 8TE, England) has issued a colorful centenary catalog ("A Century of Scarlet") with book offers, color photographs, and eight color illustrations for the story by David Cory; the catalog costs $4.00 postpaid by airmail.
207. Question #1: What was the name of the first novel written by Conan Doyle?
208. Laboromnia (15 Wallingford Avenue, London W10 6QA, England) has a color flier showing items in their centenary collection (busts in bronze or ceramic, plates, a mug, and a thimble); their American agent is Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718).
209. Pedro J. Saavedra's short S'ian poem "Detectiverse: Wiggins" is in the May 1987 issue of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine.
210. Richard D. Lesh (2631 Flintridge Place, Fort Collins, CO 80521) offers high-quality stereo audio cassettes made from his high-fidelity Austrian phonograph record of "The Polyphonic Motets of Roland de Lassus" (Mons 1532, Les Larmes de St. Pierre, Academy of St. Martin in the Fields Choir, Cambridge University, 45 minutes); $10.00 postpaid.
211. Dick also reports that Publisher's Central Bureau (One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07131) offers a new videocassette: "100 Years of Sherlock Holmes" (60 minutes, black-and-white, $19.95). According to the catalog, "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous sleuth is the focus of this compilation covering the filmed history of Holmes and Watson. Holmes has thrilled fans for one hundred years and this memorable collector's piece will satisfy anyone's interest." No other information available as yet.
212. And Dick reports that on May 2 the syndicated TV series "Entertainment Tonight" included a 10-minute segment on the centenary, with film of ACD and an interview with Sherlock Holmes' secretary Sue Brown.
-
213. May 87 #2: The latest issue of the August Derleth Society Newsletter (winter-spring 1987) has a fine article by Michael Harrison on "Derleth: My Fellow Duke" (both were dukes of the Caribbean kingdom of Redonda, and surely are still regarded as such by those who deny Great Britain's subsequent claim of sovereignty over the island). The newsletter is published quarterly by the August Derleth Society and edited by Richard H. Fawcett, 61 Teecomwas Drive, Uncasville, CT 06382; $5.00 a year.
214. In a letter to the editor of Stamps (May 2, 1987), Robert Boos reports a new production error in two recent episodes of the Granada series: mail inspected or received by Holmes bears a Penny Black stamp, unlikely to be used in the late nineteenth century. I think that "unlikely" is the key word here: the penny black (1840) was superseded by a penny red (1864), and there were new one-penny stamps issued in 1880 and 1881 with a new design.
215. Question #2: What was the name of the second novel written by Conan Doyle?
216. THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr., is now out in paperback (New York: Penguin Books, 1987; 278 pp., $3.95); it's one of the better pastiches (BSJ Dec 86).
217. The Woods-Runner (the official meeting place and magazine of Unicorn Hunters International) generally reflects many if not most of the varied interests of its soon-to-retire (but never retiring) general manager Bill Rabe. It's published quarterly at $3 a year by Lake Superior State College (Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783); the next issue (#59) will include "Letters about Sherlock" (excerpts from The Agony Column).
218. The two-record album with two of the Rathbone/Bruce radio broadcasts from "The New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (Oct 86 #1) is a fine production, with high-quality recordings of "The Unfortunate Tobacconist" (30 Apr 45) and "The Paradol Chamber" (21 May 45), interesting commentary by Ben Wright (who played Holmes in a later series), an informative booklet on "Sherlock Holmes on American Radio", and handsome album decorations. The scripts were written by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, and the album is a limited edition (3,000 copies), available for $27.50 postpaid from 221 "A" Baker Street Associates, Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035-998.
219. Peter Melonas reports that the first issue of Pipefinder portrays Sherlock Holmes searching for the perfect pipe; available free from Pipefinder, Box 721288, Houston, TX 77272.
220. Colin Blakely died on May 7. He was a fine Watson in Billy Wilder's "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes", and one of his last appearances was in the British television series "Paradise Postponed".
221. Peter Haining's THE TELEVISION SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: W. H. Allen, 1986; 224 pp., £14.95) is now available at B. Dalton stores for $24.95; it's the third printing, indicating that the book has been successful, and with reason: half of the book is a discussion of Sherlock Holmes and Sherlockian television pre-Granada, and half of the book is devoted to the Granada series. Both sections are profusely illustrated, with much color, and the book is up-to-date through the first twenty Granada programs. Recommended.
-
222. May 87 #3: A brief report on the sale of John Michael Gibson's collection on Apr. 24-25 at the California Book Auction Galleries: it was great fun, according to the auction staff and to people who were there. The sale total for the 2,007 lots was about $94,000 (including the 10% buyer's premium), and all lots were sold (there were no reserves). There were about 175 bidders (about half of them by mail, with a few people bidding by telephone), and the collectors apparently did better than the dealers: almost all of the "high spots" (such as the sets of first editions and the long runs of The Strand Magazine) went to collectors.

223. Rudy Rucker has edited MATHENAUTS: TALES OF MATHEMATICAL WONDER (New York: Arbor House, 1987; 300 pp., $18.95 cloth, $9.95 paper); the book includes Ruth Berman's "Professor and Colonel", a pleasant speculation about a meeting between two of the Moriarty brothers.
224. Reported by Helen Heinrich: Daniel Pinkwater's THE SNARKOUT BOYS & THE AVODCADO OF DEATH (BSJ Mar 84) and THE SNARKOUT BOYS & THE BACONBURG HORROR (BSJ Jun 85) are now available as Signet Vista paperbacks (160 pp., $2.25 and $2.50). Also a new expanded edition of the Signet Classic paperback THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERIES (BSJ Mar 85) now with 22 stories ($3.50).
225. The Washington Post reports from the Cannes Film Festival that "Night of the Comet" director Thom Eberhardt will be behind the cameras for "The Impostor of Baker Street", a $10 million comedy-adventure with the intriguing premise that the bumbling Dr. Watson was actually the brains behind Sherlock Holmes. One reference book summarizes "Night of the Comet" as "world comes to an end, leaving only a couple of California valley girls behind!"
226. Question #3: What was the name of the third novel written by Conan Doyle?
227. Reported from Britain: Hesketh Pearson's CONAN DOYLE (D3956a) has been reissued in paper covers by Unwin Hyman at £6.95.
228. Reported by Jack Kerr: M. J. Trow's THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (BSJ Mar 86) in paperback (Stein and Day, $13.95).
229. Monsignor Thomas A. Whelan ("The Vatican Cameos") died on Apr. 21. One of the early members of The Six Napoleons, he was born in Baltimore and had ten generations of ancestors in Maryland.
230. I don't know of any S'ian references in books by Elizabeth Linington (aka Lesley Egan, Anne Blaisdell, Egan O'Neill, and Dell Shannon), but there is a newsletter for her fans; sample copy available from Rinehart S. Potts, 1223 Glen Terrace, Glassboro, NJ 08028.
231. John T. Lescroart's RASPUTIN'S REVENGE (New York: Donald I. Fine, 1987; 285 pp., $17.95) is his second novel about Auguste Lupa, who was first seen in last year's SON OF HOLMES, a Neronian pastiche that was only inferentially Sherlockian. In RASPUTIN'S REVENGE we find Auguste Lupa (whose passport is in the name of John Hamish Adler Holmes) in St. Petersburg in 1916, trying to solve a complicated series of murders, accused of espionage, rescued by his father, and eventually successful in solving the mystery.
-
232. May 87 #4: Fanny Butcher died on May 14 in Chicago at the age of 99. She worked at the Chicago Tribune for 50 years, including 40 years as literary editor, and of course she knew Vincent Starrett well, and found occasion to write about him (as well as about Sherlock Holmes) in her own Sunday column "The Literary Spotlight" -- in which, on Jan. 16, 1955, she reported that "the story that Doyle called his hero Holmes after Oliver Wendell Holmes was his own invention, Starrett now admits."
233. In case you weren't paying attention, the three questions are: What was the name of the first novel written by Conan Doyle? What was the name of the second novel written by Conan Doyle? What was the name of the third novel written by Conan Doyle? The answers will be given next month, when I will also recognize those who submit correct answers on their first attempts.
234. Terry Carr died on Apr. 7. There were S'ian stories in two collections he edited: THE BEST SCIENCE FICTION OF THE YEAR NO. 1 (D4825b) and UNIVERSE 5 (D5244b).
235. Chris Redmond reports another non-Sherlockian book with a Sherlockian title: Lauri Lewin's NAKED IS THE BEST DISGUISE: MY LIFE AS A STRIPPER (London: Pandora, 1984).
236. On May 7 the syndicated TV series "PM Magazine" (and "Evening Magazine") included a 6-minute segment from London on the centenary, with clips from some of the Rathbone films, views of the exterior of The Sherlock Holmes, and interviews with Stanley MacKenzie and Sue Brown.
237. A brief report, from Andrew Jay Peck, on a few of the awards by the Mystery Writers of America at their annual dinner on May 9 in New York. Michael Gilbert (D691b, D1825b) won this year's Grand Master Award. The Edgar for best motion picture went to "Something Wild" (the nominees included "The Great Mouse Detective" and "The Name of the Rose").
238. The Fourth Irregular Quinquennial Holmesian Dinner was a splendid affair, with some 160 people gathered hungrily at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16. The centenary of the publication of "A Study in Scarlet" was celebrated with Afghan hors d'oeuvres, followed by an international buffet that ranged from London to Cleveland. The festivities included wining and dining and toasting at the CIA, post-prandial conversation at the Beekman Arms, and The Norwegian Named Sigerson Commemorative Syttende Mai Pancake Breakfast at the Rhinebeck Fire House. CIA master chef Fritz Sonnenschmidt received the BSI's Two-Shilling Award for his continuing services to the cause, and Al and Julie Rosenblatt were awarded a joint Queen Victoria Medal for their imaginative celebration of the centenary of the publication of the first Sherlock Holmes story. It was pleasantly coincidental that the spring 1987 issue of the county magazine Dutchess included a major article on Judge Albert Rosenblatt "at work and at play" (Al is learning to play the clarinet, and Julie thinks "it's wonderful that he's learning to play after all these years . . . as long as you don't have to hear him").
239. Plan ahead: the Fifth Irregular Quinquennial Holmesian Dinner has been announced for May 4, 1991, by way of honoring the centenary of the fateful meeting at the Reichenbach.
-
240. May 87 #5: The American Booksellers Association gathered in Washington on May 23-26, and it was an impressive gathering: more than 1,000 exhibitors, more than 20,000 people registered, and god knows how many books, current and planned. Some plans were of particular interest:
241. Mysterious Press: THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, leather-bound, with 12 color plates and more than 50 line drawings by Frederic Dorr Steele, and an introduction by Andrew Malec (Nov., 320 pp., $25.00); an American edition of Julian Symons' 1979 biography CONAN DOYLE: PORTRAIT OF AN ARTIST (Nov., 160 pp., $15.95).
242. Carroll & Graf: THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: ORIGINAL STORIES BY EMINENT MYSTERY WRITERS, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (Oct., 324 pp., $18.95); HOUND DUNIT, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin Harry Greenberg, and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh, with "Silver Blaze" and Rex Stout's "A Dog in the Daytime" (Sept., 256 pp., $15.95); a reprint of John Dickson Carr's 1949 biography THE LIFE OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (Oct., 310 pp., $8.95 paper); H. R. F. Keating's CRIME & MYSTERY: THE 100 BEST BOOKS, a survey that includes "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Nov., 220 pp., $15.95).
243. St. Martin's Press: THE SPECKLED BAND, illustrated by Paul Morrissey, in a new "Night Lights" children's series with glow-in-the-dark clues (Oct., 32 pp., $6.95); an American edition of John Buxton Hilton's SLICKENSIDES (Mar 87 #2) (Oct., 176 pp., $13.95).
244. International Polygonics: a reprint of Herbert Brean's WILDERS WALK AWAY (Oct., 250 pp., $4.50 paper). Their fall 1987 trade catalog has a nice S'ian color cover by Roger Roth, and they gave me their extras (not enough for everyone, unfortunately); if you would like one, send me $1.00 to cover mailing costs.
245. Iron Crown Enterprises (distributed by the Berkley Publishing Group): a series of "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" similar to Allen Sharp's choose-your-own-plot "Storytrails" series for Cambridge University Press. There are 8 titles planned, starting with Gerald Lientz's MURDER AT THE DIOGENES CLUB (Sept., 160 pp., $2.95 paper).

246. Academy Chicago: THE DOSSIER OF SOLAR PONS, by Basil Copper, is at the printer now, to be followed by THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF SOLAR PONS (Aug., 208 pp., $15.95 cloth, $5.95 paper); these are revised editions of the paperback collections originally published by Pinnacle, and the series will eventually include some new stories.
247. Donald I. Fine: according to an unofficial report, John T. Lescroart is considering (but has not yet written) a third novel, which may be even more Sherlockian (and less Neronian) than this year's RASPUTIN'S REVENGE.
248. Sleuth Publications: ADVENTURES BY GASLIGHT (June, $15.00), the newest supplement to their game SHERLOCK HOLMES: CONSULTING DETECTIVE. Their supplements are now free-standing (you don't need the original game), and their catalog includes older supplements, a chess set, and other S'ian books; 689 Florida Street, San Francisco, CA 94110.
-
249. May 87 #6: I can't remember who it was who wanted a current address for Ward, Lock and Company; it's now Ward Lock Limited, 8 Clifford Street, London, W1X 1RB, England (but they have no copies left of Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887, or any records from the old days).
250. "The Year of the Reader" is being celebrated in various ways, including a handsome color poster with quotations and illustrations (by John Hyatt) from famous books, including "The Blue Carbuncle". The poster (30x22 in.) costs $5.50 postpaid from: Year of the Reader, 870 Market Street #919, San Francisco, CA 94102.
251. Listen for Pleasure (One Colomba Drive, Niagara Falls, NY 14305) still has the three two-cassette packages with readings of "Houn" (D4671b, read by Hugh Burden) and "Stud" and "Sign" (each read by Tony Britton), as well as "The Lost World" (read by James Mason); $14.95 each. All four titles are now also available in "read-along" packages that include the cassettes, a transcript book in easy-to-read type, and a teacher's guide; $29.95 each.
252. An interesting phenomenon observed at the ABA convention was the growth of the "graphic novel" (book-length, with expert full-color artwork and often adult themes). One of the more intriguing, and amusing, graphic novels is GREENBERG THE VAMPIRE, by J. M. DeMatteis and Mark Badger (New York: Marvel Comics Group, 1986; 70 pp., $6.95); a non-S'ian story "about the undead, the living dead, sin, redemption, the magic of love... and the healing power of chicken soup."
253. In a more serious vein (sorry about that), there is DRACULA: A SYMPHONY IN MOONLIGHT AND NIGHTMARES, by Jon J. Muth (also Marvel, 1986, $6.95), with a striking and sensuous extension of the Bram Stoker novel.
254. Getting back to S'iana, Sherlock Hemlock and his dog Watson appear in A BIRD'S BEST FRIEND, a Sesame Street "book 'n' tape" set (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1987).
255. G. K. Chesterton admired Sherlock Holmes, but he disapproved of the Higher Criticism. "The real inference is that Sherlock Holmes really existed and that Conan Doyle never existed," he wrote in 1935. "If posterity only reads these latter books, it will certainly suppose them to be serious. It will imagine that Sherlock Holmes was a man. But he was not; he was only a god." Best known today for his detective stories, Chesterton was far more than an author of fiction; G. K. CHESTERTON, a new biography by Michael Ffinch (San Francisco: Harper & Row, 1986; 369 pp., $18.95), concentrates on his personality and personal life, rather than on his writings. But the book contains a pleasant surprise for S'ians: the first page, reproduced in facsimile, of "The Case of the Vanishing Car", written by Chesterton for a young neighbor and friend who had run her father's car off the road.
256. The Apr. 27 issue of AB Bookman's Weekly was their annual "special crime, law, and mystery issue" with a S'ian cover and four articles, including one on "Sherlockians Commemorate the Centenary of 'The Master'" by Gretchen Falk, a member of the staff of the California Book Auction Galleries. Copies of the issue are available for $10.00 from AB Bookman's Weekly, Box AB, Clifton, NJ 07015.
-
257. Jun 87 #1: The three questions were: What was the name of the first novel written by Conan Doyle? What was the name of the second novel written by Conan Doyle? What was the name of the third novel written by Conan Doyle? And the answers are: The name of the first novel written by Conan Doyle was THE NARRATIVE OF JOHN SMITH (written in 1883 and lost in the post on its first journey to a publisher), the second was THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE (written in 1884-85 and published in 1890), and the third was A STUDY IN SCARLET (written in 1886 and published in 1887). THE NARRATIVE OF JOHN SMITH is mentioned by Hesketh Pearson (CONAN DOYLE: HIS LIFE AND ART, 1943, p. 74-75). There was only one (and incorrect) response to the query.
258. A BIRD'S BEST FRIEND (May 87 #6) is also available as a Golden Press Book (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1986); a Sesame Street story by Trish Sommers about Sherlock Hemlock and his dog Watson.
259. A possible answer to my bibliographic query (Oct 86 #4) on the two variants of the first printing of Dorothy L. Sayers' THE OMNIBUS OF CRIME (New York: Payson and Clarke, 1929): the trade variant has the list of other books by Sayers on page [2] and the copyright statement on page [4] positioned toward the bottom of the pages, and the dust jacket has an overprinted statement "Read em and Creep! Christopher Morley" in white ink and in Morley's handwriting. The Book-of-the-Month Club variant has the list of other books by Sayers and the copyright statement positioned toward the top of the pages, and the dust jacket does not have the overprinted statement.
260. Reports from the European press, and from participants, indicate that the SHSOL tour to Switzerland was a great success. "Each stop along the trek elicited a stirring welcome by the local town band, a march through the streets to the city hall, a speech by the mayor, and an obligatory glass of wine," according to Dick and Joanne Rutter. "Our days in Switzerland are remembered as being either one-, two-, or three-mayor days." Dick also reports another source for the S'ian nutcracker and "Rauchermann" (Mar 87 #5): Music Box Plaza, Bahnhofstrasse 23-A, CH-3800 Interlaken, Switzerland (Cindy Egger, the manager, is from San Diego).
261. Reported: THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN, edited by Martin Gardner (New York: Oxford University Press, 1987; 274 pp., $18.95); Gardner's theory is that Sherlock Holmes, according to the Canon, performed vital secret tasks for the Vatican, and there must have been a go-between . . .
262. Reported by Don Pollock: mention of SH, and a short quiz, in the Apr. 1987 issue of Previews (a video-store hand-out).
263. In 1977 there was a massive advertising campaign for the Dodge Diplomat, using SH in print and TV promotion, and Dodge dealers displayed life-size cardboard figures of SH, one of which is now offered for $150 (shipping extra) by Jean G. Weidner, 113 Holly Hill Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15237.
264. According to Pravda, quoted in an Agence France-Presse report in the San Francisco Examiner (Apr. 29), at hand from Al Rodin: Vitaly Solomin, who has played Watson in a SH series on Soviet television, is now director of a Moscow theater called Detective. The theater will specialize in detective plays, by authors such as Poe, Conan Doyle, Christie, and Simenon.
-
265. Jun 87 #2: PRISONERS OF THE NIGHT, edited by Alayne Gelfand, is "an adult anthology of erotica, intrigue, fright, allure, and vampirism," with 156 pp. of prose and poetry. Holmes and Watson make brief appearances in Tina Rhea's stories "Alteration" and "Darkness". Available for $15.00 from MKASHEF Enterprises, Box 368, Poway, CA 92064-0005.

266. Compliments to Cleveland. The only press report seen so far on the CIA dinner was in the Cleveland Plain Dealer on May 23, by Gus Dallas, who worked for the Plain Dealer as a police reporter some 30 years ago. The article concentrates on the Cleveland connection, of course, and includes a large photograph of Stafford Davis and Mike Kean, who do not appear to be connected to anything other than the buffet line.
267. THE OXFORD SOLUTION, at hand from Herb Tinning, uses S'ian artwork in a pamphlet explaining why one should participate in the Oxford Health Plans (23 Old Kings Highway South, Darien, CT 06820).
268. A few items of interest in the new catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011-5666), and presumably on discount tables at other stores: NEVER TO BE TAKEN ALIVE: A BIOGRAPHY OF GENERAL GORDON, by Roy MacGregor-Hastie (195 pp., $5.98); THE ANGLO-BOER WARS: THE BRITISH AND THE AFRIKANERS, 1812-1902, by Micheal Barthorp (176 pp., $16.95); CHAPLIN: HIS LIFE AND ART, by David Robinson (792 pp., $6.95), with details on his performances as Billy in the Gillette plays.
269. Reported by John Stephenson: "They Might Be Giants" (D5165a) now available on video cassette (MCA Home Video) at $59.95. A "Sherlock Holmes Mystery Journey" to England, Oct. 14-27 (flier available from Book Sleuth Mystery Books, 2501 West Colorado Avenue, Colorado Springs, CO 80904). Hound of the Baskervilles bookends from Signals (Box 70870, St. Paul, MN 55170).
270. BIALOSKY AND THE BIG PARADE MYSTERY, by Justine Korman, illustrated by Tom Cooke (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1986); a Big Little Golden Book, with Bialosky the bear in S'ian costume again.
271. Brig. John Doyle, the son of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's younger brother Innes, died in May, at the age of 73. He joined the Kings Own Yorkshire Light Infantry in 1933, and served in India, Burma, and Malaya, and with the Allied Landing Forces in Europe, and received the OBE for his long and distinguished military career.
272. THE GREAT COVER-UP: THE MYSTERY OF THE NON-HEALING WOUND is a promotional pamphlet (for Squibb's DuoDerm dressing) with a S'ian pastiche. ConvaTec (attn: Nina Rossi), Box 4000, Princeton, NJ 08543-4000.
273. Betty Pierce reports that Peter Haining reports that his THE TELEVISION SHERLOCK HOLMES (May 87 #4) will be revised and expanded for a new edition due in 1988.
274. The first issue (May-June 1987) of Pipe Finder at hand, with a S'ian logo. It's intended as an "advertiser for the pipe collector" and the first issue has advertisements but no articles. Box 721288, Houston, TX 77272; $10.00 a year for six issues.
-
275. Jun 87 #3: Reported by Dana Richards: the spring 1987 issue of Abacus, with comment on Lee Sallows' earlier article on Alphamagic Squares (Jan 87 #5 and Feb 87 #1). A letter from one Duncan Ross (Popes Court, Fleet Street, London) discusses some of the identifications of THE ORIGIN OF TREE WORSHIP made by S'ian scholars in the past, and suggests that the photograph published with Sallows' article is "a calculated, if colourful, counterfeit." Sallows replies at length, describing the "popular conviction that Mr. Sherlock Holmes is to be construed as a fictional creation of the writer A. C. Doyle" as a belief whose "obstinate persistence in these days when every kind of pseudoscientific rigmarole finds eager embrace is only a sad reflection of the misguided cynicism of our times," and suggesting that the author of THE ORIGIN OF TREE WORKSHIP was actually a mathematician well known to readers of the Canon.
276. THE BAKER STREET DOZEN: SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE'S THIRTEEN FAVORITE SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES, EACH ACCOMPANIED BY AN ESSAY BY A PROMINENT SHERLOCKIAN, ALONG WITH VARIOUS INTERLUDES, CURIOSITIES & MISCELLANEA, edited by Pj Doyle and E. W. McDiarmid (Chicago: Congdon & Weed, 1987; 352 pp., $15.95), has been announced for October, and the publisher has a mail-order flier (180 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60601).
277. Dick Lesh reports that a videocassette of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959, with Peter Cushing) is available for $29.95 (plus $3.50 per order for shipping) from Publishers Central Bureau (One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07131). I assume that this is the CBS/Fox Video cassette (first issued at $69.95), and that it is also now available at the lower price at your local video shops.
278. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: DELIGHTFUL MURDER: A SOCIAL HISTORY OF THE CRIME STORY, by Ernest Mandel (Minneapolis: University of Minnesota Press, 1984) (printed London: Pluto Press, 1984); with many references to Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes. SABERHAGEN: MY BEST, by Fred Saberhagen (New York: Baen Books/Pocket Books, 1987); with his 1980 pastiche "The Adventure of the Metal Murderer".
279. Philip A. Shreffler (11333 Big Bend Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63122) would like to hear (quickly) from people who have photographs taken at the CIA dinner, for possible use in the BSJ.
280. "The Other Victorians and Victorian Others" will be the theme of the next conference of the Northeast Victorian Studies Association, on Apr. 15-17, 1988, at the University of Scranton in Scranton, Pa. Additional details available from Earl E. Stevens (Dept. of English, Rhode Island College, Providence, RI 02864), and papers may be submitted to Michael Brooks (Dept. of English, West Chester University, West Chester, PA 19383).
281. Herman Herst, Jr. (Box 1583, Boca Raton, FL 33429-0494) is one of the best of the philatelic writers; there are no S'ian stories in his MORE STORIES TO COLLECT STAMPS BY and THE COMPEAT PHILATELIST, but they're fun to read. $8.75 each postpaid, or $16.00 the pair, autographed. And his FORENSIC PHILATELY is a fine account of one of the most famous philatelic trials in history (with several 1890s stamp dealers convicted at the Old Bailey and sentenced to hard labor); $9.50 postpaid.
-
282. Jun 87 #4: Tina Rhea (3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770) has employed Fontastic Plus to devise a new Ridling Thorpe font for the Macintosh computer, in case you own a Mac and want to write letters using the dancing men cipher. The cipher is complete, in the version displayed by Schenck (BSJ, Apr. 1955), with the flagged (end-of-the-word) letters obtained using the shift key. The font is available in 18-point (1822 bytes) for Macwrite and Macpaint, and 36-point (5494 bytes) for Macpaint. Tina will supply both fonts, and a note on how to use them, free of charge, in return for an initialized Mac diskette (single-sided or double-sided) and return postage; if you do not have Font/DA Mover, put a System file on the diskette and she will insert the fonts.
283. The new owners will maintain "the very special atmosphere that has made the Algonquin all that it is today," according to Ben Bodne, who denied four months ago that the hotel was about to be sold. The new owners are Caesar Park Hotels International Inc., a Brazilian subsidiary of the Aoki Corp. of Tokyo, and the sale price was $29 million for the 200-room hotel. Bodne noted that "throughout its 85-year history, the Algonquin has maintained a civilized atmosphere, reminiscent of a fine English inn." The new owners will operate the hotel much as it has been, according to one report "with an eye toward the exclusive end of the market." We will now pause to consider whether ordering in Portuguese or Japanese will be of assistance in persuading waiters to bring breakfast at future meetings in honor of Sra. Hudson.
284. Al and Julie Rosenblatt's 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16 was handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with illustrations, annotations and explanations, and copies are available for those who wish to see what they missed. The cost is $15.00 postpaid, and checks may be sent to: Peter E. Blau, 3900 Tunlaw Road NW #119, Washington, DC 20007-4830.

285. The autumn 1986 issue of The Gazette: The Journal of the Wolfe Pack (just published) has Marvin Kaye's article "From Zeck to Moriarty to Wild" in which Kaye traces both Zeck and Moriarty back to Jonathan Wild (mentioned in "Vall"). Kaye notes that Henry Fielding's novel about Wild was the basis for Edwin Justus Mayer's black comedy "Children of Darkness", staged many years ago at the Circle in the Square in New York with George C. Scott in the title role. And that gives Scott a thoroughly remote claim to have played both Holmes and Moriarty. Which leads to the question: Orson Welles played both Holmes and Moriarty on radio; who played both roles on stage?
286. The Hawkshaw Press, a "freshly grown tentacle of the Pequod octopus," has announced "UNCLE WALT" & SHERLOCK HOLMES, reprinting for the first time two S'ian "prose rhymes" by Walt Mason, whom George Ade once called "the high priest of horse sense." Orders may be sent to: John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $27.50 cloth or $12.50 paper.
287. "The Baker Street Ir-rag-ulars" are a series of original soft sculptures created by Patricia Nead Elrod (4800 Kilpatrick Avenue, Fort Worth, TX 76107), including a number of imaginative Canonical characters (ranging from Sherlock Holmes to a giant rat), and special-request commissions are welcome. Send a #10 SASE (39c) for a copy of her catalog.
-
288. Jun 87 #5: "Sherlock Holmes at 100: A Special Program Commemorating the 100th Anniversary of the Master Detective of Baker Street" will be held at UCLA on July 11, with Arthur M. Axelrad as moderator and a program featuring Jon Breen, John Ball, Karen A. Krone, Audrey Peterson, Robert G. Steele, William Barry, Sean Wright, Ira Fistel, Leslie Klinger, Barbara Cooper, Ronnie James, and Bob Shayne. Flier available from Box 24901, Dept. K, UCLA Extension, Los Angeles, CA 90024.
289. Reported by Paul Merz: Edward Wellen's story "Voiceover" (originally in SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE) (BSJ Mar 85 and Dec 86) is now in TIN STARS, edited Asimov/Greenberg/Waugh (Signet, $3.95); an anthology of robot/law enforcement stories.
290. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: Octopus Books, 1987; 195 pp., $3.98 at B. Dalton). "Communicator Oversees Sherlock Holmes Affairs" (on Sue Brown, with a cover photo taken at the Sherlock Holmes Museum at the Holiday Inn on Union Square), in Communication World, May 1987; Communication World/ABC, 870 Market Street #940, San Francisco, CA 94102.
291. The Apr. 1987 issue of Magazine litteraire contains a 50-page section on "Sherlock Holmes: Le dossier de Conan Doyle" with a handsome color cover and contributions (all in French) by Robert Louit, Francis Lacassin, Simone Arous, Graham Greene, Guillermo Carrera Infante, Rene Reouven, Christine Jordis, Umberto Eco, Jean-Baptiste Baronian, Arthur Conan Doyle, Basil Rathbone, Jacques Baudou, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Francois Landon, Anthony Burgess, and Jacques Meunier; a few are reprints-in-translation, but most are new. The cover price is 24.00 F, and the address of the magazine is 40 rue des Saints-Peres, 75007 Paris, France. Daedalus Books (2260 25th Place NE, Washington, DC 20018) is a remainder house, and their spring 1987 catalog includes Conan Doyle's THE EDINBURGH STORIES (Salem House; 86 pp., $3.98 plus $3.00 shipping per order). This was first published by Polygon Books in Edinburgh in 1981, and contains "The Field Bazaar" and four other items with Edinburgh connections, as well as an Introduction by Owen Dudley Edwards.
292. Recently seen but not new: LORD DARCY, by Randall Garrett (Garden City: Nelson Doubleday, n.d.; 600 pp.); a Science Fiction Book Club three-in-one edition, with TOO MANY MAGICIANS (D4934b), "The Napoli Express" (with passing mention of Michael Kurland's THE INFERNAL DEVICE), and "A Case of Identity" (S'ian only by title).
293. "Analmetary, my dear Watson!" is the theme of the newest S'ian porno video "Who Came in the Back Door", produced by Paradise Visuals and starring John Leslie (with calabash in the advertisement), Gail Force, Shana McCullough, and Joey Silvera; 83 minutes, $54.95 from Video Specialists International, 182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 18612.
294. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (May 87 #5), due from Carroll & Graf in October, will be a major item, with 25,000 copies in the first printing; it's a collection of new stories by mystery writers such as John Gardner, Dorothy B. Hughes, Stuart Kaminsky, Jon Breen, Joyce Harrington, and Peter Lovesey.
-
295. Jun 87 #6: "The Edison Twins" is a 70-minute videocassette now available from RCA/Columbia Pictures Home Video. In Sept. 1985 it was aired as a three-part Disney Channel miniseries, featuring "a mysterious stranger who has a deerstalker hat, and Inverness cape, and an uncanny ability to solve mysteries." He's Joseph Bell (played by Gillie Fennic), the son of Dr. Joe Bell, the model for Sherlock Holmes.
296. "Sherlock Holmes on Broadway" is a Theatre Collection exhibition at the New York Public Library at Lincoln Center, though Aug. 11, celebrating the centenary with a display of theater programs, photographs, and memorabilia.
297. Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" began previews at the Kennedy Center in Washington on June 23, opening on July 1 and closing on Aug. 1, with Frank Langella (Holmes) and Donal Donnelly (Watson). The publicists ask, "If Holmes is the victim...*who* will solve the crime?" Langella is also co-producer (the budget is now $1.2 million and rising, according to a recent interview). "Something happens to Holmes in this play that has never happened to him before," Langella hints, "and as a result we see all the familiar characters in an entirely new light."
298. Reported by Jack Kerr: minor S'ian references in MURDER ON CAPITOL HILL, by Margaret Truman (Warner paperback, $3.50).
299. Reported by Richard Wein: the Renegade Press comic book CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has been extended to at least 12 issues (issue #7 is in the stores).
300. LONDON BY GASLIGHT 1861-1911, by Michael Harrison (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1987; 197 pp., $25.95 postpaid), revised and expanded from the long-out-of-print 1963 edition, is a delightful exploration of an age in which S'ians have long found refuge. Michael Harrison, as always, has many tales to tell, and tells them splendidly. Available from the publisher (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001-1041).
301. Kelvin I. Jones (18 Ross Street, Rochester, Kent ME1 2DF, England) has announced A SHERLOCK HOLMES DICTIONARY for publication this fall in a signed and limited edition. It will be "a complete etymological guide to the less familiar words and phrases" in the Canon, with word derivations, Canonical references, and literary parallels, and you can reserve a copy by writing to Kelvin.
302. Flier at hand from the Quinlan Press (131 Beverly Street, Boston, MA 02114) promoting THE OFFICIAL SHERLOCK HOLMES TRIVIA BOOK, by Richard T. Ryan (200 pp., $7.95).
303. THE QUEST FOR SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: THIRTEEN BIOGRAPHERS IN SEARCH OF A LIFE, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg, has been announced by Southern Illinois University Press for Nov. (232 pp., $19.95); the book presents critiques of the autobiographies and biographies.
304. "Centenary, my Dear Watson" (the 26-page pamphlet with the itinerary of the Sherlock Holmes Society of London tour) is available (along with some colorful tourist brochures) from Meiringen-Haslital, 3860 Meiringen, Berner Oberland, Switzerland.

Jul 87 #1:

305. A Canadian brewery, impressed by the Granada series, plans to open a chain of pubs, each called "Sherlock Holmes" and each being based on a different story, according to a report in the Derbyshire Times (May 22). Havenplan's Architectural Emporium, supplier of fittings for the Granada sets, will furnish the pubs.

306. The deluxe three-volume COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES 100TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION (Apr 87 #3) has been published, and it's handsomely done. The publisher reports that it will not be in print much longer (they've had good response from their mailings to collectors of leather-bound books as well as to Sherlockians), so if you're considering a purchase it might be well not to wait much longer. It's $37.50 postpaid per volume, and they take plastic; The Easton Press (47 Richards Avenue, Norwalk, CT 06857).
307. Forecast: SKULLDUGGERY, by Peter Marks, in Aug. from Carroll & Graf, $17.95; a mystery novel dealing with the Piltdown hoax. "Although parts of his plot might seem outlandish (a scene between Arthur Conan Doyle and Oscar Wilde takes place in a homosexual brothel), Marks gracefully achieves the reader's willing suspension of disbelief," Publishers Weekly reports.
308. Corrigendum: the report (Jun 87 #1) that there was only one (and incorrect) response to the query about the first three novels written by Conan Doyle neglected the pre-publication experiment: Jon L. Lellenberg did know the correct answer. He has not, however, admitted knowing where the missing novel might be.
309. Arnold Korotkin (12 Glenwood Road, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043-1941) has announced SHERLOCKIAN TIDBITS, an "irregular newsletter containing cartoons, ads, graphics, magazine articles, newspaper clippings, book reviews, general resources, and curios." Frequency irregular, cost $2.00 postpaid per issue. The first issue at hand, with 11 photocopied pages.
310. The July 1987 issue of Changing Times covers S'ian events in some detail in its section "Your Questions Answered" (with some nice artwork by Joe Gast).
311. There were, of course, many articles in the European press about the tour to Switzerland by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London (there are some photographs in the summer 1987 issue of the Sherlock Holmes Journal). One of the press reports noted that Victor Hamilton, of Belfast, participated as "Wilson, the Notorious Canary Trainer." At the turn of the century the word "canary" had various unsavoury meanings, according to the article, and Hamilton carried a piece of cuttlefish and a spray of millet to make it quite clear that his canaries were of the feathered variety. A "canary" was a harlot in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, according to a dictionary of slang consulted by Jon Lellenberg. And a "canary" was a female thief by the end of the 19th century, according to Michael Harrison. No wonder Wilson was notorious.
312. Reported (and recommended) by John Bennett Shaw: "The Sherlock Holmes Centenary Brasses" (a collection of ceramic-centered commemorative horse brasses depicting Holmes, Watson, Moriarty, and Lestrade); £6.50 for each brass, or £22.00 for the four-brass martingale. A flier is available from British Brassware, 24 Mill Lane, Camelford, Cornwall, England.
-
313. Jul 87 #2: "Sherlock's Last Case" is great fun, thoroughly untraditional in its approach, well acted, and staged with great imagination. Frank Langella does a fine job in the title role, and I hope that the play will still be running on Broadway during the birthday festivities (it opens in New York on or about Aug. 13). Charles Marowitz is the author, and the acting script is available from Dramatists Play Service (440 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016) for $3.35 (plus $0.95 shipping); the play has some interesting twists and surprises, and you are urged to avoid reading the script before seeing the play.
314. A "Sherlock Holmes Seminar in Rogers Park" will be held in Chicago on Oct. 28 and 31, featuring speakers from the Chicago scions. Contact Norman M. Davis, 1263 West Pratt Boulevard, Chicago, IL 60626.
315. Paperback Speller is a new software package for the IBM PC and compatibles (with more than 60,000 words in the spelling-checker dictionary); the box portrays Holmes and Watson ("Amazing...it detects and corrects spelling errors. It's elementary, my dear Watson"). $39.95 from Paperback Software (2830 Ninth Street, Berkeley, CA 94710) or your local software shop.
316. Forecast: THE BERENSTAIN BEARS AND THE MISSING HONEY, by Stan and Jan Berenstain, in November from Random House at $1.95 (or $5.99 in library binding); the bears are in S'ian costume.
317. "The Second Hundred Years: A Sherlock Holmes Centennial Weekend" is the eighth annual program presented by The Six Napoleons and The Carlton Club at the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore on Nov. 14 (10:00 to 4:00) and Nov. 15 (2:00-4:00). Details available from Robert S. Katz, 1190 West Northern Parkway #924, Baltimore, MD 21210.
318. Reported by Dick Lesh: Vincent Starrett's BOOKS ALIVE (D2220a), the 1969 Books for Libraries Press edition ($5.95), and M. J. Trow's THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE ($3.95), in the latest catalog from Edward J. Hamilton, Falls Village, NY 06031 (add $3.00 shipping per order). Reported by Dave Galerstein: A BOOK OF DAYS FOR THE LITERARY YEAR, edited by Neal T. Jones (Thames & Hudson, 485 Lexington Avenue, New York, NY 10017); the dates include the births of Holmes and Watson, and the birth and death of Conan Doyle.
319. Reported by Bill Nadel: Comics Revue #21 (in the comic shops in August) will reprint the entire 1985 Steve Canyon "Baker Street Adventure" (with an introduction by Bill); I don't know the cover price, but if you can't find the magazine, their address is Box 1762, Wayne, NJ 07470.
320. Also from Bill: the Aug. 1987 issue of London Calling (published by the BBC World Service) has SH on the cover, Steve Weinman's article "A Study in Devotion", and reports on two "Sherlock Holmes" broadcasts by Gillian Gray on Aug. 2 and Aug. 9, a repeat (from 1986) two-part dramatization of "The Valley of Fear" (with Tim Pigott-Smith and Andrew Hilton) on Aug. 9 and Aug. 16, a repeat (from 1974) of "A Study in Scarlet" (with Robert Powell and Dinsdale Landen) on Aug. 23, and a two-part dramatization of Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" on Aug. 31 and Sept. 7; the magazine's address is P.O. Box 76, Bush House, Strand, London WC2B 4PH, England.
-
321. Jul 87 #3: Paul Herbert reports that his dust-jacket copy of THE OMNIBUS OF CRIME (Jun 87 #1) has the trade-variant book and an dust jacket without the Morley overprint; his copy was bought at a flea-market sale, suggesting that it was not a dealer's "made-up" copy. But: my copy of the BOMC edition, with the BOMC pamphlet laid in, was also bought at a charity sale. Paul also mentions having seen the book in a boxed edition, which I'd not heard of before.
322. Walter Klinefelter ("The British Barque *Sophy Anderson*") died on July 4. He was a true bibliophile and a fine writer, on S'ian and other subjects, and one of the few who submitted correct solutions to the Morley crossword puzzle in The Saturday Review in 1934.
323. Kyle Richeson notes that Nicholas Rowe's Sherlock Holmes is left-handed in "Young Sherlock Holmes" and wonders which other actors played a left-handed Sherlock Holmes.
324. Video Specialists International (182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 18612) offers a videocassette with two programs ("The Luckless Gambler" and "The Body in the Case") from the 1981 series starring Geoffrey Whitehead and Donald Pickering; $21.00 postpaid.
325. "The Molly Maguires" (1970), with Sean Connery (Jack Kehoe), Richard Harris (James McParlan), Frank Finlay (Police Captain Davies), and Samantha Eggar (Mary), will be shown by The Movie Channel on Aug. 17.
326. The Grosvenor Hotel (formerly the Dutch Americana) in Orlando (near Disney World) has been purchased by Don Werby (proprietor of S. Holmes Esq. in San Francisco); the 630-room hotel is being renovated and redecorated, and will reopen soon with S'ian bars and restaurant, and a S'ian museum.

327. Charles Pogue's new S'ian play "The Ebony Ape" will be performed at The Opera House in Lexington, Ky., on Sept. 10-13 and 17-20. Pogue is not a new-comer to the S'ian world: he wrote the screenplays for the 1983 TV films of "Houn" and "Sign" (with Ian Richardson as Holmes).
328. Ben Wood has announced the latest round-robin pastiche by members of The Pleasant Places of Florida. MYSTERY OF THE PALE-ONTOLOGIST OF MELTDOWN costs $2.50 postpaid from Baker Street Designs, 1397 22nd Street North, St. Petersburg, FL 33713.
329. Reported by John Stephenson: Robert Lee Hall's THE KING EDWARD PLOT in a paperback reprint from Critic's Choice ($3.50); this 1980 mystery novel features Frederick Wigmore (form Hall's EXIT SHERLOCK HOLMES) and his own Baker Street Irregulars.
330. Forecast: a new edition of A. A. Milne's THE RED HOUSE MYSTERY (D5083b) from Dell in August ($3.50).
331. Reported by Roger Johnson: SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED NOVELS (Chancellor Press, £5.95). THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, read by Peter Emmens, in a six-hour audiocassette pack (Eloquent Reels, Alhampton, Castle Cary, Somerset BA4 6PZ, England; £12.95).
-
332. Jul 87 #4: Reported: Gerald Weissmann's article "The Game Is Afoot, or Holmes and Watson at Bellevue" (on the relevance of the Canon to medical training) reprinted (from Discover, Mar. 1986) in his new book THEY ALL LAUGHED AT CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS: TALES OF MEDICINE AND THE ART OF DISCOVERY (Times Books, $17.95).
333. Flier at hand for "A Sherlockian Seminar with John Bennett Shaw" at Stanford University, Aug. 19-23, presented by The Scowrers and Molly Maguires of San Francisco and The Knights of the Gnomon of Redwood City. The program promises lectures, movies, documentaries, panel discussions, and social events (including a Sherlockian Singalong "and as many informal gatherings as your liver can tolerate"), and details are available from Bruce R. Parker, Stanford Medical Center S-058, Stanford, CA 94305.
334. William A. Barton's CTHULHU BY GASLIGHT (BSJ Mar 87) won the H. G. Wells Award for best role-playing supplement of 1986 at the recent Origins convention. Bill also reports that there will some S'ian material in the Victorian section of Steve Jackson Gaines' GURPS HORROR BOOK, due in game stores soon.
335. Flier at hand for The Silver Blaze at Belmont Park, N.Y., on Sept. 18. Write to Stephen L. Stix, Route 1, Box 452, Markleville, IN 46056. And for "Autumn in Baker Street" at Bear Mountain, N.Y., on Sept. 19-20. Write to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
336. Martin Gardner's THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN (New York: Oxford University Press, 1987; 274 pp., $18.95) is a delightful exploration of the first of the collections of G. K. Chesterton's stories about the "little priest" who is regarded by Gardner as the second most famous mystery-solver in English literature. Gardner notes that "Chesterton was as careless with his details as Dr. Watson, and as many curious questions can be asked about the priest as about Holmes." Many of those questions are answered in the annotations, which do not neglect the Sherlockian aspects of the stories. The suggestion, reported in a review in the May 18 issue of Time (Jun 87 #1), that Father Brown was the go-between in Holmes' secret tasks for the Vatican is not Gardner's, but was invented by Time's reviewer.
337. The second British stamp booklet honoring Sherlock Holmes was issued on July 14. Henry Murray (Arlington Supplies Ltd., P.O. Box 143, Palmers Green, London N13 4XN, England) has a new flier offering both booklets, first day covers, other British items, the Turks & Caicos Islands stamps, and non-philatelic material from two recent British plays.
-
338. Jul 87 #5: Reported by Ron De Waal: SHERLOCKIANA 1987: SHERLOCK HOLMES 1887-1987, edited by Gian Franco Orsi (Milano: Rosa & Nero, 1986; 383 pp.); an anthology with translations of older material and new commentary (the publisher is Edizioni Rosa & Nero, Diapress Srl., Via Madre Cabrini 9, Milano, Italy). MURDER AND MORAL DECAY IN VICTORIAN POPULAR LITERATURE, by Beth Kalikoff (Ann Arbor: UMI Research Press, 1986; 193 pp., $39.95); the prologue and chapter 9 (p. 157-168) are primarily devoted to crime in Stud, Sign, Five, Fina, and Veil. A BAKER'S STREET DOZEN (San Francisco: Mind's Eye, 1987); a six-cassette package with 12 of the Gielgud radio programs ($24.95 at Waldenbooks).
339. Reported by Ev Herzog: two S'ian items in Marc Bilgrey's THE SCIENCE FICTION CARTOON BOOK (Andrion Press, 128 East 56th Street, New York, NY 10022; $8.25 postpaid).
340. Smithsonian Radio has a 30-minute program on National Public Radio, and on Aug. 16 at 9:00 pm the broadcast will include a segment on Sherlock Holmes.
341. DISGUISES IN THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: AN ILLUSTRATED ANALYSIS OF THIRTY DISGUISES FROM THE WRITINGS OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key (Beavercreek: KeyRod Literary Enterprises, 1987; 51 pp., $12.00), is an examination of various impersonations (including the photo of ACD as Challenger). Available from the publisher (3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385) for $13.00 postpaid.
342. Announced by Fairleigh Dickinson University Press (440 Forsgate Drive, Cranbury, NJ 08512): DIAGNOSIS AND DETECTION: THE MEDICAL ICONOGRAPHY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Pasquale Accardo (144 pp., $23.50). The author "has determined to rescue Holmes and Watson from the historicism, psychologism, and armchair pseudoanalysis in which they have become entangled."
343. Stanley MacKenzie (64 Bassett Road, London W.10, England) still has copies of his colorful commemorative postcard (Aug 86 #4 and BSJ Dec 86); the postpaid price is $6.00 for ten, $48.00 for 100, and $84.00 for 200.
344. Reported from London: Baskerville's Restaurant, with S'ian fliers, at 2 Allsop Place, NW1 (opposite the Planetarium).
345. James F. Brewer ("Josiah Brown") died in July. Fitz was one of the earliest members of The Six Napoleons, and his professorial humor and scholarship were long a highlight of their meetings.
346. SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED NOVELS (London: Chancellor Press, 1987; 496 pp.) is a companion volume to SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED SHORT STORIES (BSJ Jun 87). The novels, not reprinted in facsimile, nevertheless include most of the fine illustrations by George Hutchinson, F. H. Townsend, Sidney Paget, and Frank Wiles.
347. WHO'S WHO IN SHERLOCK HOLMES: A COMPLETE AND HANDY REFERENCE TO THE GREAT DETECTIVE'S EVERY CASE, by Scott M. Bullard and Michael Leo Collins (New York: Taplinger, 1980; 251 pp., $14.95 cloth, $7.95 paper) is available again. It also covers the where and what, with entries (keyed to THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES) on people, places, restaurants, and much more.
-
348. Jul 87 #6: Jack Lescoulie died on July 22. He worked with Dave Garroway on the first "Today" show broadcast by NBC-TV in 1952, and retired from the program in 1967. On May 22, 1963, the program included an interview with Julian Wolff and a reading of a passage from "The Hound of the Baskervilles" with Lescoulie as Watson and Hugh Downs as Holmes.
349. Tyke and Teddie Niver report that July 24 was "Sherlock Holmes Day" in Connecticut, per an official statement from Gov. William A. O'Neill.
350. THE CASE OF THE MYSTERIOUS PEANUT: A BOOK FOR YOU TO COLOR is a six-page pamphlet in which Sherlock, the Peanut Detective, is assigned to find out all about the peanut, and determines that "peanuts are liked by nearly everyone." Copies may be available from Growers' Peanut Food Promotions, Box 1709, Rocky Mount, NC 27801-1709.
351. -----

352. "Fiddling Around with Sherlock Holmes" at the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg on July 24-26 was a splendid centennial celebration, with more than 200 on hand for the workshop. Ray Betzner and John Lanzalotti and the rest of The Cremona Fiddlers were thoroughly efficient in handling the details, both usual and unusual, and John Bennett Shaw proclaimed the gathering to have been the best of his 18 workshops. The formal sessions ranged from the ridiculous to the sublime (but will be listed in the order in which they were actually presented): "The Sherlock Holmes Cult at 100" (John Bennett Shaw); "Saxe-Coburg Square: The Definitive Identification" (John Lanzalotti); "Sherlock Holmes and the First Cocaine Epidemic" (David Musto); "The Adventure of the Detected Detective: Sherlockian Allusions in James Joyce's *Finnegans Wake*" (William Jenkins); "Hell Must Look Something Like That: The Vermissa Valley, Then and Now" (Edward Vatz); "A Sherlock-ian Poetry Reading" (Philip Brogdon); a panel discussion on Holmesian art, book collecting, and starting a scion society (S. Kate Hawks, Peter Blau, and Ray Betzner); "Let a Woman in Your Life: The Women in Conan Doyle's Life and Works" (Ely Liebow); "Why Netley" (Robert Katz); and "O To Be in England: A Tour of Sherlockian Haunts" (Charles Henry).
353. John Bennett Shaw's quizzes were as ingenious (or malicious) as always, the winning entries for the literary contest were pleasantly imaginative, and the Saturday evening banquet featured a new performance by The Friends of Bogie's, Sherlockian toasts, and Sherlockian folk songs.
354. The huckster rooms were full of hucksters hawking, and there were some new items of interest. Carole Logan (Latimer's, 5 Raglan Avenue, Toronto, Ont. M6C 2K5, Canada) has a new catalog of S'ian sweatshirts, mugs, postcards, and other material. Robert J. Stek (Box 315, Tolland, CT 06084) has a flier giving details on his plans to offer "The Computerized Canon" at the end of the year in standard ASCII format (readable by IBM, Macintosh, or computers) on 15 floppy disks for about $50.00.
355. And Gael Stahl of the Tennessee Municipal League announced that Gov. Ned McWherter had issued an official proclamation that the "people of Tennessee commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of Sherlock Holmes' first appearance in print.
-
356. Aug 87 #1: THE BEST OF TREK #11, edited by Walter Irwin and G. B. Love (New York: New American Library/Signet, 1986; 204 pp., $2.95), is collection of material from Trek: The Magazine for Star Trek Fans; the contents include Patricia Dunn's "A Problem of Identity: Was Holmes a Vulcan?" (she votes "no" in a rebuttal to Paul Schwartz's "A Theory of Relativity" in THE BEST OF TREK #4).
357. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERIES: 22 STORIES BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, with an Introduction by Frederick Busch (New York: New American Library/Signet, 1987; 533 pp., $3.50), is an "expanded edition" billed as including "all the stories on PBS-TV" (yes, all 20 stories, plus "Bosc" and "Five"); the Introduction is the same as in the 1985 edition that had 16 stories.
358. Reported by Tyke Niver: an article by Thomas L. Drucker on "Sherlock Holmes and Victorian Mathematics" in the May 1987 issue of Dickinson Magazine (Dickinson College, Carlisle, PA 17013-2896).
359. SABERHAGEN: MY BEST, by Fred Saberhagen (New York: Baen Books, 1987; 311 pp., $2.95), includes "The Adventure of the Metal Murderer" (a pastiche first published in the Jan. 1980 issue of Omni).
360. MYSTERY OF THE WINDY MEADOW, written by Ski Michaels and illustrated by Allen Atkinson (Mahwah: Troll Associates, 1986; 48 pp., $1.95), is a children's book featuring Detective Duck in S'ian costume.
361. Guy Averill's article "Did You Remark the Postmarks?" (British Philatelic Bulletin, June 1987) discusses the philatelic aspects of the Canon and shows the first two of the four booklet covers honoring the centenary. British Philatelic Bureau, 20 Brandon Street, Edinburgh EH3 5TT, U.K.
362. THE SCIENCE FICTION CARTOON BOOK, by Marc Bilgrey (New York: Andrion Books, 1986; 104 pp.), contains one (minor) S'ian cartoon. His earlier collections THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CARTOON BOOK and THE PRIVATE EYE CARTOON BOOK (with one S'ian cartoon) are also still in print. $7.00 each, plus $1.25 shipping, from Andrion Books, 128 East 56th Street, New York, NY 10022.
363. ELEMENTARE, SIGNOR PRESIDENTE (DIECI ANNI DOPO), by Laura Grimaldi and Marco Tropea (Milano: Arnoldo Mondadori Editore, 1987; 226 pp., 18,000 lira) is a satiric sequel to their ealier ELEMENTARE, SIGNOR PRESIDENTE (D523b). Hercule Poirot, Father Brown, Inspector Maigret, Nero Wolfe, and (of course) Sherlock Holmes are involved.
364. It was coincidental, but certainly neatly timed for the John Bennett Shaw workshop in July: the summer 1987 issue of Colonial Williamsburg includes Luis Marden's article "The Adventure of the Copper Plates" in which he invokes the spirit of Sherlock Holmes in describing the discovery of some important aids to the reconstruction of Colonial Williamsburg. Media Relations Department (attn: Sondra Rose), Drawer C, Williamsburg, VA 23187.
365. Reported by Allen Mackler: a detective in S'ian costume on the cover of the MASTER DETECTIVE SET ("here's everything a child needs to become an amazing Super Sleuth who unearths clues, identifies suspects, and solves crimes!"), advertised at $22.50 by The Paragon, Westerly RI 02891.
-
366. Aug 87 #2: If you've not been able to find the new one-volume edition of William S. Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES in a bookstore, it's available direct from Crown Publishing Inc., Dept. 571, 54 Engelhard Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001; $59.05 postpaid, and they take plastic.
367. CBS/Fox Video is advertising its "Five Star Collection" of "the best in Sci-Fi" -- including videocassettes of "The Empire Strikes Back", "The Day the Earth Stood Still", "Rollerball", and Peter Cushing's 1959 "The Hound of the Baskervilles".
368. SKULLDUGGERY, by Peter Marks (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987; 284 pp., $17.95), offers an imaginative and fictional solution to the Piltown mystery, with all of the major protagonists involved in a tale of ambition, sex, blackmail, violence, and betrayal. Arthur Conan Doyle is one of those protagonists, portrayed with some sympathy, but Marks makes several quite elementary mistakes, both in his account of the famous 1889 dinner in London at which Lippincott's agent J. M. Stoddart commissioned Wilde's THE PICTURE OF DORIAN GRAY and Conan Doyle's THE SIGN OF THE FOUR, and in something as simple as the name of Conan Doyle's home in Crowborough.
369. THE GAME IS AFOOT: A TRAVEL GUIDE TO THE ENGLAND OF SHERLOCK HOLMES was the first of David L. Hammer's fine guided tours through the London and English countryside of the Canon (BSJ Mar 84), and it is now available again in a second printing in paper covers: $15.95 postpaid from Gasogene Press, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001.
370. MURDER AT THE DIOGENES CLUB, by Gerald Lientz (New York: Berkley Books, 1987; 160 pp., $2.95), is the first of a series of "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" devised by Iron Crown Enterprises. The reader is a cousin of Dr. Watson, assisting Holmes in two "solve-it-yourself" cases involving considerable page-turning as decisions are made about where to go and whom to question and what to ask. THE BLACK RIVER EMERALD, by Peter Ryan, is the second in the series, with the reader a schoolboy accused of the theft of the emerald. The concept is interesting, but the method is perhaps too simple for adult Sherlockians, since most of the decisions to be made are essentially irrelevant to the solutions; there are no dead ends, and all decision paths lead to the same solution. John D. Ruemmler, series editor for Iron Crown Enterprises, informs me that the format is known as a "flipbook" and that the books are primarily intended for 13-to-19-year-old males, the "core readers" for such gamebooks.
371. THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, in an unabridged reading by Peter Emmens, is available in a four-cassette package from Eloquent Reels, Alhampton, Castle Cary, Somerset BA4 6PZ, England; $34.00 postpaid. The reading is carefully done, with a fine variety of accents.
372. Now that the Iran/Contra hearings have ended, it seems appropriate to note one of the many Sherlockian connections: the many references to the search for a "smoking pistol" (a phrase which non-Sherlockians presumably thought originated with the Watergate hearings). "Phrase from Sherlock Haunts Reagan" was the headline on one newspaper's publication of a column by W. Dale Nelson that moved on the AP wire on June 18, 1987, giving proper credit to the Canon for the first appearance of the phrase.

-
373. Aug 87 #3: A MEDLEY OF MURDERS is a new audiocassette set from Audio Book Contractors (Box 40115, Washington, DC 20016); $23.50 for three cassettes with five unabridged stories, including "Silver Blaze" read by Grover Gardner. The company also offers "Selected Cases of Sherlock Holmes" on two cassettes (BSJ Dec 85) at $19.95 and "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on four cassettes at $24.50.
374. The Pequod Press has announced W IS WATSON, a centennial alphabet by John Ruyle, with 26 new verses ranging the alphabet "from the Atkinson brothers to Zion, with a bow to Eddie, the cockroach kid, along the way." $29.00 (cloth) or $14.00 (paper) from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
375. Mike Whelan reports that the videocassette "100 Years of Sherlock Holmes" available from Publisher's Central Bureau at $19.95 (May 87 #1) is just two of the 1954 Ronald Howard television shows.
376. Reported by Roger Johnson: LESTRADE AND THE LEVIATHAN, by M. J. Trow (Macmillan, £8.95); the fourth in the series of pastiches.
377. MURDER AND MORAL DECAY IN VICTORIAN POPULAR LITERATURE, by Beth Kalikoff (Ann Arbor: UMI Research Press, 1986; 193 pp., $39.95), discusses the portrayal of murder in the Victorian age, from the street literature of 1830 to the fiction of 1900 (including the Sherlock Holmes stories); the book offers an informed survey of a genre that by the end of the century had become "an emblem of moral decay" reflecting a loss of faith in divine justice and a world in which "all roads lead to crime."
378. The postal card honoring the 150th anniversary of John Deere's invention of the self-scouring steel plow was issued May 22. Howard Garrideb advertised "steam and hand plows" but may not have meant anything quite that old.
-
379. Aug 87 #4: "Your credentials look excellent from where I sit; wherefore, welcome to the BSI." Thus wrote Vincent Starrett to Russell McLaughlin on Sept. 11, 1945, in a letter reprinted by Bill Rabe in the June 1987 issue of The Agony Column, recalling an age when things were thoroughly informal as well as thoroughly irregular.
380. Henry and Linda Berkowitz (Endless Mountains Crafts, R.D. 1, Box 793, Sabinsville, PA 16943) offer a Sherlock Holmes wooden jointed doll, 12" high, at $34.75 postpaid; you can specify colors desired.
381. Stefan Kanfer (the magazine's staff Sherlockian) had an appreciative essay on "The Game Is Still Afoot" in the Aug. 17 issue of Time.
382. The Sherlock Holmes Review has announced its second issue (spring 1987) at $2.50, and plans for a third (double) issue (fall 1987) at $5.00. 3209 East 10th Street #8-C, Bloomington, IN 47401.
383. IMMORTAL SLEUTH: SHERLOCKIAN MUSINGS AND MEMORIES, by Michael Harrison, is his newest exploration of the Canon, and the book offers its readers a fine example of how entertaining and instructive he is, in his public lectures and in his private conversations; his essays range from a discussion of the Baker Street wardrobe and furnishings ("The Many-Suited Sherlock") to a proposal that Watson's arrival at Bart's was not unexpected by Holmes ("That 'Path Lab' Meeting"), and the best of his tales are those in which he draws on his own memories of a fondly depicted Edwardian age. $25.95 postpaid from the Gasogene Press, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004-1041.
384. John B. Taylor (Box 804, Midlothian, TX 76065) offers S'ian books, jewelry, prints (the Douglas West watercolors that are sold at The Sherlock Holmes in London), and authentic police equipment (Bobbies' whistles, handcuffs, and truncheons). Send a #10 SASE for his sales list.
385. Mrs. Hudson's Lodgers have a flier ready on their plans for "A Centenary Celebration: The Cleveland Connection" on Nov. 7. The festivities will include a ceremony at the Cleveland Police Museum, a day of lectures and films at the Cleveland Public Library, and a Jacob W. Schmitt Memorial Dinner at Kiefer's Restaurant. Details available from Tom and Ruth Stetak, 15229 Diagonal Road, Nickel Plate, La Grange, OH 44050.
386. A videotaper alert from Paul C. Merz: Cinemax cable will broadcast color versions of two Rathbone films in September: "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" on Sept. 6, 19, 23, 29, and "Terror by Night" on Sept. 3, 6, 15, 19, 30.
-
387. Aug 87 #5: David Kirby (Rupert Books, 59 Stonefield, Bar Hill, Cambridge CB3 8TE, England) is offering sets of 8x10" prints ($40.00) and note-cards ($7.00) with the eight color illustrations by David Cory that appeared in the spring 1987 catalog from Rupert Books.
388. "In 'Sherlock's Last Case,' the writer Charles Marowitz and accomplices have so completely diminished Victorian England's most beloved detective that one leaves the play wishing its title were a promise rather than merely an idle threat." N.Y. Times reviewer Frank Rich had much more to say about the play, but none of his comments were in any way complimentary.
389. Pennsylvania is mentioned twice in the Canon (in "RedH" and "Vall"), and the new commemorative honors the 200th anniversary of statehood for Pennsylvania.
390. "Murder on the Essex Express" (featuring Bulldog Drummond) on Sept. 12 is the next mystery excursion by The Valley Railroad Company (Box 452, Essex, CT 06426); $85.00 a person, including dinner.
391. FANTOMAS, by Marcel Allain and Pierre Souvestre (BSJ Dec 86) is now in paperback (Ballantine, 327 pp., $3.95).
392. By way of confirming the latest rumor: yes, THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: ORIGINAL STORIES BY EMINENT MYSTERY WRITERS, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (the anthology of new stories due from Carroll & Graf this fall), will include a contribution by Stephen King. The book will have an initial printing of 25,000 copies, and it has been selected by The Mystery Guild as its main offering for November.
393. In case you're still wondering where the "smoking pistol" appears in the Canon, it's in "Glor" (as noted in 1978 by William Safire in SAFIRE'S POLITICAL DICTIONARY).
394. Reported: a new issue of Doubleday's one-volume THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES, with new dust jacket, $17.95.
395. Judy Harkison's article "'A Chorus of Groans,' Notes Sherlock Holmes" in the Sept. 1987 issue of Smithsonian explores the history of the "personals" (and begins and ends with quotations from the Canon).
396. Jack Davis (Davis and Son, Long Leaf Mall, Wilmington, NC 28403) distribute the Mini Pub Signs, including a 5" x 7" rendition of the sign for The Sherlock Holmes ($8.95 plus shipping). Also the hand-painted Bosson wall plaques of Holmes and Watson ($52.00 each, plus shipping).
397. Reported by Mel Ruiz: a videocassette of the 1974 cartoon "It's a Mystery, Charlie Brown" (with Snoopy as Sherlock); from Kartes Video Communications, Box 68881, Indianapolis, IN 46278 (or your local video shop).
398. "An Evening with Sherlock Holmes and Otto Penzler" will be the title of a lecture for the Friends of the N.Y. Public Library later this year; I don't know the date, but you can call their Volunteer Office (212-930-0654).
-
399. Aug 87 #6: Cereal collectors alert: boxes of Total now have a "Murder, She Wrote" contest, with one of the prizes being a vacation for two in Sherlock Holmes' London. Completists will, of course, want all three box sizes. And can store them with the 1984 Post Alpha-Bits boxes that had a portrait of Alfie in a deerstalker, promoting their "Alfie Solve the Mystery Sweepstakes".

400. Bret Harte, shown on the new $5 regular issue, is the author of the parody "The Stolen Cigar Case" (D5920a). William D. Jenkins has discussed the relationships between Harte's ballad "The Letter" and "The Noble Bachelor" (D2538a).
401. Discovered by Paul C. Merz: the Apr.-June 1987 issue of Pipe Smoker, with a color cover showing a S'ian pipe hand-carved by Steve Waddell. The pipe includes a small magnifying glass fitted into the shank; the glass can be used to view a micro-dot embedded in the stem, and the micro-dot shows "the four famous clues" Holmes used to solve the murder mystery in "A Study in Scarlet" The magazine is published by Pipe Collectors International, Box 22085, Chattanooga, TN 37422; $2.00.
402. Robert Lee Hall's THE KING EDWARD PLOT, first published in 1980, is now available in paperback (New York: Critic's Choice, 1987; 280 pp., $3.50). The mystery novel features Frederick Wigmore (who first appeared in 1977 in Hall's EXIT SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE GREAT DETECTIVE'S FINAL DAYS), and his own Baker Street Irregulars; Wigmore moved into 221B Baker Street in 1906, and now investigates a murder at the Diogenes Club.
403. "New York Is Book Country" (the annual street fair on Fifth Avenue between 48th and 57th Streets) will be held on Sept. 20, celebrating the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution and the centenary of Sherlock Holmes. "There's No Face Like Holmes" is the motto of Foul Play Mystery Books, which will offer a Spot-the-Sherlock contest in the form of a ten-foot picture concealing ten silhouettes of Holmes, and there will be a fair-wide mystery created for the event by William L. DeAndrea.
404. Further to the discussion of Granada's postal production error in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (May 87 #2), the envelopes shown bearing a "penny black" are the one opened by James Wilder in "The Priory School" (dated 1901 by Baring-Gould) and the one from Neville St. Clair to his wife in "The Man with the Twisted Lip" (dated 1887 by Baring-Gould). The "penny black", issued in 1840, was replaced by the "penny red" in 1841; slightly different designs for the "penny red" were issued in 1864 and 1880, and a completely different design (in lilac) was issued in 1881. It was Robert Boos who noted the error (in Stamps, May 2, 1987); C. C. M. Pawson, of the British Post Office, has replied (in Stamps, Aug. 22, 1987) that with more than 70 million penny blacks having been printed, "it seems quite possible that Holmes should receive a portion of his mail bearing these stamps." Well, it might be possible, but it would be highly improbable. Theron Wierenga, an authority on older postage uses, informs me that "the chances are probably one in a million," and notes that in this country, for example one almost never sees stamps of the Civil War issue used in the 1890s. But Granada still merits excellent grades for accuracy: this is only the third production error anyone has noted in the series.
-
405. Sep 87 #1: Recently seen on a supermarket bookshelf: SESAME SEASONS (CTW/Golden Books, 61 pp., $3.98); with Sherlock Hemlock on the cover and inside. And MORE WHO'S WHO ON SESAME STREET (CTW Golden Books, $0.99); a coloring book with Sherlock Hemlock inside.
406. Reported by Mel Ruiz: THE INVENTORY OF 221B BAKER STREET, LOCATED AT S. HOLMES, ESQUIRE, a 12-page booklet of text and photographs describing the recreation of the sitting-room in San Francisco; available for $4.00 from Charlotte Erickson, 571 Kingsley Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94301.
407. And TALES OF SCOTCHLAND YARD, BY SHERLOCK HOMES is the "title" of a ceramic liquor decanter, made to resemble a leatherbound book, advertised at $40.00 by Casual Living, Kent Road, Box 1078, New Milford, CT 06776; add $5.45 for shipping, and they take plastic.
408. Reported: a trade paperback of John Dickson Carr's THE LIFE OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, from Carroll & Graf at $8.95.
409. The 90-minute BBC radio adaptation of "A Study in Scarlet" broadcast in 1974, with Robert Powell as Holmes (D4557b), is available on cassette (catalog number ZCF 501) from the BBC World Information Centre and Shop (P.O. Box 76, Bush House, Strand, London WC2B 4PH, England) for £5.99 plus 25% shipping outside the U.K. (they take Visa, Access, and Mastercard).
410. AN INTRODUCTION TO THE DETECTIVE STORY, by LeRoy Lad Panek (Bowling Green: Bowling Green State University Popular Press, 1987; 214 pp., $22.95 cloth, $11.95 paper); a textbook survey of the genre, with a chapter on "Doyle".
411. Bjarne Nielsen has announced plans to publish THE GREAT NORTHERN ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, a fully-illustrated history (in Danish and English) of the series of films made by Nordisk from 1908 to 1911. The book will have about 100 pages, and will cost 365.00 Kr (about $52.00) postpaid; details available from Pinkerton, Nansensgade 68, 1366 Kobenhavn K, Denmark.
412. Comics Revue #21 (Jul 87 #2) is now in the shops, with a reprint of the entire 1985 Steve Canyon "Baker Street Adventure" and an introduction by William Nadel. Manuscript Press, Box 1762, Wayne, NJ 07470; $3.50.
413. Doubleday has honored the centenary with a new printing of its one-volume edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES ($17.95), in a new multi-color dust jacket that proudly announces that there have been "over half a million copies sold." This edition is still the standard for most American readers of the Canon, and it has been a steady seller: at the end of 1960 (the year in which this edition first appeared), Doubleday announced that "since 1938 close to 375,000 customers have bought this book," and the additional sales average about 8,000 copies a year.
414. And if you want a Sherlockian "inflation indicator," the 1960 Doubleday one-volume edition was priced at $4.95.
415. John Huston died on Aug. 28, after a brilliant career as director and actor. None of the obituaries seen so far have mentioned his appearance as Prof. Moriarty in "Sherlock Holmes in New York" (1976).
-
416. Sep 87 #2: Ruth Brandon's THE SPIRITUALISTS: THE PASSION FOR THE OCCULT IN THE NINETEENTH AND TWENTIETH CENTURIES, first published in 1983, is now available in a trade paperback (Buffalo: Prometheus Books, 315 pp., $14.95); the book includes considerable discussion of Conan Doyle.
417. "Sherlock Holmes and the Hands of Othello" is a new play by Alex Simmons, scheduled at the Westbeth Theater Center at 151 Bank Street in New York, from Sept. 30 to Oct. 25, 1987.
418. Reported by Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh: "Sherlock Gus" is a new teddy bear, designed by Linda Spiegel (of the Bearly There Company), 13" tall, jointed, with deerstalker, cape, and pipe. Available for $75.00 postpaid from Stuf'd 'n Stuff, 10001 Westheimer, Dept. F, Houston, TX 77042 (they take plastic).
419. Congratulations to Ronald B. De Waal, who will receive this year's Colorado Library Association Literary Award, honoring his career as the Humanities Librarian at Colorado State University as well as his S'ian bibliographies.
420. Chris and Kate Redmond were on tour in August, lecturing in Chautauqua on "The Stately Holmes of England" and investigating the vineyards in upstate New York, where they discovered a wine called "Aunt Clara" (white, sweet, fruity) available from the Lakeshore Winery, 5132 Route 89, Romulus, NY 14541.
421. More information on the "Evening with Sherlock Holmes" at the N.Y. Public Library (Aug 87 #5): the date is Nov. 18 (at 6:00 pm), the cost is $10.00, and Otto Penzler will provide "a multi-media biographical journey," with film segments and slides as well as a talk. Call 212-930-0654 for details on how to join the Friends of the N.Y. Public Library.
422. FREDDY THE DETECTIVE (D6166a) and THE COLLECTED POEMS OF FREDDY THE PIG (D5259b) are only two of the entertaining series of books written by Walter R. Brooks, and FREDDY THE DETECTIVE is still in print (Alfred A. Knopf, $9.99 cloth, $3.95 paper). The Friends of Freddy, founded in 1984, have held a convention and have been featured in an article in the Dec. 1986 issue of the New York Air in flight magazine Skylines, and now have more than 180 members and publish The Bean Home Newsletter as an irregular quarterly. Membership dues are $9.50 for the current 8 issues, or $19.00 for the first sixteen issues; the membership director is Kevin W. Parker, 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

423. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's 1987 Christmas card "would appear to depict Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson showing great ingenuity in the pursuit of criminals during exceptionally severe weather." $8.00 (postpaid by airmail) for a packet of ten cards; checks should be payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, and sent to Capt. W. R. Michell, The Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset, TA13 5JX, England.
-
424. Sep 87 #3: There were about 100 people at the Stanford workshop in August, which was marred only by John Bennett Shaw's being unable to attend because illness prevented his traveling to the festivities. Ron Fish reports that Bruce Parker and Ted Schulz and their cohorts provided fine arrangements and an interesting agenda, which included presentations by Steve Rothman (on "Christopher Morley and Sherlock Holmes: A Study in Enthusiasm"), Mike Kean ("Once Moor with Feeling: Suggestions for Further Research into 'The Hound of the Baskervilles'"), Howard Lachtman ("Sir Arthur by the Golden Gate, with Observations on 'The Noble Bachelor'"); and Bill Haunert ("The History of English Prosody Through Sherlock Holmes"). Don Werby (the proprietor of S. Holmes, Esq.) announced that his company is now operating the Grosvenor Hotel in Orlando (near Disney World) and that the Sherlock Holmes room there will be finished soon.
425. Tyke and Teddie Niver were featured in the color cover story on "Spotlight: Sherlock's Music" in the Apr. 1987 issue of Musical Merchandise Review, which paid proper attention to the Sherlockian background for their music business. Magazine address: 210 Boylston Street, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167.
426. And Tyke reports that K-Mart has a TEDDY BEARS 1988 CALENDAR with the May picture showing Holmes and Watson at 221B.
427. Further to Mike Whelan's report (Aug 87 #3) that the videocassette "100 Years of Sherlock Holmes" available from Publisher's Center Bureau at $19.95 (May 87 #1) is just two of the 1954 Ronald Howard television shows, Russ Geoffrey reports that the cassette he saw had a variety of older material, even though it came in the same box used for volume 1 of the Ronald Howard series.
428. At hand from its editor, Kelvin I. Jones: the 2nd issue of THE SHERLOCKIAN (49 pp.). The contents include articles by Ray Betzner ("Whatever Happened to Baby Rucastle?"), Robert F. Fleissner ("A Sherlockian Treatment of the Mystery of the Dedication to Shakespeare's Sonnets", reprinted from Clues, spr-sum 1985), and Walter P. Armstrong, Jr. ("The Rhetoric of Sherlock Holmes"); $4.95 postpaid from Magico Magazine, Box 156, New York, NY 10002.
429. Joseph W. Zarzynski's article "Nessie's Movie Double" is accompanied by Jonathan Haddon's long critique of Billy Wilder's "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" in the inaugural issue of Strange Magazine, a new journal devoted to Fortean studies. Magazine address: Box 2246, Rockville, MD 20852; $3.95 (or $14.95 for four issues).
430. The flood of pastiches and parodies has not hidden the Canon completely: the 1986 Golden Pen Awards (for the best in books for young adults), chosen by a committee of 12-to-18-year-olds at the Spokane Public Library, gave first place for mysteries to THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (with Christie's AND THEN THERE WERE NONE in second place).
431. Discovered by Jack Koelle: LION IN THE VALLEY, by Elizabeth Peters (New York: Atheneum, 1986) (New York: Tor Books, 1987; 310 pp., $3.95); an amusing mystery novel set in Egypt in 1895, featuring archaeologist Amelia Peabody Emerson in an adventure in which she encounters a lean, hawk-nosed, private investigator named (or who claims to be named) Tobias Gregson.
-
432. Sep 87 #4: Leon and Leonie Holmes, proprietors of the Holmes Winery (P.O. Box 59, Mount Pleasant, S.A. 5235, Australia), have sent a flier offering their Sherlock Holmes Port and Dr. Watson Claret: $25.00 (U.S.) postpaid for one bottle of each wine, or $32.00 (U.S.) postpaid for a gift pack that also includes two wine glasses decorated with their S'ian emblem. Thirsty Canadians may wish to emigrate: "Unfortunately we are unable to post wine to Canada due to government regulations."
433. Jack Koelle sends an item for the "nothing new under the sun" department (from the Philadelphia Inquirer, Aug. 30).
434. Reported by Jerry Wachs: Holmes and Moriarty playing on the same team: they're both on the active list for this year's Kansas City Chiefs.
435. Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim, Long Beach, CA 90804) offers a handsome 3" pewter pipe-tamper with a bust of Holmes (and it's an attractive display item for non-smokers); $20.70 including UPS shipping.
436. The Press of Arden Park (861 Los Molinos Way, Sacramento, CA 95864) has announced the third in its series of S'ian miniature books. A CASE OF IDENTITY is 129 pp., 2.25 x 2.75 in., hardbound with two-color jacket, illustrations by Sidney Paget. $38.50 postpaid.
437. Leah D. Frank, senior editor of Broadway Play Publishing (357 West 20th Street, New York, NY 10011), writes that they would be interested in seeing unpublished Sherlock Holmes plays, suggesting that "we would prefer that any play have had a production and had the kinks worked out, but that is not absolutely necessary."
438. Owners of The Folio Society's editions of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1958) and THE LOST WORLD (1977) are already familiar with the Society's high standards for its books, and their new edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES is no exception, with an enthusiastic Introduction by Julian Symons and cover decorations and six lino-cuts by British graphic artist Edward Bowden. The book costs $24.00 and is available only to members of the Society; membership requirements are four titles a year, from the current list or the lengthy back-list, and their address is 198 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10013.
439. The two-volume set of Conan Doyle's THE HISTORICAL NOVELS (BSJ Jun 87) is available at $17.95 in the latest mail-order catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011).
-
440. Sep 87 #5: Due in October: THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND, by Michael Hardwick, illustrated by Steranko (New York: Villard Books, 1987; 318 pp., $17.95); a new pastiche from the author of PRISONER OF THE DEVIL, THE PRIVATE LIFE OF DR. WATSON, and SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES. This story is set in the summer of 1902, with Watson engaged to be married (for the third time), recuperating from the wound inflicted by "Killer" Evans, and joining Holmes in investigating the sudden appearance of a gigantic and ferocious hound on Hampstead Heath. The case eventually involves Oliver Cromwell and King Edward, with a climax at Highgate Cemetery, and the style is well up to Hardwick's standards.
441. DIAGNOSIS AND DETECTION: THE MEDICAL ICONOGRAPHY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Pasquale Accardo (Cranbury: Fairleigh Dickinson University Press, 1987; 139 pp., $23.50), is based on the author's assumption that Conan Doyle was "a writer of mediocre talent who had the innocence and luck to combine certain mythic elements to produce a viable modern hero." Accardo, confessing to "an aversion for detective fiction," analyzes the "mythic structure" of the Canon and its relationship to earlier literary archetypes that range from Dupin and Lecoq to D'Artagnan and Don Quixote. He also suggests that "few modern versions of the Sherlock Holmes myth have come closer to catching the spirit of the original" than James Goldman's "They Might Be Giants".
442. The city of Edinburgh has been derelict in failing to honor her famous sons, according to Councillor James S. Tait. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, born at 11 Picardy Place, is honored only by a plaque erected by the owners of a hotel that stands near the site (another plaque, donated in 1949 by the Edinburgh Evening News, is now in a museum). 11 Picardy Place is now a traffic circle, due for alteration soon, and the Edinburgh District Council have decided to invite internationally famous sculptor Eduardo Paolozzi, another native son, to prepare a new design for the center of the traffic circle.

- Councillor Tait called on the council to ask Paolozzi to base his design on the "clear logic and subtle perspicacity of Sherlock Holmes as a tribute to Sir Arthur."
443. "Case of the Sherlock Holmes Forgery Is Cracked" was the headline on the story in The Guardian (Aug. 1) about a copy of the first edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with original dust jacket, that was scheduled for auction later that month in London. Copies in dust jacket, according to the article, "are excessively rare and are worth perhaps £10,000." But the dust jacket on this copy was identified by Richard Lancelyn Green as a forgery: the color of both ink and paper were wrong, printing details were incorrect, and "the fake wrapper has been suitably though not expertly aged and torn, with corners singed and edges rubbed with sandpaper."
444. SHERLOCK HOLMES IN DENMARK: A CHECK-LIST OF DANISH EDITIONS OF THE CANON AND THE WRITINGS ABOUT THE WRITINGS IN DENMARK, by Bjarne Nielsen (Copenhagen: Antiquariat Pinkerton, 1987; 66 pp., 100 Kr postpaid from the publisher, Nansensgade 66, 1366 Kobenhavn K, Denmark), demonstrates how popular Sherlock Holmes has been in Denmark, from the first translation of the Canon in 1893 through the present. There are 446 items listed, and annotated in English, of which 400 are "writings about the writings," and the book includes reproductions of illustrations by many of the Sherlockian artists in Denmark.
-
445. Sep 87 #6: The Silver Blaze at Belmont went very well, thanks to Stephen and Kim Stix and Richard Wein and Cynthia Drottman, with more than 70 people on hand for drinks at The Players and luncheon at the track on Sept. 18. One lucky S'ian cashed two different daily double tickets, while others, as might be expected, managed not to win a single bet.
446. And Bob Thomalen's "Autumn in Baker Street" at Bear Mountain on Sept. 19-20 was, according to all reports, a pleasant gathering, with special mention going to an *ad lib* and *ad hoc* song fest masterminded by Charlie Adams.
447. Chris and Kate Redmond (125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada) are planning "A Sherlockian Hallowe'en Weekend in a Victorian Village" at Chautauqua, N.Y., Oct. 30 and Nov. 1, 1987. Write for details (the deadline for reservations is Oct. 24).
448. The Franklin Library (Franklin Center, PA 19091) is launching a series of "Mystery Masterpieces" at $17.95 each plus sales tax and $1.95 shipping. The first volume will be GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, 483 pp., with 19 cases and specially commissioned illustrations; apparently not a reissue of their 1977 collection THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D259b).
449. Flier at hand from William S. Dorn (2120 South Monroe Street, Denver, CO 80210), announcing plans to publish BEEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL 1987, price about $10.00, with contents including "The Blue Carbuncle" and two new pastiches, all with new illustrations, commentaries, and a glossary.
450. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: ORIGINAL STORIES BY EMINENT MYSTERY WRITERS, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987; 345 pp., $18.95), is a fine celebration of the centenary. The authors range from eminent to first-time-in-print, their stories include both pastiche and parody, prosaic and metaphysical, and only one of the pieces is a reprint. Some of the writers (such as Michael Harrison and John Gardner) are well known in the Sherlockian world, while others (such as Lillian de la Torre, Joyce Harrington, Dorothy B. Hughes, Stephen King, and Peter Lovesey) are new to the Sherlockian genre. The quality of the work is pleasantly high, and some of the authors have been thoroughly imaginative in their approach to the Canon. Recommended.
451. "The Final Problem" was published in the Dec. 1893 issue of *The Strand Magazine*, triggering the now-well-known protests from readers. According to William S. Baring-Gould, in THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (v. 1, p. 15): "There will be only a temporary interval in the Sherlock Holmes stories," the editors of the *Strand* rather hysterically hastened to assure their readers. "A new series will commence in an early number. Meanwhile, powerful detective stories will be contributed by other eminent writers." This is the only mention I've ever seen of such a rash promise. Can anyone cite when and where that statement was published?
452. SHERLOCKIAN TRIVIA, by Dana Richards, presents an ingenious generic trivia supplement, with a box of Q&A cards in six categories (Characters, Plots, Geography, Holmes and Watson, Apocrypha and Beyond, and Miscellaneous) that can be substituted for those in your own Trivia game. $18.95 postpaid from Magico Magazine, Box 156, New York, NY 10002-0156.
-
453. Oct 87 #1: Still more on the videocassette "100 Years of Sherlock Holmes" available from Publisher's Central Bureau at $19.95 (May 87 #1). Length: one hour. Contents: "The Case of the Screaming Bishop" (1944 cartoon), "The Limejuice Mystery" (1930 marionettes), "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" (1927 newsreel), trailers for seven Basil Rathbone films, lead-in for the Ronald Howard series (1954), trailer for the Peter Cushing "Hound" (1959), and "The Copper Beeches" (1912).
454. "Born in New Jersey in the year 1858." The 200th anniversary of statehood for New Jersey was honored by a commemorative issued on Sept. 11.
455. Forecast for next spring (from Books of Wonder, 132 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10011): THE WHITE COMPANY, by Arthur Conan Doyle, illustrated by N. C. Wyeth; a facsimile of the 1922 edition published by the Cosmopolitan Publishing Co.
456. Reported by Ron De Waal (both available from Blackwell's): SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE DEVIL'S FOOT: FURTHER CASES OF THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS DETECTIVE, selected and introduced by Peter Haining (London: Severn House, 1986; 117 pp., $11.26); five cases (Glor, Card, Devi, Chas, Lion). THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with Introduction by P.G. (London: Collins, 1986; 252 pp., $6.40).
457. Reported by David Galerstein: THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, published by Omega Books (see BSJ June 87, p. 122), is available for $20.00 postpaid from Roy Bloom Limited (attn: Steven Pagomenos), 81 Goswell Road, London EC1V 7ER, England. The book has all 60 stories, with all but "Stud" and "Sign" reprinted in facsimile from the Strand.
458. THE BAKER STREET DOZEN: SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE'S THIRTEEN FAVORITE SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES, EACH ACCOMPANIED BY AN ESSAY BY A PROMINENT SHERLOCKIAN, ALONG WITH VARIOUS INTERLUDES, CURIOSITIES & MISCELLANEA, edited by Pj Doyle and E. W. McDiarmid (New York: Congden and Weed, 1987; 354 pp., $16.95), is based upon the list of twelve best stories compiled by ACD in 1927 (with the addition of one more story for truly honest weight), and the essays range widely, from Bliss Austin's examination of the challenge presented by ACD to the readers of The Strand Magazine, to Dame Jean Conan Doyle's memories of life at Crowborough while the last of the Canon was being written. Two of the essays are of special interest to Sherlockian scholars: Derham Groves' discussion of a hitherto-unconsidered aspect of the architecture of Hurlstone, and Richard Lancelyn Green's discovery of the origins of the handwriting analysis undertaken at Reigate. The book also contains an up-to-date list of the Sherlockian societies.
459. Reported by Bill Barton: the Chaosium game CTHULHU BY GASLIGHT (BSJ Mar 87) won the Gamer's Choice Award for Best Role Playing Accessory of 1986 at the GEN CON game convention in Milwaukee, and is one of three finalists for an award from the Society of Independent Game Manufacturers. And Bill has a new game, "GURPS Horror" ($11.95 postpaid from Steve Jackson Games, Box 18957, Austin, TX 78760); according to Bill, GURPS is the Generic Universal Role Playing System, and the game includes most of his old "Gamer's Guide to Victorian London" plus game statistics for Holmes and Moriarty.
-
460. Oct 87 #2: The 1st Bangalore Pioneers have announced a "Crime Contest" open to all Sherlockians, inviting suggestions as to how Col.

461. Sebastian Moran might have succeeded in his attempt to assassinate Sherlock Holmes, had he only chosen a different method. A copy of the rules and regulations is offered by the scion (4800 Kilpatrick Avenue, Fort Worth, TX 76107); the deadline for entries is Nov. 30.
462. Reported by Mel Ruiz: the Hal Roach Studio colorized versions of "Terror by Night" and "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" are distributed by Video Cassette Sales, 270 Oser Avenue, Happaug, NY 11788; Mel found them priced at $9.95 at K-Mart.
463. THE OFFICIAL SHERLOCK HOLMES TRIVIA BOOK, by Richard T. Ryan (Boston: Quinlan Press, 1987; 205 pp., $7.95); an imaginative collection of quizzes, with the questions ranging from elementary to expert (and there are only a few minor errors), and with a section on artists and actors that is up-to-date through Frank Langella and "Sherlock's Last Case".
464. Roger Lancelyn Green died on Oct. 8. His literary interests ranged widely, and his 1946 TELLERS OF TALES was the first serious treatment of children's stories as literature. He was one of the early members of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, and shared his Sherlockian enthusiasms with his son Richard.
465. A STUDY IN SOUTHSEA: FROM BUSH VILLAS TO BAKER STREET, by Geoffrey Stavert (Portsmouth: Milestone Publications, 1987; 192 pp., £9.95), is a carefully researched, well-written, and fully illustrated study of Dr. Arthur Conan Doyle's life and career in Southsea from 1882 to 1890, and his brief return visit in 1896. Stavert has lived in Southsea for 30 years, and he presents a fine picture of the city where Conan Doyle was both doctor and author, and of his family, friends, and associates. Available from the publisher (62 Murray Road, Horndean, Hants. PO8 9JL, England) for $16.50 plus $2.50 surface or $7.00 airmail; they take plastic.
466. THE DOSSIER OF SOLAR PONS, by Basil Copper (Chicago: Academy Chicago, 1987; 278 pp., $15.95 cloth, $5.95 paper), a collection of six new stories first published in 1979 as a continuation of the Pontine Canon written by August Derleth. Copper has edited the text to remove some of the American usages that crept into the earlier edition, and the stories are pleasant tributes to both Derleth and Pons.
467. BATS IN THE BELFRY: A JOYOUS EVOCATION OF ARCHITECTURAL ECCENTRICITY, by David Young (Newton Abbot: David & Charles, 1987; 104 pp., £6.95), is aptly described by its subtitle; the book has sections on architectural jokes, eccentric homes, follies, and other strange structures, including Richard Cabell's tomb at Buckfastleigh (with a brief discussion of its connection with "The Hound of the Baskervilles").
468. SLICKENSIDES, by John Buxton Hilton (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1987; 164 pp., $13.95), is an interesting murder mystery set in Derbyshire in 1911; the detective, Inspector Brunt, sorts through the local suspects as well as two London outsiders who appear to be (but aren't) Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson.
-
469. Oct 87 #3: "Baker Street on Delancey Place: One Hundred Years of Sherlock Holmes" is the title of the exhibit at The Rosenbach Museum in Philadelphia, opening Dec. 1. One of the nicer items on display will be the manuscript of "The Empty House".
470. THE RAGGED SHAW: THE MASTER SLEUTH QUIZBOOK, by John Bennett Shaw, with an entertaining (and not too libelous) Introduction by Ely Liebow (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1987; 112 pp., $16.95 postpaid from the publisher, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004), is perhaps best regarded as a demonstration of the reason most Sherlockian quizzes are so boring: questions that can be answered by anyone who has a perfect memory are not really challenging. Something more is required. Imagination and inspiration and a sense of humor, not to mention an ability to match the quizmaster's pernicious word-play, are all essential for achieving the most modest scores in these quizzes, which have been collected from the archives of the workshops and society meetings whose participants have enjoyed these confrontations with the Sage of Santa Fe. Recommended.
471. The J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu has purchased James Ensor's "Entry of Christ in Brussels" (1888), described by the museum's director as "the museum's most important painting" and an important precursor of surrealism and expressionism. Ensor was a member of the XX Group at the time of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (when Watson noted that Holmes "was entirely absorbed in the pictures of the modern Belgian masters"). See H. R. F. Keating's SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE MAN AND HIS WORLD, 1979, p. 90-91, for more discussion of Ensor and the XX Group.
472. Eugene and Eleanore Stovall (Olympic Pin Collectors, 3387 Jordan Road, Oakland, CA 94602) issued four different pins for the Stanford workshop, at $5.00 each; other designs are planned by the end of the year.
473. Washington's PBS television station did not show "The Greek Interpreter" in the recent re-run of the Granada series (because there wasn't room in the Thursday "Mystery!" schedule for all of the shows before PBS networked the new "Strong Poison". WGBH has said that they do not intend to show "Gree" in the near future, and I would greatly appreciate hearing from anyone who has a VHS standard-speed cassette of "The Greek Interpreter" that I can borrow. WGBH also reported that six episodes from the Granada series are now available on commercial cassettes, with more to follow.
474. Reported by Jack Kerr: SHERLOCK HOLMES: A GRAPHIC NOVEL, by Bill Barry, is a reprint of the three stories that ran as newspaper comic strips in 1976. $8.95 plus shipping ($2.50 UPS or $1.00 USPS), from Bill Barry Enterprises, 329 Harvey Drive, Glendale, CA 91206. And THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, in full color, is planned for next spring.
475. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE LONDON ZOO MYSTERY, by W. Lane, with illustrations by Jeff Decker (New York: Magico Magazine, 1987; 56 pp., $15.95); a short pastiche involving P. T. Barnum and Jumbo, whose disappearance from the London Zoo in 1882 is investigated, and solved, by Sherlock Holmes.
-
476. Oct 87 #4: The Oct. 1987 issue of The Tonga Times at hand from The Mini-Tonga Scion Society, with a long article on what must be the ultimate miniature: a reproduction by Julian L. Biggers, Jr., of three floors of 221 Baker Street at 1/144 scale (that's twelve feet to the inch). The newsletter costs $3.00 a year for two issues, and is published by Dee Snyder (8440 Nashua Drive, Lake Park, FL 33418).
477. Glenn Close has received fine reviews for her performance in the new film "Fatal Attraction" -- and some of you may remember her from an earlier performance in a Sherlockian role. Which one?
478. Graham Nown's ELEMENTARY MY DEAR WATSON (BSJ Jun 87) was a recent dividend selection from the Book-of-the-Month Club.
479. Donald K. Pollock (79 Paul Gore Street #1, Boston, MA 02130) has several extra copies of the recent edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with illustrations by Edward Bawden, published by The Folio Society, which he offers "to sell at cost, or better yet, to trade."
480. Reported by Roger Johnson: a stone-and-resin Sherlock Holmes chess set offered by Michael and Mary Ernest (No. 9 Gifts & Games, 9 Steep Hill, Lincoln LN2 1LT, England); £60.75 plus shipping. The recommended board is £26.55 plus shipping.
481. Glenn Close played Irene St. Claire in Paul Giovanni's play "The Crucifer of Blood" in its 1978 productions in Buffalo and New York.
482. Cal Witt (1156 West Avenue #J-7, Lancaster, CA 93534) has a new sales list offering Sherlockian and Scotland Yard collectibles.
483. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: Amye Rosenberg's SAM THE DETECTIVE AND THE ALEF BET MYSTERY (BSJ Mar 87) is available for $4.95 from Roth Booksellers, 9427 West Pico Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90035.
484. Flier at hand from Mel Wacks (Numismarketing Associates, 5189 Jeffdale Avenue, Woodland Hills, CA 91364) previewing their advertisement in the Dec. issue of the BSJ for a Sherlockian art medal created by sculptor Marika Somogyi in sterling silver ($99.50) or solid gold ($995.00).
485. "Young Sherlock Holmes" will be broadcast on cable by The Movie Channel in November in its "VCR Theater" at 3:00 am. Check local listings for dates.

486. Flier at hand for "Sherlock Holmes: A Centennial Symposium" at Indiana University in Bloomington on Dec. 12-13. Saturday speakers will include Michael Cox (executive producer of the Granada series), Don Gray (IU professor of Victorian Studies), Joel Silver (Lilly Library), Jack Tracy, Alvin E. Rodin, Steven T. Doyle (editor of The Sherlock Holmes Review, which is sponsoring the symposium), and Don Curtis (president of The Illustrious Clients); there will be a dinner on Saturday ($13.00) and a lecture and exhibit on Sunday at the Lilly Library. The deadline for registration ($15.00) is Nov. 30, and additional information is available from the Indiana University Conference Bureau, Indiana Memorial Union L-9, Bloomington, IN 47405 (812-335-4661).
-
487. Oct 87 #5: The Christmas 1987 catalog from Historical Products (Box 220, Cambridge MA 02238) is dedicated to the centenary, but their product offers unfortunately still include only the Steele portrait of Holmes or the Sherlockian quotation, on T-shirts, sweatshirts, totebags, aprons, and calendars.
488. Reported by John Bennett Shaw, from the Albuquerque Tribune: maze-running is the latest pastime in Japan, with hordes of Japanese lining up to pay about $3.00 to run through any of 18 commercial mazes around the country, including a Sherlock Maze in Osaka. Information available from the Japan National Tourist Organization, 630 Fifth Avenue #2101, New York, NY 10111.
489. Also from John is letter-to-the-editor of the Royal Oak (Mich.) Daily Tribune (July 18, 1987). Non-Sherlockian, but too good not to reprint.
490. Reported by Carole Naddeo: a stamp-size gummed label with a photograph portrait of Rathbone, at $2.00 for 150, from Micro, Box 38644, Los Angeles, CA 90038; they offer a long list of film, television, music, and sports stars.
491. Reported by Ron De Waal: AT THE TRACK: A TREASURY OF HORSE RACING STORIES, edited by Richard Peyton (New York: Bonanza Books, 1986; $7.98 at Waldenbooks); contents include "Silver Blaze". "The Red-Headed League" (an adaptation by Nancy B. Thum), in Plays: The Drama Magazine for Young People, Nov. 1987 (120 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116).
492. *Correction*: Ted Schulz reports that THE INVENTORY OF 221B BAKER STREET, LOCATED AT S. HOLMES, ESQUIRE (Sep 87 #1) costs $6.00 postpaid, from Charlotte Erickson, 571 Kingsley Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94301; this is a 12-page booklet of text and photographs describing the recreation of the sitting-room in San Francisco.
493. Flier at hand from Willis G. Frick (32126 Via Viente, San Juan Capistrano, CA 92675) announcing "Sherlocktron" (a computerized remote bulletin board for Sherlockians) at 714-661-2192. This is an electronic bulletin board with lists of societies, publications, and commercial offers, and a message section where people can leave messages with questions, comments, etc. You need a computer to participate, of course, and a modem (300 or 1200 Baud, 8 bits, no parity, 1 stop bit), and there is no system fee or access charge. You can reach Willis (rather than his computer) during west-coast business hours at 714-368-6914.
494. Electronic bulletin boards are widespread in the world of computers -- in the world of business they are used for electronic mail (that's how Col. Oliver North and Adm. John Poindexter exchanged all those memos you heard about during the Iran/Contra hearings), in the world of computer freaks they are used for exchanging movie stars' telephone credit card numbers and access codes for breaking into corporate computers. Between those extremes the bulletin boards are used to exchange more mundane information.
-
495. Oct 87 #6: John Ruyle has published A IS FOR ADLER, the latest in his series of S'ian alphabets ("in its pawky pages you will find old friends like Billy, Baron Dowson, and Harraway, and such exotic locales as Sumatra and Pernambuco"); $28.00 cloth or $13.00 paper, from John at 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
496. Flier at hand from The Travel Group, 116A Park Avenue South, Winter Park, FL 32789, announcing "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' London" (including a tour of London led by Stanley MacKenzie, and a visit to Conan Doyle's home at Undershaw), Mar. 24-Apr. 1, 1988.
497. Flier at hand from Thomas W. Campbell (The Bloombury Square Collection, 5701 Hedgemoor Drive, Raleigh, NC 27612) announcing a S'ian multi-color cloisonne pin commemorating the centenary. $8.95 until Nov. 15, and $12.95 after Nov. 15.
498. Reported: a long article with color illustrations, on Sherlock Holmes and Sherlockians, by William Ecenbarger in the Oct. 15 issue of the American Airlines in-flight magazine American Way, Box 619616 (MD 3D08), Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, TX 75261.
499. The 1989 commemorative stamp in the Great Americans Series will honor Johns Hopkins, the 19th century merchant, banker and investor, and philanthropist who gave $7 million to fund a hospital, university, and medical school in Baltimore. There is a Sherlockian connection (of course).
500. Flier at hand from Scotland Yard Books, 556 Green Bay Road, Winnetka, IL 60093, offering a series of four note-card designs with Paget illustrations from "Silver Blaze".
501. Reported by Delia Vargas: a recent issue (#37) of Grands Ecrivains devoted to Conan Doyle; all in French, and the address is 99 rue d'Amsterdam, Paris 75008, France.
502. Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804) had a book-signing party for Michael Hardwick, honoring his new THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND with signed copies, 500 of which have a commemorative bookplate issued for the occasion by Sherlock's Home. Copies may still be available, at $20.45 postpaid.
503. The third British stamp booklet honoring Sherlock Holmes was issued this month, with an illustration of "The Speckled Band".
-
504. Nov 87 #1: We will be celebrating Sherlock Holmes' 134th birthday on Friday, Jan. 8, with the now-traditional festivities, and a possible addition: "Sherlock's Last Case" (the Charles Marowitz play with Frank Langella as Holmes), may still be running at the Nederlander Theater (208 West 41st Street), and I recommend the play to anyone who is willing to accept considerable deviation from the Canon. The box-office telephone number is 212-246-0102, tickets cost $22.00 to $32.50 (they take plastic), and performances are scheduled Tuesday through Saturday at 8:00, Wednesday and Saturday at 2:00, and Sunday at 3:00.
505. Mary Ellen Rich has found, and recommends, the Shoreham Hotel, at 33 West 55th Street; their rate is $59 (single), $72.00 (double), $96.00 (triple), and $120 (quad), and the telephone number is 212-247-6700. Also the Salisbury Hotel, at 123 West 57th Street (between 6th and 7th Avenues); their rate is $69.00 per room, and the telephone numbers are 800-223-0680 and 212-246-1300. Another possibility is the Wellington Hotel, on 7th Avenue at 55th Street; their rate is $85.00 (single) and $95.00 (double), and the telephone number is 212-247-3900.
506. Friday begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast at 9:00 at the Hotel Algonquin, at 59 West 44th Street; no reservations required. Then the William Gillette Luncheon at 12:00 at the Old Homestead, at 56 Ninth Avenue (Lisa McGaw, 15 Willow Terrace Apartments, Chapel Hill, NC 27514). And then the dinners for The Baker Street Irregulars at 24 Fifth Avenue, and for The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at 6:00 at Garvin's Restaurant, at 19 Waverly Place, south of 8th Street and one block east of Washington Square Park (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235 West 15th Street, #4B, New York, NY 10011). Space is limited at the Gillette luncheon and the ASH dinner, and early reservations are requested.
507. Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 to 6:00; all Sherlockians and their guests are welcome to attend, and there is as usual the possibility that Sherlockian authors will be on hand to sign their books.

508. On Saturday there is The Baker Street Irregulars' reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street. Open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $20.00 a person until Dec. 15 ($25.00 a person thereafter and at the door). Checks, payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709. And, although not formally scheduled, it is likely that many Sherlockians will go on to dine on Saturday evening at Bogie's (249 West 26th Street).
509. On Sunday, southbound travelers (and others) are welcome at the annual dinner of The Master's Class at 4:00 at the Franklin Inn Club at St. James and Camac Streets in Philadelphia (Victoria M. Robinson, 299B Summit House, 1450 West Chester Pike, West Chester, PA 19382). The exhibition on "One Hundred Years of Sherlock Holmes" (items on display will include the manuscript of "The Empty House") at the Rosenbach Museum & Library (2010 DeLancey Place) will be open from 11:00 to 4:00 on Sunday afternoon. Note: the museum may be crowded, since this will be the last day of their Maurice Sendak exhibit (which you might also wish to see).
-
510. Nov 87 #2: The Sherlockian connection for Johns Hopkins, who will be honored by a commemorative stamp in 1989, was proposed by Christopher Morley in "Was Sherlock Holmes an American?" (SRL, July 21, 1934). "But all have wondered just what Holmes was doing between the time he left the university and his taking rooms in Montague Street," he wrote. "My own thought is that the opening of the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore in 1876, and the extraordinary and informal opportunities offered there for graduate study, tempted him across the water."
511. Bouchercon XVIII ("Murder in the North Country!") in Minneapolis on Oct. 9-11 offered a Saturday-afternoon session devoted to Sherlock Holmes; according to the program, the agenda included "Nordiske film series: New Discoveries" (Bjarne Nielsen), "Dr. Arthur Doyle's Patients in Fact and Fiction" (Jack Key), "The Timeless Sherlock Holmes" (P.J. Doyle, E. W. McDiarmid, and Ely Liebow), "The Phenomenon of Sherlock Holmes: Societies, Collecting and Scholarship" (Philip Shreffler, Bjarne Nielsen, J. Randolph Cox, and Janice McNabb Cox), and "The Game Continues" (a slide presentation with Audrey Hammer). Copies of the program, with a fine tribute to John Nieminski, are available for $5.00 postpaid from Steven A. Stilwell (2333 Minneapolis Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55406).
512. One of the Bouchercon souvenirs was JOHN NIEMINSKI: SOMEWHERE A ROSCOE, selected and edited by Ely Liebow and Art Scott as a tribute to John. The 61-page chapbook offers a fine selection (including some S'ian items) from John's literate and amusing contributions to DAPA-EM (that's the mysteryfan amateur press), and is available for $6.95 postpaid from Brownstone Books, 407 Jefferson Street, Madison, IN 47250.
513. Brownstone has also published TAD-SCHRIFT: TWENTY YEARS OF MYSTERY FANDOM IN THE ARMCHAIR DETECTIVE, edited by J. Randolph Cox, with contributions by Sherlockian fans but no specifically S'ian content; $12.95 postpaid.
514. Bouchercon XIX will be held in San Diego on Oct. 7-9, 1988, and sponsored by Phyllis Brown. To enroll on the mailing list, write to Bouchercon XIX, Grounds for Murder, 2707 Congress Street, San Diego, CA 92110.
515. The Dec. 1987 issue of Playboy has a Sherlockian cartoon by Gahan Wilson (p. 210). Also a Potpourri item (p. 223) on THE ULTIMATE PIPE VIDEO (the world's first pipe-smoking-and-collecting VHS video tape), produced by Rick Hacker (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213); I haven't seen the cassette, but his earlier THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK had Sherlockian content.
516. A new catalog at hand from Gallery Lainzberg (200 Guaranty Building, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401) (800-553-9995); they specialize in production cels from animated films, including "The Great Mouse Detective" ($195 to $225).
517. SHERLOCK HOLMES: A GRAPHIC NOVEL, by Bill Barry (Glendale: CB Publications, 1987, 74 pp., $8.95), is a welcome reprint of the fine comic strip that ran in some papers in 1976 and 1977. There are three stories ("The Hound of the Baskervilles", "A Portrait in Red", and "A Study in Scarlet"), with a new and well-illustrated "Walking Tour of London". The book is available from Bill Barry Enterprises, 329 Harvey Drive, Glendale, CA 91206 (add $2.50 for UPS or $1.00 for book-rate mail).
-
518. Nov 87 #3: Reported by Brian R. MacDonald: deerstalkered Goofy on box and in "Lonesome Ghosts" reel in MICKEY MOUSE & FRIENDS "gift set" with 3-D viewer and three reels ($6.95-9.95 at toy and discount stores). SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE RALEIGH LEGACY, by L. B. Greenwood (St. Martin's Press paperback, $2.95). S'ian cartoon (twice) in GIANT CRACKED #47 (BOOK OF SHUT UPS!), winter 1988, $2.75.
519. Julian Symons' "Did Sherlock Holmes Meet Hercule -----?" is in EQMM, mid-Dec. 1987 (reprinted from Illustrated London News, Apr. 1987). And Frank Langella is Sherlock Holmes on the cover of the Jan. 1988 issue.
520. The computerized list of Sherlockian societies seems to be in pretty good shape (the query in the Sept. 1987 issue of the BSI did not uncover any missing societies). There are now 432 societies on the list, including 217 active societies (153 geographical, 12 professional, and 52 other); the 41-page print-out for all societies is available from me at $2.50 postpaid, and we also offer mailing labels for the contacts for active societies for commercial use at $10.00 postpaid.
521. Roger Johnson reports that "The Abbot's Cry" (the sequel to "The Masks of Death") will go into production next year, according to a letter from Peter Cushing, but with Ian Richardson as Holmes. Cushing has retired (the time has come to "nail my toupee to the wall," he wrote), but he is continuing his autobiography (the second volume, PAST FORGETTING, with much about Sherlock Holmes, will be published next spring).
522. Roger also reports plans for another project, tentatively titled "Sherlock and Me", with Michael Caine as Holmes and Ben Kingsley as Watson.
523. "The Endearing Cult of Sherlock Holmes" received a two-page tribute in the Nov. 16 issue of Maclean's (777 Bay Street, Toronto, Ont. M5W 1A7, Canada; $1.75), with photographs of four dignitaries: Rathbone, Langella, Conan Doyle, and Cameron Hollyer.
524. Flier at hand detailing the Metropolitan Toronto Library's centenary celebrations, which will include an exhibition ("Crime After Crime: Sherlock Holmes to Benny Cooperman") from Dec. 4 to Feb. 15, a series of lectures and films, a book-launching party in honor of Christopher Redmond's WELCOME TO AMERICA, MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES on Dec. 13, and a murder mystery game on Jan. 22. Write to MTL Public Relations, 789 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont. M4W 2G8, Canada.
525. WELCOME TO AMERICA, MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES is a detailed account of Conan Doyle's first trip to the United States in 1894, to be published by Simon & Pierre (Box 280, Adelaide Street Postal Station, Toronto, Ont. M5C 2J4, Canada) at $19.95 (Canadian); no charge for shipping prepaid orders.
526. "Sherlock Holmes in America" (excerpted from Andrew Malec's Introduction to the new Mysterious Press edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES) is in the winter 1987 issue of Mysterious News, the quarterly published by the Mysterious Press, 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019; no charge. And there is a section of in-print Sherlockiana in the latest catalog from the Mysterious Bookshop (same address).
-
527. Nov 87 #4: "Star Trek: The Next Generation" was slightly Sherlockian in the episode broadcast on Nov. 7 (or thereabouts, since the series is syndicated), and videotapers can watch for the repeat of "Lonely Among Us" (the Enterprise, while escorting aliens to the planet Parliament, encounters an energy cloud that seizes control of the minds of the crew and alters their behavior). Discussing the mystery with Commander William Riker (Jonathan Frakes) and Lt. Commander Data (Brent Spiner), Captain Jean-Luc Picard (Patrick Stewart) mentions "the immortal Sherlock Holmes" and Data then studies the Sherlock Holmes stories and begins smoking a calabash, leading to more discussion of Sherlock Holmes.

528. Reported by Ron De Waal: I THINK I DON'T REMEMBER, by Art Buchwald (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1987; $16.95), with "The Crime of the Century" (p. 292-294), in which Holmes and Watson discuss the Iran/Contra affair.
529. Micro (Box 38644, Los Angeles, CA 90038) offers "picture stamps" at $2.00 for 150, or $3.00 for 300 ("any star, any group, 21,000 in stock"), but their Basil Rathbone "picture stamp" isn't all that great.
530. ROOM TWO MORE GUNS: THE INTRIGUING HISTORY OF THE PERSONAL COLUMN OF THE TIMES, by Stephen Winkworth (London: George Allen & Unwin, 1986; 263 pp., £10.95), is a fascinating study of the "agony column" from their origins in 1785 to the present day, with a chapter on the use of the personal column by Sherlock Holmes, and by Conan Doyle (who advertised in 1901 asking for the loan of officers' letters dealing with certain Boer War battles).
531. THE QUEST FOR SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: THIRTEEN BIOGRAPHERS IN SEARCH OF A LIFE, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg, with a foreword by Dame Jean Conan Doyle (Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 1987; 232 pp., $19.95), is an examination of how (and how well or how poorly) Conan Doyle and his biographers have described his life and career. The contributors are all knowledgeable about Conan Doyle (often more knowledgeable than those who wrote the biographies), and the book is recommended as an excellent guide to the many, and frequently unreliable, biographies. If the quest for Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is, as the book's epilogue suggests, still incomplete, the commentaries collected here provide a fine summary of what we do know now. Available from the publisher (Box 3697, Carbondale, IL 62902); add $1.50 shipping per order, and they take plastic.
532. The results of my bibliographic investigation of the Souvenir Edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET have now been published, in the summer 1987 issue of Baker Street Miscellanea, and I guess it is time to start investigating the next title. Owners of copies of the Souvenir Edition of THE SIGN OF FOUR are invited to request a copy of my one-page questionnaire listing the points of interest that will (I hope) identify the variants.
533. SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE NOVELS AND STORIES, the two-volume Bantam edition with Introduction by Loren Estleman (BSJ Sep 87), is now available in a "deluxe gift-box edition" (in a rather flimsy box) at $9.90; the two volumes are second printings (the printing code at bottom of title-page verso ends with "2" rather than "1").
-
534. Nov 87 #5: Sherlockian pianists might wish to consider owning a Sherlock Manning piano (available from Sherlock's Music, 976 Silas Deane Highway, Wethersfield, CT 06109). Tyke Niver reports that the pianos are above average in quality, and priced at about $2,700 (plus shipping and handling), and he welcomes enquiries.
535. BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL 1987 (Denver: Pencil Productions, 1987) is an 80-page tribute to the original, with a reprint of "The Blue Carbuncle" and two new pastiches by Ian Malcolm Earlson, plus brief commentaries and a glossary, and new illustrations by C. Woolery. In the new stories, Holmes uses a Babbage calculating engine to foil Moran, and investigates a forged accusation against Charles Parnell. Available from William S. Dorn (2120 South Monroe Street, Denver, CO 80210) for $11.95 postpaid.
536. Thomas W. Campbell (The Bloomsbury Square Collection, 7474 Creedmoor Drive #221B, Raleigh, NC 27612) writes that the deadline has been extended to Dec. 31 for ordering his S'ian multi-color cloisonne pin at the issue price of $8.95 postpaid. Volume discounts are also offered in his flier.
537. Guernsey's (236 East 73rd Street, New York, NY 10021) (212-794-2280) will be auctioning "a great portion" of Forrest J. Ackerman's collection of science fiction, fantasy, and horror on Dec. 12-13 (the catalog costs $20.00 postpaid). I visited Forrie this year, and his collection is truly spectacular. I saw nothing of Sherlockian significance, but he has many stills and other print material from the two film versions of "The Lost World" and one of the flying-reptile models created by Willis H. O'Brien for the 1925 version of "The Lost World" (and a similar model from "King Kong"). The flying reptile could, of course, be of S'ian significance in view of the appearance of the Dutch steamship Friesland in both THE LOST WORLD and "The Norwood Builder".
538. The musical "Baker Street" is experiencing a modest revival, with at least three productions in the last year or so, the most recent being at the Gonzaga College High School in Washington this month. The show is licensed by Tams-Witmark Music Library (560 Lexington Avenue, New York, NY 10022), in a version somewhat less elaborate than the one presented on Broadway (as might be expected), but it is thoroughly enjoyable when presented by an enthusiastic and competent cast and crew, as it was here. It is well worth recommending to any local theatrical group that does musicals (and of course that's the only way the current generation of Sherlockians will get to see it).
539. Reported by Herb Tinning: "Silver Blaze" (the 1977 television film starring Christopher Plummer) is now available on videocassette, from Coronet/MTI Film & Video [distributors for Learning Corporation of America], 108 Wilmot Road, Deerfield, IL 60015 (800-621-2131), priced at $99.00 (obviously aimed at institutions rather than individuals).
540. The Nov. 20 catalog of discount and remainder books from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031) includes THE GREAT DETECTIVES: SEVEN ORIGINAL INVESTIGATIONS, by Julian Symons ($10.95); THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SCRAPBOOK, by Peter Haining ($6.95); and THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, by M. J. Trow ($3.95).
-
541. Nov 87 #6: At hand from John Bennett Shaw is Raleigh Trevelyan's article on "Life Among the Lifers: Return to the Andamans After 59 Years" (Country Life, May 28, 1987). Trevelyan, who was born at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands, where his father was in command of the garrison, returned to find that "the Andamanese are now reduced to a pathetic 24, having been decimated long ago by syphilis and measles." The Jarawas are still dangerous, however, and "one splendidly defiant offshoot on North Sentinel Island greets intruders with showers of poisoned arrows." The Onges are also dwindling in numbers: "they chew leaves that make their breath so fearful that even bees flee in terror."
542. Reported by Brad Keefauver: 1985/1986 MOVIE SONGBOOK (Columbia Pictures Publications, $7.95) includes the love theme from "Young Sherlock Holmes" and has the movie logo on the cover.
543. Local posts are among the more interesting of philatelic sidelines. Once allowed to carry mail only where the U.S. post office didn't, they are now free to operate anywhere, and some of them have issued Sherlockian labels from time to time. The Yeti Post, founded in May 1965, commemorated the centenary with a Sherlockian issue on Jan. 8, and you can obtain Yeti Post service (with one of the labels) by sending a SASE to G. H. Palmer, 111 Apache Avenue, 1000 Oaks, CA 91362.
544. According to the January 1988 issue of Playboy (p. 227), Dunhill of London have celebrated the centenary with a limited-edition briar calabash-style pipe with sterling-silver mounting, in a leather-covered bookcase. $750.
545. P. Moran (Harpies Bizarre, Box 854, Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02142) offers "The Women's Holmes Companion" (a calendar for 1988, featuring Holmesian and Victorian women of note and notoriety); $10.00.
546. Roger Johnson reports SUPERNATURAL STORIES OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Peter Haining (Foulsham, £12.95), and THE CASE OF THE FINAL CURTAIN, by Arthur Conan Doyle (Longman, £1.10), and paperback editions of THE GIANT RAT OF SUMATRA, by Richard L. Boyer (Grafton, £2.95) and EXIT SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Robert Lee Hall (Grafton, £2.95).

547. Reported by Jack Kerr: IN THE RING: A TREASURY OF BOXING STORIES, edited by Martin H. Greenberg ($8.98 at Waldenbooks); contents include Conan Doyle's "The Croxley Master".
548. Dana Richards reports "The Lost Special" included in DEATH LOCKED IN, a collection edited by Douglas G. Greene and Robert C. S. Adey (New York: International Polygonics, 1987).
549. DEATH AT APPLIEDORE TOWERS, by Gerald Lientz (New York: Berkley Books, 1987; $2.95) is the third in the "Solo Mysteries" series. The mystery will not present any difficulty for anyone who already knows who did what to Charles Augustus Milverton, but for those who don't, there is a challenge: this time it is possible to fail to solve the case.
550. Demographic Systems Inc. (325 Hudson Street, New York, NY 10013) uses S'ian artwork in its promotion for "Sherlock" (a multi-level merge/purge system).
-
551. Dec 87 #1: Further to my query (Sep 87 #6) about the statement by the editors of the Strand that "there will be only a temporary interval in the Sherlock Holmes stories," Richard Lancelyn Green notes that Eric Quayle (THE COLLECTOR'S BOOK OF DETECTIVE FICTION, 1972, p. 67-68) quotes a similar statement from page 82 in the July 1892 issue, when the editors reported that "we are glad to be able to announce that there is to be only a temporary interval in the publication of these stories," and that "Mr. Conan Doyle is now engaged upon writing a second series, which will be commenced in an early number." But: this was at the end of the Adventures, not at the end of the Memoirs. Baring-Gould and Quayle indicate that they are quoting, not paraphrasing, a statement by the editors; Quayle has the July 1892 date, but Baring-Gould does not.
552. Flier at hand from Dan and Ann Brasier (Holmes by Hall, Box 221B, Flushing, MI 48433) for a new "Master Sleuth Teapot" (from the Hall China Co., in porcelain, 12 inches high), priced at $79.95 plus $4.00 shipping. Irene Handl died on Nov. 29; she played Mrs. Hudson in the movie "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970).
553. Sherlock Holmes is mentioned in passing in John S. Rapp's article on "Forensic Geology and a Colusa County Murder" in California Geology, July 1987 (address: 1516 Ninth Street, 4th floor, Sacramento, CA 95814; $1.00).
554. Ron De Waal reports: a new edition of THE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES TREASURY (New York: Chatham River Press, 1987; 808 pp., $12.95, in "genuine bonded leather"); first published by Avenel Books in 1984. And: TUNE IN YESTERDAY ON CASSETTE: SHERLOCK HOLMES (New Rochelle: Great American Audio Corp., 1987); five cassettes in a box, with four Sherlock Holmes programs ($17.95 at Waldenbooks). And: VCR 221B BAKER STREET (Clarksdale: VCR Enterprises, 1987; $45.95 at Waldenbooks); this is a video version of the board game 221B BAKER STREET, with a ten-episode videotape (with Stuart Devenie as Holmes and Gerald Bryan as Watson) and accessories for playing the game. And: MASTER DETECTIVE SET (Rockaway, Natural Science Industries, 1987; $20.95); police ident-i-kit, fingerprint kit, real 110 camera, secret messages and codes, disguises, and instructions (by John H. Watson, M.D.), with a photograph of Sherlock Holmes on the cover. And: SELECTIONS FROM THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Chatham Audio Classics, 1987; $15.95 at B. Dalton); four stories (Scan, RedH, Five, Blue) narrated by Ed Simone on three cassettes, plus a booklet.
555. Alas -- Frank Langella closed "Sherlock's Last Case" on Dec. 6. According to my count, there were 13 preview and 124 regular performances. I've been told that toward the end of the run the theater was selling less than 45 percent of capacity.
-
556. Dec 87 #2: The Torists International, S.S., one of the newer societies, is celebrating its first anniversary, and offers its Sherlockiansilhouette insignia on baseball and ski caps, jackets, lapel pins, tie bars, money clips, and key rings. A flier is available to anyone sending a SASE to Anthony J. Citera, 6625 North Crawford, Lincolnwood, IL 60646.
557. Wilton M. Krogman died on Nov. 4. He was a noted anthropologist, and wrote on "Sherlock Holmes as an Anthropologist" (Scientific Monthly, Mar. 1955) and on "Anthropology in THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES" (BSJ, Sept. 1970).
558. Reported in Coin World (Nov. 18): an "overstruck cent" commemorating the centenary, available from Larry Hall, Box 771, Morgan, UT 84050; two for $1.00 and a SASE.
559. I THINK I DON'T REMEMBER, by Art Buchwald (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1987; 350 pp., $16.95), has reprints of two of his Sherlockian columns: "Magnificent Obsession" (pp. 103-106, reprinted from Mar. 27, 1986) with an illustration by Steve Mendelson, and "The Crime of the Century" (pp. 292-294, reprinted from Dec. 16, 1986).
560. David L. Hammer reports that the Dunhill of London commemorative pipe (Nov 87 #6) has been offered by Henry Sotheran Ltd. (attn: Michael Silverman, 2 Sackville Street, Piccadilly, London W1X 2DP, England) at £324.50 plus postage. A bit cheaper than the $750 price in Playboy).
561. Discovered by Al Rodin: POCKET COMPANION QUOTATION GUIDE (Harlow: Longman Group, 1983), with four annotated quotations from the Canon, and one from Eliot's "Macavity: The Mystery Cat".
562. WILDERS WALK AWAY (New York: International Polygonics, 1987; 219 pp., $4.95), was Herbert Brean's first mystery novel, first published in 1948, and it is a fine story (with quotes from the Canon as chapter headings) about a Vermont family whose members have been vanishing into thin air since the days of the Revolution.
563. Catalogue Five from The 19th Century Shop (1047 Hollins Street, Baltimore, MD 21223) offers (and reproduces) a pencil-on-paper portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Rene Magritte ("related to Magritte's well-known cover for the London Gallery *Bulletin*, done in 1938"); price $12,500.
564. Cox & Co. of New England offer a new lapel pin, showing (appropriately) the battered tin dispatch-box, in silver, gold, and white. $6.00 postpaid from James O. Duval, 72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303.
565. "Mr. Rossi's Dreams" is a 76-minute Italian animation (c1983 by Bruce Bozzetto Film), broadcast earlier this year on the Disney Channel. If you see it listed again, it's worth taping: Rossi imagines himself as a series of heroes such as Tarzan, an astronaut, Zorro, and Sherlock Holmes (in a 9-minute sequence about "The Case of the Murderous Milkman").
566. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck: THE RAG DOLL MURDER, by H. Paul Jeffers (New York: Ballantine Books, 1987; $2.95) has many Sherlockian references, with a major clue being a dog that did nothing in the nighttime.
-
567. Dec 87 #3: Reported by Ron De Waal: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (San Francisco: The Mind's Eye); a reissue of the 1975 Jaberwocky audiocassette (D4702b) with Richard Lewis as Holmes ($5.95 at B. Dalton). August Derleth's "The Adventure of the Red Leech" reprinted in ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S THE SHADOW OF SILENCE (New York: Davis Publications, 1987; $3.50); Alfred Hitchcock's Anthology #24. THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (San Francisco: The Mind's Eye); six audio cassettes, each with two of the Gielgud/Richardson radio shows ($5.95 each at B. Dalton).
568. Larry D. Hall (Box 771, Morgan, UT 84050) offers overstruck cents honoring the centenary, priced at two for $1.00 and a SASE (four coins can be mailed for 22 cents postage). New dies have been used to overstrike the front and back of new pennies, and they make attractive souvenirs.

569. Further to the report (Sep 87 #5) of the attempt by District Councillor James Tait to commemorate Conan Doyle in Edinburgh, a plaque (inscribed "Arthur Conan Doyle lived here 1876-1880") was unveiled at 23 George Square on Nov. 20.
570. Dean Morrissey's full-page color illustrations are a fine enhancement to the "Night Lights" edition of THE SPECKLED BAND (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1987; 32 pp., $6.95); an element in each of the illustrations has been overprinted with phosphorescent ink.
571. Granada has begun production on another series of programs in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes", beginning with "Silver Blaze" (filmed on location in Cheshire, Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Bangor-on-Dee) and "The Devil's Foot" (filmed on location in West Cornwall). It is in Granada's "The Devil's Foot" that Holmes abandons cocaine: "We have decided, with the blessing of Conan Doyle's daughter, that he should kick cocaine," Jeremy Brett told a newspaper reporter, "I am seen dropping the syringe into the sea at Kynance and covering it with sand."
572. According to another reporter, Brett has announced that he has commissioned his own play involving Sherlock Holmes, which he intends to take on a world tour next year, with the first stop in New Zealand.
573. The Glasgow Herald was "the first paper of note" to review "A Study in Scarlet", according to a report by Ken Wright in (of course) the Glasgow Herald (Oct. 24, 1987). On Dec. 17, 1887, their reviewer wrote: "He is a wonderful man is Mr. Sherlock Holmes."
574. Visitors to Clyro in Herefordshire (near the Welsh border) are welcome at The Baskerville Arms (formerly The Swan until, as legend has it, Conan Doyle stayed in the village while writing "The Hound of the Baskervilles"); the hotel owners are also proud of Sooty, their Great Dane "of ferocious and terrifying aspect but, thankfully, daft as a brush with customers."
-
575. Dec 87 #4: As has been reported widely, HOLMES is now providing invaluable assistance to the British police (this HOLMES, of course, being a computer called the Home Office Large Major Enquiry System). According to Computer Weekly (Sept. 24, 1987), HOLMES is now "old technology" and plans are afoot for a successor, to be named in honor of Sherlock Holmes' brother. But so far they have not been able to devise a suitable name for which MYCROFT is an acronym. Any suggestions?
576. Further to the report (Nov 87 #3) of the new film starring Michael Caine and Ben Kingsley, ITC Entertainment has started shooting in the Lake District on a "clever comedy" called "The Imposter of Baker Street" (or "Sherlock and Me", depending on the newspaper). Michael Caine plays a little-known actor hired by Dr. Watson to play the part of the Holmes inadvertently created by Watson, who has attributed his own successes in crime detection to the fictitious sleuth, and finds himself forced to take desperate measures when the Queen's Envoy insists that Holmes be enlisted to prevent the dastardly Moriarty pulling off a scheme that threatens the very existence of the British Empire. Nigel Davenport and Peter Cook also appear in the film, which is budgeted at $10 million and scheduled for release at the end of 1988. Caine will also play Inspector Frederick Abberline next year in a television program to be produced by Thames TV.
577. And yet another news item from Britain: Sue Brown has retired from her post as Sherlock Holmes' secretary, after five years on the job. Nikki Caparn is the new secretary, and in her spare time is communications assistant in the public relations department of the Abbey National Building Society.
578. The first (summer 1987) issue of Baker Street Gazette at hand from Baker Street Publications (Box 994, Metairie, LA 70004; $3.00 an issue, or $10.00 a year for four issues). It's a 78-page magazine with reprints from the press, pastiches, advertisements for S'ian collectibles, and contributors that include Susan Beasley (on collecting), Michael B. Murphy (on the propaganda aspects of the war-time Universal films), Walter P. Armstrong (on the official entry of the word "grimpen" into the language), and Rick Lai (on Canonical echoes in John Buchan's works).
579. Historical Products (Box 220, Cambridge, MA 02238) now offers their Steele portrait of Sherlock Holmes (as well as their other historical notables) on buttons and magnets at $3.25 each (minimum order of three) plus $1.50 for shipping; plastic accepted.
580. Color flier at hand from Bob Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offering three new 13-inch figurines of Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty ($69.00 each in hand-painted clay, or $59.00 each in unpainted white bone china); commissioned by Sleuth Publications Ltd. in Liverpool.
581. Reported by John A. Hogan, editor of The Crimson Circle (the newsletter of The Edgar Wallace Society): EDGAR WALLATZE: DER FROSCH MIT DER GLATZE, by Wolfgang G. Fienhold (Munchen: Goldmann Verlag, 1986; 90 pp., DM 7.80); a parody (loosely based on "The Fellowship of the Frog"), featuring Sir Edgar (head of Scotland Yard), with an appearance by Alfred Holmes, of Manderley Manor, Baskerville (where are found the frozen bodies of "Mary Shellby, Rex Stout, Agatha Christie, Doyle, Chandler, Poe...").
-
582. Dec 87 #5: Discovered by Jon Lellenberg: BRITAIN: THE QUEEN, CRICKET, SHERLOCK HOLMES, AND OTHER THINGS INDUBITABLY BRITISH (Philadelphia: Running Press, 1987; 175 pp., $22.50); edited by Norman Kolpas and profusely illustrated, with most of the photographs in full color. Sherlock Holmes appears in Tim Heald's two-page article on "Unconventional Sleuths". Available for $24.00 postpaid from the publisher (125 South 22nd Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103).
583. Quotations from the Canon appear as chapter headings in TSO EXTENSIONS PRIMER published by IBM in Sept. 1987. This is a 156-page explanation of IBM's Time Sharing Option Extensions (described by IBM as "an option of the MVS operating system that allows users to interactively share computer time and resources"). Completists can consult their IBM representatives to see about getting a copy of the primer (and, presumably, a computer system on which to interactively share computer time and resources).
584. Keith Paulison ("Mr. John Scott Eccles") died on July 20. He was one of the early members of The Scandalous Bohemians of New Jersey.
585. Sean M. Wright and The Non-Canonical Calabashes of Los Angeles suggest that you plan ahead, for a tour of England to celebrate the centenary of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES in Sept. and Oct. 1989.
586. THE LADIES HOLMES COMPANION: A CALENDAR FOR 1988 has arrived from Harpies Bizarre. Compiled by Pat Moran, Evelyn Herzog, Mary Ellen Rich, and Linda Patterson (and available for $10.00 postpaid from the publisher, Box 854, Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02142), the calendar honors ladies Canonical and non-Canonical, ranging from Fanny Brice ("I may be a bad woman, but I'm awful good company") to Mrs. Patrick Campbell ("marriage is the deep, deep peace of the double bed after the hurly-burly of the chaise longue").
587. More news from Phyllis Brown about Bouchercon XIX, scheduled for Oct. 7-9, 1988, in San Diego. The guest of honor will be Charlotte MacLeod, the toastmaster will be Robert Barnard, and the fan guest of honor will be Bruce Taylor. There will be three-track programming, and the dealer room (30 dealers at 48 tables) is already sold out. Early registration (through Feb. 15) is $25.00 (then $30.00, and $35.00 at the door if registration has not been closed); supporting membership is $10.00 (you receive the program book, signed by guests of honor and many of the participating authors). Write to Bouchercon XIX, c/o Grounds for Murder, 2707 Congress Street, San Diego, CA 92110.
588. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERY MAP (Los Angeles: Aaron Blake, 1987; $4.95) is nicely done: the 26-by-21-inch folded sheet displays maps of England and London, Canonical illustrations by Jim Wolnick, all in color, and a border message in dancing men (with one minor error). The map is part of a series that includes THE RAYMOND CHANDLER MYSTERY MAP OF LOS ANGELES, THE ERNEST HEMINGWAY ADVENTURE MAP OF THE WORLD, and THE IAN FLEMING THRILLER MAP. The publisher's address is 9854 Vidor Drive, Los Angeles, CA 90035.

589. Reported: CRIME AND MYSTERY: THE 100 BEST BOOKS, by H.R.F. Keating (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987; 219 pp., $15.95); not yet seen, so I don't know which (if any) of the Canonical titles are included.
-
590. Dec 87 #6: The French have not neglected the centenary: Le Monde published a long article by Christilla Pelle-Dou%ol on Dec. 18 celebrating "L'homme qui tua Conan Doyle" with an interview with Anthony Howlett and a discussion of Sherlock Holmes' world-wide admirers. "'Les Américains sont un peu trop fanatiques,' soupire M. Howlett, qui pleure encore l'adhésion de Winston Churchill aux Baker Street Irregulars, bien avant l'apparition de la société anglaise." The article also lists many of the Sherlockian societies, including "la Société des patients négligés du docteur Watson," "Le Tra-la-la-lira-lira lay," "les Aristocrates célibataires," "la Société des femmes qui attendent un mari holmesien," "les Plongeurs de la falaise de Reichenbach," and "le Club des violons de cremone," most of which seem to sound much more dignified in French.
591. Just issued in Britain by That's Entertainment Records: SHERLOCK HOLMES, an evocative recording of music composed and conducted by Patrick Gowers for the Granada television series. There are 19 tracks (including "Old Sherman's Dog Toby" and "River Chase" from "The Sign of Four"), and the album jacket is nicely decorated with color scenes from the series. The recording is available on a stereo record (TER 1136), compact disc (CDTER 1136), and cassette (ZCTER 1136). No word yet on an American distributor, but it's well worth tracking down from your British correspondents.
592. Herman Beerman has given his Sherlock Holmes collection to the Athenaeum of Philadelphia (on East Washington Square); the Athenaeum will have a S'ian exhibition from Jan. 4 to Feb. 4.
593. The BBC had much to say about Sherlock Holmes in December, with six pages of articles accompanying a fine Sherlockian cover on the Dec. 5-11 issue of Radio Times, which included a "Sherlock Holmes Competition" offering five first-prize six-night Swiss holidays "at the comfortable Sherpa Hotel at Meiringen close by the infamous falls" to those who answer correctly six rather elementary questions (including one about Holmes and one about Conan Doyle) and who provide the best answers (no more than 20 words) to the tiebreaker: "If Sherlock Holmes were practising today, which 20th century invention would help him most, and why?"
594. On Dec. 6, BBC Radio 4 rebroadcast Susan Marling's 40-minute report on The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's tour to Switzerland. On Dec. 8, the BBC-2 television series "Food and Drink" featured an interview with Mrs. Hudson, who demonstrated Sherlock Holmes' favorite recipe for plum duff. On Dec. 11, BBC-2 aired Basil Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles", and their television series "Out of Court" had Holmesian touches ("*The Hound of the Baskervilles* may be fictional, but for more than 300 children mauled by savage dogs every year, the horror is all-too-real").
595. And the 70-minute documentary "The Case of Sherlock Holmes" was broadcast by BBC-2 on Dec. 10, produced by David Pearson and narrated by Tim Pigott-Smith, with discussion of the world-wide devotion exemplified by the annual re-dedication (if that's the proper term) of the Memorial Moriarty Manure Pile. This marked the 16th annual assembly in Moriarty; according to American press reports, Keith Jameson was unable to supply droppings from his pet iguana, but there was enough exotic excrement from the coyote and longhorn steer to bid farewell to the spirit of Professor Moriarty.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 88 #1:

1. The birthday festivities were, as always, both hectic and enjoyable, and this year the celebration began informally on the preceding Saturday, when the first far-flung Sherlockian collector deplaned in New York in a quest for book shops that might have treasures passed over by the locals.
  2. On Jan. 8, by way of formal proceedings, the BSI returned to the ballroom at 24 Fifth Avenue, where Maureen Green of Toronto was *The* Woman, toasted by Michael F. Whelan and honored at the BSI pre-dinner cocktail party and by *The* Women at dinner at the National Arts Club.
  3. The BSI observed the usual traditions, with agenda items including: Isaac Asimov's tuneful toast ("The Battle Hymn of Mrs. Watson"), Ray Betzner's reading of the Musgrave ritual, Richard Shull's dramatic reading of Christopher Morley's "In Memoriam Sherlock Holmes", a nine-minute tape recording of William Gillette as Sherlock Holmes (discovered last year by Peter E. Blau), W. T. Rabe's report on "The Missing Page, or Whatever Happened to Watson's Billet Doux?" (mentioned in "Houn"), David L. Hammer's suggestive discussion of Violet Hunter, and Robert S. Katz's identification of acute septicemic melioidosis as the disease the dying detective wasn't dying from.
  4. Irregular Shillings were awarded to Philip R. Brogdon ("John Sanger"), James C. Cleary, Jr. ("Howard Garrideb"), William R. Cochran ("Murray"), Carey Cummings ("An Irish Secret Society"), Charles A. Meyer ("Adolph Meyer"), Alan C. Olding ("Cooee"), Mel Ruiz ("Jack Douglas"), and Burt Woldur ("The Third Pillar from the Left"). Two-Shilling Awards were given to Jon L. Lellenberg and Robert E. Thomalen.
  5. Other Friday gatherings included The Martha Hudson Breakfast at the Hotel Algonquin, The William Gillette Memorial Luncheon at the Old Homestead, Otto Penzler's open house at the Mysterious Bookshop, the Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes' dinner at Garvin's Restaurant, and impromptu partying in the Hunchback of Notre Dame suite at the Hotel Iroquois.
  6. The ASH dinner was devoted to celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the founding of The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes by the intrepid group that besieged Cavanaugh's Restaurant (an event that was headlined the next day as "Baker Street Sextet in Picket Line Protest"), and to enthusiastic tributes to Evelyn A. Herzog, who may or may not have provided a detailed explanation of the ASH war-cry ("Snake! Snake!").
  7. Saturday's cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue offered a performance by The Friends of Bogie's of Loren D. Estleman's "Dr. and Mrs. Watson at Home" from THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES; Jon L. Lellenberg's announcement of plans for a round-robin Sherlockian novel (with a basic scenario proposed by a BSI committee, chapters to be written by a succession of mystery authors, and the mystery to be solved in the final chapter by Isaac Asimov); and Ezra Wolff's traditional poetic greetings. And on Sunday south-bound travelers dined in Philadelphia with The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club, where members of the Wilmington cast performed excerpts from their production of "The Incredible Murder of Cardinal Tosca".
-
8. Jan 88 #2: Another plug for the remainder-books catalog from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031): his new catalog (Dec. 28) includes Art Buchwald's "YOU *CAN* FOOL ALL OF THE PEOPLE ALL OF THE TIME" (Putnam, 1985, $3.95); reprints his Aug. 30, 1984, Sherlockian column "The Great Media Mystery". Also: John Sladek's BLACK AURA (Walker, 1979 cloth, $2.95; and Walker, 1983 paper, $1.95); a Thackery Phin mystery with many S'ian allusions. Also: Peter Haining's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SCRAPBOOK (Crescent, 1986, $6.95); new cover and jacket artwork (for completists), and value-for-money (for those who don't already have the book).
  9. Forecast for March: all 14 of the Rathbone/Bruce feature films will be released on videocassette by Key Video (a division of CBS/Fox video) at $19.98 each (suggested retail). I've been told that the cassettes will be made from the set of masters assembled by Leo Gutman, which means high quality, and there will be an added feature I've not heard of before on videocassettes: the films will be closed-captioned for hearing-impaired viewers who have the decoders used with television sets.
  10. The request (Dec 87 #4) for a name to match the acronym MYCROFT for the Home Office's new computer system has produced a suggestion from Jim Cleary: Major Yard Computer for Recovery, Organization, Filing, and Tabulation. Any other proposals?
  11. BSI annual dinner addenda: Bill Rabe also reported on his Oct. 1987 visit to Meiringen, where the natives apparently refuse to admit that there never was a hotel called the Englischerhof (or a Peter Steiler, the elder). At the Rossli, chosen many years ago as the best candidate by The Old Soldiers of

- Baker Street, who installed a commemorative plaque in the hotel bar in 1952, Bill found that the new proprietors were delighted, after some years, to learn why visitors to the bar had been taking photographs of each other in front of the plaque (and then leaving without buying any beer). Bill was told that the Rossli, now in need of restoration, will be rebuilt and renamed as the Englischerhof, where frameable or hangable mementos donated contributed by Sherlockian societies or individual Sherlockians will be on display. Contributions may be sent to W. T. Rabe, 1204 Davitt Street, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783.
12. One of my discoveries during the birthday festivities was Pipeworks & Wilke at 16 West 55th Street, New York, NY 10019 -- pipesmokers tend to be drawn to pipe shops that have "sale" signs prominently displayed -- and their signed photograph of Basil Rathbone led to some discussion, and the news that their Blend 515 (described in their flier as "exotic tobaccos aged in rare Jamaica rum: smooth, mild, with a delightful aroma") was Rathbone's favorite tobacco when he lived in New York and used to walk down from his apartment on Central Park South, accompanied by his Irish wolfhound, to buy the tobacco. Blend 515 costs $6.70 (4 oz.) or $11.90 (8 oz.) or $21.75 (16 oz.); add $3.50 shipping for orders under 2 lbs. The mail-order address is Pipeworks & Wilke, R.R. 1, Box 275, Shaftsbury, VT 05262.
  13. The shop also offered two pipes from the Peterson "Sherlock Holmes" series that carries a sterling silver band marked with the well-known profile -- $125.00 for a bent briar and $100.00 for a sand-blasted bent briar (less 25% if their sale is still continuing).

---

  14. Jan 88 #3: There seems to have been no media coverage of Sherlock Holmes' birthday in 1988 (in contrast to the flood of press reports last year to launch the centenary), but there were some nice coincidental items: Jack Ziegler had a Sherlockian cartoon in the Jan. 11 issue of the New Yorker, and cartoonist Tom Batiuk added another series of "Sherlock Holmes' Secret Cases" to his "Funky Winterbean" newspaper comic strip (I have seen the panels for Jan. 4-9, and would appreciate hearing from anyone who has panels from other dates).
  15. There is still time to plan for a trip to Tulsa to participate in the "Holmes Peak Volksmarch" on Feb. 27. Sponsored by the Green County Wander-Freunde (an affiliate of the American Volkssporting Association), the Volksmarch will be a ten-kilometer hike around and up Holmes Peak. A special medallion commemorating this "Holmes Peak Expedition" will be awarded to those who complete the hike, and Dick Warner (Head Sherpa of the Holmes Peak Preservation Society) notes that avid collectors of S'iana "will either have to come to Tulsa and make the hike or find a Germanic-looking person who has made the hike and mug him for his medallion."
  16. THE ADVENTURE OF THE FAIRFAX UMPIRE, the latest exploit of Turlock Loams, is now being printed at the Pequod Press. "Devotees of the grotesque & absurd are urged to order now," from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.50 (cloth) or $14.50 (paper).
  17. The United States honored the 200th anniversary of Georgia's statehood with a commemorative issued Jan. 6. The design by Greg Harlin shows Atlanta's distinctive skyline rising behind the lush image of a live oak (according to the USPS press release). Georgia is mentioned in "The Five Orange Pips" and Atlanta in "The Yellow Face".
  18. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COLLECTION: THE GREAT DETECTIVE AND HIS CREATOR, by Charles Hall (Edinburgh: Charles Hall Productions, 1987; 100 pp., £10.95), is a splendid gathering of pictorial material drawn from all areas of Sherlockiana, mostly British but also including unusual items such as stills from Danish, German, and Czech films, and Soviet television. Available from the publisher (12 Paisley Terrace, Edinburgh EH8, Scotland, United Kingdom); add £5.00 for airmail shipping (or £7.00 for two copies); payment requested by international money order.
  19. The Saturday Review, in whose pages the world first learned of the BSI, is now defunct. The May-June 1986 issue was the last one published, and the magazine was sold last year to Bob Guccione, who apparently wanted only the mailing list -- not to expand the circulation of Penthouse, however, as former subscribers to SR are now receiving copies of Omni, whose masthead lists Guccione as publisher, editor in chief, and design director. It is perhaps only coincidental that the lead story in the first issue of Omni received was blurb-ed on the cover as "Sex and Love: How Dinosaurs Did It!"
  20. Check your supermarkets and drugstores for LIGHTS CAMERA MICKEY, a box of 200 3-oz. Dixie bathroom cups ($1.89 here); there are ten different designs on the cups, and one design shows "Inspector Mickey" in S'ian costume.

---

  21. Jan 88 #4: The winter 1987 issue of the Sherlock Holmes Journal is at hand, accompanied by a splendid 64-page centenary supplement devoted to A STUDY IN SCARLET. I assume that everyone sufficiently fanatic to subscribe to these information sheets also subscribes to the BSJ, BSM, and SHJ; those who do not will be dismayed at the report that the SHJ's special supplement was published only for SHJ subscribers.
  22. Another reason for subscribing to the BSJ, BSM, and SHJ is that I don't use this grapevine for items (such as John Michael Gibson's new facsimile of Beeton's Christmas Annual) announced for the first time in those journals.
  23. Plan ahead: this year's "Autumn in Baker Street" is scheduled for Oct. 8-9 at Bear Mountain, N.Y. The mailing list for announcements is maintained by Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
  24. Bogie's Murderous Mystery Tours have scheduled a tour to England, June 20 to July 3, 1988, with space for 30 people ("starting off in London, we will travel around the country, spend a day on the Orient Express, and try to survive for three nights at 'Baskerville Hall'"). Details available from Bogie's Restaurant, 249 West 26th Street, New York, NY 10001.
  25. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London will visit Switzerland again on Sept. 8-12, 1988, for the unveiling of the Sherlock Holmes statue in Meiringen, and a crossing of the Gemmi Pass.
  26. Plan farther ahead: while John Bennett Shaw has no plans for a workshop in 1988, there is a possibility of a sea-going workshop on a cruise liner in 1989. The workshop has two unofficial working titles: "Ship of Fools" and "No Ship, Sherlock".
  27. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck: David G. Kirby (Rupert Books, 59 Stonefield, Bar Hill, Cambridge CB3 8TE, England) offers a leather-bound, inscribed, limited (30 copies) variant of A CENTURY OF SCARLET: A CENTENARY CATALOGUE (£25.00). Also: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE KENT RAILWAYS, by Kelvin Jones (£8.95). Also: the British (O'Mara) imprint of the Steele-illustrated Mysterious Press edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (£12.00).
  28. There's a Sherlockian panel in "The Last of the Hollywood 'B' Movies" in Cracked Collectors' Edition (30 Years of Cracked) #74 (Apr 88), reprinted from Giant Cracked #45 (Oct 86).
  29. I have updated my listing of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women. $1.00 postpaid for a print-out.
  30. Scarlet in Gaslight #1 (Nov. 1987) is the first in a new comic-book series, from Martin Powell (writer), Seppo Makinen (artist), and Wayne R. Smith (editor), with Sherlock Holmes engaged in a battle against Count Dracula. Published monthly by Eternity Comics (2635 Lavery Court #11, Newbury Park, CA 91320); $1.95.
  31. Discovered by Steve Rothman: a S'ian verse in the poem "Cats and Dogs" in Christopher Isherwood's PEOPLE ONE OUGHT TO KNOW (1982), remaindered at $2.98 at Barnes & Noble (but not in their current mail-order catalog).

---

  32. Jan 88 #5: Granada's "The Sign of Four" was broadcast in Britain on Dec. 29, 1987, and was favorably received by the reviewers. One passage from Nancy Banks-Smith's review in the Guardian (Dec. 30) is worth quoting: "The Sign of Four is one of those Conan Doyle stories in which a gentleman

- returns from India with a terrible secret and a temper to match. In extreme cases he may also have a swamp adder, a gibbon, and a mongoose. He then proceeds to live in unparalleled grandeur in Norwood of all places, surrounded by brass bibelots, gongs, tiger skins, and, of course, rajah's carbuncles. At some point he will open a letter and fall back in his chair with a frightful shriek as if he had just received the phone bill and the gibbon had been ringing home. In fact, he is living in mortal terror of three Sikhs, a peg-legged convict, and a three-foot cannibal with a two-foot blow pipe, and who, to be fair to the man, would not? You think I am making this up. I am not. Conan Doyle made it up. Address all complaints to Dr. Watson at 221b Baker Street."
33. Granada has completed location work for "Silver Blaze" and "The Devil's Foot", and filmed on location in Cheshire and Yorkshire for "Wisteria Lodge" in Nov. and Dec. 1987; "The Bruce-Partington Plans" is next on the scheduled, to be followed by "The Hound of the Baskervilles", and the next series is scheduled for broadcast in Britain in the fall of 1988.
  34. GRANADA COMPANION NUMBER ONE: A SHERLOCK HOLMES ALBUM is a well-produced 40-page celebration of both the centenary and the Granada series, with an introduction by Vincent Price, articles by Kenneth Harris, and a splendid assembly of color photographs of the principals, supporting players, sets, and scenery. Recommended, and available for $11.95 (U.S.) postpaid from Sundial International, 16 Queen Elizabeth Boulevard, Etobicoke, Ont. M8Z 1L8, Canada.
  35. Reported by Ed Vatz: the "Sherlock Holmes Walking Stick" (D3392b) is still available from Boserup House of Canes and Walkingsticks (1636 Westwood Boulevard, P.O. Box 24156, Los Angeles, CA 90024) with bronze or silvertone handles on ebony or rosewood at $135.00 and on Dymondwood (composed of various hardwoods, with several finishes) at $95.00; they take plastic.
  36. THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF SOLAR PONS, by Basil Copper (Chicago: Academy Chicago, 1987; 250 pp., $14.95 cloth, $4.95 paper), is a collection of four new stories first published in 1979 as a continuation of the Pontine Canon written by August Derleth. This is the second volume in Academy Chicago's reprint series; Copper has edited the text to remove some of the American usages that crept into the earlier edition, and the stories are pleasant tributes to both Derleth and Pons.
  37. SHERLOCK HOLMES MEETS THE SUSSEX VAMPIRE, AND OTHER CASES OF THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS DETECTIVE, selected and introduced by Peter Haining (London: Armada/Fontana, 1986; 159 pp., £1.75), is a reprint of the 1981 paperback first edition, with six cases ("Spec", "Gree", "Fina", "Empt", "Suss", and "Fina"), with six illustrations by an unidentified artist.
  38. An illustrated flier at hand from Carolyn Senter (Knitting Pretty, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219) offering handcrafted merino wool scarves in various colors, in four different Sherlockian designs, at $45.00 each.

---

  39. Jan 88 #6: "Holmes Away from Home" was an exhibition, assembled with the energetic help of Derham Groves ("Black Jack of Ballarat") at the State Library of Victoria in Melbourne from Dec. 7 to Jan. 31, honoring both Sherlock Holmes and Conan Doyle. The commemorative 56-page catalog (same title) is a true collectible, with contents including an Introduction by Tom Stix and articles by Richard Hughes, Jr., about his father (who founded The Baritsu Chapter of the BSI), by Derham Groves about early Australian productions of Sherlockian drama, and by Alec H. Chisholm about Conan Doyle's visit to Australia in 1920 and 1921. Copies of the catalog are available (from Sherlock Holmes Exhibition, attn: Jenni Boon, State Library of Victoria, 328 Swanston Street, Melbourne, Vic. 3000, Australia) for AU$14.00 postpaid (or AU$85.00 postpaid for a limited edition of 50 specially-bound copies with an signed original etching of the cover art by Leslie Sprague).
  40. Reported by Ron De Waal: COMIC CRIME, ed. by Earl F. Bargainier (Bowling Green: Bowling Green State Univ. Popular Press, 1987; 195 pp. $28.95 cloth, also available in paper); with many references and a chapter by Barrie Hayne on "The Comic in the Canon: What's Funny About Sherlock Holmes?"
  41. Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119) is trying to ascertain how many copies there might be of the numbered American variant of the BSI facsimile of BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL (which bears a red-ink limitation statement stamped on the title page); my copy is number 118, and Joe would appreciate hearing from anyone whose copy bears a higher number.
  42. WHITE CHAPPEL, SCARLET TRACING, by Iain Sinclair (Uppingham: Goldmark, 1987; 210 pp.), is a novel involving antiquarian-book dealers, Jack the Ripper, and a hitherto-unknown first issue of A STUDY IN SCARLET. It's an interesting book, with atmosphere much more important than narrative, and the imagery is powerful and often unpleasant. Available for £12.50 from Rupert Books, 59 Stonefield, Bar Hill, Cambridge CB3 8TE, England.
  43. A preview (of sorts): John Thaw, who stars as Inspector Morse on "Mystery!" in February, will be seen (eventually) as Jonathan Small in Granada's "The Sign of Four".
  44. "We are not amused" is without doubt the most-often quoted statement by Queen Victoria. What was it that did not amuse Her Majesty?
  45. VCR 221 B BAKER STREET is the new VHS video game ($44.00 suggested retail) from VCR Enterprises, and it's nicely done. Based on the 1974 board game (D3957b), the video game follows the same format, with players following the clues in a race to be first with the solutions to ten mysteries. The VCR game includes a two-hour videocassette produced with humor, ingenuity, and broad acting appropriate to a game. Each of the ten games takes about an hour to play (Watson tells you to stop the tape at appropriate points to pursue the clues), and the overall concept is an interesting one. The game is seldom stocked by video stores, and is more likely to be found in toy or discount chains (where it may be in either the consumer electronics or the toy departments). Try: Toys R Us, Kaybee, K-Mart, Target, Waldenbooks, and Macy's. Also catalogs: Sears, Best, J. C. Penney, and Consumers Catalog Center.

---

  46. Feb 88 #1: EXPO '98: SHERLOCK HOLMES IN OMAHA, by Berkley Forsythe (Omaha: Simmons-Boardman Books, 1987; 173 pp., $5.95), brings Holmes and Watson to the great Trans-Mississippi Exposition, engaged to prevent the assassination of President McKinley (in which they are of course successful). The style is American, rather than Canonical, and there is plenty of swash and buckle, and some pawky humor on Watson's part. Available from the publisher (1809 Capitol Avenue, Omaha, NE 68102) (800-228-9670, and they take plastic).
  47. "We are not amused" (Jan 88 #6) was Queen Victoria's critical pronouncement on Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" in 1878, according to Joe Brown in an article in the Washington Post (Jan. 10, 1988).
  48. CRIME & MYSTERY: THE 100 BEST BOOKS, by H. R. F. Keating (London: Xanadu, 1987; 219 pp., £9.95) (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987; 219 pp., $15.95), presents two pages of perceptive commentary on each of his selections, which extend from Edgar Allan Poe's TALES OF MYSTERY AND IMAGINATION (1868) to P. D. James' A TASTE FOR DEATH (1986). ACD is represented twice, by THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES.
  49. According to an article in the Hampshire Chronicle (Dec. 18, 1987), the Winchester Preservation Trust is planning to erect a plaque at the Black Swan Buildings in Winchester, the site of the Black Swan Hotel where Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson lunched with Violet Hunter in "The Copper Beeches."
  50. Housekeeping: I wound up with an extra of Jan 88 #5-6. This may be my printer's mistake, but if someone didn't receive that sheet, let me know.

51. More housekeeping: according to my records, all my subscribers should have received my 1988 seasonal souvenir ("THE DELIRIOUS DREAM OF A DISORDERED BRAIN..."), either at the birthday festivities or with my Jan 88 mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.
52. British sculptor John Doubleday, whose life-size bronze statue of Sherlock Holmes will be unveiled at Meiringen on Sept. 10, led the four-man British team competing at the World Snow Festival in Switzerland at the end of January. The competition involved creating a sculpture out of a 16-foot cube of ice and snow, within a two-day period, according to the Jersey Evening Post (Jan. 21, 1988), and this year the British team chose Sherlock Holmes as their theme. The team's main concern, according to the article, was the lack of snow and the unusually high temperatures for this year's season, which may account for the lack of news about who won the contest.
53. "Sherlock Holmes was left without a clue yesterday on his most embarrassing case: his own," according to the Glasgow Daily Record (Feb. 3, 1988). A sneak thief broke into a caravan [that's British for trailer] while Jeremy Brett was filming in Liverpool for the new Granada series, and stole a bag containing Brett's cheque book, silver-gilt watch, Conan Doyle stories, and three address books. One wonders if that book of stories was Brett's own annotated copy of the Canon, and whether the sneak thief realizes what the most valuable item in the bag was.

---

54. Feb 88 #2: Original issues of Collier's are not easy to find, and a new edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Mysterious Press, 1987; 304 pp., $25.00) offers a welcome opportunity to see Frederic Dorr Steele's fine illustrations, both color and black-and-white, and to read Andrew Malec's knowledgeable Introduction. The black-and-white art, unfortunately, is frequently overinked, obscuring the careful detail that can be as important in Steele's work as the strength of his portraits of Holmes and others in the Canon, but the volume is a good substitute for the original issues.
55. The fine recording (by That's Entertainment Records) of the music composed by Patrick Gowers for the Granada television series (Dec 87 #6) will be released in the U.S. by Varese Sarabande Records (13006 Saticoy Street, North Hollywood, CA 91605); you can order direct, and the postpaid price is $9.98 for the LP or the cassette, and $15.98 for the compact disk.
56. "Mention the name Sherlock Holmes to half a dozen men of Kent and you will be met with a puzzled stare," Kelvin I. Jones suggests in SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE KENT RAILWAYS (Rainham: Meresborough Books, 1987; 72 pp., £8.95). One might hope that in the centenary year Sherlock Holmes' fame would have spread even to Kent, but Jones, himself a man of Kent, has used his local expertise to investigate and identify the sites and surroundings of the six Canonical cases that are set in the county. The book is available in the U.S. from Magico Magazine (Box 156, New York, NY 10002), as is the third issue (46 pp.) of The Sherlockian, a journal edited by Jones.
57. "It was just as well that his prairie training had given Jefferson Hope the ears of a lynx," according to the Canon. A North American lynx (*Lynx canadensis*), also called the Canadian lynx, is shown on a stamp issued this year by Can-Canada, but this may not be the lynx whose ears were donated to Hope. The lynx found in Utah and Nevada, according to biologists, would be a different North American lynx (*Lynx rufus*), which is the bobcat shown on the U.S. stamp issued last year. A good article on the Canadian lynx will be found in the February issue of Smithsonian Magazine.
58. "Among booksellers whose clients have more clearly defined tastes, the hands-down favorite tapes are old-time radio shows and anything having to do with Sherlock Holmes," according to a report on mystery-tape sales in the Jan. 15 issue of Publishers Weekly.
59. It took a while to confirm, but the bisque porcelain miniature (3 inches high) of Mickey Mouse in Sherlockian costume (Jan 87 #5) is indeed the first in a monthly series from The Disney Miniature Collectors Club (The Disney Collection, Box 1797, Sherman Turnpike, Danbury, CT 06816) when you join the club. The miniatures (including the Sherlockian Mickey Mouse) each cost $11.45 postpaid until you cancel your membership.
60. THE BERENSTAIN BEARS AND THE MISSING HONEY, by Stan and Jan Berenstain (New York: Random House, 1987; 32 pp., $1.95), is a "First Time Reader" with Brother and Sister Bear and their Cousin Fred in deerstalkers ("there's no case too hard, no case too tough, for the Bear Detectives and their hound dog, Snuff!").

---

61. Feb 88 #3: GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (483 pp., bound in full leather) is the first volume in the monthly series of 50 titles in the "Franklin Library of Mystery Masterpieces" (Apr 87 #1 and Sep 87 #6). The book contains 19 of the 26 stories from the Franklin Library's THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D259b), with five new illustrations by Mitchell Hooks and a rear section reprinting many of Julian Wolff's Sherlockian maps. GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is their free introductory offer, but succeeding volumes will each cost $32.00 postpaid unless you cancel your subscription. The Franklin Library's address is Franklin Center, PA 19091.
62. "FOR SALE: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle built this house and lived there for 10 years, writing his Sherlock Holmes tales. Now in use as small hotel (14 rooms), with his monogram still on the gate and family crest in the foyer, it lies on three acres in beautiful town only 45 minutes from London." Write to Charles Bridger, "Little Witches," Fir Way, Grayshott, Hindhead, Surrey GU26 6JQ, England, if you're interested in purchasing a thoroughly Sherlockian *pied-a-terre* for your visits to Britain (there is still time, presumably, since the advertisement is from the Jan. 27, 1988, issue of the Princeton Alumni Weekly). The house is Undershaw, designed by and built for Conan Doyle, and he lived there from 1897 until he moved to Windlesham in 1907. David L. Hammer gives a fine description of the house in his FOR THE SAKE OF THE GAME (Gasogene Press, 1986).
63. The U.S. has issued a set of four stamps showing domestic cats. And there are four mentions of domestic cats in the Canon. I won't identify them, since they can be found easily in Jack Tracy's THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA. You might, however, wish to try your hand at identifying a fifth cat mentioned in the Canon, one that is *not* cited by Tracy. Lions, tigers, lynxes, cheetahs, and ladies allusively named Catherine or Kate or Kitty will not be accepted as correct answers.
64. Edward Wellen's pastiche "Voiceover" (which first appeared in 1984 in SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE) has been reprinted in TIN STARS: ISAAC ASIMOV'S WONDERFUL WORLDS OF SCIENCE FICTION #5, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin H. Greenberg, and Charles G. Waugh (New York: New American Library/Signet, 1986; 351 pp., $3.95).
65. Renegade Press is reported to be aiming for wider distribution of its comic book CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with plans for having issue #12 (Mar 88) available in B. Dalton bookstores.
66. The Disney Channel broadcast the Christopher Plummer version of "Silver Blaze" (D4608b) three times in February, and may have plans for March as well (the authorized videocassette costs a dismaying $99.00 from Learning Corporation of America). The Disney Channel also started weekly Sunday broadcasts of the Granada series on Feb. 21.

---

67. Feb 88 #4: What sort of anthology would include contributions by Damon Runyon, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and Harlan Ellison? SOLVED! FAMOUS MYSTERY WRITERS ON CLASSIC TRUE-CRIME CASES, edited by Richard Glyn Jones (London: Xanadu, 1987; 317 pp., £11.95), offers a fine selection, ranging from Runyon's splendid newspaper reporting on the Snyder-Judd murder trial to Ellison's speculations on Jack the Ripper, and including Conan Doyle's "The Case of Mr. George Edalji". The book also includes a report by F. Tennyson Jesse on "The Trial of Madeleine Smith" with two uncredited portraits from the Illustrated London News, whose courtroom artist for the trial was Charles Altamont Doyle (see the letter by Herman Herst, Jr., in the BSJ, Mar. 1983, p. 41).

68. Australia celebrated its bicentennial on Jan. 25, according to an article in the N.Y. Times (spotted by Jon L. Lellenberg). The celebration included melon-seed spitting competitions, a coal-shoveling championship, and a contest to see who can shout "cooee" the loudest.
69. This year's British set honoring the 200th anniversary of the Linnean Society includes a stamp portraying a Bewick's swan (**Cygnus columbianus**). There are two mentions of swans in the Canon (in "The Abbey Grange" and "The Copper Beeches"), though stamps from Western Australia and Australia, where the black swan was first discovered, certainly would be a more appropriate match for "The Copper Beeches".
70. "The bicycle craze seems to me to be only in its infancy," Dr. A. Conan Doyle suggested in the May 1895 issue of Demorest's Family Magazine, "for probably in time we shall witness the spectacle of our business men going to their offices mounted on the bicycle, instead of using the tramways." ON YOUR BICYCLE: AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF CYCLING, by James McGurn (New York: Facts on File, 1987; 208 pp.), was written "in the belief that the role of cycling in the social history of the Western World has been sadly underestimated," and the book includes a photograph of Conan Doyle and his wife Louise on their tricycle at their home in South Norwood, and a caption with mention of Sherlock Holmes' expertise with cycle tyres. "Tricycling," McGurn notes, "was taken up by older, less athletic members of the respectable professions, and was favoured by clergymen and doctors."
71. Reported by Andrew Jay Peck, from the Hollywood trade press: Orion Pictures has acquired the North American distribution rights for "Sherlock and Me" (with Michael Caine and Ben Kingsley), and expects delivery of the print in July, in which case the film could open this fall. Nigel Davenport, who will play the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was seen as Conan Doyle in the 1972 television series "The Edwardians" (D4603b).
72. James A. Linen, former publisher of Time and president of Time Inc., died on Feb 1. On June 20, 1949, Time reported (D1681b) on the decision by the British postal authorities to assign the address 221B Baker Street to the London Mystery Magazine, and to deliver Sherlock Holmes' mail to LMM editor Michael Hall. On Aug. 1, Linen reported proudly in "A Letter from the Publisher" (D1682b) that Hall had received more than 300 airmail letters and was now wondering what would happen when the boat mail began to arrive.
-
73. Feb 88 #5: The videocassette of "The Masks of Death" (1984, with Peter Cushing) now costs only $19.95 (marked down from $79.95) from Lorimar Home Video, 5959 Triumph Street, Commerce, CA 90040 (800-323-5275). And the videocassette of "It's a Mystery, Charlie Brown" (D4614b) costs $11.95 from Kartes Video Communications, Box 68881, Indianapolis, IN 46268 (800-331-1387). Both firms take plastic.
74. The success of the Granada series in Britain has launched a new series of tie-in paperbacks in 1987 from Grafton Books, each with a different color cover photograph. Available so far: A STUDY IN SCARLET (£2.50), THE SIGN OF FOUR (£2.50), and THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (£2.95).
75. German translations of the Canon continue to appear in attractive editions, including the series from Haffmans Verlag (Hubenstrasse 19, CH-8057 Zurich, Switzerland). Their latest is SHERLOCK HOLMES' BUCH DER FALLE (DM 34.00), with a cover illustration from "Der Mann mit dem geduckten Gang".
76. Hugh Leonard's play "The Mask of Moriarty" was first produced during the Dublin Theatre Festival in 1985, with Tom Baker as Sherlock Holmes, and again in Leicester in 1987, with Geoffrey Palmer in the lead role. Ake Runnquist, who saw the play in Dublin, reported (in BSM, spring 1986) that it was "a clever mixture of genuine, faithfully absorbed Sherlockian atmosphere and cultural satire shading into outright burlesque, rocking the pedestal of the Master's bust back and forth in a rhythm that grew wilder and wilder." The script, accompanied by "A Playwright's Diary" in which Leonard gives an entertaining account of the birth and development of the play, is now available from Brophy Books (108 Sundrive Road, Dublin 12, Ireland) at £5.95 plus postage.
77. My computer managed to garble part of the carefully stored copy for this issue of the information sheets (I'd admit that I managed to do that, if I had even the slightest idea of how it happened). Making a back-up copy of a garbled file gives you two copies of the garbled file. I refuse to admit there's anything important reported here, let alone missing, but tell me if there's something I was supposed to report, and haven't.
-
78. Feb 88 #6: COMIC CRIME, edited by Earl F. Bargainnier (Bowling Green: Bowling Green State University Popular Press, 1987; 195 pp.), examines the use of comedy in crime fiction. That use has a long history: according to H.R.F. Keating, Wilkie Collins once gave as his formula for success the simple advice, "Make 'em laugh, make 'em weep, make 'em wait." Barry Hayne's essay on "The Comic in the Canon: What's Funny About Sherlock Holmes?" examines the comedic aspects of the stories, suggesting that "the Holmes Saga is fundamentally comic rather than tragic."
79. British sculptor Malcolm Cooper has created a miniature series of "Great British Pubs" (about six inches high), including an attractive reproduction of "The Sherlock Holmes". The series is distributed in the U.S. by John Hine North American Limited (Box 8048, Blaine, WA 98230); they do not sell at retail, but you can call (800-663-8855) and ask who your local retailer is. The pub should cost from $100 to $110.
80. THE CROWN VS. DR. WATSON, by Gerald Lientz, and THE DYNAMITERS, by Milt Creighton, are the 4th and 5th in the series of "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" devised by Iron Crown Enterprises (New York: Berkley Books, 1988; $2.95 each). In THE CROWN VS. DR. WATSON the reader is a former member of the BSI, trying in early 1894 (without the assistance of Sherlock Holmes) to solve a murder in which the principal suspect is Dr. Watson. The authors now provide dead-end trails to trap the unwary, and there are at least two more titles planned for the series.
81. Great Britain has issued the fourth and last in its series of booklets with covers commemorating the centenary of Sherlock Holmes' first appearance in print. It is interesting to note that the Royal Mail offers a discount for volume: the £1.00 booklet contains stamps worth £1.03.
-
82. Mar 88 #1: John Thaw, who starred in "Inspector Morse" on "Mystery!" and who plays Jonathan Small in Granada's "The Sign of Four" (no word yet on the PBS-TV broadcast schedule) also appeared as Lieutenant Holst in "The Sensible Action of Lieutenant Holst" in the 1971 television series "The Rivals of Sherlock Holmes" -- and it would be nice indeed to see that series again, on the air or on videocassette. John Neville as Dr. John Thorndyke, Robert Stephens as Max Carados, Roy Dotrice as Simon Carne, Donald Pleasance as Carnacki, Douglas Wilmer as Prof. Augustus S. F. X. Van Dusen, Charles Gray as Eugene Valmont, Robin Ellis as Charlie Dallas, Derek Jacobi as William Drew, and many more fine actors, including Peter Barkworth as Martin Hewitt (you'll see Barkworth again, as Colonel Ross in Granada's "Silver Blaze").
83. The six stories issued in Britain by World International Publishing (BSJ Mar 87) have now been published here in one volume (SHERLOCK HOLMES), with the same interior illos (New York: Exeter Books, 1987; 285 pp., $3.98).
84. Forecast: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL, the second pastiche by L. B. Greenwood (author of SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY), from Simon and Schuster in June ($16.95). THE LITERATURE OF CRIME AND DETECTION: AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY, by Waltraud Woeller and Bruce Cassidy, from Crossroads/Continuum in March (220 pp., $24.50). THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, an audio cassette reissue of the double LP album (May 87 #2) with two 1945 Rathbone/Bruce radio broadcasts, from 221A Baker Street Associates (via Simon & Schuster) in June ($9.95). SKULLDUGGERY, by Peter Marks (Aug 87 #2), a paperback reprint from Carroll & Graf in August ($4.50).
85. Ian Charnock's article on "The Elements of Holmes" in Police Review (Dec. 18, 1987) celebrated the centenary with a discussion of the police methods in the Canon, suggesting that the last word must be left with Inspector Lestrade: "He appears with Holmes in 13 cases and is wrong every time, but on one memorable occasion he leaves Holmes speechless." The occasion, of course, is the conclusion to "The Six Napoleons" which was handled nicely,

- you will recall, by Jeremy Brett and Colin Jeavons in the Granada series. The magazine's address is 14 St. Cross Street, London EC1N 8FE, England (L0.50).
86. "The African Horror Stories of Conan Doyle", in the June 1987 issue of Westindian Digest, is an interesting discussion, not of Conan Doyle's fiction but rather of the impact of THE CRIME OF THE CONGO, both in 1909 and more recently: the article notes that excerpts from THE CRIME OF THE CONGO were published in Russian in Pravda in Dec. 1964 and in Inostrannaya Literatura in Feb. 1965, after the assassination of Patrice Lumumba. In a second article, on "Holmes at a Hundred", Nicholas Cole reports on the celebration of the centenary. The magazine is published from Tower House, 139-149 Fonthill Road, London N4 3HF, England (L0.50).
  87. I saw but I did not observe: THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF SOLAR PONS, by Basil Copper (Chicago: Academy Chicago, 1987) (Jan 88 #5), is a collection of four stories, but the four stories in the reprint are not the same stories contained in the 1979 Pinnacle Books edition with the same title.

---

  88. Mar 88 #2: The winter 1988 issue of The Armchair Detective includes a two-page "Report from 221B Baker Street", by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond, with a lively report on their "Adventure of the Final Problem" tour through Europe in 1987. Their Sherlockian column will appear regularly in TAD, which is published quarterly at $20.00 a year (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019). The same issue has Marvin Lachman's review of ROSS MACDONALD'S INWARD JOURNEY, edited by Ralph B. Sipper (New York: Mysterious Library, 1987; $8.95); the book includes "The Scene of the Crime" (a paper Macdonald delivered at the University of Michigan in 1954), in which (in an almost obscene reference, according to Lachman) Macdonald compares Sherlock Holmes to Himmler and Beria (part of Macdonald's idea that detection is an ignoble profession).
  89. Bjarne Nielsen (Antikvariat Pinkerton, Nansensgade 66, 1366 Kobenhavn K, Denmark) is continues to extend his interesting series of Sherlockiana. The latest is PINKERTON 22 (in Danish), with 40 pages of Sherlockian essays by Danish and Swedish writers (25 kroner). Earlier items still available include Henry Lauritzen's MY DEAR WATSON, translated into English (33 pp., 100 KR); Bjarne's EN STUDIE I RODT, in Danish (12 pp., 40KR); and Bjarne's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN DENMARK, a checklist of Danish editions of the Canon and Danish writings about the writings (66 pp., 80KR).
  90. Charles Edward Pogue's connections with Sherlock Holmes began in 1980, when he played Mordecai Smith in the Charlton Heston/Jeremy Brett production of "The Crucifer of Blood" in Los Angeles. He also wrote the screenplays for the 1983 Ian Richardson films "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Sign of Four", and his new play "The Ebony Ape" was produced in Lexington, Ky., in Sept. 1987. If you'd like to see the show ("a Sherlock Holmes play of Victorian horror and bizarre mystery"), you might suggest that your local theater company contact Pogue (c/o Hotspur, Inc. (2729 Westshire Drive, Hollywood, CA 90068).
  91. The 37th running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont will be held on Saturday, Sept. 24. If you would like to be on the mailing list, write to Richard A. Wein, 65 Briarwood Lane, Plainview, NY 11803.
  92. Richard also reports that a black-and-white poster (16x24 in.) is available from the 1987 production of "The Ebony Ape" (Mar 88 #2). $6.00 postpaid from the Actors' Guild of Lexington, Box 22517, Lexington, KY 40522.
  93. The Fourth International Crime Writers Congress will be held in New York, May 9-13, 1988, with events running from an opening reception hosted by the Mysterious Press at the N.Y. Public Library on May 9 to a cocktail party hosted by the Mystery Guild at Gracie Mansion on May 13 (and including the Edgar Awards Banquet on May 12). Detailed information available from the Mystery Writers of America (attn: Congress), 236 West 27th Street #600, New York, NY 10001).
  94. I know of few Sherlockian societies that have handy-dandy fliers intended to offer neophytes an explanation of how our strange world works. One of the best I've seen is the Informational Issue of Plugs & Dottles, published by The Hansoms of John Clayton. If you would like a copy, send a #10 SASE to Robert C. Burr, 4010 Devon Lane, Peoria, IL 61614.

---

  95. Mar 88 #3: Formal announcement at hand from the Swiss National Tourist Office (Swiss Centre, New Coventry Street, London W1V 8EE, England) of the next tour to Switzerland, on Sept. 8-12, to celebrate the unveiling of the life-size statue of Sherlock Holmes in the main square of Meiringen. Victorian costume required, as now seems to be traditional for Sherlockian group-visits to Switzerland.
  96. Reported by Brian R. MacDonald: a one-page article on Sherlock Holmes in the Dec 87/Jan 88 issue of Heritage ($4.50). SCARLET IN GASLIGHT #2 (Eternity Comics, $1.95). SHERLOCK HOLMES (Firebird, $7.99); a computer game (at Waldenbooks). MYSTERY OF THE MAGICIAN, by Elizabeth Howard (Random House, $3.95); a 16-year-old girl with a passion for Holmes is involved in a mystery about Houdini. RETURN OF MORIARTY, by John Gardner (Berkley, $3.50); a reprint with a new cover. B MOVIES, by Don Miller (Ballantine, $4.95); with some text and one photo of Holmes.
  97. The Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library celebrated the centenary with an exhibition that opened on Dec. 4 and closed on Feb. 15. There are extra copies of the 18-page catalog (CRIME AFTER CRIME: SHERLOCK HOLMES TO BENNY COOPERMAN), and you can send your request to Cameron Hollyer, Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library, 789 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont. M4W 2G8, Canada.
  98. Reported by Don Pollock: "The Measurement of Meaning: Sherlock Holmes in Pursuit of the Marlboro Man", by Eduardo G. Camargo, in MARKETING AND SEMIOTICS, edited by Jean Umiker-Sebeok (Mouton, 1987).
  99. It is unlikely, though not impossible, that as many books about Jack the Ripper will be published in 1988 as there were about Sherlock Holmes in 1987, but the best book about Jack the Ripper is already in print: THE COMPLETE JACK THE RIPPER, by Donald Rumbelow (London: W. H. Allen, 1987; 305 pp., £14.95). First published in 1975 (D2255b), the book has now been revised and expanded for a second edition. Why is it the best book about Jack the Ripper? Donald Rumbelow is a City of London police officer who has had access to all the official files on the case. And he is a fine writer. And, perhaps most important, he does not attempt to identify Jack the Ripper. What he does, and does well, is present all of the facts and discuss all of the theories, pointing out how each of the theorists has suffered from ignorance or neglect of those facts. Rumbelow also offers brief coverage of suggestions by Conan Doyle and Dr. Joseph Bell, and of relevant Sherlockian pastiches, but the real value of the book lies in his careful analysis of the facts and fantasies about Jack the Ripper.
  100. Jack the Ripper will also be on American television this year, according to a newspaper report forwarded by Ted Schulz. The four-part mini-series from Thames Television (which Michael Caine will make after he finishes work on the film "Sherlock and Me") has been purchased by CBS for $6.1 million.
  101. THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA is in print as well as on Broadway, in a paperback reprint of Gaston Leroux's novel (London: W. H. Allen/Star Book, 1986; 265 pp., £2.95), with a Foreword by Peter Haining and reprints of two articles about the Phantom's Sherlockian connections: David M. Rush's "Holmes and the Opera Ghost" (D4170a) and Barbara Goldfield's "Sherlock Holmes Meets the Living Corpse" (D4158a).

---

  102. Mar 88 #4: Billy Wilder's "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970) is one of the more interesting Sherlockian films, because of the imagination of the man who conceived and directed it, and because the uncut and unreleased version of the film continues to be the focus of a search by those who want to see the realization of a work that is now available only in copies of the production script. BILLY WILDER IN HOLLYWOOD, by Maurice Zolotow (New York: Limelight Editions, 1987; 396 pp., $12.95), was first published in 1977 (D4227b) and has been revised and expanded for a second edition;

- the book presents an appreciative examination of Wilder's life and career, as well as a valuable account of the history of his contribution to Sherlockian cinema.
103. Paxton Whitehead, who played Holmes in "The Crucifer of Blood" (D4430b), can be seen as Albert, the butler, in the syndicated television series "Marblehead Manor". Another new syndicated series called "T and T" stars Mr. T (formerly of the A-Team) as a lawyer-detective, wearing (in the print advertisements, anyway) a deerstalker.
  104. LOST WORLDS IN TIME, SPACE AND MEDICINE: THE SCIENCE FICTION OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key (Beavercreek: KeyRod Literary Enterprises, 1988; 102 pp., $15.95 postpaid), is an examination of five novels and ten short stories in the genre, including two Canonical tales, with illustrations reprinted from the first magazine appearances (and a fine contemporary portrait of Prof. William Rutherford, who was acknowledged by Conan Doyle as a source for Prof. Challenger). Two earlier titles are still available: ADVENTURING IN ENGLAND WITH DOCTOR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Rodin and Key (BSJ Mar 87), $13.00 postpaid; and APHORISMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Key and Rodin (BSJ Sep 87), $7.95 postpaid. The publisher's address is 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.
  105. The Valley Railroad (Railroad Avenue, Essex, CT 06426) has two mystery excursions planned this year: "Murder on the 20th Century Limited" on May 14, featuring Pam and Jerry North (New York, 1946); and "Adventure Aboard the Aberdonian Arrow" on Sept. 10, featuring Sherlock Holmes (England and Scotland, 1889). The Valley Railroad is a nicely restored steam line in the Connecticut Valley, where some years ago The Cornish Horrors chartered the train for a meeting that included Chris Steinbrunner's thoroughly appropriate on-board screening of "Terror by Night".
  106. A British report from Roger Johnson: PAST FORGETTING, by Peter Cushing (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, £9.95); the second volume of his autobiography, with much about his S'ian films. THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND, by Michael Hardwick (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, £10.95); the British edition. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE EMINENT THESPIAN, by Val Andrews (Ian Henry, £8.25, due in March). THE KENTISH MANOR MURDERS, by Julian Symons (Macmillan, £9.95, due in April); a sequel to A THREE-PIPE PROBLEM. MY DEAREST HOLMES, by Rohase Piercy (Gay Men's Press, £3.95, due in April). THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg (Arlington, £11.95, due in April); the British edition.
  107. Dawn Williams (Schweinfurt American Elementary School, APO New York, 09033) is offering to sell her Sherlock Holmes and Conan Doyle collection: about 70 books, plus Strand and Windsor magazines. Write for her list.
-
108. Mar 88 #5: WRITERS FOR CHILDREN: CRITICAL STUDIES OF THE MAJOR AUTHORS SINCE THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, edited by Jane M. Bingham (New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1988; 661 pp., $90.00), is a massive work, with critical essays and bibliographies on 84 important authors in the genre. Mary Weichsel Ake's seven-page discussion of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle concentrates on the Canon, with mention of some of the better imitators, including Walter Brooks, Robert Quackenbush, Eve Titus, and Robert Newman. Available from the publisher (800-257-5755); shipping $3.00 extra.
  109. Reported by Ron De Waal: SILENT MAGIC: REDISCOVERING THE SILENT FILM ERA, by Ivan Butler (New York: Ungar, 1988; 208 pp., $24.95); attractively printed and illustrated, with comments on some of the Sherlockian silents.
  110. BAKER STREET PORTRAITS has emerged from the Pequod Press bindery, with 36 pages and 25 Sherlockian "four-second snapshot" quatrains, some new and some selected from earlier alphabet books, all reset in 24-point Type Roman ("although it is only a naive domestic type without any breeding, we are sure you will be amused by its presumption"). Order from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $28.00 cloth or $14.00 paper.
  111. THE HOLIDAY ADVENTURES OF ACHBAR, by Barbara Sofer, illustrated by Nina Gaalen (Rockville: Kar-Ben Copies, 1983; 63 pp., $4.95 postpaid), is a children's book in which Achbar the mouse (in deerstalker) helps solve "The Rosh Hashannah Riddle" and other mysteries involving Jewish holidays. The publisher is at 6800 Tildenwood Lane, Rockville, MD 20852 (800-452-7236), and they take plastic.
  112. Charlotte Erickson's 14-page checklist of SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE COMIC BOOKS (1985) is still available ($3.00 postpaid), as is the 12-page illustrated INVENTORY OF 221B BAKER STREET, LOCATED AT S. HOLMES, ESQUIRE (Oct 87 #5) ($6.00 postpaid). Order from Charlotte Erickson, 726 Sutter Street, Palo Alto, CA 94303.
  113. Our S'ian grapevine is truly world-wide: the miniature of "The Sherlock Holmes" (Feb 88 #6) was first reported from Germany, by Richard R. Rutter, who provided the photograph.
  114. A new three-page flier at hand from Ilene Fauer (US2, 563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652), with an ever-expanding list of "Sherlockian Shopping" that includes many intriguing items (such as a yellow-diamond "Sherlockian on Board" sign for the rear window of your car).
  115. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: ORIGINAL STORIES BY EMINENT MYSTERY WRITERS, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh, was well-received when it was published here last year, and it is now available in a British edition (London: Arlington Books, 1988; 345 pp., £11.95), with a new dust jacket with a Sherlockian portrait by Slatter-Anderson.
  116. Videocassettes reported from Coronet/MTI Film & Video, 108 Wilmot Road, Deerfield, IL 60015-9925 (800-621-2132): "My Dear Uncle Sherlock" (D4619b) at $79.00; "Mr. Magoo: Man of Mystery" (includes D6098b) at $24.95; and "Sherlock Holmes Series" (the four Australian animations with Peter O'Toole) at $19.95 each.
-
117. Mar 88 #6: "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who invented Sherlock Holmes, believed so firmly in the power of thought that he always said that if he walked down the road saying: 'I am the Prime Minister! I am the Prime Minister!' people would look at him and say: 'There is the Prime Minister!' I asked his son Dennis, who was a friend of mine, if this was true and he said: 'I once asked my father if I said I was invisible whether I would be.' 'What did your father reply?' I enquired. 'He said: "No one would notice you!"'" From GROWING OLDER, GROWING YOUNGER, by Barbara Cartland (New York: Dodd, Mead & Co., 1984).
  118. Marvin P. Epstein ("Count Negretto Sylvius") died on Mar. 22. He was an enthusiastic collector, first of detective fiction in general, and then concentrating on Sherlockiana, seeking out the rare and unusual: first editions in dust jackets, original artwork, the manuscript of "The Priory School", and kinescope film of the 1957 "Odyssey" television program about the BSI. He sold much of his collection in 1985, but continued to collect (it was Marv who purchased the splendid copy of Beeton's that came onto the market last year), demonstrating that a true collector can never retire.
  119. The Cleveland Convention Center will be the site of the International Superman Exposition on June 16-19, and on June 18 there will be a parade with the theme of "Legends" -- and Mrs. Hudson's Lodgers of Cleveland will join the parade with a float honoring the legendary detective Sherlock Holmes. Additional information available from The Stetaks, 15529 Diagonal Road, Nickle Plate, La Grange, OH 44050.
  120. The cover story on Superman in Time (Mar. 14) quotes Harlan Ellison's estimate that there are only five fictional creations known in practically every part of the earth: Tarzan, Sherlock Holmes, Mickey Mouse, Robin Hood, and Superman.
  121. Reported: CARTOON MOVIE STARS: DAFFY (a videocassette in a yellow box with Daffy Duck in sunglasses on the cover, from Warner Brothers at $14.95); the cartoons include "The Great Piggy Bank Robbery" (1945), with Daffy as "Duck Twacy" and with a brief caricature of Basil Rathbone as

- Sherlock Holmes. Advertised at $14.95 (#786885 VHS and #786887 Beta) by Publishers Central Bureau (catalog 338), One Champion Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001.
122. Britain's intelligence agencies do not trust each other, according to a report from Reuter in the Washington Post (Mar. 18). Lord Carver, who commanded the armed services in the 1970s, said during a debate in the House of Lords on secret-service recruitment and enforcement of the lifetime vow of secrecy made by intelligence agents that in his dealings with intelligence agencies he found an "obsession with secrecy" that resulted in a lack of cooperation. And, he added, he had come across many amateurish intelligence officers: "Their work sometimes savored of Sherlock Holmes, Richard Hannay, Bulldog Drummond, or even James Bond."
123. The spring 1986 issue of the Rex Stout Journal at hand, with Marvin Kaye's "From Zeck to Moriarty to Wild" (based on a lecture at the Third Nero Wolfe Assembly in New York on Dec. 5, 1981); the RSJ is edited and published by John McAleer (Mount Independence, 121 Follen Road, Lexington, MA 02173) and costs $7.50 a year (two issues).
-
124. Apr 88 #1: SHERLOCK HOLMES MEETS ANNIE OAKLEY, by Stanley Shaw (London: W. H. Allen, 1986; 158 pp., £9.95), involves Holmes and Watson with Annie Oakley, Frank Butler, Arizona John Burke, some Royal Russians, and Princess Victoria in 1887, during the London appearance of Buffalo Bill Cody's Wild West Show. It's a pleasant pastiche, by the author of SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE 1902 FIFTH TEST MATCH (BSJ Mar 86), and probably still in print; British books tend to stay in print far longer than American books (which sometimes seem to be remaindered a week after publication), and that's why I occasionally report on older British items.
125. Silent screen star Colleen Moore died on Jan. 25. She starred with John Barrymore in "The Lotus Eaters" and with Wallace Beery in "So Big", and owned one of the world's grandest doll houses, with a library that includes on its shelves a miniature book signed by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
126. Cases of Sherlock Holmes #12 ("The Adventure of Silver Blaze") is now out from Renegade Press (2705 East 7th Street, Long Beach, CA 90804). Almost all back issues are available ($2.00 each), and you can subscribe to the comic book ($13.00 a year for 6 issues, or $25.00 for 12 issues).
127. I can't remember (or find) a report on a Sherlock Holmes plate from The Bradford Exchange, but they have announced that the plate "has now been discontinued because of production difficulties."
128. "Hey Kids! Be a Winner! Help Fight M.S.!" The Multiple Sclerosis Readathon campaign is still using the dog in Sherlockian costume, seen most recently on Flav-o-Rich milk cartons.
129. MIHU THE DETECTIVE AND THE MYSTERY OF THE BLUE BUDGIE, by Chaiky Halpern (Jerusalem: Feldheim Publishers, 1987), is the second title in a series of children's books featuring Mihu in Sherlockian costume (the first was MIHU THE DETECTIVE AND THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING CHAMATZ in 1979). Both titles are available from Philipp Feldheim Publishers, 200 Airport Executive Park, Spring Valley, NY 10977; $2.50 each, postpaid.
130. MY DEAREST HOLMES, by Rohase Piercy (London: Gay Men's Press, 1988; 142 pp., £3.95), is an intriguing book: it is homosexual in its intellectual and emotional approach, but it is neither erotic nor pornographic. It is a two-part pastiche, with the first half presenting Watson's account of a new case in 1887, and the second offering a thoroughly revised report on the events that preceded and followed the fateful journey to the Reichenbach.
131. The new 25-cent envelopes, with printed return address, are available for $136.90 per box of 500 #10 envelopes (which is value for money, considering the cost of envelopes and the nuisance of sticking on your own postage and return labels). You can get an order form at your local post office, or by writing to the Stamped Envelope Agency, Williamsburg, VA 16693-0500.
132. People writing to Canada should keep in mind that the U.S. postal service has retaliated against the Canadian postal service's decision to charge more for letters to the U.S. than for letters within Canada. Letters from the U.S. to Canada now cost 30 cents for the first ounce, plus 22 cents for each additional ounce (compared to 25 cents and 20 cents within the U.S.).
-
133. Apr 88 #2: The current catalog from Audio Editions (Box 998, Burlingame, CA 94011) has six two-cassette sets at $16.95 each: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (read by Hugh Burden) (D4671b), A STUDY IN SCARLET (Tony Britton), THE SIGN OF FOUR (Tony Britton), FOUR SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES (Robert Hardy), MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (four stories, Robert Hardy), and THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (four stories, Robert Hardy). Shipping extra, and they take plastic (800-231-4261).
134. Other audio cassettes are listed in the current catalog from Books on Tape, Box 7900, Newport Beach, CA 92658 (800-626-3333); they take plastic. Read by Richard Green: THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, on ten 90-minute cassettes ($15.50 rental/$56.00 purchase); and THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, on eight 60-minute cassettes ($14.50/$64.00). Jimcin recordings read by Walter Covell: A STUDY IN SCARLET, on five 60-minute cassettes ($11.50/$40.00); THE SIGN OF THE FOUR, on five 60-minute cassettes ($11.50/$40.00); THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, on six 60-minute cassettes ($12.50/$48.00); THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, on eight 90-minute cassettes ($15.50/$64.00). Jimcin recording of short stories read by Walter Covell, Walter Zimmerman, Jack Benson, and Cindy Hardin on sixteen single cassettes ($9.95 each, purchase only). Read by Basil Rathbone: SHERLOCK HOLMES SOUNDBOOK [presumably the Caedmon set], on four cassettes ($29.95 purchase only). Read by Hugh Burden: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES [presumably D4671b], on two cassettes ($13.95 purchase only).
135. More audio cassettes: FAMOUS CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D4689b) on six cassettes, read by John Brewster ($39.95) from Listening Library, One Park Avenue, Old Greenwich, CT 06870.
136. Catalog at hand from Opportunities for Learning (20417 Nordhoff Street, Chatsworth, CA 91311) with an assortment of school materials, including a filmstrip-on-videocassette ($96.00) of ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (four cases adapted by David Eastman and illustrated by Allan Eitzen, published as booklets by Troll Associates in 1982), a computer game for Commodore or Apple ($49.95) called SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASTERS OF MYSTERY, and book-and-audiocassette sets of Canonical titles and association items such as Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's NATE THE GREAT (D5335b) and NATE THE GREAT AND THE MISSING KEY, and Stan and Jan Berenstain's THE BEAR DETECTIVES.
137. Other filmstrip-audiocassette packages in current catalogs: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES ($55.00), THE RED-HEADED LEAGUE ($32.00), and THE SPECKLED BAND ($32.00) from Listening Library, 1 Park Avenue, Old Greenwich, CT 06870. SHERLOCK HOLMES CLIFFHANGERS ($139.95), SHERLOCK HOLMES' GREATEST CASES ($139.95) and THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SPELLBINDERS ($139.95) from Spoken Arts, Box 289, New Rochelle, NY 10802. SHERLOCK HOLMES' GREATEST CASES ($139.95), UNSOLVED MYSTERIES ($179.00), and READING COMPREHENSION SKILLS (using S'ian artwork, $159.00) from Society for Visual Education, 1345 Diversey Parkway, Chicago, IL 60614 (800-621-1900).
138. Two more filmstrips-on-cassette: CLASSIC CHARACTERS (includes "RedH", $99.00) from Society for Visual Education, 1345 Diversey Parkway, Chicago, IL 60614 (800-621-1900); and ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (four stories, $96.00) from Charles Clark Co., 170 Keyland Court, Bohemia, NY 11716 (800-247-7009).
-
139. Apr 88 #3: Reported from Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corp., 425 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60611 (800-554-9862): sound filmstrips of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" ($39.00) and "Scenes from The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" ($39.00); these appear to be adaptations of the Classic Comics versions. And a sound filmstrip or videocassette of "The Adventure of the Speckled Band" ($39.00).

140. Reported by Tyke Niver: a special limited edition (only 15,000 copies) of a miniature group from "The Great Mouse Detective" (showing Basil, Dawson, and Olivia), from The Disney Collection, Sherman Turnpike, Danbury, CT 06816; $57.50 postpaid.
141. Further to the report (Feb 88 #1) on the World Snow Festival in Switzerland: the S'ian entry (a 20-foot-high seated statue of Holmes) came in second in the popular judging (the German team won, with a huge ski boot), and placed fifth in the official judging (the Swiss team won, with an abstract of ten arches representing each decade of winter sports).
142. And the Japan Times reported (Feb. 6) that a massive sculpture of Sherlock Holmes was one of 285 statues displayed at the Snow Festival in Sapporo.
143. The blurb reads: "Story of the Crime Which Was Carried Out With the Hope of an Honest Achievement--The Book That Described the Wolf and the Lamb, and Its Sequel--Pursuit of the Gang That Was Set to Work to Protect the Future Happiness of a Woman--Famous Detective Confesses to an Inclination to Compound a Felony." Which Sherlock Holmes story does this describe?
144. DAS ZEICHEN DER VIER is the latest in the series of new German translations of the Canon from Haffmans Verlag (Feb 88 #5). The new volume costs DM 26.00 and is available from the publisher (Hubenstrasse 19, CH-8057 Zurich, Switzerland).
145. New paperback reprints: THE GIANT RAT OF SUMATRA (D4847b), by Richard L. Boyer (London: Grafton Books, 1987; 256 pp., £2.95). SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY, by L. B. Greenwood (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1987; 184 pp. $2.95). THE RETURN OF MORIARTY (D4931b with new cover art), by John Gardner (New York: Berkley Books, 1988; 290 pp., $3.50).
146. Check your local supermarket bookshelves for a new Little Golden Book: DETECTIVE MICKEY MOUSE (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1985); Mickey in S'ian costume.
147. Reported by Ron De Waal: "Sherlock Holmes Centenary" in TWENTIETH-CENTURY LITERARY CRITICISM: ARCHIVE VOLUME (VOL. 26), edited by Dennis Poupard (Gale Research Co., 1988; $92.00), with 63 pp. of excerpts from criticism by Baring-Gould, Hardwick, Roberts, Eyles, Nordon, Starrett, and others (available from the publisher at Book Tower, Detroit, MI 48226).
-
148. Apr 88 #4: The spring 1988 issue of the I/R Newsletter offers a new group of four unpainted 54-mm figures (Holmes, Watson, Mrs. Hudson, and Wiggins) at $5.95 each. I/R is Imrie/Risley Miniatures (Box 89, Burnt Hills, NY 12027); their earlier (summer 1983) offering of four different figures (Holmes, Watson, Moriarty, and Lestrade, at $5.95 each) and a three-figure grouping of Holmes, Watson, and the Hound of the Baskervilles ($14.95) are still available. Helen Imrie also was the artist for the fine Holmes and Watson figurines in pewter (D4883a).
149. An unofficial report from PBS-TV: "The Sign of Four" is not included in their spring schedule (through July 7), nor in their schedule of summer repeats (through Aug. 25), but they expect to repeat the six programs in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes".
150. Reported by Jerry Margolin: a Sherlockian-films theme issue of Files Magazine, published by Pop Cult Inc./New Media Inc., 11586 Vimyrd, Granada Hills, CA 91344; $6.95.
151. The spring 1988 catalog at hand from The Mysterious Bookshop, with a section of in-print S'iana. 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.
152. The Longman Classics series (Harlow: Longman, 1987) now includes two volumes of stories, adapted for younger readers, each with 58 pp., three stories, study questions, and color photographs from the Granada series. THREE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Spec, Five, and Bery) is a new edition of D322b and costs £1.30. THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (SixN, Norw, and Gold) costs £1.20.
153. Mel Ruiz reports that The House of Canes and Walking Sticks (Jan 88 #5) has moved to 5628 Vineland Avenue, North Hollywood, CA 91601 (818-769-4007); they have no bronze heads left, and only one aluminum one, and it will take at least six months to get new stock.
154. GOOD OLD INDEX, by William D. Goodrich (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1988; 247 pp., $29.95 postpaid from the publisher, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004-1041), is an expanded version of the "Sherlock Holmes Reference Guide" published from 1975 through 1980 in the first 24 issues of Baker Street Miscellanea, and it is welcome indeed. Keyed to the 1960 (and still current) edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES, the new index covers far more ground than Jay Finley Christ's AN IRREGULAR GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES OF BAKER STREET (which was keyed to Doubleday's 1936 edition of the Canon), offering not only an exhaustive listing of the people, places, and objects to be found in the Sacred Writings, but also a wide-ranging selection of categories that will be as indispensable to serious scholars as to people desperately trying to recall the Canonical reference to the cock pheasant that appears on the new 25-cent postage stamp that was issued on Apr. 29.
155. "The newest attraction in the Walt Disney World Village will always remain a mystery," according to an advertisement in the Wall Street Journal (Apr. 4) for the Grosvenor Resort, which is featuring its Sherlock Holmes Museum in its Baskerville's Restaurant. Call 800-624-4109 for a hotel brochure. The Grosvenor Resort is a 630-room hotel purchased last year by Don Werby (proprietor of S. Holmes Esq. in San Francisco).
-
156. Apr 88 #5: The Apr. 15 discount-books catalog from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031) has some new bargains: THE DANCING MEN, by Duncan Kyle (non-S'ian except for the title) at $2.95; YOU CAN FOOL ALL OF THE PEOPLE ALL THE TIME, by Art Buchwald (with one of his S'ian columns) at $3.95; THE CLERIHIEWS OF PAUL HORGAN (with a S'ian cleriehw) at $3.95; A CHILD OF THE CENTURY, by Ben Hecht (his autobiography, with mention of his admiration for SH) at $9.95; THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA, by Jack Tracy (a new reprint from Avenel) at $7.95; SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE LONG STORIES (a Galley Press reprint of the John Murray edition) at $7.95.
157. Milton Caniff died on Apr. 3. He created the comic strips "Terry and the Pirates" and "Steve Canyon" (and included a S'ian dream sequence in the "Steve Canyon" strip from July 21 through Oct. 8, 1985). When William Gillette's first "farewell tour" in "Sherlock Holmes" played at the Hartman Theater in Columbus, Ohio, Caniff was studying for a fine arts degree at Ohio State University and working for the Columbus Dispatch, where his portrait of Gillette as Holmes was published on Apr. 4, 1930.
158. Our circulation department reports that the increase in postage costs has been offset by a slightly lower rate from our printer, and that our annual subscription price will remain at $8.00 for six or more pages a month of whatever gossip I find appropriate. However: the printout (now 44 pages) of the file of Sherlockian societies will now cost $2.75 postpaid.
159. Super-VHS (the high-fidelity and high-priced new VCR generation) will soon have some pre-recorded videocassettes available, with ten tapes to be produced by Super Source Video in San Francisco.
160. Two of the tapes will be "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" and "Dressed to Kill" (because those films, like the other eight, are in the public domain).
161. I.A.L. Diamond, who won an Oscar for his screenplay for "The Apartment", died on Apr. 21. He worked with Billy Wilder on many of his films, including "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970), on which Diamond shared the screenplay credit with Wilder.
162. There's a good article about the "Take a Bite out of Crime" public-service campaign in the April issue of Smithsonian. The name of the dog was chosen in a contest in which the most frequent suggestion was "Shure-lock Bones" -- but the winner was "McGruff".

163. Apr 88 #6: SILENT MAGIC: REDISCOVERING THE SILENT FILM ERA, by Ivan Butler (New York: Ungar, 1988; 208 pp., $24.00), is an entertaining commentary, with splendid photographs, by an enthusiast who saw his first film in 1915. His discussion includes "A Study in Scarlet" (1914), "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1921), "Sherlock Holmes" (1922), "The Fires of Fate" (1923), "Sherlock Jr." (1924), and "The Lost World" (1925).
164. "Sherlock Holmes Inspects the Hamlet Spectre", by Archibald W. Harris III [Robert F. Fleissner], combines a Sherlockian pastiche with Shakespearean scholarship, in the premier issue of the Shakespeare Inc. Quarterly ($25.00 a year from Shakespeare Inc., Box 3955, Rockefeller Center Station, New York, NY 10185).
165. I receive occasional requests for a source for in-print British books: try Blackwell's (Broad Street, Oxford OX1 3BQ, England); they provide good service, and you can open an account, or they'll take plastic (Mastercard or Visa).
166. The Sherlock Holmes Society of Australia has issued a handsome lapel pin, with a silhouette of Holmes superimposed on an outline map of Australia. $10.00 (US) postpaid from Alan C. Olding, P.O. Box 13, Stirling, S.A. 5152, Australia.
167. Brad Keefauver reports a delightful discovery at Toys R Us: a Glow-in-the-Dark Slithering Snake for use in show-and-tell discussions of "The Speckled Band". Four inches of plastic snake on a three-foot rod, price $1.38, and "the best part is, if you wonder how the snake got back up, all you have to do is turn the stick over."
168. The spring 1988 issue of Three Rivers News (published by the Carnegie Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, 4724 Baum Boulevard, Pittsburgh, PA 15213) reports on the availability of the Canon on recorded cassettes and disks and in large-print and Braille books. Also available on recorded disks are Conan Doyle's BEYOND THE CITY, THE DOINGS OF RAFFLES HAW, TALES OF TERROR AND MYSTERY, and UNCOLLECTED STORIES: THE UNKNOWN CONAN DOYLE. The National Library Service (run by the Library of Congress) now includes more than 160 regional and subregional libraries.
169. There were two brief clips from "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" in the Billy Wilder retrospective that preceded his receiving the Irving G. Thalberg award during the Oscar ceremonies on Apr. 12.
170. British comedian Kenneth Williams died on Apr. 15. He played Sir Henry Baskerville in the film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1978), with Peter Cook and Dudley Moore.
171. The blurb (Apr 88 #3) was for "The Three Gables" (in the Washington Sunday Star on Feb. 13, 1927).
172. Granada's "The Devil's Foot" was broadcast in Britain on Apr. 6, 1988, with Jeremy Brett's "new" Holmes. Three more one-hour shows ("Silver Blaze", "Wisteria Lodge", and "The Bruce-Partington Plans") followed, with "The Hound of the Baskervilles" due in two parts this fall.
-
173. May 88 #1: ON THE SCENT WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Walter Shepherd (Bloomington: Gaslight Publications, 1987; 85 pp., $15.95 postpaid from the publisher, 112 East Second, Bloomington, IN 47401), is an imaginative description of the London of Sherlock Holmes, and Holmes himself, as evoked by the scents and sounds of his era. The book is an expansion of the first two chapters of a volume by Shepherd published in 1978, with the same title.
174. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's enthusiasm for sport extended to cricket, and his "The Story of Spedegue's Dropper" has been included in THE BOUNDARY BOOK: SECOND INNINGS, edited by Leslie Frewin (London: Pelham Books, 1986; 384 pp., £14.95). The story is to some extent autobiographical: in MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES he tells how he was once bowled by A. P. Lucas with just such a "dropper" and concludes, "I spent the rest of the day wondering gloomily what I ought to have done--and I am wondering yet."
175. More Sherlockian philately: the new 25-cent stamps were designed by Chuck Ripper and feature a cock pheasant on the stamp and the booklet cover (which was also designed by Ripper).
176. Further to the report (Mar 88 #2) on handy-dandy fliers intended to offer neophytes an explanation of how our strange world works, The Bootmakers of Toronto also offer a well-produced brochure. If you want a copy, send a #10 SASE (US postage is OK) to Chris Redmond, 125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada.
177. "Sherlock Holmes & the Law" is the theme of an exhibition at the Harvard Law School Library from Apr. 21 through June 30, 1988, and there are some nice items on display, including Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887 and the manuscript of "The Three Students" (both on loan from the Houghton Library). Justice Albert M. Rosenblatt was on hand for the opening festivities, which included his lecture on "A Study in Crimson".
178. A preliminary (but thoroughly detailed) program at hand for the "Homage to Sherlock Holmes" pilgrimage to Switzerland on Sept. 8-12. The party will cross the Gemmi Pass, visiting the melancholy Daubensee (an inexplicable incident may or may not occur), and Meiringen (where a bronze life-sized statue of Sherlock Holmes will be unveiled, and Hans Kuenzler's "Sherlock Holmes March" will receive its world premiere), and other S'ian locales. The tour is being organized by the Swiss National Tourist Office, and you can obtain more information about the tour from the SNTTO, Swiss Center, New Coventry Street, London W1V 8EE, England.
179. Check your neighborhood pet shop for a soft vinyl-nontoxic Dogtoy made by Petland (Chillicothe, OH 45601): THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, by A Collie Dog, in the shape of an octavo book, for about $6.00.
-
180. May 88 #2: Granada seems a bit more determined to abandon Sherlock Holmes when they finish "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (which will make a total of 28 hours of tape and film), but Jeremy Brett intends to continue in the role on stage in the play he has commissioned. According to press reports, he hopes to persuade Edward Hardwicke to play Watson in the play, "and there is talk of a big screen movie."
181. Granada's "The Musgrave Ritual" was one of five nominees for an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America for "best mystery television series segment" in 1987, with the winner to be announced at the MWA annual dinner on May 12. No word yet on who won.
182. And Granada has completed location work on "The Hound of the Baskervilles". The Hound will be played by an 18-month-old fawn-colored Great Dane named "Khan". And how will Granada provide a "ghastly, glowing green" Hound? With a custom-made black-nylon body stocking.
183. Still more news from the British press: Jeremy Paul (who dramatized some of the Granada series, and who is writing the play in which Jeremy Brett hopes to tour) and John Hawkesworth have a new project in mind. "One thing we'd love to do is make a series about Conan Doyle himself," Jeremy Paul told a reporter, "I think he would make a fascinating series." Paul wrote the "Conan Doyle" program in the TV series "The Edwardians" that was broadcast in Britain in 1972 and in the U.S. in 1974 (D4603b), "but I couldn't really do him justice in so little time." Hawkesworth also considers Conan Doyle a fascinating man: "He was the sort of chap who would play cricket in the morning, ski during the afternoon, and write a Sherlock Holmes story in the evening."
184. UNSOLVED! CLASSIC TRUE MURDER CASES, edited by Richard Glyn Jones (New York: Peter Bedrick, 1988; 286 pp., $7.95), ranges from Dorothy Sayers on "The Murder of Julia Wallace" to James Thurber on "The Hall-Mills Affair", and includes Alexander Woollcott's "The Elwell Case" (first published in Look in 1940 and reprinted in LONG, LONG AGO in 1943), in which Woollcott begins by paying tribute to Sherlock Holmes and ends by suggesting that

- the unidentified murderer of Elwell "also has it upon his conscience that he brought into this world one of the most irritating detectives in the whole library of criminous fiction." (No, it isn't Sherlock Holmes.)
185. Gallery Lainzberg (200 Guaranty Building, 3rd Avenue and 3rd Street SE, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401) (800-553-9995) are still offering production cels from "The Great Mouse Detective" ($385.00 each for the good ones).
186. Reported by Emory M. Lee: a set of four "funny cars" made in Italy by ESCI with four characters (Holmes, Watson, Mrs. Hudson, and Moriarty) from the Japanese/Italian "Sherlock Hound" cartoons. "Sherlock Holmes" (#0046) can be ordered from Franklin's Diecast Miniatures, 1008 Doon Village Road, Kitchener, Ont. N2P 1A5, Canada; $34.00 postpaid for the set (or $8.50 each), and they take plastic.
187. The 37th running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont will be on Saturday, Sept. 24 (cost $45.00). If you would like to be on the mailing list, contact Stephen L. Stix, R.R. 1, Box 452, Markleville, IN 46056 (317-533-4443).
-
188. May 88 #3: Robert A. Heinlein, who died on May 7, was a truly splendid science-fiction writer ("*the* great grandmaster of the field," according to Isaac Asimov). "The Moon Is a Harsh Mistress" (D5930a), which won a Hugo award at the World Science Fiction Convention in 1966, features a computer named Mycroft and has many S'ian references, and Holmes, Watson, Challenger, and Conan Doyle are among the many incidental characters in his 1980 novel THE NUMBER OF THE BEAST.
189. Sheridan Haynes, the hero of Julian Symons' A THREE PIPE PROBLEM (D5202b), now has a second mystery to solve, in THE KENTISH MANOR MURDERS (London: Macmillan, 1988; 191 pp., £9.95). This time the famous Sherlockian actor is involved with international criminals, a reclusive millionaire hidden from the world in his own "Castle Baskerville" on Dartmoor, and the longlost manuscript of an unpublished Sherlock Holmes novel. An entertaining book, written with style and humor.
190. Reported by Tyke Niver: The Collectors Guild (1625 Bathgate Avenue, Bronx, NY 10457) is offering a lithograph by Carle Vernet (1758-1836) entitled "Hunting Scene in Fontainebleu" (#84-DC532) for $286.00 (or $35.75 a month for eight months), plus $19.95 shipping. Carle Vernet was Sherlock Holmes' great-grandfather.
191. English Faire (701 East Bay Street, Charleston, SC 29403) offers a colorful full-size (24x32") reproduction of a "Sherlock Holmes" pub sign (not the design used by The Sherlock Holmes in London) for $240.00. A sales list is available (they have many pub and shop signs), and you can request a color photograph of the "Sherlock Holmes" pub sign.
192. Reported by Bob Katz: "The Double Lives of Ellery Queen" is the title of an exhibit at the Rare Book and Manuscript Library at Columbia University, to which the Ellery Queen papers were recently donated. The exhibit is open from 9 to 5 weekdays, in the Kempner Exhibition Room on the sixth floor of Butler Library, until July 6. No word yet on whether there's anything Sherlockian in the exhibit.
193. Videotaper alert: "Time After Time" (1979) will be shown by The Movie Channel on June 14. Nicholas Meyer directed the film, which has Jack the Ripper using H. G. Wells' time machine to flee to modern San Francisco, followed by H. G. Wells, who poses as a detective, choosing a pseudonym that modern police will hardly recognize: Sherlock Holmes. Keep a sharp eye on the girl's apartment toward the end of the film: I *think* that the out-of-focus yellow poster is the "Frog of the Baskervilles" poster.
194. Randall Garrett died on Dec. 31. His TOO MANY MAGICIANS (D4934b) is a fine alternate-universe novel with many pleasant Sherlockian allusions.
195. A BAKER STREET GALLERY follows in the footsteps of BAKER STREET PORTRAITS from the Pequod Press, with 27 new quatrains by John Ruyle celebrating characters that range from Black Peter to Sir Cathcart Soames, set in an unusual type called Freak (when it was introduced in 1889) but now called Bamboo in an as-yet-unsuccessful effort to increase its popularity. The book is available from the author, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.00 cloth, or $14.00 paper.
-
196. May 88 #4: SKETCHES OF YOUNG COUPLES, WITH AN URGENT REMONSTRANCE TO THE GENTLEMEN OF ENGLAND (BEING BACHELORS OR WIDOWERS), ON THE PRESENT ALARMING CRISIS was published in 1840 and is in no way Sherlockian. However: the "present alarming crisis" was the possibility that in 1840, encouraged by Queen Victoria's recent announcement of her engagement (with the rather forceful expression, "It is my intention to ally myself with Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg and Gotha") and by the fact that 1840 was a leap year, the young ladies of England, would rise up and demand matrimony of all eligible young men. "Unless the excited female populace be speedily checked and restrained in their lawless proceedings," the alarmed author warned, "most deplorable results must ensue therefrom, among which may be anticipated a most alarming increase in the population of the country." Offered at $950 in a recent dealer's catalog, and the price reflects the identify of the anonymous author: Charles Dickens.
197. On May 23 the postal service issued a stamp commemorating the 200th anniversary of statehood of one of the Carolinas ("The Ku Klux Klan . . . rapidly formed local branches in different parts of the country, notably in Tennessee, Louisiana, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida.")
198. Daws Butler died on May 18. He was the voice of Yogi Bear, Huckleberry Hound, Quick Draw McGraw, and many other Hanna-Barbara characters, and he also worked with Stan Freberg. According to Ron Haydock's DEERSTALKER!, Butler provided the voice for the Watson character in the Canadian television series "Professor Lightfoot and Dr. Twiddle" (1953), which featured Jerry Courneya's trained chimpanzees (Courneya was going to call his series "Sherlock Holmes" or "Chimplock Holmes", but when the Conan Doyle estate threatened to make trouble, he changed the title and the names of the lead characters). "It was absolutely weird, but funny, seeing a chimp walking around his apartment with a deerstalker on his head and playing a violin, while another chimp sat in an armchair reading a newspaper and in voiceover narration started telling you about one of their adventures."
199. The Quality Paperback Book Club (Camp Hill, PA 17012) continues to find new uses for the Gerry Gersten caricature of Holmes, the latest being on the face of their Sherlock Holmes watch, offered to members at $14.95 in their June 1988 flier.
200. NATE THE GREAT AND THE FISHY PRIZE, written by Marjorie Weinman Sharmat and illustrated by Marc Simont (New York: Dell Books, 1988; 48 pp., $2.50), is the latest (and eighth) in the series of pleasant children's books about the deerstalkered young detective available from Dell in paperback.
201. Sharida Rizzuto (Baker Street Gazette, Box 994, Metairie, LA 70004) reports that they're ready to publish the second issue, and that they are paying a modest fee for submissions: one cent a word for 1,500-word articles, and up to $5.00 for artwork.
202. People have been asking for an address for the Gay Men's Press, publishers of Rohase Piercy's MY DEAREST HOLMES (Apr 88 #1). You can reach them at P.O. Box 247, 15 Overbury Road, London N15 6RW, England).
-
203. May 88 #5: FILES MAGAZINE: FOCUS ON SHERLOCK HOLMES, by John Peel (Granada Hills: Pop Cult, 1987; 54 pp., $6.95), is a heavily illustrated discussion of Holmes on stage, screen, and TV, with chapters about topics such as Basil Rathbone, the musical "Baker Street", and the film "The Great Mouse Detective". The illustrations, unfortunately, are only decorative, since none of them have captions and many are unrelated to the accompanying text (I have no idea why a photograph of Frank Lloyd Wright is included in the chapter on "The Great Mouse Detective") (or, for that matter, why it is included in a discussion of Sherlock Holmes). Order from the publisher, 11586 Vimy Road, Granada Hills, CA 91344.

204. Bliss Austin ("The Engineer's Thumb") died on May 25. He was one of the first generation of The Baker Street Irregulars, attending the 1944 annual dinner and receiving his Investiture (then called an "Adventure in Membership") at the 1945 annual dinner. He was an enthusiastic collector, and a fine scholar and speaker, and a good friend to many of us.
205. Reported: a facsimile reprint (from the 1922 edition) of Conan Doyle's THE WHITE COMPANY, with 16 color illustrations by N. C. Wyeth, $20.00 postpaid from Books of Wonder, 132 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10011.
206. Eternity Comics (2635 Lavery Court #11, Newbury Park, CA 91320) reports that their "Scarlet in Gaslight" series will end with #4 (due in June); #2 and #3 are out of stock, but #1 and #4 each cost $2.50 postpaid. All four issues will be repackaged as a Graphic Novel, available in August at $9.00 postpaid. And their new "Sherlock Holmes" monthly series will debut in June, reprinting the 1954-56 Meiser/Giacoa comic strips, at $2.50 each postpaid (unfortunately, no subscriptions available).
207. DER MANN DES SCHRECKENS, by Nicholas Meyer (D5079b), has been reprinted in paperback (Munchen: Wilhelm Heyne Verlag, 1985; 219 pp., DM 6.80).
208. And about that cock pheasant (May 88 #1). How many of you quickly guessed "The Gloria Scott"? Sorry, that's a hen pheasant. "I would never have overlooked such a cock pheasant as that," Holmes told Watson in "The Three Garridebs".
209. Chris Redmond also offers the new edition of his "Handy Sherlock Holmes Reference Guide" listing the cases, title abbreviations, publication dates, and beginning page numbers in the THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES. Send a #10 SASE (US postage OK) to Chris at 125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada.
210. Scheduled at the Kennedy Center in Washington from Sept. 7 to Oct. 9: Fritz Weaver and Noel Harrison in Ken Ludwig's "Sullivan & Gilbert" (according to the promotion, "this charming, humorous, and often moving stage portrait of the rocky relationship between the gentle composer Sir Arthur Sullivan and the short-tempered wordsmith William Gilbert is peppered with rousing songs from the duo's most famous works"). Fritz Weaver played Sherlock Holmes in the 1964 musical "Baker Street" (D5166a). And Ken Ludwig is a Washington playwright whose "Dramatic License" (a mystery drama in which William Gillette solves a murder at his castle in Connecticut) was produced in 1983 in Milford, N.H., and in 1985 in Cleveland.
-
211. May 88 #6: "There'll always be a Musgrave . . ." Sir Richard Musgrave, a 66-year-old Irish baronet, is facing criminal charges in Charlottesville, Va., accused of supervising the killing hundreds of federally protected hawks and owls on the estate of billionaire John W. Kluge. Kluge brought Musgrave to the U.S. to establish an English-style hunting preserve on Kluge's 5,000-acre estate. The hawks and owls, and (it would appear) some neighbors' dogs, were killed to protect the pheasants raised for use in the weekend "shoots" at Albemarle Farms.
212. Discovered by Richard R. Rutter: Gli Albi Orient Express (a series of high quality Italian comic books) has two Sherlockian issues (Le Avventure di Sherlock Holmes): #27 (July 1987) with "Scan" and "Iden", and #30 (Jan. 1988) with "RedH" and "Bosc", well-drawn by Giancarlo Berardi and Giorgio Trevisan. Published by Edizioni L'Isola Trovata, via Ferruccio 15, 20145 Milano, Italy; £6,500 (#27) and £7,000 (#30).
213. The 15-cent postal card, based on an original painting by Bart Forbes, is the first in an "America the Beautiful" series. Bison are mentioned in the Canon, as are buffalo, but those buffalo, presumably, were Cape buffalo rather than Buffalo Bill's buffalo.
214. If you missed the Easton Press three-volume deluxe THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES 100TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION (July 87 #1), you can try again: the set was advertised in Smithsonian (May 1988), and I doubt that they would advertise if they hadn't gone to a second printing. It's a reissue of the Heritage Press edition, with color frontispieces, and handsomely produced; $37.50 postpaid per volume, and they take plastic (Easton Press is at 47 Richards Avenue, Norwalk, CT 06857).
215. There is no shortage of cabs in Boston, at least for The Speckled Band, which has now published THE FIFTH CAB, a new collection of articles and pastiches by members of the Band, with appropriate illustrations by Judith deFour Love. THE FIFTH CAB is available for $40.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper) postpaid, from J. Devereux deGozzaldi, Graystone Farm, 79 Frankland Road, Hopkinton, MA 01748. Copies of THE FOURTH CAB (1976) and THE BEST OF THE CABS (1980) are also available for $7.50 (paper) each, postpaid.
216. L. B. Greenwood's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY (1986) was one of the better recent novel-length pastiches, and her new SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL (New York: Simon and Schuster, 1988; 192 pp., $16.95) is a fine sequel. Once again, the mystery is both appropriate and interesting, and the style and characterizations are consistent.
217. The Southern Illinois University Press (Box 3697, Carbondale, IL 62902) is offering a 20% discount on THE QUEST FOR SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: THIRTEEN BIOGRAPHERS IN SEARCH OF A LIFE, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg ($15.96) and THE BEST SCIENCE FICTION OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Charles G. Waugh and Martin H. Greenberg ($13.56). The deadline is June 15, and you must order two or more books to get the discount; $2.00 shipping per order, and they take plastic.
-
218. Jun 88 #1: ADVENTURES BY GASLIGHT is the latest supplement to the Sleuth Publications game SHERLOCK HOLMES CONSULTING DETECTIVE. You will need some items from the original game (or the earlier free-standing supplements THE MANSION MURDERS and THE QUEEN'S PARK AFFAIR) in order to play the new supplement, which was written by Jacques and Nadine Thiriart and originally published by Jeux Descartes in 1986 in Paris as L'AFFAIRE DE L'OISEAU DE PAPIER. Translated by Catherine Theilen, ADVENTURES BY GASLIGHT involves travel to Paris to solve an international mystery set in May 1889. The game is available for $14.95 (plus $2.00 shipping) from Sleuth Publications, 689 Florida Street, San Francisco, CA 94110 (they take plastic).
219. SHERLOCK HOLMES CONSULTING DETECTIVE is indeed international now: the game (and some supplements) have been translated into German (SHERLOCK HOLMES CRIMINAL-CABINET), French (SHERLOCK HOLMES DETECTIVE CONSEIL), Japanese, Swedish, and Italian. The addresses (for fanatics) are: Franckh Kosmos, Pfizerstrasse 5-7, D-7000 Stuttgart 1, Germany; Jeux Descartes, 5 rue de la Baume, 75008 Paris, France; Futami Shobo, 1-21-11 Otawa, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo 112, Japan; and Avehytysstel, Frihamnen, S-10056 Stockholm, Sweden. No address yet for the Italian version.
220. Roy K. Preece, Jr. (The Village Bookshelf, 746 Amherst Road NE, Box 708, Massillon, OH 44648) is offering some material from the early days of the BSI: the menu of the 1934 annual dinner ($150), and three letters to a Dr. Creighton Barker, from Gray Chandler Briggs ($100), from Vincent Starrett ($200), and from Frederic Dorr Steele ($200). "Mr. Vincent Starrett and I had a conversation a few weeks ago, standing at the bar of The Players," Steele wrote to Barker in 1935. "I find in my wallet your address in Mr. Starrett's handwriting, but for reasons which you are at liberty to guess, I am not quite certain of the import of the conversation." Write to Roy for details.
221. John E. Stephenson, in The Call of the Hunt, mentions Howard Einbinder's mention of Baker Street Tea, available from the Baker Street Tea Co., Box 62, Little Silber, NJ 07739. And Ida Tucker's report that at the end of the film "Oxford Blues" (now on HBO), Rob Lowe tries on a deerstalker and cape. And a wire-service report that Granada's "The Musgrave Ritual" won an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America for "best mystery television series segment", and that Vincent Price won an Edgar for "contributions to the world of mystery".

222. Sir Richard Musgrave (May 88 #6) was found guilty of conspiring to kill hawks and owls to protect the English-style game-shooting on an estate in Virginia. "I guess I'll be the first criminal in the family since Charles I," said Sir Richard, who also explained that his title results from the "political shenanigans" of a Tory forefather. He was fined $9,500 and given a suspended two-year prison sentence.
223. Those who ordered the Franklin Library edition of GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Feb 88 #2) are by now aware of how persistent the Franklin Center marketing operation is: I have been receiving an average of one new offer a week from the Franklin Mint for their various collectibles.
-
224. Jun 88 #2: Recommended by Richard Wein: John English Gifts, 6 Princes Arcade, Piccadilly, London SW1Y 6DS, England, is a reliable source for "The Sherlock Holmes" in Malcolm Cooper's miniature series of "Great British Pubs" (Feb 88 #6); price £45.95 less 15% VAT plus postage and insurance at cost. Also for three Bosson wall plaques (Moriarty is new); price £15.75 each, less 15% VAT plus postage and insurance at cost. Richard reports that the postage and insurance are about equal to the VAT; and the firm takes plastic.
225. Also discovered by Richard Wein: WHEN PEOPLE PUBLISH: ESSAYS ON WRITERS AND WRITING, by Frederick Busch (Iowa City: Iowa University Press, 1986); the contents include "Holmes's Occupation" (somewhat revised from Busch's "Introduction" to the 1985 Signet Classic paperback THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERIES).
226. Roger Johnson reports from England that Michael Cox reports that Granada's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" will probably be broadcast there on Aug. 31. "Granada would willing make some more two-hour-long films if I could find the stories," Cox told Roger. "There is 'The Valley of Fear', of course, although it's not easy to adapt. Any ideas among the pastiches?" Cox will welcome suggestions at The Coach House, One Oak Lane, Wilmslow, Cheshire SK9 2BL, England.
227. Julian Symons' THE KENTISH MANOR MURDERS (May 88 #3) now has an American edition (New York: Viking, 1988; 191 pp., $15.95). Sheridan Haynes, the hero of Symons' A THREE PIPE PROBLEM (D5202b), has a new mystery to solve; this time the famous Sherlockian actor is involved with international criminals, a reclusive millionaire hidden from the world in his own "Castle Baskerville" on Dartmoor, and the long-lost manuscript of an unpublished Sherlock Holmes novel. An entertaining book, written with style and humor.
228. W. Kenneth Lane ("Wilson Hargreave, of the New York Police") died in Feb. 1988.
229. The third issue of The Plum in the Pudding at hand from The Six Napoleons, dedicated to the late James F. Brewer (and with an article by Fitz, who was one of the best Sherlockian lecturers as well as one of the least-published Sherlockian authors, this article being, as far as I know, his first time in print in the Sherlockian press). The journal is well produced, with 52 pages, and costs $4.00 from John Nichols, Box 6324, Annapolis, MD 21401.
-
230. Jun 88 #3: The Antiquarian Booksellers International has opened in gallery 48 at the Place des Antiquaires at 125 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022. Paulette Greene will be maintaining a special Sherlock Holmes section for visiting book-hunters, and you can call (212-751-5450) to see what the opening hours are.
231. Reported by Charles A. Meyer: Beeman Precision Arms (3440 Airway Drive, Santa Rosa, CA 95401) is offering the Beeman/Harper Air Cane, manufactured by Harper Classic Guns Ltd. Overall length is 34 inches, with a 22-inch barrel; weight is 1 pound; power source is a Saxby-Palmer pneumatic pump; calibre is .22 or .25; and price is $495. According to an article in Guns & Ammo (July 1988), this air-gun is extremely accurate, and as powerful as many cartridge firearms. In a larger calibre (19th century versions fired bullets approximately double the diameter of these pellets, at about the same velocity), this weapon would inspire a justified fear of air-guns.
232. Flier at hand from the Bloomsbury Square Collection (7474 Creedmoor Road #221B, Raleigh, NC 27612) offering a new S'ian pin and a new S'ian mug.
233. An auction at Sotheby's (34-35 New Bond Street, London W1A 2AA, England) on July 20-21 has some interesting Conan Doyle items, including a fragment of an autograph letter signed "Ever your boy, Arthur" to his mother in 1894, refusing to sign himself "Sherlock Holmes", with an autograph letter signed from Mary J. E. Doyle (the author's mother) to Mrs. Croft explaining that "My son will not sign 'Sherlock Holmes'--he is really too particular!" In his letter to his mother, Conan Doyle wrote: "What would I think if I saw that Scott (to compare great with small) had signed a letter 'Brian de Bois Guillbert'. He would sink points in my estimation." Another auction lot contains two pipes (GBD "New Era") owned by Conan Doyle, from the estate of the late Princess Mdivani.
234. Reported by Jack Kerr: a reprint of MRS. BEETON'S VICTORIAN COOKBOOK, by Isabella Beeton (Topsfield, Mass.: Salem House), at $24.95.
235. Catalog #23 from West's Booking Agency (Box 406, Elm Grove, WI 53122) has a large section of S'iana, including a copy of Edgar W. Smith's APPOINTMENT IN BAKER STREET, inscribed "To Alexander Woolcott--In appreciation of work as a Baker Street Irregular," signed by Smith, and dated Jan. 3, 1939 [not the date of the annual dinner]. If you would like to know the facts about Alexander Woolcott and the BSI and the Dec. 1934 dinner, see Robert Keith Leavitt's article on "The Origin of 221B Worship" (BSJ, Dec. 1961). Edgar W. Smith "was too high-minded to believe ill of anybody," Leavitt suggests, noting that Smith did not join the BSI until 1938.
236. I have added some additional muscle to my computer, so that I can work with large documents more quickly, and do some other things more efficiently. For those who "talk techie" (and I know there are a few of you out there), my Leading Edge model M (vintage 1985) now has a 30-MB hard disk, with a RAMpage! 2-MB expansion board, configured with AST software to provide a 2-MB RAM disk, and everything seems to be working well. Volkswriter 3 is my word-processor, and I use PC-File+ for my mailing lists and the BSI file of Sherlockian societies, and I also have Norton Utilities Advanced Edition and Norton Commander, all of which I recommend enthusiastically.
-
237. Jun 88 #4: SOLVED! FAMOUS MYSTERY WRITERS ON CLASSIC TRUE-CRIME CASES, edited by Richard Glyn Jones (Feb 88 #4) now has an American edition (New York: Peter Bedrick Books, 1987; 317 pp., $15.95). The book offers a fine selection, ranging from Runyon's splendid newspaper reporting on the Snyder-Judd murder trial to Ellison's speculations on Jack the Ripper, and including Conan Doyle's "The Case of Mr. George Edalji". The book also includes a report by F. Tennyson Jesse on "The Trial of Madeleine Smith" with two uncredited portraits from the Illustrated London News, whose courtroom artist for the trial was Charles Altamont Doyle (see the letter by Herman Herst, Jr., in the BSJ, Mar. 1983, p. 41).
238. The U.S. Postal Service is planning to issue a stamp honoring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, designed by caricaturist Al Hirshfeld, probably in the continuing "performing arts" series. The USPS is negotiating for use of the comedians' names (yes, that sort of thing is protected under the laws governing trade marks), but we may get an Elvis Presley stamp first. Stan Laurel appeared in Sherlockian costume in "The Sleuth" (1925), and Laurel and Hardy wore deerstalkers in "Do Detectives Think?" (1927), "The Big Noise" (1944), and (possibly) "The Dancing Masters" (1943).
239. Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's Nate the Great is enjoying summer on the beach and detecting again, with his faithful dog Sludge, in NATE THE GREAT AND THE BORING BEACH BAG (New York: Coward-McCann, 1987; 48 pp., $10.95).
240. Discovered by Brad Keefauver: a handsome promotional flier, with S'ian theme and design, produced by Blackpool Design, 102 Suffolk Street #2-B, New York, NY 10002. Copies available on request from the firm (attn: A. R. Miller).
241. L. B. Greenwood's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL (May 88 #6) will be the June selection from the Detective Book Club.

242. It's still possible to make discoveries in out-of-the-way places: a copy of TAMERLANE & OTHER POEMS, written "By a Bostonian" and published in 1827, was found not too long ago by an amateur book-collector in a bin of old pamphlets on fertilizers and farm machinery in an antiques barn in New Hampshire, and purchased for $15. The book went to auction this month at Sotheby's in New York, and a Manhattan book dealer paid $198,000 for it. "A Bostonian" was Edgar Allan Poe, and it was his first book, and there are reported to be only twelve known copies. Sherlockian book-collectors, one assumes, dream of finding *two* copies of Beeton's Christmas Annual, so the copy in better condition can be kept, and the other sent to auction.
243. "Sherlock Holmes in the Antarctic" is not the title of the series now being repeated on "Masterpiece Theatre" on PBS-TV (the series is actually "The Last Place on Earth"), but . . . Sverre Anker Ousdal (Roald Amundsen) did play Sherlock Holmes in Nils Nordberg's translation of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" at the Nationaltheatret in Oslo in 1980.
244. Jeremy Brett's Sherlock Holmes *will* return to "Mystery!" on PBS-TV on July 14, when "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" begins repeats, starting with "The Empty House". But no word yet on a schedule for "The Sign of Four" or the next four stories that have already been broadcast in Britain.
-
245. Jun 88 #5: "Once the Soviet Union erased our nuclear advantage, it was free to exploit its own massive superiority in conventional forces. Like Sherlock Holmes's dog that did not bark, the critical clue to understanding the importance of nuclear superiority in the case of Afghanistan was the threat the United States could not make." Found by Samuel E. Fry on page 76 of 1999: VICTORY WITHOUT WAR, by Richard M. Nixon (1988). As far as I know, this is his only published reference to the Canon. But in an article in New York Magazine (June 9, 1980), Julie Baumgold quoted Nixon as saying, "I don't care for novels, and mysteries bore me except on TV, and since Holmes is off, what is there?"
246. Gerald Shannon (Box 14474, West Allis, WI 53214) is preparing a first day cover for the 25c "Love" stamp to be issued on July 4. The new stamp will feature a rose, and the cachet will show an appropriate Paget illustration. The covers cost $1.00 each, plus a #10 SASE, and you are advised to order quickly because the number of covers will be limited. You can expect delivery in three to four weeks (because the USPS takes a while to return the serviced first day covers).
247. Euston Films continues location work on "Jack the Ripper" (a four-hour £4-million television film) in which Michael Caine stars as Insp. Frank Abberline, "the real-life detective who led the investigation and on whom, supposedly, Conan Doyle based Sherlock Holmes" (according to a report in the Surrey Comet).
248. A pleasant discovery by Don Pollock: L.R.G. Crandon's "Obituary Note" for Conan Doyle in the Aug. 1930 issue of Psychic Research (the journal of the American Society for Psychical Research). The six-page article is more than a mere "note" (Crandon's wife was the medium Margery), and one of Crandon's stories involves the private seance that Margery held at ACD's home in Buckingham Palace Mansions in Dec. 1923: "Later that evening, Sir Arthur with his large good-humored smile, pointed to an 'original' picture of Sherlock Holmes and Moriarty falling off the precipice and said, 'The world used to think that I had a keen enough brain!'" The picture is surely the original of Paget's frontispiece for "The Final Problem" (which I wistfully inspected at the House of Ed Dieff many years ago). Does anyone know where the picture is now?
249. THE BEST CRIME STORIES OF THE 19TH CENTURY, edited by Isaac Asimov, Charles G. Waugh, and Martin H. Greenberg (New York: Dembner Books, 1988; 325 pp., $16.95), offers "The Red-Headed League" as part of an interesting display of what Asimov calls "the slow turn from the clever and daring criminal to the clever and daring detective." But the "notes about the authors" at the back of the book should be read only for amusement: "In 1891, the editors of *The Strand Magazine*, impressed by Doyle's first Sherlock Holmes novel, *A Study in Scarlet* (1882), commissioned him to write a series featuring the same character."
-
250. Jun 88 #6: Reported: BAKER STREET DETECTIVE, an all-text solitaire computer game for Macintosh computers, from Artworx, 1844 Penfield Road, Penfield, NY 14526; $17.95.
251. And one more Granada item: Jeremy Brett has indeed made many changes in his portrayal of Holmes in the yet-to-be-seen-here programs, including a new hair style. But here's what Brett and Hardwicke look like in "The Hound of the Baskervilles", in a photograph taken by Kathryn White of The Northern Musgraves during location work in Liverpool in April.
-
- Jul 88 #1:
252. WHEN PEOPLE PUBLISH: ESSAYS ON WRITERS AND WRITING, by Frederick Busch (Iowa City: University of Iowa Press, 1986; 163 pp., $19.95), presents a collection of thoughtful essays on Dickens, Melville, Joyce, Hemingway, and Conan Doyle. "Holmes's Occupation" is revised from its first appearance as an Afterword in THE SHERLOCK HOLMES MYSTERIES (New American Library/Signet, 1985 and 1987).
253. Announcement at hand for the 37th running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont Park in New York on Sept. 24: $45.00 including luncheon at the track and transportation from and to The Players. The reservation deadline is Sept. 10. Contact: Stephen L. Stix, Route 1, Box 4352, Markleville, IN 46056.
254. This year Australia and Great Britain celebrated the bicentennial of Australia by issuing a joint set of commemoratives, and one of the stamps shows W. G. Grace, the great British cricketer. ACD wrote an appreciation of Grace for The Times (Oct. 17, 1915), later revised and expanded for the Strand (July 1927), and discussed Grace in "Some Recollections of Sport" in the Strand (Sept. 1909 and June 1924) and MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES.
255. "Enter the hushed and mysterious world of Sherlock Holmes as you step onto the set of 221b Baker Street," promises the flier for the Granada Studios Tour, forwarded by Scott and Sherry Rose Bond. The Tour is "located at the heart of Granadaland in City Centre Manchester" and will open on July 20, 1988 ("subject to completion of building programme"). Monday to Sunday until Oct. 2, and then Wednesday to Sunday until Mar. 27, 1989, and the cost is £5.50. Baker Street is not the only item included (you can also sit on the Back Benches of the life-size Houses of Parliament set from the "First Among Equals" series, ride an Edwardian tram from the "Lost Empires" series, stroll along Downing Street, and enjoy a relaxing drink at The Rover's Return on "Coronation Street"). It is not absolutely clear from the flier that this is a made-to-order-for-tourists attraction similar to the Universal Studios tour, but there's no suggestion in the flier that any part of the tour might be closed while Granada does production work. The flier is available from Granada Studios Tour, Manchester M60 9EA, England.
256. Tekna Productions (2 & 3 Moores Place, Brentwood, Essex CM14 4AG, England), the firm that produced the eight color prints and four greeting cards for the City of Westminster Libraries, has launched "The 221B Collection" (and is planning to offer all of Sidney Paget's illustrations as color prints). And the prints are handsome indeed, on heavy stock and quite suitable for framing. Six stories from THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES are now available: "Empt", "Norw", "Danc", "Soli", and "Blac" (each with seven prints) cost £13.50 each, and "Prio" (with nine prints) costs £16.00, all postpaid.
257. Jerry Margolin reports that there are Sherlockians reasons to see "The Dead Pool" (the new "Dirty Harry" film): there is a framed portrait of Sherlock Holmes on the wall in the office of Capt. Donnelly (Harry Callahan's boss), and the villain is killed with a weapon reminiscent of "The Adventure of Black Peter".
-
258. Jul 88 #2: If you haven't been able to get the fine recording (by That's Entertainment Records) of the music composed by Patrick Gowers for the Granada television series (Dec 87 #6 and Feb 88 #2) the LP record is listed in the July catalog (item 155) from Sound Track Album Retailers (Box 487, New Holland, PA 17557; the price is $12.95 plus $2.00 shipping, and they take plastic.

259. A spokesman for WGBH-TV has announced that "The Sign of Four" (and the remaining shows in the Granada series) *will* be broadcast, in the 1988-89 season of "Mystery!", according to a report in the first (summer 1988) issue of Anglofile, a new eight-page journal devoted to British film and television. Anglofile costs $10.00 a year for six issues, from the Goody Press, Box 33515-S, Decatur, GA 30033.
260. The Canon contains mentions of a moss-rose and a sulphur rose, as well as rosebushes and rose-water. The rose on the new "Love" stamp has not been identified by the postal service (but we may yet hear from the botanical experts).
261. DRUID'S BLOOD, by Esther M. Freisner (New York: New American Library/Signet, 1988; 279 pp., $3.50), is an amusing and entertaining alternate-universe fantasy novel in which sleuth Brihtric Donne and his chronicler John H. Weston battle evil magicians in a Britain ruled by a Druid monarchy. The book echoes the Canon thoroughly, and carries one of the more imaginative back-cover blurbs: "Victoria, queen of the realm, the mightiest mage in the British Isles, and one of the lustiest women Dr. John H. Weston had ever had the pleasure to companion beneath the covers, was in desperate trouble."
262. Barbara Woodhouse, who believed that no dog was untrainable, and who made "Walkies!" a watchword among dog-owners, died on July 9. Cartoonists in Britain (especially on the pages of Punch) did not overlook the possibility of a Woodhouse-Baskerville association, and her 1981 ITV television program "Barbara Woodhouse Goes to Beverly Hills" included a four-minute segment on John Keane (the lost-pet detective Sherlock Bones).
263. Plan ahead: "The Death and Life of Sherlock Holmes" (a two-act play written by Suzan L. Zeder) was first performed in Louisville in Feb. 1987. There have been productions in Lancaster, Pa. (with Orson Bean as the villains) (yes, plural) and in Seattle, and the play has now been scheduled by the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, N.Y., on Oct. 27-30 ($4.00 a ticket). The box office opens on Oct. 17 (716-475-6254), and the address is Box 9887, Rochester, NY 14623.
264. Ben Wood, who has long described himself as an amiable and simple-minded nonconformist clergyman, has announced that he retiring, and moving from parish to Parrish -- he and Joan will arrive in Parrish, Fla., on Aug. 10, and their new address will be: Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222 (813-776-2078).
265. Reported by four faithful reporters: an article by Ed Hulse on "Sherlock Holmes" in the July 1988 issue of Video Review, with a list of his ten "greatest cases" on video (Rathbone scores four out of the ten). The magazine address is 902 Broadway, New York, NY 10010; $1.95.
-
266. Jul 88 #3: ZPPR Productions (34 Gansevoort Street, New York, NY 10014) has issued its first catalog, which includes four different S'ian audio cassettes by The Friends of Bogie's ($8.95 each plus $2.00 per order for shipping). The group has performed for enthusiastic audiences both in New York and as far afield as Washington and Williamsburg, and the audio cassettes are the next best thing to being there.
267. Sherlock Holmes has traveled widely, with occasional visits to the Land of Oz, as recorded by Vincent Ward and Jay Delkin in "The Adventure of the Missing Belt" (D5225b). Delkin's next story, "The Adventure of the Missing Ozma", appeared in the 1984 issue of Oziana, published by The International Wizard of Oz Club and still available ($1.00 postpaid) from Fred M. Meyer, 220 North Eleventh Street, Escanaba, MI 49829.
268. David Fogel's BAKER STREET DETECTIVE is a text-only computer game (Artworx, 1985), now available for Macintosh (as well as for Apple), with two cases ("A Wasted Witness" and "The Scourge of the Executioner"); you choose your clue-locations, collect clues, and decide when to take a quiz on each case, and the computer compares your score to Sherlock Holmes' and gives you the solution. Available at your local computer shop, or from Artworx, 1844 Penfield Road, Penfield, NY 14526; $17.95.
269. Joshua Logan, one of Broadway's greatest directors, died on July 12. His biggest hits included "South Pacific", "Annie Get Your Gun", and "Mister Roberts", and it is interesting to consider what the musical "Baker Street" would have been like if he had directed it. And he might have: Alexander Cohen signed Joshua Logan as director in Aug. 1963, but Harold Prince took over the job in Jan. 1964.
270. The first issue (June) of the new "Sherlock Holmes" comic book at hand from Eternity Comics, with a reprint of the first half of "The Problem of Thor Bridge" from the fine 1954 comic strip written by Edith Meiser and drawn by Frank Giacoia. This is a monthly series, with no subscriptions available, but if your local comic shop doesn't stock the title, you can order from Eternity Comics, 1355 Lawrence Drive #212, Newbury Park, CA 91320; $1.95.
271. The joint set of commemoratives (Jul 88 #1) with the portrait of W. G. Grace includes another stamp, with portraits of William Shakespeare and John Lennon, both of whom have Sherlockian connections, but the portrait of Lennon is too small to show with any clarity here. There is, however, a respectable substitute: the stamp issued in 1988 by West Germany. John Lennon wrote the parody (later adapted for the stage) "The Singulare Experience of Miss Anne Duffield" (D6007a and D4479b), which features Shamrock Womlms and Doctored Whopper.
272. If you would like to have four of the hideous Steinbach Sherlock Holmes nutcrackers (Mar 87 #5), they are imported from G. A. Westphal by Zeiger Enterprises (621-625 Prospect Street, Trenton, NJ 08618) and is in their current catalog (item 2349) at $50 (their minimum order is $200). If you would like to have just one, contact Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804).
-
273. Jul 88 #4: Reported by Jim Zunic: "Dinosaurs Alive!" is a new exhibit at the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh (through Sept. 25), with six "moving and roaring" dinosaurs (computer-controlled and created by the Dinamation International Corp.). "Dinosaur Times" (a free four-page hand-out at the exhibit) has a small deerstalkered dinosaur with an article on "What We Know and Don't Know About Dinosaurs". As well as a question: when does a paleontologist need a tow truck? The address for the Carnegie is 4400 Forbes Avenue, Pittsburgh, PA 15213.
274. The latest news from Hollywood is that we will not be able to see Michael Caine and Ben Kingsley in "Sherlock and Me". According to a report in the Washington Post (July 15), the film's title has been changed to "Without a Clue".
275. "The Mysterious Affair at Great Orme Street" is an entertaining essay in which Chris Redmond examines the affair of Mr. Fairdale Hobbs. Copies available on request (with a #10 SASE) (U.S. postage OK) from Chris at 125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada.
276. A new sales list at hand from Images of Sherlock Holmes (5005 Bryant Avenue South #117, Minneapolis, MN 55419), with an extensive run of single issues of the BSI, plus posters and buttons.
277. H. M. Levy, founder of The Consulting Detectives of Long Island, is also president of the Gamers Alliance (an international network of gamers), and it is understandable that the spring 1988 issue of Gamers Alliance Report includes reviews of three Sherlockian items: SHERLOCK: THE RIDDLE OF THE CROWN JEWELS (the Infocom computer game), SHERLOCK HOLMES SOLO MYSTERIES (the Iron Crown book series), and VCR 221B BAKER STREET (the video game). Send $5.00 to H. M. Levy (Box 197, East Meadow, NY 11554) for a copy of the magazine and membership information.
278. There is Sherlockian flavor in William C. Thomas' new poem ("Detectiverse: Case Clothed") in the Sept. 1988 issue of EQMM.
279. DOCTORS: TALES FROM MEDICAL LIFE (London: Greenhill Books, 1988; 172 pp., £9.50) is the latest in a series of reprints of Conan Doyle's older works. This volume contains the nine medical stories from ROUND THE RED LAMP and his Preface, in which he suggests that these tales "may startle the reader out of his usual grooves of thought, and shock him into seriousness."
280. When does a paleontologist need a tow truck? When he sees a *Tyrannosaurus rex*.

281. The summer 1988 issue of The Book Collector at hand from England, with Nicolas Barker's report on the Copenhagen Book Fair (which he describes as "one of the more pleasant and civilised backwaters on the increasingly frenetic international Book Fair circuit"). "The prize for originality and single-minded enthusiasm must go to Messrs 'Pinkerton', a Danish firm specialising exclusively in Sherlock Holmes and detective fiction," Barker suggests. "Their display case had everything except the 'worm unknown to science' which as all Sherlockians know, was found in a matchbox by the side of a corpse whose face was marked by a rictus of ineffable terror."
-
282. Jul 88 #5: Thanks to Ev Herzog for a different (and more authoritative) explanation of what it was that did not amuse Queen Victoria (Feb 88 #1). According to Alan Hardy (QUEEN VICTORIA WAS AMUSED, 1976, pp. 5-12), Her Majesty was first quoted in print as saying "We are not amused!" in Arthur Beavan's POPULAR ROYALTY, published at the time of the Diamond Jubilee. The target of her comment was the Hon. Alexander Yorke, groom-in-waiting during the last sixteen years of her reign, and his version of the incident, told to his niece, was published in 1968: "During a dinner party at Windsor, Alick was sitting next to a German to whom he told a slightly risqué story. The German guffawed so loudly that the Queen asked Alick to tell her what had caused such mirth. Alick thereupon repeated the story and received the classic snub."
283. Grafton Books is continuing its series of tie-in paperbacks with color cover photographs from the Granada series (Feb 88 #5), the latest at hand being THE VALLEY OF FEAR (£2.50).
284. DETECTIVE FICTION: A COLLECTION OF CRITICAL ESSAYS, edited by Robin W. Winks (Woodstock: Foul Play Press, 1988; 301 pp., $11.95), was first published in 1980 and is now available in a revised and expanded edition. The book is a fine collection of commentary by experts (including Auden, Barzun, Knox, Sayers, Symons, and Wilson), and although the emphasis of the collection is on "twentieth-century views," intended for readers who are "exploring for the first time the body of critical literature," Sherlock Holmes is not neglected.
285. A new flier at hand for Stefanie K. Hawks' fine artwork on stationery, greeting cards, postcards, and prints. Write to S. K. Hawks, Box 9486, Knoxville, TN 37940.
286. Our circulation department extends a warm welcome to the deluge of new subscribers (eleven so far) who responded to Philip Shreffler's gracious recommendation in the June issue of the BSJ. For the benefit of those new readers, we have a few standing offers (all prices postpaid): the 12-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women costs $1.00; and the 45-page list of the Sherlockian societies (with names and addresses for contacts for the active societies) costs $2.75; and the run of mailing labels for the active societies costs $10.00. And Al and Julie Rosenblatt's splendid 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987, handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with illustrations, annotations and explanations, is also available for $15.00.
287. Lenny Picker (119 81st Avenue, Kew Gardens, NY 11415) would like to hear from anyone interested in participating in a mock inquest on the Jack the Ripper case, to be held in November in New York City by way of celebrating the centenary of Saucy Jack's outrages.
288. Tourists in Britain have long been able to use a fine series of guidebooks produced jointly by the Automobile Association and the Ordnance Survey, and the 16th in the series, covering Devon and Exmoor, is of special interest: the section on Dartmoor includes appropriate discussion of Holmes and the Hound of the Baskervilles.
-
289. Jul 88 #6: Thanks to Bob Katz for news of the arrest on Mar. 2 of six people who are now facing federal conspiracy charges in Baltimore in connection with an estimate $10 million cocaine ring that was based in Perry Hall, Md. One of the six people was David Deigert, the owner of Sherlock's Pub, which police said was the drug ring's major distribution center (the pub was seized, along with Deigert's home, by federal agents). A police spokesman explained that seizure of the property was intended to prevent selling the property to raise money that might be used for bail, or for seed money to finance a continuation of the drug operation. A visit to Sherlock's Pub some years ago revealed that it was more of a tavern than a pub, with an appropriate sign outside and a display shelf of S'iana behind glass inside. No one, at the time, suggested that controlled substances might be available.
290. Douglas West, an American artist who lives in Walkhampton on the edge of Dartmoor, is concerned that there is no memorial to Sherlock Holmes on the moors. "He's as much of an asset to this area as Sir Francis Drake, and yet we do nothing about it," he told a reporter recently. Noting that members of the SHSOL will be travelling to Switzerland later this year to erect a memorial to Holmes at the Reichenbach, he suggested that "it would be better to have a memorial down here," and asked "why put something up at the Falls, which is where Conan Doyle wanted to kill off the character?"
291. Prints of Douglas West's S'ian watercolors, sold at The Sherlock Holmes in London, are also available from John B. Taylor (Box 804, Midlothian, TX 76065); send a #10 SASE for his sales list.
292. BBC Radio 4 broadcast a new version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in two 60-minute episodes, on May 27 and June 3, with Roger Rees and Holmes and Crawford Logan as Watson. One reviewer (Nigel Andrew in The Listener on June 2) noted that Sherlockian actors now face a problem: "It is one thing to labour in the shadow of the definitive radio Holmes--Carleton Hobbs--but we are now in the age of Jeremy Brett, and all Sherlocks are inevitably going to be judged against his impossible standard," he wrote, suggesting that "doing Holmes today is about on a par with opening as Henry V while Olivier's film was still on general release."
293. "Holmes and the Ripper" is a new play by Brian Clemens, based on Stephen Knight's JACK THE RIPPER: THE FINAL SOLUTION, now touring Britain with Francis Matthews as Holmes and Frank Windsor as Watson, with the producers hoping to bring the play to London. Since the film "Murder by Decree" was also based on Knight's book, the play holds few surprises for Sherlockians.
-
294. Aug 88 #1: The latest issue (spring 1988) of The Pipe Smokers' Ephemeris is unique in containing 58 pages and only a few quite minor mentions of Sherlock Holmes, a situation that arises because all of the Sherlockian material is being held for the next issue. The Ephemeris is an irregular publication for pipe smokers, available without charge (though contributions are gratefully accepted) from Tom Dunn (20-37 120th Street, College Point, NY 11356).
295. One of those minor mentions is a handsome poster (21 x 32 inches) promoting National Pipe Smoker's Week (Mar. 13-20), available from the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America (attn: Malcolm Fleischer), The Atrium, 55 Maple Avenue, Rockville Centre, NY 11570.
296. Reported from England: THE SUPERNATURAL TALES OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Peter Haining (Foulsham, £12.95). And a British edition of HOUND DUNNIT, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin Harry Greenberg, and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (Robson, £10.95); a collection that includes "Silver Blaze" and Rex Stout's allusional "The Dog in the Daytime".
297. Paul S. Clarkson ("The Red Leech") died on June 30, after a long illness. He was one of the founders (Napoleon II) of The Six Napoleons of Baltimore, and Gasogene I of the scion, and a fine Sherlockian: he received his BSI Investiture in 1956, and the Two-Shilling Award in 1976.
298. SEINE ABSCHIEDSVORSTELLUNG is the latest (and last) addition to the nine-volume series of new German translations of the Canon from Haffmans Verlag (Feb 88 #5 and Apr 88 #3). The new volume costs DM 30.00 and is available from the publisher (Hubenstrasse 19, CH-8057 Zurich, Switzerland).

299. "The Great Mouse Detective" was, as I recall, pulled from theaters after grossing $20 million in eight weeks in 1986, considered to be a box-office failure. Perhaps it was: Disney's current reissue of "Bambi" grossed $25 million in two-and-a-half weeks. "Bambi" is, by the way, a beautiful film and a splendid demonstration of the skill of the Disney animators. You may, of course, wish to find a small child to use as an excuse to see the film. If necessary, rent one.
300. Richard and Cynthia Wein have visited the Walt Disney World Village and The Grosvenor Resort and its Baskervilles restaurant (which is fully decorated with reproductions of S'ian artwork) and the reproduction of the sittingroom (which is rather cramped). The restaurant's menu is called the Baker Street Gazette Journal, with the front page full of error-filled articles based on items in Peter Haining's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SCRAPBOOK. The hotel address is: Walt Disney World Village, Lake Buena Vista, FL 32830.
301. Further to our report (Jul 88 #6) on the demise of Sherlock's Pub in Perry Hall, Md., it should be noted that this is not the only S'ian establishment to have run afoul of the laws controlling the sale of cocaine. The Baker Street Restaurant & Pub in Greeley, Colo., had the same problem in 1977.
302. Since The Practical, But Limited, Geologists dined at that restaurant in Nov. 1976, there may be only one Sherlockian who can boast (if that's the proper word) of having visited both of these now-vanished S'ian landmarks.
-
303. Aug 88 #2: While waiting for someone to discover a Canonical connection for the two presidential candidates, or a Canonical reference in one of their political speeches, it should be noted that Michael Dukakis does have a Sherlockian connection: he was a classmate, at Harvard Law School, of Judge Albert M. Rosenblatt.
304. But other politicians, of course, are not neglecting Sherlock Holmes. Tom O'Day has provided a Congressional Record report that Rep. Dennis E. Eckart (D-OH) discussed "George Bush: A Man of Absence" on Aug. 3, suggesting that "When the critical decisions are being made--on whether to veto the defense bill or Grove City, on arms sales to the Ayatollah, on the failed drug war --George Bush is noticeably absent, always. Like Groucho Marx singing 'I'm afraid I must be going', like Monty Python screaming 'run away', like the dog that didn't bark; like invisible ink; like Claude Raines or the invisible rabbit 'Harvey'."
305. It's not necessary to travel to Britain and Switzerland to find important Sherlockian sites marked by commemorative plaques. At hand from Bob Katz is an article by Joan Barbato in the Morris County Daily Record (July 24), about the plaque affixed to the outer wall of 221B Baker Street, now a guest cottage on property owned by Herbert Epstein, but formerly the office and official address of Edgar W. Smith in Morristown, N.J. Baker Street is a lane off Lake Road, and when Edgar discovered that the lane had no name he obtained township and post office approval for the address.
306. The proprietor of The Pequod Press is in no danger of being accused of using cold type: BAKER STREET BABYLON is now available, hot on the heels of A BAKER STREET GALLERY. BAKER STREET BABYLON is described as a "Conanical chorea" of 25 new Sherlockian quatrains inspired by a fit of scholarship or creative frenzy, or perhaps both. Available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.00 (cloth) or $14.00 (paper).
307. THE BAKER STREET READER: CORNERSTONE WRITINGS ABOUT SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Philip A. Shreffler and published in 1984, is a fine anthology of what one reviewer called "the essential issues of historical hagiography." And it is now available at a discount (until Oct. 31) from the Greenwood Press, 88 Post Road West, Box 5007, Westport, CT 06881; $19.95 plus $2.00 shipping (and they take plastic). Recommended.
308. Ken Greenwald of 221 "A" Baker Street Associates writes that their next reissue of hitherto-unavailable Rathbone-Bruce radio shows will be an audio cassette with "The Viennese Strangler" and "The Notorious Canary Trainer" (distributed by Simon and Schuster and available in Nov. 1988 at $9.95). As with their 1987 record album, these will be 1945 broadcasts from scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, and there will be new introductions by series producer Glenhall Taylor. Ken has also written a book of pastiches based on 13 of the Green-Boucher radio scripts, with publication planned in mid-1989.
309. Scott and Sherry Rose Bond will teach a four-week course ("Elementary, My Dear Holmes!") for the Community College of Philadelphia on Wednesday evenings beginning Sept. 28. Registration information available from the CCP, 1700 Spring Garden Street, Philadelphia, PA 19130 (215-751-8380).
-
310. Aug 88 #3: The identification, by Humphrey Morton and The Milvertonians of Hampstead, of Appledore Towers as "The Logs" (built in 1868 by J. S. Nightingale on the edge of Hampstead Heath) is sufficiently official to be recognized in THE STREETS OF HAMPSTEAD: A SURVEY OF THEIR ORIGINS AND NAMES, THEIR HISTORIC HOUSES AND FAMOUS RESIDENTS, compiled by Christopher Wade and published in 1972 by the High Hill Press for the Camden History Society. "The original residence," the guidebook suggests, "is thought to be the setting of the Sherlock Holmes story about the dastardly Charles Augustus Milverton."
311. Check your jigsaw-puzzle shops. Paul Herbert reports two puzzles, titled LONDON and THE VICTORIAN AGE, each with 1,000 pieces and including a small picture of Holmes, and priced at $41.75. The company is Mandolin Puzzles (9 Elia Street, London N1 8DE, England), and their catalog costs £1.00.
312. Melissa Ennis (4627 South 36th Street, Arlington, VA 22206) offers made-to-order deerstalkers in genuine Harris tweed wool (heathery brown, gray, green, or blue) at $42.50 postpaid, and (for those heading for the tropics) in non-Canonical cotton (khaki or houndstooth check) at $32.50 postpaid. Write to Melissa for a copy of her flier.
313. Orion Pictures reports that "Without a Clue" will open "wide" on Oct. 21, probably in theaters that are now showing Orion's "Married to the Mob" (and if you go to see "Married to the Mob" you may also get to see the trailer for "Without a Clue") (which is the new title for "Sherlock and Me").
314. Spotted by Jon Lellenberg in Publishers Weekly (Aug. 5, 1988): "Sherlock and Me", an audio novelization by Bennett Cohen, read by Ben Kingsley on two cassettes (3 hours), $14.95, due in September from Dove Books on Tape (12711 Ventura Boulevard #250, Studio City, CA 91604); the cassette title may, of course, be changed to match the new name of the film.
315. The extensive Sherlockian collection of the late Robert R. Patrick (cofounder of The Trained Cormorants of Los Angeles County) is available for purchase, preferably as a single collection, according to Don Hardenbrook, who is assisting Mrs. Patrick with the sale; a 27-page description of the collection is available from Don Hardenbrook, 7208 Premium Street, Long Beach, CA 90808.
316. Flier at hand from Timothy E. Liebe (212 West 91st Street #720, New York, NY 10024) for "That's Elementary!" (a videocassette of The Friends of Bogie's at Baker Street in Sherlockian performance); $33.00 postpaid in VHS or Beta.
317. Plans for John Bennett Shaw's sea-going workshop on a cruise liner are now firmly afoot (or adeck, if you want to be precise). The unofficial titles ("Ship of Fools" and "No Ship, Sherlock") have been rejected, and "Shaw at Sea" will be held on the S.S. Galileo, sailing from New York on Sunday, July 23, 1989, bound for Bermuda, and returning on Friday, July 28. The outside-cabin price is $725 per person (exclusive of gratuities, shore excursions, baggage handling, and "purchases of a personal nature such as shag or champagne"), and a flier is available from Mary Ellen Rich (Lifeco Travel, 845 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022).
-
318. Aug 88 #4: The Valley Railroad (Box 542, Essex, CT 06426) (203-767-0103) has scheduled an "Adventure Aboard the Aberdonian Arrow" on Sept. 10, featuring Sherlock Holmes in an on-the-rails mystery excursion that will cost $85.00 a person (including dinner at O'Brannigan's in Old Saybrook). The

- Valley Railroad is a nicely restored steam line in the Connecticut Valley, where some years ago The Cornish Horrors chartered the train for a meeting that featured Chris Steinbrunner's appropriate on-board screening of Basil Rathbone's "Terror by Night".
319. Delia Vargas reports a Sherlockian silhouette on the inside of the front cover of the Aug. 1988 issue of Travel & Leisure -- people who charge their vacations on their American Express cards often get the magazine.
320. Computerized Sherlockiana is ready for the next step: CD-ROM. That's an abbreviation for Compact Disc-Read Only Memory, a technology that uses a compact disc (similar to the audio discs), and a special player and an adapter card that allows your computer to read text and artwork from the disc. One disc will hold 550 megabytes (equivalent to about 1,200 floppy disks) (or about 250,000 pages of text). And CMC ReSearch, a company in Denver, is preparing to use the new technology to make medical journals available on CD-ROM. Their first test-version disc will include THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES (full text, indexed, from Bob Stek's floppy-disk version), MEDICAL CASEBOOK OF DOCTOR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (the 1984 book written by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key), and artwork (illustrations by Sidney Paget and others). Many libraries have CD-ROM players (BOOKS IN PRINT, the Grolier Encyclopedia, and the Oxford English Dictionary are a few of the books that have been published on CD-ROM discs).
321. Alan Napier died on Aug. 8. He began his career with the Oxford Players in England, along with Lawrence Olivier and John Gielgud, acted on stage in London and New York, and went to Hollywood in 1939, starring in movies that included "The Invisible Man Returns", "The Cat People", and "Lassie Come Home". In 1949 he starred as Sherlock Holmes in a 30-minute version of "The Adventure of the Speckled Band" broadcast by NBC-TV. And he then went on to true fame as Alfred, the butler, in the "Batman" television series.
322. The second issue of Anglofile continues its detailed coverage of British television, films, and books, with brief reports on Sherlockiana (books, audio, and video), and a report that "Mystery!" will begin its next season of PBS-TV on Sept. 1 with Roy Marsden as Inspector Dalglish in "Cover Her Face" (meaning that we will be waiting at least until October for the new Sherlock Holmes programs). The eight-page journal costs $10.00 a year for six issues, from the Goody Press, Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033.
323. Anglofile also reports that Thames TV is producing "Charlie the Kid", the story of Charlie Chaplin's childhood in South London. Joe Geary will play Chaplin from ages 11 to 15, from which we might infer that we will see him as Billy (he first played the role in Saintsbury's touring production of the Gillette play, opening at the Pavilion Theatre in London in July 1903).
324. Incidental intelligence: Mel Martin, who will appear with Marsden in "Cover Her Face", played Alice Faulkner in the Royal Shakespeare Company revival of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" in Washington and New York in 1974-1975.
-
325. Aug 88 #5: The Six Napoleons and The Carlton Club will present their ninth annual "Weekend with Sherlock Holmes" at the Enoch Pratt Free Library (at 400 Cathedral Street) in Baltimore on November 19 and 20, with the festivities beginning at 10:00 am on Saturday and at 2:00 pm on Sunday. The schedule includes the usual series of short papers, a slide show, a dramatic presentation, and a screening of Basil Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles". As usual, there will be no charge for admission.
326. More philatelic roses for the Sherlockian botanists (the Canon contains mentions of a moss-rose and a sulphur rose, as well as rosebushes and rose-water. The roses on the new "Love" stamp (for use on two-ounce letters) have not been identified by the postal service.
327. Jean Upton (102 Woodland Road, Wyncote, PA 19095) offers "The Baker Street Folio" at $29.00 postpaid. Eight Sherlockian prints, on heavy stock, and an illustrated flier is available from Jean.
328. The new stamp honoring the 200th anniversary of statehood for New York also has Canonical connections, since there are many references to New York City, as well as Brooklyn, Buffalo, Long Island, and Palmyra.
329. Spoken Arts (Box 289, New Rochelle, NY 10802) issued its first S'ian filmstrip-audiocassette set for grades 5-12 in 1977, and now three sets are available (each with four cases) at $139.95 per set. SHERLOCK HOLMES CLIFFHANGERS is a good example of how the Canon can be used to stimulate class discussion, and some thinking by students: there is a teacher's guide, and the four stories (Musg, Prio, Norw, Iden) are adapted by Beth Meacham and dramatized on the cassettes, and illustrated by Al Wenzel on the filmstrips.
330. A new flier at hand from Chris Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804), offering a wide variety of Sherlockian collectibles.
331. TRAVEL ALBERTA WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES is a twenty-page pamphlet prepared by Gerald F. O'Hara for those who wish to follow Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's 1914 trail through the province. Available from Gerry at 3912 - 115A Street, Edmonton, Alta. T6J 1R1, Canada; no charge.
332. Mailing at hand from Peter E. Melonas (Sherlock Holmes Tobacco and Mystery Shop, 1726-A Sycamore Square Mall, Memphis, TN 38134), offering Sherlockian posters, prints, pipes, buttons, and other collectibles, including the VHS video game VCR 221 B BAKER STREET (Jan 88 #6).
333. "The Oprah Winfrey Show" broadcast on July 12 was devoted to "Fictional Personalities" and included an appearance by Sean Wright ("real-life Sherlock Holmes"). The transcript (#W477) is available for $3.00 from Journal Graphics (267 Broadway, New York, NY 10007), and includes Sean's statement that "John Kennedy was a member here in Chicago of the Hounds of the Baskervilles."
-
334. Aug 88 #6: The Christopher Morley Knothole Association held a dinner in Glen Head, N.Y., on Aug. 23, with a menu that included soup (Lippincott Stockpot) and ribs (Sherlock Holmes and the Adventure of the Missing Rib). The CMKA does fine work in keeping an eye on The Knothole (the rustic cabin where Morley wrote many of his stories and essays), and in generating interest in his work; membership costs $10.00 a year (the CMKA's address is: Bryant Library, Paper Mill Road, Roslyn, NY 11576).
335. The N.Y. Times Book Review will publish its first annual "Crime/Mystery" feature on Oct. 9, presenting "reviews, essays, excerpts, and interviews" (and, possibly, a mention of Sherlock Holmes).
336. Roger Johnson reports that Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke will open in Jeremy Paul's play "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" in Guildford on Aug. 30, moving to Richmond on Sept. 17. This is the play that Brett commissioned from Paul, who dramatized three of the programs in the Granada series, and the "Conan Doyle" program in the 1972 series "The Edwardians". Late news: the play will open at Wyndham's Theatre in London on Sept. 22.
337. HARRINGTON'S CANONICAL INDEX, compiled and published by Hugh T. Harrington (1634 Sherwood Avenue NW, Massillon, OH 44646; 133 pp., $22.00 postpaid), is a selective concordance as well as an index, keyed to the 1961 Doubleday edition. Page numbers (but not case names) are given for all occurrences of the words and phrases selected for the concordance.
338. AS VIDAS PARALELAS DE SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Joel Lima (Lisboa: Livros do Brasil, 1987; 326 pp., $15.00 postpaid from the author, Largo do Mastro 29-3, Porta D, 1100 Lisboa, Portugal) is an interesting anthology devoted to "The Parallel Lives of Sherlock Holmes", and it will undoubtedly do much to generate additional enthusiasm for the Canon among Portuguese readers. The book has 208 pp. of comment by Lima on Conan Doyle and on the Canon, followed by translations of parodies and pastiches and commentary that range from "The Field Bazaar" to the exchange between Rex Stout and Julian Wolff on Watson's gender. A second volume will be published this year.

339. Images of Sherlock Holmes (5005 Bryant Avenue South #117, Minneapolis, MN 55419) has a new sales list, with some VHS cassettes and an announcement of a 1989 Sherlockian calendar.
340. "Britannia's waves of bitter and stout flowed unabated" on Aug. 22, the Associated Press reported, with a bit of exaggeration. But the licensing laws imposed in 1915 have been changed, and pubs, wine bars, and hotel bars are no longer required to stop serving alcohol between 3:00 and 5:30 pm on weekdays. The Sherlock Holmes, by way of celebrating the longer opening hours, began serving traditional afternoon cream teas ("scones, strawberry jam, the works"). The pub will be "more of a coffee shop in the afternoon than a drinking house," said manager John Williams.
341. Ann Byerly reports that Random House has purchased the Crown Publishing Group, which includes Avenel, Castle, and the many other imprints of the Outlet Book Co., as well as Publishers Central Bureau. The purchase is expected to be completed by Sept. 30, and Random House will then be the largest trade-book publishing company in the United States.
-
342. Sep 88 #1: "The 9.5% Solution" is the slogan on a 15x34-inch Sherlockian poster advertising the "Family Education Loan" offered by the Massachusetts Education Loan Authority. Copies may still be available from the MELA, 711 Atlantic Avenue, Boston, MA 02111.
343. It was at the third pillar from the left outside the Lyceum Theatre that Mary Morstan was directed to meet her unknown benefactor, and an argument is now raging in London over the future of the historic but now-derelict theater. According to a report by Andrew Billen in The Times (July 20, 1988), the London Residuary Body (the successor to the Greater London Council) has sold a 150-year lease on the building to a company that plans to turn the Lyceum into a London version of the Paris Lido (a "tits and bum" cabaret, one angry opponent suggested). Proposals to restore the building to theater use, including one from Andrew Lloyd-Webber's Really Useful Company, were rejected by the London Residuary Board, who accepted a highest-bid lease offer reported to be as high as £9 million. The present building, which dates from 1904, is not the one that Holmes and Watson visited with Mary Morstan, but the site is certainly an important one to Sherlockians. It was also at the old Lyceum, then managed by Henry Irving, that William Gillette gave 213 performances as Sherlock Holmes in 1901-02, and it was the theater where Irving appeared in six different productions of Conan Doyle's play "Waterloo" from 1895 to 1902.
344. Kyle Richeson reports that THE SECRET FILES OF SOLAR PONS will be the third volume of Solar Pons pastiches by Basil Copper to be published by Academy Chicago in paperback ($5.95), with old stories revised from their original appearances in the Pinnacle paperbacks. SOME UNCOLLECTED CASES OF SOLAR PONS will follow, and Copper is working on two more volumes of new stories.
345. Kyle also reports that Great Britain now has its first mystery-specialist bookshop: Murder One, at 23 Denmark Street (off Charing Cross Road). The shop will stock both current and out-of-print titles, as well as magazines, posters, and video.
346. Miriam Jordan died on Dec. 4. She made her stage debut in London in 1927, came to the United States, in 1929 was offered a contract by the Fox Film Corp. -- and she played Alice Faulkner in "Sherlock Holmes" (1932).
347. Delia Vargas reports that Eugene Commander (Little Thumb's Connoisseur Pipe Rack, 311 Main Street, West Dennis, MA 02670) sells shag tobacco (and has a Sherlockian sketch on the cover of his flier).
348. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES was a big seller for Carroll & Graf last year, according to Herman Graf, and the book also saw a "tremendous" amount of overseas sales. There will be a trade paperback this fall.
349. Ray Eames died on Aug. 21. She and her husband Charles Eames (who died in 1978) were talented designers, perhaps most famous for their "Eames Chair". They also designed the Sherlockian puppet show "The Singular Case of the Plural Green Mustache" for the IBM Pavilion at the 1964-65 New York World's Fair, and produced the film of the puppet show; the film is available from Video Specialists International (182 Jackson Street, Dallas, PA 19612) in the video cassette "Sherlock Holmes: The Later Years".
-
350. Sep 88 #2: If you were unable to find a copy of Frank Thomas' pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASQUERADE MURDERS (BSJ Mar 87), I now have a supply available at $6.00 postpaid. These copies surely hold some sort of distance record: when Medallion Books went out of business, their stock was sold to a discounter who shipped it off to Australia, whence my supply has now been shipped back. That's at least 18,000 miles by air, and much more by sea (which is how they traveled). Some copies are the second printing; let me know if you would prefer one of these (a second printing is less glamorous, but in this case also less common).
351. MYSTERIES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, adapted by Judith Conaway and illustrated by Lyle Miller, has three stories (Spec, RedH, Blue) and was first published in 1982; it's now available as a "Step-Up Classic Chiller" with a new cover (New York: Random House, 1988; 95 pp., $1.95).
352. Keep an eye on your PBS-TV stations for 13 "lost episodes" of "Upstairs, Downstairs" that were aired in Britain but not in the United States. Five of the episodes were filmed in black-and-white because of a strike by the cameramen, and the other eight were considered then to be too shocking for American audiences, who are now apparently sophisticated enough to accept some rather risqué plot elements. In "The Magic Casements", one of the eight suppressed episodes, Lady Marjorie commits adultery with a British army officer. And in one of the "downstairs" scenes, Mr. Hudson (Gordon Jackson), tells the gossiping servants: "You ought to start an agency for minding other people's business! You'd have Sherlock Holmes beat any day!"
353. Marina Stajic reports that the snack-packs available for purchase SAS flights include "Mysterielada" (described by the airline as "400 gram segt godis att njuta av medan du funderar over 10 sega gator pa asken. Knepigst, knapigt tidsfordriv pa planet och i hemmet.") "Mysterielada" is a box of candy, with an elephant in Sherlockian costume on the top of the box, and some children's games on the bottom.
354. Forecast: an OLD POSSUM'S BOOK OF PRACTICAL CATS CALENDAR/DIARY FOR 1989, illustrated by Edward Gorey, $9.00; perhaps with a portrait of Macavity.
355. Reported by Bob Burr: a colored poster of "Slylock Fox" (from the Sunday children's cartoon) is available from Bob Weber, Jr., Box 96, Green Farms, CT 06436. North Point Press, which issued the $17.50 reprint of the Arion Press fine-press edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, now offers a paperback for $10.95. THE ROYAL FLUSH (Sherlock Holmes Solo Mystery #7) will be the last in the series from Berkley/Iron Crown.
356. Reports persist that Basil Rathbone's autobiography IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER has been reprinted by Buccaneer Books. The publisher has written to me: "Sorry, still no reprint schedule."
357. Lenny Picker reports a Publishers Weekly report that Limelight Editions is planning to reprint Basil Rathbone's IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER. Limelight published the revised and expanded 1987 edition of Maurice Zolotow's BILLY WILDER IN HOLLYWOOD, and their books are distributed by Harper & Row, so I have far more hopes of seeing the Rathbone autobiography from Limelight than from Buccaneer Books.
-
358. Sep 88 #3: 30 DUKE STREET: LA PENULTIMA AVVENTURA DI SHERLOCK HOLMES, by John R. Watson (Milano: Edizione Rosa & Nero, 1987; 142 pp., £16,000), is a new pastiche. "I protagonisti: Sherlock e Mycroft Holmes, Alfred e Mary Dunhill, John Watson, Winston Churchill, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle e signora, Bill Carter, l'ispettore Lestrade, il barone von Bork, una misteriosa signora in rosso..." Publisher's address: via Madre Cabrini 9, Milano, Italy.
359. In MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES, Conan Doyle mentions "a townlet in Shropshire which rejoiced in the extraordinary name of Ruyton-of-the-eleven-towns," where he spent four months in 1878 as an unpaid medical-student assistant to a Dr. Elliot. "It was not big enough to make one town," he

- wrote, "far less eleven," but the town is still there, and so is the house in which he lived. RUYTON XI TOWNS: UNUSUAL NAME, UNUSUAL HISTORY, by Yoland Brown (Studley: Brewin Books, 1988; 166 pp., £7.95), discusses his stay in Ruyton and includes a photograph of Cliffe House; the book is available for £8.75 postpaid from the publisher (Doric House, Church Street, Studley, Warwickshire B80 7LG, England).
360. Copies of John Michael Gibson's facsimile of BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL are now arriving in the mail, and it is a truly handsome production. The delay (caused by Gibson's insistence on high quality) was thoroughly justified by the quality that was achieved.
361. By way of response to questions on how to distinguish a facsimile from an original, the covers are easy to identify: the photographic process used for the cover of the facsimile has a constant pattern of tiny dots that is seen most easily in the white areas of the cover, while the engraved cover of the original lacks these dots. It is, however, possible that text and advertising pages from a facsimile might be used to "make good" a defective copy of an original. One should remember that Latin is used for *caveat emptor* because the warning dates from the days of ancient Rome, and at the price of an original of BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL, the only defense against fraud is your own expertise, the reputation of the dealer, a demonstrable provenance, and laboratory testing of the paper and ink.
362. At hand from Richard R. Rutter: DAS SHERLOCK-HOLMES-BUCH, edited by Martin Compart (Frankfurt am Main: Ullstein, 1987; 116 pp., DM 9.80); a centenary celebration, with sections on "Der Mythos Sherlock Holmes", "Die Sherlock-Holmes-Bibliographie", and "Sherlock Holmes in audiovisuellen Medien".
363. And SHERLOCK ARISTOTELES is the title of the German translation (Goldmann Verlag, 1988) of Margaret Doody's ARISTOTLE DETECTIVE (1978).
364. Nikki Caparn, Sherlock Holmes' new secretary at the Abbey National Building Society, is getting plenty of publicity, including an article in Pravda in Dec. 1987. She is using new stationery, and has a new eight-page pamphlet to send to people who write to Sherlock Holmes.
365. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett recently issued recommendations for a model elementary-school curriculum, including a suggested reading list. "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" was included in the recommendations for grades 7 and 8.
-
366. Sep 88 #4: "Sherlock!", a new musical with music and lyrics by Leslie Bricusse, was first rumored in 1975, and scheduled (but not produced) at the Chichester Festival Theatre in 1987. Now Bricusse's "Sherlock Holmes" is announced for the Northcott Theatre in Exeter from Oct. 18 to Nov. 19, with Ron Moody as Holmes.
367. Sherlock Holmes will be the sixth doll in a "Folk Heroes" series designed by Annalee Thorndike for members of the Annalee Doll Society. Membership costs $19.95, and the doll will cost $129.50 postpaid, and a color brochure is available from the society (Box 1137, Meredith, NH 03253).
368. Sherry Baker (in Omni, May 1988) quotes the Tehran newspaper Kayhan for a report on the discovery in Iran of giant rats that weigh an average of 26 pounds and are killing and devouring cats. Some of the rats have unusually long legs and hop like kangaroos.
369. There are still many readers whose first true reading-for-pleasure was in the pages of the pulp magazines, which are now hard-to-find collectibles, both for their vividly-colored covers, and for first or early appearances by many distinguished authors. Detective Story Magazine, first published in 1915, was the earliest detective pulp, followed by hundreds of other titles, and the stories in those magazines have been indexed in MYSTERY, DETECTIVE, AND ESPIONAGE FICTION: A CHECKLIST OF FICTION IN THE U.S. PULP MAGAZINES, 1815-1974, by Michael L. Cook and Stephen T. Miller (New York: Garland, 1988; two vols., 1,183 pp., $102 postpaid from the publisher, at 136 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016). The result is a fine reference work, for collectors and researchers, and our own special interests have not been neglected: Solar Pons first appeared in the Feb. 1929 issue of Dagnet, and Conan Doyle's "Some Personalia About Sherlock Holmes" was quickly reprinted (as "An Intimate Study of Sherlock Holmes") in 1918 in Detective Story Magazine. Future volumes in the series will cover sports, war, adventure, science fiction, fantasy, and other categories.
370. A new "Holmes for the Holidays" sales list at hand from Ilene Fauer (US 2, 563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652), with S'ian address books, holiday cards, story buttons, and items from past lists.
371. Also a flier from Scotland Yard Books (556 Green Bay Road, Winnetka, IL 60093), showing their new Sherlockian bookplates, with four different Sidney Paget designs.
372. Lenny Picker reports (from the N.Y. Times, Aug. 12) that George MacDonald Fraser (author of the "Flashman" novels) is adapting Dumas' "Twenty Years After" for a film "The Return of the Musketeers" (as a sequel to "The Three Musketeers" and "The Four Musketeers") -- and that he is adapting "The Lost World" for a new television version.
373. Also from Lenny: THOSE WHO WALK THE NIGHT, a novel by Barbara Hambly about vampires in Sherlock Holmes' London, is forecast from Del Rey in November.
374. And (for those who thought they recognized Lucretia Venucci in the Granada version of "The Six Napoleons"): Marina Sirtis also plays Deanna Troi, the half-human empath, in "Star Trek: The Next Generation".
-
375. Sep 88 #5: SPIES AND SLEUTHS: MYSTERY, SPY AND SUSPENSE FILMS ON VIDEOCASSETTE (Evanston: Cinebooks, 1988; 211 pp., $8.95) offers a Foreword by Michael Caine and synopses, lists of cast and credits, and appraisals of more than 400 films, from "The Cat and the Canary" (1927) to "The Big Easy" (1987); 17 Sherlockian films, from "A Study in Scarlet" (1939) to "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985) are included. Available from the publisher (900 Grove Street, Evanston, IL 60201).
376. Econo-Clad Books (Box 1777, Topeka, KS 66601) is promoting its books with a 35x22-inch calendar-poster ("1988-89 School Year: We've Got You Covered"); with a photograph of a student in Sherlockian costume.
377. Admirers of Dr. Fatso's accounts of the adventures of Turlock Loams who have been eagerly awaiting the stories of the frail codger, the Muscatel ritual, and the frying detective are waiting still, but THE ADVENTURE OF THE CHEESEMONGER'S BARK has been announced by the Pequot Press ($29.50 cloth or $14.50 paper, from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707). For the benefit of new readers, these are witty parodies, and the books are fine examples of the best of fine-press printing in the Sherlockian world, published in editions that sometimes exceed 100 copies.
378. A new illustrated catalog at hand from Carolyn Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 10958, Cincinnati, OH 45219), showing her knitted Sherlockian scarves, sweaters, and neckties.
379. My copy of the "Trilogy Dinner" issue of Ellery Queen's THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has Nathan L. Bengis' pencilled note that there were five printings of the book: Mar. 1944, Apr. 1944, May 1944, Oct. 1944, and Feb. 1945. I have not seen or heard of a copy from any of the last three printings; does anyone have one? It is not all that unusual, of course, for a later printing to be much scarcer than a first printing.
380. "The Latter Day Saints were as busy as the bees whose hive they have chosen for their emblem," and the honeybee (*Apis mellifera*) appears on our new coil stamp.
381. MYSTERIOUS SEA STORIES, edited by William Patrick (New York: Dell, 1987; 246 pp., $3.50), is a fine collection of tales by master story-tellers in a long-neglected genre. Conan Doyle's contribution is "J. Habakuk Jephson's Statement", and W. Clark Russell, one of Watson's favorites, is represented by "A Bewitched Ship".

382. FREDDY THE DETECTIVE AND SELECTED POEMS OF FREDDY THE PIG, by Walter R. Brooks, performed by Pat Carroll on an audio cassette (New York: Caedmon, 1982; $9.98); contents include "Freddy's First Case" and "Vacation Song", and the cover art by Allan Eitzen shows Freddy in Sherlockian costume.
383. Reported: RASPUTIN'S REVENGE, by John T. Lescroart, a paperback reprint from Leisure Books, $3.50. This sequel to SON OF HOLMES brings Auguste Lupa (whose passport is in the name of John Hamish Adler Holmes) to St. Petersburg in 1916, attempting to solve a complicated series of murders, accused of espionage, rescued by his father, and eventually successful in solving the mystery.
-
384. Sep 88 #6: The spring 1988 issue of The Gazette: The Journal of The Wolfe Pack is a theme issue concentrating on Nero Wolfe's birth and heritage, with (as might be expected) considerable discussion and debate about John D. Clark's proposal that Sherlock Holmes and Irene Adler had some connection to the blessed event. The address for The Wolfe Pack is Box 822, Ansonia Station, New York, NY 10023, and membership costs $20.00 a year (I don't know what single issues of The Gazette cost).
385. At last: a broadcast schedule for the new Granada series on PBS-TV: "The Sign of Four" in two parts on Oct. 27 and Nov. 3, "The Devil's Foot" on Nov. 10, "Silver Blaze" on Nov. 17, "The Bruce-Partington Plans" on Nov. 24, "Wisteria Lodge" on Dec. 1, and "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on Dec. 8 (possibly in two parts concluding Dec. 15).
386. A videotape-alert from Richard Wein: "Murder, She Wrote" will begin on USA cable on Oct. 3. If the programs run in their original order, the first one will be "The Murder of Sherlock Holmes".
387. The Arion Press limited edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with photographs by Michael Kenna, was first published in 1985 at $300.00 (BSJ Dec 85), and reprinted in a trade edition in 1986 at $16.50 by North Point Press. A new edition, in paper covers, will be available in October for $10.95 from the publisher (850 Talbot Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94706).
388. Further to the list of Sherlockian audio cassettes (Apr 88 #2), Martha Irish reports that THE CASE BOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (four stories, Robert Hardy) is also available from Audio Editions (Box 998, Burlingame, CA 90411) (800-231-4261); $16.95 plus shipping, and they take plastic. And Audio Book Contractors (Box 40115, Washington, DC 20016) offers THE EXPLOITS OF BRIGADIER GERARD on six cassettes ($29.95 purchase or $9.95 rental, plus $2.50 shipping).
389. DEATH LOCKED IN, edited by Douglas G. Greene and Robert C. S. Adey (New York: International Polygonics, 1987; 553 pp., $12.95), is a fine anthology of locked-room mysteries (a genre that is much older than the detective story), and the selection includes "The Lost Special" (with an "amateur reasoner of some celebrity" whose thoroughly Sherlockian comments have led to the story's listing in our Apocryphal Canon).
390. International Polygonics also offers two 1988 reprints. ROCKET TO THE MORGUE, by Anthony Boucher (173 pp., $4.95), is a novel (first published in 1942) of "sudden death in the science-fiction set," about the murder of a Great Author's son who bears a striking resemblance to Adrian M. Conan Doyle; the book contains many thinly-veiled Canonical and Conanical references. THE TRACES OF BRILLHART (D4852b), by Herbert Brean (221 pp., $4.95), is a novel (first published in 1960) of "suspense, detection, and a curious immortality," with relevant Canonical quotations used as section headings.
391. Reported by Jack Kerr: THE BRITISH ARMY ON CAMPAIGN: 1882-1902, by Michael Barthorp, in Osprey's "Men at Arms" series ($8.95), with a color plate showing an officer of the 2nd Battalion of the Northumberland Fusiliers on the North West Frontier in 1888.
-
392. Oct 88 #1: Blackhawk Video was recently purchased by Lorimar, and is now The Blackhawk Catalog (5959 Triumph Street, Commerce, CA 90040) (800-826-2295), and their latest catalog includes two marginally Sherlockian "Our Gang" films: "Rushin' Ballet" (1937) and "Hide and Shriek" (1938). Also the serial "Daredevils of the Red Circle" (1939), which, except for its title, has absolutely no Canonical connection.
393. A non-Sherlockian friend reports recently riding in a taxi driven by a man who said that there were only four people in the Sherlock Holmes stories who smoked pipes. Who were they?
394. Reported by Jim Duval (from Comic Shop News): the new four-part comic-book series from Eternity begins in Dec. 1988. "A Case of Blind Fear" (written by Martin Powell and drawn by Seppo Makinen, who did "Scarlet in Gaslight") is "Holmes' most deadly case yet," according to Powell, with the detective battling the Invisible Man.
395. Bouchercon XX will be held in Philadelphia, presumably in Oct. 1989. If you would like to be on the mailing list, write to Jay and Deen Kogan, 242 Delancey Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
396. Charles Addams died on Sept. 29, ending a career that began when he sold his first cartoon to the New Yorker in 1935. The news serves as a reminder of the days when people listened to radio for something more than news and mood music, and Charles Addams gave readers of Life an artistic preview of nine radio mysteries scheduled for Feb. 15, 1948. The mysteries included the "Sherlock Holmes" series, with John Stanley and Alfred Shirley featured in a script by Edith Meiser about a case in which "a dog howls for its dead mistress as the women's brother conceals her body." The illustration was published in the Feb. 16, 1948, issue of Life. And the program was "The Adventure of Shoscombe Old Place".
-
397. Oct 88 #2: Taxi drivers are not always experts. There are at least seven people named in the Canon who smoked pipes (as you may have discovered from the entry for "tobacco" in Jack Tracy's THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA). Sherlock Holmes, of course. And Dr. Watson. John Straker smoked a pipe ("Silver Blaze"), as did Grant Munro ("The Yellow Face"). Isa Whitney smoked opium ("The Man with the Twisted Lip"). Thaddeus Sholto smoked a hookah ("The Sign of the Four"). And Peter Carey owned a tobacco pouch ("Black Peter"). But: who is the eighth person named in the Canon who appears to have smoked a pipe?
398. Harpies Bizarre are offering their second "Women's Holmes Companion" (a calendar for 1989, featuring Holmesian and Victorian women of note and notoriety). The calendar costs $8.95 postpaid from P. Moran, Box 854, Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02142.
399. The Franklin Library (Box 10250, Des Moines, IA 50380) is still promoting their "Mystery Masterpieces", with GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES as their free introductory offer (but succeeding volumes will cost $19.90 postpaid unless you cancel your subscription). GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (483 pp.) contains 19 of the 26 stories from the Franklin Library's THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D259b), with five new illustrations by Mitchell Hooks and a rear section reprinting many of Julian Wolff's Sherlockian maps. You may recall earlier mentions of the series (Apr 87 #1 and Sep 87 #6 and Feb 88 #3), when the price was $32.00 postpaid for succeeding volumes; this time there is no mention of full-leather binding. The promotion does, however, mention the Franklin Mystery Gazette ("a fascinating newsletter filled with mystery memorabilia, trivia, quizzes, quotes, and all sorts of intriguing surprises"), which will be sent free to all subscribers.
400. RASPUTIN'S REVENGE: THE FURTHER STARTLING ADVENTURES OF AUGUSTE LUPA--SON OF HOLMES, by John T. Lescroart (New York: Leisure Books, 1987; 285 pp., $3.50), is a paperback reprint of the sequel to SON OF HOLMES. Lupa (with a passport in the name of John Hamish Adler Holmes) is in St. Petersburg in 1916, investigating a series of murders, accused of espionage, rescued by his father, and eventually successful in solving the mystery.

401. I've had one report of a copy of the third printing of THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, and one copy of the fourth printing, but none of the fifth printing. Since the history of the book is still not known to everyone: in 1945, after MISADVENTURES had been published, despite Adrian's strenuous but futile objections, Fred Dannay discovered that his agent had failed to obtain full permission to reprint the Sherlockian material that had been included in 1941 in 101 YEARS' ENTERTAINMENT (D3215a). When Dannay told Adrian Conan Doyle about this unintentional infringement, Adrian threatened a lawsuit over 101 YEARS' ENTERTAINMENT unless Dannay agreed to suppress MISADVENTURES, and Dannay was forced to agree. And in later editions of 101 YEARS' ENTERTAINMENT (starting with the Garden City reprint in 1945), a Nick Carter story has been substituted for the Sherlockian material.
402. Discovered by Sherry Rose-Bond: a "Sherlock" thimble, hand-painted bone china, modeled after the pipe-in-the-ear character jugs, $14.95, on p. 13 of the current catalog from Gimbel & Sons Country Store, Box 57, Boothbay Harbor, ME 04538.
-
403. Oct 88 #3: Jim Browner ("The Cardboard Box") is the eighth person named in the Canon who appears to have smoked a pipe. Not because the cardboard box was a "yellow, half-pound honeydew box," since Browner could, after all, have found the box anywhere. There is, however, much better evidence. What is that better evidence?
404. There is an audio version of the new film "Without a Clue", adapted by Bennett Cohen and read by Ben Kingsley, in a boxed two-cassette set, with playing time of 2 hours, 40 minutes, available from Dove Books on Tape (12711 Ventura Boulevard #250, Studio City, CA 91640); $14.95 postpaid. Kingsley does a fine job with Watson and the other characters (including Michael Caine's occasional drunken cockney); I've not yet seen the film, which went to final edit after the adaptation was read and recorded, and it may well be that there are interesting differences between the film and the audio version.
405. Roger Johnson reports from England: "Direct from Jeremy Brett is the news that four more hour-long Sherlock Holmes plays are planned by Granada TV for 1989, with Brett and Edward Hardwicke."
406. The new catalog from The Mind's Eye (Box 6727, San Francisco, CA 94101) includes their new "BBC Audio Collection", which includes a two-cassette set from the "Sherlock Holmes Series" with Carlton Hobbs and Norman Shelley (RedH, Scan, Spec, Chas) at $14.95. Mind's Eye still offers six cassettes (each with two broadcasts from the Gielgud/Richardson series) at $7.95 each (or $35.00 for the complete set), and one cassette with "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (read by Richard Lewis and Rick Cimino) at $7.95.
407. There's a new edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (New York: Portland House Illustrated Classics, 1988; 249 pp., $9.98); basically a reprint of the first American edition, bound in bright blue-green cloth, with eight additional color illustrations by Sergio Martinez (nicely done) and a new Foreword by Ellen Dreyer. Portland House is a division of dilithium Press, and the book is distributed by Crown Publishers, so you can look for it on the discount tables.
408. Jack Kerr has sent a video catalog from Viewfinders (Box 1665, Evanston, IL 60204) (800-342-3342), a company that is essentially a mail-order retailer of other companies' cassettes, at list price plus shipping, and the catalog suggests that "Viewfinders can supply virtually any videocassette that is currently available" -- a service that might be useful to those who do not have a neighborhood video shop, let alone one that has a wide selection or that is willing to special-order cassettes on request.
409. OLD POSSUM'S BOOK OF PRACTICAL CATS CALENDAR FOR 1989 (Orlando: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1988; $8.95) is really an engagement book, with full-page illustrations by Edward Gorey (reprinted from the 1982 paperback), two for Macavity: The Mystery Cat, and two for Gus: The Theatre Cat.
410. Gunnar E. Sundin (Sherlock's Bookshop, 492 South First Avenue, Des Plaines, IL 60016) has a new catalog, offering reproductions of vintage Sherlockian maps and a poster for a 1912 production of "The Speckled Band", and his SHERLOCK'S LONDON TODAY: A WALKING TOUR OF THE LONDON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.
-
411. Oct 88 #4: The better evidence for Jim Browner being a pipe-smoker is in The Strand Magazine: the Sidney Paget portrait of Jim Browner shows him smoking a pipe. D. Martin Dakin seems to be the only person to have mentioned this in print (in A SHERLOCK HOLMES COMMENTARY).
412. The Oct. 1988 issue of The Robb Report (proudly subtitled "the magazine for connoisseurs") has a five-page article by Chris Caswell on Sherlockian collectibles, with many color illustrations, including a full-page front cover of Beeton's Christmas Annual. And another article about Wilderness Travel of Berkeley, Calif. (800-247-6700 or 415-548-0420), and their offer of a 20-day "Journey to the Lost World" (Mount Roraima in Venezuela) for $1,990 plus airfare. The magazine's address is: One Acton Place, Acton, MA 01720; $6.00.
413. BASIL OF BAKER STREET, by Eve Titus (New York: Pocket Books/Minstrel, 1988; 112 pp., $2.50), is a new trade-paperback edition, with new color cover art by Judith Sutton.
414. Douglas Elliott's THE CURIOUS INCIDENT OF THE MISSING LINK: ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE AND PILTDOWN MAN is a 36-page monograph that examines the evidence and summarizes the arguments (for and against) launched by John Hathaway Winslow's blunt announcement in 1983 that Conan Doyle was the perpetrator of the hoax. Available from The Bootmakers of Toronto, 47 Manor Road West, Toronto, Ont. M5P 1E6, Canada; $4.50 postpaid.
415. A four-page sales list of Sherlockiana (more than 250 items, plus issues of the BSJ) is available from Jim De Stefano, 231 Jericho Turnpike, New Hyde Park, NY 11040.
416. The Afghanistan Perceivers, who have in the past installed commemorative plaques honoring Murray, the Faithful Orderly (in Watson, Okla.), and Charlie Chaplin as Billy the Pageboy (in the Mayo Hotel in Tulsa), have joined forces with The Great Alkali Plainsmen and The Arkansas Valley Investors on a third plaque honoring Sherlock Holmes (in Altamont, Kans., where the mayor proclaimed July 23 to be "Sherlock Holmes Day").
417. Our new postal card shows the Hearst Castle at San Simeon. William Randolph Hearst owned at least three Sherlock Holmes manuscripts, but I don't know whether they were actually kept in the library at San Simeon. The three manuscripts were bought at auction in 1923: "Charles Augustus Milverton" ($70), "The Missing Three-Quarter" ($130), and "The Valley of Fear" ($275). The three manuscripts were sold to Scribner's in 1940 (as was the manuscript of "The Abbey Grange", which may have been purchased by Hearst at a different auction in 1923 for $105).
418. Those who more-or-less fondly remember the Royalton Hotel in New York can now stop by for a visit, since it is now open again, with restaurant, bar, snack bar ("a sushi bar without sushi"), library, game room, and furniture and interior architecture by Philippe Starck (described as the 39-year-old reigning superstar of French design). "We'll even offer homemade hot chocolate to make you feel comfortable," said one of the owners.
-
419. Oct 88 #5: The Sept. 1988 issue of Canadian Holmes is at hand, with much about Jack the Ripper, including a reprint from the July 4, 1894, issue of the [Portsmouth] Evening News of an article on "'Jack the Ripper.' How 'Sherlock Holmes' Would Have Tracked Him." "Dr. Conan Doyle," the article reports, "in an interview with an American journalist, has explained how 'Sherlock Holmes' would have set about the work of tracking the notorious Whitechapel miscreant." Does anyone know of a published report of that interview in an American newspaper or magazine in 1894?

420. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg, is now available in a trade-paperback edition (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1988; 345 pp., $8.95). The anthology was one of the landmarks of the centenary year (Sep 87 #6), with authors ranging from eminent to first-time-in-print, and it is recommended for its examples of how good an imaginative pastiche or parody can be.
421. Broadway playwright Edward Chodorov died on Oct. 9. He wrote, produced, or directed many plays (including "Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Oh Men! Oh Women!") and films (including "The Hucksters" and "The Story of Louis Pasteur"), and in 1941 he wrote a Sherlock Holmes play ("My Dear Watson") based on "A Scandal in Bohemia" and with appearances by Moriarty and A. Conan Doyle. Norman Schatell researched the play, which was commissioned New York producer Saint Suber (with encouragement from Denis Conan Doyle). The rights were acquired by Oscar Serlin, and then by Otto L. Preminger, and there were hopes for the play in 1942, but it was not produced (Basil Rathbone, Brian Aherne, and Philip Merivale were considered for the role of Holmes, and Nigel Bruce and Melville Cooper as Watson). "Adrian has read the Edward Chodorov play and is 'disgusted' with it," Basil Rathbone wrote to Vincent Starrett in 1951 (when Ouida Rathbone was working on her play). "He has absolutely forbidden its production."
422. Richard D. Lesh (620 Mathews Street #208, Fort Collins, CO 80524) has found a few copies of the handsome medal issued by The Maiwand Jezails in 1980 to commemorate the centenary of the Battle of Maiwand. The medal (photograph in the BSJ, Sept. 1982, p. 191) is silver-plate over bronze, green ribbon, $30.00 postpaid and insured. And his "cinderella" souvenir sheet honoring the fatal battle costs $1.50 postpaid.
423. The University of Minnesota Library continues to expand its collection, with its latest acquisition being the "Starrett Collection", which includes an apparently complete collection of Starrett's books, pamphlets, and other ephemera, and his correspondence.
424. Some of the university's Sherlockian publications are still available (from The Norwegian Explorers, 1473 Fulham Street, St. Paul, MN 55108; all prices postpaid) and of interest: MOULDING THE IMAGE: WILLIAM GILLETTE AS SHERLOCK HOLMES (1983), by Andrew Malec (an illustrated exhibition catalog; 16 pp., $3.00); A FIXED POINT IN A CHANGING WORLD (1984), by James P. Shannon (discussion of Philip S. Hench and his collection; 12 pp., $3.00); THE FREDERIC DORR STEELE MEMORIAL COLLECTION (1987), by Andrew Malec (an illustrated description; 20 pp., $3.00). Also: a decorative poster from the running of The Silver Blaze Cup at Canterbury Downs in Aug. 1988 ($5.00). And: HOLMES AWAY FROM HOME (1988), the Australian exhibition catalog (56 pp., $5.00).
-
425. Oct 88 #6: John Ruyle has made a Sherlockian discovery in the works of John Kendrick Bangs: a quotation from Holmes in the preface to the "Biographical Edition" of THE HOUSE-BOAT ON THE STYX (New York: Harper & Brothers, 1899). The nine-page preface offers "Some Comments upon the Asbestos Edition Published by Gutenberg, Plantin, & Caxton, of Cimmeria", and the comment by Sherlock Holmes is: "I fail to detect any humor in it, but give me time. I have a clew."
426. My report on John Michael Gibson's facsimile of BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL (Sep 88 #3) failed to include the fact that copies are still available, from David Kirby (Rupert Books, 59 Stonefield, Bar Hill, Cambridge CB3 8TE, England). Postpaid prices: $252.00 for the limited edition signed by Dame Jean Conan Doyle, or $49.50 for the regular edition.
427. Reported: trade-paperback edition of THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Vincent Starrett (New York: Mysterious Press, 1988; $8.95).
428. Hot Plates (Box 3167, Ogden UT 84409) offers "replica license plates" (full size, in plastic with raised printing) for any of the 50 states (but these are not a substitute for legal plates on your car), custom-made with up to ten characters, with frame, protective cover, and display stand/wall hanger -- for $18.95 postpaid to Sherlockians. Write for their flier.
429. A nine-minute recording of William Gillette as Sherlock Holmes, which was made in 1936 and was the source for the two-minute excerpt issued by The National Vocarium in 1939, was discovered in 1987 and played for The Baker Street Irregulars at the 1988 annual dinner. The recording has now been digitally re-mastered and is available on cassette from Paul Singleton (523 Central Avenue, Bethpage, NY 11714) for $6.00 postpaid (or $7.00 to Canada or $9.00 to other countries). Write to Paul for a flier, or the cassette.
430. Animation art seems to be one of the more popular collectibles now -- not cels from recent films such as "The Great Mouse Detective" (because there is no shortage of such material), but rather cels from older films such as "Fantasia" (because few cels were saved). A collection of early material was sold at Christie's in New York in 1986, and prices were spectacular: $24,200 for a cel from the first Mickey Mouse color cartoon ("The Band Concert", 1935) and $30,800 for a cel showing the wicked witch in "Snow White". And there are companies catering to this market, such as Supercels (1440 Kennedy Causeway, North Bay Village, FL 33141), seeking both sellers and buyers. Fortunately (or unfortunately, depending on one's point of view) there are no Sherlockian characters in "Fantasia" or "Pinocchio".
431. The Langham Hotel, mentioned three times in the Canon, was used for many years by BBC Radio and then offered for sale (Sep 86 #4). Now 125 years old, the Langham will be a hotel again: a £50 million facelift is underway for Hilton International.
432. Visitors to London will soon also be able to visit Nevill's Baths (the "Northumberland Avenue establishment" where Holmes and Watson indulged their weakness for the Turkish bath). The building, in Charing Cross, is now a branch of Barclay's bank, and the baths' splendid dome, covered for years by a false ceiling, is being uncovered and restored.
-
433. Oct 88 #7: TEN YEARS BEYOND BAKER STREET: SHERLOCK HOLMES MATCHES WITS WITH THE DIABOLICAL DR. FU MANCHU, by Can Van Ash (New York: Harper & Row/Perennial Library, 1988; 436 pp., $4.95), was first published in 1984, and the paperback reprint is a welcome arrival. Nayland Smith is mysteriously missing from his London flat, and Dr. Petrie turns to Sherlock Holmes for assistance, providing an account of their pursuit of Fu Manchu, diabolical as ever, through London and Wales. The book is well constructed and well written by Van Ash, a friend of Sax Rohmer and co-author of his biography MASTER OF VILLAINY, and the portrayal of the protagonists is both consistent and in character in this successful combination of the worlds of Sherlock Holmes and Fu Manchu.
434. I recommend Michael Harrison's PAINFUL DETAILS (London: Max Parrish, 1962) to those interested in Victorian scandals ("painful details" was the phrase used by British newspapers when the details were such as might offend the readers) and to those suffering from the nominal-coincidence syndrome. One of the fascinating scandals discussed at length in Harrison's book is the legal dispute that followed the death of the 5th Duke of Portland in 1854. The dispute eventually resulted in a criminal suit, in which the prosecutor was one Athelney-Jones, KC. Those who wish to conclude that Athelney-Jones was the model for the Canonical Inspector Athelney Jones should note that Athelney-Jones was a KC, not a QC: the trial occurred in 1907, many years after "The Sign of the Four" was published.
435. Jeremy Brett still has reservations about his suitability for the role of Sherlock Holmes. "Robert Stephens was very good in that rather damaged film by Billy Wilder," Brett told a reporter for the [London] Independent. "I liked Christopher Plummer. And I think I've seen the next Sherlock Holmes: Daniel Day-Lewis. Rathbone had everything: the timbre, and coldness, the logic, and the danger. But the one I would like to have seen was John Wood, who played him for the RSC; from what I heard I would guess that he was the magnesium flame of Holmes." We hope to hear more from Britain on just who Daniel Day-Lewis is, and what he's done.

436. "Someone said, aren't you scared of being typecast?" Brett also told the reporter. "And I said, 'if you're going to be typecast, you might as well be typecast as a genius.'" Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke have received enthusiastic reviews (both from the press and from Sherlockians) in the new play "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" in London. According to an interview with Brett in the N.Y. Times, the play has been so successful in London that the run been extended into January, and "probably through March." Brett also promised that the play is "certainly coming to Broadway," but it may not open here until late 1989 or early 1990.
437. Reviews of Granada's version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" were not as enthusiastic. "Beware of local legends" might be a good warning for the press: a columnist for the [Cornwall] Western Morning News reported on an interview with Patrick Holman, who lives at Yarner Farm, which lies between Bovey Tracey and Haytor, and his comment on learning that the program had been filmed in Yorkshire. "They should have filmed it here," Holman said. "This is where they made the first Hound picture with Basil Rathbone in 1936. That's the local legend." Well, the Rathbone "Hound" was filmed in 1939, and entirely in a Hollywood studio.
-
438. Oct 88 #8: John Ball ("The Oxford Flier") died on Oct. 15, after more than thirty years as a Sherlockian, first in Philadelphia (where he was a Master Copper-Beech-Smith of The Sons of the Copper Beeches) and then in Encino (where he was Lighthousekeeper of The Trained Cormorants). His Investiture, awarded by Edgar W. Smith in 1960, reflected John's work in the aviation industry. His first published mystery was IN THE HEAT OF THE NIGHT, which won an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America in 1965 for best first novel, and another in 1967 for best motion picture. And he was a marvelous host, modestly displaying the *real* Maltese falcon (the jade statue that gave Dashiell Hammett an idea for a mystery novel), and taking at least one visitor on an aerial tour of Los Angeles area (courtesy of the county police helicopter patrol).
439. Herman Abromson ("Lord Cantlemere") also died this month. He was an avid admirer of Christopher Morley, president of the Long Island Book Collectors and the Christopher Morley Knothole Association, and a splendid bibliophile (his collection included many unique items, not the least of which was the manuscript for "In Memoriam" introduction to THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES).
440. Michael Caine's film "Without a Clue" opened officially on Oct. 21, and his television series "Jack the Ripper" began on Oct. 21. "I think it's fine," Caine told one interviewer, "I'll get them whether they go out or stay in." I won't review "Without a Clue" here, since I assume that you all have seen the film (or will, when it is released overseas). The cast includes some familiar faces: Nigel Davenport (Lord Smithwick, Chancellor of the Exchequer), who played Conan Doyle in the 1972 television series "The Edwardians" (D4603b), and Peter Cook (Greenhough, of The Strand Magazine) who played Sherlock Holmes in the 1978 film "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (D4336b).
441. But (for those who did not see Caine's "Jack the Ripper" mini-series), I will report that the opening and closing announcements avoided all of the promotional puffery about a solution based on newly-available official files. Only a few of the usual suspects were omitted, and Jack turned out to be Sir William Gull (suffering from *dementia praecox*), assisted by John Netley (wearing a deerstalker when driving the coach on their villainous nightly excursions). No mention of Sherlock Holmes, or Conan Doyle.
442. Further to the mention (Sep 88 #1) of Britain's first mystery-specialist bookshop (Murder One, at 23 Denmark Street, off Charing Cross Road), Gideon Hill reports an added attraction: designer Mark Roberts' convincing and artistically executed life-size model of Sherlock Holmes.
443. The autumn issue of Anglofile at hand, with reports on the Brett play, the new Granada series, and the death of actor Roy Kinnear in September in Spain, after falling from a horse during filming of Richard Lester's "The Last Return of the Four Musketeers". Kinnear was a fine comic, and played Moriarty's assistant in Gene Wilder's "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother" (1975) and Ethel Seldon in Peter Cook's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1978). Anglofile costs $12.00 a year for six issues (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033).
444. There are now 149 people on our mailing list. Time to start thinking about hiring a dog to lick the envelopes . . .
-
445. Nov 88 #1: "Mr. Universe has come a long way since the first contest, judged by Arthur Conan Doyle and glittering with strong men and novelty acts," according to a report in the [London] Sunday Times (Sept. 11). And the long way appears to be a long way down, since the Mr. Olympia contest seems to have taken over as the world's premier body-building title. The article gives no more information about Conan Doyle's participation, but it is true that he was a friend and admirer of Eugen Sandow, and was a judge at the Sandow Physical Culture Demonstration at the Royal Albert Hall on Sept. 14, 1901. The Mr. Universe contest would appear to claim some descent from that event.
446. We reported earlier (Feb 88 #3) on the availability of Undershaw (the house designed by and built for Conan Doyle, where he lived from 1897 until he moved to Windlesham in 1907). Now we have news of the offer of Grayswood Beeches, described as a "compact country house" with six bedrooms, five reception rooms, conservatory, tennis court, and paddock, in three acres of ground. It was this house (then named Greyswood Beeches) that Conan Doyle rented (according to John Dickson Carr) from May 1896 until construction of Undershaw was completed in Oct. 1897. Offers over £650,000 are invited by Prudential Property Services, Haslemere.
447. Our circulation department renews its welcome to the new subscribers (now 25) who responded to Philip Shreffler's recommendation in the June issue of the BSJ. For the benefit of the newest readers, we repeat our standing offers (all prices postpaid): the 11-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women ($1.00); the 49-page list of the S'ian societies, with names and addresses for contacts for the active societies, ($2.75); and the run of mailing labels for the active societies ($10.00).
448. Al and Julie Rosenblatt's splendid 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987, handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with many illustrations, annotations and explanations, is also available ($15.00), as is the Frank Thomas pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASQUERADE MURDERS ($6.00).
449. Canada's 1988 postal issues include a set of four stamps honoring the centenary of the Canadian Kennel Club, and one of the stamps shows a Newfoundland dog (there are two mentions of Newfoundlands in the Canon). Our thanks to Ray Rawlings for a copy of the stamp.
450. The Sept. issue of The Camden House Journal (published by The Occupants of the Empty House) includes "Another Look at the Diogenes Club", in which Bart Simms notes the existence of another unusual London club: Pratt's, named in honor of Nathaniel Pratt, steward to the seventh Duke of Beaufort. Pratt died in 1859, but the club still exists, in two basement rooms which are decorated with stuffed salmon, the head of a rhinoceros, a soapstone Buddha, and a set of elephant testicles converted into a tantalus.
451. Lysette Anthony, who played a damsel in distress both in Michael Caine's "Without a Clue" and in Michael Caine's "Jack the Ripper" is also on view in the Dec. 1988 issue of Playboy ("Miss Anthony, hot actress and brash Brit, loves to shock the home-town folks with her body English").
-
452. Nov 88 #2: We will celebrate Sherlock Holmes' 135th birthday on Friday, Jan. 6 (which, by pleasant coincidence, *is* his birthday), with the now-traditional festivities in New York. Friday begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast at 9:00 am at the Algonquin Hotel, at 59 West 44th Street; no reservations required. The William Gillette Luncheon begins at noon at the Old Homestead, at 56 Ninth Avenue (Lisa McGaw, 15 Willow Terrace Apartments, Chapel Hill, NC 27514). At 6:00 pm The Baker Street Irregulars will meet at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street; and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at Garvin's Restaurant, at 19 Waverly Place, south of 8th Street, one block east of Washington Square Park (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235

- West 15th Street, #4B, New York, NY 10011). Space will be limited at the Gillette luncheon and the ASH dinner, and early reservations are requested. We are advised that the ASH have booked the basement nightclub at Garvin's until 3:00 am, which will allow post-dinners celebrants to postpone braving the elements almost until breakfast.
453. Mary Ellen Rich has recommended the Shoreham Hotel, at 33 West 55th Street; weekend rates are $75 (single), $84.00 (double), $120.00 (two-room suite); their telephone number is 212-247-6700. Also: the Salisbury Hotel, at 123 West 57th Street (between 6th and 7th Avenues); the rate is $75.00 a room, and their telephone numbers are 800-223-0680 and 212-246-1300. And another possibility: the Iroquois Hotel, at 49 West 44th Street; the rates are $75 (single), $85 (double), and $95-$125 (triple); and the telephone number is 212-840-3080. Mary Ellen also warns about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, and 5% city tax.
454. Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 to 6:00; all Sherlockians and their guests are welcome to attend, and there is as usual the possibility that Sherlockian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
455. On Saturday there is The Baker Street Irregulars' reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street. Open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $20.00 a person until Dec. 15 ($25.00 a person thereafter and at the door). Checks, payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
456. And, although not formally scheduled, it is likely that many Sherlockians will go on to dine on Saturday evening at Bogie's (249 West 26th Street). On Sunday, southbound travelers (and others) will be welcome at the annual dinner of The Master's Class, which will start at 4:30 at the Franklin Inn Club at St. James and Camac Streets in Philadelphia (ending early to allow people to catch the last train out of town). The meeting will include a silent auction (for those who wish to buy or sell S'iana) and details are available from Victoria M. Robinson, 299-B Summit House, 1450 West Chester Pike, West Chester, PA 19382.
457. Delia Vargas reports that a new exhibit "From Queen to Empress: Victorian Dress, 1837-1877" will open at the Metropolitan Museum of Art (at Fifth Avenue at 82nd Street) in mid-December, probably continuing through the birthday festivities).
-
458. Nov 88 # 3 More background on "Without a Clue" (from various papers): Gary Murphy and Larry Strawther wrote their script in 1983, with John Cleese in mind for the role of Holmes/Kincaid. Serious work began in 1986, with Chevy Chase and John Candy under consideration as Holmes, but Michael Caine was quickly cast in the role. Suggestions for Watson included Joan Rivers, Sean Connery, and Danny De Vito, with producer Marc Stirdivant and director Thom Eberhardt insisting on Ben Kingsley. And if you've been wondering where you've seen saw Paul Freeman (Moriarty), he played the villainous archeologist Belloq in "Raiders of the Lost Ark".
459. Further to the mention (Oct 88 #7) of Jeremy Brett's suggestion that Daniel Day-Lewis is "the next Sherlock Holmes," Lenny Picker and Carole Naddeo and Rosemary Michaud report that Day-Lewis can be seen in "A Room with a View" (Cecil), "My Beautiful Launderette" (Johnny, the gay street punk), "The Unbearable Lightness of Being" (Tomas), "The Bounty", and "Stars and Bars".
460. Lenny Picker also quotes a Los Angeles Times report (Oct. 23) that there may be a sequel to "Without a Clue" if (according to Michael Caine) the film's gross reaches $50 million. The working title for the new script is "Still No Clue".
461. Also at hand from Carole Naddeo is a flier from George J. Goodstadt, Inc. (80 Post Road East, Westport, CT 06880) offering a limited-edition signed lithograph by Al Hirschfeld: "Stars of the Playhouse" shows twenty worldfamous stars who have appeared at the Westport Playhouse since it opened in 1931. The caricatures include Basil Rathbone (as Sherlock Holmes), and the cost is $600 (after Jan. 1989 the price will be $750). I believe that the caricature of Rathbone is a new one (since I have no record of anything by Hirschfeld when Rathbone's play was produced in 1953). I also believe that Rathbone's play went straight from Boston to New York, and that Rathbone was at the Westport Playhouse in some other role.
462. It is not necessary to travel to Manchester to visit Sherlock Holmes' Baker Street: Mike Bershad reports that the Universal Studios Tour in Hollywood has a new "Streets of the World" section that includes an exterior for a Sherlock Holmes movie set.
463. The 1988 "Holiday Catalogue" at hand from the Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019), with a section of Sherlockiana; also the fall 1988 issue of Mysterious News, with articles by and about Mysterious Press authors.
464. Jack Tracy's new (autumn 1988) catalog (16 pages) at hand from Gaslight Publications (626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404), with Jack's explanation of his own Great Hiatus, offers of in-print Sherlockiana (from Gaslight and other publishers), and news of future Gaslight titles.
465. In an interview in the San Francisco Sunday Chronicle (Oct. 23), Jeremy Brett suggested that Sherlockians will be tantalized by the ending of his play "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" because it actually works as far as the Canon is concerned. "We don't do anything that goes against Doyle," Brett said, "we just bend the willow a little." Brett also said that after bringing the play to New York he hopes to do it for television as well.
-
466. Nov 88 #4: QUEEN MARY'S DOLLS' HOUSE, by Mary Stewart-Wilson, with photographs by David Cripps (London: The Bodley Head, 1988; 192 pp., £15.00) provides a splendid tour of the magnificent 40-room dolls' house designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens for Queen Mary in the 1920s and now displayed at Windsor Castle. The new color photographs of the rooms and contents are spectacular, and the photographs of the Library show both the fine leather binding and the title page of Conan Doyle's contribution: his pastiche "How Watson Learned the Trick".
467. "Give me liberty or give me...death!" will be the slogan for Bouchercon XX in Philadelphia on Oct. 6-8, 1989. Membership is $25.00 through Dec. 31, and $40.00 thereafter (if available), and the Bouchercon XX address is: Box 59345, Philadelphia, PA 19102-9345. That "if available" may not be an idle warning: Bouchercon XIX in San Diego closed its membership at 900 during the summer, and its organizers estimated that membership would have reached 2,000 if there had been no restrictions.
468. And all students of American history will know, of course, who it was who delivered that patriotic announcement -- and perhaps, that the announcement was not made in Philadelphia. But (without looking it up), do you know the name of the city where the announcement *was* made?
469. The Bouchercon XIX program included an announcement for "Malice Domestic" at the Sheraton Northwest Washington on Apr. 21-23, 1989. "Join us for tea and crumpets, malice and murder . . . a celebration of crime in the grand tradition of Agatha Christie, Ellery Queen, and Dorothy L. Sayers," their announcement suggests. The organizers are Mary Morman, Terry Adams, Gerry Letteney, and Barbara Mertz, and they are planning a smaller (about 300 people) convention concentrating on "cozy domestic" and "country house" mysteries and authors. Registration is $60.00 (including a Saturday night banquet), and the address is Box 1753, Frederick, MD 21701. The Sheraton Northwest Washington, by the way, is in Maryland.
470. I've now received a report of a copy of the 5th printing of Ellery Queen's THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Sep 88 #5 and Oct 88 #2) -- that's at least one copy of all five printings, where things will rest, unless and until someone reports a copy of a 6th printing . . .
471. Plan ahead: the 22nd California International Antiquarian Book Fair will be held on Feb. 10-12, 1989, at the Crystal Court, San Francisco Concourse, 8th and Brannan Streets, in San Francisco. Sherlockiana will be one of the featured subjects, and there will be more than 130 dealers attending.

472. Women's Day (Nov. 22) has an advertisement "Just for Women!" for the Troll Book Club, with a four-books-for 99-cents introductory offer from a list of books of interest to women, including WHAT TO DO WHEN HE WON'T CHANGE, HOW TO HAVE GREAT LEGS AT ANY AGE, WEIGHT WATCHERS FAVORITE RECIPES, DR. SPOCK ON PARENTING, and Michael Hardwick's THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND.
473. SHERLOCK HOLMES PREPARES FOR THE FINAL PROBLEM is a 22-page pastiche by Rolf John Canton, a member of the Norwegian Explorers, with the story set in modern times, starting from Minneapolis. Available from the author (5501 Portland Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55417; $5.00 postpaid).
-
474. Nov 88 #5: A "Sale of English Literature and History" at Sotheby's (34-35 New Bond Street, London W1A 2AA, England) on Dec. 15 will have the manuscript of ACD's non-Sherlockian poem "A Forgotten Tale" (estimated at £1,500-£2,000), and a lot consisting of two of his pipes (GBD "New Era") from the estate of the late Princess Mdivani (estimated at £500-£600).
475. "I have tried to be as accurate as possible," Jon L. Lellenberg alleges in his introductory Author's Note to his THE GREAT ALKALI PLAINSMEN OF GREATER KANSAS CITY: SILVER ANNIVERSARY HISTORY, then noting quickly that "when the archives were inconclusive, or memories were vague, I have tried to err on the side of fantasy." Readers of the illustrated account of the scion's first 25 years will be able to judge whether there is any justification for the suggestion (by a non-resident non-Sherlockian) that the only successful citizens of Kansas City have been who were able to leave the city, and that the only interesting events in Kansas City have been inspired by visitors. Copies of the 98-page HISTORY are available ($10.90 postpaid) from Jon L. Lellenberg, 635 North Armistead Street, Alexandria, VA 22312.
476. Ted Schulz reports that Tsukasa Kobayashi and Akane Higashiyama returned to Japan from the unveiling of the statue of Sherlock Holmes in Meiringen just in time to prepare for a similar ceremony on Oct. 9: the unveiling in Karuizawa on Oct. 9 of Yoshinori Sato's statue of Sherlock Holmes (shown in a photograph taken by Kae Nobuhara). And Yuichi Hirayama reports that there were more than 150 Sherlockians at the ceremony (many of them in costume), and that Karuizawa was chosen as the site because the city was the home of the late Ken Nobuhara, one of the earliest translators of the Canon into Japanese.
477. Yuichi Hirayama also reports that the "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" are now being published in Japan by Hobby Japan, translated by Yaeko Sakurai. The series is also published in Germany (by Thienemann, translated "aus dem Amerikanischen" by Hans Bangerter) (first time I recall anyone making that distinction so formally). I've also heard that the "Amerikanischen" series ended after seven volumes.
478. "The Return of Sherlock Holmes Tour" to Switzerland and England, led by Scott Bond and Sherry Rose-Bond, is scheduled for June 10-24, 1989. This is a sequel to their "Final Problem Tour" in 1987, and the 1989 itinerary includes Meiringen, London, and Dartmoor, a trip on the "Orient Express" (now, alas, only a one-day excursion beginning and ending in London), and tickets for the West End production of "The Phantom of the Opera". A detailed brochure (with artwork by Scott Bond) is available from Geographics Travel & Tours, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
479. A new catalog at hand from Gallery Lainzberg (300 Guaranty Building, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401). They specialize in production cels and animation art, and their coverage includes "The Great Mouse Detective", "Aristocats", and "Mickey's Christmas Carol" (the latter two with deerstalker characters).
-
480. Nov 88 #6: Leo Sauvage ("Victor Savage") died on Oct. 30. A journalist and author, he was the N.Y. correspondent for Le Figaro from 1950 to 1975, and then the drama critic for the New Leader. His book LES AMERICAINS was a best-seller in France, and his most recent S'ian articles appeared in the Mar. 1983 and Dec. 1984 issues of the BSJ. At the time of his death he was working on a new book, SHERLOCKIAN HERESIES.
481. Sheila Graham died on Nov. 18, and was described in her obituary in the Washington Post as "a child of the London slums whose wit, will and comely smile helped her to reign in Hollywood as one of the film capital's chief gossip columnists and who also held a place in American literature as the lover of F. Scott Fitzgerald." According to an interview in the Washington Post in 1986, when Graham met Fitzgerald in 1937 (at a party celebrating her engagement to the Marquess of Donegall), Fitzgerald asked her how many lovers she'd had. "I said eight as a round number. He was shocked." And the reporter politely noted that "As to whether eight was an exaggeration or an overestimate, she won't say."
482. Kenneth McQuage (Shoscombe Old Place, 9806 Hilltop Drive, Baltimore, MD 21234) offers an illustrated flier giving details on what may well be the world's first Sherlockian weathervane: a 14-by-7-inch silhouette in black-finished sand-cast aluminum, modeled after the Hurlstone weathervane in the Granada version of "The Musgrave Ritual" ($25.00 for the ornament, $40.00 for the ornament and arrow, or $70.00 for the full weathervane and mounting apparatus; shipping extra).
483. Ben Wood reports that the St. Alban's Stamp Mission (Box 1268, Anna Maria, FL 34216) is offering older mint commemorative postage stamps for 10% less than face value: $5.00 buys $5.50, $10.00 buys $11.00, $25.00 buys $27.50, and $50.00 buys $55.00, all postpaid to people who want to make their mail more colorful. Checks payable to St. Alban's Mission.
484. THE ADVENTURE OF THE FRAIL CODGER, in which Turlock Loams comes to grips with T. G. Waffles in the 16th case recorded by Dr. Fatso, follows hot on the heels of THE ADVENTURE OF THE CHEESEMONGER'S BARK (Sep 88 #5) from the Pequod Press ($29.50 cloth or $14.50 paper, from John Ruyle, 521 Vincent Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707).
485. Reported by Jerry Margolin: CRIMES AT CHRISTMAS, edited by Jack Adrian (Equation, 1988, £14.95), a "beautifully illustrated" British anthology that includes reprints of Peter Todd's "Herlock Sholmes's Christmas Case" (D4957b) and "The Secret in the Pudding Bag" (D4965b).
486. A new item for video collectors: "Der Mann, der Sherlock Holmes war" (the 1937 film starring Hans Albers) is available (in German) for $42.00 from International Historic Films (Box 29035, Chicago, IL 60629).
487. Benny Green is always a fine source for Sherlockian comment, in the pages of Punch and elsewhere. In his review in Punch (Oct. 13, 1982) of the Tom Baker "The Hound of the Baskervilles" he suggests that "We were all raised to believe that Holmes not only lived but was alive and well in California, employed as a contract player at Universal Studios, and diverting attention from himself by masquerading as Basil Rathbone."
-
488. Dec 88 #1: An additional item for the list of birthday festivities: "Double Bill" at the Prometheus Theater is an off-off-Broadway production, offers Russell McLauchlin's "Teatime in Baker Street" (D5551a) and director Fred Fondren's adaptation of "Sherlock Holmes: A Case of Identity", scheduled to close on Sunday, Jan. 8. The theater is at 239 East 5th Street, New York, NY 10003 (477-8689); tickets cost $8.00; performances are Thursday through Saturday at 8:00, and Sunday at 3:00. Fondren wrote, directed, and played Holmes in "Sherlock Holmes and the Warburton Conspiracy" (1981) and "Sherlock Holmes Embattles Count Dracula" (1983).
489. John Carradine died on Nov. 27. His roles on stage and screen ranged from Hamlet to Dracula, and he made more than 200 films, beginning in 1930 with a bit part in "Tol'able David". His more important films included "Bride of Frankenstein", "Stagecoach", "Grapes of Wrath", and "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in 1939 (as Barryman, the butler, renamed by the studio to avoid confusion with a much more famous Barrymore).
490. Writer-composer-lyricist Leslie Bricusse first worked on "musicalising Sherlock Holmes" in the late 1960s, when he wrote a first-draft screenplay and some songs for MGM's never-produced film of the musical "Baker Street". Then there were reports of plans for a stage version in 1975, with Rex Harrison under consideration as Holmes. And again in 1987, with Robert Powell as Holmes. "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" opened, at long last, at the

- Northcott Theatre in Exeter, for a one-month run, with Ron Moody (who is perhaps best known for his performance as Fagin in the stage and film versions of Lionel Bart's "Oliver!") as Holmes. And there are now reports that the musical will open in London in February or March 1989.
491. The Bear Detectives wear their deerstalkers again in THE BERENSTAIN BEARS AND THE MANSION MYSTERY, by Stan and Jan Berenstain (New York: Happy House Books/Random House, 1987; 20 pp., $2.99). THE BERENSTAIN BEARS LEARN ABOUT STRANGERS, PLUS THE BERENSTAIN BEARS AND THE DISAPPEARING HONEY is a new videocassette from Random House Home Video (30 minutes, $14.95); The Bear Detectives wear their deerstalkers in the second story, which is adapted from the book THE BERENSTAIN BEARS AND THE MISSING HONEY.
492. "Sherlock Holmes and the Red-Headed League" is a musical adaptation for children, presented by Theatreworks/USA with energy and imagination. The show first toured in 1987, and is now planning another tour. The show is recommended for Sherlockians of all ages, and their schedule is: Mar. 19 (Red Bank, NJ); Mar. 25 (Grants, NM); Mar. 30 (Yuma, AZ); Apr. 1 (Santa Cruz, CA); Apr. 4 (San Luis Obispo, CA); Apr. 8 and 15 (Pasadena, CA); Apr. 19-20 (Yakima, WA); Apr. 22 (Sand Point, ID); Apr. 24-28 (Olympia, WA); Apr. 29 (Takoma, WA); May 6 (Coquille, OR); May 7 (Eugene, OR); May 8 (Pocatello, ID); and May 11 (Casper, WY). Let me know if you would like additional details.
493. British news, via Geoffrey Stavert and Roger Johnson: on Dec. 16 Whitbread will launch a new Sherlock Holmes pub, in Summerhill Road, Coseley, West Midlands. Coseley is either new or small enough to be missing from all my guides to Britain, but Birmingham is the largest city in West Midlands.
-
494. Dec 88 #2: Further to the report (Sep 88 #3) on Yoland Brown's book RUYTON XI TOWNS: UNUSUAL NAME, UNUSUAL HISTORY and her discussion of Conan Doyle's residence in the town in 1878, Mrs. Brown will be happy to provide bed-and-breakfast for touring S'ians at Brownhill House, where "the many countryside and historic attractions of Shropshire and North Wales are within easy reach." A brochure is available from Mrs. Brown at Brownhill House, Ruyton XI Towns, Shrops. SY4 1LR, England.
495. If you're traveling to Devon, you might consider Fox's Earth, one of six hotels featured in full color in Mary Moore Mason's "To the Manor Born" in the winter 1987 issue of Country Inns/Bed & Breakfast (discovered by Pattie Brunner). Fox's Earth is the new name for Lewtrenchard Manor, a 1620 stone manor house that was the ancestral home for the Baring-Gould family (one of the many folk tales collected by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould concerned the "whisk hounds, which were heard in the stormy nights careening across our wild moor lands"). There are ten rooms, rates are £50 to £75 a night, and the address is Lewdown, near Okehampton, Devon EX20 4PN, England.
496. A repeat plug for the catalogs of discount and remainder books from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031). His 11/25/88 catalog includes a new Octopus one-volume reprint (#241350) of David Niven's fine autobiographies (with mention of his performance in "The Speckled Band" at Sandhurst, and some fine stories about Rathbone and Bruce and other Hollywood friends) THE MOON'S A BALLOON and BRING ON THE EMPTY HORSES (632 pp., $7.95), and older items such as John T. Lescroart's SON OF HOLMES ($3.95), Michael Hardwick's SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES ($3.95), and Art Bourgeois's THE MYSTERY LOVER'S COMPANION (311 pp., $5.95).
497. A report from Carole Naddeo, via John Stephenson, on Harlan Ellison, who was recently at a literature conference in Durango, where he explained to the students that the secret to his success as a writer was "to read THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES, because the stories teach how to observe and use logic . . . in short, how to think."
498. Sir Richard Musgrave's conviction on conspiracy charges (May 88 #6 and Jun 88 #1) has received wider circulation in Henry Hurt's article "Slaughter at Albarmar Farms" in the Nov. issue of Reader's Digest (more than 28 million copies in 15 languages bought monthly, according to the cover blurb), but without mention of his illustrious ancestors. Musgrave, found guilty by a Virginia jury of conspiracy to slaughter more than 300 protected hawks and owls, paid a $15,000 fine in crisp $100 bills and quickly left the country.
499. SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MYSTERIOUS FRIEND OF OSCAR WILDE, by Russell Brown (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1988; 176 pp., $14.95), is another long-lost manuscript, "based on and incorporating the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Oscar Wilde" (one sixth of the book, according to Brown, consists of passages taken from the published works). The mystery begins with Oscar Wilde's visit to Baker Street in 1895, and exposes Holmes and Watson to the homosexual world of London. There is far more talk than action, and Wilde has the better lines (he was, after all, better than Holmes at epigrams). And there are a few surprises, including the suggestion that Langdale Pike had a second career, as Charles H. E. Brookfield, the actor and author of the Sherlockian parody "Under the Clock".
-
500. Dec 88 #3: A recent donation from the Magic Empire Packaging and Handling Education Corp. to the library at the University Center at Tulsa was acknowledged with a letter that noted that "it is particularly interesting that the donation be made in honor of James Browner, a pioneer in the packaging field -- an appropriate choice from this generous organization." Credit Dick Warner, head sherpa of The Holmes Peak Preservation Society, for the imaginative choice of honoree.
501. Catalog #6 at hand from Jeffrey Cisewski (Images of Sherlock Holmes, 5005 Bryant Avenue South #117, Minneapolis, MN 55419), offering film posters, books, back issues of Canadian Holmes and the BSJ, and a 1989 calendar.
502. The Torists International, S.S., have begun planning for a "1989 Canonical Convocation and Caper" for Chicago Sherlockians (and anyone else who wishes to participate) in Door County, Wisconsin, on Sept. 15-17. Details will be available from Donald B. Izban, 5334 Wrightwood, Chicago, IL 60639.
503. We assume that all readers of these ephemeral paragraphs also receive the three major Sherlockian periodicals: The Baker Street Journal, The Sherlock Holmes Journal, and Baker Street Miscellanea. Those who have been unable to subscribe to the SHJ will welcome the news that:
504. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's membership list, closed for a brief period because of a flood of applications sparked by the centenary, is now open again. Full membership (minimum age 16) costs $20 a year. Associate membership (SHJ only) costs $15 a year. Half-price (full or associate) to members younger than 21. Applications to the society's honorary secretary, Cdr. Geoffrey S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England.
505. Scott Bond's fine Sherlockian artwork (illustrated above) is available on a colorful cannister, 8 inches high, $10.00 postpaid, from Stogies, c/o Mel Marmer, 4712 Richards Road, Melrose Park, PA 19126. And on his "Greetings from Baker Street" postcards, $6.00 a dozen postpaid, from Scott Bond, 519 East Allens Lane, Philadelphia, PA 19119.
506. Craig Bowsby's two-act S'ian play "The Hound of London" was performed in Canada in Sept. 1987, and the script has now been published (accompanied by five non-S'ian short stories) by Intrepid Productions, 2451 Prince Edward Street, Vancouver, B.C. V5T 3M7, Canada (65 pp., $4.50 postpaid). Billed as a "mystery comedy" (and achieving a pleasant mixture of the two), the play reunites (briefly) Sherlock Holmes and Irene Adler Norton.
-
507. Dec 88 #4: The two-record album released last year (May 87 #2) with two 1945 Rathbone/Bruce broadcasts ("The Paradol Chamber" and "The Unfortunate Tobacconists") with introductions and commentary by Ben Wright, an informative booklet on "Sherlock Holmes on American Radio", and handsome album decorations, is still available from 221 "A" Baker Street Associates (Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035-998) at $27.50 postpaid. The same two broadcasts (without the booklet and decorations) are available on an audio cassette distributed by Simon and Schuster to book stores

- ($9.95). There is also a second cassette (also $9.95) in the stores, with "The Notorious Canary Trainer" and "The Viennese Strangler" (introductions and commentary by Glenhall Taylor). The transfers are from the original transcription disks, in splendid high-fidelity. If you can't find the cassettes in the bookstores, they are also available ($11.95 each postpaid) from 221 "A" Baker Street Associates.
508. And there will be more programs available next year: 26 cassettes, each with two programs from the 1945-46 season and an introduction by someone involved either with the radio series or with Sherlock Holmes. There will be a major promotion through American Express, with a flier in their May 1989 billing, offering the cassettes on a subscription basis. And Bantam Books is planning an April release for a book with 13 mysteries, adapted by Ken Greenwald from the radio scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, and illustrations by Alfredo Alcalá (who did the artwork for the original record album).
509. 221 "A" Baker Street Associates also welcomes suggestions, comments, and queries on their work, but request that you send an SASE if you want an answer.
510. Robert S. Gellerstedt (1035 Wedgewood Drive, Fayetteville, GA 30214) offers a HyperCard version of Edgar W. Smith's APPOINTMENT IN BAKER STREET for use on the Apple Macintosh. $5.00 postpaid for the 800K disk (foreign airmail $3.00 extra). APPOINTMENT IN BAKER STREET was Edgar's first Sherlockian publication, from his Pamphlet House in 1938, subtitled "a repertory of the characters, one and all, who walked and talked with Sherlock Holmes." His "headline biographies" of those characters are delightful, and he includes more people than his subtitle suggests ("The original Hugo," Edgar notes in his closing essay, "was even remoter from the scene in time than he was in distance, but he is still as much a living character in the chronicles as the dainty Mary Morstan").
511. THE TOTALLY TASTELESS JOKES OF MORIARTY, published by The Voices of the Whispering Knights (28 pp. of limericks, cartoons, and other Sherlockian humor) is available from Kyle Richeson, Box 1354, Calhoun, GA 30701; $3.50 postpaid.
512. Simon Hawke's THE ZENDA VENDETTA (Jun 85 #1) contained a minor Sherlockian reference, but his THE DRACULA CAPER (New York: Ace Books, 1988; 212 pp., $3.50), the latest in his "Time Wars" series, is far more relevant. His account of the Time Commandos' battle against a time-traveling villain who has introduced genetically engineered werewolves and vampires into London in 1894 is imaginative, and the characters encountered in the story include Arthur Conan Doyle, Oscar Wilde, Bram Stoker, and H. G. Wells.
-
513. Dec 88 #5: STRANGE STUDIES FROM LIFE AND OTHER NARRATIVES: THE COMPLETE TRUE CRIME WRITINGS OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Jack Tracy (Bloomington: Gaslight Press, 1988; 104 pp., $17.20 postpaid from the publisher, 626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404) offers three "strange studies from life" and Peter Ruber's fine introduction from his 1963 reprint of the stories, three earlier reports, and Conan Doyle's later suggestion that psychic science might be used to solve or prevent crimes. Conan Doyle planned to write twelve stories for the "strange studies from life" series in 1901, and it would be interesting to see which mysteries he would have chosen, if he had not turned his attention to a story about a spectral hound and a family curse in Dartmoor.
514. Our list of Sherlockian societies still includes a few societies known only by name, and I would appreciate hearing from anyone who has any information on who was the contact for: The Boulevard Assassins of Paris, The Boulevard Assassins of Suburban Detroit, The Cascade Canoneers, The Deal-Top Monographers, The Lion's Mane of Grand Rapids, The Puzzled Squires of Downey, The Resident Patients of Montana State University, The Retired Colourmen of Essex, The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Canonical Criminals, The Sons of Sherlock Holmes, The Students in Terror, and The West of Tokyo Interpreters.
515. Edward J. Rohn's new sculpture of "Dr. John H. Watson" (in high-fired fine porcelain, hand-decorated, 9 inches high including wood base) is available for $225.00 from Rohn Sculptured Porcelain Inc., 273 North West Avenue, Elmhurst, IL 60126. His earlier (Sep 85 #6) sculpture of "Sherlock Holmes" is also still available for $155.00 (with a 10% discount offered to readers of this newsletter), and both sculptures are shown in the photograph below.
516. And mint copies of the colorful "Sherlock Holmes" cigar-box label (4 by 4 inches), shown above, are available for $7.00 from Cerebro, Box 1221, Lancaster, PA 17603.
517. Dec 88 #6: FATAL FASCINATION: WHERE FACT MEETS FICTION IN POLICE WORK, by Phil and Karen McArdle (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1988; 228 pp., $8.95), has the expected passing mentions of Sherlock Holmes and Conan Doyle, and an interesting story, reported from Long Beach in the Sept. 21, 1907, issue of the Oakland Tribune: "Through the efforts of Sir A. Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, Frank Sharp, formerly of Oakland, but now living in Santa Ana, and working for a small salary on the Pacific Electric Railway, will come into a great fortune. Sharp left Wales, his native land, many years ago, and when he came to America ceased to communicate with his British relatives, some of whom were very wealthy, and the lost track of him. Finally death claimed one who had not forgotten the young man, and who appears to have bequeathed his entire estate to Sharp. All efforts to locate him proved futile and finally Doyle was prevailed on to take the case. He traced Sharp to this section, and yesterday City Marshal Young was surprised when he received a neat letter bearing the detective-doctor's crest and signature, asking him to get Sharp's exact address. He succeeded in doing so during the day and the information is already in the mail. It would be interesting know by what process he followed the movements of Sharp to this section."
518. "Star Trek: The Next Generation" kindly alerted viewers that the following week's program would be Sherlockian, and I trust you all were able to see the episode "Elementary, Dear Data" in syndication on Dec. 9-11. If you didn't, Cdr. Data and Lt. Geordi La Forge decided to spend some rest-andrecreation time the holodeck, in Victorian London, as Sherlock Holmes and Doctor Watson, battling a computer-generated Professor Moriarty. Ron Fish (55 Brooklawn Circle, New Haven, CT 06515) has generously offered to lend his videocassette to anyone who did miss the program, and doesn't want to wait for the re-run.
519. One more item for the list (and it is a short one, to their credit) of the anachronisms in the Granada series: the prison surgery that rendered Selden tractable and harmless. And it is an example of why people who attempt to "improve" the Canon should consult experts, such as William D. Jenkins, who notes that the surgical technique known as the prefrontal lobotomy, used to control episodes of violent behavior in psychotic patients, was developed in 1936, by the Portuguese neurosurgeon Antonio Moniz.
520. A new Sherlockian society, and a new pin: The Harpooners of the Sea Unicorn (Michael E. Bragg, Box 799, St. Charles, MO 63302) offer a harpoon tie-tack (pewter finish) for $10.00, and a tie-bar (brass finish) for $15.00.
521. "A Holmesian Mystery" was the headline over a letter in the N.Y. Times on Dec. 20 (and quoted here in full). "My husband and I have been utterly confused by some of the Sherlock Holmes stories in the series recently shown on public television in New York City, especially 'Wisteria Lodge', 'Silver Blaze', and 'The Hound of the Baskervilles'. Going back to read these stories, which are among my favorites, I found that vital details had been omitted from the television dramatizations of them. I wonder whether the Baker Street Irregulars were as baffled as we were and found anything amiss in them." The writer of the letter was Margaret Truman Daniel, who included a mention of Sherlock Holmes in her novel MURDER ON CAPITOL HILL, whose father was an enthusiastic Sherlockian, and a member of the BSI.

-
- Jan 89 #1:
1. The weather for this year's birthday festivities was rather reasonable, it would appear, since there were no reports of people marooned in airports by the Friday snowstorm. The weekend was launched informally in 1988, with one far-flung collector arriving in late December in search of items that might have been overlooked by locals, but the first formal event was, as usual, the Martha Hudson Breakfast at the Hotel Algonquin on Friday, when Bishop Rabe's campaign against simony yielded a pleasantly social, rather than commercial, gathering.
  2. Our visitors from distant shores included Dr. Tsukasa Kobayashi, president of the Japan Sherlock Holmes Club, and his wife Akane Higashiyama, authors of the splendid A PICTORIAL RECORD OF SHERLOCK HOLMES'S LONDON (published here in 1986 as SHERLOCK HOLMES'S LONDON). They represented their society on the 1987 and 1988 tours of Switzerland, and their contributions to our literature in Japan now total 26 books of essays and translations of the Canon and the Writings About the Writings. The Japan Sherlock Holmes Club, which was launched in 1977 with only two members (Dr. and Mrs. Kobayashi), now has 1,200 members and is the largest Sherlockian society in the world.
  3. The William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead was well-attended, as was Otto Penzler's open house at the Mysterious Bookshop, and the Algonquin offered a safe haven in its lobby for Sherlockians whose conversations may well have bewildered the few non-Sherlockians present. The new management of the Algonquin, obviously realizing that Benchley, Thurber, and Woollcott will not be returning, ensured a warm welcome for the birthday celebrants, and its hospitality may include a special rate for next year's weekend (we will be celebrating Sherlock Holmes' 136th birthday on January 12, 1990).
  4. The Baker Street Irregulars gathered for dinner at 24 Fifth Avenue, where Karen L. Johnson was *The* Woman, toasted by Bob Thomalen at the pre-dinner cocktail party (and by *The* Women at their annual dinner at the National Arts Club). The BSI dinner agenda included (non-traditionally) all of the traditional toasts, Joe Fink's fervent defense of Tonga on behalf of the DDL (the Dwarf Defense League), Al Rosenblatt's presentation of a special "Murray Award" (for heroism under fire) to Bob Thomalen, Philip Shreffler's illustrated series of "Lessons in Canonical Villainy", and Jon Lellenberg's report on the current (and possibly future) Canonical content of the Oxford English Dictionary. Irregular Shillings were awarded to Andrew Joffe ("Sir Charles Halle"), M. Kenneth McQuage ("The Plumstead Marshes"), Richard M. Caplan ("Dr. Jackson"), Brad A. Keefauver ("Winwood Reade"), Alvin E. Rodin ("Palmer"), Jack D. Key ("Pritchard"), and Tsukasa Kobayashi ("Baritsu").
  5. The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes gathered at Garvin's Restaurant to celebrate their collective 21st birthday with toasts and presentations by Cynthia Wein (on Canonical ladies), Nora Myers (on what her students knew, or didn't know, about Sherlock Holmes), Delia Vargas (as the still-unknown lady at Appledore Towers), and Ann Byerly (on some new examples of literary osmosis). The ASH were joined eventually by many of the BSI for the postdinner festivities scheduled at the Paradise (a basement disco), where the noise level soon drove most of the Sherlockian celebrants back to the bar at Garvin's.
-
6. Jan 89 #2: Saturday's cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue honored *The* Women, and 15 of the 29 ladies were present for the formal toast to those who had, as Sherlock Holmes once suggested, placed themselves in the power of a band of rascals. The Queen Victoria Medal was awarded to Edith Meiser, the BSI's first Commissionaire's Award (a complete portfolio of the original Sherlockian maps prepared by Julian Wolff) was presented to Enola Stewart of Gravesend Books for her signal contributions to keeping green the memory, and Susan Rice and Ezra Wolff offered their rhymed reports on Friday's festivities.
  7. Saturday evening there was a performance of two Sherlockian one-act plays at the Prometheus Theatre, which had been booked in its entirety (40 seats) for Sherlockians. On Sunday, south-bound travelers dined in Philadelphia with The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club, where Jean Upton reported on "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" and on her visit with Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke in London.
  8. For some Sherlockians the weekend offered an opportunity for a nostalgic visit to Scribner's Book Store, scheduled to close on Jan. 22. The ten-story Scribner building, at 597 Fifth Avenue, is a designated New York City landmark for its delightful Beaux Arts facade, and was the headquarters for the publishing company from 1913 until 1984. And the book store itself is a Sherlockian landmark, since it was there that David A. Randall presided over Scribner's Rare Book Department for twenty-one years and assisted many of the very early collectors. His 1943 catalog (D3732a), which offered (to cite only a few of its treasures) five Canonical manuscripts and two copies of Beeton's Christmas Annual, is the best-known though certainly not the only example of how much so many owed to Scribner's.
  9. Some of those attending the birthday celebrations were assisted by "John H. Watson", a carefully anonymous Sherlockian who presides over the John H. Watson Fund, now in its second year and intended to offer financial aid to Sherlockians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the festivities. Contributions to the Fund can be made by check, payable to John H. Watson, and mailed to him, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr. (34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648).
  10. The souvenirs included fliers for Sherlockian illustrator/cartoonist Jeff Decker's "Personal (But Slightly Irregular) Baker Street Canonizers" -- personalized full-color artwork per commission -- and you can request the flier from Jeff at R.D. #1, Box 2175, Jonestown, PA 17038.
  11. Another flier announced plans for SHERLOCK HOLMES BY GAS-LAMP: HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE FIRST FORTY YEARS OF THE BAKER STREET JOURNAL, edited by Philip A. Shreffler. The book is scheduled for March 1989 (425 pp., $22.50 plus $1.50 shipping) and can be ordered now from the Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14850 (they take plastic).
  12. I have revised the 11-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women ($1.00 postpaid). And the 50-page list of the 478 Sherlockian societies, with names and addresses for 262 active societies costs $3.00 postpaid. Checks to Peter E. Blau, 3900 Tunlaw Road NW #119, Washington, DC 20007.
-
13. Jan 89 #3: Umberto Eco's new novel FOUCAULT'S PENDULUM, published in Italy in October, has already sold 400,000 hard-cover copies, and will be published in an English translation by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich this fall. According to an interview with Eco in the N.Y. Times (Dec. 13, 1988), forwarded by Ted Schulz, has no reference to Sherlock Holmes. Eco's THE NAME OF THE ROSE has now sold 9 million copies in 24 languages, and Eco is not bothered a bit by the suggestion that most of those 9 million copies have not been read. "When someone speaks of G.U.B., great unread books, I'm in great company," he said. "Few people have entirely read 'The Magic Mountain' or 'Finnegans Wake' or Proust."
  14. Further to Jeremy Brett's statement (quoted Oct 88 #7) that Daniel Day-Lewis might be "the next Sherlock Holmes," here is a photograph (from Pattie R. Brunner) of the actor, as seen in "The Unbearable Lightness of Being".
  15. Charlotte Erickson (726 Sutter Street, Palo Alto, CA 94303) has revised and expanded her 1985 checklist of SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE COMIC BOOKS; $8.00 postpaid.
  16. Charlotte also reports that The Churchills ("Professional Muggers"), Box 327, Somerset, CA 95684, offer handcrafted clay caricature mugs of Holmes (resembling Rathbone) and Watson (a cross between Bruce and Burke) for $16.00 each (plus 10% handling).
-

17. At hand from Samuel E. Fry: a catalog from the J. Peterman Company (257 Midland Avenue, Lexington, KY 40507), offering "The Baker Street Coat" (with military collar and removable shoulder cape) in 100% Melton wool, navy or black or charcoal grey, with black satin lining, men's sizes 38 through 48, $520.00 including shipping.
18. "I particularly like to sit in the comfortable chair that was once owned by Lewis Carroll . . . and I have a chair that was Charles Dickens's, and a fold-up desk that once belonged to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle . . . I got that at a London auction, along with Conan Doyle's pipe, which--as a pipe smoker --I can truly appreciate." Irving Wallace, interviewed by Shirley Lee for the Franklin Mint's magazine Almanac (Jan.-Feb. 1989).
19. Andrew G. Fusco (220 Pleasant Street, Morgantown, WV 26505) is disposing of some of his Sherlockian duplicates, both early and late; write to him for his 11-page sales list.
20. Cinderella philately: the Howard Local Post issued a "Sherlock Holmes Old Radio" local stamp some years ago, and copies are still available for $0.25 (and an SASE) from Howard DuBose, River Runner's Emporium, 201 Albemarle Street, Durham, NC 27701.
21. Gary K. Thaden sends news of a new play: "Sherlock Holmes and the Baker Street Irregulars" (written by Thomas W. Olson) will be presented by the Children's Theatre Company in Minneapolis from Feb. 10 through Apr. 15. The Norwegian Explorers (Special Collections, Wilson Library, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455) are planning a theater party (no date yet), or you can call the theater box office (612-874-0400).

---

22. Jan 89 #4: Admiration for Sherlockian costume is not universal, at least among those who have worn it while stalking deer or other noncrimious quarry. "Avoid however, the so-called deer-stalker's cap, which is an abomination; its peaked brim giving no protection whatsoever to the eyes when facing the sun quartering, a position in which many shots must be taken." Theodore Roosevelt, in the third paragraph of his appendix to THE WILDERNESS HUNTERS (1893), reported by Richard D. Lesh.
23. LABYRINTHS OF REASON: PARADOX, PUZZLES AND THE FRAILTY OF KNOWLEDGE, by William Poundstone (New York: Doubleday, 1988; 274 pp., $18.95), explores the question of how we actually know that anything is true, using old and new paradoxes to demonstrate just how frail that knowledge can be. One chapter of the book presents a series of puzzles, offered by Watson to Holmes, by way of showing the relationship between puzzles and paradoxes. Poundstone quotes Sherlock Holmes' suggestion that "in solving a problem of this sort, the grand thing is to be able to reason backward," but readers of the book will soon discover why paradoxes have fascinated philosophers for centuries: in a paradox, there is no tenable hypothesis that yields a solution, and reasoning yields only contradictions.
24. Tyke Niver reports that a catalog from the House of Tyrol (Box 909, Gateway Plaza, Cleveland, GA 30528) offers the Bosson wall plaques (Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty) at $58.00 each (see Jun 88 #2 for an illustration of these handsome items).
25. Gary Westmoreland has forwarded news of the Queen's birthday honors, which included an award of the CBE (Companion of the Order of the British Empire) to Michael Holroyd, the literary biographer, whose discussion of Hesketh Pearson's biography of Conan Doyle for a 1977 BBC radio program was both perceptive and annoying to Adrian. Ian Richardson, who played Holmes in two television films, also received the CBE, and the OBE (Officer of the Order of the British Empire) was awarded to Peter Cushing, who has played Holmes in films and on television, and to Penelope Keith, who was seen as the receptionist at the massage parlour in the 1978 film "The Hound of the Baskervilles".
26. Peter Marks' SKULLDUGGERY (Aug 87 #2) has been reprinted in paperback (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1988; 284 pp., $4.50); this is an imaginative and fictional solution to the Piltdown mystery, and Conan Doyle is portrayed (with some sympathy, despite several elementary factual mistakes) as one of the protagonists.
27. A newspaper survey of 100 film critics reports that "The Thin Blue Line" appeared most often on their lists of ten best films in 1988, followed by "Bull Durham" and "Who Framed Roger Rabbit". More than 200 films received at least one "best" vote, including "Without a Clue" (which appeared on the list prepared by Chuck Davis of The Daily Oklahoman).
28. Does anyone know the name and address of the company that made (or sold) a "Signature Collection" of commemorative plates with artwork by Mitchell Hooks, with one plate showing Holmes and (possibly) another showing Watson? Kyle Richeson (Box 1354, Calhoun, GA 30701) would like to find (and buy) one of the plates showing Watson.

---

29. Jan 89 #5: THE WANDERINGS OF A SPIRITUALIST was Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's account of his trip to Australia and New Zealand, with his wife and children, first published in 1921 and reprinted in 1988 in a paperback facsimile of the first American edition by Ronin Publishing Inc. (Box 1035, Berkeley, CA 94701; 299 pp., $8.95). Conan Doyle described his book as a "go-as-you-please style of narrative," by way of warning readers who have no interest in spiritualism, but it is an entertaining report on what he saw and did, as well as on his beliefs.
30. THE LADIES HOLMES COMPANION: A CALENDAR FOR 1989 was on view during the birthday festivities. This is the second calendar from Harpies Bizarre, with new S'ian artwork and legible S'ian and non-S'ian daily notes. $8.95 postpaid from P. Moran, Box 854, Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02142.
31. "The next I heard of Frank was that he was in Montana, and then he went prospecting in Arizona." (Nobl) Our newest commemorative honors the 100th anniversary of statehood for Montana, with a painting by Charles M. Russell that features the artist himself, and a new postal card in the "America the Beautiful" series is based on Bart Forbes' original painting of the Sonora Desert in Arizona.
32. Robert Newman died on Dec. 7. He wrote for radio (he was in charge of the radio portion of FDR's 1944 re-election campaign) and television (episodes of "Search for Tomorrow" and "Peyton Place"), and then turned to books for young readers. THE CASE OF THE BAKER STREET IRREGULAR (D5095b) had as its protagonist a 14-year-old boy who meets both the irregulars and Sherlock Holmes in a well-written mystery that made excellent use of the Canonical characters.
33. Paul D. Herbert reports that the Forbes Magazine Gallery at 60 Fifth Avenue in New York (not far from the site of the BSI cocktail party, for future reference) had (and may still have) a display of toy soldiers from the Malcolm Forbes collection. Part of the display is a military parade by a village green, where Holmes and Watson are among the onlookers.
34. RED JACK, edited by Martin H. Greenberg, Charles G. Waugh, and Frank D. McSherry, Jr. (New York: DAW Books, 1988; 333 pp., $3.95), is an anthology of some of the better fiction about Jack the Ripper. The contents include a welcome reprint (in its entirety) of Ellery Queen's A STUDY IN TERROR (D6065a); this is a novelization of the film, with an added ending and a new solution.
35. At hand from Andrew G. Fusco: a mail-order flier from Sherlock's of Chapel Hills (Chapel Hills Mall, 1710 Briargate Boulevard, Colorado Springs, CO 80920), offering a series of Sherlockian pipe-tobacco blends.

---

36. Jan 89 #6: Marc Lovell's THE SPY WHO FELL OFF THE BACK OF A BUS (New York: Doubleday, 1988; 181 pp., $12.95) is the twelfth in a series of amusing mystery novels about British secret agent Appleton Porter, whose six-foot-seven-inch height makes his spy missions a bit difficult. In his latest case he is sent to a book-collectors' convention in Cannes, to find, authenticate, and suppress a document that threatens his nation's prestige: a one-hundred-page holograph manuscript by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in which he attacks the most famous Englishman of all time: Sherlock Holmes.

37. Peter J. Crupe reports that the Triton Gallery (323 West 45th Street, New York, NY 10036) offers a poster (42x58") from the Royal Shakespeare Company production of "Sherlock Holmes" for $45.00. Also a poster (14x22") from "Sherlock's Last Case" for $12.00. Their number for credit-card orders is 800-626-6674.
38. At least one person attending the birthday festivities and staying at the Shoreham Hotel was charged more than the rates reported here (Nov 88 #2), apparently because those rates were neither requested nor confirmed when the reservation was made. It is quite unfortunate that many businesses, including airlines and hotels, offer special rates, but only to those who request those special rates, and it is always wise, when reservations are made, to ask if there are special rates, and to confirm that you are going to receive the rates you expect. If there are others who had problems with the Shoreham, I would suggest that you write to Gerry O'Connor, the hotel's reservations manager, pointing out to her that you stayed at the hotel on a weekend, and that you believe that you should have been charged only the weekend rate.
39. EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE DUCK, by Gahan Wilson (New York: Mysterious Press, 1988; 202 pp., $15.95), is delightfully indescribable, but Wilson's way with words is as antic as with his cartoonist's pen, and just as enjoyable. The book pits three thoroughly vicious villains, including the Professor (yes, *that* Professor) against Enoch Bone and his assistant John Weston (draw your own conclusions) in a modern-day adventure that is a tribute to as well as a parody of the more picaresque pulps. Recommended.
40. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offers a new lapel pin, in full-color enamel with gold trim, of the "Sherlock Holmes" cigarette card from the Turf cigarette series; $17.00 postpaid. Bob also offers a four-page sales list of collectibles (SASE appreciated), and an illustrated flier for the Laboromnia collectibles from Britain, including plates, mugs, statues, clocks, watches, thimbles, and neckties.
41. "The Return of Sherlock Holmes Tour" to Switzerland and England, led by Scott Bond and Sherry Rose-Bond, is scheduled for June 10-24. This is a sequel to their 1987 "Final Problem Tour", and a detailed brochure (with artwork by Scott Bond) is available from Geographics Travel & Tours, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
42. Brian and Charlotte Erickson will go on-line with a new bulletin board for computerized Sherlockians in the San Francisco Bay area on Feb. 1. 221BBS operates from 6:30 to 9:30 pm PST, Sunday through Thursday, at 415-329-1703 (8 bits, no parity, 1 stop bit, 300/1200/2400 BAUD).

---

43. Jan 89 #7: NAMING THE ROSE: ESSAYS ON ECO'S THE NAME OF THE ROSE, edited by M. Thomas Inge (Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 1988; 206 pp., $27.50), is a collection of scholarly essays intended as an exploration of the cultural significance and literary contexts of Umberto Eco's novel, whose English translation was a best-seller both in hardcover (more than 500,000 copies) and in paperback (more than 1.3 million copies). The Sherlockian aspects of Eco's medieval mystery are not neglected, and Eco's own comments (in his "Prelude to a Palimpsest") are of particular interest for their warning to present and future interpreters of his work: "In several of the essays in this book I found brilliant, possible readings my novel," Eco notes, "readings I cannot absolutely challenge because they are rooted in the text and of which I became aware only by reading the readings of my readers."
44. The "Wonderworks" press release for "Young Charlie Chaplin" at hand from Paul C. Merz. This is a three-part series from Thames Television, to be broadcast by PBS-TV on Feb. 11, 18, and 25, and the cast list has Shaughan Seymour as Saintsbury, allowing inference that we will see Chaplin as Billy (he first played the role in Saintsbury's touring production of the William Gillette play, opening at the Pavilion Theatre in London in July 1903).
45. Reported: THE MACINTOSH HOLMES COMPANION (the Apple Macintosh version of the MS-DOS computerized Canon), on five 800K disks, in MacWrite 5.0 format, with public-domain software and shareware, for $59.95 plus $3.00 shipping. Details available from Baker Street Software, Box 2712, Santa Clara, CA 95055. The Macintosh graphics capability provides the full-text version of the Canon, including drawings, maps, and dancing men.
46. New hand-painted sculptures available from Keith Chrimes (112 Cramlington Road, Great Barr, Birmingham B42 2EG, England): metal figures (70mm) of Holmes and Watson (£12.00 each), and a resin wall plaque (110mm) of Holmes (£15.00).

---

47. Jan 89 #8: A pair of stories in the Lancashire Evening Post on Nov. 30, 1988 (possibly published side-by-side to allow readers to draw inferences that the paper didn't want to specify) reports on two traditions at one of Conan Doyle's schools: Stonyhurst will admit girls to its sixth form in this year, "after 400 years as an all-male preserve." Stonyhurst, however, has no plans to end its tradition of giving "six of the best to bad-behaved pupils." Stonyhurst head teacher Giles Mercer defended the school's tradition, noting that "We do what we think is right and best for our own circumstances." Corporal punishment in state schools was abolished by Parliament in 1987, but the law does not cover more than 550 independent schools, of which 27 still cane their students.
48. The new mail-order catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) offers Martin Gardner's THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN ($6.95) and Richard Lancelyn Green's LETTERS TO SHERLOCK HOLMES ($2.98), so we will likely also see these titles on the remainder tables.
49. Sherlock Hemlock is included in COOKIE MONSTER COLORING BOOK and BIG BIRD COLORING BOOK, two oversize (15 by 20 inches) Golden Book coloring books from Western Publishing Co. Scout your local toy stores.
50. Forecast: THE LOST WORLD & THE POISON BELT (300 pp., $8.95) in June from Chronicle Books (275 5th Street, San Francisco, CA 94103), according to a catalog at hand from Allen Mackler.
51. Whitbread's new Sherlock Holmes pub (Dec 88 #1) is now open, in Summerhill Road in Coseley, near Wolverhampton, which is about 13 miles northwest of Birmingham in the West Midlands. Brian Moriarty, trade-quality manager for Whitbread's, was at the opening ceremonies.
52. Bill Majeski has written a sequel to THE VERY GREAT GRANDSON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D4497b). Sherwood Holmes is featured again in a new two-act high-school comedy, SHERLOCK HOLMES' GREAT GRANDSON GOES HOLLYWOOD, available for $3.95 (plus $1.25 shipping) from the Dramatic Publishing Co., Box 109, Woodstock, IL 60098.
53. Plans progress for "the ultimate Sherlockian seminar at sea" from New York to Bermuda and back, July 23-28, 1989, arranged by Poor Little Rich Girl Travels and Chandris Fantasy Cruises. John Bennett Shaw reports that he and Dorothy are recovering nicely from last year's doctoring, and expect to be on board for the festivities. Details on the cruise are available from Mary Ellen Rich, 52 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019 (212-757-0881).
54. There are Canonical echoes in Phyllis Ann Karr's mystery story "Murder with an Artist's Rag" (featuring Senior Sergeant Rosemary Lestrade, a police detective in the late 21st century) in Space & Time #75 (winter 1989). Space & Time is a 120-page fanzine published by Gordon Linzner, 138 West 70th Street #4-B, New York, NY 10023; $5.00.
55. According to my records, my 1989 seasonal souvenir ("SARASATE PLAYS AT THE ST. JAMES'S HALL THIS AFTERNOON..."), should have reached all subscribers, either during the birthday festivities, or since, or with this mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.

---

56. Feb 89 #1: "The vogue for Sherlock Holmes . . . simply swept the country. . . . In more recent years Sherlock Holmes has become the center of a cult, with a considerable literature, clubs, and a serio-comic bibliophilic scholarship of amazing proportions." Frank Luther Mott, in GOLDEN MULTITUDES:

- THE STORY OF BEST SELLERS IN THE UNITED STATES (New York: Macmillan, 1947), noted by Gayle T. Harris. Those proportions are far more amazing, of course, more than forty years later.
57. In my discussion of the Queen's birthday honors (Jan 89 #4) I reported that Michael Holroyd's discussion of Hesketh Pearson's biography of Conan Doyle for a 1977 BBC radio program had annoyed Adrian -- who, as I neglected to remember, died in 1970. Holroyd's 1977 broadcast did report in some detail on Adrian's battles with Pearson, who was asked by the BBC to give a radio talk to celebrate the centenary of Conan Doyle's birth. Adrian threatened to retaliate against the BBC by withholding permission to broadcast any of Conan Doyle's protected works, and the BBC surrendered.
  58. A sales list at hand from Ilene and Corey Fauer (US 2, 563 Clinton Road, Paramus, NJ 07652) announces their going-out-of-business sale and offers discounts on their buttons, cards, bumper stickers, notepaper, T-shirts, signs, and other Sherlockian material.
  59. The Pequod Press, waiting impatiently for the next memoir of Turlock Loams, has turned to its resident poet, who has prepared a new collection of S'ian quatrains. BAKER STREET BOUILLABAISSE is available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincent Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.50 in cloth or $14.50 in wrappers.
  60. The Walt Disney animation of "The Wind in the Willows" is available on a 34-minute videocassette from Walt Disney Home Video. First seen in 1949 as part of the film "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad", "The Wind in the Willows" is narrated by Basil Rathbone (who mentions Sherlock Holmes in his introduction) and shows Ratty in a deerstalker and Mole in a bowler.
  61. The Master's Class of Philadelphia are planning to combine their spring meeting with the fourth annual "Dinner in Baker Street" Victorian buffet at the Dickens Inn on Apr. 30. Details available from Victoria M. Robinson, 299-B Summit House, 1450 West Chester Pike, West Chester, PA 19382.
  62. Spotted by Samuel C. Fry in THE GENTLEMEN'S CLUBS OF LONDON, by Anthony Lejeune and Malcolm Lewis (London: Macdonald and Jane's, 1979) (New York: Dorset Press, 1984): the description of The American Club at 95 Piccadilly includes Holmes' warmly Anglo-American comments from "The Noble Bachelor". The book also includes, without comment, the Canon's description of the Diogenes Club.
  63. Dr. De Lamar Gibbons uses Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson to present some of the logical deductions in THEIR SECRETS: WHY THE NAVAHO INDIANS NEVER GET CANCER. His conclusion is that "the Navahos do not get cancer because they ignorantly obey some very fundamental health rules that most of us have ignorantly disobeyed," and his book (124 pp., $10.00 postpaid) is available from the Academy of Health, Box 497, Lava Hot Springs, ID 83246.
-
64. Feb 89 #2: Lawrence Garland's THE AFFAIR OF THE UNPRINCIPLED PUBLISHER is still available from Oak Knoll Books (414 Delaware Street, New Castle, DE 19720) at $30.00 (plus $2.50 shipping). This pastiche account of an encounter between Thomas J. Wise and Sherlock Holmes was Oak Knoll's fine-press Christmas book for 1983; 22 pp. in stiff wrappers.
  65. The Land Press (South Lodge, East Heath Road, London NW3 1BL, England) has announced a new limited edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with all of the Sidney Paget illustrations from The Strand Magazine, a hitherto unpublished full-page frontispiece portrait of Holmes by Paget, and custom leather binding with four different designs available. The cost is $2,000 a copy, and the publisher offers a full-color prospectus with illustrations of the handsome designs for the binding and of the Paget frontispiece.
  66. The winter 1989 issue of The Armchair Detective has a "Report from 221B Baker Street" by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond, scattered Sherlockian reviews and other references, and an fine article by G. Michael Doogan on Dashiell Hammett's army service in Alaska during World War II, with (page 88) a photograph showing Hammett and the staff of the base newspaper The Adakian, including (at lower left) Luther L. Norris.
  67. Sir William Stephenson, who was involved with the Baker Street Irregulars during World War II, died on Jan. 31. His wartime career in British secret intelligence was described (with great verve and some mistakes) in William Stevenson's A MAN CALLED INTREPID: THE SECRET WAR (D3600b). Stephenson's Baker Street Irregulars were the Special Operations Executive, which was headquartered in Baker Street and had two functions: training people for sabotage and subversion behind enemy lines, and supervising the liaison between Britain's war effort and the underground resistance movements in enemy-occupied countries. Bickam Sweet-Escott's BAKER STREET IRREGULAR (London: Methuen, 1965) is a good source for information about the SOE.
  68. Basil Rathbone's autobiography IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER, published in 1962 and long out-of-print, has been reissued as a trade-paperback (New York: Limelight Editions, 1989; 278 pp., $10.95). Rathbone suggested in the Preface that he was a frustrated writer, but his book needed no apology, and the new edition will be welcomed by a new generation of Sherlockians, as well as by older generations frustrated by the difficulty of finding a copy of the first edition in book-dealers' catalogs. That scarcity is, of course, one indication of the quality of the book (people who have copies tend to keep them), and new readers will quickly learn that Rathbone was a fine writer. He discusses his Sherlockians films, and the radio series, and his play, with honesty and humor, and those qualities also apply to his comments on his many friends and fellow actors, and on his long career on stage and screen. Recommended.
  69. RICHARD DOYLE AND HIS FAMILY was the 76-page catalog for an exhibition at the Victoria and Albert Museum in 1983-84, with many illustrations (some in full color) of paintings and drawings by many members of the family, which included Richard's brother (Charles Altamont Doyle) and nephew (Sir Arthur Conan Doyle). And it was spotted by readers (more eagle eyed than I) in a recent catalog of discount/remainder books offered by Edward J. Hamilton, Falls Village, CT 06031; item 536067, $4.95.
-
70. Feb 89 #3: One of the nice things about living in a big city is the chance to see 70mm films with six-track Dolby sound, such as the newly restored 216-minute version of "Lawrence of Arabia" (1962). The film was (and now is again) splendid. One can find S'ian connections for almost any film, of course, but this cast includes an actor who has played Watson: at the end of the film, in Damascus, the angry British medical officer is H. Marion Crawford, who was Watson to Ronald Howard's 1954 television Holmes.
  71. One of the souvenirs distributed during the birthday festivities was Glenn Shea's list of French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Swedish editions of the Canon and other Sherlockian books available from Schoenhof's Foreign Books, 76-A Mount Auburn Street, Cambridge, MA 02138. Write to Schoenhof's for a copy of the list.
  72. The film may not have lasted long in the theaters, but the music survives: Andrew Jay Peck reports a performance of Bruce Broughton's score for "Young Sherlock Holmes" by the Greensboro (N.C.) Symphony Orchestra on Jan. 29.
  73. Reported: a third audio cassette from Simon and Schuster, with two more of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows: "The April Fool's Adventure" (Apr. 1, 1946) and "The Uneasy Easy Chair" (Apr. 13, 1946).
  74. The Mar. 1989 issue of Analog Science Fiction/Science Fact may still be on the newsstands: Harry Turtledove's story "Nothing in the Night-Time" has some pleasant Canonical echoes.
  75. Historian Barbara Tuchman died on Feb. 6. In 1985 she reported that as a teenager her favorite reading was historical novels, including Alexandre Dumas and Conan Doyle's THE WHITE COMPANY, "whose central figure did not equal the Musketeers, but the events carried the story, especially the

- dramatic siege of the castle by the fierce rebellious peasants--a scene I have never forgotten." And it was in 1985 that she re-read THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, noting that it "astonishing how this old and worn-out story, which I must have first read more than 50 years ago, gripped my attention and held it in suspense until I reached the last page." Story is the source and the bloodstream of literature, she suggested, adding that "with seeming ease Conan Doyle could achieve the goal of every writer's desire--to enthrall the reader by the written word."
76. Further to my recommendation of Gahan Wilson's EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE DUCK (Jan 89 #6), Otto Penzler offers the first edition, inscribed (or simply signed, if you prefer) with an original Sherlockian cartoon by the author, on copies ordered through The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019); $15.95 plus $3.00 shipping. Otto also reports that ENGLISH COUNTRY HOUSE MURDERS, a new collection edited by Thomas Godfrey for The Mysterious Press ($17.95), includes "The Abbey Grange" and James Miles' new S'ian story (written for the collection) "The Worcester Enigma".
  77. Michael Hardwick's THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND is now available in paperback (New York: Pinnacle Books, 1989; 347 pp., $3.95); a gigantic and ferocious hound appears on Hampstead Heath, and Holmes and Watson investigate a case that involves Oliver Cromwell and King Edward, with a climax at Highgate Cemetery.
-
78. Feb 89 #4: Check the discount tables for HOUND DUNNIT, edited by Isaac Asimov, Martin H. Greenberg, and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1987); it's a collection of mysteries that involve dogs, including "Silver Blaze", Barry Perowne's "Raffles on the Trail of the Hound", and Rex Stout's "A Dog in the Daytime".
  79. THE QUEST FOR SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: THIRTEEN BIOGRAPHERS IN SEARCH OF A LIFE, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg (Nov 87 #4) is available through Apr. 30 from the Southern Illinois University Press for $14.62 plus $3.00 shipping; #1384 in the current catalog, they take plastic, and the telephone number for credit-card orders is 800-444-8525 ext 950. The book is a fine guide to the many, and frequently unreliable, biographies.
  80. Videotaper alert (for Jeremy Brett fans): "My Fair Lady" will be broadcast on cable by The Movie Channel at 4:00 pm on March 26.
  81. It is possible that one of Michael Harrison's most important virtues is the eloquence that he inspires in others: the 1988 issue of Beeman's Christmas Annual contains six tributes from Sherlockians he met on his tours of the United States. The 24-page pamphlet is available from William R. Cochran, 517 North Vine Street, DuQuoin, IL 62832; $5.00 postpaid.
  82. THE CHRISTMAS MURDERS, edited by Jonathan Goodman (London: Sphere Books, 1988; 208 pp., £2.99), is an anthology of accounts of murders committed during the Christmas season (murders of "the old-fashioned sort," suggests the editor nostalgically, because "most present-day murderers give murder a bad name"); the contents include Conan Doyle's report on "The Case of Oscar Slater" (1912).
  83. Research proceeds on the Souvenir Edition of THE SIGN OF FOUR, for a report similar to the one on A STUDY IN SCARLET in the summer 1987 issue of BSM. Owners of copies of THE SIGN OF FOUR bound in green or blue cloth with the attractive Egyptian-motif design are invited to request a copy of my one-page questionnaire listing the points of interest identifying the variants.
  84. "Facts . . . how facts obscure the truth. I may be silly--in fact, I'm off my head--but I never could believe in that man--what's his name, in those capital stories?--Sherlock Holmes." Basil Grant is the Mycroftian figure in G. K. Chesterton's story "The Tremendous Adventures of Major Brown", and Grant's younger brother Rupert is in many respects a parody of Sherlock Holmes, in that story and five more, collected in THE CLUB OF QUEER TRADES (1905) and now available in a welcome trade-paperback reprint (New York: Dover Publications, 1987; 146 pp., $4.95). The reprint also offers all of Chesterton's artful illustrations (not included in the first American ed.), and a perceptive introduction by Martin Gardner.
  85. Thayer Cumings ("His Last Bow") died on Feb. 19. A senior executive in the advertising world (vice president and director of Batten Barton Durstine & Osborne) and a member of The Five Orange Pips as well as the BSI, his many contributions to our literature appeared in the BSI from 1946 to 1958, in THE BEST OF THE PIPS (1955), and in his own collection SEVEN ON SHERLOCK (1968).
-
86. Feb 89 #5: Fans of Margery Allingham's books can look forward to seeing "Campion" on "Mystery!" this autumn; Peter Davison will play Albert Champion, and Brian Glover will play his ex-con cockney manservant Magersfontein Lugg. Vincent Price will end his long tenure as the host of "Mystery!" at the end of this season. Pacific Arts Video has dropped the price of its videocassettes of the four Australian animations (with Peter O'Toole as Holmes) to $19.95 each. All this news from the fifth issue of Anglofile (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033; $12.00 a year).
  87. News from Britain: Jeremy Brett has told an interviewer that "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" will run at Wyndham's Theatre until September, when the play will move to Birmingham and then to Manchester, and while they are in the North, Granada will begin work on the next Sherlock Holmes series.
  88. Sherlockians on tour in Britain should not neglect the Brambletye Hotel in Forest Row, Surrey. The hotel honors its appearance in the Canon with a wall display of Sherlockian theater posters, and the hotel's bar is named in honor of Black Peter.
  89. "Young Charlie Chaplin" (on "Wonderworks" on PBS-TV) did show Chaplin as Billy in H. A. Saintsbury's touring company of the Gillette play, in the second episode, broadcast on Feb. 18. But the time sequence in the series was compressed: Chaplin's father did die in 1901, but Chaplin first played with Saintsbury in July 1903 (in "Jim, A Romance of Cockayne" and then in the Gillette play). Chaplin was hired by Gillette to play Billy in Oct. 1905 (in "The Painful Predicament of Sherlock Holmes" and then in "Sherlock Holmes"), and that's when he first met Marie Doro. Chaplin's mother was institutionalized twice, first in May 1903 and again in Mar. 1905. The best biography of Charlie Chaplin (well-written and reliable) is CHAPLIN: HIS LIFE AND ART, by David Robinson (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1985).
  90. "The Hound of the Baskervilles, by A Collie Dog" (a soft vinyl dog toy in the shape of a book) is still to be found in some pet shops. It is made by Vo-Toys Inc., Harrison, NJ 07029 (item 491) but they sell only wholesale; you could ask a neighborhood pet shop to find out who the local distributor for Vo-Toys is, and order for you.
  91. Bill Nadel reports hearing of the recent death of Frank Giacoia, who drew the fine Sherlock Holmes comic strip that ran in the N.Y. Herald Tribune from 1954 through 1956 (D6196a and D5818b).
  92. Videotaper alert: "An Appointment with Sherlock Holmes" will be broadcast in syndication in April, generally on independent television stations, on different dates in different cities. Marketed by Multimedia Entertainment, the three-hour program has colorized versions of two Rathbone/Bruce films ("Secret Weapon" and "Woman in Green"). A second program (with "Dressed to Kill" and "Terror by Night") will be available in the fall.
  93. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offers copies of Charles Hall's book THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COLLECTION: THE GREAT DETECTIVE AND HIS CREATOR (Jan 88 #3) at $27.00 postpaid. It's a 100-page gathering of pictorial material, mostly British but also including unusual items such as stills from Danish, German and Czech films, and Soviet television.
-
94. Feb 89 #6: THE LITERATURE OF CRIME AND DETECTION: AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY FROM ANTIQUITY TO THE PRESENT, by Waltraud Woeller and Bruce Cassiday (New York: Ungar, 1988; 215 pp., $24.50), was first published in Germany in 1984. The revised American edition offers an extended survey, from the 5th century BC (Aeschylus and Sophocles) to the 1980s (Joe Gores and Elmore Leonard); Sherlock Holmes and Conan Doyle are not

- neglected, but the real strength of the book is in its coverage of the genre in countries such as Switzerland, Germany, France, Czechoslovakia, Japan, Sweden, and the Soviet Union.
95. Four words in the English language end in "gry". Two are angry and hungry. What are the other two? I'm not sure why anyone would pose that question to Ann Landers, or why she would run it in her syndicated advice column, but one of her readers recommended that she consult "the best authority on words in the United States," which turned out to be George H. Scheetz, head of the public library in Sioux City, Iowa -- and one of the founders of The Hansoms of John Clayton as well as the first editor of the scion's journal Wheelwrightings. George offered a list of 48 words ending in "gry", almost all of which Ann Landers rejected as being too obscure or too foreign, as well as not being included in any of the seven dictionaries she uses. But she reported (Jan. 31) that there are five acceptable candidates in the Oxford English Dictionary, the other three being aggrgy, meagry, and puggry.
  96. "Then the buckboards," said Sherlock Holmes, commenting on the rather unusual assortment of agricultural machinery advertised by Howard Garrideb. The U.S. Postal Service reports that a buckboard can be seen in Wendell Minor's design for our new commemorative honoring the 100th anniversary of North Dakota statehood. According to sharp-eyed philatelists, it's a farm wagon, not a buckboard (a proper philatelic buckboard is shown in the BJS, Sept. 1985, p. 189). But Howard Garrideb's advertisement also mentioned farmers' carts, so you can take your pick and still be Canonical.
  97. Two more philatelic items, from Canada, show a red fox and a grizzly bear. There are many mentions of foxes in the Sherlock Holmes stories, including the description of Lady Frances Carfax as "a stray chicken in a world of foxes" and of "Mortimer Tregennis, with the foxy face," but there is only one mention of a grizzly bear ("The clumsy grizzly bear lumbers through the dark ravines" in "A Study in Scarlet").
  98. Check to see if your doctor gets MD magazine, and is willing to surrender the Feb. 1989 issue, which has an article on "Doctoring the Evidence", by William B. Ober. The article is a Canonically illustrated revision of his classic investigation of "The Dying Detective" (D2365a).
  99. Reported by Vivian Heisler: Jeremy Brett played the title role in "Macbeth" on stage in Los Angeles in 1981 (with Pipe Laurie as Lady Macbeth), and there is a videocassette available. Brett fans can check the local shops.
-
100. Mar 89 #1: The third audio cassette with two 1946 Rathbone/Bruce broadcasts "The April Fool's Day Adventure" and "The Uneasy Easy Chair") with introductions and comments by Mary Green (the wife of Denis Green, who shared writing credit with Anthony Boucher) has been released ($9.95). Fans frustrated by poor distribution of the cassettes will welcome the news that the sales campaign through American Express is underway, with 26 cassettes in the series. The first two cassettes are offered free (with a $2.95 charge for shipping and handling), and then they will ship three cassettes every two months ($29.95 plus $2.95).
  101. Videotaper alert: Betty Pierce reports that Granada's "The Final Problem" and "The Empty House" will be broadcast by the Disney Channel on Apr. 2, by way of beginning their run of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes".
  102. And some more information on "An Appointment with Sherlock Holmes" (the three-hour package due in syndication on independent television stations in April). It's open for broadcast in a four-week window (Apr. 3 through Apr. 30), and will have 18 two-minute commercial breaks (it's a barter package, with your local stations allowed to sell one minute in each of the breaks). The program will have colorized versions of "Secret Weapon" and "Woman in Green" (with Eli Wallach as host); I've seen a promotional cassette, and the colorization is, I fear, pretty much the washed-out standard for such work. A second program will be open for broadcast later this year (Nov. 24 through Dec. 23), with "Dressed to Kill" and "Terror by Night".
  103. Richard Armour, the splendid poet and satirist, died on Feb. 28. He wrote more than 6,000 items of humorous poetry and prose, including the poems "On Last Looking into Watson's Holmes" (BSJ, Apr. 1946) and "Ban: Hungary Has Banned Sherlock Holmes" (The New Leader, Mar. 9, 1953; and BJS, Jan. 1954).
  104. National Pipesmokers' Week was celebrated on March 12-19, and Rick Hacker (the author of THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK) reports that participating Tinder Box International shops had (and may well still have) Sherlockian buttons, offered free to any Sherlockian who asks for one. A poster may also be available. While in London in January, Rick presented Jeremy Brett with the British Pipesmoker of the Year Award.
  105. Herb Tinning reports a new and imaginatively named business in New Jersey:
-
106. Mar 89 #2: Sherlockians seeking centenaries to celebrate in 1989 can, of course, turn to the Canon: it was a busy year for Holmes, with Baring-Gould dating six of the recorded cases in 1889, as well as several of the unrecorded cases and other important events such as the marriage of John H. Watson to Mary Morstan. But there are also some significant 50th anniversaries to be celebrated this year. It was in 1939 that "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" were released by Twentieth Century-Fox, and Edith Meiser's radio series "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" began, all with Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce in roles that provided them with an opportunity that all too few actors have had: to create an archetype. They were not the first actors to portray Holmes and Watson, certainly, but they were the first to do so in an age when modern technology made their films and radio broadcasts so widely available that their characters became accepted standards. The fact that those standards were not necessarily accurate, especially in the case of Nigel Bruce (who nevertheless did a splendid job with the role that was written for him), does not diminish the effect that their portrayals had on their audiences.
  107. This year's running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont in New York will be held on Saturday, Sept. 23. If you would like to be on the mailing list, write to Stephen L. Stix, Route 1, Box 452, Markleville, IN 46056.
  108. A CASE OF BLIND FEAR #1 (Jan. 1989) is now in the comic-book shops. This is the first issue of Eternity's four-part sequel to SCARLET IN GASLIGHT, and has Sherlock Holmes involved in tracking down The Invisible Man. And SHERLOCK HOLMES #7 (Jan. 1989) is also available, continuing Eternity's reprints of the Meiser/Giacoia newspaper comic strips; the series has now run through their pastiches, and is doing Canonical stories, starting with "A Scandal in Bohemia". CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #14 (July 1988) seems to have been the last issue from Renegade.
  109. Further to the report (Feb 89 #6) from Ann Landers that George H. Scheetz is "the best authority on words in the United States," Bob Burr reports that George has issued a clarification, suggesting that he is rather only the best authority on words ending in "gry". So there's no need to send George questions such as: how many words are there in English that contain all of the vowels, in correct order?
  110. Forecast for April: Julian Symons' A THREE-PIPE PROBLEM, a trade-paperback reprint by Penguin, $4.95. Also: Eve Titus' BASIL AND THE LOST COLONY, a trade-paperback reprint by Minstrel/Pocket Books, $2.50.
  111. It would appear that the curse of the Baskervilles has not yet been laid to rest. At hand from Mel Ruiz is a report that Peter Cushing is now in the hospital for treatment of a fractured leg. He was cycling last month near his home at Whitstable in Kent, and was knocked off his bicycle by a pack of hounds.

112. Beth Kalikoff's MURDER AND MORAL DECAY IN VICTORIAN POPULAR LITERATURE (Aug 87 #3) has been reissued by the UMI Research Press in paperback (193 pp., $19.95); it's a scholarly discussion of the portrayal of murder during the Victorian age, from the street literature of 1830 to the fiction of 1900 (including the Sherlock Holmes stories).
-
113. Mar 89 #3: 1989 is also the 50th anniversary of the film "The Wizard of Oz". There have been four Oz pastiches involving The Great Detective published in the magazine Oziana, but there is a much earlier connection between the creator of Oz and Sherlock Holmes, in "The King of Gee-Whiz" (a three-act "musical extravaganza"), written by L. Frank Baum and Emerson Hough, registered for copyright in 1905 but apparently never produced. At the end of the play, Willie Cook, a fat missionary, emerges from a cannibal kettle to declare that he is none other than Sherlock Holmes. See Anthony Boucher's article in the BSJ (July 1959) for more details on the show.
114. Fred Stone and David Montgomery starred in the musical version of "The Wizard of Oz" in 1902, and in 1906 they appeared in Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill" as Con Kidder and Kid Conner, impersonating Holmes and Watson, and "The Red Mill" included the earliest known use of the line, "Quick, Watson, the needle." William Gillette is reported to have told Stone, after Gillette saw "The Red Mill", that he would probably have to learn to dance for his next portrayal of Holmes. Richard R. Rutter has reported on this at greater length in Shadows of the Gnomon (July 1981), as has Daniel P. Mannix in The Baum Bugle (summer 1981 and autumn 1981).
115. "An Abraham Lincoln keyed to base uses instead of high ones would give some idea of the man," reads the description of J. Neil Gibson in "Thor Bridge". Abraham Lincoln is shown on a 90-cent stamp issued in 1869 and reprinted on a commemorative honoring the World Stamp Expo (to be held in Washington later this year).
116. Viewers of "The Last Place on Earth" on PBS-TV last year (Jun 88 #4) will recall the huge tonnage of supplies that Capt. Scott took with him on his ill-fated attempt to be the first man to reach the South Pole. The hut on Cape Evans, from which Scott staged his expedition, was preserved and can still be visited, as it was recently by Paul Brown, who reported in The Guardian (Feb. 15, 1989) that "by Scott's bunk was THE GREEN FLAG AND OTHER STORIES OF WAR AND SPORT by A. Conan Doyle, labelled inside the flyleaf 'British Antarctic Expedition 1910'."
117. Herb Tinning reports a variant edition of "The Hound of the Baskervilles by A Collie Dog" (Feb 89 #5). His copy, acquired in London, has a "Good Boy Press" publisher's imprint on the spine and a sales tag noting that it was "made specially for Armitages in Taiwan" (there's no publisher's imprint on the spine of mine, which was "made in U.S.A."). Compulsive collectors can write to Armitage Bros., Colwick, Nottingham, England.
118. It doesn't take long for most movies to appear in the video shops: Andrew Jay Peck reports an advertisement from Orion Home Video announcing May 25 as the "street date" for "Without a Clue". The price will be $89.95.
119. Mark W. Erdrich (49 Kings Lacey Way, Fairport, NY 14450) is interested in the use of Sherlockian artwork or themes in advertisements for computers and other electronic wonders. Please send him photocopies if you encounter such items.
-
120. Mar 89 #4: Leslie Bricusse's "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" (with Ron Moody as Holmes) had a one-month run in Exeter last year (Dec 88 #1), and will open at the Cambridge Theatre in London on April 24. The Daily Mail reported (Feb. 25) that Michael Caine and "top Hollywood mogul" Aaron Spelling are two of the backers of the £1.25 million production.
121. Julian Symons' A THREE-PIPE PROBLEM (D5202b) has been reissued by Penguin in their trade-paperback "classic crime" series (192 pp., $4.95).
122. Georgia was one of the "different parts of the country" in which the Ku Klux Klan formed local branches ("The Five Orange Pips"). Georgia's Okefenokee Swamp is shown in the painting by Bart Forbes used on the new postal card in the "America the Beautiful" series.
123. "Rosenblatt Back on the Bench," according to the headline on an article in the New York Law Journal, at hand from Andy Peck. Our congratulations to Al Rosenblatt, who was appointed by Governor Cuomo to be a justice of the appellate division. Al has been serving as the chief administrative judge, and will now "turn his attention from case-disposition statistics, computer networks, and fencing with the legislature over court budgets, back to the search-and-seizure issues, contract interpretation and state constitutional arguments he left behind nearly two years ago."
124. An older item to watch for (discovered by John B. Taylor): THE CASE OF THE FELON'S FIDDLE: A MCGURK MYSTERY, by E. W. Hildick (New York: Macmillan, 1982); one of a series for younger readers, with McGurk imagining that he is Sherlock Holmes as he and his friends attempt to solve a mystery.
125. Reported by Dana Richards: GARDNER'S WHYS & WHEREFORES, by Martin Gardner (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1989); a collection of Gardner's recent writings. "Did Sherlock Holmes Meet Father Brown?" is a review of Bayer's SOME NOTES ON A MEETING AT CHISHAM, reprinted from BSM (winter 1984) with a new postscript.
126. And there's a Sherlockian cover on the Mar.-Apr. 1898 "special edition" of Games (marked for newsstand display until Apr. 25).
127. Poor Little Rich Girl Travels and Chandris Fantasy Cruises report that the demand for deluxe cabins on the S.S. Galileo for "the ultimate Sherlockian seminar at sea" from New York to Bermuda and back, July 23-28, 1989, has exhausted the supply, and that the remaining standard accommodations are selling briskly. The deadline for reservations is Apr. 23, and details on the cruise are available from Mary Ellen Rich, 52 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019 (212-757-0881).
128. A two-cassette set from the BBC Audio Collection is being marketed here by The Mind's Eye (Box 6727, San Francisco, CA 94101) and available in some stores at $14.95. "Sherlock Holmes: Vol. 1" has four of the Hobbs/Shelley programs ("Spec", "Chas", "Scan", and RedH"). The Mind's Eye charges $3.50 for shipping and handling, and their toll-free number is 800-227-2020.
-
129. Mar 89 #5: We try to avoid vague reports, but vague is all there is on this one: The BBC World Service has made, and will broadcast (sometime) a long interview with Jeremy Brett about Sherlock Holmes and the television series and the play. Their monthly magazine London Calling may (or may not) be helpful in providing a more specific warning.
130. Catalog at hand from Gary Lovisi (Gryphon Publications, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228), announcing a new printing of his pamphlet (52 pp., $4.00) RELICS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (BSJ Sep 87) and his new bibliography SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE GREAT DETECTIVE IN PAPERBACK; the latter title will be a revised and expanded edition (100+ pp., $19.95 cloth or $9.95 paper) of his SHERLOCK HOLMES: 50 YEARS OF THE GREAT DETECTIVE IN PAPERBACK (BSJ Mar 84).
131. Another mail-order source for audio cassettes (S'ian and otherwise): Audio Editions (Box 6930, Auburn, CA 95604) offers the first two of the "221A"
132. Rathbone/Bruce reissues ($9.95 each); three two-cassette packages read by Robert Hardy (each with four stories, $16.95); three more with long stories ("Houn", "Sign", "Stud") read by Hugh Burden or Tony Britton (each $16.95). They take plastic, and their phone number is 800-231-4261.
133. The 13-hour dramatization of Len Deighton's "Game, Set and Match" has begun on "Mystery!" on PBS-TV, and there may well be Sherlockian references in the series: in the books, KGB colonel Lenin was an admirer of the Sherlock Holmes stories. Mel Martin, who plays Fiona Samson, was Alice Faulkner in the Royal Shakespeare Company's revival of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" in Washington and New York in 1974 and 1975.

134. The latest mail-order catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) offers (item 1262336) the Galley Press edition of THE CONAN DOYLE STORIES ($9.95) and (item 1546977) the Doubleday one-volume edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES ($12.95). Both are bargains, and THE CONAN DOYLE STORIES is especially recommended: it's a collection of 76 fine examples of ACD's skills as a teller of tales, reprinted from the 1956 John Murray edition (the stories are non-S'ian, except for the apocryphal "The Lost Special" and "The Man with the Watches").
135. Brian MacDonald reports: THE MYSTERIOUS PROWLER and THE FORGOTTEN TREASURE, by Francis Carfi Matranga, published by Victor Books and featuring Nina, also known as "Lady Sherlock Holmes" ($5.00 each from Heavenly Blessings, 210 North Jefferson, Martinsville, IN 46151).
136. Also from Brian: "The Case of the Colorful Disappearing Eggs: An Intriguing Egg Decorating Kit" (an 8-inch-square box) with Harelock Holmes and Dr. Wabbitson on the cover and inside (where they are joined by Bunny-Arity). $1.79 at discount and drugstores, and possibly still available (item #1724) from the manufacturer (Easter Unlimited, Carle Place, NY 11514).
137. The British government has suggested that Britain's six largest brewers be required to sell many of their "tied pubs" -- one of which is Whitbread's "The Sherlock Holmes" in London. There are about 45,000 "tied pubs" in Britain (and about 37,000 "free houses"), and the government has proposed that no brewer be allowed to own more than 2,000 pubs. If the proposal is adopted, Whitbread would be required to sell more than 4,000 of its pubs.
-
138. Mar 89 #6: The Jan. 1989 issue of the August Derleth Society Newsletter reprints Peter Ruber's "A Weekend with August Derleth" (his introduction to the 1965 Candlelight Press edition of PRAED STREET PAPERS), with some additional comment. Membership in the society includes their quarterly newsletter, and costs $5.00 a year. The society also has just published REMEMBERING DERLETH, a 112-page booklet of Derlethiana (including two pages about The Praed Street Irregulars) at $7.00 postpaid. Membership dues and orders for the booklet (membership is not required) can be sent to the society, c/o Herb Attix, 3333 Westview Lane, Madison, WI 53713.
139. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: TAUCHNITZ INTERNATIONAL EDITIONS IN ENGLISH 1841-1955, by William B. Todd and Ann Bowden (New York: Bibliographical Society of America, 1988; $75.00), with discussion (pp. 412, 919, 941) of John's library and his four Tauchnitz editions of the Canon once owned by the Czarina. And listings of the many Tauchnitz editions of ACD's works.
140. Star Trek: The Official Fan Club Magazine #65 has a color cover and other photographs of Brent Spiner playing Lt. Cdr. Data playing Sherlock Holmes, as seen on "Elementary, Dear Data" on "Star Trek: The Next Generation" in Dec. 1988. The magazine costs $3.00 postpaid from Star Trek: The Official Fan Club, Box 11100, Aurora, CO 80011.
141. It appears that the markets for videocassettes differ in Britain and the U.S., if prices for new releases are any indication. Granada's "Houn" and "Sign" are available in Britain at a suggested retail price of £9.99 each (that's $16.88). It might be that the rental market in Britain is so small that companies ignore that segment, concentrating instead on direct sales. But it is also possible that cassettes of television programs are priced low because so many people have already recorded the programs off-the-air.
142. Those who carefully examined Jeff Decker's fine cartoon in the BSJ (Dec 88) will have noticed the Adventuress asking, "How many B.S.I.'s does it take to screw in a lightbulb?" We will be happy to publish the best suggestions for a response to this question.
143. For those who are not familiar with this sort of exchange, the format goes: How many folk singers does it take to screw in a light bulb? Two: one to change the bulb and one to write a song about how good the old light bulb was. Or: how many consultants does it take to change a light bulb? I'll have an estimate for you a week from Monday.
144. Brian and Charlotte Erickson (726 Sutter Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94303) have announced a new edition of THE INVENTORY OF 221B BAKER STREET (Oct 87 #5); this is a booklet of text and photographs describing the recreation of the sitting-room in San Francisco, and the cost is $8.00 postpaid.
145. Illustrated sales list at hand from Chuck Kovacic (18307 Burbank Boulevard #49, Tarzana, CA 91356), offering full-color reproductions of Sherlockiana such as a lobby card for the Rathbone/Bruce "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes", the "Spy" caricature of William Gillette for Vanity Fair, the Turf cigarette cards from Boguslavski, and the 1914 advertisement for Postum. Chuck also offers a handsome new four-color lapel pin honoring The Hound of the Baskervilles.
-
146. Apr 89 #1: It's not all that easy to find "The Hound of the Baskervilles, by A. Collie Dog" (a soft vinyl dog toy in the shape of a book), without worrying about the fact that there are at least three variants. Tom Stix reports that you can order from Plaza Pet World, 91 Closter Plaza, Closter, NJ 07624 ($6.00 postpaid); this is the "made in Spain" variant.
147. It wasn't all that long ago that the Motion Picture Association of America was campaigning hard against the VCR, because it was such a threat to the movie business, but MPAA president Jack Valenti has changed his mind. "The more a person watches movies on a VCR, the more that person is drawn to view a movie in a theater," Valenti has concluded, based on studies that show that movie attendance has increased along with VCR sales. In 1971, movie attendance was 800 million admissions, and in 1988 admissions neared 1.1 billion, with box-office revenues at an all-time high of $4.4 billion.
148. Dame Ngaio Marsh, shown on a stamp in a set issued this year to honor New Zealand authors, wrote a fine series of mystery novels about Inspector (and later Superintendent) Roderick Alleyn, and echoed the Canon from time to time, as in GRAVE MISTAKE (1978).
149. Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119) offers a seven-page sales list of Sherlockian books.
150. Andrea (formerly Mrs. Sheldon) Reynolds is planning to marry in July -- but her new husband won't be Claus von Bulow. According to the [London] Daily Mail (Mar. 13), Andrea will marry Shaun Plunket, heir to a title dating from the early nineteenth century, when one of his ancestors was Lord Chancellor of Ireland.
151. More news from Hollywood: "Without a Clue" had a box-office gross of more than $8 million, as of Dec. 20, 1988 -- far less than the cost of the film, which thus is a commercial failure so far.
152. The new edition of THE INVENTORY OF 221B BAKER STREET (Oct 87 #5) has 21 pages and is available for $8.00 postpaid from Brian and Charlotte Erickson (726 Sutter Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94303); this is a booklet of text and photographs describing the recreation of the sitting-room in San Francisco.
153. "Sherlock Holmes and the Weather", by Randall S. Cerveny and Sandra W. Brazel, is the lead article in the Apr. 1989 issue of Weatherwise (4000 Albemarle Street NW, Washington, DC 20016; $3.50). The article deals with Holmes and an observer and forecaster of the weather, and there's a fine color cover by Ron Blalock.
154. THE BEST HORROR STORIES OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, edited by Frank D. McSherry, Martin H. Greenberg, and Charles G. Waugh (Chicago: Academy Chicago, 1989; 294 pp., $6.95), has an Introduction by McSherry and 13 of Conan Doyle's fine tales in this genre. Many of the stories will be familiar, but one of them ("The Silver Hatchet") was first published in 1883 and has, I believe, been reprinted only twice before in this century.
-
155. Apr 89 #2: Frank Morley, in LITERARY BRITAIN: A READER'S GUIDE TO ITS WRITERS AND LANDMARKS (New York: Harper & Row, 1980, p. 31), suggests that "it was on that footway of Hungerford Bridge, on the black rain-drenched equinoctial night in September 1887, that Sherlock Holmes

- allowed the young John Openshaw to be intercepted and lured to death on the Embankment, as five orange pips had fatefully foretold." In the Canon it is the Waterloo Bridge. Does anyone know of any discussion, by Morley or others, on why it would have been the Hungerford Bridge?
156. Charles Higham, author of THE ADVENTURES OF CONAN DOYLE, has written a new biography. In CARY GRANT: THE LONELY HEART (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1989; 358 pp., $18.95), Higham and co-author Roy Moseley claim that Grant had homosexual affairs with Randolph Scott and Howard Hughes.
  157. "Many thanks for the remarks in which I am sure that you are quite right," Conan Doyle wrote to Captain Charles Low from Undershaw. "I stupidly mixed up Vernon with Venables. If there is ever a reprint I shall see to that." Conan Doyle lived at Undershaw from 1897 to 1907. There is no Vernon or Venables in the Canon: can anyone suggest a non-Canonical reference?
  158. David L. Hammer (Gasogene Press, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004) offers a new sales-list for Gasogene's in-print and upcoming titles.
  159. British news from Roger Johnson: Peterson of Dublin introduced a "Sherlock Holmes" briar pipe in 1987 (seen selling for $100 to $125 in a New York pipe shop in Jan. 1988), and is now offering a "Baskerville" pipe; there will be others in the series, to be issued at six-month intervals. And a list of Granada-related Sherlockiana is available from Judith M. Naylor, Merchandise Manager, Granada Studio Tours, Manchester, M60 9EA, England).
  160. Christopher Roden (Grasmere, 35 Penfold Way, Dodleston, Chester CH4 9ML, England) is preparing for the official launching of The Arthur Conan Doyle Society on May 22 (Sir Arthur's birthday). He plans to publish a journal twice a year, supplemented by a regular newsletter, and you can write to him for a copy of his publicity flier. Membership outside the U.K. will cost £10.00 a year (plus £4.50 a year if airmail is desired).
  161. The seventh annual "Autumn in Baker Street" will be held at Bear Mountain, N.Y., on Oct. 7-8, 1989. Robert E. Thomalen (69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709) will be happy to send you a copy of this year's flier.
  162. "A Tourist Guide to the London of Sherlock Holmes" (D1889b), a collection of Charles O. Merriman's fine articles in the SHJ, has been reprinted by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London; $6.50 postpaid (checks payable to the Society) from Capt. W. R. Michell, The Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset TA13 5JX, England.
  163. "They Might Be Giants" is the title of an album of rock music recorded by "They Might Be Giants" and issued by Bar-None Records in 1986 (and still available on tape and records). There's nothing S'ian about the recording, except for the title of the group, which was taken by John Flansburgh and John Linnell (who *are* "They Might Be Giants") from the name of the George C. Scott film.
-
164. Apr 89 #3: A clipping from the Cleveland Plain Dealer, at hand from Tom and Ruthann Stetak, reveals that there is a Cleveland Club of Washington, founded in 1957, with membership requirements as strict as those of some S'ian societies. "To join, a prospective member has to have been born in Cleveland, raised in Cleveland, graduated from a Cleveland university, lived in Cleveland, flown over Cleveland in an airplane, know how to spell Cleveland, or generally agree to the principles of the club (which have never been spelled out)."
  165. Tom and Ruthann also report that there is a minor Sherlockian connection for the new film "Major League": the deerstalkers that Tom and Ruthann wore in the stadium when the long-shots were taken of the 65,000 spectators.
  166. American Express has shipped the first two cassettes in its subscription series (Mar 89 #1) covering the 26 cassettes to be issued by 221A Baker Street Associates (each with two programs from the Rathbone/Bruce radio series). The two cassettes are the same as those already available in stores (though with different packaging). Tom Galbo has had a letter from Ken Greenwald of 221 "A" Baker Street Associates, explaining some of the problems they have had with distribution through the Waldenbooks and B. Dalton chains, and noting that the chains are gearing up to do better (in June Waldenbooks will have a special counter display of the first four cassettes), but the chains will have one new cassette every three months. American Express, however, will be releasing three new cassettes every two months; their subscription series is available only to card-holders, but if you (or a friend) are a card-holder, the toll-free number for orders is 800-528-8000. Ken Greenwald also notes that the contents of the first cassette (with "The Unfortunate Tobacconist" and "The Paradol Chamber") are not exactly the same as on the LP record album: one of the commercials has been deleted from the cassette, and Ben Wright's introduction is shorter (this was done to preserve the collector's-item status of the LP album).
  167. THE FORGOTTEN TREASURE is one of four titles in a series of "Nina Christina Mysteries" by Frances Carfi Matranga (Wheaton: Victor Books, 1986); Nina is a modern twelve-year-old, known to her friends and family as "Lady Sherlock Holmes" as she solves a pleasant suburban mystery.
  168. Adela Holzer, who was one of the producers of the New York production of the Royal Shakespeare Company's revival of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" in 1974, seems to be unable to stay out of jail. In 1979 she was convicted of swindling a group of investors out of $2.3 million, and served two years in the women's state prison at Bedford Hills. Now she's in a cell on Rikers Island, unable to raise $1 million in bail, while awaiting trial on charges of cheating a new set of investors out of more than $7 million.
  169. The Society's summer tour will be a visit to Cambridge, and the guidebook will be available to those who cannot join the tour; $17.50 postpaid (and checks again payable to the Society) from Jonathan McCafferty, 5 Jonathan Court, Windmill Road, Chiswick, London W4 1SA, England.
  170. Travelers to London might wish to request a copy of the brochure offered by City Walks of London (9/11 Kensington High Street, London W8 5HP, England); their walking tours include "The Sherlock Holmes Trail of Mystery".
-
171. Apr 89 #4: Eternity Comics has published SHERLOCK HOLMES CASEBOOK #1 and #2 (both dated Mar. 1989), reprinting the 1961 comic books NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D6189a and D6190a), omitting the page about Sir Arthur Conan Doyle that appeared inside the back cover of D6189a and adding a new page on "Sherlock Holmes' London Haunts" that I don't recall seeing before. How times change: the 1961 comic books (all in color) cost 15 cents each on the stands, while the 1989 comic books (in black and white except for the cover) cost $2.25 each at your local comic-book shop.
  172. John Woolford's long article on "Sherlock Holmes" in the Apr. 1989 issue of the Scott Stamp Monthly is well illustrated (photographs show the 1984 set from Turks & Caicos Islands and covers from two of the recent British stamp booklets). Box 828, Sidney, OH 45365; $3.00.
  173. Frances Steloff died on Apr. 15, at the age of 101. In 1920 she founded the Gotham Book Mart in New York and made her store a gathering place for authors and their readers. "Wise men fish here" was the slogan she chose for her bookshop, and one of those wise men was Christopher Morley, who discovered the shop in 1931, and spent many hours helping with publicity and other business matters (such as writing a set of dunning verses to be sent to delinquent customers). When Frances Steloff was arrested in 1935, charged with selling obscene literature (the Random House edition of Andre Gide's autobiography), Morley came to her defense, in his "Bowling Green" column in the Saturday Review of Literature, and Morley's column was quoted by the judge when he dismissed the case. The Gotham Book Mart continues in business (at 41 West 47th Street), and is well worth a visit.
  174. THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN, edited by Martin Gardner, was a delightful exploration of the first collection of Chesterton's stories about the "little priest" (and the annotations do not neglect the S'ian aspects of the stories). First published at $18.95 (Jul 87 #4), the book is now discounted at $4.95 (item 839825) in the April catalog from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031).

175. Reported by Michael McClure: the comic book WEB OF SPIDERMAN (#50, May 1989) has (page 40) a panel in which Spidey explains how he used "an old Sherlock Holmes story" to solve a mystery.
176. Sheldon Wesson's THE SHERLOCKIAN TRIVIALITY INDEX is an ingenious analysis of the Canon, proposed to The Red Circle in 1983 and privately published in 1985, and now available as an attractive miniature book (2.0 by 2.3 inches) from The Press of Ward Schori, 2716 Noyes Street, Evanston, IL 60201. The volume is a fine small-press production, bound in suede, and costs $30.00 postpaid.
177. Further to the paragraph (Mar 89 #5) on the adaptation of Len Deighton's "Game, Set & Match" on "Mystery!" on PBS, Mike Kean has reminded me of his article on "Deighton's Spies and Sherlock" in Wheelwrightings (Jan. 1987). It was KGB colonel Stinnes who admired the Sherlock Holmes stories, and Samson called him Lenin. The actor who played Stinnes in the television series didn't look at all like Lenin, and the Sherlockian exchange was omitted from the television script. There was a lesser S'ian exchange in the book MEXICO SET, but the series will probably skip that, too.
-
178. Apr 89 #5: The Basil Rathbone Collection" is a 101-minute videocassette with some interesting older television material not otherwise available: "A Christmas Carol" (with Rathbone as Ebenezer Scrooge), "The Christopher Program" (a religious talk show with Rathbone as guest), "I the Leader" (with Rathbone as the leader of a gang of criminals), "The Stones Began to Move" (with Rathbone as a scientist who helps to solve the riddle of the pyramids), and a two-and-a-half-minute commercial Rathbone made for the Prudential Insurance Co. There are also theatrical previews for three of Rathbone's films, including "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (this is the only S'ian item in the collection, but it's an international version without dialog, allowing voice-overs to be added in other languages). The cassette (VHS only, on TDK High Standard tape) can be ordered from George Stover, Cinemacabre Video, Box 10005, Baltimore, MD 21285 ($24.95 plus a $2.00 shipping charge). TDK Extra High Grade tape is available on request, for an additional $2.00.
179. Renegade's comic-book series has resumed after a hiatus: CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #15 (Sept. 1988) is on the stands, with "The Adventure of Charles Augustus Milverton" (and "The Adventure of the Solitary Cyclist" announced for the next issue).
180. The Pequod Press is "relentlessly moving on" with plans to complete Dr. Fatso's memoirs of Mr. Turlock Loams, and announces THE ADVENTURE OF THE CARDBOARD LOX, available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.50 cloth or $14.50 paper.
181. Reported by Bob Burr: the 1888 first edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET offered for sale by a dealer at last month's New York Antiquarian Book Fair, priced at $40,000. I don't know whether it was sold, but that's the highest price I know of for any item of published Sherlockiana (and only one manuscript has ever changed hands at a price higher than $40,000).
182. Alert readers of the television schedules were the only ones to have any advance warning of the new Sherlockian episode in the "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" series broadcast on cable by the USA Network on Apr. 22, since there seems to have been no advance warning. "My Dear Watson" (filmed in Toronto in Oct. 1989) featured Brian Bedford (Sherlock Holmes) and Patrick Monckton (Dr. Watson) in a 30-minute story marred by ridiculous casting, costumes, sets, and script. The best part of the show was the introduction by Alfred Hitchcock, colorized, wearing a deerstalker, and blowing bubbles from his calabash pipe.
183. Hitchcock's introduction was obviously taken from one of the old black-and-white shows in the original "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" series. But which one? There's no mention of a Sherlockian introduction in the series in my notes, but surely some Sherlockian was watching back in the old days.
184. The New Playwrights' Network (35 Sandringham Road, Macclesfield, Cheshire SK10 1QB, England) has published two new Sherlockian scripts. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SOLUTION (£4.40 postpaid) is a two-act drama by Peter Hartley that was performed on tour in England by the Spare Parts Theatre Company in the summer of 1986. THE PRIVATE LIVES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (£1.75 postpaid) is a one-act comedy by Michael Lambe.
185. Apr 89 #6: April having only three weeks this year (I was in San Antonio one week of the month for a geology convention and the spring dinner of The Practical, But Limited, Geologists), there is a shortage of news, allowing room to reprint of one of the more unusual S'ian advertisements, noted by Eileen Katz in the June 1988 issue of Female Patient.
-
186. May 89 #1: The new "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" has opened at the Cambridge Theatre in London. The two reviews seen so far are decidedly unenthusiastic, with suggestions that "one reels away aghast from this Kamikaze concoction of misdirected endeavour" (Jack Tinker, in the Daily Mail), and that Ron Moody as Holmes "is never concerned with understatement and his obvious contempt for Inspector Lestrade and even his bovine Watson eventually makes one long for another Reichenbach Falls into which he can be pushed" (Milton Shulman, in the Evening Standard).
187. Jerry Margolin reports that his new address (as of June 16) will be 10007 S.W. Quail Post Road, Portland, OR 97219-6368.
188. Jennie C. Paton (206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458) would appreciate hearing from anyone who sees Sherlockian television commercials, so that she can try to obtain copies for her television archives. The information she needs is the name of the company doing the advertising, the date and time the commercial was broadcast, and the name (or channel) and address of the television station.
189. Reported by Connie Steffan: a Nerds coloring book (from Marvel Books) with "Case of the Fading Nerds" and Nerdslock Combs and his friend Dr. Whatsit. Nerdslock Combs appears in Sherlockian costume in full color on the cover, and you (or your kids) get to do your own coloring on the inside pages.
190. A new comic book reported by Tim O'Connor: BAKER STREET #1 (Mar. 1989) from Caliber Press (31162 West Warren, Westland, MI 48135; $1.95); a punk-rocker Sherlockian adventure (without Holmes and Watson) set in an alternate but still present-day London. And a mention (possibly a forecast) of SHERLOCK HOLMES: STUDY IN SCARLET from Innovation (no address; $5.95).
191. Further to the mention of Frances Carfi Matranga's THE FORGOTTEN TREASURE (Apr 89 #3), the suggested retail price is $4.50, and I am advised by the publisher that they will be discontinuing the book soon. The publisher is Victor Books, 1825 College Avenue, Wheaton, IL 60187.
192. The May 1 issue of New York magazine was their special issue "The New Guide to Living in New York" with one of the articles giving brief notes on "Buff Groups", which included the Baker Street Irregulars, listed after the Mark Twain Association of New York and before the Count Dracula Fan Club.
193. Paulette Greene (140 Princeton Road, Rockville Centre, NY 11570) is plans to retire from the book business, and wants to sell her entire stock as one lot: about 4,000 mystery and detective books and reference works, and about 600 Sherlockian books, including her own three privately-published titles. Contact Paulette for details.
194. Wilfrid de Freitas reports that the Grosvenor Resort at Disney World is offering "Sherlock Holmes Mystery Weekends" on Sept. 2-4 and Nov. 17-19. The cost is $299 per person and covers meals, rooms, a day at Epcot center, two cocktail parties (one with Watson and the other with Holmes). Call 800-624-4109 for additional information.
-
195. May 89 #2: The Northeast Victorian Studies Association will hold its 16th annual conference at Princeton University on Apr. 20-22, 1990, and the topic will be "Disguises, Dreams, and Deceptions". If you'd like to submit a paper, write to Dr. L. M. Shires, English Department, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY 13210. If you'd like to attend the conference, contact Prof. Earl E. Stevens, Rhode Island College, Providence, RI 02908.

196. A new catalog at hand showing production cels, cartoon artwork, and special editions offered by Gallery Lainzberg (200 Guaranty Building, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401) (800-5533-9995). "Sleuthing II" is a new Friz Freleng limited edition (FF-38) with Inspector Clouseau and a deerstalkered Pink Panther ($395.00).
197. The BSI's chaplain is publishing again: The Bohemian Scandal Sheet is his new newsletter, "published periodically and edited irregularly," and the first issue is now available. There is no charge for the newsletter: all you need do is write to Ben Wood (Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222) and ask for a subscription, and then write to him again at least once a year.
198. The March 1989 issue of Philatelie Quebec has an intriguing article (in French) by Bruce Holmes, showing postage stamps keyed to the 21 Canonical references to saints (including references to the Virgin Mary, the Angel Gabriel, and the Devil). Editions Phibec, 4545 avenue Pierre-de-Coubertin, Montreal, Quebec H1V 3R2, Canada; (CA)$3.00.
199. Penny Fabb (4 Oldacres, Maidenhead, Berks., SL6 1XJ, England) offers a matched pair of 90-mm. hand-painted metal figurines of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson for £44.00 postpaid (or £40.00 if payment is made in sterling).
-
200. May 89 #3: George F. Burrows ("Dr. Grimesby Roylott") died on Apr. 10, and his Associated Press obituary noted that he "was described as a talented oddball whose passions ranged from social justice to Sherlock Holmes." He was a member of The Speckled Band of Boston for many years, serving as its Herpeton, and he received his Investiture in 1964. He was a founding member of the American Civil Liberties Union, an early president of the Community Church of Boston (the first church to demand a fair trial for Sacco and Vanzetti), and a New Deal Democrat. He was also a university policeman at Harvard for twenty years, and during a riot in the 1960s was bitten on the leg by a Radcliffe student. "I'm lucky she wasn't taller," he later remarked.
201. Further to the news (Dec 88 #3) of the reopening of the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's membership list, the Society has now switched to a two-tier entry system: new applicants will start as associate members ($15.00 a year) who will receive the SHJ and who can attend meetings as guests of full members. As vacancies occur, associate members will be promoted to full membership ($20.00 a year), receiving also announcements of meetings and other activities. Applications should be sent to the Society's honorary secretary, Cdr. Geoffrey S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England.
202. Forecast for July: THE BOOK OF THE DEAD, by Robert Richardson (St. Martin's Press, $14.95). "When the owner of an unpublished Sherlock Holmes manuscript by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is murdered, Augustus Maltravers turns to the only expert who can solve this crime--Holmes himself."
203. Ames Johnston ("The Missing Three-Quarter") died on April 17. In 1947 he was one of the founders of The Sons of the Copper Beeches, and in 1959 he was one of the editors of the society's anthology LEAVES FROM THE COPPER BEECHES, to which he contributed a nostalgic description of "The London of the Canon".
204. Planning by Deen and Jay Kogan continues for Bouchercon XX in Philadelphia on Oct. 6-9: there will be "only" three panel tracks, beginning on Friday morning, and the dealers' room will open at noon on Friday. The guest of honor will be Simon Brett, creator of the actor-sleuth Charles Paris, and the program is expected to give some emphasis to "performance" mystery. Advance registration reached 600 last month, it is reported, and it thus seems likely that (as happened last year in San Diego), registration will close before the convention opens. Registration costs $40.00 (Bouchercon XX, Box 59345, Philadelphia, PA 19102).
205. Bouchercon XXI will be in London, at King's College, on Sept. 21-23, 1990, arranged by Marion and Robin Richmond, owners of Ming Books UK (1 Penrose Avenue, Carpenders Park, Watford, Herts. WD1 5AE, England). This will be the first Bouchercon to be held outside the U.S., and the Richmonds note that the World Science Convention will be held in the Hague, Sept. 7-9, and the Agatha Christie Festival in Torbay, Devon, Sept. 14-16, 1990. Details on registration, hotels, an airline package, European and British tours, and a play competition (the best play submitted will be awarded £1,000 and performed at the convention) will be available later this year, but you can write to the Richmonds now to get on their mailing list.
-
206. May 89 #4: Garry James' article on "Sherlock Holmes' Snubby" is a detailed discussion (with many illustrations) of the Webley Metropolitan Police revolver, in the Guns & Ammo Complete Guide to Pocket Pistols, Apr. 1989 (8490 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90069; $2.95). Also still available is the 1986 Guns & Ammo Annual ($6.95), which includes "The Guns of Sherlock Holmes", by Garry James and Scott McMillan; this is a revised version, also well-illustrated, of their earlier article (D2529b).
207. Pattie R. Brunner (3019 Fire Weed Court, Florissant, MO 63031) would like to hear from anyone who knows of currently available Sherlockian needlework patterns or counted cross-stitch charts (and from anyone willing to share copies of patterns or charts that aren't currently available).
208. Reported by Joe Eckrich: THEY NEVER SAID IT, by Paul F. Boller, Jr., and John George (New York: Oxford University Press, 1989; 159 pp., $15.95), notes (p. 47) that "Elementary, my dear Watson" doesn't appear in the Sherlock Holmes stories. They attribute the quote to Basil Rathbone; can anyone identify an earlier appearance?
209. Thom Utecht notes a magazine advertisement for "Little Sherlock" ("a clever little boy who thinks he's the world's greatest sleuth"): an 11-inch hand-crafted bisque porcelain doll by artist Kathy Barry-Hippensteel, in a new "Born to be Famous" collection, for $87.00 (plus $2.44 shipping plus state sales tax). Details available from The Ashton-Drake Galleries, 212 West Superior Street, Chicago, IL 60610, with a June 30 deadline for orders.
210. Reported by Emory Lee: the May-June 1989 issue of Philip Morris Magazine (120 Park Avenue, New York, NY 10017) has a two-page article by Raymond Schuessler on "Tobacco Stamps: Quite a Collection" with color illustrations including the Nicaraguan issue showing Sherlock Holmes with his pipe. And a U.S. commemorative showing Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was a member of the BSI as well as a cigarette-smoker.
211. Emory also reports some Sherlockian items discounted at B. Dalton (and thus probably available at other chains): THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with the fine Frederick Dorr Steele artwork (Mysterious Press, $9.98); THE BAKER STREET DOZEN, ed. by Pj Doyle and E. W. McDiarmid (Congden & Weed, $8.98); and SHERLOCKIAN LIMERICKS, by Isaac Asimov (Mysterious Press, $2.98); and THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES (Doubleday, $12.95).
212. SCARLET IN GASLIGHT: AN ADVENTURE IN TERROR (Newbury Park: Eternity Comics, 1988; $7.95) is a trade-paperback one-volume collection of the four comic books written by Martin Powell and drawn by Seppo Makinen; the book also contains a Foreword by Powell, an Afterword by Makinen, and eight pages of Makinen's preliminary sketches. Eternity also reports that their SHERLOCK HOLMES series will run for 23 issues, reprinting all of the Giacoia strips; they will also issue six-issue collections as trade paperbacks, with the first one due in July. Their SHERLOCK HOLMES CASEBOOK series had only two issues (since there were only two in the original series from Dell). And they are working on a new one-volume collection, tentatively scheduled for December, of a Sherlock Holmes strip from the 1930s (presumably the strip by Leo O'Mealia).
-
213. May 89 #5: More excerpts from reviews of "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical": "Unpretentious, modest, often very funny, *Holmes* could bring considerable pleasure to audiences seeking refuge from the pomposity of contemporary musicals" (Mark Steyn, in the Independent). And: "a vacuous evening of unrelenting jollity and the kind of showbiz cliches everyone hoped had gone out of fashion 20 years ago" (Charles Spencer, in the Daily Telegraph). And: "This is an elaborate production, starting well with the exciting battle of the Reichenbach Falls, enjoyably staged. But I fear it may

- meet the fate of *Edwin Drood*. The thrills fade and it turns into a corny parody of Conan Doyle -- who has surely been parodied enough" (D.A.N. Jones, in the Sunday Telegraph).
214. The Players, for many years the gathering place for Sherlockians attending The Silver Blaze in New York, celebrated its 100th anniversary last month, according to a wire-service report, and welcomed the club's first female members (Helen Hayes, Mary Tyler Moore, and Lauren Bacall were among those honored).
215. "What sounds like a good buy is the first English edition of *The Hound of the Baskervilles* (1902) listed at $3 by Norman Alexander Hall, 67 Union St., Newton Center, Mass." (as reported by P. E. G. Quercus in his "Trade Winds" column in The Saturday Review, Mar. 4, 1939). Fifty years ago Christopher Morley could include this sort of item in his column, which also noted: "It amused sardonic Old Q. to learn from the Argus Bookshop, Chicago, that there is now a 'Variorum Edition' of Mark Twain's *1601*, edited by Franklin J. Meine. Old Ben Abramson, equally sardonic, remarks in his circular that 'for purity of text, this volume is unapproachable.'"
216. And more comic-book news: Renegade's CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #15, now in the shops, will be the last issue from Renegade, because the comic book is going to another company. Renegade will send refunds to its subscribers, and information on the other company when it's available. The new company is Northstar, based in Blue Island, Ill., and they intend to have #16 in print in August. We will report again when there's more information.
217. Jennie Paton has discovered a source for rental of some of the older S'ian films, which is pleasant news for societies that are too large to gather around a VCR and a television set. The Em Gee Film Library (6924 Canby Avenue #103, Reseda, CA 91335) offers "The Copper Beeches" (1912), "The Dying Detective" (1921), "The Devil's Foot" (1921), and "The Man with the Twisted Lip" (1921) for $8.50 each; "Sure-Locked Homes" (1926) and "Slick Sleuth" (1926) for $5.00 each; "The Mystery of the Leaping Fish" (1916) for $12.50; "Burstup Homes Murder Case" (1913) for $10.00; "Biograph Primitives #1 (with the 1900 'Sherlock Holmes Baffled') and "The Case of the Screaming Bishop" (1944) for $6.00 each; and "The Sleuth" (1925) for $7.50.
218. Jennie has also found a source for a videocassette ($24.95) of "Sherlock Jr." (1924): Facets Video, 1517 West Fullerton Avenue, Chicago, IL 60614 (800-331-6197). This is a Buster Keaton film, and it's a fine one, even though it is S'ian almost only by title: Keaton plays a projectionist who falls asleep and dreams that he has walked into the film being shown in the theater; he plays a brilliant sleuth, and there are some truly splendid special effects in the film.
-
219. May 89 #6: Mohamed Bazzi, president of The Young Sherlockians of Jackson Heights (a society founded last year at the Joseph Pulitzer Intermediate School), plans to publish The Sherlockian Tabloid, beginning in October and featuring the work of the scion's members. The magazine will cost $3.00 an issue, and can be ordered from Mohamed Bazzi, 80-08 35th Avenue #5-F, Jackson Heights, NY 11372 (checks payable to I.S. 145 Queens).
220. "Frank here and I met in '84, in McQuire's Camp, near the Rockies, where pa was working a claim," Hattie Doran Moulton explained. The new postal card in the "America the Beautiful" series shows Bart Forbes' original painting of the Rocky Mountains.
221. River Oaks Travel (800-223-7174) is offering a series of one-week tours (leaving every Sunday from July 16 to Aug. 20) called "The Pub Package" tied to Malcolm Cooper's series of miniature sculptures of "Great British Pubs" (one of which is The Sherlock Holmes). Texans and Canadians can call 713-526-1960. The cover of their brochure shows The Sherlock Holmes.
222. Judy Wolfsohn (9554 S.W. 82nd Street, Miami, FL 33173) offers the first volume of her SHERLOCK HOLMES WORDSEARCH PUZZLES, with 25 puzzles, and answers ($9.50 postpaid).
223. Reported by Michael McClure: Spiderman continues to show that he reads the Canon. The comic book WEB OF SPIDERMAN (#53, Aug. 1989) has (page 16) a passing reference to a deerstalkered detective.
224. Film posters seem to have become the new target for speculative collecting. "What's new is that doctors and lawyers are buying big-ticket items to put in a portfolio," according to dealer Edwin Neal, quoted in the N.Y. Times (May 22). "They say, 'I want to spend $25,000. You tell me what to buy.'" At a recent auction in New York, a poster for "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939) sold for $4,000. The same auction included a jockey shirt worn by James Cagney in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" ($4,500) and a copy of GONE WITH THE WIND signed by most of the cast ($20,000).
225. Reported by John Ruyle: THE MUMMY, OR RAMSES THE DAMNED, by Anne Rice (New York: Ballantine Books, 1989, 436 pp., $11.95 in paper covers) is dedicated to Arthur Conan Doyle (among others). Anne Rice wrote THE VAMPIRE LESTAT and INTERVIEW WITH THE VAMPIRE, and her new book is dedicated to ACD "for his great mummy stories 'Lot No. 249' and 'The Ring of Thoth'." She has also written (as A. N. Roquelaure) three volumes of erotica, and although there's nothing unusual about a mainstream author working in that genre, she's the first I've seen to list such books on the "also by" page.
226. Henry Brandon, Washington correspondent for The Sunday Times, was one of the earliest journalists to use a Sherlockian motif in reporting on the Watergate break-in (D2284b), so early, in fact, that he (among many others) still thought of it as a minor event with no political significance. He mentions his Sherlockian column in the Watergate chapter in his memoirs: SPECIAL RELATIONSHIPS (New York: Atheneum, 1989; 436 pp., $24.95).
-
227. Jun 89 #1: THE BAKER STREET DOZEN, edited by Pj Doyle and E. W. McDiarmid, has been reissued as a trade paperback (New York: Contemporary Books/Congdon & Weed, 1989; 354 pp., $9.95). Originally published in 1987 (Oct 87 #1), the book contains ACD's favorite Sherlock Holmes stories, plus essays by Sherlockian scholars and an afterword by Dame Jean Conan Doyle. The paperback actually is a collectible new edition, with a new page of acknowledgements and new commentary on "The Priory School" by the editors in place of the earlier contribution by George Fletcher.
228. There are six "Inspector Puzzle Mini-Mysteries" in a series of children's puzzle books written by Patricia Lakin Koenigsberg and illustrated by Marc Nadel, with Inspector Puzzle in S'ian costume (Mahwah: Watermill Press, 1988; 32 pp., $1.50 each). Titles: THE CASE OF THE DISAPPEARING DINOSAURS, THE MYSTERIOUS SPACE CHASE, THE GREAT JUNGLE BUNGLE, THE CASE OF THE RUNAWAY TIME MACHINE, THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING MICROCHIP, and THE SECRET OF THE SINISTER SEA VILLAIN.
229. Brian and Charlotte Erickson are adding a file of National Holmesian Events for Traveling Sherlockians to their computerized bulletin board, and anyone planning a trip can call the bulletin board to see what's happening where. And societies are, of course, encouraged to send advance notice of meetings to the Ericksons, either by mail (725 Sutter Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94303) or directly to the bulletin board (415-329-1703). Information needed: date and time and place of the meeting, society name, and contact name, address, and telephone number.
230. When discussing whether movies such as "Young Sherlock Holmes" and "Without a Clue" were successful at the box office (each grossed about $16 million in eight weeks), it can be instructive to see how real success is measured: "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" did $5.6 million on its first day in the theaters, and $46.9 million in its first six days.
231. Cartoonist Dik Browne died on June 6, after a long career as an advertising artist (he created the Bird's Eye bird and Chiquita Banana, and redesigned the Campbell Soup kids) and as a cartoonist ("Hi and Lois" and "Hagar the Horrible"). He was the only cartoonist ever to have received the National Cartoonists Society's Reuben Award for two different comic strips. This Sherlockian "Hi and Lois" cartoon was first published on Jan. 17, 1985.

232. Jun 89 #2: The second shipment of Rathbone/Bruce audio cassettes has been shipped by American Express: three cassettes, with a shelf box that will hold thirteen cassettes. The programs are "The April Fool's Day Adventure" and "The Uneasy Easy Chair" (duplicating the cassette already in bookstores), "The Headless Monk" and "The Demon Barber" (with comments by Ben Wright), and "The Amateur Mendicant Society" and "The Vanishing White Elephant" (with comments by Ben Wright). The subscription series is only available to American Express card-holders (and surely you know someone who is a card-holder, if you aren't), the cost is reasonable ($2.95 shipping for the first two cassettes, and $29.95 plus $2.95 shipping for the next three cassettes, with a new shipment every two months), and the toll-free number for orders is 800-528-8000.
233. If you are a card-holder and didn't receive a promotional flier, there's a reason: I have heard that American Express did a test mailing, to only one million card-holders, to see what the response would be. They were hoping for a one-percent response (10,000 subscriptions to the series), but they are reported to have received only 2,000 orders, and to be considering not continuing the subscription series. If you are at all interested in these cassettes, you would be wise to subscribe, no matter how long the series actually runs, considering how difficult it is to find the cassettes in the chain bookstores.
234. And there is an alternative to the American Express subscription series and to buying the cassettes in bookstores: you can buy direct from Simon and Schuster (800-678-2677). The price is $9.95 per cassette, plus $2.95 per order for shipping, so the overall cost is higher, and it would appear that cassettes will be available only at the bookstore schedule (one cassette every three months).
235. A CASE OF BLIND FEAR #2 (Apr 89) has been published by Eternity Comics: the comic-book series has Sherlock Holmes in pursuit of the Invisible Man, with Irene Adler and Prof. Challenger involved in the battle.
236. Vilhjalmur Stefansson was one of five Arctic explorers honored by the U.S. Postal Service three years ago (Jun 86 #1), and he has now been honored by Canada with a stamp showing Stefansson on the Arctic ice (the rather modernistic design is by Frederick Hagan). Stefansson knew and admired ACD. "In his home Conan Doyle is not merely a sturdier Watson and a kinder Holmes," Stefansson wrote in 1922 (D2051b). "He is also a gentler Sir Nigel and a mellow blend of all the host of his nobler characters."
237. Further to Jennie Paton's report (May 89 #5) that "Sherlock Jr." (1924) is available from Facets Video, the company has returned her check, because "a current rights dispute has removed the tape from distribution."
238. Reported from Britain: MURDER WILL OUT: THE DETECTIVE IN FICTION FROM POE TO THE PRESENT, by T. J. Binyon (Oxford University Press, 192 pp., £15.00); "illustrates how the character of the detective has often overshadowed its creator." And a paperback reprint of Michael Dibdin's THE LAST SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY [D4891b] (Faber, 192 pp., £3.99).
-
239. Jun 89 #3: Another plug for the mail-order catalog from Signals (Box 70870, St. Paul, MN 55170): this is a subsidiary of WGBH in Boston, and they offer video-cassettes of six programs from the Granada series, the recording of music from the series, and the well-illustrated book SHERLOCK HOLMES: A CENTENARY CELEBRATION, as well as many other items tied to public television.
240. Scott Bond reports that registration for Bouchercon XX in Philadelphia is now closed, having reached its limit of 1,000. Those who were wise enough to have registered already can plan to attend the Sherlockian session on Saturday afternoon.
241. Gary Lovisi's RELICS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Feb 87 #4) is now available in an expanded second edition (56 pp.), concentrating on mostly recent ephemera, with brief comments on newspaper, magazine, and fanzine articles, as well as reproductions of advertising artwork, magazine covers, theater programs, and cartoons. Order from Gryphon Books, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228; $4.00 postpaid. Gary also reports that his PAPERBACK PARADE #8 (also $4.00) has an article on "The Non-Sherlockian Paperbacks of Arthur Conan Doyle" by Roy G. James (six pages, with reproductions of some of the covers).
242. "The whole story concerning the politician, the lighthouse, and the trained sea gulls" is not exactly the theme of Bart Forbes' design for the new "seashore" postal card, but it shows Cape Hatteras Light in North Carolina. North Carolina is also mentioned in the Canon as the locale of the Anderson murders, and the K.K.K. had branches in the Carolinas.
243. The latest issue of Anglofile at hand, with a report that Granada's "The Devil's Foot" won an Edgar for best episode in a television series at the 1989 annual dinner of the Mystery Writers of America ("The Musgrave Ritual" won a similar Edgar last year). In Anglofile's own British Entertainment Awards, Jeremy Brett was voted the best television actor, and "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" tied for best television series (with "All Creatures Great and Small"). Anglofile covers British television, stage, film, and video, and is published bi-monthly by the Goody Press, Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033 ($10.00 a year).
244. Travelers to Edinburgh who seek out the Conan Doyle pub will find that it has been renamed: it is now the Cafe a la Ronde. We do not know whether the pub's rather scanty Doylean decorations have been retained.
245. But Conan Doyle *is* remembered in Edinburgh. There is a plaque on the wall of a hotel near Conan Doyle's birthplace at 11 Picardy Place, and another at 23 George Square, where he lived from 1876 to 1880. Nothing came of the plans to commission sculptor Eduardo Paolozzi to design a memorial to Conan Doyle in the center of the traffic circle where 11 Picardy Place once stood (Sep 87 #5), but the Edinburgh Evening News now reports that the Edinburgh branch of the Federation of Master Builders want to commemorate their 50th anniversary (in 1991) by donating a statue of Sherlock Holmes to the city. The bronze statue is expected to cost £35,000.
-
246. Jun 89 #4: "The Agent must keep on Sh'lockin'," reports the proprietor of the Pequod Press, announcing a new episode from the memoirs of Turlock Loams. THE NAPA VALLEY MYSTERY offers Dr. Fatso's revelation of the malefic consequences of the sinister researches of Victor Gravenstein, a young botanist from Calistoga, and the book is available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $29.50 cloth, $14.50 paper.
247. Johns Hopkins (1795-1873) was a 19th-century merchant, banker and investor, and philanthropist, who gave $7 million to fund a hospital, university, and medical school in Baltimore, and there has been a proposal for a Canonical connection. "But all have wondered just what Holmes was doing between the time he left the university and his taking rooms in Montague Street," Christopher Morley suggested in his essay "Was Sherlock Holmes an American?" (Saturday Review of Literature, July 21, 1934). "My own thought is that the opening of the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore in 1876, and the extraordinary and informal opportunities offered there for graduate study, tempted him across the water." Bradbury Thompson designed our new $1.00 regular issue.
248. A report from the 1989 convention of the American Booksellers Association (never again to be held in Washington, unless a new convention center is built, because the one we have now is too small): the next twelve months are unlikely to be considered "The Year of the Book" by Sherlockians, since L. B. Greenwood's new pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE THISTLE OF SCOTLAND (due in October from Simon and Schuster) appears to be the only new book planned by a commercial publisher.
249. We are, however, entering the age of audio: according to one publisher's statistics, more than three million portable audio-cassette players are used by consumers today in the United States, and more than 70% of all new cars sold in the United States in 1988 came equipped with audio-cassette

- players. In S'ian audio, Simon and Schuster are pleased with sales of their continuing series of Rathbone-Bruce radio shows from the 1940s, Dove Books on Tape is releasing A TREASURY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: A COLLECTION OF SEVEN GREAT STORIES read by Ben Kingsley on four cassettes, Great American Audio Corp. has THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES VOL. II with four stories read (by an unidentified reader) on four cassettes, and Dercum Press is ready to issue THE SIGN OF THE FOUR read by William Barker on four cassettes.
250. Caedmon has nothing new planned, but will repackage earlier audio material (Basil Rathbone's SHERLOCK HOLMES SOUNDBOOK, Nicol Williamson's THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, and John Wood's SHERLOCK HOLMES' ADVENTURES. Academy Chicago is preparing the third volume in their series of trade-paperback reprints of Basil Copper's Solar Pons pastiches. Troll Associates will release four video cassettes with SHERLOCK HOLMES' MOST THRILLING CASES at $14.95 each (these are the Australian animations of Stud, Sign, Houn, and Vall, with Peter O'Toole as Holmes). Eternity is working on collections of their comic-book reprints of the 1950s comic strips, aiming for bookstore sales. And Iron Crown Enterprises confirmed that their series of "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" ended with seven titles in the U.S. (enthusiasm for choose-your-own-ending game-books has waned here), but there is an eighth title in the series in some foreign translations (we will report further on this when more information is available).
-
251. Jun 89 #5 Another variant of Doubleday's THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES has appeared. The one-volume "Dorset Press Edition" is similar to the standard Doubleday edition (1960), but was published by Marboro Books to be sold only by B. Dalton and Barnes & Noble, at $12.95 (discounted from $18.95). The main distinguishing point is the statement on the title-page verso: "This edition published by Dorset Press, a division of Marboro Books Corporation, by arrangement with Doubleday, a division of Bantam Doubleday Dell Publishing Group Inc. 1988 Dorset Press." Other points: the endpapers are plain white; the binding is brown paper-covered boards with a facsimile signature of A. Conan Doyle in gold on the front cover, quarter black cloth with spine lettered in gold; and the jacket is yellow, brown, and black on much glossier stock than the earlier tan, brown, and black jacket.
252. William B. Lemar, an energetic member of The Maiwand Jezails, died in May. He was a civil engineer, and had retired from the Army with the rank of colonel, triggering an interest in military history (S'ian and otherwise) that involved considerable correspondence with Brigadier (retd.) Flashman.
253. "The Adventures at the Atheneum Club" is the title of a Sherlock Holmes Mystery Weekend scheduled at Roselawn House (part of the Donald Gordon Centre at Queen's University) in Kingston, Ontario, on Aug. 25-27, 1989. The weekend is arranged by a company specializing in English Murder Mystery Weekends, the cost is $289 a person, and further information is available from Whodunnit Inc., 173 Camden Road, Napanee, Ont. K7R 1E1, Canada.
254. Loren Estleman's SHERLOCK HOLMES VS. DRACULA (D4907b) is back in print, in a new printing of the Penguin paperback (214 pp., $3.95).
255. Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's "Nate the Great" series of children's book has another entry: NATE THE GREAT STALKS STUPIDWEED (Dell Yearling paperback, $2.95) features the deestalkered young detective in a botanical mystery.
256. SHERLICK HOUND AND THE VALENTINE MYSTERY, by Kelly Goldman and Ronnie Davidson, is a pleasant children's mystery, with attractive illustrations by Don Madden (Niles: Albert Whitman, 1989; 40 pp., $7.95).
257. There may be more Sherlockian audio in store for American listeners: Clive Brooks, who has written a series of stories read by Nick Girdler on Radio Solent in England, reports that they may eventually be available here. And his book SHERLOCK HOLMES REVISITED, with twelve stories, is to be published next spring. A demonstration cassette reveals that his stories are written and read with fine style.
258. Gunnar E. Sundin, an active Sherlockian in Chicago, died on June 12. His SHERLOCK'S LONDON TODAY (BSJ Mar 86) is a fine guide-book for visitors to the London of Sherlock Holmes, and his four-sheet reprint of the Weekly Dispatch's 1861 Map of London is a valuable resource for researchers.
259. Plan ahead: Nov. 12-19 will be National Children's Book Week, and Nov. 15 will be National Young Reader's Day, celebrated by the Library of Congress and by local libraries. Sherlockians and their societies might wish to use the occasion as an opportunity to help libraries to encourage young readers to read a good detective story.
-
260. Jun 89 #6: Gary Thaden has forwarded an American reprint of a report from The Observer [London] on a proposal to renumber Baker Street so that the present No. 239 will become No. 221B. "The devilish mind behind the plot is that of John Aidiniantz, an entrepreneur" who recently placed an advertisement in Country Life: "Investor/sleeping partner required with $4 million. World famous London landmark for sale. May suit titled person with cultural and historical interests." Aidiniantz notes that No. 239 has 17 steps leading up to the first floor, and says that he wants to set up a Sherlock Holmes Center, with a reconstruction of the sitting-room, museum, and library. The Westminster City Council announced that it will consider Aidiniantz's request, which has met with objections from the Abbey National Building Society ("we have looked after Mr. Holmes for so long that to us he is a real person") and by the Sherlock Holmes Society of London ("the location of the house where the detective lived is probably the most vexed question in the whole of the Holmes saga"). One might wonder when someone will get round to asking Aidiniantz whether the interior of No. 239, along with the 17 steps, is original, or was rebuilt after the WW2 bombing that gutted almost all of Baker Street.
261. Travelers to France might want to plan an itinerary that includes Avignon, where, on a road between the Hotel Mercure (outside of town) and the old city, one will find the "Pub Sherlock Holmes".
262. Judson Philips died on Mar. 7, ending a writing career that spanned fifty years. As Hugh Pentecost he wrote the short story "My Dear Uncle Sherlock" (D6051), which was later televised (D4619b), and he was the author of a truly memorable opening line for a story: "Believing in ghosts is not at all difficult. If you are one."
263. John Pryce Figurines (132 Brookfield Road, The Acorns, Welshpool, Powys, United Kingdom) offers hand-painted figurines (5 in. high) of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson at £10.25 each.
-
264. Jun 89 #7: Hy Gardner died on June 17. He wrote a Broadway gossip column for the N.Y. Herald Tribune from 1951 until the paper ceased publication in 1966, and then wrote a syndicated gossip column. He also was a member of the original celebrity panel on the television program "To Tell the Truth". In 1965 Gardner provided the introduction for the WFUV-FM radio broadcast by The Priory Scholars of "The Sinister London of Sherlock Holmes" (adaptations by Chris Steinbrunner of "The Man with the Twisted Lip" and "Charles Augustus Milverton").
265. SHERLOCK HOLMES: TWO COMPLETE ADVENTURES is a new (1989) semi-miniature book (2.75 x 3.25 in., 153 pp.) with "Five" and "Blue" (and with the title SHERLOCK HOLMES: THREE COMPLETE ADVENTURES on the dust jacket); $4.95 in bookstores ($7.45 postpaid from the Running Press, 125 South 22nd Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103).
266. Plan ahead: "The Bimetallic Colloquium" will be held in Montreal on June 15-17, 1990. The weekend event will be held at McGill University, under the sponsorship of the local Sherlockian society (The Bimetallic Question), and additional information is available from Wilfrid de Freitas, Box 883, Stock Exchange Tower, Montreal H4Z 1K2, Canada.
267. John Bryan's JAMES BOND: DID HE REALLY LIVE TWICE? (Domino Books, 1989, 130 pp., £6.95) is an examination of the echoes and parallels between the Canon (and the Rathbone films) and the saga of James Bond (in print and on film); Bryan concludes that the echoes and parallels are more than coincidental. The publisher's address is Springfield Court, New Castletown Road, Douglas, Isle of Man, Great Britain.

268. The Eternity reprints (as SHERLOCK HOLMES CASEBOOK) of the Dell comic books NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES reveal that there are variants of Dell #1245 (D6190a). Eternity has reprinted the page "Sherlock Holmes' London Haunts" from the inside back cover of their original copy of Dell #1245, which also exists with a full-page advertisement for Kellogg's OKs on the inside back cover.
269. John H. Jenkins, the colorful Texas antiquarian book dealer, was shot to death on Apr. 16, leaving law-enforcement authorities, friends, and family arguing about whether his death was suicide or murder. His autobiography AUDUBON AND OTHER CAPERS: CONFESSIONS OF A TEXAS BOOKMAKER was published in 1976, the same year in which the John H. Jenkins Award for Bibliography, funded by Jenkins and Union College to mark his participation in an FBI sting operation that resulted in the recovery in 1971 (from Mafia thieves) of a volume of Audubon's BIRDS OF AMERICA stolen from the college library, was given to Ron De Waal for his THE WORLD BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES AND DR. WATSON.
270. The silver cigarette case inscribed "From Sherlock Holmes 1893" presented by Arthur Conan Doyle to Sidney Paget on the occasion of his wedding will be auctioned at Sotheby's in London on July 20, accompanied by a one-page letter from Conan Doyle to Paget, arranging to meet him in London, in one lot estimated at £1,500-2,000. The cigarette case was last seen at auction on July 24, 1980, when it went for £1,500 to A. K. Shiel of Edinburgh (who had earlier in the sale purchased the letter for £200).
-
271. Jun 89 #8: The personal essay may indeed be a vanishing literary art form, despite occasional appearances in periodicals such as the BSJ (where a fine essay by Bill Schweickert will be found in the June issue). Christopher Morley was a masterful essayist, in era when essays were widely read and enjoyed, and George Fletcher has assembled a splendid selection in CHRISTOPHER MORLEY'S NEW YORK (New York: Fordham University Press, 1988; 377 pp., $19.95), along with a warm tribute by Morley's friend Bill Hall. There is a section of essays on The Three Hours for Lunch Club in the early 1920s (when it was far more philosophical and much less social than it was to become later in the decade after Morley had joined the founders of the Saturday Review of Literature). And the 1949 essay "On Belonging to Clubs" may surprise those who do not know, or have forgotten, just how informal an organization The Baker Street Irregulars once was.
272. THE LIGHT IS DARK ENOUGH is a 36-page booklet prepared for this month's "Cambridge Expedition" by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, edited by Jonathan McCafferty and offering a series of essays and illustrations of the Cantabrigean aspects of the Canon. The cost of the booklet is £8.00 (or $17.50) postpaid from Jonathan McCafferty, 5 Jonathan Court, Windmill Road, Chiswick, London W4 1SA, England (checks payable to the Society).
273. If the Kroger chain of supermarkets is in your area, check the egg section: Jennie Paton reports that their "symbol of eggcellence" egg cartons show an egg with deerstalker and magnifying glass.
274. Chris Steinbrunner has a new address: Golden Hill HCC, 2028 Bridgeport Avenue, Milford, CT 06460 (203-877-0371).
275. Oliver Bruhns' PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF SIR A. CONAN DOYLE'S LITERARY WORKS PUBLISHED IN GERMANY, WITH SOME OBSERVATIONS UPON SHERLOCK HOLMES IN PASTICHE is a 74-page checklist of German Sherlockiana ranging from SPATE RACHE (the earliest translation, in 1902) to SHERLOCK'S SPURNASENSCHULE (EIN SESAMSTRASSEN-BUCH). The checklist is in German, with a Preface in English, and with artwork by Richard Gutschmidt (the earliest known German artist to illustrate the stories). It is available (postpaid airmail) from Oliver Bruhns (Kathe-Kollwitz-Weg 10, 2400 Lubeck 1, West Germany) for DM 10.00 (in currency or by international money order or bank draft); if you pay with a US dollar check, the cost is $8.50.
276. Sherlockians traveling on British Airways should not neglect the in-flight entertainment, which includes a Sherlockian "Play of the Month" in their headphone repertoire. These are 30-minute dramatizations from the Canon, adapted by Grant C. Eustace and recorded by Daedalus Productions, with Roy Marsden (Sherlock Holmes) and John Moffatt (Dr. Watson). They are nicely done, and faithful to the Canon, and there are 24 programs in the series (which began in 1987). Daedalus hopes to be able to release the series on audio cassettes eventually.
277. A TREASURY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Dove Books on Tape) is a new four-cassette package with seven stories (Scan, RedH, Twis, Croo, Card, Copp, SixN) read by Ben Kingsley, who does a good job with his characterizations (and better with the supporting roles than with Holmes and Watson). In bookstores or direct from Dove (800-345-9945).

Jul 89 #1:

278. Press Harvard Magazine has a "Chapter and Verse" department ("a correspondence corner for not-so-famous lost words"), and in the May-June 1989 issue ran a query asking for Canonical authority for Christopher Morley's reference in his introduction to THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES to Sherlock Holmes having had earlier lodgings in Montague Street. There were more than 30 replies to the query, including one from David Musto on behalf of the Yale Sherlock Holmes Society, and the answer appeared in the July-August issue. Not all the queries are literary: the current issue also asks for the words to a song about "My Little Papaya Tree" (sung to the tune of "The Twelve Days of Christmas") once heard on the radio.
279. Julian Symons' Sheridan Haynes pastiche THE KENTISH MANOR MURDERS is now available in paperback (New York: Penguin Books, 1989; 191 pp., $3.95).
280. THE ROAD TO KHARTOUM: A LIFE OF GENERAL CHARLES GORDON, by Charles Chenevix Trench, first published by Norton in 1978, has been reissued as a trade paperback by Carroll and Graf (320 pp., $10.95), and will be of interest to those who recall Watson's newly-framed picture of Gordon.
281. Bernie O'Heir reports that recent one-sheet movie posters are available from Jerry Ohlinger (242 West 14th Street, New York, NY 10011): "Murder by Decree" ($30.00), "Young Sherlock Holmes" ($15.00), and "Without a Clue" ($10.00). Shipping costs per order are $3.00 (UPS) and $4.00 (USPS).
282. John Bennett Shaw reports a handsome Sherlockian ring, designed and hand-crafted by Roger Worland (Touchstone Jewellery, 49 Bouldrewood Road, Benfleet, Essex SS7 5UA, England) in solid 14-carat gold. The ring costs £125.00 postpaid, including insurance and U.S. import duty. Mr. Worland has designed lapel pins for The Northern Musgraves and The Arthur Conan Doyle Society, and welcomes commissions from other societies.
283. Eve Titus' BASIL AND THE LOST COLONY (New York: Pocket Books/Minstrel, 1989; 96 pp., $2.50), is the second in a series of new trade-paperback editions, with new color cover art by Judith Sutton.
284. Jim Backus, who provided the voice for the nearsighted Mr. Quincy Magoo, died on July 3. In a 1964 sequence for the television series "Mr. Magoo's Storybook" (D6098b), Backus played Magoo as Dr. Watson, and the episode is available on the videocassette "Mr. Magoo...Man of Mystery" (Paramount Home Video).
285. Paulette Greene, still preparing for her move to Florida, invites queries from anyone interested in a nine-room English Tudor house, with a slate roof and five bedrooms, in a nice part of Long Island: 140 Princeton Road, Rockville Centre, NY 11570.
286. Reported: WONDER BEARS TREASURE CHEST OF FUN (four books to read and color, for children ages 4-8) with a Wonder Bear in S'ian costume on the cover (Mahwah: Troll Associates, $4.95).
-
287. Jul 89 #2: A bibliographic query: I have seen two copies, in dust jacket, of Blakeney's SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OR FICTION? (London: John Murray, 1932) with a laid-in promotional flier for Bell's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND DOCTOR WATSON: A CHRONOLOGY OF THEIR ADVENTURES. Wondering

- whether this is more than mere coincidence, I would appreciate hearing from anyone who has a copy of Blakeney's book, letting me know whether or not the book is in dust jacket, and whether or not the book includes the laid-in flier.
288. Kate Karlson Redmond has found some new S'ian items: authentic HOLMES neckties ($15.00), lapel pins ($4.00), and mechanical pencils ($2.00), all with an appropriate silhouette and a HOLMES inscription. This HOLMES is the Home Office Large Major Enquiry System, a computerized case-management data-base system designed in Britain and used for "major-incident investigations" there and now in Toronto. Prices are in US dollars and include postage, and orders can be sent to Sgt. David A. Reinhardt, 76 Lord Simcoe Drive, Bramalea, Ont. L6S 5G6, Canada. The necktie is navy blue with white HOLMES design (and a red maple leaf to show you're not advertising the British system).
289. Ben Wright died in July. British by birth, he arrived in Hollywood in 1946, and was a splendid radio actor. In the 1946-47 season he appeared in various roles in the ABC series "The New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (D5463a) and on one occasion, when Tom Conway was ill, replaced Conway as Holmes. On Feb. 12, 1949, he played the detective (Inspector Collins) in an adaptation of "The Lost Special" in the CBS series "Escape", and in the 1949-50 season he played Holmes in the ABC series "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (D5466a). In 1977 he was cast as Watson in "The Sherlock Holmes Radio Theatre", a series planned by KIS (Los Angeles); only seven programs were recorded, and the series was never broadcast. Ben Wright recorded the introduction for the record album "The New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" produced by 221A Baker Street Associates in 1986, and his introductions and comments can also be heard on three of the 221A audio cassettes distributed by Simon and Schuster.
290. The 221A audio cassettes have also had some nice publicity. On June 23 the ABC series "The Radio Show" included a one-hour segment in which Tom Snyder interviewed Glenhall Taylor and Harry Bartell (with some discussion of the Rathbone/Bruce series, and much more about old-time radio in general), and on July 9 the television series "Entertainment This Week" included a fourminute segment on Leonard Maltin's visit to a recording session for new introductions for future cassettes. And a long story on the series, in the Chicago Tribune (July 2), reports that the first cassette in the series has sold an estimated 25,000-30,000 copies in the first three months (I think that estimate may be highly optimistic, but only 10,000 copies is regarded as a best-seller for an audio cassette).
291. Rick Hacker reports that THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK (May 85 #1) is scheduled for a second (revised) edition in September (with discussion of Sherlock Holmes' smoking habits), and that the summer 1989 issue of Carey's Club News has an article (with a photograph) about his presentation of the Pipe Smoker of the Year Award to Jeremy Brett. Carey's Club is a mail-order pipe-and-tobacco club, and the address (attn: Denise Drumm) is 7245 Whipple Avenue NW, North Canton, OH 44720.
-
292. Jul 89 #3: Duncan Kyle's political thriller THE DANCING MEN is now on the remainder tables at $1.98. The book is non-Sherlockian, except for the title, but it is possible to put together an interesting collection of such books, which might include A CASE OF IDENTITY (by Leonard Brain and by Richard Marsh), THE CROOKED MAN (by Shelley Smith), THE EMPTY HOUSE (by Michael Gilbert, by Francis Grierson, and by Irina Karlova), THE VALLEY OF FEAR (by John Creasey, by Francis Addington Symonds, and by Robin Gar), and THE YELLOW FACE (by William Murray Graydon). There are also THE CRIMSON CIRCLE (by Edgar Wallace), THE SCARLET CIRCLE (by Jonathan Stagge), COPPER BEECH (by Ariadne Thompson), WISTERIA COTTAGE (by Robert M. Coates), and THE DANCING MAN (by P. M. Hubbard). Many of these titles were reported by the late John Nieminski (Nov 86 #1). Can anyone add to the list?
293. One of my correspondents notes that Americans and British use different formats for writing dates: 12-25-88 (American) and 25-12-88 (British). It doesn't make much difference when it's Christmas, but a date written as 07-01-88 can be confusing. Does anyone know why the formats differ, and how they evolved? What formats are used in other countries?
294. SHERLOCK HOLMES BY GAS-LAMP: HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE FIRST FOUR DECADES OF THE BAKER STREET JOURNAL, edited by Philip A. Shreffler (New York: Fordham University Press, 1989; 423 pp., $22.50), demonstrates in many ways why the world of Sherlockians is so interesting. For an older generation it serves as a reminder of how important the BSJ has been to those who played the Sherlockian game, and for younger Sherlockians it offers fine examples of the wit and intelligence and devotion that have been and still are brought to that game by those who play it in the traditions of its inventors. The book offers an informative and appreciative account of the history of the BSJ, and a thoroughly successful selection that cannot have been easy to make. Recommended.
295. 26 programs from the Granada series are now available on video cassette in Britain, on 16 cassettes at £9.99 each, according to the current program for "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" at Wyndham's Theatre. The British use PAL format, so the cassettes won't play on American or Japanese machines (which use NTSC format); only the first six programs have been issued here.
296. Mel Blanc died on July 10, after more than fifty years of providing voices for many of the most popular cartoon characters on film and television (and the sound of the wheezing Maxwell automobile on Jack Benny's radio series). His characters included Daffy Duck and Porky Pig, and he is heard in the films "The Great Piggy Bank Robbery" (1945) and "Deduce, You Say!" (1956).
297. GRANADA COMPANION NUMBER ONE: A SHERLOCK HOLMES ALBUM is the 40-page album published by Karizzma in 1987, with an introduction by Vincent Price, and articles by Kenneth Harris, plus many color photographs of actors, sets, and scenery, now available for $7.95 postpaid from Ming Books, 225 South 18th Street #1502, Philadelphia, PA 19103; they take Visa and Mastercard.
298. There's nothing Sherlockian about the latest nutritional advisory, but it's a fascinating idea: don't eat or drink anything advertised on television. It it was good for you, they wouldn't have to spend all that money to get you to buy it.
-
299. Jul 89 #4: SHERLOCK HOLMES: A STUDY IN SCARLET is a new "graphic novel" ($5.95) with "A Study in Scarlet" (adapted by James Stenstrum, and illustrated by Noly Panaligan) and "The Singular Case of the Anemic Heir" (written by William B. Dubay and Kevin Duane, and illustrated by Anton Caravana). If it's not stocked by your local comic-book shop, the publisher is Innovation Books, 3622 Jacob Street, Wheeling, WV 26003.
300. Laurence Olivier died on July 11. He was a great actor, both in leading roles and as a supporting character, on stage and screen and television, including a bewildered and persecuted Professor Moriarty in the film "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (1976). He was honored by his fellow-actors and his country (he had received a life peerage), and his ashes will be buried in Westminster Abbey.
301. The fifth audio cassette in the 221A series, already shipped to those who subscribed to the series through American Express, will be in book stores in August (or you can order from Simon & Schuster at 800-678-2677). The cassette ($9.95) has "The Amateur Mendicant Society" (Apr. 2, 1945) and "The Vanishing Elephant" (Oct. 8, 1945), both available for the first time since they originally aired.
302. At hand from Gary Westmoreland is a wire service report with welcome news that Peter Cushing says he has "confounded science in his fight against cancer and now has a clean bill of health." His prostate cancer is in remission and he is less dependent on medication: "I was on so many pills for so long, I was in danger of becoming a drug addict." A 90-minute TV documentary on Cushing was broadcast in Britain on June 4.
303. Troll Associates continue to add S'ian titles to their series of "Watermill Classics" paperbacks, which now includes ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES and THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1980, each with six stories), THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (1980), GREAT DETECTIVE STORIES

- (1986, with "Bosc" and four stories by other authors), THE SIGN OF FOUR (1987), and A STUDY IN SCARLET (1987). The books have appropriate color covers and cost $1.95 each, and the publisher is Watermill Press, 100 Corporate Drive, Mahwah, NJ 07430.
304. Hirota Ueda's continuing "EQ Sherlockiana" column began in the Mar. 1980 issue of the bimonthly Japanese edition of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, and the first 49 columns, each with an imaginative Sherlockian sketch by the author, have now been collected in SHERLOCK HOLMES DAIHAKURANKAI (ISBN 4-489-00262-9), published in 1988 by Tokyo Tosho (2-5-22, Suido, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo 112, Japan) (Y2,800).
305. Further to the report (Jun 89 #1) on the file of National Holmesian Events for Traveling Sherlockians maintained by Brian and Charlotte Erickson in their computer, their correct address is: 726 Sutter Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94303.
306. Studio Gallery Decorative Editions (50 Caledonian Road, Kings Cross, London N1 9DP, England) offers a "Portrayals of Sherlock Holmes" bone-china plate (in two sizes) with portraits of nineteen actors who have portrayed Holmes. The prices (postpaid by surface mail) are £22.00 (27.5 cm) and £18.00 (20.5 cm), with payment in sterling required. An illustrated flier is available.
-
307. Jul 89 #5: David L. Hammer's THE 22ND MAN: IN RE SHERLOCK HOLMES: GERMAN AGENT (Gasogene Press, 1989; 125 pp., $15.95), is an entertaining extrapolation of his earlier articles on Sherlock Holmes' ancestry and on the possibility that Holmes was a German secret agent before and during the Great War. Hammer's sense of style and place and humor, already known to readers of his S'ian travel books, are all present in this account, with an added point-counterpoint exchange with Jon L. Lellenberg reprinted from the BSJ. The publisher's address is Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004.
308. News from Britain: the Crowborough Cross, an old coaching pub near Conan Doyle's home at Windlesham, is being refurbished, and part of the pub will be renamed The Conan Doyle Rooms. Malcolm Frame, a local admirer of Conan Doyle, hopes to fill the rooms with photographs and memorabilia.
309. Dick Rutter, our far-flung European correspondent, reports that "Holmes Investigation" is a firm of private detectives in Turin, Italy, staffed entirely by women (except for Bub, the office dog).
310. A new mailing at hand from Peter E. Melonas, offering Sherlockian prints, posters, T-shirts, deerstalkers, audio, and the reissue of Rathbone's IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER. If you're not already on his mailing list, you can write to him at the Sherlock Holmes Tobacco Shop, 1726-A Sycamore Square Mall, Memphis, TN 38134.
311. Himan Brown, who created the radio mystery series "The Inner Sanctum" in the 1930s, was inducted into the Emerson Radio Hall of Fame in June. In 1977 he produced and directed the "CBS Radio Mystery Theater" (which ran for more than five years and included at least a dozen Canonical stories and, in 1980, a fine "Nightmare in Gillette Castle" with Kevin McCarthy as both William Gillette and Sherlock Holmes). And at Bouchercon in New York in 1977 he presented a fine talk on "How I Invented Radio Mystery", with an interesting demonstration of sound effects from radio's early days.
312. Elizabeth Peters, who has written five fine mysteries about Egyptologist Amelia Peabody Emerson, has an intriguing story in the anthology SISTERS IN CRIME, edited by Marilyn Wallace (New York: Berkley Books, 1989; 306 pp., $3.95). "The Locked Tomb Mystery" is set in ancient Egypt, in the days of the pharaoh Nebmaatre, and the mystery is solved with careful Sherlockian deduction by the sage and scholar Amenhotep Sa Hapu, with the assistance of his friend Wadjsen.
313. Elizabeth Peters' five mystery novels about Amelia Peabody Emerson, set in Victorian England and Egypt and written with style and humor, are CROCODILE ON THE SANDBANK (1975), THE CURSE OF THE PHARAOHS (1981), THE MUMMY CASE (1985), LION IN THE VALLEY (1986), and THE DEEDS OF THE DISTURBER (1988). THE CURSE OF THE PHARAOHS opens with the death of Sir Henry Baskerville ("of the Norfolk Baskervilles, not the Devonshire branch of the family") during an excavation in Egypt (two members of his staff are epigrapher Karl von Bork and photographer Charles Milverton). THE MUMMY CASE offers two passing allusions to the Canon. LION IN THE VALLEY includes an appearance by a lean, hawk-nosed, private investigator named (or claiming to be named) Tobias Gregson. And THE DEEDS OF THE DISTURBER ends with a pleasant echo from the Canon.
-
314. Jul 89 #6: There's a new commercial videocassette: "Sherlock Hound in Tales of Mystery" from Celebrity Home Entertainment ($39.95 suggested retail in your neighborhood video store). This is the first release in the United States of the series co-produced by TMS (Japan) and RAI (Italy), and the cassette (not yet seen) probably contains four tales. One of the tales was broadcast here by HBO in 1983, and many are available on cassettes in Britain, and they are nicely done: the stories are amusing, the characters are all dogs, and the animation is first-rate (as usual from Japan).
315. Further to the report (Mar 89 #5) on the British government's proposal that Britain's six largest brewers be required to sell most of their "tied pubs" (Whitbread's "The Sherlock Holmes" in London is one of them), an uproar of outraged protest has forced the government into an embarrassed surrender. The protesters included the Bishop of Truro, who argued in the House of Lords that the pub "has served local needs as nothing else has, including the church," and compared the possible loss of the nation's pubs to the dissolution of the monasteries.
316. The third running of The Silver Blaze at Canterbury Downs in Shakopee will be held on Aug. 26 (near Minneapolis). Contact: Bruce E. Southworth, 822 South 2nd Street, Stillwater, MN 55082.
317. "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" closed on July 8, after a run of about 11 weeks at the Cambridge Theatre in London, not even close to the record for the shortest run for a Sherlockian stage production (that record is held by Basil Rathbone's "Sherlock Holmes", which closed after only 3 performances at the New Century Theatre in New York in 1953). "Baker Street" (the first major Sherlockian musical) ran for about 39 weeks at the Broadway Theatre in New York in 1965.
318. Further to the report (Jun 89 #8) on the guide-book for the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's tour of Cambridge, a similar visit was made to Oxford in 1988, and a few copies of the 1988 guide-book (A STUDY IN DARK BLUE) are still available for $16.80 postpaid, from Mrs. Margaret Bird, 193 Richmond Road, Kingston upon Thames, Surrey KT2 5DD, England.
319. The Norwegian Explorers have a new lapel pin, nicely executed in multi-color enamel. The price is $5.00 and you can order from The Norwegian Explorers, Special Collections, Wilson Library, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
320. The N.Y. Times Book Review celebrated summer vacations by asking several writers what character (or characters) in fiction or history they would most like to travel with, and why. Stephen King chose Sherlock Holmes: "It would be fascinating to view American life through his deductive eyes." And David Mamet wanted to take a long train journey with Mrs. Lecount (the archvillain in the Wilkie Collins novel "No Name"): "She is, in my estimation, the most despicable and the smartest fiend ever to trouble the reading public. She sees through every disguise, foresees and nullifies every strategy. She is self-interest without shame, an artist of the ego. She makes Professor Moriarty seem, at best, naughty."
-
321. Aug 89 #1: The silver cigarette case inscribed "From Sherlock Holmes 1893" presented by Arthur Conan Doyle to Sidney Paget on the occasion of his wedding went to auction at Sotheby's in London on July 20, accompanied by a one-page letter from Conan Doyle to Paget, arranging to meet him in London, in one lot estimated at £1,500-2,000. The new owner (as yet unidentified) paid £12,000 for the lot, according to Bob Hess. The cigarette case was last seen at auction on July 24, 1980, when it went for £1,500 to A. K. Shiel of Edinburgh (who had earlier in the sale purchased the letter for £200).
322. News from Britain: a new edition of Conan Doyle's MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES has been published by Oxford University Press (£5.95).

323. "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" may have had a relatively short run at the Cambridge Theatre in London, but the show may go on elsewhere, according to the musical's author, Leslie Bricusse, who told the Daily Mail: "We've had an offer to take our entire London production to Japan, where I'm told they go crazy for Holmes!"
324. Cinemacabre #7 (fall 1988) includes a long interview by Bernie O'Heir with Reginald LeBorg, who has directed many fine horror and fantasy films, and discusses his work with Basil Rathbone (on non-Sherlockian films). The cost is $4.35 postpaid, from Cinemacabre, Box 10005, Baltimore, MD 21285.
325. A new catalog of animated-film artwork at hand from Gallery Lainzberg (200 Guaranty Building, Third Avenue & Third Street SE, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401) (800-553-9995); production cels from "The Great Mouse Detective" are still available ($425), and a limited-edition cel showing a deerstalkered Pink Panther ($395).
326. Repeating (from Jul 89 #4) (because these special-offer prices apply only to enquiries received before the end of September): Studio Gallery Decorative Editions (50 Caledonian Road, Kings Cross, London N1 9DP, England) offers a "Portrayals of Sherlock Holmes" bone-china plate (in two sizes) with portraits of nineteen actors who have portrayed Holmes. The prices (postpaid by surface mail) are £22.00 (27.5 cm) and £18.00 (20.5 cm), with payment in sterling required. An illustrated flier is available.
327. News from Los Angeles: the new host of the PBS-TV series "Mystery!" will be Diana Rigg.
328. R. Dana Batory and William A. S. Sarjeant are the authors of a five-page article on "Sussex *Iguanodon* Footprints and the Writing of *The Lost World*" in DINOSAUR TRACKS AND TRACES, edited by David D. Gillette and Martin G. Lockley (Cambridge University Press, 1989; $59.50). Their article notes the discovery in 1909 of dinosaur footprints near Conan Doyle's home, and discusses the development (and scientific accuracy) of his story.
329. Discovered by Ely Liebow: ALEFBET POP-UP AND STORY BOOK, by Sol Scharfstein (Hoboken: KTAV Publishing House, 1984; $10.95 postpaid); one page features Sherlock Sholom (the world's smartest detective) foiling his nemesis Dr. Tippish. The publisher's address is Box 6249, Hoboken, NJ 07030.
-
330. Aug 89 #2: Ken Greenwald reports that WBAI-FM (the New York outpost of the Pacifica network) is planning to broadcast about three hours of Sherlockian programming on Sept. 10 or 17, with the schedule to include the symposium on "Sherlock Holmes on American Radio" recorded at Sherlockon II in Torrance, Calif., in 1987, and live interviews with some of the people involved with producing the 221A audio cassettes.
331. Readers who have seen earlier issues of these mailings will no doubt have noticed that The Spermacti Press is using a new printer. The stalwart Epson RX-80 has been replaced by a Panasonic KX-P1124 that can pretend it is a typewriter, and do fairly well at it. It is also possible to print on single sheets of paper or on envelopes without taking the fan-fold paper out of the machine, and there are some other nice features, such as being able to change the printer's configuration using a control panel located on the front of the machine (rather than dip switches).
332. For those of you who do not use computers and do not know why the absence of dip switches is a nice feature, the reason is that the personal computer was invented and designed by people who like to take things apart and mess around with the innards. They used tiny "dual in-line package" switches to set printers to do italics or graphics, and to decide whether to advance the paper automatically, and other things like that, and in order to change the settings it was necessary to take the printer apart. It did not take long for people who don't like to take things apart to point out that this arrangement is rather annoying, but it took quite a while for the designers to take the hint.
333. Rex Harrison, who was considered for the role of Sherlock Holmes in the early stages of planning for both the musical "Baker Street" and the Leslie Bricusse musical, received a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth in July.
334. The Library of Congress is running a series honoring "The Films of 1939", including "The Saint in London". "What Basil Rathbone is to Sherlock Holmes, so George Sanders is to Leslie Charteris' reformed master thief Simon Templar," the program notes suggest. "Sanders infuses this 'B' film character with so much of his casual, amoral brilliance that he suggests what A. Conan Doyle's Moriarity might be like if he decided to take a hiatus from Holmes and match wits with the criminal class for a while."
335. THE LAST BOOKMAN (D4625a), the fine tribute to Vincent Starrett published by Peter A. Ruber in 1968, is not seen all that often in dealer's catalogs. Fred Mende (1214 Tarrington Avenue, Charlotte, NC 28205) offers two copies, in mint condition with slightly worn dust jackets, at $37.00 each postpaid.
336. An illustrated flier at hand for a new Sherlockian T-shirt, from Judith A. Culligan, 120 West Pacific Street, Appleton, WI 54911. Also a report that a letter to her at that address was returned, marked "doesn't live here any more." If anyone knows where she does live now, please let me know.
337. PREMIER POPS: HENRY MANCINI is a new audio cassette (Denon CC-72320), also available as a CD (Denon CO-2320): Mancini conducts the Royal Philharmonic Pops Orchestra in selections from his own music, including the main title from "The Great Mouse Detective".
-
338. Aug 89 #3: A bibliographic query about George Annand's dust-jacket artwork and endpaper "A Map of Sherlock Holmes's London" used in the first edition of THE BOYS' SHERLOCK HOLMES (D657a). First printing: light green cloth (decorated in blue), plain white endpapers, dated 1936 on the title page, stated as "first edition" on the title-page verso with the code "L-L" [Nov. 1936]. Later printing: white dust-jacket (decorated in red and black with design by Annand), light green cloth (decorated in dark green), white endpapers (with the Annand map in black), no date on the title page, no edition statement on the title-page verso but with the code "C-I" [Mar. 1959]. Does anyone have a copy of the first printing with Annand's dustjacket and map, or with any other dust-jacket and plain white endpapers? Does anyone have a copy of a later printing, with a code other than "C-I" (with or without the dust-jacket and map)?
339. The second edition of THE BOYS' SHERLOCK HOLMES (D658a) has red endpapers (with the Annand map in white), and the title-page verso code "G-L" [July 1961]. The dust-jacket design is not by Annand, and at least one later printing of the second edition is known, coded I-Q [Sept. 1966].
340. Scott and Sherry Rose Bond, who met Jeremy Brett during their "Return of Sherlock Holmes Tour" in June, report that Brett has interesting plans after "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" closes in December and after he and Hardwicke make six new programs for Granada. They will revive the play at the end of 1990 and bring it to the United States for a one-year tour, starting on the west coast and working eastward. And when that tour ends, Granada executive producer Michael Cox (who is planning to leave Granada) and Granada art designer Mike Grimes and Brett and Hardwicke will make a full-length Sherlock Holmes film (from the Canon, Brett said, because he will never, never appear in a pastiche). On the other hand:
341. Joan Kerins reports that Jeremy Brett, in a BBC radio interview broadcast on July 18, said that his "breathing's gone" because he has to smoke so much on stage, and "pigeon" his chest to achieve Holmes' long, thin look. He also said that he had decided to stop playing Holmes "altogether" come Christmas. However: it has also been reported, by someone who has dined with Brett, that he smokes much more off-stage than on.
342. In what year was "The Sign of Four" first published?
343. Plan ahead: the 1990 celebration of Sherlock Holmes's birthday will be held on Friday, January 12, 1990. And the Hotel Algonquin has arranged, at the request of Tom Stix, for a limited number of rooms ($140 a room, single or double occupancy). To take advantage of the offer, call the Algonquin at 800-548-0345 to make reservations, telling them that you are attending the Sherlock Holmes weekend.

344. THE BOOK OF THE DEAD, by Robert Richardson (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1989; 192 pp., $14.95), is a pleasant murder mystery set in today's Lake District and tied to a Sherlock Holmes story written in 1894 and published by Conan Doyle in an edition of only ten copies, all of which he presented to his godson as a christening present. The pastiche is included in the novel, and shows more imagination and style (the author is English) than many others in the genre.
-
345. Aug 89 #4: "OCLC" is an abbreviation well-known to librarians, and the Online Computer Library Center is a cooperative computerized data base that now has more than 20 million entries in its Online Union Catalog. An article on the "Top 100 Authors in the OCLC Database" in the May-June 1988 issue of the OCLC Newsletter listed Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in that ranking, as #38 (with Jules Verne as #37 and Horace as #39). You are invited to pause for a moment to guess who the first five authors might be.
346. Additional research by the OCLC staff has revealed that in 1988 there were 2,594 entries for Conan Doyle as an author, in various languages, editions, and formats, ranging from his contribution to Grant Allen's HILDA WADE: A WOMAN WITH TENACITY OF PURPOSE (1900) to Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939). The database entries represent cataloging by member libraries who thought the item they had was different enough from extant records to warrant a new entry in the OCLC, so there is occasional duplication among the entries, but the listing is a fascinating display and a fine demonstration of how useful such a database can be to librarians.
347. And the first five authors in the top 100? William Shakespeare (with more than 15,000 entries), Charles Dickens, Sir Walter Scott, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, and Aristotle.
348. In what year was "The Sign of Four" first published? It is well known that "The Sign of the Four" appeared in Lippincott's Monthly Magazine in Feb. 1890, and that "The Sign of Four" was serialized in The Bristol Observer in May, June, and July 1890, but there is an authoritative report that the story was first published earlier than 1890. Unfortunately, no copy of the first appearance of "The Sign of Four" has been found, as is the case with the first appearance of "A Study in Scarlet" that preceded the reprint in Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887. Credit Michael J. Halm, editor of The Norbury Chronicle (the newsletter of The Holmesian Studies Special Interest Group) for observing the statement by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (and surely Sir Arthur should be regarded as an authority), in the Mar. 1927 issue of The Strand Magazine and in his preface to THE CASE BOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, that "Holmes made his debut in *A Study in Scarlet* and in *The Sign of Four*, two small booklets which appeared between 1887 and 1889."
349. Ben Wood, the BSI's chaplain, editor and publisher of The Bohemian Scandal Sheet, and enthusiastic philatelist, hopes to start a "Holmes on Stamps" study unit in the American Topical Association. Ten members of the ATA are needed for official status, and ATA members are invited to write to Ben at Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
350. John Ruyle, feverishly buttering his parsnips at the Pequod Press, has announced the latest case in Dr. Fatso's continuing memoirs of Turlock Loams. THE MUSCATEL RITUAL is available from the publisher, at 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $30.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
351. Gaston Leroux's THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA, with a Foreword by Peter Haining and reprints of two articles about the Phantom's Sherlockian connections, by David M. Rush (D4170a) and Barbara Goldfield (D4158a), published earlier in Britain (Mar 88 #3), is available here in a cloth-bound discount edition (New York: Dorset Press, 1988; 264 pp., $4.98).
-
352. Aug 89 #5: MCA Home Video is planning to expand its list of Abbott-and-Costello films, and next month will issue a $19.95 cassette of their 1942 film "Who Done It?" Abbott and Costello played radio writers involved in a murder case, and appeared in Sherlockian costume in publicity stills and advertisements (though not in the film). The only Sherlockian aspect of the film is the statement by one of the other actors that "I could devise a murder that would baffle even Sherlock Holmes."
353. Further to the report (Jul 89 #6) on the new videocassette "Sherlock Hound in Tales of Mystery" from Celebrity Home Entertainment: if your local video shop doesn't know where the company is, the address is 6320 Canoga Avenue, 17th floor, Box 4112, Woodland Hills, CA 91365.
354. Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's Nate the Great is enjoying summer on the beach and detecting again (though without his usual deerstalker), in NATE THE GREAT AND THE BORING BEACH BAG (New York: Dell, 1989; 48 pp., $2.95).
355. Kilgore Trout's VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL, first published in 1975, is again available, in a new paperback edition (New York: Bantam, 1988; 178 pp., $3.95), with a new introduction by Philip Jose Farmer, who wrote the book with permission from Kurt Vonnegut. There's a Sherlockian connection (a complicated Sherlockian connection): Kilgore Trout is a sad-sack sciencefiction author who appears in three of Vonnegut's books (and VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL is mentioned in Vonnegut's GOD BLESS YOU, MR. ROSEWATER. In Farmer's version (the only published version) of VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL, the hero is Simon Wagstaff, who admires the work of Jonathan Swift Somers III. And Jonathan Swift Somers III has written two stories of interest to Sherlockians: "A Scarlet Study" (D4915b) and "The Doge Whose Barque Was Worse Than His Bight" (D4913b). There is, however, one link missing from the circular chain: Ralph von Wau Wau, the protagonist in Somers' stories, was going to write a story about a writer named Shorter Vondergut, but Kurt Vonnegut and Philip Jose Farmer had a falling-out, and the story was never written. Farmer's new introduction explains who Jonathan Swift Somers I and Jonathan Swift Somers II were, and much much more.
356. A new sales list at hand from David L. Hammer for the titles in print and scheduled from the Gasogene Press. If you are not already on his mailing list, you can write to him at Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004.
357. Plan well ahead: Bouchercon XXI will be held on Sept. 21-23, 1990, at Kings College in London, and will include (according to a recent announcement) visits to the Black Museum, the Ripper's London, and the haunts of Sherlock Holmes. Details on advance discount membership and discount air travel are available from Ming Books, 225 South 18th Street #1502, Philadelphia, PA 19103 (or from Bouchercon XXI, 1 Penrose Avenue, Carpenders Park, Watford, Herts. WD1 5AE, England).
358. Further to the report from the American Booksellers Association convention on the "Sherlock Holmes Solo Mysteries" (Jun 89 #4), Iron Crown Enterprises reports that the first five titles have been published in translation in Germany, Japan, Spain, Italy, France, and Sweden. THE LOST HEIR, by Milt Creighton (the eighth and last title in the series), was not published in the United States, but will appear, eventually, in Germany and Japan.
-
359. Aug 89 #6: On Oct. 2, 1987, the National Library of Medicine held a fine symposium on "Images of the Health Professions in the Popular Arts" (in honor of the centennial of the National Institutes of Health), and one of the participants was Dr. David F. Musto, who gave an interesting lecture on "The Physician in the Mystery Story: The Case of John H. Watson, M.D.". The lecture is now available on VHS on interlibrary loan (use the lecture title and call number WZ 330 VC #6 1987), and your local library can write to the National Library of Medicine, Collection Access Section, 8600 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20894. You can also ask your librarian to copy the cassette for you (the cassette was produced by an agency of the U.S. government, and thus is not protected by copyright).
360. Andrew Fusco reports that Bill Rabe appeared on the "Today" show on NBC-TV on August 4, offering a guided tour of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island (where Bill is the official island historian). The tour included a visit to the hotel's presidential suite, in which no president has yet stayed.

361. Reported by Tom Stix: Sherlock Hemlock solves "The Mystery of the Missing Muffins" in ON MY WAY WITH SESAME STREET: MY ABC'S. This is the first in a new fifteen-volume series published by Children's Television Workshop/Funk & Wagnalls and available in supermarkets.
362. Further to the report (Jul 89 #2) on the second (revised) edition of Rick Hacker's THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK, the book is due in tobacco and pipe shops in mid-September, priced at $19.95. If you would like an autographed copy, write to Rick Hacker, Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213 ($23.00 postpaid). The book will have a detailed description of Sherlock Holmes' pipe-smoking habits, photographs of some of the rarest Sherlockian commemorative pipes, and a dedication to Holmes and to Rick's wife (in that order).
363. MURDER ON CUE: VOLUME 1, edited by Eleanor Sullivan (New York: Walker, 1989; 322 pp., $19.95), is an anthology of stories (including "The Red-Headed League") that have been adapted for the stage, screen, radio, and television. The book is the hard-cover edition of ELLERY QUEEN'S MEDIA FAVORITES (summer 1988).
364. Plan ahead: The Sherlock Holmes Society of London will visit Switzerland from Apr. 26 to May 5, 1991, to celebrate the centenary of the battle at the Reichenbach, with participation restricted to members of the Society.
365. A new reconstruction of the sitting-room at 221B, for which Tony Howlett has already begun assembling Holmesian material, will be officially opened in the Sherlock Holmes Museum in Meiringen on May 4.
366. The Swiss pilgrimage does conflict, unfortunately, with the Fifth Irregular Quinquennial Holmesian Dinner at the Culinary Institute of America, which is also scheduled for May 4, 1991. But you have plenty of time to decide which commemoration you wish to attend.
367. "Without a Clue" is now available on commercial videocassette from Orion Home Video, but if you don't want to pay $89.95 for the cassette, you can wait a few months and tape the film off-the-air from The Movie Channel or Showtime, which will be broadcasting the film on cable later this year.
-
368. Sep 89 #1: The Reader's Digest has launched a new series of "Best Loved Books for Young Readers" consisting of 16 volumes reprinted by Choice Publishing and available in Safeway supermarkets (and presumably in other chains). THE ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER is their loss-leader, priced at 99c and packaged with a free 32-page parent's guide (which has one uninteresting page about Sherlock Holmes). Other titles in the series cost $3.49, and one of them is GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, a reprint of D687a (but with only two of Guy Deel's nice illustrations).
369. "Sherlock Holmes and the Development of Scientific Methodology in Criminal Investigation" is the title of a symposium that will be held by the Pacific Section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in June 1990 at the University of California (Davis). If you would like to present a paper or attend the meeting, write to Brian and Charlotte Erickson, c/o Harraway, VV 341, Mount Eden, CA 94557.
370. Charlotte Erickson has published a second edition (revised and extended) of her checklist of "Sherlock Holmes in the Comic Books" (now 48 pp., $12.00 postpaid from Charlotte at their new address: 1920 Marich Way, Mountain View, CA 94040). The new telephone number for the Erickson's electronic bulletin board 221BBS is 415-949-1734.
371. "I have a wonderful superstitious love of mystery." (James Boswell) "I am lost without my Boswell." (Sherlock Holmes). It was in 1944 that Lillian de la Torre began her fine series of stories, with the great Samuel Johnson as her Holmes and James Boswell as her Watson. Four paperback collections of the stories have been published by International Polygonics, and they offer a nice mix of mystery and history: DR. SAM: JOHNSON, DETECTOR (1983); THE DETECTIONS OF DR. SAM: JOHNSON (1984); THE RETURN OF DR. SAM: JOHNSON, DETECTOR (1985); and THE EXPLOITS OF DR. SAM: JOHNSON, DETECTOR (1987). And there is a Canonical echo in "Murder Lock'd In" (in THE RETURN OF DR. SAM: JOHNSON, DETECTOR).
372. Sherlock Hemlock is *not* owned by Walt Disney Co. Disney's acquisition of Henson Associates (at an estimated price of $100 million) (but less costly than Epcot Center, according to Disney chairman Michael Eisner) affects the Muppets, and Kermit, but not the other Sesame Street characters, which are owned by Children's Television Workshop.
373. The postmaster general says that the postal service is going to ask for higher postal rates, which will probably take effect in 1991. Have postal rates ever gone down in this century? Yes: in 1919 the first-class letter rate went from 3c to 2c. Some other incidental information: the postal service handled 160.4 billion pieces of mail in 1988, or about 640 pieces of mail per person. That's fewer than 3 pieces a day. Sherlockians are (of course) above average.
374. An advertisement at hand from Robert Brosch Archival Photography (14845 Anne Street, Allen Park, MI 48101), offering color-photograph reproductions of posters and lobby cards from Rathbone's S'ian films ($4.00 for 8x10, $7.00 for 11x14, $25.00 for 16x20, plus shipping). Send SASE for details.
-
375. Sep 89 #2: During a visit to Nebraska, Basil Rathbone participated in the official opening of the John H. Watson Reading Room at the Wayne State Library on Nov. 5, 1965, and a recording of the proceedings is now available on a 19-minute audio cassette. The recording will be of interest only to fanatic collectors, since it has a very brief speech by Rathbone, followed by considerable chit-chat (some intelligible) by Bill Rabe, John Bennett Shaw, Fred Kelly, George John, Dick Lesh, and other members of The Maiwand Jezails. You can order the cassette from Richard D. Lesh, 620 Mathews Street #208, Fort Collins, CO 80521; $5.00 postpaid.
376. Charles Norman's poem "A Study in Mauve" (D4466a) has been reprinted from the BSJ as a nicely designed and printed pamphlet from the Bartlett Press (20 Bartlett Road, Middletown, RI 02840); $25.00 postpaid.
377. Fred Saberhagen's THE HOLMES-DRACULA FILE (D5167b) has been reissued in a new paperback edition with new cover art by Glenn Hastings (New York: Tor Books, 1989; 249 pp., $3.95).
378. Thanks to those who responded to the query (Jul 89 #3) about the different formats for writing dates: 12-25-88 (American) and 25-12-88 (British). We have received no explanation about when the different formats evolved, or why, but one correspondent notes that the British format is also used in much of Europe, and that it is more logical, since the progression is from the smallest to the largest unit. Joel Lima also reports that there is a third format (88-12-25) that has been formally approved by the European Economic Community and adopted by some of its members, including Portugal.
379. Joel Lima also asks for help in identifying the source of an illustration showing Baskerville Hall. The uncredited artwork appeared in the first Portuguese translation of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (1907). Can anyone recall if, when, or where the artwork might have appeared earlier?
-
380. Sep 89 #3: Holmes and Watson have been bitmapped, and are now available in the MacNet graphics library (this is a 50% reduction, and they will look better at 100%). Translation: you need a Macintosh computer and a modem and a laser printer to use the artwork.
381. Thanks also to those who responded to the bibliographic query (Jul 89 #2) about the promotional flier for Bell's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND DOCTOR WATSON: A CHRONOLOGY OF THE ADVENTURES found laid-in with some copies of Blakeney's SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OF FICTION? (London: John Murray, 1932). The results are not conclusive, but it appears likely that all copies of the book were first sold with the flier: most copies reported with dust jacket also have the flier, and it is reasonable to assume that original owners who were careful enough to preserve the dust jacket would also preserve the flier.

382. On or about Aug. 1, James J. Kilpatrick discussed Conan Doyle's use of the word "disillusionize" (in "Reig") in his syndicated column on "The Writer's Art", mentioning having commented on the usage "a few weeks ago." His next report noted that "I have heard from Holmesians from Florida to Hawaii," and that "I now know more about the matter than I really wanted to know," and that "disillusionize" appears in the British versions of the story (it is "disillusion" in the American versions). His column on language does not run in Washington, and I would appreciate a copy of the column with his earliest comments (some time before Aug. 1).
383. Gay Southworth discovered, and Dave Galerstein photographed (in case proof positive is needed) a Barnes & Noble store display that had the Sherlock Holmes radio series in the non-fiction section of their audio shelves.
384. THE LOST WORLD & THE POISON BELT is a new trade-paperback (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1989; 250 pp., $8.95), offering the first two Challenger stories with an introduction by science-fiction writer William Gibson and cover art by Martha Mueller (based on one of the fine illustrations Harry Rountree did for THE LOST WORLD). Chronicle is planning a second volume, with three more Challenger stories, next spring.
385. Ollie North has had his day(s) in court, but it has only now come to our attention that he was far from the first person to have shredded documents. One early instance, in the year 1349 but recorded much later ("with his own hands he had shredded those august documents"), will be found in SIR NIGEL (1906). The usage is cited in the OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY.
386. News from Britain, courtesy of Roger Johnson: a British edition of Esther Friesner's alternate-universe pastiche DRUID'S BLOOD (Jul 88 #2) has been published by Headline (£3.50). Glen Petrie's THE DORKING GAP AFFAIR: A MYCROFT HOLMES ADVENTURE will be published in September by Bantam Press (£12.95). Charles Viney's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN LONDON will be published September by Equation (£12.95). And the News of the World has reported on plans for a new film: "Sherlock Holmes and the Case of the Missing Santa Claus", with David Bowie as Holmes and Gene Kelly as Santa.
-
387. Sep 89 #4: A STUDY IN BANKING: AN INVESTIGATION OF THE RELATIONSHIP OF MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES WITH HIS BANK offers an imaginative discussion by James Cuthbertson (himself a banker, now retired) of the detective's dealings with the Hampshire Banking Company from 1871 until 1914 (by which time it had been renamed the Capital and Counties Bank). The pamphlet (27 pages) is available from the author (5 Meadow View Close, Wareham, BH20 4JQ, England), and the postpaid prices are £3.75 (surface) or £5.00 (air) if paid in sterling, or $5.00 (surface) or $10.00 (air) if in currency.
388. John Newton (Box 471, Claymont, DE 19703) (office: 302-594-1594) offers a copy of "Conan Doyle Speaking" (D5559a), the recording made in May 1930 and issued by His Master's Voice later that year as #C-1983. The phonograph record is in excellent condition and the price is $325.00 plus shipping.
389. Another item available from Sgt. David A. Reinhardt (76 Lord Simcoe Drive, Bramalea, Ont. L6S 5G6, Canada): this lapel pin (US$4.00 postpaid) for the Home Office Large Major Enquiry System is based on a similar lapel pin made for the Canadian National Railway Police (who bear the responsibility for the thoroughly non-Sherlockian handlebar mustache).
390. THE COMPLETE PROFESSOR CHALLENGER stories is available from Barnes & Noble (577 pp., $9.95); this is probably a reprint of THE PROFESSOR CHALLENGER STORIES published by John Murray in 1952. Also: DETECTIONARY (D1860b) at $5.98, and the 1988 "Dorset Press" edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES at $12.95. Add $4.00 per order for shipping, and the address for Barnes & Noble is 126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011.
391. Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke are now touring in their play "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" and one-week runs are scheduled in Bradford, Croydon, Hull, Guildford, Cardiff, Chichester, Birmingham, Aberdeen, Brighton, Manchester, and Bath (where they are scheduled to close on Dec. 16).
392. Reported by Ted Friedman: THE SPIES AND DETECTIVES CUT AND COLOR BOOK, with an adaptation of "The Blue Carbuncle" and a cut-out-and-assemble model of the sitting-room (Crown/Chatham River, 1989; 48 pp., $3.98 at Waldenbooks).
393. MINI-MYSTERIES FEATURING MICKEY MOUSE AND FRIENDS includes one illustration of Mickey in Sherlockian costume (New York: Western Publishing Co., 1989; $1.75 at B. Dalton shops).
394. Eagle-eyed Dave Galerstein has spotted a Watsonian error (actually due to our compositor's careless thumb) in our earlier report on the potential conflict in 1991. The correct dates are Apr. 26 to May 5, 1991, for the Swiss visit by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, and May 4, 1991, for the Fifth Irregular Quinquennial Holmesian Dinner at the Culinary Institute of America.
395. Further to the report on the appearance of H. Marion Crawford in the film "Lawrence of Arabia" (Feb 89 #3), I am now informed there is an additional connection, in the newly restored version: in some scenes the voice of the late Jack Hawkins was supplied by Charles Gray, who has played Mycroft on screen and television.
-
396. Sep 89 #5: The editor blithely assumes that readers of this newsletter are also subscribers to The Baker Street Journal, and the editor will continue editing on that assumption (even though it is only about 90% correct), and will refrain from repeating news that has already appeared in the BSJ, which (for the benefit of the 10%) costs $15.00 a year, from the Fordham University Press, University Box L, Bronx, NY 10458.
397. Aware, however, that the limit on membership in The Sherlock Holmes Society of London means that some of you may not be able to receive their mailings, the editor will report that the society's Christmas card for 1989 shows a British soldier alone on the first Christmas Even of the Second Afghan War, thinking of those left behind, his family, and of the festivities usual in Britain. Ten cards and envelopes cost $9.00 postpaid (airmail) and you can send your checks to Capt. W. R. Mitchell, The Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset, TA13 5JX, England.
398. International travelers might wish to check the duty-free shops for "Black Peter": a new liquor-loaded licorice candy from the Finnish company Chymos.
399. The script for SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE GIANT RAT OF SUMATRA, a two-act "Victorian musical spoof, with book by Tim Kelly and music and lyrics by Jack Sharkey, is available from Baker's Plays, 100 Chauncy Street, Boston, MA 02111; $5.25 postpaid.
400. At long last (and priced at $9.98 at Waldenbooks): THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Ken Greenwald, based on the original radio plays by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher (Mallard Press/BDD Promotional Book Co.); 13 stories based on Rathbone/Bruce radio broadcasts.
401. TV Guide had about 16.3 million subscribers at the end of 1988, and they don't take subscriptions for more than one year. That means they get 16.3 million checks a year. At six days a week, 52 weeks a year, that's 52,244 envelopes to open each day.
402. Some philatelic Sherlockiana: Czechoslovakia issued a stamp earlier this year to honor Charlie Chaplin, who appeared as Billy in William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" and "The Painful Predicament of Sherlock Holmes". And we appear to be seeing North Carolina everywhere, in June on the "seashore" postal card, and last month on a new postal card, with Bart Forbes' design showing a scene in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains. With a more direct reference to North Carolina (where the Anderson murders occurred), there is a new commemorative honoring the 200th anniversary of statehood, designed by Bob Timberlake and showing the state flower, the dogwood.
-

403. Sep 89 #6: The Brambletye Hotel in Forest Row, one of the few hotels to appear in the Canon under its own name, has a new owner. Mr. Millar writes that the hotel is decorated with Sherlockian memorabilia, and that some of the rooms have been named after Canonical characters. The new restaurant, named The Deerstalker, will open in October. We can only hope that the Black Peter Bar still adjoins the hotel (a photograph of the hotel and the bar will be found in David L. Hammer's THE GAME IS AFOOT).
404. I've finally had a brief report, via Ted Schulz, from someone who has gone on the Universal Studios tour during a visit to Los Angeles. The tour area includes Victorian London, where one will find a sign for "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" outside a shop (which sells nothing Sherlockian).
405. Further to the report (Feb 89 #2) on the new edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES from the Land Press, with a hitherto unpublished full-page frontispiece portrait of Holmes by Sidney Paget, bound in leather with your choice of four different designs (price $2,000): Don Pollock reports that the prospectus is now also available from their American agent, Priscilla Juvelis (150 Huntington Avenue #SD-L, Boston, MA 02115).
406. One page from the manuscript of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" is offered in catalog 25 from Pepper & Stern (1980 Cliff Drive #224, Santa Barbara, CA 93109) at $20,000.
407. Sherlockians touring Cape Cod in the vicinity of West Hyannisport may wish to try the Copper Beech Inn -- a bed-and-breakfast establishment featured in Insider (Sept.-Oct. 1989) and noted by Richard Wein.
408. "Bearlock Holmes" is now available from the North American Bear Company (attn: Advertising Department), 401 North Wabash #500, Chicago, IL 60611 ($66.00 plus $2.50 shipping).
409. Fred A. Stutman, who included Sherlock Holmes in WALK, DON'T DIE: HOW TO STAY FIT, TRIM AND HEALTHY WITHOUT KILLING YOURSELF (Oct 86 #4), has now returned to Holmes in WALK TO WIN: THE EASY 4-DAY DIET AND FITNESS PLAN, which has a chapter on "The Mystery of the Walking Men".
410. The book is available from Medical Manor Books, 3501 Newberry Road, Philadelphia, PA 19154 ($19.95 cloth, $10.95 paper).
411. Visitors to Canada will find Sherlock Holmes in the post offices there, in a flier promoting Canada Post's new bar-coded registered mail and security mail services. Wilfrid de Freitas reports that there is also a poster.
412. Only two copies (both from the second printing) remain from the earlier supply of the well-traveled paperback (and only) edition of Frank Thomas' SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MASQUERADE MURDERS. $6.00 postpaid from: The Spermaceti Press, 3900 Tunlaw Road NW #119, Washington, DC 20007-4830
-
413. Oct 89 #1: The Abbey National Building Society is in the news, but not because of their providing secretarial services for Sherlock Holmes. Their plans to go public were far from problem-free, as reported by the Sunday Telegraph on Aug. 13: "Conan Doyle's hero would surely have relished a case in which 365,000 share certificates -- enough to fill several lorries -- worth £150 million have disappeared into thin air, mysterious fire have broken out and there are mutterings of blackmail and commercial rivalry. All it lacks is a dog that didn't bark in the night." The missing shares represent from 10 to 15 percent of the issue, and Abbey National and Lloyd's Bank are now at work, trying to find out what went wrong.
414. Other news from Britain: a modern-day Hound of the Baskervilles is on the rampage in Wales, where residents of Clyro believe that their legend of the Black Dog of Hergest provided the source for the Sherlock Holmes story (and where the local pub, The Baskerville Arms, boasts a stone hound squatting outside on the porch). Dozens of sheep have been killed on a near-by farm ("their throats were torn and their insides ripped out"), and there have been reports of howling, carried on the wind, down the valley.
415. The Sherlock Holmes Society of Australia offers its own Christmas card for 1989, showing the convict ship *Success* ("whose early career paralleled that of the *Gloria Scott*"). US$20.00 for ten, or US$12.00 for five, postpaid with envelopes, and you can order from Alan Olding, P.O. Box 12, Stirling, S.A. 5152, Australia.
416. Sterling Lanier's THE CURIOUS QUESTS OF BRIGADIER FFELLOWES, was published in 1986 (Jan 87 #2) and includes his giant-rat pastiche "A Father's Tale" (D5042b); the book is a collection of Lanier's stories, illustrated by Ned Dameron, signed by the author and artist, and still available ($30.00) from the publisher: Donald M. Grant, Box 187, Hampton Falls, NH 03844.
417. The Royalton, which many Sherlockian visitors to New York will remember as an inexpensive alternative to the Hotel Algonquin, is still an alternative, but no longer inexpensive. According to their rate card, at hand from Al Rosenblatt, single rooms cost $190-$285 a night, double rooms $215-$310, and the weekend rate (for Friday and Saturday) is $140 a night (the same as the special Sherlockian rate announced by the Algonquin for the January birthday festivities). The Royalton's toll-free number is 800-635-9013.
418. ZAM is a nicely-produced quarterly fanzine devoted to horror, fantasy, and science fiction, with a column ("The Dark Corner") by J. N. Williamson. In the fall 1989 issue Jerry recalls his early adventures as the founder of The Illustrious Clients of Indianapolis and as a teen-aged editor of three anthologies that are now S'ian cornerstones. $5.95 postpaid (or $19.00 a year) from Gretta M. Anderson, Box 6754, Rockford, IL 61125.
419. Check your grocery-store cereal shelves for packages of Honey Nut Cheerios: television commercials for the cereal have a Sherlockian theme, tied to a game on the packages, which display a deerstalkered honey bee. And Yoplait yogurt has a give-away game on containers that display a small Sherlockian silhouette on the front.
-
420. Oct 89 #2: The first issue of "Holmes for the Holidays" is at hand, with attractive color covers by Bob Weber, Jr. (creator of "Slylock Fox") and 12 pages of stories and puzzles designed for young Sherlockians. The magazine, edited by Michael W. McClure, will be published five times a year by the Chester Baskerville Society, 1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233, and costs $5.00 a year.
421. Bouchercon XX in Philadelphia was nicely arranged and well-attended, with about 1,300 people on hand for the festivities, which included a Saturdayafternoon Sherlockian session arranged by Scott and Sherry Rose Bond. The program book included a warm tribute to Anthony Boucher, written by Lenore Glen Offord, with due attention to his Sherlockian interests.
422. For those who wish to plan ahead, Bouchercon XXI will be held in London on Sept. 21-23, 1990 (the organizers are Marion and Robin Richmond, 1 Penrose Avenue, Carpenders Park, Watford, Herts. WD1 5AE, England). And Bouchercon XXII will be held in Pasadena on Oct. 11-13, 1991 (Len and June Moffatt, 2334 Beach Avenue, Venice, CA 90291). Bouchercon XXIII will probably be in Boston in 1992, and Milwaukee is plans to bid for Bouchercon XXIV in 1993.
423. And there are a growing number of regional gatherings, such as the second "Malice Domestic" convention in Washington on Apr. 6-8, 1990 (details are available from Box 701, Herndon, VA 22070), and the first annual Midwestern Mystery & Suspense Convention in Omaha on May 26-28, 1990 (Little Professor Book Center, Baker's Square, 13455 West Center Road, Omaha, NE 68144).
424. The First International Holmesian Games, held in Seattle on Sept. 16 and arranged by The Sound of the Baskervilles, opened with Hugo Baskerville's Wild Midnight Pursuit (entrants, at the cry, "The Dame's Afoot," joined Hugo and his evil pack to chase a designated chaste yeoman's daughter across the moor) and closed with Dr. Watson's Quick Resuscitation Drill (entrants, with the aid of a funnel and a flask of Dr. Watson's universal specific, gave

- funnel-to-mouth injections to designated supine patients: speed and accuracy of aiming funnel were judged). The program for the games, it should be noted, did specify a chaste yeoman's daughter, rather than a yeoman's chaste daughter.
425. Sherlockian philately: Philadelphia is mentioned in two of the Canonical tales, and a new postal card, designed by Bart Forbes, shows an aerial view of Philadelphia's Independence Hall. Another postal card, also designed by Bart Forbes, shows the Inner Harbor in Baltimore (where, Christopher Morley once suggested, the extraordinary and informal opportunities offered for graduate study when Johns Hopkins University opened in 1876 attracted Sherlock Holmes across the water).
-
426. Oct 89 #3: One new book, omitted from the Christmas list sent with the announcement of the December meeting of The Red Circle, is the American edition (to be published in November) of Charles Viney's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN LONDON (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1989; 168 pp., $24.95). It is a delightful book, with more than 200 sepia-toned contemporary photographs, accompanying appropriate quotations from the Canon. Recommended.
427. Edgar P. Smith ("The Smith-Mortimer Succession Case") died on Oct. 10. He was the son of Edgar W. Smith, and his contributions to the cause included two fine sculptures: the "Statuette of Sherlock Holmes" (D4888a) and the reproduction (as by E. Pichard) of the "Oscar Meunier Bust of Sherlock Holmes" in 1959 (D4887a).
428. American Express has shipped the third installment of the Simon & Schuster audio cassettes to subscribers, bringing the total number of cassettes to eight. The new programs are "Colonel Warburton's Madness", "The Iron Box", "The Limping Ghost", "The Girl with the Gazelle", "The Out of Date Murder", and "The Waltz of Death", and the cassettes have introductions by Phyllis White (Mrs. Anthony Boucher) and Ben Wright. I don't know whether American Express card-holders can still subscribe to the series, but their toll-free telephone number is 800-528-8000. Nor do I know if you can now purchase all eight cassettes directly from Simon & Schuster, but their toll-free number is 800-687-2677.
429. In response to queries occasioned by people's inability to find copies of Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (the collection of adaptations of 13 of the Rathbone/Bruce radio scripts), the publisher is Mallard Press, an imprint of BDD Promotions Book Co. (666 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10103). That's the address of Bantam Books, which is owned by BDD (which also owns Barnes & Noble, and B. Dalton). My guess is that the book has been published to go directly to the bargain-books tables and shelves at Barnes & Noble, and B. Dalton, and that it will turn up eventually there and at other stores and at mystery-specialist bookshops. When I hear of a shop that offers the book by mail-order, I will report again.
430. More philately (Doylean rather than Sherlockian): the set of four stamps, designed by John Gurche and showing prehistoric reptiles: *Tyrannosaurus*, *Pteranodon*, *Stegosaurus*, and *Brontosaurus*. One USPS press release refers to "four extinct dinosaurs" (from which we might infer that the USPS knows of some dinosaurs that aren't extinct), but one of the reptiles was not a dinosaur (*Pteranodon*). The USPS has also been criticized by scientists who know that the name *Brontosaurus* was preempted a few years ago, when it was determined that the first the person to describe the animal used the name Apatosaurus. According to Edward D. Malone, which of these reptiles lived in "The Lost World"?
-
431. Oct 89 #4: "Moriarty Free After 29 Months in U.S. Prison" was the headline on a story from the Los Angeles Times (Nov. 4, 1988), at hand from Gary Westmoreland, reporting the release of W. Patrick Moriarty after serving 29 months of a five-year prison sentence on charges of political corruption. Moriarty was an Orange County businessman, according to an earlier report (Aug 85 #1), who pleaded guilty to seven counts of fraud as part of a plea-bargain agreement with the government, and then testified against a bank official charged with conspiring with Moriarty in an alleged money-laundering scheme. But the federal jury in Los Angeles voted for acquittal. "They flat didn't believe the man," said an observer, "I would love to defend anybody with Moriarty as a complaining witness."
432. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's praise for the Parker Duofold ("I have at last met my affinity in pens") was used in an advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post (Feb. 7, 1931), and now in a new advertisement in Fortune (Oct. 16), New Yorker (Oct. 16), Life (Nov.), and Time (Nov. 6).
433. The Mind's Eye (Box 6727, San Francisco, CA 94101) offers a profusion of audio cassettes, including some of the Hobbs/Shelley and Gielgud/Richardson broadcasts, and the cover of their 1989-90 catalog is a striking full-color cover portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Bruce Wolfe.
434. Michael Dibdin won the Gold Dagger Award from the Crime Writers Association in 1988, and his British publishers have celebrated with a new edition of THE LAST SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY (D4891b), another attempt to solve the mystery of Jack the Ripper (London: Faber and Faber, 1989; 192 pp., £3.99).
435. Of the four prehistoric reptiles shown on the new set of stamps (Oct 89 #3), only the stegosaur is named by Edward D. Malone in "The Lost World".
436. An American book club (Mystery Guild) edition of Robert Richardson's THE BOOK OF THE DEAD (Aug 89 #3) has been published by St. Martin's Press, and it is easily distinguished: the trade edition is bound in black, with a first-edition statement on the title-page verso; and the book-club edition is bound in gray, without the first-edition statement (and with a book-club-edition statement on the front flap of the dust jacket).
437. There have been more (and conflicting) reports on Jeremy Brett's plans. Andy Solberg reports that WGBH-TV (Boston) reports that "Mystery!" has purchased six more programs from Granada, and that the play has closed and that Granada is now making the programs, which will be shown here in the 1990-1991 season. Paul Singleton reports that Granada will begin work on the new series in 1990, and that the programs will be Bosc, Chas, Thor, Lady, and Vall (two parts), and that Brett will then take the play on tour, opening on the west coast of the United States in December 1991.
438. Paul's report is certainly more accurate, since the play is now on tour in the provinces. And if you would like to have more news and reviews of Sherlockian stage, screen, radio, and television, you will enjoy reading The Third Pillar: A Newsletter for Thespian Pursuits in Sherlockiana, a quarterly newsletter edited and published by Paul Singleton (523 Central Avenue, Bethpage, NY 11714); the first issue (Sept. 1989) is available, and the cost is $3.00 a year.
-
439. Oct 89 #5: "A Woman of Mystery" is an eight-page monthly newsletter edited and published by Amy Lubelski for Agatha Christie fans, and a recent Sherlock Holmes Special Issue gives careful attention to the many parallels and echoes found in Christie's work. Subscriptions cost $30.00 a year, and a single issue costs $3.00, and the newsletter's address is Box 1616, Canal Street Station, New York, NY 10013.
440. Charles Kovacic (18307 Burbank Boulevard #49, Tarzana, CA 91356) has a new illustrated sales list, offering Sherlockian pins, watches, bookplates, postcards, Christmas tree ornaments, posters, and reproductions of older lobby cards and other artwork.
441. A ROSE BY ANOTHER NAME: A SURVEY OF LITERARY FLORA FROM SHAKESPEARE TO ECO, by Robert F. Fleissner (West Cornwall: Locust Hill Press, 1989; 164 pp., $24.00), is a collection of essays on literary roses, their symbolism, and their connections, noting intriguing examples as disparate as Rosa Budd in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" and Rosebud in "Citizen Kane". And the Canon is not neglected: in one of the essays Fleissner discusses the roses, and the detectives, in "The Moonstone" and "The Naval Treaty". The publisher's address is Main Street, West Cornwall, CT 06796.
442. "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (a concert version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles") was commissioned by Richard Hartshorne from Jon Deak some years ago, and performed by Hartshorne in Washington this month during a concert by the Apple Hill Chamber Players. The composition is for double bass and six voices (all provided by Hartshorne, who quickly changes hats to show who's speaking), and it is thoroughly imaginative and

- amusing. An audio cassette (with two other pieces) is available ($10.00 postpaid) from Richard Hartshorne, Apple Hill Chamber Players, East Sullivan, NH 03445.
443. THE DICTIONARY OF IMAGINARY PLACES, by Alberto Manguel and Gianni Guadalupi (San Diego: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1987; 454 pp., $16.95), was first published in 1980 and is now available in an expanded edition, and it is a splendid gazetteer, with maps and charts by James Cook and illustrations by Graham Greenfield. Due attention is given to Conan Doyle's works, and the dictionary has entries for Atlantis, Baskerville Hall, Camford, Challenger Field, Fulworth, Maple White Land, and Uffa.
-
444. Oct 89 #6: Bill Rabe reports that he still offers copies of VOICES FROM BAKER STREET I, II AND III, the landmark four-record boxed album issued some years ago (Dec 83 #3), with new pressings of VFBS I and II and two new records of "sounds to deduce by" (all accompanied by careful annotations and explanations). The cost is $40.00 postpaid, and you can order from W. T. Rabe, 1204 Davitt Street, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783. And you should, if you don't have the album already, because it is a splendid collection of the aural history of the world of Sherlockians.
445. The fall 1989 issue of Anglofile includes a long interview with Tom Baker, whose roles have included Rasputin and Pope Leo X. "I'm always getting twisted priests or Sherlock Holmes," Baker notes. "I mean, look what a nutcase he is. He's one of the great comic creations of the last century. I've played him twice, actually." Anglofile publishes six issues a year ($12.00), and the address is Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30333.
446. Anthony Quayle died on Oct. 20. He began his acting career as a straight man to a music-hall comedian, and his first serious stage role was a small part in a production of "Robin Hood" in 1931. His long career included films and television, and a knighthood in 1985. In his Sherlockian films he played Dr. Murray in "A Study in Terror" (1965) and Sir Charles Warren in "Murder by Decree" (1979).
447. Alvin T. Retzlaff (1 South Federal Street #811, Saratoga Springs, NY 12866) is planning to publish a Sherlockian cookbook, and will be happy to hear from individuals or societies who wish to submit their favorite recipes, or who wish additional information.
448. Jerry Margolin reports a new item Sherlockian from Gallery Lainzberg (200 Guaranty Building, Cedar Rapids, IA 52401) (800-5533-9995): a limited-edition cel by Bob Clampett showing Daffy (as Duck Twacy) and Sherlock Holmes in a scene from "The Great Piggy Bank Robbery" (1945). The price is $425. Also a limited-edition cel showing Daffy (in S'ian costume) and Yosemite Sam (in cowboy costume) in a western saloon. This is not from any known film, and the price is $475.
449. An eight-page Sherlockian sales list (books and other items) at hand from Chris and Beth Caswell at Sherlock's Home, 4137 E. Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804.
450. Six programs in the Granada series (Blue, Danc, Nava, Scan, Soli, and Spec) have long been available from Simon & Schuster at $29.95 each, but they've now been discounted to $14.95 each (plus $5.00 per order for shipping) by Facets Video, 1517 West Fullerton, Chicago, IL 60614 (800-331-6197) -- and it's likely that the same discount is now available elsewhere, because MPI Home Video has started issuing programs from the series: Copp, Croo, Fina, Gree, Norw, RedH, and Resi ($24.95 each), and Houn and Sign ($34.95 each).
451. THE BLACK SCHOOL, by J. N. Williamson (New York: Dell, 1989; 273 pp., $3.50), is the latest of Jerry's horror novels to include characters who are familiar with the Sherlock Holmes stories.
-
452. Nov 89 #1: As expected, Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (with stories based on the Rathbone/Bruce radio scripts) is offered by Barnes & Noble in their new mail-order catalog (941M-217B), at $9.98. It is item 1609049, shipping costs $4.00 per order, they take plastic, and the address is 126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011. It has also now been reported at Waldenbooks here and there, and it will be widely distributed in the bookstore chains, through perhaps only a few copies in each store.
453. THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is also available from Once Upon a Crime (604 West 26th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55405), for $9.98 plus $2.50 shipping. And from The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019, for $10.00 plus $3.00 for shipping (they take plastic). And from Gaslight Publications (626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404, for $9.95 plus $1.50 for shipping (they take plastic).
454. California book dealer Mark Hime was at the Santa Monica Bookfair in Oct., offering some interesting items: a good copy of the first separate edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET ($35,000), a mint first edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES ($10,000), and a very fine first edition of THE VALLEY OF FEAR in dust jacket ($17,500).
455. The first five stories in Eternity's comic-book reprints of the 1954 comic strips by Edith Meiser and Frank Giacoia have been reissued as SHERLOCK HOLMES: BOOK ONE (Newbury Park: Malibu Graphics, 1989; 140 pp., $29.95 cloth or $17.95 paper), with a foreword by Tom Mason and an introduction by Jim Korkis.
456. Wallace Laboratories (A Division of Carter-Wallace, attn: Joe Conti, Box 1001, Cranbury, NY 08512) have issued a series of five promotional fliers (under the general title "A Successful Team Solves Another Case") with short Sherlockian pastiches promoting cough-and-cold medicines Rynatan and Tussi-Organidin.
457. Ron De Waal writes that he is recovering from his accident -- he was hit by a car while jogging, and hospitalized for four weeks -- he's now feeling better, though with one leg still in a full cast, and you can send get-well cards and letters to him at 638 Twelfth Avenue, Salt Lake City, UT 84103.
458. "SHERLOCK HOLMES.--Any persons thinking themselves capable of filling a post in a Modern Inquiry Office, which requires qualifications of the nature indicated in Dr. A. Conan Doyle's well-known stories, are requested to send testimonials, etc., which will be treated as confidential, to ----- Office." We are indebted to Joel Lima for the advertisement, in an unnamed Scottish newspaper, quoted in a letter in Tit-Bits (Nov. 26, 1892), asking "Should Detectives Be Specially Educated?" Tit-Bits was a weekly magazine published by George Newnes, and at the time was reprinting "The Sign of Four" as a serial. The editor had earlier acknowledged to readers that the story had already been published as a book, noting however that "it was done at a time when the great Sherlock Holmes had not made the brilliant reputation which now surrounds his name, and the sale was not of a very general character."
-
459. Nov 89 #2: Baskerville Hall is again available for purchase. Brook Manor, home of the infamous Richard Cabell, was offered three years ago for £150,000 (Oct 86 #4), and the house is again on the market, with offers of more than £600,000 being sought. The present owners rewired the house and added central heating and new bathrooms, using the house for bed and breakfast on a small scale, and the estate agents have suggested that the ten-bedroom property could be adapted as a small hotel or guesthouse.
460. For those who want the British (and true first) edition of Charles Viney's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN LONDON (Oct 89 #3), it differs only in the publisher's imprint and is published by Equation in London (£14.95).
461. Peter Haining's THE TELEVISION SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: W. H. Allen, 1986; 224 pp., £14.95) is still available in the United States, distributed by Lyle Stuart ($24.95). Half of the book is a discussion of Sherlock Holmes and S'ian television pre-Granada, and the other half is devoted to the first twenty Granada programs, and both sections are profusely illustrated, with much color. Recommended.

462. James O. Duval (72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303) offers a ceramic Christmas-tree ornament, with Holmes on one side and Watson on the other, with a ribbon for hanging on a tree and a pedestal holder for display on a shelf. The price is $17.00 postpaid.
463. Classic Specialties (Box 19058Y, Cincinnati, OH 45219) has an illustrated sales list offering their knit-wear and other Sherlockian items.
464. Robert Quackenbush's DETECTIVE MOLE AND THE HALLOWEEN MYSTERY was published in 1981, with Detective Mole in Sherlockian costume, and it's now out in a large paperback from Little Simon/Simon & Schuster ($3.95).
465. The mid-Dec. issue of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine has a nicely S'ian cover, H. R. F. Keating's Sherlockian story "A Snaking Suspicion", and an enthusiastic editor's note about Sherlockians and Sherlockiana.
466. The series of red paperback volumes published by Edgar W. Smith in the 1950s, offering the Sherlockians of those days reprints of rare classics and some of Edgar's own fine writing, has been succeeded by a new "BSI archival series" that will focus on the early (and not so early) days of The Baker Street Irregulars. "DEAR STARRETT--"/"DEAR BRIGGS--" is the first volume in the new series, and it is a fascinating collection of correspondence between Gray Chandler Briggs and Vincent Starrett in the early 1930s, carefully transcribed by John Nieminski and annotated by Jon L. Lellenberg. Briggs was an early enthusiast, rescuing the surviving original artwork from Frederic Dorr Steele's discard-box, and traveling in 1921 to London, where he was the first to identify a location for 221B Baker Street. He offered great assistance and encouragement to Starrett, who was then writing the essays that were to be published as THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, and their letters offer an intriguing picture of a time when the cornerstones of the Writings About the Writings were still being quarried. The book is available from the Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14850 (800-666-2211), and costs $20.95 postpaid, and they take plastic. Recommended.
-
467. Nov 89 #3: The Sherlock Holmes in London is far from the only feature of Whitbread's, which also has a "spirits division", according to a Wall Street Journal article (Oct. 19) at hand from Bruce Southworth. But Whitbread won't have the spirits division much longer, because it's up for sale. Whitbread & Co., it turns out, owns Laphroaig single-malt whiskey, Beefeaters gin, a branch that distributes Cutty Sark whiskey in the U.S., and the Atlas Peak Vineyard in the Napa Valley. Whitbread plans to focus on its brewing interests and its newer hotel, liquor store, and restaurant businesses in Europe and North America.
468. And Bruce Southworth has a new address: 2600 West 86th Street, Bloomington, MN 55431 (612-888-6324).
469. Further to earlier reports on Jeremy Brett's forward planning, earlier this year he told backstage-visitor Jean Upton that the Booth Theater in New York has been booked for "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" for the spring of 1991.
470. Sherlock Holmes Society of London member Winston Plows found a novel way to raise money for the Talking Book Library of the Royal National Institute for the Blind: a sponsored three-week 1,000-mile bicycle ride (on a 1955 Raleigh Roadster) from Montpelier to Baker Street. "Holmes certainly made the journey from Montpelier," Plows said, "but it is only my theory that he did it by bicycle."
471. Quoting from Philip Purser's review (in the [London] Daily Mail, Sept. 1, 1988) of the Granada version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles": "[Jeremy Brett's] balance of arrogance, conceit, charm and even a little genuine concern is absolute. And Edward Hardwicke made the most of Dr. Watson's occupation of centre stage, giving a creditable impersonation of George Bush finding himself in charge at the White House."
472. Reported by Jack Kerr: CHEMISTRY AND CRIME: FROM SHERLOCK HOLMES TO TODAY'S COURTROOM, edited by Samuel M. Gerber (BSJ Mar 84) is still available from the American Chemical Society in cloth ($19.95) and paper ($14.95). Their address is West End Station Box 57136, Washington, DC 20037 (800-227-5558), and they take plastic.
473. Further to our report (Sep 89 #4) on James Cuthbertson's monograph A STUDY IN BANKING: AN INVESTIGATION OF THE RELATIONSHIP OF MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES WITH HIS BANK, that report was not quite correct as to the price of the pamphlet, which costs (postpaid) $8.00 (by surface mail) or $10.00 (by airmail) if (and only if) payment is made in currency (not checks). The banking industry (in this country as well as in Britain) imposes heavy surcharges for converting checks drawn in foreign currencies, making small checks impractical for small transactions. Mr. Cuthbertson's address is: 15 Meadow View Close, Wareham, Dorset BH20 4JQ, England.
474. Jack Tracy reports that "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad" will run on the Disney Channel through Dec. 15. This is the 1949 film, offering the Disney animations of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "The Wind in the Willows" (narrated by Basil Rathbone, who mentions Sherlock Holmes in his introduction, and with Ratty in deerstalker and Mole in bowler).
-
475. Nov 89 #4: "The bird smelled like the inside of a cow," notes Stuart D. Strahl, an ornithologist who has written extensively about the hoatzin, a bird found in the jungles of Venezuela and so far the only one known that digests its food in the same way that cows, sheep, and other ruminants do. The bird's name is pronounced WAT-sin or wat-SEEN, and that accounts for the headline "Alimentary, My Dear Hoatzin" on an article in Science News (Oct. 21), at hand from Douglas C. Zinn.
476. Nikki Caparn, who has served as Sherlock Holmes' secretary for four years, is planning to retire, according to a report in the N.Y. Times (Nov. 5). One of the letters she has answered was from a man who wrote that the only dispute he and his wife had ever had was over whether Sherlock Holmes had actually existed. The writer wanted the argument settled, even if it ended in divorce. "We never say he never existed," Miss Caparn noted.
477. THE PERFECT MURDER: A STUDY IN DETECTION, by David Lehman (New York: Free Press/Macmillan, 1989; 242 pp., $19.95), is a welcome addition to the long list of all-too-often boring studies of the detective story: the author has obviously enjoyed the books he has read and written about, and his comments on the genre are original and entertaining. THE PERFECT MURDER *ought* to be a widely-used textbook, since it is an effective antidote to the lectures given by the many academics who are not quite persuaded that the detective story is neither literature nor important.
478. Further to last month's news (Oct 89 #6) that additional programs from the Granada series are being issued by MPI Home Video, Rosemary Michaud reports that the programs are not complete, apparently because they have been cut down to fit a 50-minute format (it is possible that the cassettes have been made from the shorter versions broadcast by USA cable).
479. The Victorian Villa Guesthouse (601 North Broadway Street, Union City, MI 49094) is a pleasantly and carefully restored 1876 house where the current owners offer thirteen Sherlockian mystery weekends a year, and a detailed brochure on their 1990 schedule.
480. Videotaper alert: on Jan. 1, 1990, your local stations will air a repeat of "Divorce Court" program #842, which first aired in syndication on Nov. 9. The program is "Holmes vs. Holmes" and involves a man who is obsessed with Sherlock Holmes and appears in court dressed as his hero, accompanied by a friend dressed as Dr. Watson. His villainous wife won't put up with this nonsense, of course. Tune in on Jan. 1 to see whether the judge grants the divorce (unless your local station preempts the show for sports or parade coverage).
481. "An Appointment with Sherlock Holmes" (the colorized versions of "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" and "Woman in Green" broadcast in April, with Eli Wallach as host) has a sequel: colorized versions of "Dressed to Kill" and "Terror by Night". Check your local schedules to see which independent station will air the program, and when (the "window" closes on Dec. 23).

482. And "Animal Crackers" will be broadcast on cable on The Movie Channel in December. This 1933 Marx Brothers film has a bit of Sherlockian dialog. Also on The Movie Channel: "My Fair Lady" (with a youthful Jeremy Brett).
-
483. Nov 89 #5: We will celebrate Sherlock Holmes' 136th birthday on Friday, Jan. 12, with the now-traditional festivities in New York. Friday begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast at 9:00 am at the Algonquin Hotel, at 59 West 44th Street; no reservations are required. The William Gillette Luncheon begins at noon at the Old Homestead, at 56 Ninth Avenue, at 14th Street (Susan Rice, 125 Washington Place #2-E, New York, NY 10014). At 6:00 pm The Baker Street Irregulars will meet at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street; and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at Garvin's Restaurant, at 19 Waverly Place, south of 8th Street, one block east of Washington Square Park (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235 West 15th Street #4-B, New York, NY 10011). Space will be limited at the Gillette luncheon and the ASH dinner, and early reservations are requested.
484. Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 to 6:00; all Sherlockians and their guests are welcome to attend, and there is as usual the possibility that Sherlockian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
485. There will be a new event on Saturday: from 9:30 am to 1:30 pm a posse of purveyors will be selling a variety of Sherlockiana on the second floor of the Algonquin Hotel (56 West 44th Street).
486. On Saturday afternoon The Baker Street Irregulars will hold their annual reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street. The reception will honor a group of contemporary Sherlockian artists and will feature a display of their works. There will be an open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $25.00 a person. Your checks, payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
487. Lee Shackelford's new two-act play "Holmes and Watson", which premiered at the University of Alabama in Birmingham in May, will be produced in New York in January, with the author playing Sherlock Holmes, at the Theater at St. Peter's Church, City Corp. Center, 54th Street at Lexington. The play opens Jan. 4 and closes Jan. 14, with performances Tuesday through Sunday evenings, and extra matinees on Saturdays and Sundays. The theater has 150 seats, the box office telephone is 212-688-6022 (if there's no answer, keep trying), tickets cost $20.00 each, and they are alleged to take plastic. There are no plans for a formal S'ian theater party on the evening of Jan. 13, so travelers from afar are advised to make their own reservations.
488. On Sunday, southbound travelers (and others) will be welcome at the annual dinner of The Master's Class, which will start at 4:00 at the Franklin Inn Club at St. James and Camac Streets in Philadelphia (ending early to allow people to catch the last train out of town). Details are available from Victoria M. Robinson, 299-B Summit House, 1450 West Chester Pike, West Chester, PA 19382.
489. Mary Ellen Rich has again kindly provided a list of hotels (reported on the next page) that offer reasonable (as defined by New York landlords) rates, along with a warning about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, and 5% city tax. If you are arriving on Thursday, it is important to confirm that the weekend-package rates include Thursday.
-
490. Nov 89 #6: Hotels in New York: Century-Paramount, 235 West 46th Street (212-764-5500); $80.00 single. Henry Hudson, 353 West 57th Street (212-265-6100); $70.00 single. Roosevelt, 45 East 45th Street (800-223-1870); $85.00 room. Salisbury Hotel, 123 West 57th Street (800-223-0680); $85.00 room (FR-SA). Shoreham, 33 West 55th Street (212-247-6700); $75.00 single. And another possibility: Iroquois Hotel, 49 West 44th Street (800-332-7220); $65.00 single, $75.00 double, $100.00 suite (ask for Connie).
491. The manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" (22 pages, signed on the first and last pages) will be offered at Christie's in London on Dec. 6, presumably sent to auction by Mrs. Adrian Conan Doyle, who is the recorded owner. The estimate by Christie's is £20,000-30,000.
492. And an auction of "English Literature and History" at Sotheby's in London on Dec. 14, will have two items of interest. Estimated at £600-800 is the collar of the prototype of the Hound of the Baskervilles (a large black leather collar with studs and buckles, about 20 inches in circumference, with an attached metal plate engraved "'Derby the Devil' presented by Jerome K. Jerome to A. Conan Doyle, Undershaw, Hindhead"); it belonged for many years to a Surrey family who lived near ACD's home at Undershaw, and by family tradition "Derby the Devil" was the huge mastiff which inspired the Hound of the Baskervilles, hence the point of Jerome's presentation to ACD. And the second item (estimated at £3,000-4,000) is Sherlock Holmes' dressing gown (the dressing gown owned by Sidney Paget and apparently used as the model for six illustrations); it was displayed at The Sherlock Holmes until 1979, and sold at Sotheby's in 1980 for £450 (the dressing gown is in dog-toothed tweed with a light-brown checked pattern, and is described as "patched and rather moth-eaten").
493. Air-guns have not been taken all that seriously since the long-gone days of Von Herder and Straubenzee, but may seem to be making a comeback, as reported in an article in the Wall Street Journal (Sept. 13) about the air-guns made by the Beeman Precision Arms of Santa Rose, Calif. Comparing Beemans to the tiny and cheaply made Red Ryders of our youth is, the article suggests, "like comparing a Mercedes to a moped." And on Apr. 27-30 the Sixth World Air-Gun Championships were held in Sarajevo, honored by a stamp issued by Yugoslavia.
494. Can anyone supply a current address for Dan Baker (no longer at Box 221B in Cecilia), John Comstock, Carley Cat Herd, William L. Russell, Joseph F. Taggard, or Jerry Tucker?
495. John Ruyle reports that the Pequod Press survived the Loma Prieta quake, and that the presses are still rolling. Newly available are DOYLE A LA CARTE ("23 new quatrains that attempt to broaden the mere Canonical into the Conanical") and THE PRENATAL ENTREATY (the 20th adventure of Turlock Loams). Each book costs $30.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper), from the author (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707). Readers who have only recently discovered the artistically designed and printed Pequod pressings can ask John about earlier books (a few copies are still available of some titles).
-
496. Nov 89 #7: Dick Warner, who is Head Sherpa of the Holmes Peak Preservation Society, reports that the Oklahoma Historical Society has now approved the manufacture and installation of an official Oklahoma Roadside Marker for Holmes Peak, and that the marker (to be cast in aluminum, five feet tall, with an appropriate explanatory inscription) will be located by the side of a highway near the peak as soon as the Holmes Peak Preservation Society provides the funds for the marker, which will cost about $1,200. Dick hopes that 60 Sherlockians will be willing to contribute $20 each (or smaller or larger amounts) to help honor the only geographical feature in the U.S. named in honor of Sherlock Holmes, and you are invited to send your checks to Dick Warner, 3168 South Rockford Drive, Tulsa, OK 74105.
497. Further to the report on the Reader's Digest series of "Best Loved Books for Young Readers" (Sep 89 #1), their reprint of GREAT CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has all eight of Guy Deel's fine illustrations from D687a, as noted by an observant Tom Stix, who also reports that at his local supermarket the Sherlockian title in the series is in short supply, offering continuing evidence for the popularity of the Master.
498. THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES is now available on CD-ROM, produced by CMC ReSearch and marketed by Professional Solutions, 21777 Ventura Boulevard #226, Woodland Hills, CA 91364 (800-677-1725), discounted to $90.00 (plus $5.00 shipping) until the end of 1988 (the price will be $99.00 next year), and they take plastic. CD-ROM is an abbreviation for Compact Disc-Read Only Memory, a technology that uses a compact disc (similar to an audio disc), and a special player and an adapter card that allows your computer to read text and artwork from the disc. There are now an estimated

- 300,000 CD-ROM players in use (many libraries have them, and BOOKS IN PRINT, the GROLIER ENCYCLOPEDIA, and the OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY are a few of the books that have been published on CD-ROM discs). The CD-ROM version of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES is based on Bob Stek's floppy-disk version, and also contains the MEDICAL CASEBOOK OF DOCTOR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (the 1984 book written by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key), some medical poetry, and Sherlockian artwork (by Sidney Paget and Betty Wells).
499. International Polygonics' fine reprints of long-out-of-print mystery writers include Jonathan Latimer, whose MURDER IN THE MADHOUSE (1934) was the first in a series featuring William Crane, a hard-boiled detective who is both humorous and occasionally incompetent. Latimer moved to Hollywood shortly before the war, writing screenplays for films such as "The Glass Key", "The Big Clock", and "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes", and for the "Perry Mason" television series. An earlier book, THE SEARCH FOR MY GREATUNCLE'S HEAD (1937), was a departure from his hard-boiled series, offering a country-house murder mystery, a college-professor hero, and pleasantly Sherlockian allusions. Both titles were reissued in 1989 as trade paperbacks ($7.95).
500. Reported from Britain: CONAN DOYLE AND THE SPIRITS: THE SPIRITUALIST CAREER OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Kelvin I. Jones (Aquarian Press, 256 pp., £8.99). NINETEENTH-CENTURY SUSPENSE: FROM POE TO CONAN DOYLE, edited by Clive Bloom (Macmillan, 139 pp., £8.95); focusing on "The Parasite" and "The Lost World". And a Sherlockian pastiche "Murder to Music" in Anthony Burgess' new collection THE DEVIL'S MODE (Hutchinson, £12.95).
-
501. Nov 89 #8: Carl H. Anderson ("The Resident Patient") died on Nov. 20. He was an early member of the BSI, and in 1947 he was one of the founders of The Sons of the Copper Beeches (the second meeting of the Sons was at his house in Penn Valley, amidst the copper beeches that surrounded his home). He was an enthusiastic collector and an ardent Sherlockian, and in 1982 he received the BSI's Two-Shilling Award.
502. More real-estate news from Britain: the historic Lustleigh railway station, advertised as having been filmed for "The Hound of the Baskervilles", was offered for sale in June, with an asking price of £230,000. The building was part of the line from Bovey Tracey to Moretonhampstead, and dates from the 1860s; it was closed in the 1960s and purchased by a man who renovated the building, which is now a five-bedroom bungalow which still preserves the 250-foot railway platform. The Sherlockian connection should be viewed with some skepticism, however, since an article reports that the station was filmed for the Basil Rathbone film, and that's thoroughly unlikely: the 1939 movie was filmed in its entirety on a Hollywood set.
503. Jan. 6 (appropriately) will be the publication date of Ben Wood's new THE PHILATELIC & NUMISMATIC HOLMES (40 pp., $5.00 postpaid pre-publication and $6.00 afterward). Ben's address is Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
504. American Express has shipped the fourth set of three Simon & Schuster audio cassettes to subscribers, bringing the total number of cassettes to eleven. The new programs are "A Scandal in Bohemia", "The Second Generation", "In Flanders Field", "The Eyes of Mr. Leyton", "The Telltale Pigeon Feathers", and "The Indiscretion of Mr. Edwards", and the cassettes have introductions by Peggy Webber, Ben Wright, and series announcer Harry Bartell. American Express card-holders may still be able to subscribe to the series (their toll-free telephone number is 800-528-8000), and you may be able to buy all eleven cassettes directly from Simon & Schuster (800-687-2677).
505. William Berner (Box 31175, San Francisco, CA 94131) offers a six-page sales list of older and newer Sherlockian books and periodicals, at reasonable prices. Bill asks that you send a #10 SASE.
506. A CATALOGUE OF CRIME, by Jacques Barzun and Wendell Hertig Taylor (D3696a) has been published in an enlarged edition (New York: Harper & Row, 1989; 922 pp., $50.00).
507. Robert Lewis Taylor's W. C. FIELDS: HIS FOLLIES AND FORTUNES, a splendid biography of a fascinating man, was first published in 1949 and has been out-of-print for many years. It has been reissued as a trade paperback (St. Martin's Press, $9.95), and includes an account of Fields' appearance as Sherlock Baffles in "The Ham Tree" in New York in 1905 and on tour in 1906 and 1907.
508. Robert Harling's long-running play "Steel Magnolias" is now a movie, with an all-star cast, including Shirley MacLaine as Quiser. In the play (and possibly in the movie), Quiser says, "Sis Orelle is so dumb. She thinks Sherlock Holmes is a subdivision."
-
509. Dec 89 #1: The "Batman" book-and-record set first issued in 1976 (D4644b) has been reissued, according to Tim O'Connor, presumably to take advantage of the enthusiasm for the new movie. One of the two stories in the set is "The Mystery of the Scarecrow Corpse" (involving Batman and Inspector Derek Holmes), and it costs $10.00 to $15.00 at local toy and record stores.
510. Further to the news (Jun 89 #6) of plans by entrepreneur John Aidiniantz to set up a Sherlock Holmes Center on Baker Street, the Marylebone Mercury has reported (Nov. 9) that the Westminster City Council has granted permission to turn the derelict three-story building at No. 239 into a Sherlock Holmes Museum. Aidiniantz has founded the Sherlock Holmes International Society, and claims that the house is the genuine No. 221B, saying that as a museum it can be restored to its former glory "as a Victorian lodging house with a housekeeper and two maids to welcome visitors." The house was bought for the society for £500,000 "by an anonymous titled woman" and Aidiniantz said that it should be open to the public on Jan. 6.
511. Scottish Images (Box 160133, Sacramento, CA 95816) offers an illustrated catalog that includes a series of Marlborough military models from Wales. These are 54mm alloy-metal hand-painted figures sculpted by Frank and Jan Scroby, and Holmes and Watson are available at $19.95 each.
512. There are two minor variants of SHERLOCK HOLMES: BOOK ONE (Newbury Park: Malibu Graphics, 1989), the reissue of the first five stories in Eternity's comic-book reprints: the cover's lettering SHERLOCK HOLMES in yellow is embossed on some copies, and not embossed on others.
513. NINETEENTH-CENTURY SUSPENSE: FROM POE TO CONAN DOYLE, edited by Clive Bloom and first published in Britain, is now available in the U.S. (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1988; 139 pp., $35.00). The book is a collection of nine essays of modern psychoanalytical literary criticism, including essays by Anne Cranny-Francis on "Arthur Conan Doyle's *The Parasite*: The Case of the Anguished Author" and by Howard Davies on "*The Lost World*: Conan Doyle and the Suspense of Evolution".
514. There's a mustached detective in Sherlockian costume on the box of "Math Blaster Mystery", a computerized teaching aid aimed at grades 5-12, and available for $34.99 (IBM or Apple) from Egghead Discount Software (22011 S.E. 51st Street, Issaquah, WA 98027) and (presumably) other software distributors.
515. Kathy Cabanyog (daughter-in-law-elect of Ted Schulz) discovered this Sherlockian memo pad (100 sheets) in Phoenix. It's made by Sangamon (Taylorville, IL 62568), the sheets are 4 x 6 in., and the footprint design continues down the full sheet.
-
516. Dec 89 #2: Kathy Barry-Hippensteel's "Little Sherlock" doll ("a clever little boy who thinks he's the world's greatest sleuth") was advertised earlier (May 89 #4) with a June 30 deadline for orders, but it was widely advertised again in TV Guide at the end of October. It was split-edition advertising, so if your local edition of TV Guide didn't run the ad, write to the Ashton-Drake Galleries (212 West Superior Street, Chicago, IL 60610) and ask for more information. It's a mawkish 11-inch hand-crafted bisque porcelain doll in their "Born to be Famous" collection, and will be issued at $87.00 (plus $2.44 shipping and state sales tax). And if you've postponed ordering, there's no great hurry, since they will take orders until the end of 1990, with a limit of

- two dolls per customer. One does wonder a bit, whether there's going to be any increase in value after this "limited edition" closes, since anyone who really wants one of the dolls will already have two of them.
517. The 1954 television series "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (with Ronald Howard and H. Marion Crawford) has many admirers, despite the sometimes silly scripts, and those who have watched the syndicated package now on the air here-and-there may not be aware that the original opening credits and atmospheric music have been edited out of the syndicated package. Andy Jaysnovitch (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) offers 36 of the 39 programs on nine videocassettes, and will be happy to send you a list of the programs available (one cassette costs $33.00 postpaid, and there is a discount offered if more than one cassette is ordered).
518. An interesting portrait of Sherlock Holmes, by John Tyburn, is available in full-page size (8.5 x 11 in.) for $23.00 postpaid from Kate Karlson, at 329 Marion Avenue, Endwell, NY 13760).
519. Reported by Michael McClure: SOUNDS AROUND, a Sesame Street "talking book" from Playskool ($15.99): Sherlock Hemlock is included, with a soundtrack announcing "There's Sherlock Hemlock!" and "Sherlock loves mysteries!"
520. Art Buchwald appears in a deerstalker on the dust jacket of (and in the ads for) his new book WHOSE ROSE GARDEN IS IT ANYWAY? (G. P. Putnam's Sons).
521. Further to the report (Sep 89 #6) on The Brambletye Hotel in Forest Row (East Sussex RH18 5EZ, England), a photograph in the new hotel brochure confirms that the Black Peter Bar is still very much a feature of the establishment. The brochure, with S'ian decorations, also mentions that Holmes and Watson once had rooms there.
522. Peter Haining's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES SCRAPBOOK (D709b) is still available on the discount shelves and tables, in the 1986 edition from Crescent Books, at $5.98. This edition has new cover and jacket artwork (for completists), and value-for-money (for those who don't already have the book).
-
523. Dec 89 #3: A WOMAN'S PLACE IN THE CANON: BEING A REFERENCE SOURCE FOR ALL FEMALE NAMES MENTIONED OR INFERRED THROUGHOUT THE CANON WITH COMMENTS ABOUT EACH (Hudson's Crony Press, 1989) is a carefully-researched tribute to the fair sex, including victims, heroines, monarchs, clients, villainesses, goddesses, and others, all computerized and annotated in a 73-page monograph available for $9.00 postpaid from Jennie C. Paton (206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458).
524. Sherlockian visitors to England can visit Riding Thorp Manor (or Ridling Thorp Manor, depending on which edition of the Canon you have), if you're willing to settle for the house used by Granada in its version of "The Dancing Men". Leighton Hall in Yealand Conyers, north of Carnforth in Lancashire is open to the public from May to September, and the house now also features a mini-exhibition about Jeremy Brett and Sherlock Holmes.
525. Can anyone identify the source (recent or not-so-recent) for a published report of a "Sherlock Holmes Cocktail" or a "Mycroft Holmes Cocktail"?
526. Bill Smith has 116 issues of The Baker Street Journal available for sale, from the late Carl Anderson's library. Issues are available from 1946 to the present, the cost is $5.00 per issue, and the money will go to Andy's estate. Orders will be filled on a first-come first-served basis, and you can send your want-list to Bill Smith (15 West Hillcrest Avenue, Havertown, PA 19083); you'll be billed when your copies are shipped.
527. A flier at hand from Timothy E. Liebe (212 West 91st Street #720, New York, NY 10024) for "That's Elementary!" (a new videocassette of The Friends of Bogie's at Baker Street in Sherlockian performance); the cassette features Andrew Joffe, Sarah Montague, Paul Singleton, and Henry Enberg, and costs $33.00 postpaid (VHS only).
528. Check your discount toy stores for 100-piece SHERLOCK HOLMES jigsaw puzzles showing scenes from the "Sherlock Hound" animations. The puzzles are made by Schmidt Spiel+Freizeit (Eching, W. Germany), and Tom and Ruthann Stetak and Paul Herbert have found two of them (Schmidt Puzzle 02812 and 02813) in stores in Ohio; a third puzzle may exist, but has not been located.
529. Arthur Conan Doyle's early interest in spiritualist phenomena, his eventual conversion to Spiritualism as a religion, and his long campaigns on behalf of his cause, were all discussed and energetically defended by his first biographer, John Lamond (CONAN DOYLE: A MEMOIR, 1931), but they have been essentially ignored or treated with mild embarrassment by most of his later biographers. But Conan Doyle himself was never embarrassed by disbelief or ridicule (and he encountered much of that), and his belief in Spiritualism should not be ignored by anyone who is interested in the man whose stories and books have given and still give so much pleasure to so many. Kelvin I. Jones' DOYLE AND THE SPIRITS: THE SPIRITUALIST CAREER OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (Wellingborough: Aquarian Press, 1989; 256 pp., £8.99) is a biography that focuses on Conan Doyle as a Spiritualist, using Conan Doyle's books, stories, and articles, as well as reports from Spiritualist newspapers and magazines, and the archives of the Society for Psychical Research. While there are a few minor errors in the book, Jones offers a detailed look at what Conan Doyle believed to be the most important aspect of his life.
-
530. Dec 89 #4: Ben Wood's new THE PHILATELIC & NUMISMATIC HOLMES is nicely done: 40 pages of illustrations and notes on stamps showing Holmes, Conan Doyle, and many Canonical items, plus a reprint of Arthur Pierce's "Was Sherlock Holmes a Stamp Collector?" (D4217a), and more illustrations and notes on Canonical coins. The cost is $5.00 postpaid until Jan. 6, and Ben's address is Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
531. Peter Crupe reports that the Gillette-as-Holmes cigar label appears on p. 228 of Joe Davidson's THE ART OF THE CIGAR LABEL (Secausus: Wellfleet Press, 1989; $29.99).
532. Further to the rather confused report (Oct 89 #3) about BDD Promotions Book Co., I'll try again. BDD Inc. is the parent company that owns B. Dalton and Barnes & Noble. BDD (as in Bantam/Doubleday/Dell) Promotions Book Co. publishes bargain books that often wind up on the bargain tables and in the discount catalogs, as is the case with Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, which was published by the BDD imprint Mallard Press. Simple as ABC, or whatever . . .
533. Jennie Paton has found a source that actually does have a videocassette of "Sherlock Jr." (1924). This is a Buster Keaton film, and it's a fine one, even though it is S'ian almost only by title: Keaton plays a projectionist who falls asleep and dreams that he has walked into the film being shown in the theater; he plays a brilliant sleuth, and there are some truly splendid special effects in the film. You can it order from Movies Unlimited, 6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149 (800-523-0823); the cassette is item 539004V in their winter catalog, the cost is $24.95 plus $4.00 shipping, and they take plastic.
534. "Worst of them all, Rowsby Woof, is the great rat spirit, the giant of Sumatra, the curse of Hamelin." The quote was discovered by Elizabeth Burns, in Richard Adams' WATERSHIP DOWN.
535. The latest issue (autumn 1989) of The Pipe Smoker's Ephemeris is an interim issue, intended to tide readers over until the 25th anniversary issue is published in 1990, and the only Sherlockian content is an illustration by John Bognar. TPSE is an irregular quarterly edited and published by Tom Dunn, 20-37 120th Street, College Point, NY 11356, for pipe-smokers and tobacco-lovers, and there is no charge the mailings (although Tom welcomes contributions, financial and otherwise, from his readers).

536. Lisa McGaw ("Mrs. Hudson") died on December 22, and she will be missed by all those who have enjoyed the William Gillette Memorial Luncheons over the years. It was in 1964 that Clifton Andrew asked Lisa to continue the long tradition of luncheon gatherings that he had started at Keen's Chop House in the 1940s, when only a few out-of-town Sherlockians attended (and when the luncheon was not yet named in honor of Gillette), but by the 1960s the affairs were much grander (and the cost had risen to $8.00, including tax, tip, and open bar). She received her BSI Investiture in 1982.
537. Plan well ahead: the Culinary Institute of America has confirmed May 4, 1991, for the Sherlock Holmes Dinner that will commemorate the battle at the Reichenbach.
-
538. Dec 89 #5: THE STORY OF THE SEPULCHRE: THE CABELLS OF BUCKFASTLEIGH AND THE CONAN DOYLE CONNECTION, by Susan Cabell Djabri, provides a detailed account of the family, including the third Richard Cabell (who was happily married though unpopular in Devon) and his daughter Elizabeth (who at the age of 15 inherited the Cabell estates and at the age of 35 married Sir John D'Oyly) (and who, when her husband died, discovered that she was one of his two widows). The 16-page pamphlet is available from the author (32 Ernie Road, Wimbledon Common, London SW20 0HJ, England), the price is £2.00 ($4.00 in currency will be both acceptable and convenient), and the proceeds will be used to repair the Cabell family tomb, "now in a sad state of dilapidation."
539. More (and as usual, different) news of Granada's plans for the next Jeremy Brett series, on which work is now scheduled to start in March: according to Michael Cox (as reported by Roger Johnson), the programs will be Bosc, Cree, Illu, Lady, Shos, and Thor. A few months ago (Oct 89 #4) the six programs were to be Bosc, Chas, Lady, Thor, and Vall (two parts).
540. WINTER'S CRIMES 21, edited by Hilary Hale (London: Macmillan, 1989; 352 pp., £11.95), is the latest volume in a annual series of fine anthologies of previously unpublished stories. This year Colin Dexter (author of the "Inspector Morse" series) has turned his hand to Sherlockian pastiche in "A Case of Mis-identity" (in which he also offers an amusing analysis of the Canonical case that Holmes may or may not have solved correctly).
541. TALES FOR A WINTER'S NIGHT (Chicago: Academy Chicago, 1989; 207 pp., $4.95) has eight of ACD's non-Sherlockian stories, reprinted from ROUND THE FIRE STORIES. Two apocryphal tales ("The Man with the Watches" and "The Lost Special") are included, along with a pleasant reminder of the suggestion by Jacques Barzun and Wendell Hertig Taylor (in A CATALOG OF CRIME) that the stories in this collection "are worth reading even around a radiator."
542. Vincent Brosnan (Sherlock in L.A., 1741 Via Allena, Oceanside, CA 92056) has issued a new catalog, dedicated to the late Robert R. Patrick and offering many treasures from his collection, as well as other Sherlockiana and a section of Jack-the-Ripper material. The catalog, which also has a tribute to Patrick by Don Hardenbrook, and a hitherto-unpublished S'ian parody by Patrick, costs $2.00 postpaid.
543. The latest postal cards in the "America the Beautiful" series designed by Bart Forbes honor New York City, showing the Manhattan skyline and the 59th Street or Queensborough Bridge (which connects New York with Long Island, where Mr. Leverton investigated a mystery), and Washington, with a night-time view of the U.S. Capitol.
-
544. Dec 89 #6: Sherlockian scholars have discussed, and occasionally debated, the sexuality and gender of Sherlock Holmes for many years, and C. Alan Bradley and William A. S. Sarjeant have now explored the subject in considerable detail, carefully avoiding the "let's be outrageous" approach taken in the past by most who have considered the possibility that Holmes was not what he appeared to be. In MS. HOLMES OF BAKER STREET: THE TRUTH ABOUT SHERLOCK HOLMES (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1989; 262 pp., $19.95) the authors present a careful and well-written examination of the evidence that Sherlock Holmes was female, twice pregnant, and possibly once a mother. The publisher's address is Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001; $22.45 postpaid.
545. A thick full-color catalog at hand from Levin Pipes International (RFD 1, Box 565, West Hill Road, Craftsbury, VT 05826) offering a wide range of pipes, accessories, and tobacco. One full page shows the first two pipes, in various sizes and finishes, in the "Sherlock Holmes Classic Collection" from Peterson of Dublin. The pipes range in cost from $99.95 to $119.95, and they take plastic.
546. The Universal Postal Union met in Washington last month, and apparently decided nothing of immediate importance. But there were some statistics announced, including the fact that the total world mail volume in 1988 was 401 billion pieces of mail, of which 40% was handled by the U.S. That's 160.4 billion pieces of mail, more than 600 pieces per person in the U.S.
547. L. B. Greenwood's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE THISTLE OF SCOTLAND (New York: Simon and Schuster, 1989; 205 pp., $17.95) is the third in her series of well-written novel-length pastiches and, as with SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY and SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL, it presents Holmes and Watson with a case that is interesting (rather than merely fantastic). Greenwood is one of the very few modern writers whose style and characterizations are consistent with the Canon, and her books are a pleasant antidote to the dullness of most Sherlockian imitations.
548. Lenny Picker reports (from the N.Y. Daily News) that Edward Woodward and John Hillerman will be Holmes and Watson in a two-hour CBS-TV television film "Napoleon of Crime" that will begin production in England in February. It's not clear who's which, but Woodward ("The Equalizer") played Watson in John Kane's "Murder, Dear Watson" at the Churchill Theatre in Bromley in 1983, and Hillerman ("Magnum, P.I.") will remember the Canon from a 1984 episode of that series called "Holmes Is Where the Heart Is".
549. There's a new comic strip called "Norb" (described by Steve Rothman as being in the vein of the old "Popeye" or "Barnaby"), drawn by Tony Auth (editorial cartoonist for the Philadelphia Inquirer) and written by Daniel M. Pinkwater (author of THE SNARKOUT BOYS & THE AVOCADO OF DEATH and THE SNARKOUT BOYS & THE BACONBURG HORROR, both of which have S'ian echoes). The strip is thoroughly literate (and apparently in some trouble on that account), with frequent S'ian allusions. And Steve reports that Daniel Pinkwater's FISHWHISTLE, a collection of essays published this summer, includes "My Layde Nicotine", in which he explains that he started smoking a pipe due to Sherlock Holmes.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 90 #1:

1. The birthday celebration in New York was enjoyable, but there wasn't much of any real interest, so I'll just proceed with the usual notes and such.
2. Alan Hale, Jr., died on Jan. 2. He appeared in 65 movies, but was best known as The Skipper in the 1960s television series "Gilligan's Island". In the episode "Up at Bat", Gilligan was bitten by a bat, and thinking it was a vampire bat, was afraid that he would turn into a vampire. While searching for the bat, to determine whether it was a vampire bat or a fruit bat, Hale appeared as Colonel Watney, and Russell Johnson (The Professor) as Inspector Sherlock.
3. Further to the report (Sep 89 #3) from the News of the World on plans for a new film "Sherlock Holmes and the Case of the Missing Santa Claus" (with David Bowie as Holmes and Gene Kelly as Santa), the story hasn't made news anywhere else. And David Bowie is now reported (more reliably) to be ready to begin work this summer on a film of "Mandrake the Magician". If you've been to the movies recently you may have seen pre-previews of

- "Dick Tracy" (with Warren Beatty in the title role). But I doubt that the copy-cattng will last long enough for anyone to get round to "Sherlocko the Monk".
4. The second issue of "Holmes for the Holidays" has arrived, and the magazine deserves another plug as a fine item for younger Sherlockians or for any children who ought to be younger Sherlockians. There are attractive color covers by Bob Weber, Jr. (creator of "Slylock Fox") and 12 pages of stories and puzzles, and it's value-for-money at $5.00 a year for five issues. The magazine, edited by Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233), is published by the Chester Baskerville Society.
  5. Plan ahead: Hugo's Companions and The Hounds of the Baskervilles (sic) are planning a day-long celebration on May 5, at and near the Newberry Library in Chicago, of the centennial of Christopher Morley's birth. Information is available from Charley Shields, 142 Utah, Frankfort, IL 60423.
  6. The first Sherlockian publication of the year would appear to be TAILS OF THE GIANT RATS: SHERLOCKIAN MUSING BY THE GIANT RATS OF MASSILLON, edited by Hugh T. Harrington and Roy K. Preece, Jr. (Massillon: Village Bookshelf, 1990; 60 pp., $7.50 postpaid from the publisher, Box 708, Massillon, OH 44648; and plastic is accepted). It's a professionally-produced anthology of essays, articles, and poetry, and nicely done.
  7. Gordon Jackson died on Jan. 14. Best known as Angus Hudson, the butler on "Upstairs, Downstairs", his acting career included many roles on stage and screen, including Inspector Alec MacDonald in the Peter Cushing television film "The Masks of Death" (1984).
  8. Terry-Thomas died on Jan. 8. Born Thomas Terry Hoar Stevens, he used the name Thomas Terry for stage roles until he discovered that people thought he was related to the actress Ellen Terry. Then he reversed the names and inserted a hyphen as a tribute to the gap in his teeth, which became his trademark in a long career that included the role of Dr. Mortimer in the Cook/Moore film version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1978).
-
9. Jan 90 #2: Actually, the birthday festivities were quite interesting, as always. The formal proceedings opened on Friday, in the Oak Room at the Hotel Algonquin, with the Mrs. Hudson Breakfast, sponsored for many years first by The Old Soldiers of Baker Street (The Old SOBs) and then by The Old Soldiers of Baker Street of the Two Saults (The Old SOBs3), a scion society of the BSI and of the Unicorn Questers of Mackinac Island. This was Bill Rabe's last year as New York's representative of Mrs. Hudson, and Tom and Ruthann Stetak will be handling the arrangements for the breakfast in future years.
  10. Susan Rice presided over the annual William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead, where the agenda included a tribute to the late Lisa McGaw, and a performance by The Friends of Bogie's of an excerpt from Gillette's play "Sherlock Holmes". Otto Penzler's open house at the Mysterious Book Shop was also well-attended, and book-hunters who visited Murder Ink found that shop under the management of its new owner, Jay Pearsall, who purchased the business from Carol Brener last November.
  11. The Baker Street Irregulars gathered for dinner at 24 Fifth Avenue, where Eleanor Sullivan was *The* Woman, toasted by Philip Shreffler and honored both for her editorship of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine and for her many years of ensuring appearances of fine Sherlockian stories in the magazine and in the EQMM anthologies.
  12. The BSI dinner agenda included many if not most of the usual traditions, and some events that will never be traditional. Some (but not all) of the presentations were toasts by Bjarne Nielsen (to Doc Holliday's brother, Dr. Watson) and Bob Katz (a second and possibly now-annual toast to the second Mrs. Watson), and reports by Al Rodin (on Joseph Bell, testicles, sex, and syphilis), George Fletcher (on copyrights and copywrongs), Jon Lellenberg (on the BSI archival history project), David Musto (on his role in founding a S'ian society at the Great Wall Station in the Antarctic), Ed Vatzza (on the Canonicity of "The Blanched Soldier"), and Al Rosenblatt in occasional falsetto (on Sherlock Holmes' amorous walks).
  13. Two-Shilling Awards (for extraordinary devotion to the cause beyond the call of duty) were given to Dick Lesh and Bill Rabe, and posthumously to Lisa McGaw, who had accepted her invitation to the annual dinner and had hoped to be able to attend. Irregular Shillings were presented to Charles Adams ("The Winter Assizes at Norwich"), Allen Mackler ("Sarasate"), Austin McLean ("The London Library"), Fred Page ("The Arcadia Mixture"), Milton Perry ("Nathan Garrideb"), Don Pollock ("The *Anthropological Journal*"), and Tom Stetak ("The Head of the Police at Cleveland"). And Robbie Burr was on hand to receive his Irregular Ha'penny and an Investiture ("The Trap Door") in The Baker Street Irrasculars.
  14. John Bennett Shaw, marooned in Santa Fe by a slight stroke, did not deliver "Simpson's Simplistic Summarized Statement" (a report on some of the more unusual correspondence he has received, and responded to, as the secretary of the BSI), but he firmly intends to do so next year. John spent a total of 32 hours in the hospital, and is now at home on prescribed medication (one aspirin a day), and is recovering rapidly, and he will appreciate getwell cards and any other mail he doesn't need to answer.
-
15. Jan 90 #3: The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes also gathered on Friday evening, at Garvin's Restaurant, with presentations (again, the list is far from inclusive) by Tina Rhea (on Sherlock Holmes' nanny), Sue Dahlinger (on what Watson read during the Great Hiatus), and Peggy Henry (on Canonical landladies), and a performance by Karen Johnson and the Six Pips (Minus Two) of a series of Moriarty filk songs.
  16. On Saturday morning a crowd of Sherlockian vendors and customers gathered in the Oak Room at the Algonquin, with a wide variety of books and other collectibles available. And the Saturday afternoon cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue honored seven Sherlockian artists, with a display of original art. The Commissionaire's Award (a complete portfolio of Julian Wolff's original Sherlockian maps, awarded for conspicuously extraordinary and signal contributions to keeping green the memory) was presented to Henry Lauritzen, and accepted on Henry's behalf by Bjarne Nielsen, who managed to persuade a thoroughly reluctant Jon Lellenberg to sing, as an additional tape-recorded tribute to Henry, a chorus of "Aunt Clara". Awards of The Queen Victoria Medal were also made *in absentia*, to Dorothy Beverly West and Katherine McMahon, the only survivors of the early Sherlockians who solved the "Sherlock Holmes Crossword" published by Christopher Morley in the Saturday Review of Literature in 1934. Susan Rice reported poetically on the ASH dinner, and Al Rosenblatt similarly on the BSI dinner, and the performances ended with an auction of three pieces of original artwork from the exhibit, with the proceeds going to the Dr. John H. Watson Fund.
  17. The Dr. John H. Watson Fund offers financial assistance to Sherlockians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the weekend's festivities. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the fund and welcomes contributions, which can be made by check payable to John H. Watson and mailed (without any return address) to Dr. Watson, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., who will happily forward the checks unopened. Tom's address: 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
  18. On Saturday evening many S'ians gathered off-off-Broadway at the Theatre at Saint Peter's Church to see Lee Shackleford's play "Holmes & Watson" (with the author and Glenn Alan Gardner in the title, and only, roles). The play is an interesting exploration of the relationship between Holmes and Watson after Holmes' return from the Great Hiatus, and was well-received at its premiere at the University of Alabama in Birmingham last May, and at its ten-day run in New York.
  19. On Sunday, south-bound travelers dined in Philadelphia with The Master's Class at the Franklin Inn Club, where Ruthann Stetak reported in graphic detail on notable Victorian murderesses.

20. A revised 11-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women is now available, for $1.00 postpaid (checks to Peter E. Blau, 3900 Tunlaw Road NW #119, Washington, DC 20007). Also available (same address) is the 54-page list of the 507 Sherlockian societies, with names and addresses for the 293 active societies, at $3.25 postpaid. A run of address labels for the 256 individual contacts (recommended for those who wish to avoid making duplicate mailings to people who are contacts for more than one society) costs $10.00 postpaid.
-
21. Jan 90 #4: SHERLOCK HOLMES' LONDON: FOLLOWING THE FOOTSTEPS OF LONDON'S MASTER DETECTIVE, by Tsukasa Kobayashi, Akane Higashiyama, and Masaharu Uemura, published in Japan in 1984 and in an American edition in 1986, has been reissued in a second printing (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1986; 128 p., $16.95), and it is recommended highly for its fine color photography of the S'ian aspects of modern London, and for the older photographs and illustrations of the London that Sherlock Holmes knew.
22. Eternity Comics has finished its comic-book mini-series A CASE OF BLIND FEAR (four issues with its version of Sherlock Holmes versus the Invisible Man), and is reported ready to begin another mini-series about Sherlock Holmes and the War of the Worlds. In the meantime, Eternity has launched a much more interesting series called SHERLOCK HOLMES OF THE '30S reprinting the old strips drawn by Leo O'Mealia (see D5840b and D5841b). And Eternity is continuing its series of reprints of the Frank Giacoia SHERLOCK HOLMES strips (#19 has been published, with a total of 26 issues planned).
23. Owners of "DEAR STARRETT--"/"DEAR BRIGGS--" (the first volume in the BSI Archival Series) (Nov 89 #2) will also enjoy the 1989 issue of The Beeman's Christmas Annual, which is devoted to Gray Chandler Briggs, with seven fine articles about the first S'ian to follow Sherlock Holmes's footsteps and discover the actual location of 221B Baker Street. The 32-page pamphlet also has a photograph of Briggs, and is available from William R. Cochran, 517 North Vine Street, DuQuoin, IL 62832; $5.00 postpaid.
24. And further to the item (Dec 89 #6) about the new comic strip "Norb" here's a sample (from the San Francisco Examiner, Dec. 5 and 6, 1989):
-
25. Jan 90 #5: A flier at hand with details about The Bimetallic Colloquium to be held at McGill University in Montreal on June 15-17 (there's a ten-percent discount if you register by Feb. 28). Speakers will include Mark Alberstat, Patrick Campbell, Cameron Hollyer, Chris Redmond, Barbara Rusch, and Peter Wood, with Roger Johnson as an added entry, and you can request more details from The Bimetallic Question, Box 883 Stock Exchange Tower, Montreal, Quebec H4Z 1K2, Canada.
26. In response to queries about how to find copies of Peter Haining's THE TELEVISION SHERLOCK HOLMES (Nov 89 #2): the British edition, from W. H. Allen, is distributed here by Lyle Stuart and priced at $24.95. And Lyle Stuart is part of the Carol Publishing Group (600 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022). The book is also available from the Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019) for $35.50 postpaid, and they take plastic.
27. Members of the Baker Street Irregulars, real or otherwise, are not seen all that often on network television, so the episode of "Dear John" broadcast by NBC-TV on Jan. 24 was a pleasant surprise, with Gordon Clapp playing BSI Dave Travis. TV Guide's synopsis: "Kirk expects to hunt snow bunnies when he takes John along on a free ski weekend, but he's left in the cold when John befriends a fellow Sherlock Holmes buff."
28. Robert F. Fleissner's article "No Ghosts Need Apply" discussing a possible connection between "The Empty House" and Algernon Blackwood's ghost story "The Empty House" appeared in Studies in Weird Fiction #6 (fall 1989). The magazine is available for $6.00 postpaid from the Necronomicon Press, 101 Lockwood Street, West Warwick, RI 02893.
29. Responding to the query (Dec 89 #3) about cocktails, Steve Rothman readily identified a letter titled "Sherlock Holmes and Cocktails" (and signed by "Charing Cross") that appeared in Christopher Morley's column "The Bowling Green" in the Saturday Review of Literature (Jan. 6, 1934): "Will not the Hotel Duane on Madison Avenue, which you say is frequented by Sherlock Holmes's publishers, invent a Sherlock Holmes cocktail in honor of the birthday? I will offer the 2-volume edition of the Complete Stories as a prize for the most appropriate formula.--Of course there should really be two; the *Sherlock* and the *Mycroft*. What a subtle and softly influential philtre the *Mycroft* would have to be!" In an addendum to the letter Morley wrote that "I like Mr. Cross's suggestion about the cocktail, and will be pleased to forward for his judgment any suggested formulae." Suggestions must have been received, but none are to be found in the pages of the SRL. Does anyone know if someone else followed up on this elsewhere? "You see, my image of Sherlock isn't me," Jeremy Brett recently explained at a gathering of media journalists in Hollywood this month. "My image, I think, is a kind of cross between Ben Kingsley and Al Pacino...with a touch of George Hamilton thrown in." Brett, who started playing Holmes in 1983, also said that "it's now '90 and the trouble is that I'm finding him easier to play, which is not a good thing." Brett, accompanied by Peter Davison (Campion), David Suchet (Hercule Poirot), John Thaw (Inspector Morse), and Rebecca Eaton (producer for WGBH-TV), were celebrating (and promoting) the tenth anniversary of "Mystery!"
-
30. Jan 90 #6: THE LIGHT IS DARK ENOUGH is a 36-page booklet prepared for last year's "Cambridge Expedition" by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, edited by Jonathan McCafferty and offering a series of essays and illustrations of the Cantabrigean aspects of the Canon (Jun 89 #3). The booklet costs $20.00 postpaid (checks payable to the Society), and you can order from Jonathan McCafferty, 5 Jonathan Court, Windmill Road, Chiswick, London W4 1SA, England.
31. Gideon Hill reports that Granada's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" is now being broadcast by the Armed Forces Network to West Germany, Belgium, Holland, and the United Kingdom (and anyone who has an NTSC-format VCR will be able to watch the shows). The series is also likely to run later this year on Southern European Broadcasting and the Pacific Broadcasting System. The military networks don't pay royalties, and that's why it often takes a long time for them to obtain access to series and television films.
32. Other news from the comic-book world: Jerry Margolin reports that Northstar has now issued a hardbound edition (in slipcase, at $29.99) of its earlier paperback collection reprinting the first four issues of CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES series, with artwork by Dan Day. And Caliber's BAKER STREET series set in punk-world London, with many echoes from the Canon, is continuing (#4 has been published). There are also Canonical echoes in HELLBLAZER #23, published by DC Comics in Oct. 1989.
33. The fine catalog of the Vincent Starrett exhibit at the University of Minnesota Library was distributed in New York as one of the birthdayfestivities souvenirs, and it is also available on request (and without charge) from Austin McLean, Wilson Library, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
34. The Forbes Magazine Galleries are at 62 Fifth Avenue (at 12th Street), and open from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm, Tuesday through Saturday, which is neatly convenient for those heading for the Saturday cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue during the birthday festivities in New York. One of the splendid exhibits features 12,000 toy soldiers (selected from more than 100,000 in the Forbes collection), and one of the displays shows a military parade, complete with spectators, who include Holmes and Watson.
35. Sherlock Holmes' new secretary at 221b Baker Street is Tony Harries, who succeeds Nikki Caparn, who retired from the post last year (Nov 89 #4).

36. L. B. Greenwood's second novel-length pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL (May 88 #6) is now available in paperback (New York: Pocket Books, 1989; 190 pp., $3.95). And Esther M. Friesner's alternate-universe fantasy novel DRUID'S BLOOD (Jul 88 #2) is available in a British paperback (London: Headline, 1989; 279 pp., £3.50).
37. According to my records, my 1990 seasonal souvenir ("EL DETECTIVE SHERLOCK HOLMES") should have reached all subscribers, either during the birthday festivities, or since, or with this mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.
-
38. Feb 90 #1: Harrison H. Schmitt, the former astronaut and former U.S. senator from New Mexico, was in Tulsa at the end of January to speak at the Tulsa Press Club and to dine with the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, and to ascend Holmes Peak, where he was honored for his naming Sherlock Crater on the Moon, which in turn inspired the naming of Holmes Peak (which is the only geographic feature officially honoring Sherlock Holmes on the Earth).
39. The annual dinner of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London generated press reports about "The Case of the Identical Addresses", discussing plans by John Aidiniantz for his Sherlock Holmes Museum at 239 Baker Street (Jun 89 #6 and Dec 89 #1). According to the Evening Standard (Jan. 8), the museum will be established above the Martins restaurant now on the ground floor at 239, and Aidiniantz says that his museum will be stocked with memorabilia such as the phosphorescent paint used on the fangs of the Hound of the Baskervilles, the emerald tie-pin given to Holmes by Queen Victoria, and Holmes' "private papers". Aidiniantz also reported that the Westminster Council has given permission for him to call the address of the museum 221B, but the Post Office said that mail for Sherlock Holmes is still being sent to the Abbey National Building Society ("Letters are delivered to the address on the envelope."). The Sherlock Holmes International Society has only half-a-dozen members, Aidiniantz acknowledged, but "that will increase hugely when we open."
40. Collectors of finely written, composed, and printed Sherlockiana are well aware of the fine work done by John Ruyle at his Pequod Press, from which, in occasional intervals when the ink has dried on printings of John's poems and of Dr. Fatso's memoirs, issue irregular items such as the small folder which offered New Year's greetings from the Iron Dyke Co., reprinted here with permission and thanks.
-
41. Feb 90 #2: Travelers to England may want to visit the Blue Orchid disco in Croydon. According to a report in local papers in Oct., the site of the Blue Orchid was once the Greyhound Hotel, "featured by famous author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in one of his novels." The report does not, however, mention the name of the novel.
42. THE DEVIL'S MODE, a collection of stories by Anthony Burgess, published last year in Britain (Nov 89 #7), is now reported in an American edition (New York: Random House, 1990; 290 pp., $18.95). One of the stories is a Sherlockian pastiche "Murder to Music".
43. The catalog for the 8th annual Oxford and Cambridge University Vacations offers "The Light upon the Moor" (examining "the techniques and development of two great English mystery writers, and the special locations in England which inspired them"). The two great mystery writers are Agatha Christie and Arthur Conan Doyle, with six days at university and five days in Devon. The Oxford dates are July 8-18, and the Cambridge dates are Aug. 12-22. The catalog is available from University Vacations, International Building, 9602 N.W. 13th Street, Miami, FL 33172 (800-792-0100).
44. Martin Gardner's "The Irrelevance of Conan Doyle" (D2108b) was collected (with a postscript) in his SCIENCE: GOOD, BAD AND BOGUS (1981), which is now available in paper covers (Buffalo: Prometheus Books, 1990; 412 pp., $15.95).
45. An older item, just discovered: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE JEWEL & OTHER SHORT PLAYS, by M. Choksi, with illustrations by Dolly Biswas (Bombay: Orient Longman, 1983; 158 pp.), is a collection of five adaptations for sixthgrade students, part of a series of Sangam English Supplementary Readers intended to help students who are learning English. "Sherlock Holmes and the Jewel" is an adaptation of "The Blue Carbuncle", and the booklet is available for $3.95 postpaid from Apt Books, 141 East 44th Street #511, New York, NY 10017.
46. S'ian philatelist Bruce Holmes has assembled two topical mini-collections, one of stamps showing saints mentioned in the Canon (10 pp.), and the other showing stamps keyed to the Canon for each letter of the alphabet (15 pp.). Bruce offers high-quality photocopies of "Sherlockian Saints" ($10.00) and of "Sherlockian Letters" ($15.00); both prices are US$ postpaid, and his address is 64 Maple Circle, Dollard des Ormeaux, Quebec N9B 1E5, Canada.
47. They Might Be Giants, a rock group consisting of John Flansburgh and John Linnell, took their name from the George C. Scott film, and their first album was "They Might Be Giants" (Bar/None), issued in 1986 (Apr 89 #2). Their second album was "Lincoln" (Bar/None), and they have now moved to a major record company for their third album, "Flood" (Elektra).
48. THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Sebastian Wolfe (London: Xanadu, 1989; 247 pp., £3.99), is a paperback collection reprinting some of the better burlesques, parodies, and pastiches. Of the 14 stories, only one is to be found in Ellery Queen's collection (of which Wolff was unaware when he chose the name for his collection, and one is a new pastiche ("The Affair of the Midnight Midget", by Ardath Mayhar).
-
49. Feb 90 #3: The late Bliss Austin's splendid collection of Sherlock Holmes and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, bequeathed to his children and to Lehigh University, will be sold at auction this spring by silent sealed-bid auction. Bidding can be flexible: for individual lots, for combinations of lots, and for the entire collection, and the collection will be available for inspection and offers at the Linderman Library on Apr. 16-29 (viewing is by appointment only, and the appointment times can include evenings and weekends). A detailed description of the material is now available ($5.00 postpaid, checks payable to Lehigh University Libraries), as is a formal announcement of the sale with details on the procedures to be followed. If you are interested, contact Dr. Philip A. Metzger at Linderman Library 30, Lehigh University, Bethlehem, PA 18015 (215-758-4506).
50. Bliss' copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual (signed by Vincent Starrett and by Frederic Dannay) and his manuscript of "The Valley of Fear" will not be included in the auction at Lehigh, as they have been sent to Sotheby's for sale later this year, and his manuscript of "Memories and Adventures" was bequeathed to Mount Holyoke College. But even without these three items, the collection is still one of the best ever assembled: almost all of the first editions of the Canon (some in dust jackets), The Strand Magazine in British and American issues, many other early magazines and newspapers, and extremely rare material from the early days of The Baker Street Irregulars are only some of the treasures that were to be found on Bliss' shelves.
51. STUDIES IN SCARLET (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1989; 199 pp., $19.95) is an anthology of essays originally intended to accompany a centenary edition of "A Study in Scarlet" planned by the Daedalus Press, and the contributors (who include John Ball, David L. Hammer, Michael Harrison, John Bennett Shaw, and Philip A. Shreffler) have not limited their discussions to the centenary story. The book also has fine illustrations by Kiyoshi Tanaka, and can be ordered ($22.45 postpaid) by mail from the Gasogene Press (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001).
52. A belated George Washington's Birthday to all, since we don't celebrate his actual birthday any more, just President's Day. But: on what date in 1731 was George Washington actually born?
53. I am still pursuing my research on THE BOY'S SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Howard Haycraft (D657a, D264b, and D266b), and I would greatly appreciate hearing about copies owned by anyone who has not already responded to my earlier queries.

54. Further to the search for recipes for the Sherlock and Mycroft cocktails (Dec 89 #3 and Jan 90 #5), the first response to "Charing Cross" was a letter from "Gasogene" in "The Bowling Green" in the Saturday Review of Literature (Jan. 20, 1934), suggesting that "whatever beverage your Holmes-and-Watson club chooses for its ceremonial luncheon, it had better not be the wine of Beaune," because "the good Doctor told us that Beaune at lunch made him irritable." Ted Friedman also notes that H. R. Stahl proposed, in a letter in "The Bowling Green" (Feb. 3, 1934), that one ingredient of the Mycroft cocktail would surely be "pollinaris water", which will be found in O. Henry's story "Lost Blend". But we still need a complete recipe for one or both of the cocktails.
-
55. Feb 90 #4: "The Avengers: The Curious Case of the Countless Clues" (from the 1968 one-hour television series starring Patrick Macnee and Linda Thorson, and with Peter Jones as Sir Arthur Doyle) is available from Discount Video (10792 Belleville Road, Belleville, MI 48111) in VHS only for $12.99 plus $2.00 shipping. The episode is not really Sherlockian, nor Doylean, but there are occasional echoes. And if you're an "Avengers" fan, Discount Video has many other episodes available, with Honor Blackman and Diana Rigg as well as Linda Thorson.
56. The first issue of The Sherlockian Tabloid, edited by Mohamed Bazzi for The Young Sherlockians of New York (based at the Joseph Pulitzer Intermediate School in Jackson Heights), is a 16-page slick-paper anthology of articles, pastiches, and puzzles, and available ($3.00 postpaid) from the editor, at 80-08 35th Avenue #5-F, Jackson Heights, NY 11372.
57. The manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" was sold at auction at Christie's in London in December (Nov 89 #6), and purchased by Mark Hime for £44,000 (that's about $72,600 and does not include the 10% buyer's premium). The manuscript was recently offered by Hime's firm Bibliotopus at the California Book Fair for $155,000. Other items offered by Bibliotopus included A STUDY IN SCARLET in the first printing of the first book edition ($35,000), a complete run of first printings of Classics Comics/Illustrated ($20,000), and a complete run of Topps' Football Cards ($38,000).
58. E. Christian Mattson (300 East Joppa Road #A-9, Towson, MD 21204) offers his illustrated catalog (with a color cover showing a handsome copy of the first edition of THE HOUND OF BASKERVILLES) of early and recent S'iana ($3.50 postpaid, refundable on purchase).
59. Recently seen: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE EMINENT THESPIAN, by Val Andrews (Romford: Ian Henry, 1988; 110 pp., £8.95). The eminent thespian is actor William Gillette, in London in the spring of 1901 starring in his play "Sherlock Holmes" (which in this pastiche seems to have been based on the 1939 film "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes"). For the record, Gillette opened his London run of "Sherlock Holmes" at the Lyceum in Sept. 1901, some months after, rather than before, the coronation of Edward VII.
60. Rick Hacker's Celebrity Cards have proved quite successful: of the four Sherlockian designs in the series, three have sold out (SHC-183, SHC-284, SHN-184), but one is still available (SHC-184); the price is $8.50 for a box of ten cards with envelopes, and the address is Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213. A four-page sales list with color illustrations of all 20 cards in the series is also available, for $2.00 postpaid.
61. Rick also reports that the Apr. issue of Playboy has a brief item on the Peterson "Sherlock Holmes" pipe set in the Potpourri section.
62. The third issue of Prescott's Press (New Series), edited by Warren Randall for The Three Garridebs, was published in Sept. 1989, with 40 pages, and is devoted to "The Speckled Band", offering articles, alternative solutions devised for a contest set by 1st Bangalore Pioneers, and a discussion of the helodermatid *Sampoderma* (described and illustrated for the first time in 1956 in the Bulletin of the American Museum of Natural History).
-
63. Feb 90 #5: Robert Barr, writing as Luke Sharp, was the author of one of the earliest Sherlockian parodies, published in May 1892 issue of The Idler as "Detective Stories Gone Wrong: The Adventures of Sherlaw Kombs" (D5816a). And George W. Locke has discovered a second interesting item: "The Adventure of the Second Swag", also by Barr, as Sharp, in the 1904 volume of The Idler. According to Locke's synopsis, the story is set at Doyle's Hindhead home, Undershaw, to which Sir George Newnes, publisher of The Strand, has come to pay the pieces of gold owing to Doyle for his resurrection of Sherlock Holmes. All goes smoothly, until Holmes himself arrives, intent on securing his cut... A pamphlet reprint of the story is available for £15 (or $25) from Ferret Fantasy, 27 Beechcroft Road, Upper Tooting, London SW17 7BX, England.
64. Julian Wolff died on February 12. Julian's first formal contribution to the Sherlockian world was a set of maps produced in 1940 (in the minutes of the 1941 annual dinner of the BSI, Edgar W. Smith noted that Julian was "cartographer extraordinary to the cult" and in 1942 he had been promoted to "cartographer royal"), and he received his Investiture ("The Red-Headed League") in 1944. When Edgar died in 1960, Julian volunteered to serve as editor of the BSJ and as Commissionaire of the BSI, continuing as editor for 17 years and as the only officer of the BSI for 26 years. He received the Two-Shilling Award in 1968, and a special Golden Sovereign in 1973, and many of his friends contributed to a *festschrift* issue of the BSJ published in June 1986, recommended to those who wish to know more about the energy and wit that Julian contributed to the Sherlockian world. In Sept. 1973 Julian attended a meeting of The Red Circle of Washington, and discovered that the Washington chapter of the International Wizard of Oz Society was meeting at the same restaurant. After stopping by for a drink with friends in that group, he returned to report that people were meeting in another room, talking about Dorothy and the Scarecrow and the Tin Woodsman as if they were real people. "They're crazy," Julian noted mildly.
65. There has been no formal suggestion about a charity to which contributions might be sent in memory of Julian, but a fine proposal by Francine Swift is the Dr. John H. Watson Fund, which offers financial assistance to S'ians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the weekend's festivities. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the fund and welcomes contributions, which can be made by check payable to John H. Watson and mailed (without any return address) to Dr. Watson, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., who will happily forward the checks unopened. Tom's address: 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
66. Linda King offers an illustrated sales list of color photographs of Jeremy Brett and Edward Hardwicke taken backstage in London, Cardiff, and Bath, and onstage at the last night of "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" in London. Prices range from £1.25 (4"x6") to £12.00 (20"x30"), and Linda's address is 39 Rolleston Park, Shrewton, Salisbury, Wilts. SP3 4DU, England).
67. THE CASE OF THE INFERNAL NONSENSE, edited by Dean Clark for the Afghanistan Perceivers, is an anthology of pastiches, essays, and debate (the latter about the true identity of Billy the page), with some fine illustrations by Ed Stadler (113 pp., $10.00 postpaid from R. Dean Clark, c/o S.E.G., Box 702740, Tulsa, OK 74170).
-
68. Feb 90 #6: Further to the report (Jan 90 #3) on the birthday festivities, the seven S'ian artists whose original artwork was displayed at the cocktail party on Saturday afternoon were: Jeff Decker, Stefanie K. Hawks, Henry Lauritzen, Charles A. Meyer, Laura Parker, the late Norman Schatell, and Kiyoshi Tanaka.
69. John E. Stephenson reports another source for deerstalkers: Johnson Smith Co., Box 25500, Bradenton, FL 34206. Their price is $13.95.
70. Issue number 23 of The Tantalus at hand from the Pequod Press, with hints of titles of cases as yet unrecorded by Dr. Fatso about his friend Turlock Loams, and an announcement of BAKER STREET OR BUST, the latest collection of Sherlockian quatrains composed by Baron Dowson, the chief helmsman of the Pequod. The book is available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $30.00 cloth or $15.00 paper.
71. The ninth annual Wright State Symposium, with considerable Sherlockian and Doylean content, will be held on Mar. 10-11 in Dayton. Additional details are available from Al Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.

72. Canada's new stamp showing a timber wolf is Canonical, what with seven mentions of wolves in six of the stories. It was Sherlock Holmes who said (in "A Study in Scarlet") that "I am one of the hounds and not the wolf."
73. Tekna Productions (2 & 3 Moores Place, Brentwood, Essex CM14 4AG, England), the firm that produced eight color prints and four greeting cards for the City of Westminster Libraries, and "The 221B Collection" of color prints from THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Jul 88 #1), has a new set of eight color prints of Sidney Paget's illustrations from THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, for £13.50 postpaid. The prints are handsomely produced, on heavy stock and suitable for framing, and an illustrated flier is available from Tekna.
74. MATCH WITS WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES is a series of four children's books, for ages 8-11, each with two stories from the Canon, adapted by Murray Shaw and illustrated by George Overlie (Minneapolis: Carolrhoda Books, 1990). The adaptations and illustrations are splendid, and the books are well produced in attractive reinforced library bindings. The books cost $9.95 each (or $39.80 for the set) postpaid from the publisher, at 241 First Avenue North, Minneapolis, MN 55401 (800-328-4929).
75. Carolrhoda Books is also sponsoring a mystery-writing contest for students in grades 4-6, encouraging students to read one of the four books and then write a Sherlock Holmes mystery of their own (Murray Shaw will select the grand prize-winner, whose story will be published by Carolrhoda). Contest packages are available from Carolrhoda to teachers, librarians, and anyone else who would like to organize a preliminary round at the local level.
76. Further to the report (Jan 90 #5) on The Bimetallic Colloquium at McGill University in Montreal on June 15-17, the speakers will also include Beth Greenwood. A flier is available from The Bimetallic Question, Box 883 Stock Exchange Tower, Montreal, Quebec H4Z 1K2, Canada.
-
77. Feb 90 #7: Earlier (Feb 90 #3) I asked, "on what date in 1731 was George Washington actually born?" George Washington was born on Feb. 11, 1731, well before the British, in 1752, adopted the Gregorian calendar in all of their possessions, including the American colonies. The change resulted in a loss of eleven days, and Feb. 11 became Feb. 22. For those who think that Washington was born in 1732 rather than 1731, he was indeed born in 1731: the change to the Gregorian calendar also involved shifting the start of the new year from Mar. 25 to Jan. 1, so Feb. 11, 1731, is now considered to have been Feb. 22, 1732, even if it really wasn't.
78. The Mar. 1990 issue of Esquire has a nice essay by John Berendt on "The Slipper" (based on an interview with Stanley MacKenzie).
79. Another plug for the discount-book catalogs from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031): his latest catalog offers the Mysterious Press edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (published at $25.00) for $6.95, Michael Hardwick's THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND (published at $17.95) for $4.95, and THE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (a facsimile reprint of all the stories illustrated by Sidney Paget) for $6.95.
80. The Great Alkali Plainsmen are planning a "Holmes on the Range" convention in Kansas City on Labor Day weekend (Sept. 1-3), with an agenda that will include "special guests, films, dramatic entertainment, curious incidents, games afoot, super conversations, hucksters galore, and much more." There will also be a competition to find the most knowledgeable scion society, with John Bennett Shaw as quizmaster and Jon L. Lellenberg and Philip A. Shreffler as judges, and all Sherlockian societies have been invited to send teams of "three of your finest Canonical experts" to compete in the "gawdawful Shaw arena" in Kansas City. Additional information is available from Stan Carmack, 10517 East 71st Terrace, Raytown, MO 64113.
81. Apropos of nothing in particular, an item in the Washington Post (Jan. 25) notes that veteran actress Shelley Winters isn't easily intimidated, and cites a report in Premiere magazine. When the upcoming film "Awakenings" was being cast recently, Robert De Niro requested that Winters play the role of his mother. Someone--no one will admit to it--insisted that she read for the part. The actress arrived to meet with the casting director. After a moment of silence, she reached into her satchel and pulled out an Oscar, which she placed on the desk. Then she reached in and pulled out another, placing it next to the first. Finally she said, "Some people think I can act. Do you still want me to read for this part?" "No, Miss Winter," came the reply. She got the part . . .
82. Sherlock Holmes meets H. P. Lovecraft, and Cthuhlu, in SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE ADVENTURE OF THE ANCIENT GODS, a pastiche written by Ralph Vaughan and first published in 1983 in Holmesian Federation #4. The story has now been reissued as a 38-page pamphlet, with new illustrations by Earl Geier, and available from Gryphon Books, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228; $5.00 postpaid.
83. This year's "Canonical Convocation" for Chicago Sherlockians (and anyone else who wishes to participate) will be held in Door County, Wisconsin, on Sept. 14-16. Additional information is available from Donald B. Izban, 5334 Wrightwood, Chicago, IL 60639.
-
84. Feb 90 #8: If you know any librarians who are going to attend the annual conference of the American Library Association in Chicago, you might let them know about the next meeting of The Sub-Librarians Scion of the BSI in the ALA, on June 24. Details are available from Marsha Pollak, Sunnyvale Public Library, 665 West Olive, Sunnyvale, CA 94086.
85. Further to the report (Jun 89 #3) on the Edinburgh branch of the Federation of Master Builders' plans to commemorate their 50th anniversary in 1991 by donating a statue of Sherlock Holmes to the city, sculptor Gerald Laing has completed work on the clay model. The eight-foot statue, to be cast in bronze, will be installed (on a six-foot base) in Picardy Place, where Conan Doyle was born in 1859. The photograph is from the Edinburgh Evening News, which reports that the Master Builders have cleared a £3,500 profit on a fund-raising boxing event, but are still well short of the the £35,000 cost of the statue, and that they will welcome contributions sent to their appeal fund at 30 Richmond Terrace in Edinburgh.
86. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Liebman (18 Meadow Lane, Roslyn Heights, NY 11577) offer a flier for their mystery-lover's tour of England "in the footsteps of Sherlock, Agatha, and Dracula," July 29-Aug. 12, 1990.
87. Yet another alphabet-soup report on BDB Corp. and BDD Promotions Book Co. (Dec 89 #4): BDB Corp. (which owns B. Dalton and Barnes & Noble) has agreed to purchase the Doubleday Book Shops (40 outlets nationwide) from the West German company Bertelsmann AG, which owns Doubleday (and the BDD Promotions Book Co.).
88. And, for those whose newspapers don't carry Doug Marlette's "Kudzu" comic strip, here's the one that ran on February 6:
-
89. Mar 90 #1: The Mini-Tonga Scion Society is back in action, and The Tonga Times is back in print with issue #24 and an interesting article by Brian Jackson on his research on the floor plan of 221 Baker Street. The society is for keepers and creators of Sherlockian miniatures: for information on membership, send a #10 SASE to Dee Snyder, 8440 Nashua Drive, Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418.
90. The British Museum in London has organized an exhibition on "Fake: The Art of Deception" (from Mar. 9 to Sept. 2), including a Conan Doyle display: the Cottingley Fairy photographs, on loan from The Brotherton Library at Leeds University.
91. American Express has shipped the fifth installment of the Simon & Schuster audio cassettes to subscribers, bringing the total number of cassettes to fourteen (far more than are available in stores). I don't know whether American Express card-holders can still subscribe to the series, but their toll-free telephone number is 800-528-8000. The first ten cassettes are available directly from Simon & Schuster, but their toll-free number is 800-687-2677.

92. At hand from Gary Westmoreland is news of for Granada's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes", which was selected by the editors of the Associated Press as one of the eleven best television miniseries and specials of the 1980s, and singled out as one of the decade's bright spots by Robert Goldberg in the Wall Street Journal.
93. We all know (or we all should know by now) that the phrase "Elementary, my dear Watson" does not appear in the Canon. But (one of my correspondents has asked): when *was* the phrase first used, and by which author or actor?
94. "Hero bloodhound Sherlock sniffs out kidnapped newborn" (according to the N.Y. Post, in a report at hand from Marlene Aig). On Feb. 3 a three-day-old infant was kidnapped from St. John's Hospital in Brooklyn by a woman posing as his mother, in a case solved with the assistance of Sherlock, a 95-pound member of the local police department's canine unit.
95. The Sherlockian "Garfield" was used in the Washington Times (first spotted on Feb. 22) in a promotion for a Newspaper in Education Week workshop for teachers "eager to enhance their curriculum through the use of the newspaper as an innovative learning tool."
96. Further to the further report (Feb 90 #6) on the seven Sherlockian artists whose original artwork was displayed at the cocktail party on Saturday afternoon, Ruthann Stetak was the first to remind me that the seven were actually nine: Scott Bond, Jeff Decker, Stefanie K. Hawks, Henry Lauritzen, Charles A. Meyer, Laura Parker, the late Norman Schatell, Kiyoshi Tanaka, and Jean Upton.
-
97. Mar 90 #2: Plan ahead: "The Final Problem Workshop: Conan Doyle's Revenge" will be held at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg on June 14-16, 1991. The workshop will be masterminded by Ray Betzner and The Cremona Fiddlers, whose fine workshop "Fiddling Around with Sherlock Holmes" was held in Williamsburg in July 1987. Other S'ian events already scheduled for 1991 are the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's pilgrimage to Switzerland, Apr. 26-May 5, and the Sherlockian dinner at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park on May 4.
98. Rathbone's (your friendly tavern with excellent food), at 1702 Second Avenue, near 88th Street, in New York, has a nicely S'ian logo.
99. The Friends of Bogie's at Baker Street do not restrict their dramatics to S'ian programs. Disguised as ZPPR Productions, Henry Enberg, Mickey Fromkin, Andrew Joffe, Sarah Montague, Dore Nash, Susan Rice, and Paul Singleton can be heard on National Public Radio, which airs their series "Visit New Grimston, Anyway". Another series ("Little Chills") will start in April, presenting original short dramas of mystery, suspense, or otherworldly themes. Your local NPR station can tell you if and when the series will be broadcast, and mail-order cassettes are available from ZPPR Productions, 34 Gansevoort Street, New York, NY 10014.
100. The Mar. 1990 issue of Smithsonian has an instructive one-page essay by Jim Lehrer (associate editor of the "MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour") on the pleasures of collecting (Lehrer describes himself as a world-class collector of depot signs and other memorabilia). Collectors, Lehrer suggests, are not odd. "We are merely possessed with a need to collect certain things that some people might consider odd."
101. Gary Larson's "The Far Side" cartoon "Buddy's Dream" (about the Parakeet of the Baskervilles), which ran in newspapers on Dec. 5, 1986, was reprinted in THE PREHISTORY OF THE FAR SIDE: A 10TH ANNIVERSARY EXHIBIT (Kansas City: Andrew and McMeel, 1989).
102. M. J. Trow has written six books about Inspector Sholto Lestrade, offering a new and more sympathetic look at the oft-maligned detective portrayed in the Canon, writing with humor (sometimes slapstick and often punning) and pleasant ingenuity. The books, published by Macmillan in England, are THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1985), BRIGADE: FURTHER ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1986), LESTRADE AND THE HALLOWED HOUSE (1987), LESTRADE AND THE LEVIATHAN (1987), LESTRADE AND THE BROTHER OF DEATH (1988), and LESTRADE AND DEATH (1988), and LESTRADE AND THE RIPPER (1988). The first book has been published by Stein & Day in the U.S. as THE SUPREME ADVENTURE OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1985), and there is a possibility that others in the series will also be published here.
103. The National Council for Research on Women is sponsoring "Spend an Evening with Women of Mystery" at Saint Bartholomew's Episcopal Church at Park Avenue and 51st Street in New York on Apr. 27, with more than 30 of the country's leading mystery writers taking part. Tickets cost $75.00 (or $90.00 at the door), and further information is available from Mary Ellen Capek, NCRW, 47-49 East 65th Street, New York, NY 10021.
-
104. Mar 90 #3: Michael Stewart, who served twice as Great Britain's foreign secretary in the 1960s, died on Mar. 10. It was Stewart who gave approval for plans by his permanent undersecretary, Sir Paul Gore-Booth, to impersonate Sherlock Holmes during the 1968 trip to Switzerland by the Sherlock Holmes Society of London. And when some members of the press and public criticized the impersonation as undignified and unsuitable for a senior civil servant, it was Stewart who noted mildly that Sir Paul was in no danger of being fired. "I have every sympathy with him," Stewart said, adding that "I'm a great Sherlock Holmes enthusiast myself. I often pick up a book, though I am not a member of the Sherlock Holmes Society."
105. Yet another S'ian logo, discovered by Kathy Cabanyog (Ted Schulz's daughter-in-law-elect) at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas.
106. The reviews of Umberto Eco's new book FOUCAULT'S PENDULUM suggest that it is even more challenging to the reader than his THE NAME OF THE ROSE (and so far there has been no mention of anything Sherlockian about FOUCAULT'S PENDULUM). But the book is certainly imaginative: a review (also at hand from Ted Schulz) notes that two of the main characters in the book have started a School for Comparative Irrelevance, teaching such skills as potiosection (the art of slicing soup) and tetrapylotomy (the art of splitting a hair four ways).
107. Check your local PBS-TV listings for "The Power of Algebra", a series of ten 15-minute programs produced by Louisiana Public Broadcasting in 1989 and intended to help eighth and ninth-grade students in mastering various algebra concepts. The programs include amusing animated segments featuring Holmes and Watson.
108. Ron De Waal's bibliographies of foreign translations of the Canon run from Afrikaans to Uzbek, but there is now an addition to his list: Pig-Latin. ETHAY ADVENTUREAY OFAY ACKBLAY ETERPAY, translated and published last year by Kevin Reed as a 30-page pamphlet, is available for $12.45 postpaid from Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804.
109. One of the more unusual scion-society pins shows Popeye in S'ian costume, honoring his birth in Chester, Ill., where he was created by Elzie Segar in 1929. The six-color enameled pin is available for $7.00 postpaid from The Chester Baskerville Society, 1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233.
110. Further to the report (Dec 89 #6) on the two-hour CBS-TV television film "Napoleon of Crime" (with Edward Woodward as Holmes and John Hillerman as Watson), a new report by Marilyn Beck (forwarded by Emory Lee) says that the film has a new title ("Hands of a Murderer"), that production work will end this month, and that the program will be broadcast in May during the "sweeps" (when the networks compete hardest for good Nielsen ratings. The cast and crew survived the hurricane-force winds that plagued England in recent weeks, and Woodward said that despite adventures in getting to the set, "production is a romp." And Lenny Picker reports that Anthony Andrews (who was Sebastian Flyte in "Brideshead Revisited") will play Moriarty.
-
111. Mar 90 #4: Julian Symons' biography CONAN DOYLE: PORTRAIT OF AN ARTIST (reprinted by the Mysterious Press in 1987 at $15.95) has been remaindered at $3.99 at Crown (and presumably at other bargain outlets). First published in 1979 in Britain, the book is relatively short (137 pp.), well-written though with some factual errors, and profusely illustrated (and with some photographs and other material not available elsewhere); unfortunately, illustrations published in color in the first edition appear only in black-and-white in the reprint.

112. Check the dog-food shelves in your supermarkets for boxes of Milk-Bone Flavor Snacks displaying a "win $10,000 in gold" promotion on the front: the back of the box has Sherlock Bones and details on how to solve "The Case of the Vanishing Flavor Snacks" (and on how you might win one of the one thousand Sherlock Bones T-shirts).
113. It will be interesting to see if any S'ian manages to win one of the T-shirts, since this may well be the first limited-edition S'ian collectible for which luck rather than lucre is the controlling factor: regardless of how many times a compulsive collector enters the contest, there's no guarantee of winning one.
114. Paramount has set Apr. 27 as the release date for "Tales from the Darkside: The Movie" (with Deborah Harry, James Remar, Christian Slater, and Rae Dawn Chong), billed as a collection of stories by Stephen King, Michael McDowell, and Arthur Conan Doyle. Christian Slater was Adso of Melk in "The Name of the Rose" (1986). And Lenny Picker reports that Paramount reports that "Lot No. 249" is the Conan Doyle story used in the film.
115. Victoria Robinson reports some additional television news (from the Los Angeles Times, Mar. 11): plans for a four-hour version of "The Lost World" (with Oliver Reed as Challenger and Donald Pleasence as Summerlee).
116. Magiclimage Film Books (740 South 6th Avenue, Absecon, NJ 08201) specializes in publishing horror-film shooting scripts, with photographs and production information, priced at $19.95, and they are planning to publish Rathbone's Sherlock Holmes films in the same format. Not immediately, however: "The Scarlet Claw" is scheduled for late 1991, with others to follow.
117. Videotaper alert: according to the late winter 1989 issue of Anglofile, CBS-TV added "The Prisoner" to its Thursday late-night lineup starting on Feb. 1 (actually in the early hours of Feb. 2), following the Pat Sajak show. But not in Washington, where we get "Hawaii Five-O" in that time slot. If you do get "The Prisoner" you might want to record episode 15 ("The Girl Who Was Death"), since Patrick McGoohan appears in Sherlockian costume in that program. And Anglofile is a 12-page newsletter published six times a year for fans of British stage, screen, television, and music (the latest issue includes interviews with Leo McKern and Peter Davison). $12.00 a year from The Goody Press, Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033.
-
118. Mar 90 #5: Sherlockian gourmets, gourmands, chefs, cooks, and collectors who have been searching for copies of the cookbook DINING WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES will welcome the just-published second edition (New York: Fordham University Press, 1989; 287 pp., $18.95). DINING WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, by far the best of the Sherlockian cookbooks, has now been improved by its authors, Julia C. Rosenblatt and Frederic H. Sonnenschmidt, who have added a new preface and a long appendix on "Sherlock Holmes at the C.I.A.: The Quinquennial Dinners". The appendix includes some additional recipes (which have not been added to the index), and the book is recommended as a fine example of the pleasures to be found in the world (and especially the dining rooms) of Sherlock Holmes. Fordham takes plastic, and has a tollfree number (800-666-2211), and charges $2.50 for shipping.
119. More Sherlockian artifacts: sterling-silver key rings and pipe tampers, priced at $50.00 each, can be ordered from Marty Pulvers (Sherlock's Haven, Four Embarcadero Center, San Francisco, CA 94111).
120. The new movie "The Handmaid's Tale" has received mixed reviews, but it does feature three Sherlockian actors: Robert Duvall (the Commander) was Watson in the film "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (1976), Natasha Richardson (Kate) was Violet Hunter on TV in Granada's "The Copper Beeches" (1985), and Victoria Tennant (the Headmistress) was Helen Stoner on TV in the Sheldon Reynolds' version of "The Speckled Band" (1981).
121. A variety of Sherlockiana published by the Marylebone Library is available by mail: Catherine Cooke's 95-page booklet THE CONTENTS OF A LUMBER-ROOM: A CATALOGUE OF THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COLLECTION (£7.00), a set of eight tinted prints from Sidney Paget's illustrations (£8.00), a set of four full-color greeting cards (£5.30), and a set of five black-and-white greeting cards (£4.00). Prices are postpaid to the U.S., and payment in sterling is requested, payable to the City of Westminster (dollar checks should include an extra L0.80 to cover exchange commission). Orders can be sent to the City of Westminster, attn: Leisure Services (14th floor), Westminster City Hall, Victoria Street, London SW1E 6QP, England.
122. More information at hand on the second "Canonical Convocation" for Chicago Sherlockians (and anyone else who wishes to participate), which will be held in Door County, Wisconsin, on Sept. 14-16. The agenda is interesting and imaginative, and a detailed schedule is available from Donald B. Izban (5334 Wrightwood, Chicago, IL 60639).
123. The energetic efforts of Jack Tracy and Bill Goodrich have made it rather difficult to devise interesting Canonical challenges that cannot be solved by referring to THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA or GOOD OLD INDEX. But one such challenge was devised by Chris Redmond and included in "A Patrickian Puzzler for St. Sherlock's Day 1990": Sherlock Holmes said the potato was completely different. From what other vegetable, and as different as what? Neither Tracy nor Goodrich have reported this reference to the potato. And you will find no mention of this particular reference by Julie Rosenblatt and Fritz Sonnenschmidt in DINING WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES.
-
124. Mar 90 #6: At hand from Gary Westmoreland is a press release announcing plans by Harmony Gold and Klondike Films to produce "The Golden Years of Sherlock Holmes" starting in the fall of 1990, with Christopher Lee as Holmes and Patrick Macnee as Watson, and "major guest stars" making cameo appearances, to be filmed in "spectacular original settings all over the world." The first program is to be a four-hour miniseries "Sherlock Holmes: The Incident at Victoria" (which takes place on a train journey from Capetown to Cairo, with a stopover at the Victoria Falls Hotel), and this will be followed by a second four-hour miniseries "Sherlock Holmes: The Merry Widow" (which will take Holmes and Watson across Europe). And then there will be 22 one-hour adventures, each following a new case. It is not entirely clear how much of the filming for the first mini-series will be on location, in view of the fact that there is not now, nor ever has been, a railroad line from Capetown to Cairo.
125. Harry Alan Towers, who produced the Gielgud/Richardson radio series for the BBC in 1954, is president of Klondike Film Productions Ltd. and will be executive producer for the new series. Christopher Lee was Holmes in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959) and "Sherlock Holmes und das Halsband des Todes" (1963), and Mycroft in "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970). And Patrick Macnee was Watson in "Sherlock Holmes in New York" (1976).
126. There is also a possibility of long-range good news for radio fans: "A Tale of Two Cities" (produced in Britain by Independent Radio Drama Productions and now running as a serial on National Public Radio) will give you an idea of current work by a company that has a new stereo Sherlock Holmes series under consideration, and Andy Trudeau, senior producer at NPR, hopes to be able to air the series.
127. And there's more television news, this time involving "Tyburn Productions vs. Conan Doyle": the [London] Times reports that a lawsuit by Tyburn, who produced the Peter Cushing television film "The Masks of Death" (1984) and have planned to make a sequel ("The Abbot's Cry"), and who had sued last year in Britain seeking a ruling that Dame Jean has no control over the characters, was unsuccessful. The court ruled that it had no jurisdiction over the still-extant copyright in the United States.
128. There *are* people who read the words in Playboy, rather than just look at the pictures. Dave Galerstein reports that "Miss February" in 1976 was named Laura Lyons, and that she is also on display in the Jan. 1977 issue.

129. Robert C. Hess (529 Potters Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) has a new sales list, offering Sherlockian theater programs, film posters, statues, dolls, plates, umbrellas, and other collectibles.
130. Ray Goulding died on March 24. Ray Goulding and his partner Bob Elliott created "The Bob and Ray Show" in the late 1940s, and their gentle and offbeat humor delighted generations of radio and television fans. VINTAGE BOB AND RAY, issued by Genesis Records in 1973, has twenty items from their early radio days, including "The Adventures of Sherlock Sage" (featuring the renowned sleuth and his uncomplicated sidekick, Dr. Clyde).
-
131. Apr 90 #1: News from Japan: THE INTERNATIONAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (with 742 illustrations and 59 photographs from the Granada series), edited by John Bennett Shaw, Tsukasa Kobayashi, and Akane Higashiyama, has been published by Kodan-sha (Kyoritsukaikan 4-6-19, Kohinata, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo 112), and the price is Y2,000; the book is a massive collection showing how the Canon has been illustrated over the years, and in various countries. And Kiyoshi Tanaka's translation of Charles Viney's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN LONDON has been published by JICC Shuppan at Y2,900, in soft covers and with a smaller page size than the original edition.
132. And the Japan Sherlock Holmes Club's newsletter Baker Street News reports that the owner of the manuscript of "The Dancing Men" is offering it for sale, for Y48 million (that's about $300,000); the manuscript has 53 pages, and was donated by Conan Doyle to the Red Cross in 1918 and sold at auction in London for ten guineas. The current owner is an unidentified American lady.
133. The question posed last month (Mar 90 #5) noted that Sherlock Holmes said the potato was completely different, and asked from what other vegetable, and as different as what? Sherlock Holmes' statement (in "The Sign of the Four") was, "To the trained eye there is as much difference between the black ash of a Trichinopoly and the white fluff of bird's-eye as there is between a cabbage and a potato." Not all of the Canonical indexes ignore the two vegetables: both are listed in Hugh T. Harrington's HARRINGTON'S CANONICAL INDEX, which is available from The Village Bookshelf, Box 708, Massillon, OH 44648 ($22.00 postpaid).
134. And Chris Redmond, who devised the query, notes that on Nov. 10, 1979, the Saturday Review asked readers to define the difference between a cabbage and a potato. One of the entries was a poem that began: "Both are plants and both are food--/ Simple facts, widely understood./ But boiled, roasted, or fried,/ Only cabbage smells like something that died."
135. A political (though non-Sherlockian) question, occasioned by the fact that George Bush was serving as vice president when he was elected president. How many other serving vice presidents have been elected president? And who were they? No need to look this up in an almanac, as the answer will be given below.
136. Alan C. Olding (P.O. Box 13, Stirling, S.A. 5151, Australia) offers copies of a bold yellow bumper sticker (shown here in reduced size): US$10 for five bumper stickers (payment in currency requested).
-
137. Apr 90 #2: Robert L. Fish's "Schlock Homes" parodies are modern classics that delighted readers of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine from 1960 to 1981, and they are now again available from Gaslight Publications in SCHLOCK HOMES: THE COMPLETE BAGEL STREET SAGA. And the saga is indeed complete: 23 of the stories were collected in THE INCREDIBLE SCHLOCK HOMES (1966) and THE MEMOIRS OF SCHLOCK HOMES (1974), but nine additional stories were previously appeared only in EQMM; this collection has all the stories, with an attractive dust-jacket illustration by Joseph Mahler. Gaslight's address is 626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404, and the price of the book is $31.45 postpaid (plastic accepted).
138. Also available from Gaslight, in the "Conan Doyle Centennial Series", is A DUET WITH AN OCCASIONAL CHORUS, with an Afterword by Peter E. Blau ($18.45 postpaid). First published in 1899, A DUET is a romance (it was described by Conan Doyle as "an attempt to draw the quiet humours of domestic life, as a contrast to my stories of action") and often quite autobiographical, and this edition also contains two chapters published for the first time in an American edition of the book. And Gaslight's spring 1990 catalog offers many other titles from Gaslight and other publishers.
139. German interest in Sherlockiana continues apace, as noted by Dick Rutter. SHERLOCK HOLMES UND DAS GEHEIMNIS DER SACHERTORTE, a pastiche by Gerhardt Totschinger, was published by Langen Muller in 1988. SHERLOCK HOLMES UND DIE KRONJUWELEN, a translation of Val Andrews' pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE EMINENT THESPIAN, was published by Knauer in 1989. And NOBEL MORDER, published by Bastei-Lubbe in 1989, is a collection of stories selected by the Swedish Academy of Detection and published in England in 1981 as CRIME WAVE; the collection includes "Das Backerdutzend in der Baker Street", a pastiche by Arthur Douglas (a pseudonym of D. A. Moreton).
140. And we are delighted to report that Chris Steinbrunner is now at home in Queens (52-52 82nd Street, Middle Village, NY 11379).
141. Spring fever rages at the Pequot Press, which has announced publication of THE ADVENTURE OF THE FRYING DETECTIVE, in which Turlock Loams matches wits with the shadowy Gene Moriautry. Available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincent Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $30.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
142. Bud Grace's "Ernie" is a relatively new comic strip in the Washington Post, where this one appeared in Apr. 3.
-
143. Apr 90 #3: At hand from Jean Upton is a flier for "The 7% Convention: A Sherlock Holmes Event" to be held at the Shepperton Moat House Hotel (in Middlesex) on Aug. 25-26, offering talks, films, competitions, and other entertainment. The organizer, Jane Sayle, is a Member of Council of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, and Douglas Wilmer will attend, and Edward Hardwicke and Jeremy Paul may be able to participate. Details are available from Jane Sayle, 6 Bramham Moor, Hillhead, Fareham, Hampshire PO14 3RU, England.
144. Further to earlier reports (Oct 89 #4 and Dec 89 #5) on the next Granada series ("The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes"), British press reports state that production will begin soon on "Lady Frances Carfax". The five other stories will be "The Illustrious Client", "Shoscombe Old Place", "Thor Bridge", "The Creeping Man", and "The Boscombe Valley Mystery".
145. More news from Britain: a Baker Street nightclub has opened in Grimsby (on the northeastern coast of England, not far from Hull). According to owner Reza Daryan, the nightclub is "aimed at the over-21's who are looking for rather more sophisticated entertainment," and has an adjoining Victorianstyle bar called Sherlock's.
146. NATE THE GREAT AND THE MUSICAL NOTE, by Marjorie Weinman Sharmat and Craig Sharmat (New York: Coward-McCann, 1990; 48 pp., $11.95), is the latest in the continuing series of amusing children's books about a young detective. As usual, Nate appears in a deerstalker in Marc Simont's illustrations.
147. There are politicians aplenty on postage stamps (including Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Harry Truman, both members of the BSI), as well as quite a few lighthouses (five of them in our newest stamp booklet, with one more on the cover of the booklet). But philatelic trained cormorants are more difficult, though not impossible, to locate. Sherlockian philatelists will now have a brief respite, as far as U.S. stamps are concerned: the next item scheduled is a postal card honoring Niagara Falls, due in September.
148. A political (though non-Sherlockian) question, occasioned by the fact that George Bush was serving as vice president when he was elected president. How many other serving vice presidents have been elected president? And who were they? No need to look this up in an almanac, as the answer will be given below.

149. Errors found in this newsletter are not, despite suggestions from eagle-eyed readers, published in order to find out whether anyone actually reads the newsletter. M. J. Trow has indeed written six books about Inspector Sholto Lestrade (Mar 90 #2), and the title LESTRADE AND DEATH (1988) is a ghost. And Christopher Lee did not play Holmes in the 1959 film "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Mar 90 #6): Lee was Sir Henry Baskerville, and Holmes was played by Peter Cushing.
-
150. Apr 90 #4: American Express Merchandise Services has told subscribers to the series of Rathbone/Bruce radio shows on audiocassettes that "the producer of these tapes has informed us that due to a manufacturing problem the remaining twelve tapes in the series are out of production." The fifth shipment (with cassettes 12-14) will be the last from American Express. Ken Greenwald of 221A Baker Street Associates reports that the only problem is that fewer than 2,000 people subscribed to the series, and American Express wasn't interested in continuing it. But 221A (and Simon and Schuster) will continue with distribution to bookstores (five of the first seven cassettes are on the national best-seller list), through the entire series of 26 cassettes (and possibly more).
151. Further to the report (Mar 90 #4) on plans for a new four-hour television mini-series of "The Lost World" (with Oliver Reed as Challenger and Donald Pleasance as Summerlee), this is to be a joint production by Harmony Gold and Klondike Films, who are also planning to produce "The Golden Years of Sherlock Holmes" (Mar 90 #6), and Lucy and Luiz Carlos Barreto of Brazil (who produced "Dona Flor and Her Two Husbands" and "Bye Bye Brazil"). Work on the mini-series is to begin this summer, with shooting on location in Brazil, Luxembourg, and Yugoslavia.
152. At hand from Ely Liebow is the first issue of Sleuth & Statesman, which is "a quarterly communique to friends and patrons of Winston & Holmes," with Sherlockian content and some genial promotion for their pipes, cigars, and accessories. You can write to Winston & Holmes at 138 Cumberland Street, Toronto, Ont. M5R 1A6, Canada.
153. Thanks to a far-flung and sharp-eyed bargain-hunter on the west coast, I can offer three mint-condition copies of the boxed one-volume edition of William S. Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, published by Crown in 1986 at $55.00. My price is $40.00 each, plus shipping, and the offer stands until the copies are gone. Call (202-338-1808) or send a post card, but don't send a check until you know you were in time with your order.
154. Three serving vice presidents were elected president: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and Martin Van Buren. There were other serving vice presidents who became president (but were not elected) when their predecessors died in office or resigned, and Richard M. Nixon was not serving as vice president when he was elected president.
155. "The Case of the Colorful Disappearing Eggs: An Intriguing Egg Decorating Kit" (an 8-inch-square box) with Harelock Holmes and Dr. Wabbitson on the cover and inside (where they are joined by Bunny-Arity) was found in the discount and drugstores again this Easter. First reported last year (Mar 89 #5), the kit has a variant this year: the box now lists the ingredients (per government regulations), and the kit contains ten (rather than six) "disappearing paper eggs that change into beautiful egg coloring."
156. THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: ORIGINAL STORIES BY EMINENT MYSTERY WRITERS, edited by Martin Harry Greenberg and Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh, did well in its hard-cover British edition (Mar 88 #5), and is now available as a trade paperback (London: Arlington Books, 1990; 345 pp., £7.95), with the same cover portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Slatter Anderson.
-
157. Apr 90 #5: In case you are curious but haven't asked (some readers have), the "hologram" envelopes used for these mailings were issued by the US postal service as one of the many philatelic items intended to help pay for "World Stamp Expo 89" (a massive exposition held in Washington in 1989). Local post offices generally don't stock this sort of thing (nor do they have all the commemoratives, postal cards, and envelopes issued during the past twelve months). But the USPS Philatelic Sales Division (Box 9997, Washington, DC 20265) will be glad to send you a color-illustrated catalog for mail orders (they take plastic, and there's a minimum 50-cent shipping charge for orders from the catalog).
158. The "hologram" envelopes cost 30 cents each (or $136.00 for a box of 500), but note that these are #9 envelopes, slightly smaller than the usual #10 envelopes, so you need to be careful when you fold a standard letter sheet. The USPS Stamped Envelope Agency (Williamsburg, PA 16693) will also print your return address on a box of 500 "hologram" envelopes for a total charge of $139.50 (they charge $136.90 for a box of 500 return-address regular #10 stamped envelopes).
159. Charlotte Erickson (1920 Marich Way, Mountain View, CA 94040) will publish cumulative quarterly supplements to the Oct. 1989 edition of her 45-page checklist SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE COMIC BOOKS. The checklist costs $12.00 postpaid ($13.00 in Canada and $16.00 overseas), and the supplements cost $3.50 a year ($4.50 overseas).
160. Further to the note (Mar 90 #3) on not yet having received any report of anything Sherlockian about Umberto Eco's FOUCAULT'S PENDULUM, Al Rodin has found an allusion to Sherlockian reference, on page 265, where a directory of the world's secret societies (with addresses, postal codes, and phone numbers) is described as including "the Mormons (I read about them in a detective story, too, but maybe they don't exist anymore)."
161. Gary Thaden reports that Gerry Gersten's caricature of Sherlock Holmes is still in use by the Quality Paperback Club (Camp Hill, PA 17012), on watches ($19.95), sweatshirts ($16.00), and mugs ($7.20 for a set showing Sherlock Holmes and Edgar Allen Poe), and they offer a 20% discount to new members.
162. "Murder, Myth, and Mystery" is a series of seven-day tours of England, arranged by British Heritage Tours, "looking into the world of some of Britain's most illustrious crime writers" (including, as one might expect, Conan Doyle). Their American agent is John Murray, 235 Post Road West, Westport, CT 06880, or you can write to them at Richmond Place, 125 Boughton, Chester CH3 5BJ, England.
163. An illustrated flier at hand from Frank J. Vacante for a new full-color deck of Sherlock Holmes playing cards, with 18 original drawings by Jeff Decker. The cards cost $7.50 for one deck, and $14.00 for two (plus $1.50 per deck for shipping), and they can be ordered from Singular Cards, Box 1364, Wilkes-Barre, PA 18703.
-
164. Apr 90 #6: Gary Thaden also reports Sherlockian artwork on the cover of THE MAGIC DETECTIVES: JOIN THEM IN SOLVING STRANGE MYSTERIES, by Joe Nickell (115 pp., $7.95). This is a book for children (ages 9-15), intended to help them learn the techniques of skeptical investigation (of ghosts, UFOs, Bigfoot, and the like), published by Prometheus Books, 700 East Amherst Street, Buffalo, NY 14215 (800-421-0351, plastic accepted).
165. There's also a S'ian cover illustration (and one inside, on p. 38) in 50 MYSTERIES I CAN SOLVE, by Susannah Brin and Nancy Sundquist (Los Angeles: Price Stern Sloan, 1988; 48 pp., $2.95).
166. The Sherlock Holmes Museum has opened in Baker Street, with some publicity (one newspaper article ran under the headline "221b or not 221b?"), and also discussion of the unlikelihood that Sherlock Holmes actually lived at 239 Baker Street (the actual address of the Museum) or at the site now occupied by the Abbey National Building Society (where Tony Harries, now Sherlock Holmes' secretary, says that "we don't object to a museum opening down the street . . . what we object to is him calling it 221b"). And a third-hand report from a visitor notes that the Museum has an entrance fee of £5.00 and contains an exhibit that consists of one display-case, which has led to complaints about "rip-off" and "charlatan" (none of which - should be directed at the Sherlock Holmes Society of London, which has carefully avoided any association with the Museum). John Aidiniantz, proprietor of the Museum, has been described in the press as admitting to a mixed career (selling videos to Nigerians, dress-making, being a property agent for Arabs, a music publishers, and a singer's promoter), and as believing he has found a potential pot of gold.

167. Robert Mauro's 1988 one-act comedy "Sherlock Holmes: 10 Minutes to Doom" is included in his collection TWO-CHARACTER PLAYS FOR STUDENTS ACTORS (with 15 plays, 192 pp.), available from Meriwether Publishing, Box 7710, Colorado Springs, CO 80933 ($7.95 plus $2.75 shipping).
168. Bruce Holmes' attractive topical mini-collection of "Sherlockian Letters" (Feb 90 #2) has been published (as "L'alphabet selon Sherlock Holmes") in the Mar. 1990 issue of Philatelie Quebec. The magazine is available from Editions Phibec, 4545 avenue Pierre-de-Coubertin, Montreal, Quebec H1V 3R2, Canada; (CA)$3.00.
169. For the benefit of those planning to attend the next Sherlockian dinner at the Culinary Institute of America on May 4, 1991, Al Rosenblatt writes that Chuck LaForge, owner of the Beekman Arms, reports that his hotel has a few (but only a few) rooms still open for the weekend. A two-night stay is required, and the telephone number is 914-876-7077. Al also reports that there are many other nice hotels in the area, including the Radisson in Poughkeepsie (about ten minutes from the CIA). The Radisson will accept a one-night reservation (their telephone number is 914-485-5300), and they are offering a special discount to Sherlockians. Finally, eager gourmets and gourmands are warned *not* to try to make reservations for the dinner, since Al is not yet accepting reservations. Readers of this newsletter will learn quickly when Al is ready to accept reservations for the dinner.
-
170. May 90 #1: Another stop on a Conan Doyle tour of England: according to the Lancashire Evening Telegraph (Apr. 4), the Eagle and Child (a Matthew Brown pub) at Hurst Green has been refurbished with a Conan Doyle theme, commemorating the author's student days at nearby Stonyhurst College. The decorations include framed stills from Sherlock Holmes films, and Mrs. Hudson's kitchen "will provide an extensive menu in leather-bound holders."
171. Walter R. Brooks' series of books about "Freddy the Pig" have delighted children for more than fifty years, and FREDDY THE DETECTIVE (D6166a) is again in print (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1987; 264 pp., $4.95), with a new color cover by Leslie Morrill and a new introduction by Michael Cart.
172. J. Robert Black's interesting sculptures of Sherlock Holmes, Dr. Watson, and Prof. Moriarty (D3795b) are still available, about 18 inches high, in stoneware (with or without painted skin tones) or in porcelain with black detailing, at $65.00 each. Also available are pendants on rawhide ($10.00 each), and plates or plaques ($18.00 each), and special commissions are also welcome. Write to J. Robert Black, Jr. (1320 Orkney Drive, Ann Arbor, MI 48103).
173. Jack Kerr reports that Eve Titus' BASIL AND THE WILD WEST has been reprinted as a trade paperback (New York: Pocket Books/Minstrel), with new cover art by Judith Sutton. BASIL OF BAKER STREET, BASIL AND THE PYGMY CATS, and BASIL AND THE LOST COLONY are also available in the reprint series.
174. Ben Wolf ("Vernet, the French Artist") has an apt Investiture: his artwork has graced the covers of the dinner menus of The Sons of the Copper Beeches for many years, and his artistic talents extend well beyond the Sherlockian genre. "Then & Now: Purist Paintings in Retrospect & Recent Watercolors by Ben Wolf" was the title of an exhibition during May at the Newman Galleries in Philadelphia.
175. A new sales list at hand from Chris and Beth Caswell (Sherlock's Home, 4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804), with many in-print books and collectibles such as hand-painted T-shirts honoring Holmes or Moriarty.
176. Joseph Payne Brennan died on Jan. 28. His stories of mystery and horror were published in Weird Tales and by August Derleth's Arkham House, and his series detective Lucius Leffing owes much to H. P. Lovecraft as well as to Sherlock Holmes (though the stories are not Sherlockian pastiches). THE CASEBOOK OF LUCIUS LEFFING, THE CHRONICLES OF LUCIUS LEFFING, and ACT OF PROVIDENCE are out of print, but THE ADVENTURES OF LUCIUS LEFFING can be ordered from Donald M. Grant, Box 187, Hampton Falls, NH 03844 ($30.00 signed by Brennan and the book's artist, Luis Ferreira).
177. Videotaper alert: The Movie Channel will show "Without a Clue" (1988) on June 5 and 30, and "The Black Cat" (1941) on June 20. "The Black Cat" has Basil Rathbone in the cast (as Hartley), and in one scene another character asks, referring to Rathbone, "Who does he think he is--Sherlock Holmes?"
-
178. May 90 #2: Kathy Barry-Hippensteel's "Little Sherlock" doll ("a clever little boy who thinks he's the world's greatest sleuth") may turn out to be the most heavily-promoted collectible in the history of Sherlockiana. First advertised (May 89 #4) with a June 30 deadline for orders, it was widely advertised again in TV Guide in Oct. 1989, and most recently in the Apr. 22 issue of Parade Magazine (which is an insert in Sunday editions of newspapers in most major and many minor cities). There is now a one-per-customer limit on this mawkish 11-inch hand-crafted bisque porcelain doll in the "Born to be Famous" collection (last year you could order two of them), and the price is $87.00 (plus $2.44 shipping and state sales tax). The latest advertisement says the doll is "now available", but if you've postponed ordering, there's no particular rush, since orders will be taken until the end of 1990 (write to the Ashton-Drake Galleries, 212 West Superior Street, Chicago, IL 60610). As noted earlier (Dec 89 #2), one might wonder whether there's going to be any increase in value after this "limited edition" closes, since so many people will already have one (if not two) of them.
179. One example of a high-priced limited-edition collectible that has not shown any increase in value is Al Hirschfeld's signed lithograph "Stars of the Playhouse", which shows twenty world-famous stars who have appeared at the Westport Playhouse since it opened in 1931. The advance price (Nov 88 #3) was $600 (increased to $750 after Jan. 1989), and a "special offering" just at hand still offers the lithograph at $750 (from George J. Goodstadt, 17 Danbury Road, Ridgefield, CT 06877). One of the twenty caricatures shows Basil Rathbone as Sherlock Holmes, and I believe that it was drawn for this lithograph, since there is no record of a Hirschfeld caricature when the Rathbone play was produced in 1953. Rathbone presumably appeared at the Westport Playhouse in some other role, since his "Sherlock Holmes" went direct from its Boston tryout to Broadway.
180. Robert Quackenbush has four series of semi-Sherlockian children's books. featuring Detective Mole, Piet Potter, Investigator Ketchem, and Sherlock Chick. SHERLOCK CHICK'S FIRST CASE was published by Parents Magazine Press in 1986, and SHERLOCK CHICK AND THE PEEKABOO MYSTERY in 1987, and they are nicely done.
181. John and Patricia Kluge, recently newsworthy because of a pending divorce (according to the N.Y. Daily News, Kluge is worth about $5.2 billion, and is giving his wife their 45-room mansion in Charlottesville as well as the annual interest from $1 billion), were in 1988 the employers of Sir Richard Musgrave, who was convicted of killing hundreds of federally-protected owls and hawks in order to protect the English-style game-shooting on the Kluge estate (May 88 #6 and Jun 88 #1 and Dec 88 #2). "I guess I'll be the first criminal in the family since Charles I," Sir Richard suggested at the time, also noting that his title results from the "political shenanigans" of a Tory forefather.
182. Robert A. Heinlein's THE MOON IS A HARSH MISTRESS (D5930a) is available as a paperback reprint (New York: Ace Books, 1987; 302 pp., $3.95); the book is excellent (it won a Hugo award at the World Science Fiction Convention in 1966), and it features a computer named Mycroft, as well as many other Sherlockian references.
-
183. May 90 #3: Caliber Press, which publishes the BAKER STREET comic book (I have seen three issues, but there may be as many as five issues with the story "Honour Among Punks"), also issues CALIBER PRESENTS, which has in the Feb. 1990 issue (#9) a pleasantly S'ian story-strip "Elementary My

- Dear". KATY KEENE COMICS DIGEST MAGAZINE #10 (July 1990) is a smaller magazine (in "The Archie Digest Library"), with Katy Keene in S'ian costume in "The Mystery of the Shabby Shadow". SHERLOCK HOLMES #22 (with the Frank Giacoia strip) and SHERLOCK HOLMES OF THE '30S #4 (with the Leo O'Mealia strip) have been published by Eternity. The four-issue run of Eternity's 1989 mini-series A CASE OF BLIND FEAR (Sherlock Holmes versus the Invisible Man) has been reprinted as a graphic novel (Newbury Park: Malibu Graphics, 1990; $9.95). And some forecasts, in ADVANCE COMICS (July 1990), at hand from Tim O'Connor: Eternity will soon begin SHERLOCK HOLMES: CASE OF THE MISSING MARTIAN (a four-issue mini-series about the War of the Worlds), and Northstar will publish CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: BOOK II (a trade paperback reprinting issues #6-9 with Dan Day's artwork).
184. The May 1990 issue of Gourmet has a nice article on "Shopping in Bath" with discussion of why the scarlet British fox-hunting coat was for many years call "pink", and who it was the Bath Oliver was named for, and a fine color photograph (on p. 92) of an attractive Sherlockian display of tobacco at the shop of Frederick Tranter.
185. Linda King (39 Rolleston Park, Shrewton, nr. Salisbury, Wilts. SP3 4DU, England) offers an illustrated flier showing seven designs (with artwork showing Brett and Hardwicke in the Granada series) available as notecards.
186. A copy of the INTERNATIONAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (edited by John Bennett Shaw, Tsukasa Kobayashi, and Akane Higashiyama) has arrived, and the book is a delightful demonstration of how much fun artists in many countries have had illustrating the Canon over the years, and in a wide variety of styles. The captions appear in both Japanese and English, and there's very little collateral text in Japanese only. The publisher is Kodansha (Kyoritsuikaikan 4-6-19, Kohinata, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo 112, Japan); the price is Y2,000, and I would guess that many Sherlockian book dealers already have shipments on the way for those who are willing to wait rather than order from Japan.
187. CBS news correspondent Bruce Morton came up with an ingenious idea for celebrating National Secretary's Week: interviewing a secretary "whose boss won't send flowers, because he never existed." Morton's interview from London, with Sherlock Holmes' secretary Tony Harries, aired on radio and television on Apr. 25, and was spotted by an alert Pj Doyle.
188. Does anyone have a complete set of videocassettes of the 1981 television series "Sherlock Holmes and Doctor Watson" (starring Geoffrey Whitehead and Donald Pickering)? And are there any partial holdings, which might allow a complete set of copies to be assembled? Please let me know what you have.
189. John B. Taylor recommends a new antiquarian book dealer in Britain: David Hadaway (The Old Gallery Bookshop, 125 High Street, Hythe, Kent CT21 5JJ, England) has recently retired from the Metropolitan Police Force, and is specializing in antiquarian and second-hand true crime (with some S'iana).
-
190. May 90 #4: At hand from David L. Hammer is a report from Country Life (Mar. 8, 1990) that the Georgian buildings that stand on Baker, Blandford, and George Streets may fall victim to a scheme for building a neo-Georgian block on the site. The owners applied for a demolition order in 1980 and were refused, but a new application has been filed. It is not clear from the article whether the buildings covered by the application are on the west side or the east side of Baker Street: the west side includes no. 31 (suggested by some as the real no. 221), and the east side includes no. 34 (suggested as the real empty house).
191. Anonymous mailings can present intriguing Sherlockian mysteries, the latest of which involves handsome circular brass pins, decorated with a silhouette of Sherlock Holmes and lettered BSI/ASH CLASS OF '90, received (with thanks to the generous and anonymous donor) by a least two Sherlockians, who would like to know who else might have received similar pins (and, of course, to know whom to thank directly for the nice gifts).
192. The predicted respite for Sherlockian philatelists (Apr 90 #3) turns out to be shorter than expected, since a bobcat (*Lynx rufus*) is shown on the $2.00 definitive to be issued in June. "It was just as well that his prairie training had given Jefferson Hope the ears of a lynx," the Canon reports, and biologists suggest that the lynx found in Utah and Nevada was more likely to be the *Lynx rufus* than the *Lynx canadensis* shown two years ago on a stamp issued by Canada (Feb 88 #2).
193. The Christopher Morley Centennial Celebration in Chicago on May 5 went very well, according to all reports, with a total attendance of 130 at the two events. The symposium at the Newberry Library included talks by Warren Scheideman ("Christopher Morley, Forgotten Man of American Letters"), Ely Liebow ("The Poetry of Christopher Morley"), Robert Mangler ("Christopher Morley and the BSI"), Thomas J. Joyce ("Christopher Morley, The Haunted Bookshopper"), and Allen Mackler ("Christopher Morley, Metrophile"), and the dinner at the Forum Hotel featured Anna Lou Ashby ("Christopher Morley: A Birthday Salute". Dr. Ashby is associate curator of printed books at the Pierpont Morgan Library in New York and has written a soon-to-be-published book on Morley's life and works.
194. A videocassette (VHS only) of highlights from the centennial celebration is available for $49.95 (they take plastic) from Viscom, 820 North Orleans, Chicago, IL 60610 (800-829-1260).
195. And the Fordham University Press has followed CHRISTOPHER MORLEY'S NEW YORK (Jun 89 #8) with CHRISTOPHER MORLEY'S PHILADELPHIA, edited by Ken Kalfus (329 pp., $19.95). The essays are, as should be expected, delightful (and there is a passing mention of Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes in the essay Morley called "Footnote on Philadelphia Cricket"). Fordham's next Morley collection (to be published in Sept.) will be thoroughly Sherlockian: THE STANDARD DOYLE COMPANY: CHRISTOPHER MORLEY ON SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited and with an introduction by Steven Rothman. The price will be $19.95, and they take plastic, and there's a $2.50 charge for shipping (Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14850).
-
196. May 90 #5: Helen Cushman is one of the growing number of philatelists seeking stamps that associated with the Canon, and her article "Stamps Illustrate Holmes Mysteries" appeared in Linn's Collector's Guide to Topicals, a supplement in the May 14, 1990, issue of Linns Stamp News (Box 29, Sidney, OH 45365). She also has a continuing series of articles on the subject in The Blotter, published quarterly by the American Topical Association's Law Enforcement Study Unit (study-unit membership unit costs $5.00 a year, and the contact is Steve O'Connor, Box 858, Vernon, NJ 07642).
197. And on to a report on the auction of Bliss Austin's collection, which was a fine one indeed. There were 37 bidders, and there were bids on all of the lots (one bidder submitted a "rescue bid" of $5.00 on every lot), and the total of individual high bids for all lots was $147,846.75 -- somewhat less than the $151,000.00 winning bid for the entire collection submitted by a consortium consisting of Daniel Posnansky, Glen S. Miranker, and Peter L. Stern. Some of the Austin material will be offered for resale, and anyone interested in individual items is invited to write to Daniel Posnansky (Box 768, Cambridge, MA 02238).
198. The highest bid for a single lot was $31,502 for lot 28 (the first edition of THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in dust jacket), followed by $16,000 for lot 58 (the first edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET from Ward, Lock & Co.), $10,151 for lot 1032 (Paget's artwork for "The Red-Headed League"), $7,006 for lot 1026 (the manuscript page from "The Hound of the Baskervilles"), $7,006 for lot 3 (the first and second issues of the first American edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with the second issue in jacket), $6,050 for lot 35 (the first American edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in jacket), $6,006 for lot 58 (another copy of the first edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET), and $5,000 for lot 23 (the first edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, signed by Conan Doyle).

199. There were three other bidders for the entire collection (the lowest bid was $60,000), and there were as many as nine bids were submitted on some lots. As might be expected, there was a wide range of bidding for many lots: not counting the $5.00 rescue bid for every lot, there were low bids of $41 for lot 28, $102 for lot 58, $21 for lot 1032, $150 for lot 1026, and $102 for lot 3. And it should be noted that submitting low bids is not necessarily a futile effort: there were only 516 lots on which there was a bid other than the $5.00 rescue bid.
200. Lot 1060 (the "large lot of leftovers") was the real sleeper, with bids ranging from $75 to $4,125. The lot was described by Lehigh's curator of special collections Philip Metzger as the "I can't stand it any more" lot (a quite understandable reaction, considering the amount of miscellaneous material and the lack of time in which to describe everything in detail), and it included original artwork by Frederic Dorr Steele (a draft sketch for an illustration for "The Hound of the Baskervilles") and his manuscript for "The Adventure of the Murdered Art Editor"), as well as Bliss Austin's correspondence with his fellow-collectors and friends.
201. Copies of the 44-page sale list and the list of high bids are available, from Philip A. Metzger, Linderman Library 30, Lehigh University, Bethlehem, PA 18015 ($5.00 postpaid).
-
202. May 90 #6: Unpublished authors who despair at receiving rejection slips and who are unwilling to pay for publication by a vanity press (such as Vantage Press, which has just been hit by a $3.5 million judgement in a class-action suit filed on behalf of more than 2,000 authors) might wish to take advantage of the services offered by the Brautigan Library, which has just opened in Burlington, Vt. According to Brad Miner (in the May 14 issue of the National Review), the Brautigan Library is named in honor of author Richard Brautigan, and has only one restriction: everything in the library must be unpublished. Authors can send their manuscripts (and a fee of $25) to the library, which will bind the work and provide comfortable seating to visiting readers.
203. The five-page manuscript for Conan Doyle's article "I Pledge My Honour That Spiritualism Is True", published in the Aug. 4, 1928, issue of the [London] Daily Express, is available for $6,500, from The Scriptorium (attn: Gordon Gushee), Box 1290 Beverly Hills, CA 90213).
204. Great Britain's post office has issued an imaginative booklet of stamps showing famous smiles. And one of those smiles is that of Stan Laurel, who appeared in Sherlockian costume in the film "The Sleuth" (1925), and with Oliver Hardy, both in deerstalkers, in "Do Detectives Think?" (1927) and "The Big Noise" (1944).
205. The 31st running of The Silver Blaze Purse at the Arlington International Racecourse will be held on July 22, and those planning a trip to Chicago can obtain more information from Robert W. Hahn, 2707 South 7th Street, Sheboygan, WI 53081.
206. Carnegie Hall will celebrate its centennial, from Aug. 1990 to May 1991, and has asked for assistance in locating items that might be borrowed for its centennial exhibitions. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle lectured at Carnegie Hall in Apr. 1922 and Apr. 1923 (and discusses his lecture series in OUR AMERICAN ADVENTURE and OUR SECOND AMERICAN ADVENTURE). Gino Francesconi (Corporation Archives, The Carnegie Hall, 881 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10019) would like to hear from collectors who have material relating to those lectures at Carnegie Hall.
207. SHERLOCK HOLMES IN BIRMINGHAM is a carefully-researched 20-page monograph by Paul Lester on the city's connections with Conan Doyle (who lived there) and with the Canon (two of the stories involve Birmingham), available from Protean Pubs, Flat 4, 34 Summerfield Crescent, Edgbaston, Birmingham B16 0ER, England (£2.50 postpaid).
208. M. J. Troy has a new publisher, and a new title in his amusing series about Insp. Sholto Lestrade. LESTRADE AND THE GUARDIAN ANGEL (London: Constable, 1990; 235 pp., £11.95) offers a thoroughly complicated mystery, some rather nasty murders, a red herring or three, bawdy humor, an encounter with Dr. Watson, and (as usual) a competent-though-clumsy Lestrade.
209. A new sales list at hand from Classic Specialties (Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219), offering Sherlockian prints, paintings, pillows, tapestries, lamps, bellpulls, placemats, and other collectibles.
-
210. May 90 #7: On the assumption that everyone saw "Hands of a Murderer" on May 16 (or on a time-shift video recording), there's no need for a review, but it is of interest that Newgate Prison was actually New College at Oxford. Roger Mortimore, editor of The Baker Street News (the newsletter published by The Oxford University Sherlock Holmes Society), also reports that Oxford's Brasenose College was seen in the film "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985). "Hands of a Murderer" did reasonably well in the Nielsen ratings, averaging a 9.5 rating and a 15 share (that means that 9.5 percent of the sets in the nation's 92,100,000 "television households" were tuned to the show, and 15 percent of the sets that were in use were tuned to the show). The Fox network premiere of the film "Wall Street" broadcast at the same time averaged 4.5/8. The season finale of "Wonder Years" on ABC earlier in the evening averaged 14.1/25, and the season finale of "Jake and the Fatman" (also earlier in the evening on CBS) averaged 9.2/16. The most popular show that week was "America's Funniest Home Videos" (25.2/40), followed by "Cheers" (18.9/31) and "Roseanne" (17.7/28).
211. "Hands of a Murderer" was co-produced by Yorkshire Television, so British viewers will surely see it soon. However the British have (and we haven't) seen a seven-part children's series broadcast by BBC-1 on Saturday mornings beginning on Mar. 3. "Tales of the Rodent Sherlock Holmes" featured Roland Rat Superstar as Sherlock Holmes and Kevin the Gerbil as Dr. Watson, who were joined in the first episode ("Wilson the Notorious Canary Trainer") by special guest Barbara Windsor (as Irene Wilson, "a glamorous star of the musical theatre who harbours a secret desire to be a serious dramatic actress"). According to a press release at hand from Richard Wein, series producer Steve Haggard said that "Roland Rat is the latest in a long line of distinguished actors to pull on the cloak and deerstalker of the master detective," adding that "he's probably the first to wear sunglasses."
212. Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets and the lovely world of Sesame Street, died on May 16. His first Muppets, named Wilkins and Wontkins, appeared in Washington in 1957, in commercials made for Wilkins Coffee. Sherlock Hemlock first appeared on Sesame Street on Mar. 17, 1971, and although he was only an occasional visitor rather than a featured player, he was one of Henson's favorites. "I'd use him more," Henson once said, "but our researchers say he's not as educational as some of the others."
213. The Granada Studios Tour in Manchester had almost a million visitors in its first 18 months, according to the spring 1990 issue of Anglofile, which also has an interview with Louise Jameson (who accompanied Doctor Who in "The Talons of Weng-Chiang"). Anglofile costs $12 a year for six issues, from the Goody Press, Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033.
214. Jay Pearsall, the new owner of Murder Ink, has issued his first mail-order catalog, with an interview with mystery-author Sue Grafton. The shop has new hours (11:00 to 7:00 Friday through Wednesday, and 11:00 to 10:00 on Thursday), and its address is 271 West 87th Street, New York, NY 10024.
-
215. May 90 #8: "Hands of a Murderer" received mixed reviews in the press, with the best marks going to Anthony Andrews for his bravura version of Professor Moriarty. Almost every reviewer seen so far noted that Edward Woodward was far weaker as Holmes than Jeremy Brett, who now seems to have replaced Basil Rathbone as the official owner of the role. One review said that Jeremy Brett is "also likely to play the master detective on Broadway this year in a revival of Williams Gillette's hoary, 19th-century 'Sherlock Holmes' drama, which Brett starred in last year on the London stage," but that's just a confused reference to the continuing rumors about a tour of "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes".

216. And there appears to be no truth to another rumor: that the program at "The Bimetallic Colloquium" in Montreal on June 15-17 will be conducted entirely in French.
217. Andrew Jay Peck reports an advertisement in Billboard, announcing plans by Orion Home Video for a June 28 release of "Without a Clue" (1988) on video cassette at $19.95 (a year ago the price on first release was $89.95).
218. It would appear that some S'ians have encountered difficulties in viewing material in the special collections at the N.Y. Public Library. Bernard McTigue (Curator of the Arends Collection and Keeper of Rare Books) has written to Tina Schweitzer explaining that those who wish only to see (but not use) material in the NYPL collections should write to the Office of Special Collections (at Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street, New York, NY 10018) to make an appointment with the appropriate curator. Researchers can gain access to the collections by obtaining a user's card from the same office.
219. The first flier for Bouchercon XXII has arrived: next year's annual Anthony Boucher Memorial Mystery Convention will be at the Pasadena Hilton on Oct. 11-13, 1991, with Edward D. Hoch as the guest of honor and William Link as the visual-media guest of honor. Bouchercon XXII will be sponsored by the Southern California Institute for Fan Interests, and registration now costs $35.00 (an increase is due in December). Checks payable to SCIFI, and sent to Bouchercon XXII, 2334 Beach Avenue, Venice, CA 90291.
220. "Elementary, My Dear Designers" was the headline on an article in Newsday (Apr. 3), also at hand from Richard Wein. The report on Fashion Week in New York highlighted the new collection from Rebecca Moses, who "found her inspiration in Sherlock Holmes." As described by fashion reporter Frank DeCaro, this meant "tweedy mid-thigh-length capelet coats, magnifying-glass pendant necklaces, and a model with a saggy-baggy basset hound in tow."
221. An illustrated flier at hand from Holmes By Hall (Box 221-B, Flushing, MI 48433), offering their porcelain Master Sleuth Teapot ($79.95) and Holmes Beverage Mug ($17.95).
222. Attenta: the announcement for the next meeting of The Red Circle will be mailed with next month's newsletter. The venue has not yet been confirmed, but you can reserve Tuesday, July 17, for an evening with Sherlock Holmes' secretary, Tony Harries.
-
223. Jun 90 #1: The Easton Press (47 Richards Avenue, Norwalk, CT 06857) is reprinting its deluxe three-volume COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES 100TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION at $39.45 postpaid per volume (plastic accepted). Originally issued in 1987 and reprinted in 1988 (at $37.50 postpaid per volume), the set is a reissue of the Heritage Press edition, leather-bound, with a different full-color frontispiece by Frederic Dorr Steele in each volume. It's a handsome set, with the Canonical text edited by Edgar W. Smith for the Limited Editions Club, and with fine illustrations by Paget, Steele, and others.
224. And, since I've already had queries about whether the set is worth getting, a bit of history: the basic text was edited by Edgar W. Smith, who also selected the illustrations, for the Limited Edition Club and published in a nine-volume set in the early 1950s, with a series of fine introductions by notable Sherlockians, and some illustrations done by Steele as publicity for the film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939). Later in the 1950s (and again in the 1970s) the Heritage Press issued a three-volume set that included only Vincent Starrett's introduction and Smith's epilogue, and that's what the Easton Press has reprinted, adding the frontispieces and the leather binding. If you have one of the earlier versions, you might not think the new frontispieces and the leather binding worth the price. And the Easton Press set isn't an investment, since thousands of copies have already been sold, with more to come.
225. Celebrations of Christopher Morley's centennial continue: an exhibition of his letters and manuscripts has opened at the Rosenbach Museum and Library in Philadelphia (through Oct. 7).
226. The late Nathan L. Bengis was an enthusiastic Sherlockian, and a collector both energetic and imaginative: of all the intriguing areas in which he specialized, perhaps the most interesting was his search for variants of "The Sign of the Four". Eventually he assembled a collection of some 250 variants, and when he sold his collection in 1971, most of those variants went to the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library, where they have been waiting patiently for a researcher who could use them. Now a researcher has done just that, and the results are fascinating:
227. SHERLOCK HOLMES AMONG THE PIRATES: COPYRIGHT AND CONAN DOYLE IN AMERICA 1890-1930, by Donald A. Redmond (Westport: Greenwood Press, 1990; 304 pp., $39.95), offers a careful examination of those variants, and the reasons why there are so many of them. The principal reason is that "The Sign of the Four" was not protected by copyright in the United States and thus could be reprinted by anyone. Those reprints were produced quickly and cheaply, with little attention to fidelity or accuracy, and the corrupt texts have allowed Redmond to establish careful pedigrees, in some cases showing several generations of piracy. Redmond also provides a vivid description of one of the most cut-throat eras in the history of American publishing, and a careful explanation of how books were produced from hand-set type and stereotype plates (which were often used by a succession of publishers), as well as a detailed bibliography that will be of great assistance to collectors wondering who did what, and when, and to whom. The publisher takes plastic (800-225-5800 extension 700).
-
228. Jun 90 #2: Best-laid-plans department: the local authorities in Halstead (in Essex), noting that they had a road called Holmes Road, proposed to name a nearby road Sherlock Close, but encountered strong opposition from residents of Halstead, who pointed out that Holmes Road had been named to honor a well-known local family, rather than the detective. And the nearby road has been named instead Juniper Close, marking the work done for the town by "the well-known and much-respected Charlie Juniper," according to a report in the Halstead Gazette (Apr. 20).
229. The 39th running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont Park in New York will be held on Sept. 22, and details are available from Stephen L. Stix, R.R. 1, Box 452, Markleville, IN 46056.
230. They're authentic, though not quite contemporary with Sherlock Holmes: the old red telephone boxes, designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott and used in Britain for more than 50 years. Now being phased out, they are available from Pilot Developments Ltd. (Fyfield Hall, Fyfield, Ongar, Essex CM5 0SA, England) at prices that start at £300 (in off-street condition). A flier at hand from Martha Irish suggests alternative uses: bookcase, aquarium, cocktail cabinet, shower room, or even an in-house phone box.
231. Art Lund, a popular baritone in the big-band era whose recording of "Blue Skies" was a long-lasting hit in the 1940s, died on May 31. His singing career began in the late 1930s with the Benny Goodman band, and he later acted on television and in films, including "The Molly Maguires" (1970), in which he played Frazier, leader of the Mollies.
232. And here's an intriguing Sherlockian passage in Nicolas Freeling's DRESSING OF DIAMOND (Harper & Row 1974/Penguin Books 1976), one of a series of fine suspense novels about the French policeman Henri Castang. The conversation is between Castang and a judge:
-
233. Jun 90 #3: THE VAMPIRE FILES #1: BLOODLIST (New York: Ace Books, 1990; 200 pp., $3.50) and THE VAMPIRE FILES #2: LIFE BLOOD (New York: Ace Books, 1990; 202 pp., $3.50) are the first two in a series of horror novels by P. N. Elrod about Jack Fleming (formerly a reporter and now a vampire) and his private-detective friend Charles Escott (whose name is not the only S'ian echo in the series, which is set in gangland Chicago in the 1930s).

234. There is some nice inside humor (a reference to the film "Romeo and Juliet" allows Escott to say that "the fellow playing Tybalt seemed to know what he was doing"), and P. N. Elrod is better known in S'ian circles as Patti Nead Elrod (creator of the "Baker Street Irregulars"). The third book in the series (due in Oct.) will be THE VAMPIRE FILES #3: BLOODCIRCLE.
235. At hand from Mark Erdrich is a flier from What on Earth (25801 Richmond Road, Cleveland, OH 44146), offering a "Sherlock Holmes Pub" T-shirt ($12.95) and sweatshirt ($22.95). Shipping costs $2.00, and they take plastic.
236. Victoria Robinson has forwarded a report that William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" is being performed this summer at the Weston Playhouse in Weston, Vt., June 28-30, July 1, and 3-8 (plus matinees on July 1 and 8). Christopher Lloyd (of "Back to the Future") stars, and the box-office phone number is 802-824-5288.
237. Rex Harrison died on June 2. Best known for his performance in the role of Henry Higgins in "My Fair Lady" (he won a Tony for the Broadway show, and an Oscar for the movie version), he began his career with the Liverpool Repertory Company in 1924, playing a young father who had a single line in the play (and, according to the story Harrison often told, he got it wrong: "It's a doctor," he said, "Fetch a baby.").
238. Plan ahead: Fred Fondren, proprietor of the Prometheus Theatre in New York, reports that his new play "Sherlock Holmes: The Eclipse Conspiracy" will open in Oct. 1990, with performances Wednesday through Saturday at 8:00 pm. The theater's address is 239 East 5th Street, New York, NY 10003, and the telephone number is 212-477-8689. And it is quite likely that the run will extend through the birthday festivities, including the evening following the BSI cocktail party on Jan. 12.
239. Ken Greenwald (of 221A Baker Street Associates) reports plans by Simon & Schuster to issue a Christmas package with the first four cassettes of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows.
240. Robert S. Gellerstedt, Jr. (1035 Wedgewood Drive, Fayetteville, GA 30214) would like to hear from the owner of Edgar W. Smith's annotated copy of BAKER STREET AND BEYOND (1940). Some of the annotations were trimmed in the BSI reprint (1957). Bob is trying to recapture the complete annotation found on page 40 of the reprint.
241. Returning to Patti Nead Elrod's inside humor, the actor who "seemed to know what he was doing" in "Romeo and Juliet" (1936) was Basil Rathbone.
-
242. Jun 90 #4: The Green County WanderFreunde (an affiliate of the American Volkssporting Association) will hold its second "Holmes Peak Volksmarch" on Nov. 18. As in 1988, the Volksmarch will be a ten-kilometer hike around and up Holmes Peak. A special medallion (this time showing Dr. Watson) will be awarded to those (and only to those) who complete the hike. Anyone interested in participating in the Volksmarch should contact Dick Warner (Head Sherpa of the Holmes Peak Preservation Society), at 3168 South Rockford Drive, Tulsa, OK 74105.
243. Jack Gilford died on June 4. His acting career started in 1934 at an amateur night in the Bronx, and he went on to perform in vaudeville and nightclubs, and in dramatic and comic roles on stage and in television and films, including "They Might Be Giants" (1971), in which he played Wilbur Peabody, the librarian who longed to be the Scarlet Pimpernel.
244. One of the more interesting reviews (because the reviewer is a good writer) of "Hands of a Murderer" was Marvin Kitman's critique in Newsday (May 15), in which he noted in passing an earlier prediction that "the next L.A.-made Conan Doyle adventure would feature Burt Reynolds as Sherlock, Dom DeLuise as Watson, Loni Anderson as Mrs. 'Udson, and Bert Convy as Moriarty." The Kitman piece was reprinted in The Third Pillar, a newsletter for "thespian pursuits in Sherlockiana," published quarterly ($3.00) by Paul Singleton, 523 Central Avenue, Bethpage, NY 11714.
245. Steve Landes, editor of The Arcadia Mixture's newsletter The Fluffy Ash, reports that Russell Brown, author of SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MYSTERIOUS FRIEND OF OSCAR WILDE, recently spoke at the University of Michigan during Lesbian and Gay Men's Awareness Week (discussing "Sherlock Holmes and the Victorian Woman"). Brown's soon-to-be-published book THE CAPTIVE WOMAN will be the first in a series of "Adventures of Mrs. Hudson" (as told to the son of Harold Stackhurst).
246. Carol Logan (Latimer's, 706 Euclid Avenue, Toronto, Ont. M6G 2T9, Canada) offers a new illustrated sales list: Sherlockian sweatshirts, T-shirts, mugs, postcards, and Christmas cards.
247. The "Sherlock Holmes" exhibit mounted by S'ian philatelist Bruce Holmes at the Post Office House in Montreal is now open (and it will run through the end of August), and a special (and official) postmark with a silhouette of Sherlock Holmes is available on mail posted at the exhibit. If you would like to have one of the postmarked covers, send $1.00 in U.S. currency to Bruce Holmes, 64 Maple Circle, Dollard des Ormeaux, Quebec N9B 1E7, Canada.
248. There was considerable publicity in the press this month about a new book about the Piltdown hoax. Photographs of ACD were prominently displayed in many of the stories, but this time he's not the alleged culprit. Frank Spencer, a professor of anthropology at Queens College in New York, has reviewed all the evidence and investigated all the suspects, and accuses Sir Arthur Keith, a well-respected anatomist who was conservator of the Hunterian Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, as the mastermind who prepared the forged fossils that Charles Dawson planted in the quarry at Piltdown. Spencer's book (PILTDOWN: A SCIENTIFIC FORGERY) is due this fall from the Oxford University Press.
-
249. Jun 90 #5: Miaowara Tomokato, who first appeared in THE ADVENTURES OF SAMURAI CAT (1984) and then in MORE ADVENTURES OF SAMURAI CAT (1986), has returned in SAMURAI CAT IN THE REAL WORLD, by Mark E. Rogers (New York: Tor/Tom Dougherty, 1989; 128 pp., $12.95). There is nothing Sherlockian about the series (so far, at any rate), but the concept and execution (both artwork and text) are great fun. Otherwise, the series is extremely hard to describe, but it's worth noting that Rogers apparently has the only known copy of Tomokato's official biography (CAT OUT OF HELL, written by William Shirer and A.J.P. Godzilla).
250. An advertisement in this year's Mystery Writers Annual (the program book for the MWA annual dinner) suggests that visitors to Italy might wish to add the country's first mystery-specialist bookshop to their itineraries. La Sherlockiana's address is Piazza S. Nazaro 3, 20122 Milano, Italy, and the telephone number is 02-8059248.
251. Pj Doyle reports a British reprint in paper covers (from Cassell) of Evelyn Waugh's RONALD KNOX (D2636b). It's a fine biography of the man who began our grand game, and available for $3.98 (plus $4.00 shipping per order) from Daedalus Books, Box 9132, Hyattsville, MD 20781 (800-395-2665); they take plastic.
252. Some recent auction prices, from Sotheby's sale this spring of the library of H. Bradley Martin are of interest: the first edition, first issue (from Spencer Blackett) of THE SIGN OF FOUR (estimated at $1,000-1,500) brought $3,300; the first edition of THE WHITE COMPANY (estimated at $600-900) went for $4,400; and one lot with a pair of first editions of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES and THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (estimated at $400-600) sold for $3,300. The high prices are likely due at least in part to the provenance (Martin was a noted collector of "important English literature") but they also demonstrate the growing interest in Conan Doyle's works.
253. Otto Penzler, according to a report in the San Francisco Examiner, at hand from Ted Schulz, has sold his Mysterious Press imprint to Warner Books, the company that has distributed the Mysterious Press titles in the past. Otto will remain in charge of the imprint, according to Warner.

254. Travelers to the northwest might wish to attend (or participate in) "The Second Annual International Holmesian Games" in Seattle on Sept. 15. The event is sponsored by The Sound of the Baskervilles, and will open with the traditional re-enactment of Hugo Baskerville's wild midnight pursuit: "At the cry, 'The Dame's Afoot,' Hugo and his evil pack will chase a designated chaste yeoman's daughter across the moor." Contact: Frank Darlington, 141 N.W. 181st Street, Seattle WA 98177.
255. Tony Harries (Sherlock Holmes' secretary) will be speaking to quite a few societies during his tour of the U.S. His (still tentative) schedule is: Scarsdale (July 13), New York (July 14), Washington (July 17), Cleveland (July 19), Chicago (July 21-22), Nashville (July 23), Memphis (July 25), St. Louis (July 28-29), Denver (Aug. 2), Seattle (Aug. 3), San Francisco (Aug. 11), San Diego (Aug. 16), Los Angeles (Aug. 19), and Toronto (Aug. 21). Vacationing S'ians who would like more details can let me know, and I'll supply contact names and addresses for the various scion dinners.
-
256. Jun 90 #6: Sotheby's paid proper attention to Bliss Austin's material in the catalog for their sale on June 15, inviting bidders to refer to the sale as "6037 Valley" (the description of the manuscript of "The Valley of Fear" filled most of four pages, plus a color frontispiece showing the beginning of the manuscript), and displaying a color photograph of Beeton's Christmas Annual on the catalog's back cover. The Beeton's (with a catalog estimate of $8,000-12,000) brought $52,000. The manuscript (estimated at $80,000-120,000) went for $260,000. Andrew Jay Peck was at the auction, and reports that the winning bids were made by telephone, and were from two different bidders. The prices realized do not include the 10% buyer's premium or the 8.25% New York sales tax, and the fortunate new owners have not yet been identified.
257. Some readers have asked why prices actually realized are so much higher than the estimates in auction catalogs. Well, sometimes they aren't, as can be seen from newspaper articles on art auctions which report that a particular item failed to meet its estimate. And Sotheby's catalog states that "estimates are guides for prospective bidders and should not be relied upon as representations or predictions of actual selling prices," and that "estimates are determined well in advance of the sale date and are subject to revision." So: start with a basic assumption that it is better to have an advance catalog estimate that is too low, rather than one that is too high (because a sale in which prices fail to meet estimates tends to be regarded as "unsuccessful"). Then: assume that estimates can be, and often are, revised (the catalog also invites bidders to "contact the expert in charge of the sale if you have any questions"). Heavy interest in an item often allows the expert in charge to increase the advance estimate (and serious bidders do tend to consult experts), but the revised estimates are almost never reported. And: competition between eager collectors often drives prices far above advance, or even revised, estimates. It is also important to remember that the goal of the auction house is to achieve the highest possible prices (because the auction house operates on commission), not to make exact predictions, well in advance, of prices realized.
258. At hand from Andrew Jay Peck is a report on plans to expand the Granada Studios Tour in Manchester. Construction of the first phase will begin this summer, and will include an office development and a 136-room hotel (to be called The Albert and Victoria), which will feature a Brideshead Suite, a Cafe Maigret, and a Sherlock Holmes Bar. The tour area (now 9 acres) will eventually cover 25 acres, and there are hopes of attracting three to five million people a year.
259. Roger Johnson reports that the Talking Tape Company (Unit 11, Shaftesbury Industrial Centre, The Runnings, Cheltenham GL51 9NH, England) plans to issue three two-cassette packages this fall, each with four of the stories as adapted by Grant Eustace for British Airways (which used one story a month as in-flight entertainment starting in 1987), with Roy Marsden as Holmes and John Moffatt as Watson. Three more packages will be issued in 1991. Roger also reports news from Bert Coules: BBC Radio 4 is planning a weekly series next year, with Clive Merrison as Holmes and Michael Williams as Watson, broadcasting new adaptations of the short stories as 45-minute programs. Merrison and Williams played the same roles in the BBC Radio 4 broadcasts of "A Study in Scarlet" and "The Sign of the Four" in 1989.
-
260. Jun 90 #7: Bookseller Mark Hime, proprietor of Bibliotopus (Idyllwild, CA 92349) died earlier this year, after preparing a catalog that included the first issue of the first book edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET (at $50,000), and a copy of the limited and signed edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES published by Doubleday in 1953 (at $4,000). His last catalog arrived with a delightful tribute to Hime's ardent and irreverent approach to the world of books: Biblioblivion, or The Ghost of the Octopus ("an offering of 36 literary relics from the private collection of our late founder"), a list that ranges from "The Bow of Ulysses" to "James Bond's License to Kill" and includes "The Brain of Sherlock Holmes" (human brain, much larger on the left side, preserved in formaldehyde, with a note of provenance from John Watson).
261. The British magazine New Scientist often publishes Sherlockian items, the most recent being John F. Bowers' article on "James Moriarty: A Forgotten Mathematician" (Dec. 23-30, 1989). A photocopy is available (please send a #10 SASE) from Mark W. Erdrich (49 Kings Lacey Way, Fairport, NY 14450).
262. Gabriel Pustel (Box 1345, Jackson, NJ 08527) is a S'ian philatelist who specializes in meter cancels, and he would appreciate hearing from anyone who knows of other Sherlockian meter cancels.
263. Further to the report (Apr 90 #6) on the opening of the Sherlock Holmes Museum at 239 Baker Street, Jean Upton visited the museum this month, and writes that it consists of two rooms with flea-market-quality Victorian furniture, and completely lacks any of Holmes eccentricities such as the jack-knife in the mantelpiece. Proprietor John Aidiniantz charged £3 for a tour (though the museum wasn't technically complete or open for business), but soon intends to start charging £5 for "the same shabby tour." Jean also says that Aidiniantz's lack of knowledge concerning Holmes is immense (he was not aware of the BSJ), and that he is absolutely obsessed with his goal of having the street numbering changed so that he will officially be 221b Baker Street. Jean suggests that Sherlockian visitors to London will do better with a visit to The Sherlock Holmes pub, where "at least the exhibit is free, albeit a bit dusty."
264. And further to the report (Apr 90 #3) on "The 7% Convention: A Sherlock Holmes Event" to be held at the Shepperton Moat House Hotel on Aug. 25-26, Jean has sent a flier with details on how to be a non-attending convention supporter. The cost is $14.00 (surface) or $18.00 (airmail), which gets you a copy of the program book, which will have a forward by Peter Cushing, an original article by Richard Lancelyn Green, an article on Arthur Wontner by David Stuart Davies, and other material of interest. The price includes a contribution to The Samaritans (the charity the convention is intended to benefit), and checks (payable to The 7% Convention) should be sent to Jane Sayle, 6 Bramham Moor, Hillhead, Fareham, Hampshire PO14 3RU, England.
-
265. Jun 90 #8: Ben Wood has also been to London, visiting Catherine Cooke at the Marylebone Library and Tony Harries at Abbey National, and reports mildly that the Sherlock Holmes Museum at 239 Baker Street "is well worth passing up." The latest issue of Ben's "Bohemian Scandal Sheet" has a reprint of a Reuters dispatch that mentions that John Aidiniantz will be offering to sell £1,000 shares in his Sherlock Holmes International Society to "investors and Holmes buffs."
266. Ben also offers a new Sherlockian magnet ("no self-respecting Sherlockian kitchen fridge should be without it") in orange-and-black plastic, with a nice design and lettering, for cost of $3.50 postpaid ($5.00 foreign). His address is Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
267. SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE GREAT DETECTIVE IN PAPERBACK is a 151-page detailed checklist compiled by Gary Lovisi, concentrating on post-1930 material but also including some earlier issues, with many illustrations of cover art, and an introduction by John Bennett Shaw. The coverage includes

- anything published in paper covers, ranging from the Canon through pastiches and parodies to monographs, and the book offers a fine guide to an interesting area for collectors. The book is available from Gryphon Books, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228; $19.95 (cloth) or $9.95 (paper).
268. Reported: NEWTON'S MADNESS: FURTHER TALES OF CLINICAL NEUROLOGY, by Harold L. Klawans (Harper & Row, $17.95), with an essay speculating on the cocaine habits of Sigmund Freud and Sherlock Holmes.
269. Paul Giovanni died on June 17. He played The Boy in the original New York cast of "The Fantasticks", wrote music for theater and films, and wrote mystery plays and a musical. One of those mystery plays was "The Crucifer of Blood", which was produced on Broadway in 1978 and won Giovanni a Tony Award nomination as best director. He was also nominated as best director by the Los Angeles Drama Critics when the play was produced there in 1980, with Charlton Heston as Holmes and Jeremy Brett as Watson.
270. Welcome television news: Sherlock Holmes will return to "Mystery!" on July 12, when PBS-TV begins a two-part repeat of "The Sign of Four". And "The Devil's Foot" will air on July 26, presumably to be followed by more repeat programs in August.
271. I've heard that Sherlock Holmes' secretary Tony Harries was interviewed on "Good Morning America" on ABC-TV on June 21, 1990. Did anyone manage to tape the interview off-the-air? And Sherlock Holmes' *other* secretary, Mrs. Riley at 239 Baker Street, was interviewed on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. radio series "As It Happens" (carried by American Public Radio) on June 20. Does anyone have a tape?
272. Al and Julie Rosenblatt's splendid 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987, handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with many illustrations, annotations and explanations, is still available for $16.00 postpaid (checks to Peter E. Blau, at the address below).

---

Jul 90 #1:

273. Adela Holzer, who was one of the producers of the New York production of the Royal Shakespeare Company's revival of William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" in 1974, has been sentenced to four to eight years in state prison after pleading guilty to fraud. In 1979 she was convicted of swindling a group of investors out of $2.3 million, and served two years in women's state prison at Bedford Hills, N.Y. A new indictment (Apr 89 #3) charged her with promising investors in non-existent oil and gas properties that their money was guaranteed by the banker David Rockefeller (described by Holzer as her "secret husband" in a similarly non-existent marriage.)
274. Charlotte Erickson reports that the next mini-series from Eternity Comics will be a reprint of "Sherlock Holmes, Jr." (probably D5873b).
275. The late Mark Hime isn't. Late, that is. His last catalog (Jun 90 #7) turns out to be his latest catalog, and he is now reported to be enjoying reading the condolence letters that are arriving in Idyllwild, as well as hoping his customers had as much fun reading the description of his private collection as he did writing it.
276. Sir James Carreras died on June 9. He was head of Hammer films when the studio launched its series of horror films with "The Curse of Frankenstein" (1956), giving new impetus to the careers of Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee, both of whom were featured in Hammer's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959). His main concern was that his films should be made quickly and cheaply (once asked to justify a nude scene, Carreras said it saved money on towels), and the popularity of his films, at home and overseas, earned Hammer the distinction of being Britain's most consistently profitable film company.
277. More than 70 people attended "The Bimetallic Colloquium" in Montreal on June 15-17, with the farthest-flung travelers being Barbara Alder (from British Columbia) and Roger Johnson (from England), and a contingent from south of the border. Copies of the colloquium packet (with the program, attendee list, and a few souvenirs) are available for $5.00 postpaid from Wilfrid M. de Freitas (Box 1611, Champlain, NY 12919).
278. Many people dream of finding Captain Kidd's long-lost treasure trove, and S'ians may more reasonably imagine finding a copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual in a neglected attic, but surely the ultimate goal would be a new Sherlock Holmes story: the legendary 61st adventure. "The Case of the Man Who Was Wanted" was, for a time, exactly that sort of phenomenon, and even though the story was eventually proved to be a pastiche, the history of its discovery and publication, and the long and bitter arguments that raged after its publication, is a fascinating one. Jon L. Lellenberg's NOVA 57 MINOR, just published by Gaslight, offers a reprint of Arthur Whitaker's story, and a greatly expanded version of the limited-edition monograph that issued from the Dispatch-Box Press in 1978. Lellenberg draws extensively upon hitherto-unpublished correspondence, and tells a tale that readers will find much more interesting than the pastiche itself. The publisher's address is 626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404, and the price is $17.20 postpaid (plastic accepted).
-
279. Jul 90 #2: The Royal Northumberland Fusiliers' Museum at Alnwick Castle, expanded and refurbished for the summer season, reopened at the end of April with a celebration that included a mock duel between Holmes and Moriarty staged on the castle battlements, by way of commemorating Dr. Watson's service with the regiment in Afghanistan. An article by Tony Jones in the Newcastle Journal (Apr. 13) noted that despite the regiment's claims regarding Watson, Geoffrey Stavert's research indicates that Watson did not actually campaign with the Fifth.
280. Also in the news from Britain: plans are afoot for a statue of Sherlock Holmes in Baker Street. A six-foot high bronze statue, to be designed by sculptor Vincent Butler, will cost £25,000 and the Abbey National Building Society has already made a large donation to the special Sherlock Holmes Statue Fund, according to an article in the East Anglian Daily Times (May 12). Work is also proceeding on the statue of Sherlock Holmes, designed by Gerald Laing, to be erected next in summer in Edinburgh, on Picardy Place, where Conan Doyle was born in 1859. An article in the Edinburgh Evening News (May 22), reports that the Prince of Wales has been invited to perform the unveiling ceremony, and Cunningham and Co. of Edinburgh, Scotland's oldest hatters, are producing a limited edition of 100 deerstalkers, to retail at £29.95 (including a 10% donation to the £45,000 appeal fund).
281. Work continues on the new Granada series, with location filming in Chester for "Thor Bridge" and reports of the theft of Sherlock Holmes' pipe from the mantelpiece of the Granada's Manchester set for the sitting room. The cherrywood churchwarden "went missing" earlier this year, when the set was open to tour parties, but an American pipemaker has donated a replacement.
282. And the Carlton Club, mentioned in two Canonical stories (Gree and Illu), made headline news when the Carlton was bombed on June 25. There were no fatalities, although the explosion could be heard in Parliament, about a mile away, and IRA terrorists were blamed. The club was founded in 1832 by stalwart Tories, and named for Carlton House, the Prince Regent's home, on the site of which the original clubhouse was built. That building was destroyed by German bombs in 1940, and the club found a new home in St. James' Street, where it still serves as the unofficial headquarters of the Conservative Party.
283. Luci Zahray (685 Marylane Drive, Holland, MI 49423) would like to hear from others who are interested in Sherlockian children's literature. Luci is also a needlework enthusiast, and will be happy to exchange patterns.
284. Videotaper alert: Rosemary Michaud reports that Arts & Entertainment cable will broadcast Laurence Olivier's "The Merchant of Venice" during August. Jeremy Brett plays Bassanio in the film.

285. Helen Hare Cain died on June 20. She knew Christopher Morley well, and assisted him with his edition of BARTLETT'S FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS, and in 1949 she became the "Betsy Ross" of the BSI, when Morley praised her as "the most expert and subtle seamstress known" and asked her to create the purple, blue, and mouse necktie that he wore proudly at the 1950 annual dinner. Steve Rothman's article in the March 1987 issue of the BSI tells the story in considerable and amusing detail.
-
286. Jul 90 #3: Dercum Audio (910 Waltz Road, West Chester, PA 19380) continues to expand its list of unabridged books on audio cassettes, and their new catalog includes three sets from the Canon, all read by William Barker: A STUDY IN SCARLET on four cassettes at $19.95; SHERLOCK HOLMES (SCAN, REDH, IDEN, and MUSG) on two cassettes at $14.95; and THE BLUE CARBUNCLE AND OTHER STORIES (BLUE, NOBL, COPP) on two cassettes at $14.95. Also: Maurice Leblanc's IN PURSUIT OF ARSENE LUPIN (with "Sherlock Holmes Arrives Too Late"), read by David Warner on two cassettes at $14.95; and Poul Anderson's THE QUEEN OF AIR AND DARKNESS (D4825b), read by Tom Teti on two cassettes at $14.95. These prices include paperback boxes, but $5.00 more per set gets you molded-vinyl library boxes.
287. Hugh Harrington reports a new restaurant at 2677 Gilchrist Road in Akron, Ohio, so far with only a minimum of Sherlockian decor, but with high hopes on the part of the owners.
288. Irving Wallace died on June 29. A best-selling author (according to one estimate, his 33 books of fiction and non-fiction have sold more than 194 million copies), his article "The Incredible Dr. Bell" (first published in the Saturday Review of Literature in 1948), was revised and reprinted in his first book, THE FABULOUS ORIGINALS in 1955, and again in THE SUNDAY GENTLEMAN in 1965 with an afterword telling about his battle with Adrian (who denied that there was any connection between Dr. Joseph Bell and Sherlock Holmes). Wallace was also a collector, owning a miniature of the 221B sitting room created by John and Ellen Blauer, and a folding desk that once belonged to Conan Doyle, purchased at a London auction along with one of Conan Doyle's pipes.
289. Department of detailed non-explanations: a package of plastic sock locks carries the announcement, "This and all Helping Hand products are made to our rigid specifications in the USA, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Korea, Spain, or wherever in the World lies the best consumer value."
290. A usually reliable source, quoting his own usually reliable source, reports that Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee are now on location in Zimbabwe, at work on the four-hour television mini-series "Sherlock Holmes: The Incident at Victoria" (Mar 90 #6).
291. Jerry Margolin notes that in the film "The Man of a Thousand Faces" (1957), Jimmy Cagney (as Lon Chaney, Sr.) displays a scrapbook with a page showing a sketch of him as Sherlock Holmes. Does anyone know of Lon Chaney, Sr., ever appearing on stage or screen as Sherlock Holmes?
292. Betty Pierce has forwarded a newspaper report of another famous Moriarty: George Andrews Moriarty, Jr. (1883-1968), who was recently elected to the National Genealogy Hall of Fame. He was a Harvard graduate, a diplomat, and a lawyer, and a founder and first president of the Descendants of the Illegitimate Sons and Daughters of the Kings of England.
293. Department of further explanations: sock locks are little plastic thing-amabobs that keep pairs of socks together in the washer, dryer, and drawer.
-
294. Jul 90 #4: There is a reward for contributors to the Dr. John H. Watson Fund, which offers financial assistance to S'ians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the birthday festivities. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the fund (which is self-liquidating each year) and welcomes contributions, which should be made by check payable to John H. Watson and mailed (without any return address) to Dr. Watson, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., who forwards the checks unopened. Tom's address is 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648. The reward is a S'ian collectible: a printed acknowledgement card, mailed by Dr. Watson from London (the 1989 card was not dated, and this year's card has a printed 1990 date, in case collectors want to pursue all the variants).
295. Ruthann and Tom Stetak report two rubber stamps available from The Stamp Act (5808 Willow Glen Court, Dayton, OH 45431) at $4.50 each (plus $2.00 shipping).
296. Ruthann and Tom also report that Walt Disney Music (5959 Triumph Street, Commerce, CA 90040) offers a set of ten read-along audio tapes and books (plus a movie poster), that includes "The Great Mouse Detective" and "The Aristocats" (the latter may show Roquefort in S'ian costume) for $14.90 postpaid.
297. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) reports that he has acquired an inscribed copy of Basil Rathbone's autobiography IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER, with a dust jacket in excellent condition, and would like to trade in exchange for Sherlockian statuary or artwork.
298. Sherlock's Home (4137 East Anaheim Street, Long Beach, CA 90804) offers a set of new Sherlockian notecards with original designs by Michael Hagen. A packet of eight cards (two each of four different designs) with envelopes costs $12.48 postpaid.
299. The Pequod Press has announced its latest pressing: BASKERVILLE VISITED, a poetic excursion titled in draft THE DOG IN THE FOG. Copies are available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $30 (cloth) or $15 (paper).
300. The Sherlock Holmes Hotel on Baker Street has a price list offering hotel souvenirs (T-shirts, umbrellas, chocolates, china, and miniatures, etc.), and they accept plastic. Write to Nickolas Mouzakitis, The Sherlock Holmes Hotel, Baker Street, London W1M 1LB, England.
301. Chris Redmond reports a British review of MYTHS, EMBLEMS, CLUES, by Carlo Ginzburg (Hutchinson, £16.95), a collection of eight essays with recurring preoccupations and themes, such as Hitler's various uses of pagan Germanic mythologies, Freud and lycanthropy, Freud and Sherlock Holmes, and an early 16th-century inquisitorial trial of a witch at Modena. The S'ian essay may be a reprint of Ginzburg's "Clues: Morelli, Freud, and Sherlock Holmes", which was included in the Eco/Sebeok collection THE SIGN OF THREE (1983).
-
302. Jul 90 #5: Jerry Margolin (10007 S.W. Quail Post Road, Portland, OR 97219) offers his full-color poster advertising "The Norwood Builder" in Collier's (1903). The poster measures 11x16" and portrays the cover artwork by Frederic Dorr Steele. Another copy was advertised by Peter L. Stern recently at $2,000; Jerry is asking $1,600 for his, and he invites enquiries (home 503-293-7274 or office 503-682-1717 ext 198).
303. "Starlock Homes. Consulting Detective Astrologer. Absolute confidentiality, free consultation. Phone 419-726-6636." That's a classified advertisement spotted by Tom O'Connor in American Astrology (July 1990).
304. Eternity Comics has ended its seven-issue mini-series SHERLOCK HOLMES OF THE '30S, reprinting eight of the stories adapted by Leo O'Mealia that ran in newspapers from July 28, 1930, through Feb. 28, 1931. But there might be more stories out there somewhere, since Bliss Austin owned original artwork from an eleventh story ("The Final Problem"). It might be worth checking your local newspaper later on in 1931 to see if the rest of the series can be recovered.
305. Eternity has also started its four-issue mini-series SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE CASE OF THE MISSING MARTIAN, written by Doug Murray and drawn by Topper Helmers. Set in 1908, well after the failure of the Martian invasion in 1894, the new story involves Mycroft, Moriarty, Watson's wife Jacqueline, and echoes of Jack the Ripper.
306. The "New York Magazine Competition" recently requested quatrains, any rhyme scheme, in which a punned familiar name is contained. A runner-up prize was awarded to Elizabeth Fank of Redbank, N.J., for:

No dressing on the salad greens,
This cafe's hardly royal.
Ice cream (no spoon) drips on my jeans,
Sir, are there cone and oil?

307. The rules require only that the last line end with the punned name, and while we offer no prizes for similar submissions using Canonical names, we will be happy to consider publishing the best of them.
308. According to an article in the [London] Times (Nov. 8, 1912), Conan Doyle recommended a system of physical culture invented by Lieut. J. P. Muller of the Royal Danish Engineers, noting that no apparatus whatever was required, and that the exercises had the advantage of not being too severe. Earlier he had tried a system that developed the muscles, "but Nature gave us only one banking account, and if we overdrew it in one place we had to underdraw it in another." Conan Doyle said that he found that he put on muscle, but became "stupider and stupider" in the process, so he gave it up and "the muscle melted like butter in the sun."
309. L. B. Greenwood's third S'ian pastiche, SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE THISTLE OF SCOTLAND, has been reissued in paperback by Pocket Books ($3.95) with cover art by Tim O'Brien. Greenwood is one of the very few modern writers whose style and characterizations are consistent with the Canon, and her books are a pleasant antidote to the dullness of most S'ian imitations.
-
310. Jul 90 #6: The Speckled Band of Boston is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, and has issued a handsome full-color commemorative poster designed by Mark Faverman. The poster measures 22 by 28 inches and was issued in an edition limited to 185 copies signed by the artist, and is available (unfolded) for $20.00 postpaid, from J. Devereux deGozzaldi, 79 Frankland Road, Hopkinton, MA 01748.
311. Charlotte Erickson reports that Denny's Family Restaurants have a give-away comic book with the Flintstone family, all wearing deerstalkers, on the cover, and a story "Sleuth-Goof" that mentions Sherlock Perry and Watson.
312. WORST CASE SCENARIOS: A COLLECTION OF CARTOONS BY JACK ZIEGLER (New York: Simon and Schuster/Fireside, 1990) reprints his Sherlockian cartoon from the New Yorker (Jan. 11, 1988).
313. Videotaper alert: "A Study in Terror" on The Movie Channel on Aug. 4.
314. Kate Karlson, on holiday in southwestern France, discovered Baker Street in Blois: a boutique at 14 rue Beauvoir, with a large street sign displaying the traditional silhouette, and a collection of British merchandise.
315. The Sherlock Holmes stories "are, and are likely to remain, their author's chief popular success," suggested an editorial in the N.Y. Times Saturday Review of Books and Art (Oct. 3, 1903). "And the stories are all the better for creating a character, for Sherlock Holmes is really a character in British fiction already placed and established. One might say two characters, if the auxiliary Watson were accorded the place which has been claimed for him, we believe by Prof. Brander Matthews, as 'the greatest fool in fiction.'" Was it Brander Matthews who made that comment about Watson? And where and when?
316. And a cartoon by Samuel C. Rawls (Sept. 16, 1989):
-
317. Aug 90 #1: Heather Owen, co-editor of The Sherlock Holmes Journal, was scheduled to appear on the British television quiz show "$64,000 Question" on June 22, answering questions on Sherlock Holmes. There has been no report yet on how well she did, but the Yorkshire Evening Post, noting Heather's travels in Victorian costume with The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, said she has "crossed a glacier, been locked in Berne Prison, danced in a hayloft, and eaten breakfast in a jacuzzi."
318. The trade-paperback WHEN THE WORLD SCREAMED & OTHER STORIES (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1990; 233 pp., $8.95) completes the set begun last year with THE LOST WORLD & THE POISON BELT (Sep 89 #3). Conan Doyle's novels and stories about Professor Challenger are great fun, and THE LAND OF MIST (in the second volume) is particularly interesting: written in 1924 and 1925, the novel presents Challenger as a firm skeptic but eventually a convert to Spiritualism, and it is in many ways autobiographical (as was THE STARK MUNRO LETTERS).
319. Academy Chicago is also extending its list of Conan Doyle paperbacks. Last year they published THE BEST HORROR STORIES OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (Apr 89 #1) and TALES FOR A WINTER'S NIGHT (Dec 89 #5), and now they have added THE LOST WORLD (214 pp., $4.95), the first of the Challenger stories.
320. And "The Lost World" receives considerable attention in the July 1990 issue of Holmes for the Holidays, the artful children's journal edited by Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233); $7.50 for five issues a year.
321. David H. Galerstein (44 Center Drive, New Hyde Park, NY 11040), spurred by Kathrin Jaeck's article on "The Problem of the German Interpreters" in the June issue of the BSJ, wonders how intimate or polite other translators have been in their versions of the Canon. If you have translations, Dave would like to know: the language, the name of the translator, the name of the book or story, the form of "you" used, whether the usage varies from story to story within a book, and any other relevant information.
322. Philatelic Sherlockiana: on May 15 Sweden honored its beekeeping industry with a booklet pane showing ten different designs (by Ingalill Axelsson).
-
323. Aug 90 #2: Reported by Richard M. Lackritz: DUCK EDWING'S MADVENTURES OF ALMOST SUPERHEROES (Warner, 1990, $3.95), with the story "The Adventures of Headlock Holmes" (from the diary of Dr. Watsnew), and with Sherlock Holmes on the cover.
324. Harold L. Klawans, author of the mystery novel SINS OF COMMISSION (reviewed in the BSJ, Sept. 1987), also has written a series of diagnostic essays, collected as TOSCANINI'S FUMBLE AND OTHER TALES OF CLINICAL NEUROLOGY and NEWTON'S MADNESS: FURTHER TALES OF CLINICAL NEUROLOGY. The second volume of essays (New York: Harper & Row, 1990; 218 pp., $17.95) includes "Getting a Kick from Cocaine", an interesting and detailed examination of Sherlock Holmes' addiction, with an identification of the man who was instrumental in introducing Holmes to Sigmund Freud.
325. Rodney C. Starling (4515 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, NY 11235) is seeking an artist who is capable of producing a set of 20 Sherlockian illustrations in color for a new project, "first out of a love of the work for its own sake, and secondly on speculation that the project may very well prove to be enormously profitable."
326. The Monnaie de Paris, ancient mint to the Emperor Charlemagne, has been in the news recently because of its new memorial coin honoring Marilyn Monroe and showing her in the nude (the first time a French coin has carried a portrait of a celebrity in her birthday suit, according to one newspaper report, since Henry II honored his late mistress thus). This is in no way S'ian (although the famous nude calendar photograph of Marilyn Monroe and an excerpt from "The Sign of the Four" both appeared in the first issue of Playboy), but it was the Monnaie de Paris that in 1979 issued a handsome medallion honoring Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
327. Bliss Austin's copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual, sold at auction in June at Sotheby's for $52,000 (Jun 90 #6), was purchased by Russell H. McMains, a Texas collector.

328. Pocket Books/Minstrel continues to expand its paperback reissues of the five titles in Eve Titus' "Basil of Baker Street" series. BASIL IN THE WILD WEST (96 pp., $2.75) brings Basil to Moriarty, New Mexico, home of mouse sheriff Bennett Shaw.
329. Samuel Holt, author of WHAT I TELL YOU THREE TIMES IS FALSE (Mar 87 #1) is now identified as a pseudonym of Donald E. Westlake. The book (New York: Tor Books, 1987) is an entertaining murder mystery in which the sleuths (and suspects) include actors noted for portraying Miss Marple, Charlie Chan, and Sherlock Holmes.
330. Paulette Greene has moved her book business (to 7152 Via Palomar, Boca Raton, FL 33433), and is now specializing in art books, though continuing her own interest in matters Sherlockian.
331. Rex Stout's "Watson Was a Lady" (D3360a) and Julian Wolff's "That Was No Lady" (D3370a) have been reprinted in The Gazette: The Journal of the Wolfe Pack, winter 1990. The address for The Wolfe Pack is: Box 822, Ansonia Station, New York, NY 10023.
-
332. Aug 90 #3: THE GLENDOWER CONSPIRACY: A MEMOIR OF SHERLOCK HOLMES FROM THE PAPERS OF EDWARD PORTER JONES, HIS LATE ASSISTANT, by Lloyd Biggle, Jr. (Tulsa: Council Oak Books, 1990; 423 pp., $14.95), is a new pastiche, and a good one. As in THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE (1986), the narrator is a young man who was once a member of the original Baker Street Irregulars and then became a valued assistant to Sherlock Holmes. The new case takes Jones and Holmes to Wales in 1904, and Biggle offers readers a complicated mystery, credible characterizations, and a fine sense of place. The book costs $16.45 postpaid, and the publisher's address is 1428 South St. Louis, Tulsa, OK 74120 (800-247-8850).
333. A note for computerized Sherlockians: a friend has sent me a neat little MS-DOS utility that replaces the keyboard codes for "<" and ">" with the proper punctuation marks, so that you can type in upper-case and write things like "U.S.A." and "P.D.Q. Bach" more easily. And you can still recover "<" and ">" (using SHIFT-ALT) if you need them. If you would like a copy, send me a 5.25-inch floppy.
334. "Lusty Detective" is a 75-minute pornographic videocassette, produced by Mark Curtis in 1987 and distributed by Video Exclusives, in a box that shows a girl wearing a deerstalker (and very little else) and holding a magnifying glass. But the girl is just a model, and does not appear in the video, which has no Sherlockian content.
335. The 13th annual Kennedy Center Honors will be presented on Dec. 2, and will recognize the life-long artistic achievements of trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, actress Katherine Hepburn, opera star Rise Stevens, Broadway composer Jule Styne, and film-maker Billy Wilder, who produced and directed "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970).
336. Further to the report (Apr 90 #6) on plans for the next Sherlockian dinner at the Culinary Institute of America on May 4, 1991, the Radisson Hotel in Poughkeepsie, about ten minutes from the CIA, is offering a discounted rate of $75.00 a room; the hotel address is 40 Civic Center Plaza, Poughkeepsie, NY 12601, and their phone number is 914-485-5300. Al Rosenblatt is still *not* yet accepting reservations for the dinner itself.
337. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwater, NY 11718) offers a new seven-page sales list of Sherlockiana.
338. THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COOKBOOK, by Charles A. Mills (Alexandria: Apple Cheeks Press, 1990; 49 pp., $3.50 postpaid), offers a brief culinary tour of the Canon, with discussion of food, drink, and clubs, as well as recipes. The publisher's address is 2617 Stirrup Lane, Alexandria, VA 22308.
339. A report from Britain indicates that Jeremy Brett has just gone into the Guinness Book of Records for playing Sherlock Holmes the greatest number of times on television. Guinness is wrong, of course: Ronald Howard played Holmes in 39 programs in 1954 and 1955, and the Granada series has only 26 programs so far. But as far as I know, the Ronald Howard series was never broadcast in Britain, so the Guinness experts may not be aware of it. Or they may be considering hours rather than programs, in which case Brett is in first place. Now: try your hand at guessing who's in third place.
-
340. Aug 90 #4: Comic-book news: A CALIBER CHRISTMAS #1 (Dec. 1989, $3.95) includes "A Case of the Blues" (non-Sherlockian, but with the characters from the BAKER STREET series). BAKER STREET (1990, $14.95) has reprints of all five episodes of "Honour Among Punks", "Elementary My Dear" (from CALIBER PRESENTS #9), and "A Case of the Blues", and some previously unpublished artwork. There is also a report that there will be a "Baker Street" T-shirt with a two-color portrait of Harlequin by Guy Davis.
341. A new project: an "I hear of Sherlock everywhere" videocassette that will include minor Sherlockian items such as the bits of Sherlockian dialog in "The Jewel in the Crown" (1984) and "Father Dowling Mysteries: The Legacy Mystery" (1990). Other cassettes might be prepared for short kid-vid such as Sherlock Hemlock segments from "Sesame Street", and for Sherlockian commercials, and for Sherlockian news interviews. If you have such items on off-the-air cassettes, please write to Jennie C. Paton (206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458) and tell her what you have, and the recording speed (SP or SLP or whatever).
342. Hard on the paws of BASKERVILLE VISITED comes BASKERVILLE REVISITED, the second and final installment of the poetic tribute written by John Ruyle and announced by the Pequod Press. Order from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707; $30.00 cloth or $15.00 paper.
343. Who's in third place among actors who have portrayed Sherlock Holmes the most times on television? Try Peter Cushing: 15 programs in the 1968 BBC series, plus the television film "The Masks of Death" (1984). And if you want to count films later shown on television, you can add "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959).
344. Emory Lee reports a new S'ian chess set, produced by "Little Lead Soldiers of England". The hand-painted pewter pieces are 30 mm high, and the set costs $295.00 with board and case, and it's marketed here by Jim Hillestad, The Toy Soldier, Paradise Falls, R.R. 1, Box 378, Cresco, PA 19326.
345. IT'S A BIRTHDAY MYSTERY is a personalized book, in which the recipient is written into the story, and there's a teddy bear wearing a deerstalker on the cover. If you have someone who's willing to spring for $11.95 (it's better to have someone else do it, to preserve the surprise), the address to write to for an order blank is About Me!, 24 Lantern Lane, Norwell, MA NY 10222 (the order blank is needed to supply the biographical details).
346. As might be expected, the N.Y. Times gave considerable coverage to Conan Doyle's involvement in the Edalji case. One of those articles (unearthed by Jennie Paton) reported (Sept. 8, 1907) that: "Long before he created Sherlock Holmes he met a man at his tailor's who was buying a suit of clothes and seemed to have a strong objection to any material with a stripe in it. According to the story, Sir Arthur at once set the man down as an ex-criminal, and to satisfy himself as to how far his deduction was correct he determined to try to trace the man's history. This was by no means an easy matter, but some months afterward, chancing to visit a convict prison, he saw the man's portrait in the Rogues' Gallery." I've not heard seen this anecdote before, and it's a nice one, but there are grounds for some skepticism: British prisoners wore the broad arrow rather than stripes.
-
347. Aug 90 #5: Another story, tracked by Jennie Paton through the pages of the N.Y. Times, concerns the history of William Gillette's home after he died in 1937, stating in his will that it was his "earnest wish that his property should be owned by someone who would appreciate it. "I would consider it more than unfortunate for me," he wrote, if his home were to be the possession of "some blithering saphead who had no conception of where he is or with what surrounded." When his will was filed for probate in 1938, the castle and grounds were valued at $65,000 and the railroad at $3,000. His executor decided to auction the Hadlyme property on Oct. 1, but a hurricane delayed the auction until Oct. 15, when five minutes of bidding ended with a high bid of $35,000 and a decision by the executor to refuse the bid. According to Brendan Gill's report on the proceedings in the New Yorker (Nov. 26, 1938), the executor later rejected offers as high as $60,000. And shouldn't have, because in 1943 the property (without the railroad, which

- had been sold to a nearby amusement park) was sold to the state of Connecticut for $30,000 -- an attractive bargain for the state, certainly. The decision to make the property a state park has been greatly appreciated by the many Sherlockians who have visited Gillette Castle.
348. THE 1991 CALENDAR OF 221B BAKER STREET is now available, spiral bound on heavy stock, with Ronald S. White's photographs of the recreation of the sitting-room at S. Holmes, Esq., in San Francisco. Order from Brian and Charlotte Erickson, 1920 Marich Way, Mountain View, CA 94040; $12.00 each (plus $5.00 per order for shipping, or $7.50 for foreign orders).
349. Mark Erdrich reports a Napoleonic Bee necktie, offered by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts in navy blue with a pattern of laurel in red and stylized bees in gray. Laurel is mentioned many times in the Canon, as are bees, and members of The Six Napoleons will note that the bee (the Emperor's personal crest) has six body parts, and that there are six pairs of laurel leaves. The tie costs $32.00 plus shipping, and you can order from the museum's catalog sales department, Box 1044, Boston, MA 02120 (800-225-5592).
350. Mark also reports that Shannon Duty Free Mail Order offers a blackthorn stick (mentioned in "The Abbey Grange") for $26.50 (plus $8.00 shipping) and a miniature (by Thingumyobbs of Sheffield) of Holmes and Watson and a hansom (6.25 inches high) for $150.00 (plus $16.00 shipping). The address for ordering is c/o Aer Lingus/Irish Airlines, Building No. 87, John F. Kennedy Airport, NY 11430 (800-223-6716).
-
351. Aug 90 #6: Incidental intelligence (according to the Washington Post): the U.S. Postal Service, which handles 40 percent of the world's mail volume, processed 161.6 billion pieces of mail last year. That comes to 643 pieces of mail per person. And, since the USPS had a budget of $39 billion, the cost was 24.1 cents per piece of mail processed.
352. Additional incidental intelligence: the semi-official estimated resident population of the United States on June 1, 1990, was 250,630,000. That's based on the 1990 census count, which is already causing some fuss and furor in places (such as the District of Columbia) where the population has dropped (since federal aid is often tied to population counts), and which will cause even more fuss and furor when states are redistricted for the 1992 congressional elections (California could gain as many as eight seats in the House of Representatives, and Florida four, while New York could lose three seats, and many states will lose one or two).
353. Volume nine of Simon & Schuster's "The New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" is now in the bookstores, priced at $9.95, with the Rathbone/Bruce radio versions of "A Scandal in Bohemia" (Dec. 10, 1945) and "The Case of the Second Generation" (Dec. 17, 1945).
354. Reported by Ron De Waal: FAMOUS & CURIOUS ANIMAL STORIES (New York: Gallery Books/W. H. Smith, 1989; $6.98), with contents including chapters 13-15 from "The Hound of the Baskervilles".
355. More news from 239 Baker Street (aka 221 Baker Street): according to an article in Art & Antiques (summer 1990), at hand from Ray de Groat, John Aidiniantz has been knocking out a back wall, and now plans to market the bricks. A recent photograph of the exterior of the front of the building shows a circular blue plaque (similar to the official plaques designating official historical sites) affixed to the second floor and announcing that the building is 221 Baker Street.
356. And Greta de Groat reports that "I hear of Sherlock everywhere" seems to be the norm in the world of libraries. According to Library Hotline (June 4, 1990), the Miami University Libraries (in Ohio) held a contest to name its new automated system and received more than 675 entries, including LEECH (an acronym for Lazy Employees' Expensive Computer Helper), and selected SHERLOCK (apparently not an acronym) as the winner. On July 16, Library Hotline noted that the E. H. Butler Library at the State University College in Buffalo held a similar contest, received 288 entries, and also selected SHERLOCK as a name for its system.
357. Videotaper alert: The Movie Channel will show "The Man of a Thousand Faces" (1957) on Oct. 17 and 27. As noted earlier (Jul 90 #3) James Cagney (as Lon Chaney, Sr.) displays a scrapbook with a page showing a sketch of him as Sherlock Holmes.
358. Richard Wein reports that the latest catalog from What on Earth (Jun 90 #3) also offers a Sherlock Holmes Teapot ($49.95). The company's address is 25801 Richmond Road, Cleveland, OH 44146.
-
359. Sep 90 #1: "A fig for Sherlock Holmes! No one really loves Doyle's work because he created and exploited that arch-humbug, that Egyptian Hall man of mystery. The most earnest student of the fourpenny-halfpennyest of magazines barely believes in him or takes him seriously. Our children's children will probably argue that he was a solar myth." [The Academy and Literature, Oct. 24, 1903, in favorable comments on the Author's Edition]
360. Reported by Ron De Waal: a discount reprint of MURDER FOR CHRISTMAS, edited by Thomas Godfrey and illustrated by Gahan Wilson (New York: Avenel Books, 1989); contents include "The Blue Carbuncle" (the book was first published by The Mysterious Press in 1982). And THE OXFORD BOOK OF ENGLISH DETECTIVE STORIES, edited by Patricia Craig (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1990; $19.95); contents include "Silver Blaze". An advertisement in the Nov. 1990 issue of EQMM announces a contest for new detective stories in the traditional English style, no longer than 3,000 words, with a deadline of Dec. 15. Entry blanks are available at local bookstores and libraries (or, presumably, from the Oxford University Press, 200 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016). The contest will be judged by P. D. James, and the winner will receive $500 (and the story will be published in EQMM); the second prize will be "a rare first U.S. edition" of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES.
361. John Severin's cartoon satire continues to recycle. Super Cracked #4: Super Guys vs. Super Scoundrels (winter 1990-91, $3.50) has Sherlockian panels in "What Are the Old TV & Movie Detectives Doing Today?" and "The Real Secrets Behind Agent 0007".
362. General Mills has launched a new breakfast cereal, with television advertisements, newspaper coupons, and directmail samples. Boxes for Undercover Bears Instant Oatmeal (available in a Super Sleuth assortment and a Private Eye pack) feature a trench-coated dog with a magnifying glass, described by Advertising Age (in an article at hand from Richard Wein) as investigating the cereal "a la Sherlock Holmes."
363. Lenny Picker reports that Len Deighton's new novel SPY SINKER (HarperCollins) includes a new appearance by Erich Stinnes: "He had the generator going and stayed up late reading The White Company. He was a dedicated Sherlock Holmes fan and was persevering with his favorite author's excursion into medievalism." Stinnes' Sherlockian enthusiasm was noted earlier in Deighton's BERLIN GAME and MEXICO SET.
364. Grant C. Eustace reports that his series of 30-minute audio adaptations of the Sherlock Holmes stories, with Roy Marsden as Holmes and John Moffatt as Watson, available as in-flight entertainment for British Airways passengers beginning in 1987, will be issued on cassettes by The Talking Tape Company (Unit 11, Shaftesbury Industrial Centre, The Runnings, Cheltenham GL51 9NH, England). There will be six two-cassette packages, each with four stories, retailing at about £7.00 per package, but there is no word yet on whether enthusiasts outside Britain will be able to order directly.
-
365. Sep 90 #2: Delayed news of the auction of "English Literature and History" at Sotheby's in London on Dec. 14 (Nov 89 #6), which included the collar of the prototype of the Hound of the Baskervilles: a large black leather collar, about 20 inches in circumference, with studs and buckles, and an attached metal plate engraved "'Derby the Devil' presented by Jerome K. Jerome to A. Conan Doyle, Undershaw, Hindhead". The collar belonged for many years to a Surrey family who lived near ACD's home at Undershaw, and by family tradition "Derby the Devil" was the huge mastiff which inspired the Hound of the Baskervilles (hence the point of Jerome's presentation to ACD). Estimated by Sotheby's at £600-800, the collar received a high bid of £2200, according to a report by Nicolas Barker in the spring 1990 issue of The Book Collector.

366. "Separated at Birth?" is a continuing feature invented by Spy magazine in Dec. 1986, and the title of a collection of matched photographs published by Dolphin/Doubleday in 1988 (and observed by Ann Byerly), which includes: At hand from John Bennett Shaw is an article by Charles Monteith on "Eliot in the Office" in the spring 1990 issue of Grand Street. Monteith joined Faber and Faber as an editor in 1953, and worked with T. S. Eliot for many years. One of the company traditions was the weekly editorial luncheon: "One Wednesday the talk got on to Sherlock Holmes, of whom he was a devotee --the most famous evidence of his devotion are the lines from 'The Musgrave Ritual' used in *Murder in the Cathedral*. As evidence of his continuing enthusiasm, he extracted from his wallet a formidable stack of membership cards from Sherlock Holmes societies all over the United States: the Speckled Band of Cincinnati, the Brooklyn Red-headed League, the Silver Blazes of Minnesota, more than a dozen. 'The old lady,' he said, observing the pile with mild surprise, 'shows her medals.'"
367. Sherlockian titles are beginning to appear on laserdiscs (the newest and highest-fi video medium): "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" (1943), "The Woman in Green" (1945), "Terror by Night" (1946), and "Dressed to Kill" (1946) have been reported by Ted Schulz.
368. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London now has more details (and new dates) for its Pilgrimage to Switzerland from Apr. 28 to May 6, 1991. Write to: S.H. Swiss Pilgrimage, 7 Bruton Close, Chislehurst, Kent BR7 5SF, England.
-
369. Sep 90 #3: The University of Iowa Press is offering deep discounts on two fine books: LETTERS TO THE PRESS, edited by John Michael Gibson and Richard Lancelyn Green (a 383-page collection of Conan Doyle's letters to newspapers and magazines on non-Sherlockian topics, published in 1986 at $29.95) now costs $3.00, and THE SHERLOCK HOLMES LETTERS, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (a 272-page collection of Sherlockian letters to the press by others, published in 1987 at $27.50) now costs $2.00. Iowa's "big sale" ended on Sept. 15, but they have kindly extended the deadline until Nov. 1 for readers of this newsletter. Orders should be sent to the University of Iowa Press, Publications Order Dept. OH, Iowa City, IA 52246. The minimum order is $15.00, orders should be prepaid (Mastercard and Visa accepted), shipping is extra ($2.25 for the first book plus $0.50 for each additional book), and it is important that you mark your orders "Scuttlebutt".
370. Videotape alert: the summer 1990 issue of Anglofile reports that the Arts & Entertainment cable network will begin broadcasting 134 episodes of "The Avengers" on Oct. 6. This will be the first U.S. broadcast of the early shows starring Honor Blackman (some of which I saw on Canadian television in 1965, and still remember fondly), and the A&E broadcasts may include "The Curious Case of the Countless Clues" (1968) with Patrick Macnee and Linda Thorson, and Peter Jones as Sir Arthur Doyle.
371. Anglofile also reports that Steven Spielberg and Andrew Lloyd Webber are collaborating on a full-length animated film of "Cats" (which presumably will include the infamous Macavity), and that Kingsley Amis (who has items in both volumes of Ron De Waal's bibliographies) was knighted in June. And there's much more on British stage, screen, and television in the bimonthly newsletter (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033; $12.00 a year).
372. And (in case there's not enough time for an advance warning on the schedule of "Masterpiece Theatre") you should watch for John Mortimer's "Summer's Lease" some time next year. The stars are John Gielgud, Susan Fleetwood, and Rosemary Leach, and when the series was broadcast by the BBC in 1989, one reviewer said that "Sherlock Holmes and Piero della Francesca are the Grey Eminences of the implausible plot; the tale is to be one of mistaken identity, apparently as told by Conan Doyle in Copper Beeches, at the first page of which the book lies open on the double bed."
373. An organization called "Friends of Mystery" sponsors a series of bi-monthly "Bloody Thursdays" lectures in Portland. On Sept. 27 the speaker ("Anatomy a Crime" was deputy state medical examiner Karen Gunson (who owns two cows named Sherlock Holmes and Agatha Christie). On Jan. 24 the speaker will be Jerry Margolin (on "Collecting Sherlock Holmes").
374. At hand from Andrew Jay Peck, eagle-eyed reader of The Hollywood Reporter, is a report that Engelbert Humperdinck has been signed to play the opera singer Eberhardt Bohm in the Harmony Gold television mini-series "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady". "The Golden Years of Sherlock Holmes" was announced earlier (Mar 90 #6) as including "Sherlock Holmes: The Incident at Victoria" and "Sherlock Holmes: The Merry Widow" (with Christopher Lee as Holmes and Patrick Macnee as Watson), but it would appear that there's a new title, and perhaps a new plot, for the mini-series, in which Morgan Fairchild will play Irene Adler, with filming now underway in London.
-
375. Sep 90 #4: Caliber Press (31162 West Warren Avenue, Westland, MI 48185) publishes the comic book BAKER STREET, and CALIBER PRESENTS #9 and A CALIBER CHRISTMAS (both had related material), and the graphic novel BAKER STREET, and they will be glad to send you a price list of back and current issues if you weren't able to find them at your local shops.
376. Plan well ahead: plans are afoot (well, at sea) for a second ocean-going seven-day Sherlockian seminar in the spring of 1992, on the MV Horizon, from New York to Bermuda and back. For additional information, write to Holmes on the Horizon, Box 96, Norwood, NJ 07648.
377. Alden Whitman died on Sept. 4. As a N.Y. Times reporter he pioneered the use of interviews with notable people to prepare their obituaries (he was careful to tell his subjects that he was working on biographical essays, but anyone important enough to be interviewed by Whitman knew what he was doing). From 1964 until he retired in 1976 he wrote hundreds of advance obituaries, including one for Rex Stout (D2793b), and he once suggested that "a good obit has all the characteristics of a well-focused snapshot, the fuller the better." His own obituary in the N.Y. Times had no byline ("it was written by committee," the paper's obituaries editor said, "and it was the third time it had been rewritten").
378. If you wrote to Jim Hillestad about the "Little Lead Soldiers" chess set (Aug 90 #4), and haven't received a response, it's because the item had the wrong ZIP code. His correct address is: The Toy Soldier, Paradise Falls, R.R.1, Box 378, Cresco, PA 18326.
379. THE CAMDEN HOUSE COOKBOOK, compiled by Janet Bensley and Debbie Tinsley from recipes provided by members of The Occupants of the Empty House, is based on the scion's long-standing tradition of pot-luck provisioning at its meetings. The 48-page booklet is available for $4.50 postpaid from Debbie Tinsley, Box 21, Zeigler, IL 62999.
380. Jack Kerr reports two discount titles from the Mallard Press, at $7.95 each: THE BEST CRIME STORIES (contents include "The New Catacomb") and THE BEST HORROR STORIES (contents include "Lot No. 249").
381. All five of Eve Titus' fine "Basil of Baker Street" titles are now out in paperback from Pocket Books/Minstrel, with new cover art by Judith Sutton ($2.75 each).
382. Available (free) from the British Tourist Authority (40 West 57th Street, New York, NY 10019): "The Movie Map: Film & T.V. Locations in Britain". This is an interesting guide to locations in England, Scotland, Wales, and Jersey, including Loch Ness ("The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes"), and there's a photograph of Jeremy Brett and David Burke at the door of 221B on the Granada set at Manchester.
383. Tony Harries followed in the footsteps of Jill Hutton Nicholson (one of his predecessors as Sherlock Holmes' secretary) in appearing on the syndicated television series "To Tell the Truth" on Sept. 13. They liked him enough to fly him from Toronto to Los Angeles and back to tape his show. Tony was also interviewed by the Cable News Network during his visit to Los Angeles.
-

384. Sep 90 #5: Reported: THEORY OF PROSE, by Viktor Shklovsky, translated by Benjamin Sher (Dalkey Archive Press, 1990; 216 pp., $29.95). THEORY OF PROSE, written in 1925 but only now completely translated into English, is one of the landmark explorations of literary theory, and the literature considered includes mystery stories in general, and the Sherlock Holmes stories in particular.
385. Reported: NEW CRIMES, edited by Maxim Jakubowski (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1990; $16.95), an anthology that includes M. J. Trow's "It's Clever, But Is It Art?" (a short story starring Lestrade).
386. Abigail Patience Danforth is a new series detective, in two 1990 Pinnacle paperbacks written by Marian J. A. Jackson: THE PUNJAT'S RUBY (252 pp., $3.50) and THE ARABIAN PEARL (253 pp., $3.50). THE PUNJAT'S RUBY brings Miss Danforth, whose hero is Sherlock Holmes, from England (where Conan Doyle suggests that amateur detecting is no career for a young lady), to New York (where she is assisted by William Gillette and a band of Gramercy Park Irregulars), and THE ARABIAN PEARL extends her travels to the American west (with occasional Sherlockian allusions). The time is 1900, and Miss Danforth is a sprightly heroine.
387. In THE ARABIAN PEARL, Miss Danforth travels west from New York by "private varnish" (a thoroughly pleasant luxury in an era described in some detail by Lucius Beebe in 1959 in his book MANSIONS ON RAILS). John T. Winterich, in his review of the book (SRL, Dec. 5, 1959), included one of Beebe's fine stories, about a Hungarian princess who visited Boston in 1911 and who was provided with a private car by the New Haven Railroad when she left for New York. The private car, unfortunately (and contrary to the usual custom), was not hooked to the rear of the train, but rather sandwiched between a plain-people's Pullman and the diner. When the plain people began to walk through the private car as the only route available if they wanted to eat, the princess was startled but quickly recovered. It was her imposing major domo who contrived to salvage the proprieties: he insisted on getting the name of every invading passenger and properly announcing him.
388. President Eisenhower is not on record as an admirer of the Sherlock Holmes stories, but in 1954 he cited THE WHITE COMPANY in one of his press conferences (D2591b). And Adrian Conan Doyle called Eisenhower "one of the greatest living authorities" on Sir Arthur. Eddy Gilmore's AP story (D2592b) quoted Adrian as saying that the first book Eisenhower read after his illness in 1959 was SIR NIGEL. Adrian sent Eisenhower a copy of the limited edition of SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE CENTENARY 1859-1959 (D3919a); according to Lewis Nichols (in his column in the N.Y. Times Book Review, May 24, 1959), the 100 copies of the limited edition have a pasted-in signature of Sir Arthur. The U.S. Postal Service will issue a new commemorative honoring Eisenhower on Oct. 13.
-
389. Sep 90 #6: Eternity Comics has published SHERLOCK JR. #1 (Aug. 90) as the first of a three-issue mini-series reprinting Sidney Smith's "Sherlock Holmes Jr." comic strip (D5873b), which has little Sherlockian relevance other than the title. Smith later achieved more renown as the creator of "The Gumps" for the [N.Y.] Daily News. The world of comic books also includes Batman, who is much changed from the good old days when Bob Kane wrote and drew the comic strip. Dick Grayson, the original Robin, is dead, and so apparently is his replacement, Jason Todd. DETECTIVE COMICS #618 (July 1990), presents a potential successor, Tim Drake, a member of the Sherlock Holmes Society who likes to watch Basil Rathbone's "Sherlock Holmes" films on television.
390. Add Norman M. Davis and Linda Crane to the list of Sherlockian romances that began at a meeting of a Sherlockian society. Norm and Linda were married on July 24 at the Victorian Villa Guesthouse in Union City, Mich., in a Sherlockian ceremony that was recorded (from the preliminaries through the wedding dinner) on videotape that was viewed on Aug. 29 by The South Downers, who had provided the venue for the start of it all.
391. Available from Henry Murray (Arlington Supplies, Box 1102, Barnet, Herts. EN5 5AF, England): a commemorative cover honoring the 60th anniversary of the death of Conan Doyle. The cover carries one of the Conan Doyle stamps issued by the Turks & Caicos Islands in 1984, a Grand Turk postmark dated July 7, 1990, and a cachet with appropriate artwork ($3.00 each, plus $1.00 per order for shipping). Arlington also offers a pricelist of the colorful Tekna reprints of the Sidney Paget illustrations.
392. "A Century of Sherlock Holmes" is the title of an illustrated talk "on the emergence of Holmes and the entertaining tradition that has surrounded him" by Julie Rosenblatt, scheduled for 6:30 pm on Oct. 16 at the Harvard Club in New York.
393. The summer 1990 issue of Mysterious News at hand from The Mysterious Press (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019), with contributions by and news about the press' authors, and a report on the recent sale of The Mysterious Press to Time Warner ("I'm still in my office," Otto Penzler notes, "more or less running things"). Mysterious News is published quarterly, and is offered without charge.
394. Reported by David McCallister: DISNEY'S MICKEY MOUSE CARD GAME (a simple "Old Maid" type of match-up game) with large (3.4 x 5.7 inches) cards that show "Detective Mickey" in Sherlockian costume.
395. Reported by Richard Smith: "The Baker Street Coat" ("the 19th century was an explosion of mechanical inventions and devices: the lawn mower, the automobile, and this handsome, ingeniously removable shoulder cape") in the fall 1990 catalog from the J. Peterman Co., 2444 Palumbo Drive, Lexington, KY 40509. "Sherlock Holmes (and certain of his clients) wore it; Robert E. Lee (and certain of his generals) wore it," the catalog notes, and the price is $580 postpaid.
-
396. Oct 90 #1: A brief report from London on Bouchercon XXI, well-arranged by Marion and Robin Richmond on Sept. 21-23: about 1,000 people attended the three days of festivities, with about 80% coming from the United States. Three-track programming, as usual in recent years, and this year there were three full days, from Friday morning through Sunday afternoon. Tony Harries spoke on Friday morning on his experiences as Sherlock Holmes' secretary on Friday morning, and on Saturday afternoon there was a Sherlockian debate arranged by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London. Bouchercon XXII will be held on Oct. 11-13, 1991, at the Pasadena Hilton (advance discount registration is $35.00, checks payable to SCIF), and the address is Bouchercon XXII, 2334 Beach Avenue, Venice, CA 90291).
397. Bouchercon XXIII will be held in Toronto on Oct. 8-11, 1992, at the Royal York Hotel. This will be the first four-day Bouchercon, with Thursday as a "Special Interests Day" in which groups such as the Private Eye Writers of America can hold business meetings, seminars, workshops, etc. Programming will run through Sunday afternoon, followed by a farewell cocktail party ending at 6:00 pm. Registration costs $50.00 through the end of 1990, and $60.00 through the end of 1991, and the address is Bouchercon XXIII, Box 23, Station "S", Toronto, Ont. M5M 4L6, Canada. The site for Bouchercon XXIV has not yet been selected.
398. In response to queries from some readers about the report (Aug 90 #2) on DUCK EDWING'S MADVENTURES OF ALMOST SUPERHEROES (with "The Adventures of Headlock Holmes" and with Holmes on the cover), I haven't been able to find a copy here either, but the book *does* exist, and is a paperback published by Warner in Apr. 1990 (the ISBN is 0-446-35845-2).
399. What American magazine has the largest circulation? You are invited to try your hand at listing the top five on the list.
400. Britain's sharpshooters still honor Conan Doyle's interest in marksmanship, awarding an annual Conan Doyle Trophy. And the sharpshooting is real: the winner this year was Rob Courtney, who put every shot into the bull's-eye at a range of 1,000 yards.

401. A flier at hand for the one-week "Holmes on the Horizon" cruise to Bermuda and back, departing from New York on May 16, 1992. Details are available from Holmes on the Horizon, Box 96, Norwood, NJ 07648.
402. Authors of short fiction in the 1990s must envy their counterparts in the 1890s, when there were scores of periodicals eager to publish such work, in the mystery field and in others, and one might wonder indeed whether Conan Doyle would have been as successful as a beginning author now as he was a century ago. It is the novel that modern publishers seek, and that most readers seem to prefer, and well-written short fiction is hard to find. But there are publishers who do not neglect the short story. Carroll & Graf is one of those publishers, and their American edition of NEW CRIMES (1990, $16.95) offers some fine examples of tales well told. The anthology was edited by Maxim Jakubowski (proprietor of Murder One in London), and includes M. J. Trow's new Lestrade pastiche "It's Clever, But Is It Art?"
-
403. Oct 90 #2: Some additional news about the Christopher Lee/Patrick Macnee television mini-series: filming of "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" (with a teleplay by Bob Shayne and H.R.F. Keating) was to have begun at the end of August in Luxembourg, and the four-hour mini-series is to be available for broadcast in January. According to a press release, Holmes is summoned by the Prime Minister and sent to Vienna in 1910 to solve a mystery involving a stolen explosive device and meetings with the Emperor Franz Joseph and Sigmund Freud. "Holmes and Watson once again find themselves caught up in a web of murder and intrigue. What Holmes never suspects, however, is that the murder will reunite him with the one love of his life, Irene Adler." Irene Adler, as reported earlier, will be played by Morgan Fairchild.
404. The second mini-series will be "Sherlock Holmes: The Incident at Victoria Falls" (with a teleplay by Bob Shayne based on a story by Gerry O'Hara), with filming scheduled in Zimbabwe. Sherlock Holmes will encounter Lillie Langtry, ex-president Teddy Roosevelt, Giuseppe Marconi, and Lord Roberts of Kandahar, as well as a few fictional characters, suspects, and such.
405. Richard Carleton Hacker (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213) offers a series of custom-made and colorful wooden wall signs, at prices ranging from $50.00 to $290.00, plus shipping. And his THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK (which includes discussion of S'ian pipes and pipe-smoking) is now available in a second, revised edition. Write to Rick for his illustrated flier and order form.
406. The British post office is reportedly considering making only one mail delivery a day to residences (instead of the current two deliveries), and a columnist in Punch yearns fondly for the days of Sherlock Holmes, when "one could pop a letter into a box and confidently expect that it would reach its destination with a matter of hours." And one would have been quite justified in that confidence, what with the seven deliveries a day in Victorian London. "How the hell did they do it," he wonders.
407. The American magazine with the largest circulation is Modern Maturity (21.0 million copies), followed by Reader's Digest (16.5 million), TV Guide (16.3 million), National Geographic (10.6 million), and Better Homes & Gardens (8.1 million). Youngsters may not be aware that Modern Maturity is published by the American Association of Retired Persons and goes to all of its members.
408. Joanne Zahorsky reports that Barnes & Noble now offers five videocassettes, each with two of the 1954 television programs starring Ronald Howard, at $9.95 each. Their toll-free number is 800-767-7079. As far as I know, Andy Jaysnovich (6 Dana Estates Drive, Parlin, NJ 08859) still offers nine cassettes, each with four programs, but I don't know his current prices.
-
409. Oct 90 #3: The "Quotable Quotes" in the Dec. 1954 issue of Reader's Digest include: "It is a great thing to start life with a small number of really good books which are your very own." The quote was attributed to Sherlock Holmes, who, if he ever did say that, was quoting Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. What's the source of the quote?
410. For completists: Christopher Clausen's article on "Sherlock Holmes, Order, and the Late-Victorian Mind", first published in the Georgia Review (spring 1984), was reprinted in his THE MORTAL IMAGINATION: ESSAYS ON LITERATURE AND ETHICS (Iowa City: University of Iowa Press, 1986).
411. A new catalog at hand from Classic Specialties (Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219): Sherlockian pillows, stained glass, Christmas ornaments, pendants, desk lamps, and much more.
412. Gary Thaden notes the appearance of the phrase "No shit, Sherlock" in two mystery novels by Marcel Montecino (THE CROSS-KILLER, 1988, and BIG TIME, 1990), and wonders where it originated. Probably in a back alley or on a street corner somewhere, but perhaps one of the dictionaries that cites first usages will get round to it eventually. I vaguely recall seeing it back in the 1970s, but haven't been keeping track. Can anyone cite some early usages of the phrase in print?
413. For those who are pursuing Caliber's "Baker Street" comic-book series, the fall preview issue of Comic Shop News has a color cover with artwork from "Baker Street" (apparently from a "Baker Street" calendar due this month at $3.95, with twelve new illustrations and a new seven-page feature).
414. The Norfin Trolls are celebrating their silver anniversary with a special collection that includes "Sherluck" (and "Norfahontas" and "The Wizard of the Norf"). These modern trolls can be found in toy and gift shops, and "Sherluck" retails for $28.00. If you can't find them, write to EFS Marketing Associates, 164 Central Avenue, Farmingdale, NY 11735, and ask who their local outlet is.
415. Patti Nead Elrod's THE VAMPIRE FILES #3: BLOODCIRCLE (New York: Ace Books, 1990; 202 pp., $3.95) extends her series about Jack Fleming (vampire) and Charles Escott (private detective), with occasional Canonical echoes.
416. Those who ordered covers with the special Sherlockian postmark honoring the "Sherlock Holmes" exhibit mounted by Bruce Holmes at the Post Office House in Montreal (Jun 90 #4) now own a demonstration of the power of The Great Detective. The Sherlockian postmark proved so popular (averaging 2,000 a day, rather than the usual 600 a day for previous exhibits) that the staff was overwhelmed by the task of hand-canceling the covers. The authorities have announced that future exhibits will no longer be honored with special postmarks.
417. Howard Einbinder (349 Broadway, New York, NY 10013) is preparing to sell his collection of Sherlockiana, and will be happy to send a list to those who send him a #10 SASE.
-
418. Oct 90 #4: "The plain dressing gown worn by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle while writing the adventures of Sherlock Holmes" was expected to sell for £2,000 at a Nottingham auction, according to brief reports in London newspapers, but it didn't do quite that well when the auction was held on Sept. 25 at Vennett-Smith Auctions of Goatham. The hammer price was $2,068 (about £1,100), according to an Associated Press report, which noted that the calf-length garment of thick tweed in a light-brown check pattern was offered by a collector and bought by an anonymous telephone bidder. Trevor Vennett-Smith was the auctioneer, and said that Conan Doyle often wore the dressing gown when writing, and that it later belonged to Sidney Paget, who used it as a model in six of his illustrations. Vennett-Smith also said that "We sell only postcards, cigarette cards, and autographs, but we were offered the dressing gown by a good client and we know that anything with a Sherlock Holmes connection always sells." Well, while it may be true that "anything with a Sherlock Holmes connection always sells," one does wonder what the dressing gown would have brought at a major London auction house, and whether the previous owner had any documentation that both Conan Doyle and Paget had owned the dressing gown, and whether one of the major London auction houses would have offered it without such documentation.

419. Tim O'Connor (Box 1803, Champaign, IL 61824) offers a twoinch black-on-yellow button from The South Downers backed with a pin ($1.00) or a magnet ($1.50), and bumper stickers reading "The Game is Afoot" or "Confound Moriarty" in Olde English lettering ($1.00 each); postage is extra (25c per item, up to $1.00).
420. GOOD NIGHT, MR. HOLMES, by Carole Nelson Douglas (New York: Tor Books/Tom Dougherty Associates, 1990; 408 pp., $18.95) is an entertaining and well-written pastiche, telling the story of Irene Adler from her point of view, and expanding considerably on the version given by Watson in the Canon. Irene's story is told by her friend and associate, Penelope Huxleigh, and Irene is as intelligent and resourceful here as in Watson's account. Douglas resolves some of the contradictions in the Canonical story, posing some new problems and hinting that there may be additional stories to be told about the career of Irene Adler.
421. "It is a great thing to start life with a small number of really good books which are your very own," is the opening sentence of the second chapter of Conan Doyle's "Through the Magic Door" (in Cassell's Magazine, Jan. 1907, and in the book THROUGH THE MAGIC DOOR, also published in 1907).
422. Irregular Productions Ltd. (Box 221, Elmhurst, IL 60126) has issued twelve audiocassettes, each with one of the "twelve best" stories selected by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle for The Strand Magazine in 1927 ("The Gloria Scott" has been substituted for "The Dancing Men"). The stories are capably read by Charles Fuller, an actor and a Sherlockian, and cost $24.50 for each volume of three cassettes, or $79.80 for four volumes with twelve cassettes.
423. The latest Pequod pressing is THE ADVENTURE OF THE GEEK INTERPRETER, the twenty-second case in the continuing saga of Turlock Loams ("the brilliant and spasmodic sleuth of Quaker Street"). $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper), from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
-
424. Oct 90 #5: Reported in the current catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011): a VHS videocassette (50 minutes) of "Queen Mary's Dolls' House" ("tour the sumptuous rooms and enchanting garden in this miracle of miniature craftsmanship"). The manuscript of "How Watson Learned the Trick" (D821a) is in one of the bound volumes in the library, but may not be shown in the video tour. The item is number #1666635 ($29.95, plus $4.00 shipping, and they take plastic).
425. Russell Brown's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MYSTERIOUS FRIEND OF OSCAR WILDE, first published in 1988 (Dec 88 #2), has been reissued as a trade paperback (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1990; 176 pp., $7.95), with new cover art appropriately echoing the style of Aubrey Beardsley. The book is "based on and incorporating the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Oscar Wilde" (one sixth of the book, according to Brown, consists of passages taken from the published works), and exposes Holmes and Watson to the homosexual world of London. As might be expected, Wilde has the better lines (he was, after all, better at epigrams than Holmes).
426. Charlton Heston, according to a wire service report, was heading to London in October to play Sherlock Holmes in a television film of Paul Giovanni's play "The Crucifer of Blood". Heston was Holmes in the play in Los Angeles in Dec. 1980 and Jan. 1981 (with Jeremy Brett as Watson), and in Mar. 1982 Heston was reported planning a television version for CBS, but the project lapsed -- and has now been revived by Turner Network Television, targeted for broadcast on cable in Aug. 1991.
427. Scott and Sherry Rose Bond report that Peter Cushing's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959) and "Murder by Decree" (1979) are discussed in John McCarty's THE MODERN HORROR FILM, just published by Citadel ($15.95).
428. Those who wish to follow the footsteps of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle might pay a visit Rochester Square in London, where an inscription on the foundation stone of the Rochester Square Spiritual Temple notes that it was laid by Sir Arthur in 1926 (as reported by Alan Coren recently in The Times).
429. Spotted by Al Rosenblatt: READ 'N COLOR TIMMY TIGER STORIES (Itasca: Justen Products, 1989; 126 pp., $5.95), with Timmy Tiger deerstalkered and with a magnifying glass, on the cover and in the story "Timmy Tiger and the Masked Bandit".
430. Charles Schulz's comic strip "Peanuts" first appeared on Oct. 2, 1950, in seven newspapers, and now runs in 2,300 newspapers in 68 countries. By way of helping to celebrate the 40th birthday of Snoopy and his friends, here's an extract from his first known Sherlockian appearance, on Jan. 28, 1962:
-
431. Oct 90 #6: James C. Iraldi ("The Blanched Soldier") died in Sept. 1990. Jim was born in 1907, and his introduction to Sherlock Holmes came when his mother read the stories to him in Italian. In 1948 he was one of the founders, with Nathan L. Bengis and Morris Rosenblum, of The Musgrave Ritualists, and he received his investiture in The Baker Street Irregulars in 1952. Jim was the official photographer of the BSI for many years, and an accomplished musician (an interest reflected in many of his Sherlockian writings, including his 1968 pastiche THE PROBLEM OF THE PURPLE MACULAS). He was also an ardent and energetic collector, and in 1974 his collection was purchased by the University of Minnesota Library, providing the foundation for that institution's still-expanding archives.
432. New British pastiches reported by Roger Johnson: June Thomson's THE SECRET FILES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has seven short stories, and is highly recommended by Roger (Constable, £11.95). Glen Petrie's second Mycroft novel is THE MONSTROUS REGIMENT (Bantam Press, £12.95), and his first novel, THE DORKING GAP AFFAIR, will be reissued in paperback in Dec. (Corgi, £3.50). Clive Brooks' SHERLOCK HOLMES REVISITED, VOL. 2, is due in Nov. (Spyglass Books, 23 Sylvan Avenue, Bittern, Southampton SO2 5JW, England; £11.95 plus £4.00 shipping overseas). And Sam Benady's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN GIBRALTAR has two short stories and is due in Nov. (Gibraltar Books, 38 Main Road, Gendon, Northampton NN7 1JW, England).
433. S'ian tourists visiting Paris might consider a stay at the Hotel Vernet, at 25 rue Vernet (near the Arc de Triomphe). The hotel and street presumably are named in honor of one of Sherlock Holmes' ancestors, and Willis Frick reports that rooms cost 1,250 to 1,750 francs, with suites priced at 2,600 francs and up. And how much is that in dollars? At the current conversion rate, about $245 a night for the cheapest room.
434. John E. Stephenson reports on a paperback scheduled by Bantam in Jan. 1991: SAN FRANCISCO KILLS, by Denny Martin Flinn, will be the first in a series about Spenser Holmes, a San Francisco private detective who is the grandson of Sherlock Holmes.
435. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in a boxed Christmas "audio gift set" with reissues of the first four cassettes (with the first eight programs) of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows from 221A Baker Street (New York: Simon and Schuster Audioworks, 1990; $24.98).
436. Reported by Richard Wein: sweatshirts ($24.00) and T-shirts ($14.00) in a new Sherlockian design, in the fall/winter 1990 catalog from Wireless, Box 64222, Saint Paul, MN 55164 (800-669-9999).
437. Credit recently-fingerprinted Ann Byerly for noticing the S'ian emblem used by Criminal Research Products (Box 408, Conshohocken, PA 19428) on packages of their products. The new and improved version of their fingerprint ink remover towelettes no longer carries the emblem, but it does appear on many of their other (and more expensive) products, in case you'd like to request their catalog.
-
438. Nov 90 #1: The film "Reversal of Fortune" has been released, with Jeremy Irons (Claus von Bulow), Glenn Close (Sunny von Bulow), Ron Silver (Alan Dershowitz), and Christine Baransky (Andrea Reynolds). In 1979 Andrea, then married to Sheldon Reynolds (who produced the "Sherlock Holmes" television series with Ronald Howard in 1954, and another series with Geoffrey Whitehead in 1981), said that owning the rights to Conan Doyle's work is "like owning an oil well." In 1985 she left her husband to help Claus win his second trial for the attempted murder of his wife. Last year Andrea

- married the Honourable Shaun Plunket, close friend of the royal family and brother of the Queen's equerry, the late Lord Plunket, but (according to the Nov. 1990 issue of Vanity Fair), she has not yet been invited to Buckingham Palace.
439. Paramount Home Video has announced low-cost ($14.95 to $29.95) releases of videocassettes of many of Sean Connery's movies. One of the movies will be "The Molly Maguires" (1970), which while not directly Sherlockian, is based on events featured in the American portion of "The Valley of Fear". Some of the actors (Frank Finley, Samantha Eggar, and Anthony Zerbe) have also appeared in Sherlockian films, and the music is by Henry Mancini, who also worked on "The Great Mouse Detective" and "Without a Clue".
440. Syd Goldberg reports that Paramount's "Tales from the Darkside: The Movie" (with an adaptation of Conan Doyle's "Lot No. 249") is now available on videocassette at $89.95. The usual practice is to set high prices for the first release to rental shops, and then to offer titles at lower prices for people who want to buy them.
441. "We Never Mention Aunt Clara" has long been one of the unofficial anthems of the Baker Street Irregulars, and of the Sherlockian world in general, and it has been for many years just as popular with others who have enjoyed singing and listening to an authentic American folk song. Well, it isn't. And we've been singing it wrong. Old SOB Bill Rabe has tracked down (and interviewed) the creator of Aunt Clara, and discovered much of her history. It is a fascinating history, given in considerable and suitably irreverent detail in WE ALWAYS MENTION AUNT CLARA, a new 40-page monograph (with color covers) published by The Old Soldiers of Baker Street of the Two Saults. The cost is $10.00 postpaid ($11.00 US to Canada, with additional postage costs charged to other countries), and you can order from W. T. Rabe, 1204 Davitt Street, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783. Recommended.
442. Responding to the query (Oct 90 #3) about "No shit, Sherlock," Richard B. Tuttle reports that the second edition of Eric Partridge's A DICTIONARY OF CATCH PHRASES (1985) gives "no shit!" as a U.S. catch phrase ("apparently dating from the 1930s"), and "no shit, Sherlock!" ("ironic surprise at a very obvious remark") from the 1950s-early 1960s ("hardly less obviously, a reference to Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes").
443. What on Earth (25801 Richmond Road, Cleveland, OH 44146) continues to add to their S'ian offerings, including T-shirts and sweatshirts (Jun 90 #3), teapots (Aug 90 #6), and now a Sherlock Mouse ($9.95) and a new 8x12-inch Whitbread Pub Sign ($16.95) which is also featured in a set of four smaller pub-sign coasters ($14.95); shipping costs extra, and they take plastic.
-
444. Nov 90 #2: The second volume in the BSI's archival series is IRREGULAR MEMORIES OF THE 'THIRTIES, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg (New York: Baker Street Irregulars, 1990; 267 pp., $18.95), a fine account of the conception, birth, and nurturing of a rather unorganized organization whose early history, often recorded only accidentally at the time, was far more irregular than it is now. The early records are incomplete, and often in conflict as to what actually happened (perhaps that is only appropriate for the informal whiskey-and-sodality founded by Christopher Morley and his friends), but we are fortunate indeed that so much of the BSI history has been preserved. The book is available from the Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14850 (800-666-2211); shipping costs $2.00, and they take plastic.
445. The "Canonical Convocation and Caper" in Door County, Wis., was enjoyable, according to reports from those who attended the festivities, and the next gathering is scheduled for Sept. 13-15, 1991. Detailed information will be available from Donald B. Izban, 5334 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, IL 60639.
446. THE READER AS DETECTIVE: BOOK I, edited by Burton Goodman (New York: Amsco School Publications, 1985; 211 pp., $5.75), includes Goodman's grades 5-7 adaption of "The Speckled Band" (illustrated by John Jones and accompanied by a section of "detection exercises"). A teacher's "answer key" is also available ($1.50); the company's address is 315 Hudson Street, New York, NY 10013.
447. THE STORY OF THE SEPULCHRE: THE CABELLS OF BUCKFASTLEIGH AND THE CONAN DOYLE CONNECTION, by Susan Cabell Djabri (Dec 89 #5), provides a detailed account of the family, including the third Richard Cabell (who was happily married though unpopular in Devon) and his daughter Elizabeth (who at the age of 15 inherited the Cabell estates and at the age of 35 married Sir John D'Oyly) (and who, when her husband died, discovered that she was one of his two widows). The 16-page pamphlet is now available here for $5.00 postpaid, from Gary R. Westmoreland (Route 1, Box 141-A, Lovingston, VA 22949), and the proceeds will be used to repair the Cabell family tomb, "now in a sad state of dilapidation."
448. "On the Road with Sherlock Holmes" will be the next tour of England led by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond, beginning in London on May 13, 1991, and touring through England for 13 days. A detailed flier is available from Geographics Travel & Tours, 21 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106.
449. "The matter seems to me to be of such importance that I grudge every day that passes without something having been done to bring it to realization," wrote Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in a letter published in The Times (Mar. 11, 1913). The "matter" was the Channel Tunnel, which he supported for many years, and in another letter in The Times (Dec. 9, 1922) he suggested that "in money alone it is impossible to compute how much was wasted by our insane policy of obstructing the boring of the tunnel in pre-war days." And the Channel Tunnel has at long last been realized: on Oct. 30 a two-inchwide borehole linked the British and French ends. In January the tunnel will be wide enough for a meeting between Prime Minister Thatcher and President Francois Mitterrand, and train traffic is expected to start in 1993. The final cost of the tunnel is expected to be $14 billion.
-
450. Nov 90 #3: Additional news on the Turner Network Television production of Paul Giovanni's "The Crucifer of Blood" with Charlton Heston as Sherlock Holmes: work on the two-hour telefilm began on Oct. 27 at Pinewood Studios in London, and the cast also includes Richard Johnson (Dr. Watson), Edward Fox (Major Alistair Ross), Susannah Harker (Irene St. Claire), Simon Callow (Lestrade), Clive Wood (Jonathan Small), and John Castle (Neville St. Claire). Edward Fox has a previous Canonical credit, having played Dr. Watson in "Dr. Watson and the Darkwater Hall Mystery" (a television program written by Kingsley Amis and broadcast by the BBC in 1974); the pastiche was later published as a short story in the May 1978 issue of Playboy.
451. William C. Haurert ("Ted Baldwin") died on Sept. 25. Bill was a retired teacher of Latin, and toastmaster of The Scowrers and Mollie Maguires, and his obituary in the San Francisco press noted that he was a Sherlockian scholar and versifier as well as a member of the BSI.
452. THE 1991 CALENDAR OF 221B BAKER STREET is still available (and so far the only 1991 Sherlockian calendar), spiral bound on heavy stock, with Ronald S. White's photographs of the recreation of the sitting-room at S. Holmes, Esq., in San Francisco. You can order from Brian and Charlotte Erickson, 1920 Marich Way, Mountain View, CA 94040; $12.00 each (plus $5.00 per order for shipping, or $7.50 for foreign orders).
453. Prices for movie memorabilia continue to increase: the latest catalog from George Theofiles (Miscellaneous Man, Box 1776, New Freedom, PA 17349) lists a three-sheet poster (41x81") for Rathbone's "The Pearl of Death" (1944) at $1,050. Christie's has scheduled an auction of "Hollywood Posters" on Dec. 11, and will offer a one-sheet (27x41") for Rathbone's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939), estimated at $4,000-5,000, and some interesting material for John Barrymore's "Sherlock Holmes" (1922): a full-color onesheet ($7,000-9,000), a rotogravure one-sheet ($3,500-4,000), and a set of eight full-color lobby cards ($3,500-4,000).
454. Ted Schulz's daughter-in-law-elect Kathy Cabanyog (Mar 90 #3) is now an official daughter-in-law. Kathy and William Sherlock Schulz were married on Nov. 10 in Phoenix.
455. Mary Ann Wren reports that John Aidiniantz has a young man on the streets of London, costumed in Inverness cape, deerstalker, and pipe, passing out cards for the Sherlock Holmes Museum.

456. Nov 90 #4: Carole Nelson Douglas' GOOD NIGHT, MR. HOLMES (Oct 90 #4) will indeed have a sequel, according to an article by Douglas in the Oct.-Dec. 1990 issue of Mostly Murder, kindly sent by Richard Wein: GOOD MORNING, MADAM IRENE is scheduled by Tor Books in June 1991. Mostly Murder is a quarterly tabloid edited by Barbara L. Unger and published by Mostly Book Reviews (8300 Douglas Avenue #800, Dallas, TX 75225), and distributed through bookstores (the price is fifty cents an issue).
457. The Mind's Eye (Box 1060, Petaluma, CA 94953) now offers three volumes of the "BBC Audio Collection" of radio broadcasts starring Carleton Hobbs and Norman Shelley. Each volume has two cassettes and four stories, and the cost is $14.95 per volume, or $39.95 for all three volumes (shipping costs extra, and they take plastic). Their catalog also offers six cassettes, each with two of the broadcasts starring John Gielgud and Ralph Richardson, at $7.95 per cassette (or $35.00 for all six cassettes).
458. Sherlock Holmes died on July 20. His obituary was published in the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot on July 23, 1990.
459. Jack Kerr reports: THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: TEST YOUR SKILLS AS A SLEUTH! (a 30-minute videocassette with excerpts from the Granada series), from MPI Home Video at $9.98. You can order from Fusion Video (800-338-7710); and they also offer many of the complete programs from the series, and there's a $4.50 charge for shipping.
460. "Beyond the Books: The Final Problem Centennial Tour" is another vacation package, to Switzerland and England for seven days beginning on May 11, 1991. Details on the tour, designed by members of The Six Napoleons of Baltimore and The Carlton Club, can be obtained from Alexandra Doumani, Roeder Travel Ltd., 9805 York Road, Cockeysville, MD 21030.
461. Reported by Tim O'Connor: THE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED 'STRAND' SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Mallard Press, 1990; 1,126 pp., $19.98), essentially a reprint of THE COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES published in Britain in 1986 by Omega Books (Jan 87 #2) with all 60 of the stories, the first two with the text only and the other 58 reprinted in facsimile from the magazine with all of the illustrations. Mallard Press is an imprint of BDD Promotional Book Co., a division of Bantam/Doubleday/Dell (Mallard also published Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in 1989). In 1989 it was difficult to order from Mallard (their address is 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10103), but the book should have wide distribution on bookstore bargain tables.
462. Tim has also found a stock of READ 'N COLOR TIMMY TIGER STORIES (Oct 90 #5) at a discount price, and can supply copies for $2.00 each postpaid. It is a thoroughly minor item, but those who want copies can send checks to Tim O'Connor, R.R. 1, Box 138-B, Herscher, IL 60941.
-
463. Nov 90 #5: The Armchair Detective Library is a hard-cover reprint series from The Mysterious Press, each volume with a new introduction by the author, offered in three different editions; the series now includes the first two of Elizabeth Peters' five mystery novels about Amelia Peabody Emerson, set in Victorian England and Egypt and written with fine style and humor: CROCODILE ON THE SANDBANK (1975), THE CURSE OF THE PHARAOHS (1981). The second title begins with the death of Sir Henry Baskerville ("of the Norfolk Baskervilles, not the Devonshire branch of the family") during an excavation in Egypt (two members of his staff are epigrapher Karl von Bork and photographer Charles Milverton). A catalog of the series is available from the publisher (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019).
464. Prescott's Press has launched a new line of attractive S'ian pins and magnets, at reasonable prices ($2.00 to $4.00 each plus postage) and in sizes larger than the accompanying illustrations. Prescott's Press is also a Sherlockian quarterly ($10.00 a year); details on all this and more are available from Warren Randall (Box 610, Levittown, NY 11756).
465. David Rush reports, via John Stephenson, that Harrods, in London, offers a complete Sherlock Holmes outfit for dogs, at a cost of £58. The story in the Daily Mail (Sept. 20) was headlined "Sherlock Bones Dressed to Go Walkies in Style".
466. Also spotted by Tim O'Connor, at Waldenbooks: DETECTIVE ARTHUR IN THE CASE OF THE MYSTERIOUS STRANGER, by Mary J. Fulton, illustrated by Aurelius Battaglia (Merrigold Press, $3.50); this children's book, first published by the Golden Press in 1982, features Detective Arthur (D6167a and D5279b) in Sherlockian costume.
467. The "audio gift set" of THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is now in the stores, with reissues of the first four cassettes (with the first eight programs) of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows from 221A Baker Street, in a new box and priced at $24.95. If your local stores don't have it, Simon & Schuster has a toll-free number (800-678-2677), and they take plastic.
468. MASTERS OF MYSTERY AND DETECTIVE FICTION, by J. Randolph Cox (Salem Press, 1989; 281 pp., $40.00), was reviewed by Charles Shibuk in the fall 1990 issue of The Armchair Detective as a selective and accessible bibliography of 74 representative mystery writers, and Randy reports that Conan Doyle is one of the masters, with an annotated bibliography that has 35 entries. Randy also reports that he has been asked to update the Conan Doyle entry in the DICTIONARY OF LITERARY BIOGRAPHY for a high-school version to be called the CONCISE DICTIONARY OF LITERARY BIOGRAPHY.
469. Sterling Lanier's THE CURIOUS QUESTS OF BRIGADIER FFELLOWES, was published in 1986 (Jan 87 #2) and includes his giant-rat pastiche "A Father's Tale" (D5042b); the book is a collection of Lanier's stories, illustrated by Ned Dameron, signed by the author and artist, and still available ($30.00) from the publisher: Donald M. Grant, Box 187, Hampton Falls, NH 03844.
-
470. Nov 90 #6: Another plug for the 155-minute videocassette (VHS only) of the Christopher Morley centennial celebration in Chicago on May 5. The cassette is professionally edited, and features Charles J. Shields, J. Warren Scheidman, Ely M. Liebow, Robert J. Mangler, Thomas J. Joyce, Allen Mackler, and Anna Lou Ashby in a series of fine presentations about various aspects of Morley's career and writings (and Allen Mackler's "Christopher Morley, Metrophile" is particularly good), and it's available from VISCOM, Box 1243, Oak Park, IL 60610 for $49.95 (you can call 800-829-1260, and they take plastic).
471. Jerry Margolin reports on a new comic book scheduled from Comax Productions in Jan. 1991: FRANKENSTEIN: TERROR ON THE MOOR. Sherlock Holmes will be involved, and the comic book will cost $2.95 (or $3.95 for a signed edition limited to 1,000 copies).
472. And Tim O'Connor reports a forecast of an adult comic book: TIMEWANKERS #3, by Stephen Sullivan ($1.95). "Our intrepid sexual archaeologists journey back in time to Victorian England, and discover that it wasn't as 'prudish' as everyone made it out to be over the years. Timewankers as Holmes and Watson."
473. Pepper & Stern (1980 Cliff Drive #224, Santa Barbara, CA 93109) have issued their 603-item catalog of "Selections from the Sherlock Holmes Collection of Dr. James Bliss Austin" -- it's a fine catalog, with illustrations of the best items, and prices ranging from $20 to $20,000. The catalog costs $6.00 postpaid to those not already on their mailing list.
474. A sidebar on the "Elementary, Dear Data" episode in the television series "Star Trek: The Next Generation" (1988), in which Cdr. Data plays Sherlock Holmes in a recreation of Victorian London on the holodeck, and battles a holodeck version of Moriarty: according to an article by Mark A. Altman in Cinefantastique (Sept. 1990), Gene Roddenberry ordered the original ending scrapped. As scripted and shot, Capt. Picard, realizing that Moriarty can leave the holodeck, lies to Moriarty to convince him to relinquish control of the Enterprise. Picard then explains to the crew, "until we know more about one of the most guileful of characters ever imagined, we had better be careful." According to director Rob Bowman, Gene Roddenberry

- objected to a situation that had Picard lying, and despite suggestions that "this is Moriarty, the baddest fucker in space, we can't have him loose on the ship, he'll take over," Roddenberry ordered the ending dropped from the episode.
475. Susan E. Dahlinger (30 East Elm Street #11-B, Chicago, IL 60611) announces a new Sherlockian journal, Varieties of Ash, a 60-page semi-annual to be launched during the birthday festivities. Dec. 10 is the deadline for submissions for the first issue, and additional details are available from Susan.
476. Chris Redmond (125 Lincoln Road #1101, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 2N9, Canada) offers copies of THE TALE OF COPPERELLA, a well-executed 8-page pamphlet ("wherein are related the adventures of a sweet young lady, and also the doings of a noted detective") issued in Oct. 1985; $5.00 (U.S.) postpaid. Chris also has acquired Bliss Austin's run of the Baker Street Journal and now has many duplicates, and will be happy to respond to want-lists.
-
477. Nov 90 #7: We will celebrate Sherlock Holmes' 137th birthday on Friday, Jan. 11, with the traditional festivities in New York. Friday begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast at 8:30 am at the Hotel Algonquin, at 59 West 44th Street (The Stetaks, 15529 Diagonal Road, La Grange, OH 44050; $17.00). The William Gillette Luncheon starts at noon at the Old Homestead, at 56 Ninth Avenue at 14th Street (Susan Rice, 125 Washington Place #2-E, New York, NY 10014; $27.50). At 6:00 pm The Baker Street Irregulars meet at 24 Fifth Avenue at 9th Street; and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at the Hotel Algonquin (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235 West 15th Street #4-B, New York, NY 10011; $50.00). Early reservations are advised for the breakfast, the luncheon, and the ASH dinner.
478. Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 to 6:00, and there is as usual the possibility that Sherlockian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
479. On Saturday a posse of purveyors will be selling a variety of Sherlockiana at the Hotel Algonquin, from 9:30 am to 12:30 pm. Huckster space is still available (Ray Betzner, 2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, VA 23185); $25.00 for a half table and $50.00 for a full table.
480. On Saturday afternoon The Baker Street Irregulars will hold their annual reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm, at 24 Fifth Avenue, at 9th Street. There will be an open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $28.00 a person. Checks payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
481. Fred Fondren's new play "Sherlock Holmes: The Eclipse Conspiracy" opened at the Prometheus Theatre at 239 East 5th Street (212-477-8689) on Nov. 23 and will run through Jan. 12. Performances Wednesday through Saturday at 8:00 pm, and tickets cost $10.00 (there are as yet no plans for a formal S'ian theater party on the evening of Jan. 12).
482. And south-bound travelers are herewith warned that The Master's Class will not be meeting in Philadelphia on Sunday, January 13.
483. Mary Ellen Rich has again kindly provided a list of hotels that offer reasonable (as defined by New York landlords) rates, along with a warning about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, 5% city tax, and 5% state tax on rooms costing more than $99.99. If you are arriving on Thursday, you should confirm that the weekend-package rates include Thursday.
484. Roosevelt, 45 East 45th Street (800-223-1870); $75 single or double (ask for the winter special). Iroquois, 49 West 44th Street (800-332-7220); $65-75 single, $70-85 double, $85-145 suites. Shoreham, 33 West 55th Street (212-247-6700); $75 single, $84 double (ask for Jeri). Omni Park Central, 870 Seventh Avenue at 56th Street (800-843-6664); a few singles at $75-95. Journey's End, 3 East 40th Street (800-668-4200); $115 room (up to four people). Macklowe, 145 West 44th Street (800-622-5569); $145 single or double. Algonquin, 59 West 44th Street (800-548-0345); $160 single, $170 double (no discounts for Sherlockians).
-
485. Nov 90 #8: "With my umbrella raised to ward off the spitballs of the Baker Street Irregulars, I hereby proclaim that Conan Doyle's prose is nothing but Victorian journalese." Leslie Charteris, in an introduction to G. K. Chesterton's "The Blast of the Book" in MURDER BY EXPERTS, edited by Ellery Queen (New York: Ziff Davis, 1947). It was in 1944 and 1945 that Charteris, using the name Bruce Taylor, worked with Denis Green on scripts for the Rathbone/Bruce radio series (one of those scripts will be found in the Mar. 1986 issue of the BSJ). There are many echoes from the Canon in Charteris' stories, as noted by Dana M. Batory (D2133b).
486. It was in "The Jolly Undertaker" (Saint Mystery Magazine, Aug. 1963, and reprinted in THE SAINT IN THE SUN in 1963) that the Saint met Dr. Julian D. Corrington, described as "one of the many distinguished intellectuals who have made a whimsical cult of studying the detective writings of Conan Doyle as minutely as a theologian analyzes the scriptures, and often with resultant discoveries which must exert as much graveyard torque on that Master as similar diversions may apply to this chronicler in due time." It should be noted that this meeting was not entirely accidental: Corrington's article on "Baker Street Weather" (D4525a) had appeared a few years earlier in the Saint Detective Magazine (Nov. 1957).
487. "Sherlock Holmes, Sam Spade, got nothing', child, on me," is part of the lyrics of the song "Searchin'" recorded by The Coasters on an Atco 45-rpm single in 1957 (and reissued on LP collections in later years). Other entertainers have recorded the song, and it is now reported that Kenny Rogers is singing it in his touring stage show with Dolly Parton. Kenny Rogers' version is apparently available on an audiocassette if you attend one of their performances on the tour.
488. Signe Landon (3800 N.W. Van Buren, Corvallis, OR 97330) has announced plans to publish THE HOLMESIAN FEDERATION #8 early in 1991, with about 120 pp. of cross-over and other Sherlockian fiction, including contributions by Tina Rhea, Stefanie Hawks, Brad Keefauver, and Dana M. Batory; the cost is $6.00 postpaid. Reprints of issues #1 through #6, and copies of #7, are still available at $4.00 each postpaid.
489. Reported by Ron De Waal: a paperback reprint of T. J. Binyon's MURDER WILL OUT: THE DETECTIVE IN FICTION (Oxford Univ. Press, 1990; 166 pp., $8.95); references to Conan Doyle and Holmes, and a chapter on "The Professional Amateur". And CRIME CLASSICS: THE MYSTERY STORY FROM POE TO THE PRESENT, edited by Rex Burns and Mary Rose Sullivan (New York: Viking Penguin, 1990; 390 pp., $22.95); contents include Scan and Spec. Ron also reports that Erica Harper is Sherlock Holmes' new secretary at Abbey National.
490. The 22-page manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" is available again, offered by Mark Hime (Bibliotopus, Idyllwild, CA 92349) for $155,000 in his new catalog 12. The 177-page manuscript of "The Valley of Fear" (purchased by Hime at Sotheby's earlier this year) has already been sold, and four folio leaves with Conan Doyle's outline, notes, chronology, and a page of dialog not included in the published story (advertised in the catalog for $45,000) have also now been sold.
-
491. Dec 90 #1: Visitors to Britain may wish to visit the Effingham Park Museum Suite in Surrey, where Peter Agg has 40 classic cars on display. One of them is a gleaming white Mercedes SSK coupe, made in 1929, and previously owned by Denis and Adrian Conan Doyle, who won many races with it before the war. It is now worth about £3 million, according to a newspaper report.
492. More news from Britain: £420 was the hammer price for a letter written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to Dr. Watson. The undated letter was written from the Author's Club, urging Dr. Watson (otherwise unidentified) to become a member. "There are several other candidates for the prototype of Holmes' friend," said auctioneer Simon Bruton, "but as far as is known this is the only one with whom Conan Doyle corresponded, which would seem to put him in a leading position. A manuscript signed by Napoleon brought £320, as did a letter from William Makepeace Thackeray.

493. One of the newer and more interesting "professional" scion societies is Stimson & Co. Membership is restricted to funeral directors ("Stimsons") and all other Sherlockians ("Company"), and the first issue of the Stimson & Company Gazette has just appeared, with a reprint of John Bennett Shaw's paper on Canonical corpses, an article by Malcolm Payne about the ghost of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and a contest involving information on Sherlockian funerary films (two examples are "Terror by Night" and "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes"). Details on the society and the Gazette are available from Michael W. McClure, 1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233.
494. House of Tyrol (Box 909, Alpenland Center, Helen Highway--75 North, Cleveland, GA 30528) offers Steinbach wooden nutcrackers allegedly portraying Dr. Watson and Sherlock Holmes. They're about 12 inches high and cost $110 each (800-241-5404, and they take plastic).
495. Richard G. Smith, on tour in Switzerland, found a Sherlock Holmes pub in Stein am Rhein (northeast of Zurich and west of Constance).
496. One of the many interesting columns in the early years of the Saturday Review of Literature was "The Reader's Guide", conducted by May Lamberton Becker. On July 26, 1930, she mentioned that she received, from a reader in New York, a copy of the Jan. 1930 issue of Secret Orders, published by the Detective Story Club, with a list of 22 "lost tales of Sherlock Holmes." These were, of course, the unrecorded cases, and the Detective Story Club was presumably a book club; does anyone know anything more about the club or about its publication Secret Orders?
497. Dercum Audio (910 Waltz Road, West Chester, PA 19380) has added THE SIGN OF FOUR to its list of unabridged books on audio cassettes. The story is read in fine style and in varied voices by William Barker on four cassettes (six hours), and the cost of the set is $19.95.
-
498. Dec 90 #2: Holmes Peak, officially recognized in 1984 by the U.S. Board on Geographic Names after a long campaign by Richard S. Warner, is now even more official. On Nov. 18 a formal Treaty of Peace and Friendship was signed on Nov. 18 by Geoffrey Standing Bear (assistant principal chief of the Osage Indians) and Stafford G. Davis (representing the Afghanistan Perceivers). The signing took place at the Base Camp, and was witnessed by local Sherlockians and members of the Wander-Freunde, who were in Tulsa for a mass ascent of Holmes Peak, which is located in Osage County in Oklahoma. The Osage Indians still own the mineral rights to the land, and the Holmes Peak Preservation Society has pledged that all future ascents will involve increased exploration efforts on behalf of the tribe.
499. John Ruyle has thrust his marlon-spike into "The Sign of the Four" and now announces a new collection of "fresh and delightful quatrains," published as LAST TONGA IN LONDON, available ($35.00 cloth, $15.00 paper) from the Pequod Press, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.
500. BBC Radio 4 started a series of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" on Nov. 7, with "A Scandal in Bohemia" as the first of twelve 45-minute programs to be broadcast weekly in order of original publication. The series features Clive Merrison (Holmes) and Michael Williams (Watson); their versions of "A Study in Scarlet" and "The Sign of the Four" aired in 1989, and the BBC now hopes to do all 60 stories (for the first time ever with the same actors). Andrew Sachs played the King of Bohemia, providing a fine example of how appearances count for little on radio: he played Manuel the waiter in the television series "Fawlty Towers".
501. Add Roy Dotrice to the list of actors who have portrayed Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. "Young Harry Houdini" is a 93-minute television film, made by the Walt Disney Co. in 1987 from a story by James Orr and Jim Cruickshank (and recently rebroadcast on the Disney Channel). The story is almost entirely fictional, showing 14-year-old Erich Weiss running away from home to join a traveling medicine show, launching his career as a professional magician. Wil Wheaton plays young Erich Weiss in most of the story, but the film begins and ends with conversations between Jeffrey DeMunn (Harry Houdini) and Roy Dotrice (Sir Arthur Conan Doyle).
502. Roald Dahl died on Nov. 23. His first book was THE GREMLINS (1943), about the tiny people who bedevilled the Royal Air Force, and he became a master of both the macabre and the mystery (he won the MWA Edgar in 1954 and 1959) as well as tales for children, and his later, more bawdy work included MY UNCLE OSWALD (1980), with a brief appearance by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
503. "Left Coast Crime: A Western Regional Mystery Conference" will be held on Feb. 15-18, 1991, at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco. The guests of honor will be Marcia Muller and Bill Pronzini, with Bruce Taylor as toastmaster. There's no word yet on whether there will be any S'ian events, but additional information is available from Left Coast Crime, Box 1367, Martinez, CA 94553.
504. Sherlock, Stock & Barrel Co. (Box 8261, Colorado Springs, CO 80933) has sent a flier offering a variety of Sherlockiana, including honey, an art medal, a door-knocker lapel pin, a paperweight, and a feather duster.
-
505. Dec 90 #3: Norman Cousins died on Nov. 30. He joined the staff of the Saturday Review of Literature in 1939, and was its editor in chief from 1942 to 1977. He was literate and imaginative, and worked hard to ensure that his magazine responded to what he called "the need to make books a part of the world of ideas and issues." Sherlockiana was part of that world, of course, and a more detailed discussion of the SRL will be found in IRREGULAR MEMORIES OF THE 'THIRTIES (Nov 90 #2).
506. Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine has joined the birthday festivities with its Jan. 1991 issue, which includes a reprint of Anthony Burgess' pastiche "Murder by Music" (from his 1989 collection THE DEVIL'S MODE) and Gary Alan Ruse's poem "What If, God Forbid, Sherlock Holmes Had Never Lived?"
507. Discovered by Jennie C. Paton: MICKEY MOUSE SEEK & PEEK GIANT CARD GAME (Racine: Western Publishing Co.; Golden #4865); it's a children's matching game, with 40 large (3.5 x 5.5 in.) cards, and with Mickey in Sherlockian costume on the box and on the 40 cards.
508. I don't know how many S'ians have laser videodisc players (this is the new high-end video medium and provides the highest fidelity), but there are at least a few S'ian videodiscs: Ron De Waal reports that Pioneer offers Basil Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" ($49.98 each) and four of his Universal films ($29.98 each), and Ted Schulz reports that Peter Cushing's "The Masks of Death" is available from Image Entertainment.
509. Frank Spencer's PILTDOWN: A SCIENTIFIC FORGERY (New York: Oxford University Press, 1990; 272 pp., $24.95) is the latest, and by far the most complete, attempt to identify the perpetrator of the Piltdown Man hoax. Spencer has used lengthy and detailed research by the late Ian Langham in the original archives, and concludes that the culprit was Sir Arthur Keith, conservator of the Hunterian Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons. Spencer offers a history of Piltdown Man, from discovery through exposure, also summarizing and demolishing allegations against other suspects, who include Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, accused by John Hathaway Winslow in 1983. The discussion of Conan Doyle is not lengthy (not unexpected, since Winslow's accusation was thoroughly circumstantial), but Spencer has published for the first time an interesting discovery in Keith's papers: the postcard portrait photograph of Conan Doyle that he sent to Keith, with an invitation to dinner, after they debated spiritualism in a series of articles in the [London] Morning Post in 1925. On the back of the postcard Conan Doyle mentions the "Great 3rd round exhibition contest between the Crowborough Kid and Battling Art of Lincolns Inn Fields."
510. Videotaper alert: The Movie Channel will broadcast John Neville's "A Study in Terror" (1965) on Jan. 6 and 18, and Michael Caine's "Without a Clue" (1988) on Jan. 12, 17, 23, and 27.

511. Further to the report in the Dec. 1990 issue of the BSJ (p. 251) that a copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual is for sale, if you've been had trouble reaching Alan Denner, it's because he has moved. His current address is 328 West 11th Street, New York, NY 10014 (212-989-6625). His copy is not complete, lacking the covers and advertisements, and has been rebound.
-
512. Dec 90 #4: Arthur Conan Doyle was only one of many authors fascinated by the mystery of the *Mary Celeste* (his solution, which appeared anonymously as "J. Habakuk Jephson's Statement" in the Cornhill Magazine in Jan. 1884, was assumed by some to be a factual report, and by one reviewer to have been written by Robert Louis Stevenson). Sam Benady's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN GIBRALTAR (Grendon: Gibraltar Books, 1990; 48 pp., £2.95), offers two pastiches, one with a new solution (involving Sherlock Holmes, who was on board the vessel), and the other bringing Holmes to Gibraltar to rescue a kidnapped duke. The booklet is distributed by Ashford Buchan & Enright, 1 Church Road, Shedfield, Southampton SO3 2HW, England.
513. Sherlock Holmes paid fifty-five shillings for his Stradivarius, which was valued at five hundred guineas at the time of "The Cardboard Box". But it would be worth far more now: last month a Stradivarius made in 1720 (toward the end of Stradivari's "golden period") sold for $1.76 million at auction at Christie's in London.
514. THE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED 'STRAND' SHERLOCK HOLMES (New York: Mallard Press, 1990; 1,126 pp., $19.98) is a fine volume, and certainly value-for-money. It is an enlarged (by about 18 percent) facsimile reprint from the magazine of its 58 stories with all the illustrations (and well reproduced), and "A Study in Scarlet" and "The Sign of Four" are included (no illustrations) in a carefully matching type face. The book should be widely distributed for the Christmas trade, and will make a splendid present for any Sherlockian.
515. "Still, I am compelled to say that, for the most part, the Holmes stories are made from materials bought at a kind of nineteenth-century K-Mart, and that without the wondrous appeal of the character of Holmes our estimation of Conan Doyle's talent as a writer would be that he was a sort of *Boy's Life* Marie Corelli, who combined the moral insight of Queen Victoria with the historical precision of Sir Walter Scott." Kim Herzinger, in a 1986 issue of Shenandoah (v. 36, n. 3).
516. Jerry Margolin offers first editions (without dust jackets) of two mystery novels written by Stanley Hopkins, Jr. (the pseudonym used by Christopher Morley's daughter, Blythe Morley Brennan). MURDER BY INCHES (New York: Harcourt, Brace and Co., 1943) is in fair condition (ex-library) at $15.00 postpaid, and THE PARCHMENT KEY (1944) is in very good condition at $25.00 postpaid (Jerry's address: 10007 S.W. Quail Post Road, Portland, OR 97219).
517. THE STANDARD DOYLE COMPANY: CHRISTOPHER MORLEY ON SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited and with an Introduction by Steven Rothman (New York: Fordham University Press, 1990; 429 pp., $19.95), is a delightful collection of Morley's many Sherlockian articles, essays, introductions, poems, and notes, gathered by Steve from the Saturday Review of Literature, the BSJ, and other sources. The book also offers a fine demonstration of Morley's energy, imagination, talent, and knowledge: it is astonishing to see how much he wrote, and how often, and how well, keeping in mind that his Sherlockiana was only a small part of his work. One can only wonder how he found the time to read all the books that formed the basis for the "Clinical Notes" that were such an important part of the BSJ, and made it so obvious to so many of us how much fun there was to be found in the world of Sherlock Holmes. Fordham's tollfree number is 800-666-2211; shipping costs $2.00, and they take plastic.
-
518. Dec 90 #5: THE SECRET FILES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: Constable, 1990; 224 pp., £11.95) is a collection of pastiches by June Thomson, a British writer whose series of modern mysteries featuring Inspector Finch was well received by the critics. She has now turned her attention to the world of Sherlock Holmes, offering seven of the unreported cases mentioned only in passing by Watson. Her style is above average, and her plots are generally imaginative (while it is difficult to devise a story involving a politician, a lighthouse, and a trained cormorant that has not been told before, she sheds new light on Mr. Wilson's trained canaries).
519. Reported from the Bowling Green State University Popular Press (Bowling Green, OH 43403): JOHN DICKSON CARR, by S. T. Joshi (195 pp., $35.95 cloth or $17.95 paper); a critical study rather than a biography, and with only passing discussion of Carr's Sherlockiana. Also: FRONT-PAGE DETECTIVE: WILLIAM J. BURNS AND THE DETECTIVE PROFESSION, 1880-1930, by William R. Hunt (222 pp., $39.95 cloth or $19.95 paper); possibly with some mention of Burns' meetings with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, but not yet seen.
520. A comic-book forecast, noted by Richard Wein: Disney Comics is planning a 48-page graphic-novel adaptation of "The Great Mouse Detective" ($4.95) in Feb. 1991.
521. And some video-taper alerts, also noted by Richard: "Count Duckula: All in a Fog" (1987) will be rebroadcast on Nickelodeon in Mar. 1991 (this is a 30-minute animated program in which Count Duckula, in an attempt to be a detective, travels to London and encounters Hawkeye Soames and Dr. Potson). And "Alfred Hitchcock Presents: My Dear Watson" (1989) will be rebroadcast on USA cable in Mar. 1991 (also 30 minutes, with Brian Bedford as Holmes and Patrick Monckton as Watson, and with a colorized introduction by Alfred Hitchcock, wearing a deerstalker and blowing bubbles from a calabash pipe). And Arts & Entertainment will broadcast Arthur Wontner's "The Triumph of Sherlock Holmes" (1935) in two parts on Jan. 14 and 21.
522. New German items reported by Dick Rutter: LESTRADE UND DIE STRUWWELPETERMORDE, by M. J. Trow (Reinbeck: Rowohlt, 1990; DM 9.80); a translation of THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1985). LESTRADE UND DER TASMANISCHE WOLF, by M. J. Trow (Reinbeck: Rowohlt, 1990; DM 10.80); a translation of BRIGADE: FURTHER ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE (1986). SHERLOCK HOLMES UND DIE VERSCHWUNDENE PRINZESSIN, by Val Andrews and Ian Wilkes (Munich: Knauer, 1990; DM 7.80); a translation of SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE DISAPPEARING PRINCESS (Romford: Ian Henry, 1989). EINSTEIN UND SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Alexis Lecaye (Frankfurt: Fischer, 1990); a translation (from the French) of EINSTEIN ET SHERLOCK HOLMES (1989).
523. Dick also reports that Sherlock Holmes can be seen in a second-floor window at 221B Baker Street at the Universal Studios tour in Hollywood.
524. Reported by Ron De Waal: THE MYSTERY BOOK OF DAYS, by William Malloy (New York: Mysterious Press, 1990; $15.95); with many Sherlockian entries and illustrations. And a paperback reprint of ENGLISH COUNTRY HOUSE MURDERS, edited by Thomas Godfrey (New York: Mysterious Press/Warner Books, 1990; $4.95); first published in 1988 (Feb 89 #3), the anthology includes "The Abbey Grange" and James Miles' pastiche "The Worcester Enigma".
-
525. Dec 90 #6: A report on the S'ian movie material auctioned at Christie's East on Dec. 11 (Nov 90 #3): the prices (including 10% buyer's commission) were $11,550 for the full-color one-sheet for John Barrymore's "Sherlock Holmes" (1922), $4,180 for the rotogravure one-sheet, $4,180 for the eight full-color lobby cards, and $5,500 for the full-color one-sheet for Basil Rathbone's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939).
526. The Walt Disney Co. has decided not to buy Henson Associates. Negotiations began last year (Sep 89 #1) with a Disney bid for the Muppets, Kermit, and Miss Piggy (at an estimated price of $100 million), but other Sesame Street characters owned by the Children's Television Workshop (including Sherlock Hemlock) were not part of the deal. The death of Jim Henson (May 90 #7), and the loss of his creative input, led Disney to reduce its offer, and the negotiations have now ended.

527. Jon L. Breen does not often review mystery material for children in Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, but a thoroughly justified exception is his plug in the Feb. 1991 issue for Holmes for the Holidays, which I've mentioned before, and will again: it's published five times a year ($7.50) by Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233) and a fine gift for youngsters who are (or who should be) interested in mysteries, Sherlockian or otherwise.
528. There's a collectible variant of the semi-miniature book (2.75 x 3.25 in., 153 pp.) SHERLOCK HOLMES: TWO COMPLETE ADVENTURES (Jun 89 #7). The first printing (with a line on the title-page verso numbered 9 through 1) had a dust jacket incorrectly titled SHERLOCK HOLMES: THREE COMPLETE ADVENTURES; the second printing (with a line numbered 9 through 2) has a dust jacket with the correct title. $4.95 in bookstores, or $7.45 postpaid from the Running Press, 125 South 22nd Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103.
529. The latest issue of the Kansas City Daily Journal (the newsletter of the Great Alkali Plainsmen of Greater Kansas City) reports on the success of this summer's "Holmes on the Range" convention, and plans for a repeat in 1992, and the possibility of a convention in Tulsa in 1994.
530. Audio Editions (Box 6930, Auburn, CA 95604) (800-231-4261) has issued a new catalog, with listings that include a set of four cassettes with stories from the 1986 Mystery Writers of America anthology LAST LAUGHS ($24.95); one of the stories on the cassette is Edward D. Hoch's "The Most Dangerous Man" (D4992b). Also eight of the cassettes with the Rathbone/Bruce radio programs ($9.95 each), FOUR SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES with four stories read by Robert Hardy on two cassettes ($14.95), and MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES with four stories read by Robert Hardy ($9.95).
531. Thoroughly unusual, and amusing: a "Deelites" stuffed dog in Sherlockian costume, in a 13-inch high display box, holding a flashlight that you can turn on and off by wagging his tail. Made by Chosun International in Korea and priced at $14.99. And I can only recommend that you pester your local toy dealers, because I have no idea who's distributing this line.
532. Forecast from Pinnacle (fall 1991): THE CAT'S EYE, the third book in Marian J. A. Jackson's amusing series about Abigail Patience Danforth (Sep 90 #5).
533. Dec 90 #7: The newest anthology from a scion society is THE VIEW-HALLOA: SHERLOCKIAN ESSAYS, edited by Dana Richards (Charlottesville: The Game Is Afoot, 1990; 94 pp., $9.00 postpaid). The contents include a history of the society and a sample of the society's quizzes, and a series of papers presented at its meetings. The papers are well above average, both in execution and in content, addressing topics such as national and ethnic prejudices in the Canon, governesses in Victorian society, and the Victorian (and Canonical) attitudes toward bereavement. Order from Dana Richards, 1605 Dublin Road, Charlottesville, VA 22903.
534. A Japanese department store has paid £9,500 to hire an armchair which many of its customers believe was used by Sherlock Holmes, according to press reports from Britain. The chair, "which was found in the lodging house at 221B Baker Street that now houses the Sherlock Holmes Museum", was insured for £100,000 for the two-week trip to Tokyo. Museum marketing director John Aidiniantz told reporters that "many fans still think the fictitious detective is alive."
535. Mail addressed to 221B Baker Street still goes to the Abbey National Bank, of course, where Sherlock Holmes' new secretary, Erica Harper, answers his correspondence and receives mail intended for the Museum. "We get their letters, which we return to the Post Office marked 'not at this address,'" Erica told a reporter.
536. Arthur and Joyce Ann Liebman's two-week "Mystery-Lover's Tour of England in the Footsteps of Sherlock, Dracula, and Agatha" last summer will done twice next year, on May 18-June 1 and June 29-July 13, 1991. Details available from Contemporary Tours, 580 Plandome Road, Manhasset, NY 11030.
537. An intriguing addition to the list of activities scheduled during the 1991 birthday festivities: the Second Annual International New York Christopher Morley Memorial Walk, organized and guided by kinsprits Allen Mackler and Charley Shields on Thursday, Jan. 10. The walk will convene at 8:45 am in the lobby of the Hotel Algonquin, and will be off and strolling at 9:00 am, with plans to visit six to eight sites of interest to admirers of Morley.
538. There will be some travel by subway and bus, and possibly taxi (or private car if anyone wants to volunteer to supply one), and lunch at "some midtown beanery," and the tour will end about 4:00 pm. Participants will pay their own expenses, and reservations can be made by message to Allen Mackler at the Hotel Iroquois (212-840-3080) on Wednesday, Jan. 9.
539. The manuscripts of "The Dying Detective" and "The Lion's Mane" are now at the Marylebone Library in London, on indefinite loan from their present owner. Inherited by Lady Doyle, and then by Denis, the manuscripts were sent to auction in 1966 by Denis' widow (the Princess Mdivani), and bought (for about $2,000 each) by a private collector whose son has now deposited them at the Library in order to make them available to scholars. Microfilm will be available early in 1991, according to Catherine Cooke.
540. Mike Kean has forwarded a report (from Frequent Flyer, Dec. 1990) that the Langham Hotel, built in 1865, mentioned in the Canon, and eventually used by the BBC, will reopen as a hotel in Mar. 1991. Hilton International has spent four years and $180 million restoring the 410-room West End landmark.
-
541. Dec 90 #8: BUSTER BUNNY IN BUSTER'S BIG CASE, written by Brad Gilchrist and illustrated by the Guy Gilchrist Studios, is a children's book spun off from the "Tiny Toon Adventures" animated television series, with Buster in Sherlockian costume on the cover and in the story. If you can't find it in your supermarket or book-store children's shelves, the publisher is Longmeadow Press and the distributor is Book Sales Inc. (110 Enterprise Avenue, Secaucus, NJ 07904).
542. And for older children there is Moira Butterfield's THE USBORNE BOOK OF LONDON (London: Usborne, 1987; 64 pp., $8.95). It's a nicely illustrated guide to London's past and present, with a section on "Legendary Londoners" (Sherlock Holmes, Charles Dickens, Jack the Ripper, and Dick Whittington), and it's distributed here by EDC Publishing (10302 East 55th Place, Tulsa, OK 74146).
543. Glen Petrie's THE DORKING GAP AFFAIR: A MYCROFT HOLMES ADVENTURE, first published in 1989, is now available in paperback (London: Corgi Books, 1990; 336 pp., £3.50). Sherlock Holmes, in the 1870s still a student at university, appears only incidentally, and it is Mycroft who battles and outwits the villains. Petrie has devised an interesting plot, and drawn his characters well. The second book in the series, not yet seen, is THE MONSTROUS REGIMENT (London: Bantam Press, 1990; £12.99).
544. Reported by Rosemary Michaud: the 1991 BOOK LOVERS' CALENDAR, compiled by Elizabeth W. Hill and Martha H. Starr, with the page for January showing a picture of the Sherlock Holmes room at the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library and two Canonical quotations. The publisher is Starrhill Press, Box 32342, Washington, DC 20007, and the price is $10.95 postpaid.
545. The Talking Tape Company Limited (Unit 11, Shaftesbury Industrial Centre, The Runnings, Cheltenham, Glos. GL51 9NH, England) is now issuing audio cassettes of the 30-minute adaptations of 24 of the Canonical tales that offered in-flight entertainment on British Airways beginning in 1987. The dramatizations by Grant Eustace are faithful and careful, and the cast is excellent, with Roy Marsden as Holmes and John Moffatt as Watson. Marsden will be familiar to viewers of PBS-TV ("Inspector Dalglish", "Goodbye Mr. Chips", and "The Sandbaggers"), and Moffatt has played both Holmes (in a BBC radio version of Loren D. Estleman's "Sherlock Holmes vs. Dracula" in 1981) and Watson (in a BBC radio version of Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" in 1987). There are six cassettes in the series, each with four stories, and the cost per cassette is £7.99 postpaid.

546. A flier is now available for The Cremona Fiddlers' symposium at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg on June 14-16. Their 1987 symposium had more than 200 participants (and a full house, so don't wait until the last minute to register). Write to Ray Betzner, 2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, VA 23185.
547. The tenth annual Sherlock Holmes/Arthur Conan Doyle Symposium is scheduled for Mar. 9-10 at Wright State University in Dayton. Details are available from A. E. Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

---

Jan 91 #1:

1. Travelers to Britain will know how colorful the Bank of England's notes are. They also carry copyright notices (on the new £5 note, at least). One would think that the laws against counterfeiting would cover violation of the copyright on bank notes, but perhaps not.
2. Editions Claude Lefrancq is issuing a series of attractive 48-page hardcover graphic-novel adaptations and pastiches, including SHERLOCK HOLMES: LA SANGSUE ROUGE [The Red Leech], with a story by Andre-Paul Duchateau and artwork by Guy Clair. LA BEQUILLE EN ALUMINIUM [The Aluminum Crutch] is scheduled later in the series, and the company's address is 386 chaussee d'Alseberg, 1180 Bruxelles, Belgium.
3. Videotaper alert: The Movie Channel will show "Duck Soup" (1933) on Feb. 8 and 9. This is a Marx Brothers comedy, with Harpo in Sherlockian costume in one of the early scenes.
4. Reported by Tim O'Connor: the next issue of Argosy (v. 3, n. 3) ($4.00 in most comic-book shops) will have a cover portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Steranko, plus a reprint of Ellery Queen's "A Study in Terror" (D6065a). Also: your bookstore bargain tables should have Charles Viney's SHERLOCK HOLMES IN LONDON ($12.50, discounted from $24.95) and Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES ($4.98, discounted from $9.98).
5. Reported by Joe Eckrich: lengthy discussion of Universal's Rathbone/Bruce pictures in UNIVERSAL HORRORS: THE STUDIO'S CLASSIC FILMS, 1931-1946, by Michael Brunas, John Brunas, and Tom Weaver (Jefferson, N.C.: McFarland & Co., 1990; 616 pp., $45.00). And discount offers in the latest catalog from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031): MYSTERY FOR CHRISTMAS, edited by Richard Dalby (New York: Gallery Books, 1990; $5.98), with Ron Weighell's pastiche "The Case of the Fiery Messengers" (first published by Michael O'Mara in London at £14.95); and CRIME AT CHRISTMAS, edited by Jack Adrian (London: Equation, 1988; $7.95), with reprints of the Peter Todd pastiches "Herlock Sholmes's Christmas Case" (D4957b) and "The Secret in the Pudding Bag" (D4965b).
6. An Associated Press report with a Victoria Falls dateline (in the Boston Globe on Dec. 21, 1990) indicates that work is now underway on "Sherlock Holmes and the Incident at Victoria Falls" (with Christopher Lee as Holmes and Patrick Macnee as Watson). "We have brought Holmes to colonial Africa to hobnob with the rich and famous," executive producer Harry Alan Towers said. "We've aged him a little, but otherwise we've taken no liberties." The four-hour television mini-series will be the sequel to "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" (as yet not scheduled for broadcast).
7. The winter-autumn 1990 issue of The Pipe Smoker's Ephemeris at hand from Tom Dunn (20-37 120th Street, College Point, NY 11356), with 74 pages of news, comment, correspondence, poetry, fiction, and illustrations about pipes, tobacco, cigars, smoking, and anything else that interests members of Tom's "universal coterie of pipe smokers" (and with more than ten pages of Sherlockiana in this issue). There is no charge for membership or for subscriptions, but Tom welcomes contributions, financial or otherwise.

---

8. Jan 91 #2: Baskerville Hall (well, at least one of the many candidates) is still on the market. Brook Manor, home of the infamous Richard Cabell, was offered for sale a bit more than a year ago (Nov 89 #2), with an asking price of £600,000 (the present owners, after rewiring the house and adding central heating and new bathrooms, used the house for bed and breakfast on a small scale, and the estate agents have suggested that the ten-bedroom property could be adapted as a guesthouse or small hotel). £600,000 is still the asking price, but the last time Brook Manor was on the market (Oct 86 #4), the price was only £150,000.
9. Bill Barton reports that his new tongue-in-cheek rock 'n' role-playing game "So Ya Wanna Be a Rock 'n' Roll Star?" is not Sherlockian, but does include many S'ian names and references. Available for $14.95 postpaid from Bill Barton, Box 26290, Indianapolis, IN 46226.
10. "Mystery!" celebrated its tenth anniversary last year with a poster that shows the series' most popular characters (including Holmes and Watson), drawn by Edward Gorey. The poster (30"x46") is available for $20.00 plus shipping from Signals, Box 64428, St. Paul, MN 55164 (800-669-5225), and they take plastic.
11. Reported by John Stephenson: ABBOTT AND COSTELLO: THE CLASSIC COMICS, a comic book published by Malibu Graphics, with Costello in S'ian costume on p. 44.
12. The Franklin Mint isn't the only company specializing in lengthy series of collectibles: Mike Kean reports that The Teddy Guild (Thistle Mill, Biggar ML12 6LP, Great Britain) has a subscription series of 36 "Famous Teddies". You get two a month (£10.90), and one of them is dressed as Sherlock Holmes (of course). They take plastic, in case anyone wants to subscribe, hoping that Sherlock Holmes won't be in the last monthly shipment.
13. Studio Gallery Decorative Editions has sent an illustrated flier for their new eight-inch bone-china plate honoring the Sherlock Holmes Public House (that's the pub in London). The price is $50.00 postpaid, and the address is 50 Caledonian Road, London N1 9DP, England.
14. Mark Erdrich reports three S'ian rubber stamps available from Stampstastic, 2461 San Diego Avenue (Old Town), San Diego, CA 92110 (800-833-1252); the magnifying-glass design costs $5.45, and the other two cost $6.95 each.

---

15. Jan 91 #3: And yes, the birthday festivities in New York were (as usual) crowded, hectic, interesting, and enjoyable. Thursday is still essentially a day for informal events (such as the Annual International New York Christopher Morley Memorial Walk and the annual meeting of The Pawky Humorists), book-hunting, and sight-seeing, for those who arrive in New York early. The official festivities started Friday, with the Mrs. Hudson Breakfast for more than 50 people, welcomed by Tom and Ruthann Stetak in a new and comfortable venue on the second floor of the Algonquin. Susan Rice presided over the William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead (also well attended), and Otto Penzler offered hospitality (and Sherlockian books) at his open house at the Mysterious Book Shop.
16. The Baker Street Irregulars met at 24 Fifth Avenue, where *The* Woman was Joan Wood, who was toasted by Andy Peck during the pre-dinner cocktail party, and then departed to dine at Le Quercy with other ladies who have received that honor. The BSI's annual-dinner agenda included the usual toasts and other traditions, David Musto's account of his visit to the U.S.S.R. and his meeting with a newly-founded scion (The Red-Headed League of Moscow), news of "Aunt Clara" from Bill Rabe (Fred Page and Wayne Swift sang her praises with the original music), papers by Bob Brody (on the future careers of some of the Canonical criminals who escaped justice) and Wayne Swift (on his continuing research on Silver Blaze) and Norman Davis (on Sherlockian handicapping), a presentation by Don Yates of a one-minute version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (followed by his one-second version of the same story), and an award by Philip Shreffler to Don Redmond (honoring his 21 years of indexing of the BSJ).

17. Irregular Shillings and Investitures were awarded to Henry Enberg ("John Garrideb"), Steve Tolins ("John Straker"), Joe Moran ("Augustus Moran, C.B."), Charley Shields ("17 King Edward Street"), Glen Miranker ("*The Origin of Tree Worship*"), and Bill Nadel ("Bartholomew Sholto"), and Ely Liebow received a Two-Shilling Award (for extraordinary devotion to the cause beyond the call of duty).
18. The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes also gathered for dinner on Friday evening, at the Algonquin, where the entertainment included presentations by Ruthann Stetak (on "An American Borgia") and Linda Anderson (offering her suggestion that Sherlock Holmes, during the Great Hiatus, toured with and occasionally substituted for the divine Sarah Bernhardt), and Ann Byerly's rendition of "Aunt Clara" (also to the original music) and "The Contortionist's Daughter" (also written by Bud Willis and his wife, and no more sedate than "Aunt Clara").
19. On Saturday morning the usual suspects gathered at the Algonquin to buy and sell in the Huckster's Room, and the BSI's afternoon cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue included now-traditional poetic reports by Al Rosenblatt and Susan Rice on the Friday dinners, a presentation of the Commissionaire's Award to George Fletcher in recognition of his 16 years of service to the BSI and the BSJ at the Fordham University Press (George now has a new job, as curator at the Pierpont Morgan Library), a spirited Sherlockian auction that raised $800 for the John H. Watson Fund, and a Canonical fashion show modeled by Cynthia Wein, Joanne Zahorsky, Jean Upton, Ellen Morgenstern, Nancy Klimple, Camille Torrese, Carol Adams, and Maureen Green.

---

20. Jan 91 #4: Continuing the report on the birthday festivities (and indeed there's more to report) and on Saturday's cocktail party: Tom Stix announced the award of additional Irregular Shillings and Investitures to Edwin V. King ("Captain Arthur Morstan"), Dame Jean Conan Doyle ("A Certain Gracious Lady"), Katherine McMahon ("Lucy Ferrier"), Edith Meiser ("A Fascinating and Beautiful Woman"), Evelyn Herzog ("The Daintiest Thing Under a Bonnet"), Julia Carlson Rosenblatt ("Mrs. Turner"), and Susan Rice ("Beeswing"), and reminded the new Irregulars that all members of the BSI are entitled to attend the BSI's annual dinner.
21. And on Saturday evening some Sherlockians (but not many, since the theater seats only 40) journeyed far off-off-Broadway to the Prometheus Theatre on East 5th Street to see "Sherlock Holmes: The Eclipse Conspiracy" (produced, directed, and written by Fred Fondren, who also played Holmes). Sherlock Holmes foils Moriarty's evil plot to gain control of the crystal cross, a long-lost mystic device that will bring civilization to an end by producing an artificial eclipse.
22. Perhaps the most intriguing item in the Huckster Room during the birthday festivities was a first-of-its-kind $1.00 "Silver Screen" lottery ticket with a portrait of Sherlock Holmes. You scratch the play area to see if you win from $1 to $1,000 or a trip to Hollywood (or nothing, of course). The Western Canada Lottery Corp. runs the show, but guaranteed non-winner tickets are available for $1.00 each postpaid from Benton Wood, Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
23. Ben also offers the latest publication from The Pleasant Places of Florida: the SHERLOCKIAN SING-A-LONG, a 24-page spiral-bound collection of music and words adapted by Charles Michael Carroll and Benton Wood. The collection is billed, and quite accurately, as "a goodly batch of Doylean ditties, Baker Street ballads, and Holmesian hummers especially adapted for scion gatherings and Conanical conclaves," and the booklet costs $6.00 postpaid.
24. Chris Redmond reports his new address: 523 Westfield Drive, Waterloo, Ont. N2T 2E1, Canada (there's no change in his telephone number).
25. Keye Luke died on Jan. 12. His first acting role was in Greta Garbo's film "The Painted Veil" and his last was in Woody Allen's just-released "Alice", but he will be remembered best as Lee Chan, Charlie Chan's "Number One Son" in the long series of Warner Oland films in the 1930s. He can be seen in Sherlockian costume in "Charlie Chan on Broadway" (1937).
26. Reported: THE GREAT DETECTIVE PICTURES, by James Robert Parish and Michael R. Pitts (Metuchen: Scarecrow Press, 1990; 630 pp., $59.50), with coverage of many Sherlockian films.
27. Cricket was one of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's favorite sports, and one that was not neglected in his writings (see his fine tribute to W. G. Grace, and his humorous short stories "How the Brigadier Triumphed in England" and "The Story of Spedegue's Dropper"). LORD'S & COMMONS: CRICKET IN NOVELS AND STORIES, edited by John Bright-Holmes (London: Penguin Books, 1990; 352 pp., £7.99), has nothing by Conan Doyle, but offers instead an excerpt from Stanley Shaw's 1985 pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES AT THE 1902 FIFTH TEST MATCH.

---

28. Jan 91 #5: Further to the report (Dec 90 #7) that the Langham Hotel will be reopened in March, Mary Ellen Rich notes in the winter 1990 issue of The Serpentine Muse that each of its suites will be named to honor a renowned past visitor (including Sir Arthur Conan Doyle), and that room 333 reportedly houses a possibly-Canonical ghost. The Serpentine Muse is published by The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes, and costs $6.00 for four issues (Evelyn Herzog, 235 West 15th Street #4-B, New York, NY 10011).
29. CHUCK AMUCK, by Chuck Jones (New York: Avon Books, 1990; $12.95) is a fine autobiography of the man responsible for many of the splendid Warner Bros. cartoons, one of which was "Deduce, You Say!" (1956). The book has many illustrations, including a pencil sketch of Dorlock Holmes and Dr. Watkins (on pages 106-107).
30. Jeremy Brett, very briefly in Washington, reported that the new Granada series will air in Britain in February, and in the United States later in the year, and that he is revising the first act of "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" and hopes to have the play on tour in the U.S. toward the end of 1991. He was here for Mobil's private dinner party at the State Department to celebrate the 20th anniversary of "Masterpiece Theatre" (other guests included Alistair Cooke, Francesca Annis, Steven Fry, John Hurt, Geraldine James, Hugh Laurie, Ian McShane, Jean Marsh, Keith Michell, Ian Richardson, Diana Rigg, and Simon Williams).
31. A sampling of the long series of school-boy-magazine parodies written by Charles Hamilton (as Peter Todd) (see D4956b-D4966b) was published as THE ADVENTURES OF HERLOCK SHOLMES (1976), and all 95 of the stories are now available in THE COMPLETE CASEBOOK OF HERLOCK SHOLMES (London: Hawk Books, 1989; 287 pp., £9.95). The book may still be available from the Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019) for $19.95.
32. Also available from the Mysterious Bookshop is A SINGULAR SET OF PEOPLE, edited by Marlene Aig and David Galerstein (New York: Magico Magazine, 1990; 127 pp., $14.95). The book is a fine anthology, presenting (and occasionally reprinting) contributions by an assortment of imaginative Sherlockians who are members of New York scions (or who have attended a meeting of a New York scion, or who may be thinking about doing so).
33. Glen Petrie's THE MONSTROUS REGIMENT: A MYCROFT HOLMES ADVENTURE (London: Bantam Press, 1990; 304 pp., £12.95) is a sequel to THE DORKING GAP AFFAIR (Dec 90 #8), and a good one. Sherlock Holmes has left his university, but again appears only incidentally, and it is Mycroft who frustrates a new scheme devised by the villainous Guttman and his evil associates.
34. Mark Erdrich reports a remotely-Sherlockian discovery for those who think that the type-face designed by John Baskerville in 1757 is relevant: a ten-inch circular battery-powered wall clock with Baskerville numbering and lettering, offered at $65.00 in a catalog from Williams-Sonoma (Box 7456, San Francisco, CA 94120).
35. And Mark kindly offers photocopies of Bernard Knight's four-page pastiche "Sherlock Holmes Returns to the Case" (New Scientist, Dec. 24, 1988). Send a #10 SASE to Mark W. Erdrich, 49 Kings Lacey Way, Fairport, NY 104450.

36. Jan 91 #6: Viktor Shklovsky's THEORY OF PROSE, written in Russian 1925 but only recently completely translated into English, was published last year in cloth binding ($29.95), and is now available in paper covers (Lisle: Dalkey Archive Press, 1991; 216 pp., $12.95). Shklovsky's book was a highly-regarded (and thoroughly academic) exploration of literary theory, and the literature considered includes mystery stories in general, and the Sherlock Holmes stories in particular (both from the Canon and from early pastiches). The publisher's address is 5700 College Road, Lisle, IL 60532.
37. Videotaper alert: Reginald Owen's "A Study in Scarlet" (1933) will air on Arts & Entertainment cable on Feb. 17. No explanation has been offered for the strange disappearance of "The Triumph of Sherlock Holmes" last month.
38. For those who weren't able to find the discounted one-volume edition of William S. Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (now out of print and with no reprint scheduled), Tim O'Connor reports that it is offered (item 623415) by Edward R. Hamilton, Falls Village, CT 06031, at $29.95 (plus $3.00 shipping per order).
39. A flier at hand with news of the tenth annual Sherlock Holmes/Conan Doyle Symposium at Wright State University in Dayton on Mar. 9-10. The speakers will include Martin Arbagi, Jim Booth, Bob Fleissner, Mary Frost-Pierson, Paul Herbert, Jack Key, Roy Pilot, Jim Ravin, Ruthann and Tom Stetak, and John Zamonski, and additional information is available from Al Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.
40. Late-breaking news on the grand gourmet dinner at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park on May 4: wine and hors d'oeuvres at 6:30, dinner at 7:30, dress is black tie, the cost is $80.00 a person (with a maximum of four persons per reservation), names and addresses requested for all those covered by each reservation, checks should be sent (and made payable) to Albert M. Rosenblatt (Box 221-B, Pleasant Valley, NY 12569), first-come first-served (and you are advised to make your reservations quickly), and a self-addressed postal card is requested if you want positive confirmation. The Radisson Hotel in Poughkeepsie (914-485-5300) offers a special rate of $75.00 a room for those who identify themselves as Sherlockians.
41. According to my records, my 1991 seasonal souvenir ("LIGHT A CIGAR AND LET ME EXPOUND...") should be in the hands of all subscribers, received during the birthday festivities in New York, or since, or with this mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.
42. The new postage rates will require modest increases in prices. Renewals and new subscriptions to the **Scuttlebutt** now cost $8.50 a year (somewhat higher for subscribers outside the United States). The up-to-date 11-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and **The* Women* costs $1.10 postpaid. The 57-page list of 532 Sherlockian societies, with names and addresses for the 315 active societies, costs $3.55 postpaid. And the run of address labels for 277 individual contacts (recommended for those who wish to avoid making duplicate mailings to people who are contacts for more than one society) costs $10.25 postpaid.

---

43. Feb 91 #1: Ronald Pearsall's SHERLOCK HOLMES INVESTIGATES THE MURDER IN EUSTON SQUARE (Newton Abbot: David & Charles, 1989; 186 pp., £9.95) is less of a pastiche than an example of how authors use Sherlock Holmes as a hook on which to hang their own work: Pearsall starts with a murder in London in 1877 (the body was not found until 1879), and presents his own solution (a rather complicated one, involving depravity, insanity, and the Royal family) in a ten-years-later investigation by Sherlock Holmes.
44. Reported but not seen: L. B. Greenwood's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE THISTLE OF SCOTLAND was the Detective Book Club selection for Oct. 1989. This variant is probably identifiable only from the dust jacket.
45. A videotaper alert: Richard Wein reports that Arts & Entertainment has not given up on "The Triumph of Sherlock Holmes" (1935), which is now scheduled for one two-hour showing at 9:00 am on Mar. 16.
46. Spotted by Jim Vogelsang in Kool-Aid's "Having Kids Times": Walt Disney's "The Great Mouse Detective" will be coming your way this season (but with nothing to indicate just which season).
47. An article by Enid Rhodes Peschel and Richard E. Peschel ("Sherlock Holmes Foiled by an Opera Star") in the autumn 1990 issue of Opera Quarterly (at hand from Pat Ward) suggests that the contralto Giulia Ravogli might have contributed to the inspiration for the character of Irene Adler. Ravogli made her debut at Covent Garden in Oct. 1890, appearing in male costume as Urbain in "Les Huguenots" and as Orfeo in "Orfeo ed Euridice", and received rave reviews (George Bernard Shaw said that he was "infatuated" with her).
48. Last year Great Britain issued a set of commemoratives that show the nation's important medals, including the Victoria Cross. The Canonical connection is "Emsworth, the Crimean V.C." in "The Blanched Soldier".
49. Sherry Rose-Bond reports an advertisement by Home Vision offering six of the MPI Home Video cassettes of Granada's Jeremy Brett series at $24.95 each (discounted from the regular price of $29.98). Home Vision, Box 800, Concord, MA 01742 (800-262-8600).
50. The London Library was founded on May 3, 1841, in two rooms in Pall Mall, with 3,000 books. It has close to a million books today, and is still a private library (a year's subscription costs £80). This year's celebration of its 150th anniversary will include publication of RUDE WORDS, a history of the library by John Wells. It remains to be seen whether the book will mention Dr. Watson's visit to the library to consult with his friend Lomax, the sublibrarian, as recorded in "The Illustrious Client".
51. Further to the report (Jan 91 #1) on MYSTERY FOR CHRISTMAS, the anthology edited by Richard Dalby (New York: Gallery Books, 1990; $5.98), with Ron Weighell's pastiche ("The Case of the Fiery Messengers"), the book also has "The Soldier", a non-S'ian story by Roger Johnson, the British Holmesian.

---

52. Feb 91 #2: Sherlockian games are now being developed for home television sets, and at least one of them will be available this spring. According to an article in the Washington Post (Feb. 6), Nintendo (which has 80 percent of the U.S. market for cartridge games) and Sony have agreed to a joint venture that will put video games on compact discs, using the massive storage capacity available on compact discs to offer better sound and image quality, and some digitized video. The Nintendo-Sony machine is expected to be marketed in Japan in 1992 and in the U.S. in 1993, but a similar machine is already available here: the NEC TurboGrafx-16, which is a cartridge machine ($160 suggested retail) with an add-on machine ($400 suggested retail) that will play compact discs. And Commodore is ready to market its own CDTV compact-disc machine, which will contain an Amiga 500 computer; the CDTV will be released in late March or early April, and will sell for $999 suggested retail; the CDTV will run audio discs, game discs, and text discs (the Grolier Encyclopedia and others now being developed for the CDTV). All three of the systems connect to home stereo and television sets rather than to computers.
53. And ICOM Simulations has developed "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" (a compact-disc game based on Sleuth Publications' boxed game). The ICOM compact disc has three adventures ("The Mummy's Curse", "The Case of the Mystified Murderess", and "The Case of the Tin Soldier"), presented with text, graphics, and some video. 120 scenes were taped for the video, with 35 actors, and production costs have totaled $1 million, including $300,000 for the video shoot. ICOM has already engineered the game in Japanese for Fujitsu, and in Japanese and English for NEC, and ICOM is now engineering a version for Commodore. The NEC version of the game is scheduled for launch in March ($62 suggested retail). And Jon Lellenberg reports that Commodore is working with a British company that is developing a different game based on the Webb & Bower "dossier" edition of "The Hound of the Baskervilles".

54. Meetings of The Hansom Wheels of Columbia, S.C., often feature the dramatic efforts of the scion's members, and scripts for five original one-act plays written by Lloyd W. Brown, Jr., in radio format, with broad humor and many fine puns, have now been published as THE UNKNOWN SHERLOCK HOLMES (63 pp., $15.00 postpaid from the author, 103 Snow Court, Lexington, SC 29073).
55. Reported by Jack Kerr: volume 10 of the Simon & Schuster Audioworks series of THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is in the shops, with "In Flanders Fields" and "The Eyes of Mr. Leyton" from the Rathbone/Bruce radio series. And Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's NATE THE GREAT AND THE HALLOWEEN HUNT has been published as a Dell Young Yearling paperback ($2.95).
56. Reported on audio cassettes: LAST LAUGHS: THE MYSTERY WRITERS OF AMERICA ANTHOLOGY, edited by Gregory McDonald (Dove Books on Tape); nine stories, including Edward D. Hoch's "The Most Dangerous Man" (D4992b) read by John Standing. PARTNERS IN CRIME: THREE VOLUMES (Listen for Pleasure); Agatha Christie's stories (including D5857a) read by James Warwick.
57. If you do much airmailing to overseas addresses, you can save some money by making note of the new rates: 50 cents for the first half-ounce, 45 cents for the second half-ounce, and 39 cents for additional half-ounces. I've not seen this mentioned in any of the press reports on the new rates.

---

58. Feb 91 #3: Henry Lauritzen ("The Royal Family of Scandinavia") died on Jan. 30. Henry was devoted to Sherlock Holmes, horse racing, cigars, and brandy, and he was the sparking-plug of the Sherlockians in Denmark for many years. His long series of Christmas annuals reflected his wide-ranging interests and his wonderful sense of humor, and he was one of the truly great Sherlockian artists (his portrait of John Bennett Shaw can be seen on the title page of the Dec. 1990 issue of the BSJ). He received his Irregular Investiture in 1961, the Two-Shilling Award in 1985, and the Commissionaire's Award in 1990.
59. Reported: THE YEAR'S BEST MYSTERY AND SUSPENSE STORIES, edited by Edward D. Hoch (New York: Walker, 1990; $18.95), has Elizabeth Peters' "The Locked Tomb Mystery" (set in ancient Egypt, with a mystery solved with careful Sherlockian deduction by the sage and scholar Amenhotep Sa Hapu, with the assistance of his friend Wadjsen). Peters' story was first published in SISTERS IN CRIME (Jul 89 #5).
60. Additional comment on our new postal rates, which seem high only until one notes what other countries pay: the domestic rate in Canada is 40 cents (US 35 cents) for 30 grams (1.05 ounces). The rate for international airmail from Canada is 80 cents (US 69 cents) for 20 grams (0.7 ounces).
61. A new Sherlockian statue ("beautiful," according to John Bennett Shaw) has been sculpted by midwestern artist Tom Beard and cast in bronze (9 inches high, on a walnut base) in an edition of 250 copies. $415 (plus $10 shipping) from the Tom Beard Art Studio, 8312 East 104th Terrace, Kansas City, MO 64134).
62. The Sherlock Holmes Wireless Society has commissioned a one-inch lapel pin that will sell for $12.00, and the deadline for orders is Mar. 20. Write to Ron Fish (Box 3382, New Haven, CT 06515) for an illustrated flier.
63. Mary Ann and Ed Rochette (Sherlock, Stock & Barrel, Box 8261, Colorado Springs, CO 80933) have issued a second sales list of Sherlockian honey, statues, T-shirts, and other collectibles.
64. Anna Conan Doyle died in December in Switzerland. She married Adrian Conan Doyle in 1938, joined him in his travels and on some of his expeditions (he described their hunt for Indian Ocean sharks, in a ship they renamed the *Gloria Scott*, in his 1953 book HEAVEN HAS CLAWS), and after his death in 1970 she was for a time manager of the Conan Doyle Foundation in Geneva.
65. If your local fast-food shops include Taco Bell, you might see if they have "Taco Man's Mystery House" carry-out bags and small "activity books" that show a deerstalked Taco Man.
66. Joanne Zahorsky (5190-3 King's Highway, Saugerties, NY 12477) offers a ten-inch cross-stitched Sherlockian clock ($35.00), and teddy bears dressed as Sherlock Holmes, Dr. Watson, or Irene Adler ($35.00), and happily accepts commissions for other teddy bears. Write to Joanne for details.

---

67. Feb 91 #4: The winter 1991 issue of Anglofile reports that "Doctor Who: The Talons of Weng-Chiang" is now available on videocassette from Playhouse Video at $19.95 (the 1977 six-part story featured Tom Baker in Sherlockian costume, battling giant rats). "Summer's Lease" will air on "Masterpiece Theatre" beginning May 12 (the 1989 BBC television series has Sherlockian allusions). And a new adventure/comedy film called "Sherlock Holmes' Arcane Adventure" is scheduled to begin filming in Estonia in April (this may be Loren D. Estleman's "Sherlock Holmes vs. Dracula"). Anglofile (six issues) costs $12.00 a year (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033), and offers massive coverage of British television, films, books, and records.
68. Current poster prices (from Cinemonde, 1932 Polk Street, San Francisco, CA 94109): $5,500 for a lobby card for "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939); $7,000 for a French poster (63x94") for "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" 1939); $750 for a one-sheet (27x41"), and $950 for a three-sheet (41x81") for "The Pearl of Death" (1944); and $125 for a lobby still for "Dressed to Kill" (1945).
69. None of John Bennett Shaw's many S'ian workshops have been directly honored by the U.S. Postal Service, but a postal card was issued last year showing the Memorial Court in the Quadrangle at Stanford University, where John presided over a workshop in 1981 (and where there was a second workshop in 1987). The first of John's S'ian workshops was held at Notre Dame in 1977, and the Postal Service plans to issue a new postal card on Oct. 13, showing the Administration Building at the University of Notre Dame.
70. The Knights of the Gnomon, organized in 1977 (or 1978), have published "An Introductory Handbook" that includes a history of the scion. The 40-page pamphlet is available for $6.00 postpaid from Richard R. Rutter, 1620 Granada Drive, Burlingame, CA 94010.
71. The locked-room mystery is practically a forgotten genre, in an era when who and why are generally considered to be more important than how, but Jack Adrian and Robert Adey have assembled a fine anthology of the genre. MURDER IMPOSSIBLE (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1990; 306 pp., $18.95) was published in Britain as THE ART OF THE IMPOSSIBLE (Xanadu, £14.95), and includes George Locke's short Morlock Tomes parody "A Nineteenth Century Debacle" (previously available only in a 1979 limited edition).
72. Warren Randall reports that there is one (and only one) S'ian reference in FODOR'S 91 LONDON, appropriately on page 221, where the guidebook discusses The Sherlock Holmes in Northumberland Street.
73. A spring 1991 catalog at hand from Jack Tracy (Gaslight Publications, 626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404), offering S'iana and D'iana from Gaslight and other publishers.
74. The Beeman's Christmas Annual (1990), published by The Occupants of the Empty House with 33 pp. of Sherlockian studies, is available from William R. Cochran, 517 North Vine Street, DeQuoin, IL 62832 ($7.00 postpaid).

---

75. Feb 91 #5: Those who own David L. Hammer's splendid travel books THE GAME IS AFOOT and FOR THE SAKE OF THE GAME will need no additional recommendation of TO PLAY THE GAME than the news that it has been published (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1991; 397 pp., $39.95 cloth, $19.95 paper). For newcomers, his third volume deals with the North America of Sherlock Holmes (both the United States and Canada), and with a few more recent Sherlockian sites (such as New Mexico's Moriarty Memorial Manure Pile and Oklahoma's Holmes Peak), and his style is both personal and literate. Recommended, and available from the publisher (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004); add $2.50 per copy (up to $5.00 per order) to cover shipping costs.

76. A new society lapel-pin is available from Watson's Erroneous Deductions, in brass decorated in black and white. $10.00 postpaid from Dick and Fran Kitts, 35 Van Cortlandt Avenue, Staten Island, NY 10301.
77. M. J. Trow's LESTRAD AND THE DEADLY GAME (London: Constable, 1990; 224 pp., £11.95) is the latest in his fine series of novels. This one is set in 1908, and Lestrade is now a Superintendent, investigating a series of murders that threaten to disrupt the Olympic Games. As usual, there is plenty of action and broad humor, as well as some fine puns.
78. A catalog at hand from La Sherlockiana, the Italian mystery-specialist book store (Piazza San Nazaro 3, 20122 Milano, Italy), with a nice assortment of Sherlockiana in Italian (priced in lire, currently about 1,133 lire to the dollar): Alan Arnold's PIRAMIDE DI PAURA (18,000), Isaac Asimov's SHERLOCK HOLMES NEL TEMPO E NELLO SPAZIO (22,000); Edmund Aubrey's SHERLOCK HOLMES A DALLAS (15,000); Henri Cami's LE AVVENTURE DI LUFOCK HOLMES (6,000); Allen Eyles' SHERLOCK HOLMES: ALBUM DEL CENTENARIO (35,000); Laura Grimaldi and Marco Tropea's ELEMENTARE, SIGNOR PRESIDENT (10,000); Michael and Mollie Hardwick's VITA PRIVATA DI SHERLOCK HOLMES (10,000); Alexis Lecaye's MARX E SHERLOCK HOLMES (14,000); Nicholas Meyer's LA SOLUZIONE SETTE PER CENTO (7,000); Rene Reouven's I PASSATEMPI DI SHERLOCK HOLMES (24,000); John R. Watson's 30 DUKE STREET (16,000); and translations of the Canon (16,000 to 60,000) and of Conan Doyle's works, including his autobiography UCCIDERO SHERLOCK HOLMES (20,000).
79. Reported by Ron De Waal: "Silver Blaze" in GREAT RACING STORIES, edited by Dick Francis and John Welcome (London: W. W. Norton, 1989), and published in the U.S. by Norton in 1990 as THE DICK FRANCIS TREASURY OF GREAT RACING STORIES ($19.95).
80. Chatto & Windus was one of the many British publishers that issued "popular editions" priced at sixpence and with striking color covers, and SIXPENNY WONDERFULS: 6D GEMS FROM THE PAST (London: Chatto & Windus, 1985; 69 pp.; £5.95) offers a nicely-illustrated tour of that publisher's contributions to the genre. They published only one of Conan Doyle's books (THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE), but Gordon Browne's cover for the six-penny edition receives a well-deserved full-page color illustration. The book may turn up on the discount tables (priced as low as $2.99), along with THE BEST OF CRIME & DETECTIVE TV, by Max Allan Collins and John Javna (New York: Harmony Books, 1988; 144 pp., $9.95), with two pages on Sherlock Holmes.
-
81. Feb 91 #6: Mark Hime (of Bibliotopus) had some nice Sherlockian items on display at the San Francisco International Antiquarian Bookfair this month: an inscribed copy of the first American edition (which appeared before the first British edition) of THE VALLEY OF FEAR ($12,500); the 22-page manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" ($155,000); and the 177-page manuscript of "The Valley of Fear" ($525,000).
82. "It was the worst enemy I had among them all," Jack Douglas said of Ted Baldwin, "one who has been after me like a hungry wolf after a caribou all these years." A recent issue from Canada shows a Peary caribou, and it makes a nice pair with last year's Canadian stamp showing a timber wolf (Feb 90 #6).
83. Bruce Holmes (64 Maple Circle, Dollard des Ormeaux, Quebec H9B 1E5, Canada) offers a sales list of Sherlockian collectibles, mostly philatelic, but also including an authentic J-pen nib.
84. A videotape alert: Richard Wein reports that "Count Duckula: All in a Fog" will run on Nickelodeon cable at 8:00 am on Mar. 17. "Count Duckula" was a British 30-minute animated series, made by Cosgrove Hall Productions for Thames Television in 1987; in this episode Count Duckula, in an attempt to be a detective, travels to London and meets Hawkeye Soames and Dr. Potson. Richard also reports that "Alfred Hitchcock Presents: My Dear Watson" will be repeated eventually on USA cable, but the repeats are out-of-sequence and he can't confirm a date (if you're desperate, you can call USA cable at 212-408-9100 and ask for programming); filmed in Toronto in 1988 and first aired in 1989, the 30-minute episode features Brian Bedford as Holmes and Patrick Monckton as Watson, but the best part of the show undoubtedly was Hitchcock himself, in a colorized introduction, wearing a deerstalker and blowing bubbles from a calabash pipe.
85. "Peanuts" is one of the largest-circulation comic strips in the world, and there will be few who did not see the pleasant tribute to "The Hound of the Baskervilles" that ran on Feb. 3. Many newspapers, however, do not run the Sunday strips complete: often an initial "throw-away" panel is omitted to make room for more comics, or advertising, or whatever. For the benefit of victims of this sort of censorship, here's the throw-away panel for Feb. 3:
-
86. Mar 91 #1: Tom Haas died on Feb. 21. He helped to found the Weathervane Theatre in Whitefield, N.H., and directed William Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" there in 1975, and it was at the Weathervane that his musical "Operetta, My Dear Watson" had its world premiere in 1979. He became artistic director of the Indiana Repertory Theatre in Indianapolis in 1980, reviving his musical in 1982, and directing Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" in 1990. In 1984 there were hopes for a production of "Operetta, My Dear Watson" in New York, and excerpts from the musical were performed for The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes during the birthday festivities.
87. Spaniels and hounds abound in the Canon, and are shown to nice advantage in a set of stamps issued by Britain this year with paintings by George Stubbs: "King Charles Spaniel" and "Two Hounds in a Landscape".
88. Flier at hand for the Third Canonical Convocation and Caper in Door County, Wis., on Sept. 13-15. Donald B. Izban (5334 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, IL 60639) will be happy to send additional information.
89. The Baker Street Dispatch, edited and published by Tom Biblewski and Dick Hopkins, is one of the newer S'ian newsletters, offering brief news items, quizzes, and puzzles. It is published six times a year, and there is no charge for subscriptions (though four or five first-class stamps would be welcome), and the address is Box 5503, Toledo, OH 43613.
90. John Bennett Shaw reports that Libreria Gigamesh has launched a new series of hard-bound Spanish translations of Sherlockiana, with new prefaces or afterwords, priced at 2,600 pesetas each. LAS HAZANAS DE SHERLOCK HOLMES [THE EXPLOITS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Adrian Conan Doyle and John Dickson Carr] has commentary by British bookseller David Kirby, and the next books in the series will be William S. Baring-Gould's SHERLOCK HOLMES OF BAKER STREET and Julian Symons' A THREE PIPE PROBLEM (with commentary by John Bennett Shaw). The publisher's address is Rona de San Pedro 53, 08010 Barcelona, Spain, and payment in Spanish currency is requested.
91. Thomas G. Kowols reports in the Feb. 1991 issue of The Police Gazette (the newsletter of The Scotland Yarders) that Doctor Who Magazine recently asked its readers who that would most like to see play the Doctor in a series or film. And the winner was Jeremy Brett (who was under consideration for the role in 1987, when the series was revived after an 18-month hiatus).
92. Reported by Bill Berner and Dick Rutter: a new translation into German by Oliver Bruhns (as WIE ES MIT SHERLOCK HOLMES ZU ENDE GING) of A. Boukhov's pastiche "The End of Sherlock Holmes". Boukhov was a Russian satirist who was forced into exile in 1917, and his pastiche was published in Maurice Dekobra's anthology THE CRIMSON SMILE (London: Laurie, 1929). The German version is a 24-page pamphlet, available for DM 15.00 ($10.00) from Colonel Stark's German Books, Kathe-Kollwitz-Weg 10, D-2400 Lubeck 1, Germany.
-
93. Mar 91 #2: The real mystery of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" is how Charles Dickens intended to complete the story, which was unfinished at the time of Dickens' death. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle discussed the problem with Dickens (via the medium Florizel von Reuter), and was told by Dickens that

- "Edwin is alive and Chris is hiding him" (see THE EDGE OF THE UNKNOWN, 1930, p. 149-153), and many Sherlockians have tried to solve the mystery (as early as Sept. 1905, when Andrew Lang proposed a pastiche-solution in Longman's Magazine). THE DISAPPEARANCE OF EDWIN DROOD, by Peter Rowland (London: Constable, 1991; 176 pp., £11.99), is an imaginative and amusing approach to the mystery: the novel opens with the arrival of John Jasper at Baker Street in 1894, to ask Sherlock Holmes to prove that Edwin Drood has been murdered, and offers an intriguing exploration and explanation of the problems posed by Dickens.
94. Switzerland, mentioned in three of the Canonical cases, celebrates its 700th anniversary this year, and a joint issue by Switzerland and the United States (with similar designs on both stamps) shows the Swiss Federal Palace (the Swiss Parliament building in Berne) and the U.S. Capitol in Washington (a city that is also mentioned in the Canon).
  95. August Derleth's talents as a writer extended far beyond his fine stories about Solar Pons, and the August Derleth Society continues to honor his work. Membership costs $6.00 a year (checks to Herb Attix, 3333 Westview Lane, Madison, WI 53713) and includes a quarterly newsletter; the current issue (Feb. 1991) has Robert W. Hahn's reminiscences about his trip, with four other Chicago Sherlockians, to visit Derleth in Sauk City in 1966.
  96. For the film buffs: GEORGE FLOREY, THE FRENCH IMPRESSIONIST, by Brian Taves (Metuchen: Scarecrow Press, 1987; 438 pp., $39.50), is a detailed study of one of Hollywood's great film-makers. Florey scripted the original version of "Frankenstein" and directed 65 features, including "Murders in the Rue Morgue", the Marx Brothers' "The Cocoanuts", and Reginald Owen's "A Study in Scarlet" (1933). Taves' discussion of "A Study in Scarlet" can also be found as an article in the spring 1989 issue of The Armchair Detective.
  97. Ron De Waal has sent a copy of the winter 1990 issue of Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought, with a long article by Michael W. Homer on "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: Spiritualism and 'New Religions'". The article covers Conan Doyle religious beliefs, his use of the Mormons in "A Study in Scarlet", and the Mormons' attitudes toward Conan Doyle when he visited Utah in 1923. $7.00 a copy, from the Dialogue Foundation, University Station (UMC 7805), Logan, UT 84322.
  98. The price of CD-ROM technology has begun to drop to relatively reasonable levels. For the non-computerized, that's "Compact Disc-Read Only Memory" (a compact disc holds as much information as 1,800 floppy disks, and the entire Oxford English Dictionary will fit on one compact disc). The early spring 1991 catalog from DAK Industries (8200 Remmet Avenue, Canoga Park, CA 91304) offers a BSR external CD-ROM drive (compatible with PC, XT, and AT computers) and six compact discs for $699. One of the compact discs is the "Library of the Future" (which includes THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES).
-
99. Mar 91 #3: Michael Hardwick ("The Sign of the Four") died on March 6. He became a writer almost by accident (working as a film producer in New Zealand, he was commissioned to write a book about the Royal Visit when Queen Elizabeth visited New Zealand in 1954), and he went on to become a prolific author in many fields. His first Sherlockian work, written with his wife Mollie, was THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COMPANION (1962), and their later joint credits included many adaptations of the Canon for stage, radio, and television. He also wrote fine novel-length pastiches (PRISONER OF THE DEVIL, THE PRIVATE LIFE OF DR. WATSON, SHERLOCK HOLMES: MY LIFE AND CRIMES, and THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND), and when he died he was working on his own Sherlockian memoirs for Gasogene Press. He was a fine raconteur, as many Sherlockians know from his American tours in 1980 and 1985, and he will be missed by his many friends and readers.
  100. Granada's new series of Sherlock Holmes programs made the newspapers in Britain, but the publicity wasn't quite what Granada expected. "Star's fury as TV Times bans Holmes photo" was the headline on one story, which reported that TV Times (the British equivalent of our TV Guide) had spent £10,000 shooting a cover photo for its Feb. 16 issue, and then killed the cover, which was to have shown Sherlock Holmes burning a letter, because (according to Jeremy Brett) "apparently the picture was too downbeat for the Gulf War." TV Times used instead a picture of newly-wed "Coronation Street" star Helen Worth and husband actor Michael Angelis. "I'm very disappointed," Brett said, "because I always said I'd play the part until I had been on the front cover of TV Times."
  101. British newspaper reviews of the new Jeremy Brett series, at hand from Jon Lellenberg, were generally favorable, though not as enthusiastic as for the earlier series. And an article in the Edinburgh Evening News reports that the new statue of Sherlock Holmes will be installed in Picardy Place in May (although the local branch of the Federation of Master Builders has so far raised only two-thirds of the estimated £45,000 cost); Prince Charles and Lady Diana have politely declined to unveil the statue, and the Federation is not optimistic about an invitation sent to the Queen Mother (they are also considering Sean Connery).
  102. Jon also reports SHERLOCK HOLMES: BOOK TWO (Newbury Park: Malibu Graphics, 1991; 132 pp., $17.95); this is a collection of the second five stories in Eternity's comic-book reprints of the 1954 comic strips by Edith Meiser and Frank Giacoia, edited by Tom Mason and with an Introduction by Jim Korkis and a Foreword by Martin Powell.
  103. Further to reports on the television film of "The Crucifer of Blood" (Oct 90 #5 and Nov 90 #3), Gary Westmoreland has heard from TNT that broadcast is now scheduled for Sept. 1991. The two-hour show stars Charlton Heston as Holmes and Richard Johnson as Watson.
  104. Fusion Video (17214 South Oak Park Avenue, Tinley Park, IL 60477) continues to offer 20 programs from the Jeremy Brett series on videocassettes ($19.98 each for the one-hour programs, and $39.98 each for the two longer shows), and "The Best of Sherlock Holmes" (the 30-minute cassette of excerpts from the series) at $9.98; shipping costs $4.50 per order, and their toll-free number is 800-338-7710. All the cassettes are packaged by MPI Home Video.
-
105. Mar 91 #4: John Bellairs died on Mar. 8. He was the author of 15 fine children's books, including THE TREASURE OF ALPHEUS WINTERBORN (1978), a non-Sherlockian book that turned Sherlockian when it was adapted for television and broadcast in the "CBS Children's Mystery Theatre" in 1980. The television version starred Keith McConnell as Holmes and Laurie Main as Watson, and is available on videocassette (as "The Clue According to Sherlock Holmes") from Video Gems.
  106. Chaiky Halpern's children's books MIHU THE DETECTIVE AND THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING CHAMATZ (Jerusalem: Feldheim Publishers, 1979) and MIHU THE DETECTIVE AND THE MYSTERY OF THE BLUE BUDGIE (1987) each feature Mihu in S'ian costume, and Jack Kerr reports that both titles are still available from Philipp Feldheim Inc., 200 Airport Executive Park, Spring Valley, NY 10977 (800-237-7149); $2.95 each, and they take plastic.
  107. Jack also notes a sesquicentennial conference honoring "Victorian Punch" at the University of London on July 12-13. The list of speakers includes Richard D. Altick on the early days of the magazine, and Anthony Burton on Richard Doyle (ACD's uncle, who created Punch's famous cover). Additional information is available from Michael Slater, Dept. of English, Birkbeck College, Malet Street, London WC1E 7HX, England.
  108. Scott Bond (519 East Allen's Lane, Philadelphia, PA 19119) offers his colorful new Moriarty one-inch lapel pin, for $11.00 postpaid. Scott's earlier matching pins, one with Holmes and the other with Watson, are also still available at the same price.
  109. Another plug for THE CONAN DOYLE STORIES, still available from Barnes & Noble (#1262336) at $9.95; this is the Galley Press reprint of the 1956 John Murray edition, with 76 fine examples of ACD's skills as a teller of tales (the stories are non-Sherlockian, except for the apocryphal "The Lost Special"

- and "The Man with the Watches"). Also available are: Russell Brown's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MYSTERIOUS FRIEND OF OSCAR WILDE (#1680404) at $5.98; Ken Greenwald's THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (#1609049) at $9.95; Peter Haining's THE ART OF MYSTERY & DETECTIVE STORIES (#1636893) at $7.95; Ronald Pearsall's SHERLOCK HOLMES INVESTIGATES THE MURDER IN EUSTON SQUARE (#1685817) at $7.95; William Neblett's SHERLOCK'S LOGIC (#1688233) at $7.95; and Michael Shepherd's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF DR. FREUD (#1683051) at $3.98. Their address is 126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011; shipping is $4.00 per order, and they take plastic.
110. One of the nice things about living on the east coast is that there was time to warn some west-coast Sherlockians to tape "Saturday Night Live" on NBC-TV on Mar. 23 (else we would just wait patiently for a repeat of the show). Jeremy Irons was the guest star, and appeared as Sherlock Holmes in one of the skits. And then won an Oscar on Mar. 25 for his performance as Claus von Bulow in "Reversal of Fortune".
111. Noted in the spring 1991 catalog from What On Earth: "Brilliant Deduction" T-shirts ($12.95) and sweatshirts ($22.95) with a "Sherlock Holmes Tax Service" cartoon by Alan Hutchinson. Their address is 2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087, and they take plastic.
-
112. Mar 91 #5: Diana Rigg, in her introduction to "The Dark Angel" (the 1988 BBC-TV adaptation of Sheridan le Fanu's UNCLE SILAS, broadcast on "Mystery!" by PBS-TV on Mar. 20), stated that "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle lifted the entire plot of 'Uncle Silas' for one of his own books." Diana Rigg was of course working from someone else's script. It would appear to have been M. R. James who first suggested in print, in his Introduction to the World's Classics edition of UNCLE SILAS (1926), that similarities of plot can be found in Conan Doyle's THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE.
113. THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE, written in 1884-85 but not published until 1890, was the second novel written by Conan Doyle (THE NARRATIVE OF JOHN SMITH, lost in the mail on its first journey to a publisher, was the first), and Conan Doyle, in MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES, said of THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE that "save for occasional patches it is a worthless book, and, like the first book of everyone else, unless he is a great original genius, it was too reminiscent of the work of others." At the end of his career, in his "Preface to the Crowborough Edition" he wrote that THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE "stands for that crude and imitative stage through which an undeveloped writer may pass," but the book was included in the Crowborough Edition, and Conan Doyle suggested that "I find that it appeals strongly to a certain type of reader who tunes in to my own mind at that point."
114. THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE is certainly a neglected book (although reprinted by Jack Tracy in 1980), and it is recommended to admirers of Conan Doyle who might wish to see how much or how little he actually owes to le Fanu. It should also be noted that UNCLE SILAS (1864) is not the only book by le Fanu of interest to Sherlockians: another is A LOST NAME (1868), discussed in letters to the Sherlock Holmes Journal by Cornelis Helling (spring 1960) and Sydney C. Roberts (winter 1960). A LOST NAME involves a man who plays the violin for inspiration when alone, who takes cocaine, and whose name is Carmel Sherlock.
115. There are references to deer in three of the case (Reig, Abbe, and Wist), and our new stamp for the new postcard rate shows an attractive fawn.
116. Andrew Jay Peck wonders about the fleeting view of Jay Ward and Bill Scott wearing deerstalkers in a photograph briefly shown in the PBS-TV special "Of Moose and Men" honoring Rocky and Bullwinkle. Does anyone know of a Sherlockian connection for the show, or for its creators?
117. Sherlock Holmes has registered and entered the finals of the 1991 Fiddle Contest to be held in Shelburne, Ontario, on Aug. 10, according to George A. Vanderburgh. There will also be a Shelburne Fiddle Parade, with a float ("London: 1895") for visiting Sherlockians, and additional information is available from George at Box 204, Shelburne, Ont. L0N 1S0, Canada.
118. A scholarly article by Marty Roth on "Sherlock Holmes and the Madness of Representation", in the summer 1990 issue of the North Dakota Quarterly, begins with a suggestion that Holmes is an "excessive figure" capable of generating "eagerness, study, adoration, fanatic clubs, and cult worship," and continues with an examination of various aspects of Holmes-as-hero. University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202; $5.00.
-
119. Mar 91 #6: SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS CONSULTING DETECTIVE: BROADCAST AND MOVIE LOG, by Gordon E. Kelley, is a checklist (36 pp.) of S'ian radio, records, television, and films, concentrating on adaptations of the Canonical tales but not ignoring the many pastiches in the long-running American radio series. Available for $10.00 postpaid from the author, at 8600 University Boulevard, Evansville, IN 47712.
120. Arthur Liebman, author of THE BIOGRAPHICAL SHERLOCK HOLMES, will offer an "Evening with Sherlock Holmes" at the New School for Social Research in New York at 8:00 pm on May 3. The address is 66 West 12th Street, the cost is $10.00, and you can register for the evening by calling 212-741-5690.
121. Andy Peck also reports that the Detective Book Club's three-in-one volume with Lloyd Biggle's THE QUALLSFORD INHERITANCE (Feb 87 #2) is offered at $7.99 plus shipping in a list received from Black's Readers Service, Box 404, Roslyn, NY 11576. This may be a members-only offer.
122. THE HOLMESIAN FEDERATION #8 is a fine addition to the series launched by Signe Landon in 1978; the current issue offers 129 pages of pastiches, tributes, and artwork by old hands (Tina Rhea, Brad Keefauver, Stefanie Hawks, Robert F. Fleissner, and Dana Martin Batory) and new, and it is available for $6.00 postpaid from Signe Landon Danier, 3800 N.W. Van Buren, Corvallis, OR 97330.
123. Mark Erdrich reports that Burbank Video has issued 18 cassettes, each with two of the 1954 television shows starring Ronald Howard, and that he has found the cassettes at a local K-Mart priced at $3.95 each.
124. Further to the report (Feb 91 #3) on how high Canadian postal rates are, Don Redmond reports that Canadian post offices also charge a 7% sales tax on purchases up to $5.00. The tax is imposed on almost everything, and is called a Goods and Services Tax (GST, which many refer to as a Gouge and Screw Tax). Don also reports that many of his correspondents in the U.S. are overpaying postage. It may be a nuisance keeping a supply of different stamps on hand, but your local post office should have free charts showing the new domestic and international rates.
125. A videotaper alert: Richard Wein reports that USA cable will show "Alfred Hitchcock Presents: My Dear Watson" on Apr. 5. As reported earlier, the best part of the show is the colorized introduction, which has Hitchcock himself, wearing a deerstalker and blowing bubbles from a calabash pipe.
126. Also: "The Invisible Man" (1933) will be shown on American Movie Classics on Apr. 20; it has been reported that footage from the film (the Invisible Man moves a railway-switch lever) was used at the beginning of "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror" (1942). AMC will also show "Super-Sleuth" (1937) on Apr. 11 and 26; the film has two bits of Sherlockian dialogue. The Family Channel will air "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" (1943) and "Terror by Night" (1946) on Apr. 6. And "Tales from the Darkside: The Movie" (1990) will be shown by HBO on Apr. 14, 16, 20, 25, and 26; one of the episodes in the film is an adaptation of Conan Doyle's "Lot No. 249".
-
127. Apr 91 #1: Edward Hardwicke, on his 21st birthday, was presented with a bound volume inscribed by many of his father's friends. One of those friends, a famous author, offered some advice: "Don't go on the stage, Edward, you would only be Cedric Hardwicke's son at best." The author was George Bernard Shaw; those who admire Edward Hardwicke's portrayal of Dr. Watson in the Granada series will be glad that he did not heed that advice.
128. Further to the query (Mar 91 #5) about the photograph in "Of Moose and Men" showing Jay Ward and Bill Scott wearing deerstalkers, Jerry Margolin asked Skip Craig, editor of the show and a close friend of Ward, and the answer was "Ward and Scott just liked to wear funny hats." But the old shows did have Sherlockian content, as do the newly-released Buena Vista Home Video cassettes ("The Adventures of Rocky and Bullwinkle"). Rosemary

- Michaud reports that vol. 3 ("Vincent Van Moose") shows a S'ian figure trying to stop the Goof Gas Attack, and vol. 5 ("Le Grande Moose") shows Boris and Natasha dressed as Holmes and Watson, investigating the Box Top Robbery.
129. Our current 21-cent definitive stamp honors Chester Carlson, one of the great benefactors of modern civilization. Even though he was not known to have been a Sherlockian, there are many of us who benefit from his genius, and it is a pity that very few people know who he was, and what he did.
  130. Denny Martin Flinn's SAN FRANCISCO KILLS (New York: Bantam Books, 1991; 200 pp., $3.95) begins a new series about Spencer Holmes, a private detective who lives colorfully and eccentrically in San Francisco, and who happens to be the grandson of Sherlock Holmes. The plot is derivative (although not from the Canon), and the style a bit labored. KILLER FINISH, the next in the series, is forecast for Aug. 1991.
  131. Further to earlier reports (May 90 #7 and Jun 90 #6) on plans to expand the Granada Studios Tour in Manchester, British newspaper articles, at hand from Jon Lellenberg, report that the £1.5-million expansion should be completed and open to visitors at Easter. One of the new features will be a Sherlock Holmes Museum of Criminology, assembled with the assistance of The Arthur Conan Doyle Society and The Northern Musgraves.
  132. Also at hand from Jon is John Russell's review of Granada's "The Problem of Thor Bridge" in the Sunday Express (Mar. 3, 1991), with Russell's complaint that Jeremy Brett's "eerie trance-like state did not change from beginning to end of the sort of preposterous production that must have had Sir Arthur Conan Doyle spinning in his grave." And a letter in the paper on Mar. 10, from Dame Jean Conan Doyle, responding to the suggestion about Sir Arthur: "I think he would have enjoyed both the acting and the production."
  133. And a British press report that the twelve stories in the recent BBC Radio 4 series "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (with Clive Merrison as Holmes and Michael Williams as Watson) are now available on cassettes in the BBC's "Radio Collection". No details on prices or a source, but the cassettes may be available from the BBC World Information Centre and Shop, P.O. Box 76, Bush House, Strand, London WC2B 4PH, England (they take plastic).
-
134. Apr 91 #2: Carole Nelson Douglas' GOOD NIGHT, MR. HOLMES (Oct 90 #4) had three printings in hardcover, and will be published by Tor as a paperback in June ($4.99). A sequel, GOOD MORNING, IRENE, is due from Tor/Tom Doherty in July (374 pp., $19.95), and offers a new adventure involving Irene Adler Norton, her husband, and Penelope Huxleigh in an entertaining mystery set in Paris and Monte Carlo. Sherlock Holmes appears, from time to time, but it is the adventurous Irene who solves the mystery. To whet your appetite, here's a quote from the jacket blurb: "On the sailor's chest is a tattoo--a tattoo reminiscent of one Irene saw years ago in London, on another sailor's chest, while the corpse lay upon Bram Stoker's dining room table..."
  135. Carole Nelson Douglas is a fugitive from Minnesota (where she was a reporter, feature writer, and editor with the St. Paul Pioneer Press), now living in Fort Worth (where it's warmer), and she has had 22 novels published since her first appeared in 1980. Her genres include science fiction and fantasy (for Del Rey and Tor) and romances (four 1990 romances from Bantam were narrated by Midnight Louie, an 18-pound black alleycat, who will feature in DEAD MATTER, a humorous mystery due next year). The silhouette is her own portrait of Irene Adler Norton, who will appear in at least two more novels now in progress.
  136. Jennie Paton reports that the Sherlock Holmes episode with the near-sighted Mr. Magoo as Dr. Watson (D6098b) is included in the Paramount videocassette "Mr. Magoo's Literary Classics" ($12.95); probably available at your local video store, but it's also offered by Movies Unlimited, 6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149 (800-523-0823). The same episode was issued a few years ago in another Paramount cassette ("Mister Magoo: Man of Mystery").
  137. Jennie also reports that "Greater Than Sherlock Holmes" is included in the videocassette "Films of Stan Laurel Volume 1" ($24.95) offered by Facets Video, 1517 West Fullerton Avenue, Chicago, IL 60614 (800-331-6197). This is a ten-minute comedy made by Pathe in 1925, with Laurel in Sherlockian costume, released in the U.S. as "The Sleuth" and in France as "Plus fort que Sherlock Holmes".
  138. Reported by Gary Thaden: PETER RABBIT PAPER DOLLS IN FULL COLOR, by Kathy Allert (New York: Dover, 1982 but still in print; $3.50); with one doll and 28 outfits, one of which is Sherlockian.
  139. Announced by the Opuscula Press: COLLECTING SHERLOCKIANA: AN ESSAY, by John Bennett Shaw, in a 16-page pamphlet with a frontispiece photograph showing the Sage of Santa Fe in his library. Available from the publisher (6307 Forrester Drive, Bradenton, FL 34202) for $5.50 postpaid ($7.00 outside the United States).
  140. John Aidiniantz is continuing his efforts to publicize his Sherlock Holmes Museum at 239 Baker Street. According to a recent Reuters dispatch, noted by Barbara Alder, Aidiniantz says that he has secretaries prepared to look up original train timetables for fans who thought Dr. Watson had caught a particular train." Reuters also quoted Erica Harper, who now answers the mail at Abbey National: "We have been replying to fans' letters since 1932"
  141. Apr 91 #3: Chester Carlson (Apr 91 #1) invented the photocopier. Anyone who doubts the value of this technology is too young to recall the distant days when purple hectograph masters were the only way one could publish newsletters at a reasonable cost.
  142. Graham Greene died on Apr. 3. He wrote a perceptive Introduction for the Murray/Cape edition of THE SIGN OF FOUR (1974), and, for the Spectator, warm reviews of Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939) and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1940), and he recommended Hesketh Pearson's biography CONAN DOYLE: HIS LIFE AND ART (1943), suggesting of Conan Doyle that "we see the large, sturdy, working shoulders, a face so commonplace that it has the effect of a time-worn sculpture representing some abstract quality like Kindness or Patience, but never, one would mistakenly have said, Imagination or Poetry." In his Foreword to Richard Lancelyn Green and John Michael Gibson's A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF A. CONAN DOYLE (1983), Greene noted that he had recently reread "A Study in Scarlet" (in his own copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual), cited a few of the Canonical discrepancies, and suggested that "some of the charm of the story-teller lies in the errors, as though we were listening to someone improvising a story for our amusement by our bedside."
  143. Travelers to Hyde Park for the Culinary Institute of America dinner on May 4 may also wish to attend the traditional (and recently confirmed) Pancake Breakfast at the Rhinebeck Firehouse on May 5.
  144. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle gave a series of lectures about spiritualism at Carnegie Hall in Apr. and May 1922 (filling the 3,500-seat house at each time). Our newest postal card honors the 100th anniversary of Carnegie Hall.
  145. Deer me, Mr. Blau. Deer me!" (as Prof. Moriarty almost said). There are two additional mentions of deer in the Canon (in Vall and Suss), not noted in the report (Mar 91 #5) on the new postage stamp, but carefully recorded by Hugh T. Harrington in HARRINGTON'S CANONICAL INDEX, available from The Village Bookshelf, Box 708, Massillon, OH 44648 ($22.00 postpaid).
  146. Trevor Hall died on Mar. 8. In his school-days he was taken to London by his father and introduced to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. He was also taken to see Maskelyne's magic show, and Hall continued an interest in spiritualism and conjuring throughout his life, writing many books on both subjects. He also contributed to Sherlockian scholarship, with books such as SHERLOCK HOLMES: TEN LITERARY STUDIES (1969), THE LATE MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES & OTHER LITERARY STUDIES (1971), SHERLOCK HOLMES AND HIS CREATOR (1977), and his last book was THE LAST CASE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1986), a pastiche in which he used Sherlock Holmes to shed new light on the long-disputed haunting of Borley Rectory.

147. Reported: THE NIGHT FANTASTIC, edited by Poul and Karen Anderson (New York: DAW Books, 1991; $4.50); an anthology of fantasy short stories, including Fritz Leiber's "Midnight by the Morphy Watch" (first published in Worlds of If, Aug. 1974), with a passage of imaginary Sherlockian dialogue.
-
148. Apr 91 #4: Geo. Gately's "Heathcliff" has occasionally appeared in S'ian costume in Sunday and daily comic strips, and he has now been spotted by Jack Kerr in full rig on the cover (only) of HEATHCLIFF: THE CAT DETECTIVE (New York: Tor Books, 1991; $3.50).
149. Charles Goren died on Apr. 3. A world-famous expert on bridge (he made the cover of Time), he started his widely-read newspaper column about the game in 1944 (and was joined by Omar Sharif as co-author in 1970); the column included occasional mentions of Sherlock Holmes.
150. "Well, I quite my job so I could work all alone./Then I changed my name to Sherlock Holmes." Those are two lines from the lyrics of a Bob Dylan song that was banned by the Columbia Broadcasting System from the Ed Sullivan show in 1963, and until now available only on bootleg albums. But times do change, and "Talkin' John Birch Paranoid Blues" (recorded live at Carnegie Hall on Oct. 26, 1963) has been issued by Columbia Records in a authorized collection called THE BOOTLEG SERIES VOLS. 1-3 (RARE AND UNRELEASED) 1961-1991. The collection is available as a three-CD set (C3K-47382) at $44.99 and as a three-cassette set (C3T-47382) at $34.99 and on records.
151. Sean O'Faolain died on Apr. 20. He was an Irish patriot and a member of the IRA in the 1920s, and then turned to writing, becoming world-famous for his short stories. In his essay "Good Night, Sweet Sherlock" (in the Jan. 1975 issue of Playboy) he suggested that "the magic of Sherlock Holmes has faded because crime has caught up with him," and that Holmes "was far too successful to remain persuasive in these all too crime-laden days."
152. Reported by Jerry Margolin: a new souvenir sheet from the Commonwealth of Dominica that shows "Sherlock Holmes & Dr. Watson watching Brunigline train (built 1888) descending from the Brunig Pass towards Meiringen". It's part of a set showing trains (popular with topical collectors, as well as with small countries that need the money), and there's no need to consult your local stamp dealer (unless you want the complete set): our next issue will tell you how to obtain the souvenir sheet and the first day cover.
-
153. Apr 91 #5: David Lean died on Apr. 16. He was a magnificent director (his best-known films are "The Bridge on the River Kwai", "Lawrence of Arabia", "Dr. Zhivago" and "A Passage to India"), and his 16 films won 28 Academy Awards, including two Oscars for Lean himself. He was knighted in 1984, and received the American Film Institute's Life Achievement Award in 1990. And he was happy to acknowledge his debt to Sherlock Holmes (and Eille Norwood): "at 17, I sneaked into my first cinema, 'The Hound of the Baskervilles', and it had immediate magic for me."
154. Robert C. Hess (559 Potters Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) has a new sales list, with more than a hundred items of Sherlockiana: sculptures, china, artwork, dolls, theatrical postcards and programs and posters, and some books and magazines.
155. An illustrated flier at hand from Schomberg Miniatures (52 Proctor Road, Schomberg, Ont. L0G 1T0, Canada) offering a set of figures (Sherlock Holmes and four of the Irregulars) sculpted by John Pryce and cast in pewter, with a walnut base (CA$195.00 plus $15.00 shipping to the U.S.).
156. "There was excellent wild-duck shooting in the fens," Sherlock Holmes said (in "The Gloria Scott"). Robert Giusti's portrait of a wood duck appears on our new booklet stamps.
157. The revised and enlarged edition of A CATALOGUE OF CRIME, by Jacques Barzun and Wendell Hertig Taylor (New York: Harper & Row, 1989; 922 pp., $50.00), has been remaindered at $14.98 and at that price is value-for-money, both as a useful reference work to crime fiction and for the authors' often entertaining opinions on the thousands of items considered.
158. THE ADVENTURE OF THE DOC-CROAKERS' DIRK is the latest round-robin pastiche written by members of The Pleasant Places of Florida (16 pp., and $4.00 postpaid from Ben Wood, Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222).
159. Local guidebooks are often enjoyable, especially when they include a bit of local history. WELCOME TO WOKING, edited by Ray Veasey and Peter Farr, is a fine example, devoting a page to Borough of Woking resident H. G. Wells (who reduced Woking to "a heap of fiery ruins" in THE WAR OF THE WORLDS) and mentioning in passing that "The Naval Treaty" also involves Woking (but not that Frank and Maude Crosse lived and loved in Woking in Conan Doyle's romantic novel A DUET: WITH AN OCCASIONAL CHORUS). Also in the borough is Brookwood Cemetery, opened by the Necropolis & National Mausoleum Company in 1854, and prominently featured in Basil Copper's NECROPOLIS (1980). The 104-page booklet is available from the Woking Borough Council, Gloucester Square, Woking, Surrey GU21 1YL, England; £1.50.
160. Patti Nead Elrod's THE VAMPIRE FILES #4: ART IN THE BLOOD (New York: Ace Books, 1991; 195 pp., $3.95) is the latest in her series about Jack Fleming (vampire) and Charles Escott (private detective); the only Canonical echo in this volume is in the title (and the epigraph). THE VAMPIRE FILES #5: FIRE IN THE BLOOD is forecast for June 1991. Her artistic "Baker Street Irregulars" (original soft sculptures of Sherlock Holmes, Dr. Watson, and special commissions) are still available: send a #10 SASE for additional information (4800 Kilpatrick Avenue, Fort Worth, TX 76107).
161. Apr 91 #6: Readers who are also baseball fans may recall the Sherlockian commercial that aired on CBS-TV at the end of the 1990 season, produced by Brouillard Communications for the American Gas Association and Lennox Gas Furnaces (with Patrick Horgan as Holmes and Sandy Marshall as Watson). The commercial will be broadcast again this year, during the American League and National League playoffs, and during the World Series.
162. Mentions of the BSI in non-Sherlockian fiction aren't all that common, but Dean Clark has discovered a new one, in Allen Steele's science-fiction novel CLARKE COUNTY, SPACE (New York: Ace Books, 1990; $4.50).
163. "A Birthday on Baker Street" and "A Day in the Life of Mr. Sherlock Holmes" are one-act comedies written in 1990 by Mohamad Bazzi, sparking-plug of The Young Sherlockians of New York. Both plays will be performed at the Central Library Auditorium at 89-11 Merrick Boulevard, Jamaica, N.Y., at 1:30 pm on Apr. 3 (admission is free).
164. Further to Mark Erdrich's report (Mar 91 #6) that 36 of the 1954 television shows starring Ronald Howard have been issued on 18 cassettes (at $3.95 per cassette at his local K-Mart), the company named on the cassette sleeves is Video Classics and the name on the cassettes is Burbank Video.
165. Cynthia Wein (65 Briarwood Lane, Plainview, NY 11803) offers a hand-painted 18x18" needlepoint canvas with a bold portrait of Sherlock Holmes in white, black, and red. The cost of the kit (canvas and yarn) is $58.00 postpaid, and if you would like to see a color photograph, send an SASE to Cynthia.
166. Some of the Canadian HOLMES (Home Office Large Major Enquiry System) items (Jul 89 #2 and Sep 89 #4) are still available from Sgt. David A. Reinhardt (76 Lord Simcoe Drive, Bramalea, Ont. L6S 5G6, Canada): lapel pins ($4.00), mechanical pencils ($2.00), and neckties ($15.00). The necktie is in navy blue with the white HOLMES design (and a red maple leaf to show you're not advertising the British system). Prices are in U.S. dollars and postpaid.
167. New comic books: BAKER STREET #7 (from Caliber, $2.50 and recommended for "mature audiences") continues "Children of the Night" (not Sherlockian but with allusions that include of Chief Inspector Lester Strand and a club called The Baskervilles) and TIMEWANKERS #3 (from Eros, $2.25 and for very mature audiences, since it's straight porno) has Jonathan Fegly in S'ian costume in Victorian London (but only on the cover).
-
168. May 91 #1: FLASHMAN AND THE MOUNTAIN OF LIGHT, by George MacDonald Fraser (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1991; 367 pp., $22.00), is an account the exploits of Lt. Harry Flashman in the Punjab in 1845 (too early for anything Sherlockian, but it's nice indeed to have another Flashman

- book after so long a wait). Fraser's "explanatory note" mentions Flashman's "brief excursion, as yet unpublished, to a brawl in Baker Street as far ahead as 1894, when he was in his seventy-second year." That story ("Flashman & the Tiger") has been published, actually, in installments in the [London] Daily Express, Sept. 29-Oct. 3, 1975, but has not yet appeared in a Flashman book.
169. The Canon has many mentions of eagles, although none of them are described as being bald; our new commemorative honoring U.S. Savings Bonds shows a handsome bald eagle.
170. Reported (in a British newspaper article received from Jon Lellenberg): SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE HENTZAU AFFAIR, a new pastiche by David Stuart Davies (Ian Henry, £9.95). A second pastiche (THE TANGLED SKEIN) is set for publication next year.
171. SECOND THOUGHTS ABOUT SHERLOCK HOLMES is a 30-page pamphlet offering two new pastiches written by Michael Senuta, and an analysis of the stories in THE CASEBOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. Available from the author (881 Columbine Drive, Barberton, OH 44203) for $8.00 postpaid.
172. Some tekkie-talk for computer-literate Sherlockians: DAK Industries (8200 Remmet Avenue, Canoga Park, CA 91304) is a marketer (not a manufacturer), and their summer 1991 catalog offers a Marstek Mars 105 hand-held scanner bundled with an OCR system, for $150. The OCR system will save a text scan as a Lotus, Microsoft Word, WordPerfect, or WordStar file, or as a plain ASCII file. Marstek claims an accuracy of 99.5%, but DAK suggests that 92% accuracy is more realistic, and that a spelling-checker be run on the file (which should be done in case). This is a real advance on old technology: only a few years ago a decent OCR machine cost thousands of dollars, with accuracy of about 80%.
173. Ake Runnquist ("Jacob Shafter") died on Apr. 23 in Stockholm. He was for many years senior literary editor for Albert Bonniers Forlag, dealing with both Scandinavian and foreign literature, and carefully ensured that a fine Swedish translation of the Canon remained in print (a three-volume edition was reissued by Bonniers in 1985). His interest in the mystery field was also one of long standing (he and Jorgen Elgstrom collaborated on a SVENSK MORDBOK in 1957), and he was a devoted Sherlockian, attending meetings in Scandinavia and (when he could) in other countries, including the United States, where he received his Investiture at the annual dinner in 1981. A fine example of his warm and gentle humor will be found in his review of a Dublin production of Hugh Leonard's play "The Mask of Moriarty" in Baker Street Miscellanea (spring 1986).
174. Noted in the summer 1991 catalog from What On Earth: a 10-inch "Sherlock Troll" doll ($29.95) as well as other older offers. Their address is 2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087, and they take plastic.
-
175. May 91 #2: Reported by Ely Liebow: READING(S), a freshman reader edited by Geoffrey and Judith Summerfield (New York: Random House, 1989), with excerpts from "A Study in Scarlet" and from Joseph Bell's introduction (retitled here as "How Conan Doyle Learned to Read").
176. The next "Canonical Convocation and Caper" is scheduled for Sept. 13-15 in Door County, Wis. The guest speakers will include Norman Davis, Elizabeth Kowols, and Alfred A. Levin, and there is much more on the agenda. Donald B. Izban (5334 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, IL 60639) will be happy to send more information on request.
177. There wasn't enough warning to include a videotaper alert in the previous issue, but "Father Dowling Mysteries" on ABC-TV on Apr. 25 handled the appearance of Sherlock Holmes rather nicely. "The Consulting Detective Mystery" undoubtedly will be run again: according to the TV Guide listing, "Dowling (Tom Bosley) doubles his deductive powers while investigating a murder by consulting with his mentor Sherlock Holmes (Rupert Frazer), whom only he can see."
178. The same problem arose with "Life Goes On" on ABC-TV on Apr. 28, when one of the sub-plots involved two of the kids in a Sherlockian investigation, and in Sherlockian costume. Watch for the repeat: TV Guide said, "Cork and Zoe play Sherlock Holmes and snoop into Tyler's furtive behavior."
179. For those who missed the shows and don't want to wait for a repeat, "Father Dowling Mysteries" and "Life Goes On" are available on a VHS cassette from Jennie Paton's lending library. Another of her lending-library cassettes has the "Saturday Night Live" segment with Jeremy Irons as Sherlock Holmes (from Mar. 23) and other short items. The arrangement is a lending-library charge of $5.00 per cassette, and borrowers pay the return postage. Write to Jennie C. Paton, 206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458.
180. Maurice Binder died on Apr. 9 in London. He was a graphics arts designer, best known for his splendid title sequences for the James Bond films, but his designs can also be seen in the titles for "Indiscreet" (1958), "The Mouse That Roared" (1959), "The Grass Is Greener" (1960), and "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970).
181. Returning to "Father Dowling Mysteries", it was noted that Holmes drove a car during the program. Can anyone recall any earlier film or television show in which Holmes drove a car?
182. The Apr. 1991 issue of The Devonshire Chronicle also at hand, with a nice reprint of the traditionally-sedate group photograph from the 1991 annual dinner of the BSI. It's published quarterly for The Chester Baskerville Society's quarterly and the cost is $4.00 a year, from Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233).
183. DOCTOR WHO: THE SCRIPTS: THE TALONS OF WENG-CHIANG (London: Titan Books, 1989; 154 pp., £3.95), offers Robert Holmes' complete script for the most Sherlockian story in the "Doctor Who" television series, broadcast in 1977 (Tom Baker was in S'ian costume, battling giant rats in Victorian London), accompanied by some interesting background information by John McElroy.
-
184. May 91 #3: Reported: GOJIRO, by Mark Jacobson (New York: Atlantic Monthly Press, 1991; $22.95); a novel about a 500-foot-tall lizard with human intelligence (and if you think you've heard of the lizard before, you have: the 1954 Japanese film "Gojira" was retitled "Godzilla" for release in the U.S.). According to David Sacks (in the N.Y. Times Book Review), the book is "profoundly strange, often hilarious, but erratic," and seems to have a "submerged allusion" to "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon".
185. Sherlockians (and others) who have long yearned to see the uncut three-hour version of Billy Wilder's "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970) will welcome the news that Wilder was quoted in Liz Smith's syndicated column last month as saying that the film is to be restored, edited, and released in all its original glory (as has been done with "Lawrence of Arabia" and "Spartacus").
186. "Blood-curdling drama" was the phrase Nicholas Utechin used to describe a dramatization of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" performed by the Steeple Aston Players in Mar. 1982. And the three-act script, written by Anthony Hinds (the producer of Peter Cushing's 1959 film), is now available from the New Playwrights' Network (35 Sandringham Road, Macclesfield, Cheshire SK10 1QB, England) for £5.45 postpaid (sterling only, please).
187. Videotaper alert: the 30-minute series "The Collectors" (produced by Oregon Public Television) will have a segment called "Great Characters" (about an imagined meeting of characters such as Mickey Mouse, Howdy Doody, the Star Wars crew, and Sherlock Holmes) that includes a short interview with Jerry Margolin. The program (broadcast in Oregon on Feb. 18) is syndicated, and will be broadcast on Maryland Public Television on June 16 (and repeated on June 22); the series is not networked, so you should check with your local stations for dates and times.
188. "The Battered Silicon Dispatch Box" is the working title for what will be (eventually) a Hypertext edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES: the text of the stories, with annotations from Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, entries from Tracy's THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA SHERLOCKIANA, and anything else that might be appropriate. Hypertext is a computer program that is used to scroll through text, calling up

- annotations that appear in windows on the screen. A floppy-disk (MS-DOS) test version of "The Red Circle" (annotated from Baring-Gould) is available from George A. Vanderburgh, Box 204, Shelburne, Ont. L0N 1S0, Canada, for US$5.00 postpaid (make sure you specify whether your drive is 3.5-inch or 5.25-inch).
189. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles have gone Sherlockian. Well, one of them, anyway. Jeff Huddleston's imaginative "Michaelange-Holmes" appears as the centerfold in the Apr. 1991 issue of Holmes for the Holidays, published for young mystery fans by Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233); $7.50 a year for five issues.
190. Responding to a few queries: Northstar did publish CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #20 (with a 1990 copyright date), with Dan and David Day's art illustrating "The Red-Headed League". #21 has not been seen or reported, and there have been unconfirmed reports that Northstar ended their comic-book series with #20. Northstar's address is 10829 South Western #2-C, Chicago, IL 60643.
-
191. May 91 #4: The celebration of the "Reichenbach Centennial" at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park on May 4 was both delightful and delicious. There were six buffet alcoves in the Great Hall, honoring various countries and cuisines associated with the historic confrontation and its aftermath, and a seventh buffet table offered deserts for those who were still hungry. Al and Julie Rosenblatt and Fritz Sonnenschmidt did a magnificent job with the meal and with its accompaniments, which included a delightful display of Reichenbach artwork (one splendid item being Sidney Paget's original ink-and-wash drawing for one of the illustrations, loaned to the exhibition by Willy Werby).
192. The evening's agenda also included toasts (traditional and untraditional), an award of the BSI's Queen Victoria Medal to Fritz Sonnenschmidt, and the announcement by Ev Herzog of four new memberships and (imaginatively ashy) investitures in the Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes: John Bennett Shaw ("Arcadia"), Peter E. Blau ("Ship's"), Thomas L. Stix, Jr. ("Shag"), and the late William S. Baring-Gould ("The Blue Swirl of His Tobacco Smoke").
193. Tom Stix was awarded the formal (and ornate) regalia of the Sherlockian Order of the Garter, in recognition of his contributions to the cause, and Al and Julie Rosenblatt received a copy of Dec. 1893 issue of The Strand Magazine (with the first appearance in print of "The Final Problem"), and formal greetings were offered to the celebrants at the CIA by the Mayor of Meiringen (and the title of honorary citizen of Meiringen was awarded to Sherlock Holmes).
194. Extra copies of the artistic 16-page menu are available for those who could not attend the festivities: $15.00 postpaid from Albert M. Rosenblatt, Box 221-B, Pleasant Valley, NY 12569.
195. A plug for Mysteries by Mail (Box 679, Boonville, CA 95415): their catalogs offer a wide range of in-print (Sherlockian and other) books, video, and audio, and they have a toll-free number (800-722-0726).
196. Syd Goldberg reports that one of his British correspondents reports that Granada is planning "Charles Augustus Milverton" as a two-hour special for Christmas, and may do other stories as well. And (according to a story in the Glasgow Daily Record on May 4, reported by Jon Lellenberg) Granada is not concerned about the need to pad out a short story to fill two hours.
197. The Waterloo Sherlockian Letter is published occasionally by Chris Redmond, offering comment and commentary on whatever comes to Chris' inventive mind. He has no subscription department, but past and current issues (there have been five so far) are available: a dollar or two in U.S. currency will take care of the postage, and his address is 523 Westfield Drive, Waterloo, Ont. N2T 2E1, Canada. Canadians can send postage stamps, Chris advises, since Canada no longer has dollar bills.
198. The new Sherlockian souvenir sheet from the Commonwealth of Dominica (Apr 91 #4) is now available from Ben Wood (Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222). The souvenir (mint) costs $4.00 postpaid, and the first day cover costs $5.00 postpaid. I also recommend Ben's own irregular newsletter, The Bohemian Scandal Sheet, which is available from Ben on request and without charge.
-
199. May 91 #5: The newly-expanded Granada Studios Tour is now open, with the Sherlock Holmes Museum of Criminology, a visit to the interior set of 221B, and a stroll along Baker Street (and on May 22 a celebration of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's birthday included a half-hour dramatization of the first meeting between Holmes and Watson, and a Sherlockian debate in Granada's version of the House of Commons). A nicely illustrated booklet describing the S'ian and other attractions is available from the Granada Studios Tour, Water Street, Manchester M60 9EA, England.
200. Klondike Holmes appeared in advertising inserts on May 5, promoting a new "Crack the Klondike Caper" contest in which one of the prizes appears to be a Klondike bear in Sherlockian costume. Details are available on packages of Klondike ice-cream bars, or you can send an SASE to Klondike Caper Rules, Box 8600, Westport, CT 06888.
201. The spring 1991 issue of Freedom Minnesota, reported by Gary Thaden, has a delightful full-page and full-color Sherlockian illustration by Brian Ajhar (for a non-S'ian article about cholesterol and fat). The publisher is the Physicians Health Plan of Minnesota (Communications Dept.), Box 1587, Minneapolis, MN 55440.
202. The 25th issue of The Tonga Times (the newsletter of the Mini-Tonga Scion Society) at hand, with news of Sherlockian miniatures, including reprints of Dee Snyder's interesting articles in the program book for the July 1990 N.A.M.E. Houseparty and in the Dec. 1990 issue of Nutshell News. Send a #10 SASE to Dee Snyder, 8440 Nashua Drive, Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418.
203. And the Dec. 1990 issue of Nutshell News is desirable for the fine color photographs of Sherlockian houses and rooms accompanying Dee's article. The address is Box 1612, Waukesha, WI 53187 (800-446-5489), and the issue costs $3.50 (shipping extra).
204. Plan ahead: the eleventh annual Sherlock Holmes/Conan Doyle Symposium at Wright State University in Dayton will be held on Mar. 13-15, 1992. The mailing list for the symposium is maintained by Alvin E. Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.
205. Ann Byerly has a new address: 2600 Tunlaw Road NW #1, Washington, DC 20007 (her telephone number has not changed).
206. Jon Lellenberg reports that Prodigy (the on-line computer service) will run a Sherlockian game during July. "In London with Sherlock Holmes" will be sponsored by the National Geographic, with Holmes and Watson exploring the geography of London in "The Adventure of the Jubilee Diamond".
207. Lenore Glen Offord ("The Old Russian Woman") died on Apr. 24. She wrote fine mystery novels in the 1930s and 1940s, and reviewed mysteries for the San Francisco Chronicle for more than 30 years. She was also an ardent Sherlockian, a member of The Scowlers and Mollie Maguires, and the first woman to receive an Investiture in the BSI (from Edgar W. Smith, in 1958); her poetic speculation on her Investiture (in six stanzas, and with eight footnotes) can be found in the anthology WEST BY ONE AND BY ONE (1965).
-
208. May 91 #6: John Mortimer's "Summer's Lease" (on "Masterpiece Theatre" on PBS-TV) turned out to be more Sherlockian than predicted (Feb 91 #4). Those who did not watch the mini-series are urged to wait for the repeat: there is mystery and humor and fine acting, and the theme of "The Copper Beeches" is echoed in the mystery. The first episode also contains a bibliographic mystery: a long shot of Molly starting to read "The Copper Beeches" in a copy of the John Murray edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is followed by a close-up of the first page of the story in the John Murray edition of SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE SHORT STORIES.

209. And the cast included two actors who have played Holmes (John Gielgud and Michael Pennington), and one who has played Watson (Dennis Lill). Gielgud starred on radio in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1954), Pennington on television in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (1987), and Lill on stage in the London production of "The Crucifer of Blood" (1979).
210. "Autumn in Baker Street" will be held on Nov. 2-3 at the Tarrytown Hilton in Tarrytown, N.Y., according to an announcement sent by Bob Thomalen. The price is $145 per person (double occupancy) for meals, room, refreshments during the sessions, and an agenda that features Murray Cantor, Bob Hess, Susan Rice, Paul Singleton, Dante Torrese, Jean Upton, Delia Vargas, and Joanne Zahorsky. The hotel is taking reservations now (914-631-5700), and a copy of the announcement is available from Robert E. Thomalen at 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
211. Startling Mystery Stories was launched in 1966 by Robert A. W. Lowndes, who published August Derleth's "The Adventure of the Tottenham Werewolf" in the spring 1967 issue, earning Lowndes his "Praed Street Penny" from Luther L. Norris, on which Lowndes reported in his column "The Cauldron" in the fall 1967 issue. Those who were wise enough to preserve this piece of Pontine ephemera in their collections will be pleased to learn that the fall 1967 issue is of interest for more than its editor's column: it also has a story called "The Glass Floor" (the first published work of Stephen King), and it is now priced at $750 in a catalog just received from Paul Merz (Sandpiper Books, Box 1273, Long Beach, WA 98631). Paul's catalog also includes some Sherlockian material (at reasonable prices).
212. Forecast for 1992: TALES OF MEDICAL HUMANISM AND VALUES, by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key; this will be an annotated edition of ACD's ROUND THE RED LAMP, six additional medical short stores, and the text of an address to medical students in 1910. Their earlier MEDICAL CASEBOOK OF ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, a 506-page examination and discussion of his medical career and the medical aspects of his literary work, is still available from the Krieger Publishing Co., Box 9542, Melbourne, FL 32902 ($36.00 plus $4.00 shipping, and they take plastic).
213. One of the nicest things about traveling in Britain is the wide variety of guidebooks available to the tourist (Sherlockian or otherwise), and a fine example is HIDDEN SUSSEX -- THE TOWNS, by Warden Swinfen and David Arscott (Brighton: BBC Radio Sussex, 1990; 158 pp., £4.95). The book provides an informed survey of the legends and history of towns such as Eastbourne, Horsham, Lewes, and Newhaven (all mentioned in the Canon), and Crowborough (with proper attention to its famous resident Sir Arthur Conan Doyle).
-
214. May 91 #7: More news on the Harmony Gold television films with Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee, which are now being syndicated by All American Television to independent stations in the U.S. "Sherlock Holmes: Incident at Victoria Falls" is open for broadcast as a four-hour special in a four-week window (Feb. 17 through Mar. 15, 1992), and will be followed by "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" (Apr. 20 through May 17). "Victoria Falls" also stars Jenny Seagrove (who played Mary Morstan in Granada's "The Sign of Four") as Lilly Langtry, and Claude Akins as Teddy Roosevelt. "The Leading Lady" (as reported earlier) also features Morgan Fairchild as Irene Adler, and Engelbert Humperdinck as Eberhardt Bohm.
215. Three collections of Sherlockiana written by members of The Speckled Band of Boston are still available, from J. Devereux deGozzaldi, Graystone Farm, 79 Frankland Road, Hopkinton, MA 01748 (all prices postpaid): THE FOURTH CAB (1976) and THE BEST OF THE CABS (1980) in paper ($8.00 each), and THE FIFTH CAB (1988) in cloth ($40.00) and paper ($15.00). Also available are Mark Faverman's handsome full-color poster honoring the 50th anniversary of the Band in 1990 ($20.00) and the society's silk necktie in maroon or navy blue ($20.00 or two for $35.00).
216. The Apr. 1987 issue of the Magazine Litteraire paid tribute to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle with 51 pages of articles and essays, many original, and with some reprint material translated into French. Gerald F. O'Hara now offers THE CONAN DOYLE FILE, with the original material translated into English, for US$10.00 postpaid; his address is 3912-115A Street, Edmonton, AB T6J 1R1, Canada.
217. At hand from Paul Singleton is an article from the Sherlock Holmes Gazette about plans to renovate The Sherlock Holmes in Northumberland Street. Work will start in November, and Whitbread expects to spend £500,000 on a new facade and internal alterations that will provide a better viewing area for the recreation of the sitting-room. Landlord Dennis Hough notes that the pub is a favorite with foreign tourists (about 50% from Japan, 30% from the U.S., and 10% from Italy). Another article reports that the Ladbroke Group will spend more than £1 million refurbishing The Sherlock Holmes Hotel in Baker Street. The hotel's 126 bedroom are to be "themed and redesigned" in Victorian style.
218. THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Sebastian Wolfe and first published in Britain in 1989, has been reprinted here (New York: Citadel Press, 1991; 249 pp., $16.95 cloth, $10.95 paper). The anthology reprints some of the better burlesques, parodies, and pastiches (only one of which is to be found in Ellery Queen's anthology, of which Wolfe was unaware when he chose the title for his book), and offers one new pastiche ("The Affair of the Midnight Midget", by Ardath Mayhar).
219. M. J. Trow's LESTRADE AND THE GIFT OF THE PRINCE (London: Constable, 1991; 208 pp., £12.99) is the ninth in his series about Sholto Lestrade, who has been summoned to Scotland (where a Scotland Yard superintendent lacks any jurisdiction and gets little if any respect) for an investigation of crimes at Balmoral and Glamis. Trow thoroughly libels the Scots (he lives safely on the Isle of Wight, about as far as one can get from Scotland and still be in Britain), and as usual his book is packed with broad humor and puns.
-
220. May 91 #8: Barney Gould, one of San Francisco's most famous press agents, died on May 8. He was an enthusiastic member of the Scowlers and Molly Maguires, and in 1982 wrote a play that used Holmes and Watson to expound Alden Brooks' hypothesis that Shakespeare's plays and sonnets were actually written by Sir Edward Dyer. The play was revised with the help of Peter Donat, and "Sherlock Holmes and the Shakespeare Solution" was staged in Barrie, Ont., in 1986, and in Sunnyvale, Calif., in 1989.
221. Simon & Schuster Audio's THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #12 is now in the stores, according to Jack Kerr, with the 1945 Rathbone/Bruce radio broadcasts of "The Problem of Thor Bridge" and "The Adventure of the Double Zero" (at this rate there will soon be new issues beyond the 14 cassettes in the subscription series from American Express). Jack also reports that MURDER TAKES A HOLIDAY (New York: Galley Books, 1991; $6.95 on the discount tables) includes "The Adventure of the Devil's Foot" and Vincent Starrett's (non-Sherlockian) "Food for Sharks".
222. Reported: SHERLOCK HOUND: DR. WATSON, I PRESUME? (a two-hour videocassette from Celebrity Home Entertainment at $29.99), with more animations from the amusing Japanese/Italian series.
223. Ted Bergman's just-published SHERLOCK HOLMES I SVERIGE: EN BIBLIOGRAFI is a careful and detailed examination of Sherlockiana published in Sweden from 1891 to 1990. The 155-page bibliography includes a summary in English of Ted's introduction, and a glossary, and offers a splendid demonstration of the long-standing Swedish interest in the Canon and the Writings About the Writings. Copies are available for $12.00 (currency only, please) from Ted Bergman, Storkvagen 10, S-181 40 Lidingo, Sweden.
224. Charles Goodman ("The Stockbroker's Clerk") died this spring. Charlie was Christopher Morley's dentist, a member of the Grillparzer Club in the early 1930s, and the last survivor of those present at the first annual dinner of the BSI in 1934. He contributed to our literature, with three long letters he had received from Sherlock Holmes' dentist, Charles A. Wilson (who noted his gratitude to Edgar W. Smith for an offer of honorary membership in the BSI). Charlie was a founder of The Diogenes Club of New York in 1944 (the club's Lantern of Diogenes Awards, for clarity of Sherlockian scholarship, were given to Christopher Morley, President Harry S. Truman, and others), and he received his Investiture in 1950 and his Two-Shilling Award in 1977.

225. Howard Einbinder (180 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201) reports that many Sherlockian items (books, recordings, comics, and art) are still available from his collection; send a #10 SASE for a copy of his sales list.
226. Reported: The Sherlock Holmes Gazette, a new quarterly edited by Elizabeth Wiggins and published by Theme Publications, 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England ($40.00 year, and they take plastic).
227. Incidental intelligence: the U.S. Postal Service delivers a total of 166 billion letters, publications, and packages each year, including 52 billion pieces of third-class advertising (known as junk mail to its detractors).
-
228. Jun 91 #1: B. L. Reid's THE LIVES OF ROGER CASEMENT (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1976), recently found on a discount table outside a local used-book shop, is a fine biography, and recommended to those who wish to know more (much more) about one of Conan Doyle's contemporaries. Casement and Conan Doyle worked with E. D. Morel in a campaign against atrocities in the Congo (see Conan Doyle's THE CRIME OF THE CONGO), and in June 1910 they dined and went to see a performance of "The Speckled Band". Conan Doyle wrote to Casement in Aug. 1910 about "a sort of wild boy's book" and asked him to send along "anything weird & strange" he had discovered in South America that might be suitable for the book. Casement visited Conan Doyle in 1912, a few months before "The Lost World" began running in The Strand Magazine. And in 1916, after Casement had been convicted and sentenced to death for treason, Conan Doyle circulated a petition urging (unsuccessfully) that Casement's life be spared. In 1936, Herbert Spencer Dickey, an American doctor who had known and traveled with Casement in Brazil in 1911, suggested that the infamous "Black Diaries" were a forgery perpetrated by the British government, based on an account of sexual perversions among South American natives, dictated by Dickey to Casement and sent by Casement to Conan Doyle.
229. Our compliments to John Bennett Shaw, who was on display this spring in Albuquerque in the Jonson Gallery of the University of New Mexico's Art Museum, in an exhibit of "2,000 Years of Contemporary New Mexico Ceramics". The clay-and-mixed-media portrait is 20 inches high and was sculpted by Caryn Ostrowe-Wagner in 1985.
230. The Scottish art market "appears to have recovered its nerve ahead of the rest of the world," according to an article in the May 4 issue of the [London] Independent, at hand from Jon Lellenberg. At Christie's sale of fine paintings and drawings at Edinburgh's Royal College of Physicians, one of the paintings was "Dancing Round the Moon" (described in the article as "a watercolor of fairies and demons, with the odd policeman and jockey thrown in"), by Charles Altamont Doyle (Sir Arthur's father). Estimated at £3,000 to £5,000, the painting made £9,350 at the auction.
231. Cameron Hollyer wonders who it was who first used the word "Canon" to refer to *our* Sacred Writings. In SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OR FICTION? (1932), T. S. Blakeney refers (p. 40) to S. C. Roberts having refused to dogmatize on the "canonicity" of at least one story, and (p. 43) to one of the stories being outside the limits of Ronald A. Knox's "canon". Was Blakeney the first use "Canon" (or "canon") in our context?
232. Tom Stix has found that there are two variants of Edgar W. Smith's pamphlet THE NAPOLEON OF CRIME: PROLEGOMENA TO A MEMOIR OF PROFESSOR JAMES MORIARTY, SC. D. (D3582a). Julian Wolff's copy is #7, inscribed by Edgar on Mar. 16, 1953, and has on the front cover only the title THE NAPOLEON OF CRIME. The other variant has the full title on the cover, and several copies are known inscribed by Edgar on Mar. 9, 1953, and with higher numbers (but none lower than #15). If you have a copy numbered lower than #15, please let Tom know the details (his address is 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648).
233. Jun 91 #2: Angus Wilson died on May 31. He wrote fiction, biography, and literary criticism, and was made a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in 1958 (and served as its president from 1982 to 1988). He received a C.B.E. in 1968, and a knighthood in 1980, and his enthusiasm for the Canon is well demonstrated in his Introduction for the 1974 Murray/Cape edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.
234. John Mortimer's "Summer's Lease" on "Masterpiece Theatre" (May 91 #6) had no Sherlockian allusions in the third and fourth episodes, but was a fine program nevertheless. There are Canonical references in the book, which is available as a tie-in trade paperback (New York: Penguin Books, 1991; 288 pp., $8.95); it was first published in Britain and the U.S. in 1988, and a signed edition was published by the Franklin Library.
235. Spotted by Mary Lellenberg: three thoroughly Sherlockian candlesticks in the summer 1991 issue of Design for Living, the mail-order catalog issued by Bloomingdale's (475 Knotter Drive, Cheshire, CT 06410). The candlesticks are about 13 inches high, and are named (by Bloomingdale's) Lou, Jimmy, and Mike (left to right). They cost $14.00 each (plus shipping) and Bloomingdale's toll-free number is 800-777-0000 (they take plastic).
236. The spring 1991 issue of The Compleat Smoker has Alan Smith's long feature article "A Three-Pipe Problem: Pipes, Tobaccos and Sherlock Holmes" (with some nice color illustrations), an original color cover with a Sherlockian theme, and an advertisement (p. 40) for a lithograph portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Warren Prindle. $6.25 postpaid (Box 7036, Evanston, IL 60201), and a subscription (four issues) costs $17.50.
237. Adapting the printed page for film or television is a fascinating process, and published scripts offer a fine opportunity to see how it's done. One such opportunity is Jeremy Paul's excellent 50-page script for Granada's "The Problem of Thor Bridge" (typeset, illustrated, and now available for $11.50 postpaid from Ian Henry Publications, 20 Park Drive, Romford, Essex RM1 4LH, England). Daniel Massey, who plays J. Neil Gibson, was recently seen on "Mystery!" in "Inspector Morse: Deceived by Flight" as the murderer cricketer Anthony Donn.
238. According to the latest (spring 1991) issue of Anglofile, the fall season for "Mystery!" has not been confirmed by WGBH-TV, but it is likely to start with a six-part adaptation of P. D. James' "Devices and Desires", with "The Case Book of Sherlock Holmes" next (but it is also possible that only five programs will air this fall, with the sixth held back as a special during a later pledge drive).
239. "Over My Dead Body!" is a new electronic bulletin board for mystery fans (general, not just Sherlockian). The phone number is 415-893-6707 (N-8-1) and the sysop is Cheri Jung, 1843 Seventh Avenue, Oakland, CA 94606.
-
240. Jun 91 #3: Coral Browne died on May 29. She was a fine British actress (best known to American audiences as Vera Charles in the film "Auntie Mame"), and in 1974 she married Vincent Price, who arranged for her photograph to appear in a picture frame in a Baker Street set, "identified as none other than Irene Adler, always 'the woman' for Sherlock Holmes." The set was the one used in Boston for her husband's introductions to the Granada television series when it was broadcast on "Mystery!"
241. Further to the report (May 91 #5) on "In London with Sherlock Holmes" (the game that will run on-line on Prodigy during July), Jack Tracy, who worked as a consultant on the project, reports that after July the game will still be available in the National Geographic archives on Prodigy. There appears to be no way to download the game to a disk.
242. Jack also reports that progress is being made on planning for CALABASH (an acronym for Canonical Analysis and Logical Arrangement of Baring-Gould's Annotated Sherlock Holmes). This will be a thorough revision of the 1967 book, and will be published on a CD-ROM disc, with Jack as editor-in-chief. Assistance is needed from people who would like to serve as supervising editors and research editors, and volunteers are invited to call Jack at 800-243-1895.
243. Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, celebrating its 50th anniversary, has been honoring some of its favorite contributors, and the Aug. 1991 issue of EQMM is dedicated to Robert L. Fish, with reprints of two of his stories, one of which is "The Adventure of the Perforated Ulster" (D5779a).

244. David Kirby died on June 3. He was the proprietor of Rupert Books, and in the 1980s issued a series of fine Sherlockian catalogs. He also published a set of cards and prints with David Cory's S'ian color artwork, and in 1987 the splendid facsimile of Beeton's Christmas Annual prepared by John Michael Gibson.
245. "Professor Presbury's Required Reading" is a 12-page list of Sherlockiana (new and used, and including much comic-book material) available from Tim O'Connor (R.R. 1, Box 138-B, Herscher, IL 60941).
246. Richard Lackritz reports a source for Inverness capes: Texas Body Hangings, 1719 East Main, Nacogdoches, TX 75961. $225 to $410 depending on size, and they will be happy to send you a catalog.
247. Sylvia Porter died on June 5. She began writing a financial column for the N.Y. Post in 1935, and in syndication her column eventually was carried by 450 newspapers with 40 million readers. She was also a devoted Sherlockian and a friend of Thomas L. Stix, Sr., who accompanied her, in a horse-drawn carriage, to the BSI's pre-prandial cocktail party in 1957 and toasted her as *The* Woman.
248. Gerald Laing's bronze statue of Sherlock Holmes was scheduled for unveiling in Edinburgh in mid-June. According to the Times (May 2), Sherlock Holmes Museum director John Aidiniantz believes London would far more appropriate, and was disappointed by the Royal Fine Art Commission rejected his proposal for a £29,000 statue at the Baker Street underground station.
-
249. Jun 91 #4: Troy Taylor, who presides over Ferguson's Vampires, and edits and publishes their periodicals The Peruvian Bird-Bow and The Poisoned Arrow, is also a skillful artist. His illustrated flier, just at hand, welcomes commissions for Sherlockian artwork for journals, books, and society logos, and his address is 436 West William #5, Decatur, IL 62522.
250. Switzerland was not the only venue for a reenactment of the fateful battle at the Reichenbach, although there were many more onlookers at Meiringen than there were at the Katoomba Cascades, where fifty people gathered for a weekend with the Sherlock Holmes Society of Sydney at the Fairmont Resort in the Blue Mountains of Australia.
251. Richard Wein has sent a list of audiocassettes available from BBC World Service Mail Order (room LG26 NE), Bush House, Strand, London WC2B 4PH, England. Each volume contains two cassettes and costs £6.17 (plus 40% for shipping to the U.S.), and they take plastic. The volume titles are: "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (Clive Merrison and Michael Williams): vol. 1 (Scan/RedH/Iden/Bosc), vol. 2 (Five/Twis/Blue/Spec), vol. 3 (Engr/Nobl/Bery/Copp). "Sherlock Holmes" (Carlton Hobbs and Norman Shelley): vol. 1 (Scan/RedH/Chas/Spec), vol. 2 (Blue/Silv/Fina/Empt), vol. 3 (Musg/Blac/Bruc/Danc). The BBC has many other non-Sherlockian titles on its list.
252. Also at hand from Richard Wein is a catalog from Dark House (R.R. 1, Box 140-A, Theilman, MN 55978) offering T-shirts, sweatshirts, greeting cards, tote bags, and buttons with designs that include Sherlockiana (items M-05, S-01 through S-03, and Z-01-4).
253. The Arts & Entertainment cable channel has purchased rebroadcast rights to the Granada series. "Sherlock Holmes Mysteries" will air weekly beginning on Sept. 30.
254. "Ignite a candle in Bohemia," suggests Sherlockian sculptress Selma Kamil, who offers the Grand Duke and *The* Woman as a pair of ceramic candle holders (five inches high) for $100 (painted and glazed) or $75 (unpainted), plus $5 for shipping. An illustrated flier is available from Selma (32 Overlook Avenue, Cliffside Park, NJ 07010).
-
255. Jun 91 #5: Welcome news for those who have been searching for copies of THE INTERNATIONAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (Apr 90 #1 and May 90 #3): copies are available for $32.50 from William Berner, 4712 17th Street, San Francisco, CA 94117. The book was edited by John Bennett Shaw, Tsukasa Kobayashi, and Akane Higashiyama, and is a delightful demonstration of how much fun artists in many countries have had illustrating the Canon over the years and in a variety of styles: there are 742 illustrations (and 59 photographs from the Granada series), with captions in both Japanese and English, and there's very little collateral text in Japanese only.
256. Admirers of Christopher Morley's work will welcome the news that the 1940 film "Kitty Foyle" (with Ginger Rogers and Dennis Morgan) is available on videocassette, from Movies Unlimited, 6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149 (800-523-0823); $19.99. Movies Unlimited also offers "Chip 'n' Dale Rescue Rangers: Super Sleuths" ($12.99) with "Pound of the Baskervilles" (a Sherlockian animation first broadcast in 1989).
257. Kenneth Ludwig's two-act play "Dramatic License" (about William Gillette) premiered in Milford, N.H., in July 1983 (with Patrick Horgan as Gillette), and it was also produced in Cleveland in 1985. Now titled "Postmortem", it is scheduled at the Leeds Theatre at Brown University in Providence, R.I., on July 9-13 and 16-20, and it is recommended to those who are or might be in the area. The Theatre Department's telephone number is 401-863-3283.
258. And travelers to New Mexico may wish to attend a workshop and conference on "Sherlock Holmes: Alive and Well in the Hearts of Readers Everywhere!" at Santa Fe Community College on July 25-26, 1991. The list of speakers includes many local Sherlockians (Shaw, Cohen, Dinegar, Dunning, Farrell, Miller, and Stanton), and the College's telephone number is 505-438-1251.
259. EDGAR W. SMITH'S SHERLOCKIAN DIRECTORIES is a Hypercard computer version of his APPOINTMENT IN BAKER STREET (1938) and BAKER STREET AND BEYOND (1940), prepared by Bob Gellerstedt and offered for $5.00 postpaid on a single 800K disk (you will need Macintosh system 6.0.7 and Hypercard 2.0). A 50-page print-out is also available for $12.00 postpaid, from Bob Gellerstedt, 1035 Wedgewood Drive, Fayetteville, GA 30214.
260. Further to the query (May 91 #2) on Sherlock Holmes driving cars, Steve and Katlin Hecox and Jennie Paton have remembered that he drove across Arizona on television in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (1987), and that Sherlock Hound is often seen driving in the Japanese/Italian animations.
261. The Baker Street Bar Association will hold its inaugural dinner during the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Atlanta in August. For details on the dinner, and on the new professional society, contact David R. McCallister, 2804 Quail Hollow Boulevard, Wesley Chapel, FL 33544.
262. Patrick Campbell reports that the celebration of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's birthday on May 22, at the Granada Studios Tour, was thoroughly enjoyable. The agenda included tours of the sets and the new Museum of Criminology, a performance of David Stuart Davies' play "Fixed Point: The Life and Death of Sherlock Holmes", champagne and an appropriately decorated cake, and a non-Sherlockian debate in Granada's version of the House of Commons.
-
263. Jun 91 #6: Williamsburg in late spring is pleasantly warm (compared to the heat wave that many remembered from the last workshop there in July 1987), and Ray Betzner and The Cremona Fiddlers did a fine job this month with this year's version. There were more than a hundred people on hand for the festivities, which featured a nice range of Sherlockian and Doylean presentations, an opportunity to see the 1957 "Odyssey" television program about the Baker Street Irregulars and a promotional video for the Harmony Gold mini-series starring Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee, and a radio-theater presentation of "The Maltese Carbuncle" (written by Ray and performed by The Cremona Fiddlers Players of the Air). And one of the more interesting T-shirts at the workshop was worn by Ron Fish, who may be the only Sherlockian winner of one of the "Sherlock Bones" T-shirt offered as prizes by Milk-Bone Flavor Snacks last year (Mar 90 #4).

264. The London Zoo may close in September, according to an article in the May 19 issue of the Philadelphia Inquirer, at hand from Syd Goldberg. The Zoo is run by the Zoological Society of London (and has been since its founding in 1828) and claims to be the oldest and most famous zoo in the world, and has now asked for $21 million from the British government to keep the Zoo open. And it was known to Sherlock Holmes, who asked (in "Charles Augustus Milverton"): "Do you feel a creeping, shrinking sensation, Watson, when you stand before the serpents in the Zoo?"
265. Deen and Jay Kogan, who chaired Bouchercon in 1989, have announced a book fair and convention in Philadelphia on Nov. 8-10. The agenda will include panels, workshops, signings, and a dealer's room, and registration costs $30.00. Details are available from the Mid Atlantic Mystery Book Fair and Convention, c/o Detecto Mysterioso Books at Society Hill Playhouse, 507 South 8th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19147.
266. It's not Sherlockian, but "Northern Exposure" is one of the best series now to be seen (in re-runs) on television. It's on CBS-TV on Mondays at 10:00 pm, and the premise is that it's pay-back time for a young Jewish doctor from Flushing whose medical education has been funded by a grant from the Alaskan state government. Expecting to be working in a modern hospital and living in a condo in Anchorage, he finds himself the only doctor in Cicely, a community so small it hardly qualifies as a town, and he has considerable trouble dealing with the culture shock. The series has excellent stories and fine characters, and is thoroughly enjoyable.
267. While there seems to be no end to the unrecorded cases of Sherlock Holmes that find their way into print, there have been few attempts to extend the sagas of George Edward Challenger or Etienne Gerard. Nicholas Nye's RETURN TO THE LOST WORLD brings Challenger, Roxton, Summerlee, and Malone back to the Lost World in 1912, in a story that is quite faithful to the humor and style of the characters created by Conan Doyle. Their new discoveries on the plateau extend farther into fantasy than he did in THE LOST WORLD, and the story ends with some blunt moralizing that may seem out-of-place in a simple tale of adventure. RETURN TO THE LOST WORLD (256 pp.) costs £16.45 postpaid (sterling only, please) from Images, Lloyds Bank Chambers, 18 High Street, Upton-upon-Severn, Worcs. WR8 0HD, England.

---

Jul 91 #1:

268. Canonical chronology is surely one of the more arcane areas of Sherlockian scholarship (and one of the earliest to be explored by those attempting to reconcile and rearrange the Sacred Writings). Almanacs, weather reports, astronomy, and even astrology have been employed to support or rebut a wide range of dates for most of the stories, and still there is little agreement among those who want an answer to the question, "What was the date?" Henry T. Folsom (a Scandalous Bohemian, and Horror Master of the Cornish Horrors) first published THROUGH THE YEARS AT BAKER STREET in 1962, revised it for a second edition in 1964, and now offers a third (and again revised) edition in an 80-page monograph that provides a fine demonstration of how much fun and frustration are involved in deducing correct dates. The cost is $25.00 postpaid from the Henry T. Folsom, R.R. #1, Box 1413, Randolph, NH 03570.
269. Further to the query (Jun 91 #5) about Sherlock Holmes driving automobiles, Jennie Paton suggests a follow-up: which films or television program show Sherlock Holmes riding a horse?
270. Reported by Jon Lellenberg from the arch-conservative Washington Times: a mention of "Ted Turner, the media Moriarty whose dark one-worldist plots send shivers down the spines of those who still have them." Turner will address a meeting of the Conservative Leadership Conference in Washington in November; the invitation was issued by Reed Irvine, who noted that Ted Turner's only question was, "Can I bring Jane?"
271. Also at hand from Jon are articles in the British press on May 13 about the possibility that the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary may be closed. The Royal is Scotland's largest teaching hospital and its former students include Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. "Labour seized on the disclosure -- so far unconfirmed -- as evidence of underfunding and accused Scottish health minister Michael Forsyth of presiding over the 'destruction' of the NHS. Mr. Forsyth fired off an immediate statement indicating he may veto the plan."
272. And a press report that Stephen Fry and Hugh Laurie, fresh from the success of their second "Jeeves and Wooster" series, are planning a Sherlock Holmes series, with Fry as Holmes and Laurie as Watson. Their first "Jeeves and Wooster" series has already aired on PBS (with Fry as Jeeves and Laurie as Wooster). They have also performed in various roles in the British series "Black Adder" (on some PBS stations), and they can be seen in "A Bit of Fry and Laurie" (on Saturdays on the Bravo cable channel).
273. Syd Goldberg spotted another passing reference, by William Safire in the N.Y. Times (July 11): "The Professor Moriarty of finance is a Pakistani named Agha Hasan Abedi" (one of the people responsible for the financial shenanigans at the Bank of Credit and Commerce International).
274. Roger Johnson reports that the Federation of Master Builders in Edinburgh (who are paying for the statue of Sherlock Holmes in Picardy Place, where Conan Doyle was born) are offering commemorative medallions (two inches in diameter, modeled in high relief with a polished gilt finish) for £50 each. Checks can be sent to the Federation of Master Builders (Medal Sales), c/o Ian Baird, 206 Ferry Road, Edinburgh EH6 4QZ, United Kingdom.
-
275. Jul 91 #2: Sleuth & Statesman, the newsletter launched by Winston & Holmes last year (Apr 90 #4), is now a mail-order catalog that offers "smoker's requisites and gentlemen's accessories" and occasional comment on Winston Churchill and Sherlock Holmes. The gentlemen's accessories include Parker Pens, and the accompanying note ("Myth in the Making") suggests that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle wrote his popular mysteries with a Parker pen in the late 1800s. Not quite: the first advertisement by Parker that used Conan Doyle's praise for the Parker Duofold ("I have at last met my affinity in pens") was published in 1931 (and used again in advertisements that ran in magazines in 1989), and Conan Doyle's letter was written from Bignell Wood (the country house that he bought in 1925). Another note suggests that it was William Gillette who first portrayed Sherlock Holmes with a calabash; Gillette did use a curved wooden pipe, but no one has reported any evidence that he used a calabash. The catalog is available from Winston & Holmes at 138 Cumberland Street, Toronto, Ont. M5R 1A6, Canada.
276. If you enjoy spoken-word audiocassettes, there are plenty to choose from: more than 900 companies and more than 44,500 titles are listed in the 1991 edition of R. R. Bowker's comprehensive catalog ON CASSETTE, according to an item in the N.Y. Times Book Review. Bowker's first edition, published in 1985, listed only 11,500 titles.
277. Cathy Childs (Sherlock & Co., 11335 Little Patuxent Parkway #433, Columbia, MD 21044) will happily accept commissions for her original Sherlockian (and Watsonian) artwork.
278. Another plug for the discount-book catalogs from Edward R. Hamilton (Falls Village, CT 06031): his new catalog offers Michael Hardwick's THE REVENGE OF THE HOUND (item 364614) for $4.95, and Isaac Asimov's SHERLOCK HOLMES THROUGH TIME AND SPACE (item 879452) for $3.95.
279. Walt Disney's Goofy Adventures #16 (Sept. 1991 cover date) has a long story ("Sheerluck Goof and the Giggling Ghost of Nottenny Moor") about Sheerluck Goof (Goofy), Dr. Whatsup (Mickey), Chief Inspector Laquacke (Donald), Mrs. Cluckson, and the evil Doctor Mororlessnessy.
280. Add two Rathbone films to the list of occasions on which Sherlock Holmes can be seen driving an automobile: Hugh Harrington notes that Holmes drives a car while making his getaway from the Nazis in "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" (1943). And Lawrence Nepodahl reports that Holmes is at the wheel when he and Watson rendezvous with the Prime Minister of Rovenia in "Pursuit to Algiers" (1954).

281. An illustrated sales list of Sherlockiana (bookmarks, sweatshirts, aprons, buttons, mugs, bookbags, and personalized bookplates) is available from the Dore Collection (1123 Emerson Street #208, Evanston, IL 60201).
282. Pixar and Disney have announced a joint venture to produce and distribute one computer-animated feature-length film a year. You have seen Pixar's work: known then as the Lucasfilm Computer Graphics Division, they designed and animated the "stained-glass knight" in "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985).
-
283. Jul 91 #3: Sherlockian touring continues to become more expensive: press reports from London note that St. Paul's Cathedral now requires (rather than asks) visitors to pay an admission charge (but not on Sunday). Mentions of St. Paul's can be found in "The Sign of the Four" and "The Red-Headed League" and in the old and time-honored phrase "robbing Peter to pay Paul" (which dates from the late 16th century, when many of the estates of St. Peter's Cathedral were appropriated to pay for repairs to St. Paul's Cathedral). St. Peter's is mentioned in the Canon, too. In which story? The answer to this question will be given in next month's issue.
284. Discovered by Tim O'Connor: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES in a hard-bound comic-strip adaptation by Marion Kimberly (New York: Gallery Books, 1991; 30 pp., $4.98). This is not a reprint of the old Classic Comics/Classics Illustrated version.
285. Jennie Paton reports THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE (New York: Gallery Books, 1987; 96 pp.): an attractive large-format book with artwork from the film (in the "Disney Classic Series"), sold by Waldenbooks and B. Dalton (and presumably other stores) for $6.95.
286. Sorry about that: the correct toll-free number for Bloomingdale's (Jun 91 #2) is 800-777-0000. For those who aren't aware of the service, you can call 800-555-1212 to get the directory service for toll-free numbers.
287. Sherry Rose Bond reports another item that may be of interest to admirers of dancing men: an Italian lamp called the "spider lamp" with four flexible eleven-inch legs (and suction cups at the ends of the legs). The spider lamp is available in red, white, or black, at $40.00 each (plus shipping), and it's item 1065 in the catalog from Flex Art and Design, Box 7216, San Francisco, CA 94120 (800-547-7778); they take plastic.
288. Reported: ROUND THE FIRE STORIES (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1991; $9.95) in a trade paperback similar to Chronicle's earlier two volumes with the Professor Challenger stories. The new collection has the apocryphal cases "The Man with the Watches" and "The Lost Special".
289. Jay Pearsall is moving his mystery bookshop Murder Ink to a new location: 2486 Broadway, New York, NY 10025 (between 92nd and 93rd Streets). And his summer 1991 catalog includes an interview with Elizabeth George, who notes her debt to Conan Doyle.
290. C. Bryan Gassner, who presides over The Shadows of the Elm at the Arroyo del Oso Elementary School in Albuquerque, N.M., assisted her students in presenting half-hour adaptations of "The Speckled Band" (in 1990) and "The Norwood Builder" (in 1991). The plays were nicely done, and are available on videocassettes ($7.50 each or $12.00 for both shows on one cassette, postpaid), with "The Norwood Bloopers" (an assembly of out-takes from both shows) available on request on any cassette at no additional charge. Mrs. Gassner's address is 922 Washington Street SE, Albuquerque, NM 87108).
-
291. Jul 91 #4: Further to the report (Jun 91 #3) on "In London with Sherlock Holmes: The Adventure of the Jubilee Diamonds" (the interactive computer game that is now available on Prodigy), the game offers attractive graphics, interesting facts about London, and a fairly elementary mystery to solve. Prodigy is an advertiser-supported on-line service (subscribers pay $12.95 a month, and there are no other charges).
292. Further to the report on Anthony Hinds (May 91 #3), he has a Sherlockian credit in addition to producing the film "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959) and writing the play "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1982). Roger Johnson notes that Hinds (using the pseudonym "John Elder") supplied the story for N. J. Crisp's screenplay for the television program "The Masks of Death" (1984). "John Elder" was Hammer's most prolific scriptwriter, and Michael Carreras (executive producer of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" for Hammer) occasionally used the pseudonym "Henry Younger".
293. Occasional queries about how one can conveniently order in-print books from Britain suggest that it's time for a repeat explanation. Two companies can supply just about anything in print, and they offer two ways to pay without incurring bank surcharges: you can open an account and pay with a check in your own currency (sent to a bank in your country), or you can authorize a charge against a credit card such as Visa or Mastercard. They are W. & G. Foyle (119-125 Charing Cross Road, London W.C.2, England) and Blackwell's (Broad Street, Oxford, Oxon. OX1 3BQ, England).
294. Further to the report (Jun 91 #6) on the London Zoo's financial problems, a later dispatch at hand from Syd Goldberg states that the Zoological Society of London has decided to postpone the closing of the zoo until Sept. 1992, in hopes that funding can be found for a planned conversion of the zoo into a wildlife conservation and education center.
295. The Sherlock Holmes Gazette is a new quarterly, launched by Andrew Archer (who has been in business for more than 20 years on Park Road, at the top end of Baker Street) and edited by Elizabeth Wiggins. The first issue has 24 pages and is well produced, with articles on the Swiss pilgrimage, the Granada Studios Tour, and the Langham Hotel, an interview with Michael Cox on the Granada series, and much more. According to a report in the British press, the first issue had a print run of 25,000 copies, and copies will be sold at hotels, pubs, and other tourist outlets in London. The next issue is scheduled for Aug. 1, with 32 pages, and an annual subscription costs £12.50 a year in Britain (or £18.00 outside the U.K.); checks should be payable to Theme Publications (they also take plastic), and the address is 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Preston, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England. Note: the £18.00 rate is lower than announced in their first flier, and is available to those who make (or have already made) payment with sterling checks or by credit card.
296. Others have noted occasional Sherlockian allusions in the writings of John le Carre. Owen Dudley Edwards, in essay in THE QUEST FOR LE CARRE, edited by Alan Bold (London: Vision Press, 1988), offers a possible explanation, from an interview in the Observer (Feb. 3, 1980): le Carre was asked about the "writers who mean the most to you," and responded, "P. G. Wodehouse for rhythm and timing, Conan Doyle for thrust and instant atmosphere."
-
297. Jul 91 #5: By way of rebuttal to those who suggest that it's all been done before, one can point with enjoyment to Joseph Fink's "not-so-trifling monograph" on the sainted Albert of Bollstadt, in the summer 1991 issue of The Serpentine Muse, published by The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes (Evelyn A. Herzog, 235 West 15th Street #4-B, New York, NY 10011; $6.00 for four issues). And to Rosemary M. Michaud's explorations of the consequences of the rheumatism that afflicted Sherlock Holmes, in the May 1991 issue of Wheelwrightings (Robert C. Burr, 4010 Devon Lane, Peoria, IL 61614; $20.00 a year for three issues of Wheelwrighting and twelve issues of Plugs & Dottles).
298. Eleanor Sullivan died on July 12. It was a classified advertisement in the N.Y. Times that brought her to Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine as managing editor in 1970, and she became editor of the magazine after Fred Dannay's death in 1982. She once suggested that Fred Dannay hired her because, when he asked, "How good are you at taking instruction?" she answered, "I went to parochial school." She learned her new job quickly, and she was a fine editor, offering friendship and expertise and helpful advice to hundreds of authors. She also continued Fred's interest in and generosity to the BSI, and was honored as *The* Woman in 1990.

299. The best things in life are no longer free: according to a report from the Federal Communications Commission, there were 761,849,947 interstate calls for directory assistance in 1990. At 60 cents per call (that's what AT&T charges), that's $457 million in income for the phone companies.
300. Hugh T. Harrington (1634 Sherwood Avenue NW, Massillon, OH 44646) is now researching the Sherlockian activities of Clifton Andrew, and would welcome hearing from people who knew or who have information about him.
301. John Baesch reports that The Sherlock Holmes Hotel in London is planning a theme exhibition later this year, and that Studio Gallery (50 Caledonian Road, Kings Cross, London N1 9DP, England) will be offering jewelry items such as the King of Bohemia's emerald snake ring and a replica of the tie pin presented to Sherlock Holmes by Queen Victoria. The hotel now charges £107.25 for a single, and £127.75 for a double.
302. The 1991 running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont (in New York) will be held on Sept. 14. Those who would like to attend, and have not yet received the formal announcement, can write to Stephen L. Stix, 10784 South 250 East, Markleville, IN 46056.
303. For Canadian readers who are wondering who Alden Partridge was: he was born in 1785 in Norwich, Vt., and educated at Dartmouth and the Military Academy at West Point. After teaching at West Point from 1806 to 1817, he returned to Norwich in 1818 to found the American Literary, Scientific and Military Academy. Now called Norwich University, his school was the first civilian educational institution in the United States to offer military training to its students. Partridge died in 1854, and was honored by the post office in 1985 as the spiritual father of the ROTC (the Reserve Officers Training Corps). For American readers who may be wondering why Canadian readers are wondering: a portrait of Alden Partridge appears on the 11-cent stamp that can be used with a 29-stamp to send a 40-cent letter to Canada.
-
304. Jul 91 #6: Further to the news of Bill Barton's "So Ya Wanna Be a Rock 'n' Roll Star! A Rock 'n' Role-Playing Game" (Jan 91 #2), Bill now reports that the major Sherlockian sections of the game are available as "Sherlock in Rock: The Adventures of Sherlock & the CDs" ($6.95 postpaid). Information on this and on other S'ian offers is available (in return for an SASE) from Bill Barton, Box 26290, Indianapolis, IN 46226.
305. If you would like to know what's in store from 221A Baker Street Associates through the end of 1994, when Simon and Schuster's series of 26 Rathbone/Bruce audiocassettes will end, Lawrence P. Nepodahl (1230 Vienna Boulevard, DeKalb, IL 60115) offers a complete list of the 52 program titles in return for an SASE.
306. Isaac Bashevis Singer died on July 24. He was a masterful storyteller who wrote all of his stories and novels in Yiddish, and won the Nobel prize for literature in 1978. Not long after receiving the award, Singer recalled his first youthful encounter with literature, in Yiddish storybooks: "When I was about 12 years old I read Sherlock Holmes stories by Conan Doyle.
307. They impressed me highly, and I immediately decided to become a writer of detective stories. About the same time, Dostoyevsky's 'Crime and Punishment' came out in Yiddish. I didn't understand all of it, but my elation was great. I think that right then I resolved that I must be a Yiddish writer just as Conan Doyle and Dostoyevsky were. It never occurred to me that these were translations."
308. The 1991 catalog for grades 7-12 from the Perfection Form Co. (spotted by Peter Ashman) offers a Dell paperback of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES in their special cover-craft binding (with teaching aids such as pictures and tests), RETOLD BRITISH CLASSICS (a 1987 anthology with adaptations of "The Speckled Band" and "The Red-Headed League" and with striking illustrations by Clint Hanson), and a colorful poster for "The Speckled Band". Their address is 1000 North Second Avenue, Logan, IA 51546 (800-831-4190).
309. "Sherlock Holmes Detected in the Arizona State University Libraries" was the theme suggested by Maxine Reneker for an exhibit intended to promote library instruction at ASU in 1989, and "Sherlock Detected" is the title of Rosanna Miller's three-page article explaining the exhibit, spotted by Paul Herbert in the Jan. 1991 issue of College & Research Libraries News. The magazine is available from the Association of College & Research Libraries, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611; $4.50.
310. Richard Manney's library will be sold by Sotheby's in New York on Oct. 11. His collection is a fine one (he owns the only known Dickens manuscript in private hands), and there will be some important Doyleana in the sale: the manuscript of "The Mazarin Stone", Beeton's Christmas Annual (two pages of advertisements and the rear cover in facsimile), the first printing of the first edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in dust jacket (the only copy known), inscribed first editions of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES and THE VALLEY OF FEAR, and a first edition of THE LOST WORLD inscribed to Lady Doyle are some of the more interesting items. Hard-bound catalogs will be available from Sotheby's subscription dept. (203-847-0465) in late Sept.
-
311. Aug 91 #1: The statue of Sherlock Holmes in Picardy Place in Edinburgh was unveiled on June 24 by Geoffrey Chisholm, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, in a ceremony attended by Holmesians such as Shirley Purves, Pam Bruxner, and Stanley MacKenzie. According to The Scotsman, it was Stanley MacKenzie who noticed that the plaque on the statue announces that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was born there on 22 May 1841. The Federation of Master Builders presumably will be able to correct the date to 1859.
312. The ferocious hound (of the Baskervilles, according to Herb Tinning), is a three-inch black-and-yellow sticker distributed by the postal service in Maplewood, N.J., so that patrons can warn mail carriers.
313. Further to the forecast (Jan 91 #1) about the magazine Argosy, issue #3 (Aug. 1991) has been published, with an attractive full-color Sherlockian cover by Steranko and the first half of Ellery Queen's adaptation of "A Study in Terror" illustrated by Alan Weiss. The magazine costs $4.00 an issue, or $15.00 for a four-issue subscription (the second half of the story will appear in issue #4); there is an amusing S'ian twist in Bruce Pelz's story "True Profession" in issue #1 (May 1990), available only with a four-issue subscription). Argosy's address is 242 East Third Street, Long Beach, CA 90802; a separate print of the Steranko cover is available on request and without charge (while supplies last) to those who order issue #3 or a four-issue subscription.
314. Jack Kerr reports: GREAT TALES OF MADNESS & THE MACABRE, edited by Charles Ar dai (New York: Galahad Books, 1990; $4.98 on the discount tables); with Conan Doyle's "The Leather Funnel". And a new addition to Marjorie Weinman Sharmat's series: NATE THE GREAT GOES DOWN IN THE DUMPS (Dell, $2.95).
315. Travelers to or in California may wish to attend the running of The Silver Blaze at Bay Meadows Race Track in San Mateo on Oct. 20. Contact Bruce R. Parker, Dept. of Radiology, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305.
316. The Empire Publishing Service (Box 1344, Studio City, CA 91614) is a U.S. source for Sherlockiana published in Britain by Ian Henry: John North's SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE GERMAN NANNY and SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE ARABIAN PRINCESS ($19.95 each), David Stuart Davies' SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE HENTZAU AFFAIR ($24.95), Val Andrews' SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE EMINENT THESPIAN and SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE BRIGHTON PAVILION MYSTERY ($19.95 each), and Terence Mustoo's play SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE DEERSTALKER ($7.95); shipping is $4.00 for one book, plus $1.50 for each additional book. But you might request a sales list from Ian Henry Publications (20 Park Drive, Romford, Essex RM1 4LH, England); they offer more titles directly, at somewhat lower prices, and they accept checks in dollars or sterling.

317. Donald Girard Jewell's A TROUT IN THE MILK: A MONOGRAPH ON FISH AND FISHING IN THE TIME OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Westminster: Pinchin Lane Press, 1991) is a carefully researched and illustrated 32-page monograph, available from the author (4685 Geeting Road, Westminster, MD 21158) for $9.95 postpaid.
-
318. Aug 91 #2: St. Peter's (Jul 91 #3) *is* mentioned in the Canon. See "The Second Stain" (where Godolphin Street is described as "one of the old-fashioned and secluded rows of eighteenth century houses which lie between the river and the Abbey"). The "Abbey" is Westminster Abbey, and that's where you will find St. Peter's (no longer a cathedral). In 1550 the abbey church of St. Peter, Westminster, was advanced to the dignity of a cathedral by letters patent, but ten years later it was rejoined to the diocese of London, and that's when many of its estates were appropriated to pay for repairs to St. Paul's Cathedral.
319. Sorry about that: admirers of Alden Partridge (Jul 91 #5) will not be able to purchase those stamps at post offices, because the postal service took them off sale some time ago. You may, in fact, encounter some difficulty in purchasing any sort of 11-cent stamps, because the only 11-cent stamp now available (and not widely available) is a coil stamp portraying a Stutz Bearcat (which one might assume is a tribute to Aunt Clara, of course).
320. Catalog #8 at hand from Vinnie Brosnan (Sherlock in L.A., 1741 Via Allena, Oceanside, CA 92056), with 440 items (most of them Sherlockian or Doylean).
321. Sherlock Holmes' long association with Playboy began with the first issue, which included an excerpt from "The Sign of the Four" (because in those early days Hugh Hefner could afford to publish only public-domain fiction). And the association continues: Holmes and Watson appear in Playboy's Party Jokes in the Sept. 1991 issue.
322. Further to the query on Sherlock Holmes riding horses (Jul 91 #1), Hugh Harrington notes additional occasions, in the film "The Copper Beeches" (1912) and in Granada's version of "The Priory School".
323. Richard Wein sends news of the September schedule for Arts & Entertainment cable: the 1967 British series "The Prisoner" starts on Sept. 19 (Patrick McGoochan appears in Sherlockian costume in the episode "The Girl Who Was Death"), and "Sherlock Holmes Mysteries" (the Granada series) on Sept. 23 (there is a report that A&E has edited the programs to 43 minutes to allow time for more commercials).
324. Harry Reasoner died on Aug. 6. He was a television and radio newsman for 35 years, mostly with CBS but also, in the 1970s, with ABC. It was on "The Reasoner Report" on ABC radio news on Feb. 12, 1973, that he reported that "Sherlock Holmes Still Lives" and offered a fine tribute to the Master. At one point in his report he acknowledged that "there are those supercilious little people who insist he never existed," adding that "fortunately, there are only a few of that kind around and we can ignore them." Julian Wolff noted in the BSJ that Reasoner (and his listeners) owed much to the writer and producer of the program: Otto Penzler.
325. Spotted by Jennie Paton: a new edition of SEARCH-A-PICTURE PUZZLES, by Tony Tallarico (first published in 1981), with Sherlockian artwork on the cover and in one of the picture puzzles (Chicago: Kidsbooks; 64 pp., $1.95).
-
326. Aug 91 #3: "Life around here ambles on fairly unexcitingly. This month has slipped by without any work--false starts mainly--and a good deal of dining out that featured a few quite boring evenings. One of the worst occurred this past week when I weakly consented to dinner with... Princess Mdivani.... It seems that she was previously wed to Denis Conan Doyle, the son of the celebrated Arthur, and has now become the heiress to the whole literary estate. She and the husband are determined to rope me into writing a screen play for *The Lost World*, that science-fiction nonsense of Conan Doyle's about Professor Challenger, and as a result I was dragged through two endless evenings. On the second, the Princess insisted on telling my fortune with cards, presumably hoping to foretell that I would do their screenplay. The pasteboards revealed, however, that I was not destined to stay in England. 'You weel only be fulfeeled by movement,' the Princess declared, her nose buried in the cards. 'You are like a table --underneath you are ze real wood, but pippel see only ze veneer on top. Zey mus' penetrate through ze veneer and find ze real you, ze wood underneath.' She was wrong in calling it wood, though--actually, I'd turned to stone." S. J. Perelman, in a letter written from London on Jan. 30, 1972, discovered in DON'T TREAD ON ME: THE SELECTED LETTERS OF S. J. PERELMAN, edited by Prudence Crowther (New York: Viking, 1987).
327. Spotted by eagle-eyed Jack Kerr in the fall 1991 catalog from Talbots: a nicely Sherlockian hand-knit ramie/cotton sweater (item F39121) available with a red background and in various sizes, for $114.00 plus shipping. The catalog has full-color photographs (the back of the sweater, not shown here, has a rather unBaskervillean basset hound). The address for Talbots is 175 Beal Street, Hingham, MA 02043 (800-882-5268), and they take plastic.
328. An Associated Press press dispatch (sent by Rick Smith) reports that the National Farm Medicine Center in Marshfield, Wis., is concerned about the exposure of farmers to skin cancer. The standard baseball caps worn by many modern farmers do not provide adequate protection from the sun, the center believes, and one of the alternatives now being tested is the deerstalker.
329. To avoid possible confusion about the dates of "Autumn in Baker Street", the event will be held on Nov. 2-3 at the Tarrytown Hilton in Tarrytown, N.Y. The hotel is taking reservations now (914-631-5700), and registration information and a detailed schedule are available from Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
330. It is tempting to think of some people in the Sherlockian world as truly permanent and perpetual sources of assistance and advice, and one of those people is Cameron Hollyer, who has now officially retired from his post at the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library, where he has ably served our cause (and theirs) as curator of the Arthur Conan Doyle Collection for more than twenty years. His successor is Victoria Gill, who has specialized in British literature at the library since 1983, and whom Cam has described in glowing terms as a member of the Bootmakers and "well up" in Holmes and in detective fiction in general. As might be expected, Cam is not yet totally retired, and will continue as a consultant to the library until Dec. 6.
-
331. Aug 91 #4: ZPPR Productions (the radio repertory company whose membership includes performers who occasionally masquerade as The Friends of Bogie's) is known to National Public Radio's listeners for the series "Little Chills", and Susan Rice reports that the series has now been issued on audiocassettes by Dove Audio, and that LITTLE CHILLS #1 contains Andrew Joffe's "Hatrack of Death" (a Sherlockian parody described on the jacket as a delicious, murderous farce: the unlvely host of a bizarre cocktail party is found murdered). The cassette sells for about $9.00 in bookstores and in the mail-order catalog from Wireless (Box 64422, Saint Paul, MN 55164).
332. The Folio Society has published THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1958), THE LOST WORLD (1977), and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (1987), and this year CRIME STORIES FROM THE 'STRAND', edited by Geraldine Beare, and with an introduction by H.R.F. Keating and striking full-page illustrations by David Eccles. The anthology has a good selection of stories (including "A Scandal in Bohemia" and "The Dying Detective"). The book costs $35.50 and is available only to members of the Society; membership requirements are four titles a year, from the current list or the lengthy back-list, and their U.S. address is Folio Books Ltd., 594 Broadway #806, New York, NY 10012.
333. The second issue of The Sherlock Holmes Gazette at hand, with 32 pages and nicely done, with a good mix of articles and reports, and a colorful souvenir postcard promoting an exhibition of Deirdre Keetley's artwork at the Sherlock Holmes Hotel in Baker Street. The Gazette reports that

- Granada was to start shooting this month on "The Master Blackmailer" (their new title for the two-hour version of "Charles Augustus Milverton"), with Robert Hardy as Milverton. The Gazette also followed up the report in the Daily Mail (Jul 91 #1) that Stephen Fry and Hugh Laurie are planning a Sherlock Holmes series, and discovered that neither the actors' agents nor Fry himself know anything about it. The quarterly Sherlock Holmes Gazette costs £18 a year outside the United Kingdom; payment by sterling check or credit card, to Theme Publications, 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Preston, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England.
334. "What is huge and furry, has vicious fangs, big ears and a long tail, and sings 'My Way'?"
335. And by way of a another correction to a mistake in an earlier issue (May 91 #7), Gerald F. O'Hara's proper address is 3912-115A Street, Edmonton, Alta. T6J 1R1, Canada, and that's where you can send orders (US$10.00 postpaid) for a copy of his translation into English of the original material in the Apr. 1987 issue of the Magazine Litteraire, the French magazine which paid warm centenary tribute to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle with a lengthy section of articles and essays.
336. Jon Lellenberg reports that a facsimile of the 1930 John Murray edition of Conan Doyle's THE EDGE OF THE UNKNOWN has been published in the Time-Life Books subscription series "The Collector's Library of the Unknown". Books in the series cost $18.95 each to subscribers, and more information can be obtained from Time-Life Books, 777 Duke Street, Alexandria, VA 22314.
-
337. Aug 91 #5: Rupert Holmes (whose pen name reflects his enjoyment of Rupert Knickerbocker beer and the Canon, and who wrote the imaginative musical "The Mystery of Edwin Drood") will have at least one Sherlockian line in his next musical. "Solitary Confinement" will star Stacy Keach, and is scheduled to begin previews at the Pasadena Playhouse on Nov. 15 and to open officially on Nov. 24.
338. For those who haven't been paying attention to promotional announcements on PBS-TV: "The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes" will start on "Mystery!" on Nov. 14. The new series will have six programs (though not necessarily in this order): "The Problem of Thor Bridge", "The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax", "The Illustrious Client", "The Creeping Man", "The Boscombe Valley Mystery", and "Shoscombe Old Place". This brings the total of stories to 32, with 34 hours of programming (well, about 30 hours if you don't count the introductions), and puts Jeremy Brett well in the lead for the most hours as Holmes on screen or tube.
339. Jerry Margolin is trying to complete his set of the nine variants of the three titles published by Union Carbide in 1971 (D219b, D231b, and D234b), and now needs only THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES with the Isaac Asimov story on the dust jacket. Anyone who can offer a copy of this variant for sale or trade is invited to write to Jerry at 10007 S.W. Quail Post Road, Portland, OR 97219.
340. Doug Marlette, creator of the cartoon strip "Kudzu", is also a political cartoonist, and his most recent Sherlockian artwork, received from Paul Singleton, appeared in Newsday on Aug. 11.
-
341. Aug 91 #6: Turner Network Television reports that their two-hour broadcast of "The Crucifer of Blood" will debut on TNT cable on Nov. 4, with repeats later in the week. Paul Giovanni's play premiered in Buffalo in 1978 and then ran on Broadway, with Paxton Whitehead (Holmes), Timothy Landfield (Watson), and Glenn Close (Irene St. Clair), and was produced in London in 1979 (with Keith Michell, Denis Lill, and Susan Hampshire). The play was revived in Los Angeles in 1980 (with Charlton Heston and Jeremy Brett), and this was followed by discussions with CBS-TV about a television project with Heston, targeted for the 1982-83 season. There have also been more than 35 productions of the play by local theater companies in the U.S. and Britain. The TNT version will star Charlton Heston, Richard Johnson, and Susannah Harker.
342. "What is huge and furry, has vicious fangs, big ears and a long tail, and sings 'My Way'?" "The giant rat of Sinatra," according to Roger Johnson, in the May 22 issue of his newsletter The District Messenger.
343. Visitors to Colorado may wish to see an exhibit of "Magnificent Obsessions" at the Arvada Center for the Arts and Humanities in Arvada (on view through Nov. 24). The exhibit's theme is collectors, collecting, and collections, and it will include Sherlockiana from the collection of John E. Stephenson.
344. Edward A. Merrill ("Palladio") died on Aug. 14. His Investiture reflects his expertise in architecture, and in that field he was expert indeed. He served as a Colonel in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in World War II, and then joined the firm known eventually as Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, and was resident project engineer for the construction of the Air Force Academy in Colorado. His first Sherlockian project was his article in the BSI in 1970 on "Holmes and Brunton: Civil Engineers" (for which he won the Morley-Montgomery Award), and he received his Investiture in 1972. He was also an active member of scion societies in San Francisco and Tulsa, and a fine amateur player of the violin and viola, and his continued interest in Musgrave architecture (as well as his fine writing style) is best displayed in his definitive monograph "FOR THE SAKE OF THE TRUST": SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE MUSGRAVE RITUAL (Gaslight Publications, 1982).
345. The "Mark Trail" cartoon (drawn by Jack Elrod) ran in many papers on Aug. 18. Trail obviously is a better naturalist than he is a speller.
-
346. Sep 91 #1: A "Victorian Holmes Weekend" in Cape May, N.J., in Nov. 1990 was successful enough to warrant a repeat, on Nov. 8-11, 1991. According to the flier, at hand from Bob Katz, there will be a Sherlockian mystery ("The Adventure in Cape May") to be solved by those who attend the weekend, and an opportunity to "join Arthur Conan Doyle in his study as he wrestles with the plot to his latest Sherlock Holmes story." Additional details are available from the Mid-Atlantic Center for the Arts, Box 340, Cape May, NJ 08204.
347. Jerry D. Flack's MYSTERY AND DETECTION: THINKING AND PROBLEM SOLVING WITH THE SLEUTHS (Englewood: Teacher Ideas Press, 1990; 246 pp., $21.00) takes an imaginative approach to the use of the mystery genre in teaching gifted students. The Canon receives heavy emphasis, and many of the ideas in the book can easily be used by parents. The publisher's address is Box 3988, Englewood, CO 80155.
348. The Arthur Conan Doyle Society, launched in 1989, publishes two journals that concentrate (but not exclusively) on the non-Sherlockian aspects of Conan Doyle's career and works: A.C.D. is a more formal journal, averaging about 80 typeset pages with illustrations, and The Parish Magazine is an informal newsletter (four issues each have appeared to date, and all are interesting and well-produced). Surface-mail membership in the society costs £14.00 (or $24.00) to the U.S., and airmail membership costs £19.00 ($32.00); the society's founder and editor is Christopher Roden, Grasmere, 35 Penfold Way, Dodleston, Chester CH4 9ML, England.
349. Milton F. Perry ("Nathan Garrideb") died on Aug. 20. Milt's specialty was regional history, and he was an early member of the Great Alkali Plainsmen distinguished, revealing in Dec. 1966 at a meeting of the society in Tulsa, his discovery that Sherlock Holmes had visited Kansas City in Jan. 1880 and had investigated a mysterious death there (see his article in the June 1976 issue of Baker Street Miscellanea). Milt was curator of the Truman Library and Museum in Independence until 1976, and often discussed the Canon with President Truman. In 1978 Milt launched the restoration of the Jesse James farm, retiring recently after 13 years as curator of the James Museum.
350. Elizabeth Peters' sixth mystery novel about Amelia Peabody Emerson will be THE LAST CAMEL DIED AT NOON, to be published in hardcover by Warner Books, and as a main selection of the Mystery Guild, and as an alternate selection of the Literary Guild and the Doubleday Book Club (that's called covering all the bases), and those who have been waiting patiently for three years for an addition to the series will need no additional

- recommendation. For newcomers: the series is set in Victorian England and Egypt, and is written with style and humor, and the new book may include one or more Sherlockian allusions (as have most of the others in the series).
351. THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES 100TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION, published by the Easton Press in three volumes in 1987, is a handsome leather-bound reprint (with color frontispieces) of the Heritage Press edition published in 1952 and 1957. Jon Lellenberg reports that the set is again available, at the 1987 price of $39.45 per volume postpaid; the address of the Easton Press is 47 Richards Avenue, Norwalk, CT 06857, and they take plastic.
-
352. Sep 91 #2: It's time for a new plug for the USPS Stamped Envelope Agency, the source for boxes of 500 printed stamped envelopes used for these mailings (you can order up to seven printed lines, and there are no shipping charges). The printed regular #10 stamped envelopes cost $160.00 a box (that's 32c each); the fancier LOVE envelopes cost $161.00 a box. Their turn-around time is about three weeks, and order forms are available from the Stamped Envelope Agency, Williamsburg, PA 16693-0500.
353. "Felon to folk hero: Fugitive's life in S.C." was the headline on an intriguing item in a July issue of USA Today, spotted by Dave Galerstein. Jack Koelle noted a story (with photograph) on "A Cannon on the Loose" in Time (July 29), and Bob Robinson reported far more publicity in the South Carolina papers (as might be expected), and that the fugitive Cannon is no longer loose (if you're nautical) or at large: he was taken into custody again while mowing a lawn.
354. Bill Berner's supply of THE INTERNATIONAL ILLUSTRATED SHERLOCK HOLMES (Jun 91 #5) was quickly sold, but he has ordered more copies from Japan. The publisher's shipping costs have increased, and the book now costs $35.00 postpaid (order from William Berner, 4712 17th Street, San Francisco, CA 94117).
355. Recorded books appear to be increasingly popular in Britain: a recent newspaper review notes that Random Century Audiobooks has issued a two-cassette set of THE VALLEY OF FEAR, read by Peter Cushing (£7.99).
356. Further to the report (Aug 91 #4), the Folio Society has announced that they have decided to close their office in the United States. But they are still in business in Britain, and their address there is 202 Great Suffolk Street, London SE1 1PR, England.
357. If your local National Public Radio station carries "NPR Playhouse" you may have a chance to hear a new series in October. The likely series title is "Cases of Sherlock Holmes" and there will be eight 30-minute broadcasts: "A Study in Scarlet" (in six parts), plus "A Scandal in Bohemia" and "The Speckled Band", with Edward Petherbridge (who has played Lord Peter Wimsey on "Mystery!") as Sherlock Holmes and David Peart as Dr. Watson.
358. National Public Radio is also considering acquiring the BBC Radio 4 series that stars Clive Merrison and Michael Williams, if a corporate angel can be found. If you know a generous prospect who might be willing to contribute about $20,000 to fund the project, the contact is Andy Trudeau, National Public Radio, 2025 M Street NW, Washington, DC 20036 (202-822-2000).
-
359. Sep 91 #3: For the completists: the "221A" audiocassettes of the Rathbone/Bruce radio programs distributed by Simon & Schuster are available in stores (there are now 13 cassettes, each with two programs), and in boxed sets (there are now two sets, each with eight programs). The second boxed set ($24.95) is in the fall 1991 catalog from Wireless (Box 6422, St. Paul, MN 55164), along with lots of other nice things of interest to fans of public radio. The phone number is 800-669-9999, and they take plastic.
360. One of the truly frustrating aspects of the popularity of Sherlock Holmes is that he so popular in Japan, where almost all of the Writings About the Writings are written and published in Japanese, a language which very few western Sherlockians can read. A welcome exception is THE NEZIRE ZANMAI INTERNATIONAL, an anthology of artwork and articles, all in English. The 32-page booklet has been published by The Men with the Twisted Konjo, and costs $4.00 (U.S. currency rather than checks, please) postpaid by airmail, from Yuichi Hirayama, 2-10-12 Kamirenjaku, Mitaka-shi, Tokyo 181, Japan.
361. Gilded Lily Creations (1084 East 250 South, Bountiful, UT 84010) offers a new print (signed and numbered by Jan Walker) on 14x17-inch high-rag stock, at $24.00 each, plus $3.00 per order for shipping.
362. Comic-book news, reported by Tim O'Connor: Dan Day's series, first published by Renegade Press and then by Northstar (for a total of 20 issues), will continue, from Tome Press (apparently a subsidiary of Caliber). According to the latest issue of Advance Comics, THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND ($2.50) is due to ship in November.
363. Spotted by Tyke Niver: Garry James' well-illustrated article on "Shooting the Guns of Sherlock Holmes" in the Oct. 1991 issue of Handguns for Sport & Defense. James has written about Canonical weaponry in the past, and now reports on his test-firing of a Webley Metropolitan Police revolver and an Adams revolver. The address for the magazine is 8490 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90069, and the cover price is $2.95.
364. John Crosby died on Sept. 7. He began his career as a journalist with the Milwaukee Sentinel, and moved to the N.Y. Herald Tribune in 1935, where in 1946 he became their radio-television critic and held that job until 1965, winning many awards for achievement in journalism. Reviewing the Ronald Howard series in 1955, Crosby praised its sense of period ("when everything moved a lot more slowly and a private detective could pursue a criminal in a leisurely and gentlemanly way, a refreshing relief from all the punchdrunk Mickey Spillane characters"). But he also noted that the series had received an endorsement from the BSI, and suggested that "All I can say to that is that that mob must have lost some of the old fire . . . in the old days, there would have been shooting from the housetops."
365. Dick Rutter reports that Microsoft supplies a "Windows Resource Kit" with its Windows 3.0 software. And the "Productivity Pack" includes a section on "Learning Windows" that offers assistance from five historical figures: Einstein, Cleopatra, Merlin, Robin Hood, and Sherlock Holmes.
-
366. Sep 91 #4: WHO STOLE MRS. WICK'S SELF-ESTEEM? (reported in the Sept. 1991 issue of In Health and spotted by Herb Tinning) is a 16-page pamphlet offering a story written by Billie Thomas and illustrated by Tom Novak, with Holmes and Watson giving advice on how to develop a positive self-image. $2.00 postpaid from the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Public Awareness Department, Box 2866-IH, Chicago, IL 60690.
367. Harmony Gold and Klondike Films are now in production on "The Lost World" and "Return to the Lost World", and are filming in London and Zimbabwe. The stars are John Rhys-Davies (Challenger) and David Warner (Summerlee), supported by Eric McCormack (Malone), and Tamara Gorski (Jennie Nielson, the beautiful girl who accompanies the expedition). The two mini-series are targeted for release in 1993.
368. Spotted by Bob Burr: a forecast of WHATEVER HAPPENED TO SHERLOCK HOLMES? DETECTIVE FICTION, POPULAR THEOLOGY, AND SOCIETY, by Robert S. Paul, due from Southern Illinois University Press in Nov. (288 pp., $24.95). Paul analyzes the genre, and suggests that "the writer of detective fiction, without conscious intent, appeals directly to those moral and spiritual roots of society unconsciously affirmed and endorsed by the readers."
369. It was Joe Eckrich, rather than Ron Fish, who was seen wearing the Sherlock Bones T-shirt at Williamsburg (Jun 91 #6). Gary Thaden (who sent in twenty separate entries) also won one of the T-shirts.
370. The latest sales list from the British publisher Ian Henry includes two new books: DOCTOR WATSON AND THE INVISIBLE MAN, a pastiche by Noel Downing, has Langdale Pike and Dr. Watson pursuing Griffin's stolen invisibility formula (£10.95), and Harry Stone's THE CASEBOOK OF SHERLOCK

- DOYLE reports on the many real-life mysteries investigated by Conan Doyle (£15.95). Ian Henry's address is 20 Park Drive, Romford, Essex RM1 4LH, England.
371. Denny Martin Flinn's KILLER FINISH (New York: Bantam Books, 1991; 260 pp., $3.99) is the second in his series about Spencer Holmes, the San Francisco private detective who is the grandson of Sherlock Holmes and who is in the audience when the magician The Great Gandolfo dies mysteriously during his last performance. This Great Gandolfo is not, however, the grandson of the magician with whom Sherlock Holmes was involved in the 1945 Rathbone/Bruce radio program "The Great Gandolfo".
372. There are mentions of roses in three of the stories, or four (if you want to count the rose-water in "The Sign of the Four"), or five (if you count Salvador Rosa), a total that neatly matches the five roses on a new set of stamps issued by Great Britain.
-
373. Sep 91 #5: Shooting for "Charles Augustus Milverton" (which will be called "The Master Blackmailer" by Granada) was scheduled from Aug. 19 to Sept. 20 in Manchester and on location in Cheshire, Nottinghamshire, and Derbyshire. Robert Hardy is in the cast, probably in the role of Milverton (and one can only hope that he is Milverton, because he'll be a fine one).
374. And there's more news about "The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes" on "Mystery!" (beginning Nov. 14): there will be five programs broadcast by PBS-TV: "The Illustrious Client", "The Creeping Man", "The Problem of Thor Bridge", "The Boscombe Valley Mystery", and "Shoscombe Old Place" ("The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax" is being held in reserve for broadcast during the Aug. 1992 pledge drives).
375. And there's good news and bad news about Jeremy Brett: the good news is that he will arrive in New York on Sept. 29 and then tour, promoting the Granada series. The bad news is that the tour schedule is (as we go to press) only tentative (so you should check with your local PBS-TV station to see what's really what, and when). The arrival dates after New York are (or at least may be): Oct. 8 in Los Angeles, Oct. 14 in Dallas, Oct. 17 in St. Louis, Oct. 20 in Atlanta, Oct. 22 in Detroit, Oct. 23 in Philadelphia, Oct. 25 in Washington, Oct. 30 in Boston, Nov. 3 in Cleveland, and Nov. 5 in Chicago.
376. Alan Wheatley died in Sept. His obituary in the Daily Telegraph noted that Wheatley "combined an air of supercilious self-assurance with a shifty-eyed hint of villainy to make his mark in a variety of roles on both stage and screen," and those roles included Sherlock Holmes, in six Canonical tales broadcast by BBC television in 1951. In 1954 he was on BBC radio as Herr Professor Willi Notenschlager (Holmes' old German teacher of the violin) in "A Tribute to Sherlock Holmes", and in 1963 he played Sherlock Holmes again on BBC radio in "The Man Who Was Sherlock Holmes" (an "investigation into the relationship between the famous detective and his creator" written by Michael and Mollie Hardwick).
377. Niagara Falls is shown on a new postal card, with an attractive design by Wendell Minor. "'From a drop of water,' said the writer, 'a logician could infer the possibility of an Atlantic or a Niagara without having seen or heard of one or the other.'" (Stud) "I seem to have all Niagara whizzing and buzzing in my ears." (Croo) That's nice imagery, certainly, but: how many other oceans and falls might be inferred from a drop of water? And how much whizzing and buzzing can actually be heard at Niagara Falls?
378. This year's Christmas card from the Sherlock Holmes Society of London will have a photograph of the sitting room at the new Sherlock Holmes Museum in Meiringen (with brief commentary and the usual greeting). A packet of ten cards costs $8.50 postpaid, and checks (payable to the Society) can be sent to Capt. W. R. Michell, Old Crown Inn, Lopen, South Petherton, Somerset TA13 5JX, England.
379. Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson appear (again) in Playboy's Party Jokes in the Oct. 1991 issue. The joke, I fear, is no funnier than the last one.
-
380. Sep 91 #6: They are still called trading cards, apparently, and people may actually trade them still (we certainly did in the days when they came in packs of bubble gum), and "Star Trek" is celebrating its 25th anniversary with a set of 160 cards showing scenes from the original series and from "Star Trek: The Next Generation". And card #38 has a scene from the 1988 program "Elementary, Dear Data" (with Brent Spiner as Holmes and LeVar Burton as Watson). Jonathan Abell reports that some comic-book shops and other outlets break open packs so that complete sets can be assembled, selling the duplicate single cards for modest sums. The distributor of the cards is Impel Marketing Inc., Research Triangle Park, NC 27709.
381. Watch for newspaper reports in Oct. about the results of the auction of the independent television franchises in Britain. There are 16 ITV franchises (including Granada), and new ten-year licenses will take effect in 1992. According to the latest issue of Anglofile, there are rumors that Granada has been outbid, but may nevertheless retain its license because there is a "quality threshold" that winning bidders must also satisfy. But if Granada does lose its license it could operate as an independent production company and might offer "Coronation Street" (its most popular series) to the BBC. Anglofile offers the latest entertainment news from Britain, and costs $12 a year (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033).
382. Al Rosenblatt (whose disclaimer reads, "Honest, I had nothing to do with this!") reports some Sherlockian artwork on a judicial flier.
383. Deborah W. Sage's DOGGEREL IN THE NIGHT-TIME is the newest title published by the Gasogene Press, and it is nicely done, with amusing and imaginative poems, and delightful illustrations by Jeff Decker. The 92-page book (paper covers) is available for $13.45 postpaid from the publisher (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004).
384. Sherlock, Stock & Barrel (Box 8261, Colorado Springs, CO 80933) offers a new sales list, with sculptures by Cheryl Harness, medals by Alex Shagin, and a varied assortment of Sherlockian pins.
385. Does anyone have or know of a publicity photograph or still showing Anna May Wong in the film "A Study in Scarlet" (1933)? I would welcome a photocopy (and if you can help, please don't assume that someone else will be sending me one).
386. Anvil Cassettes (4 Reed's Corner, Marlborough, Wilts. SN8 2RR, England) are offering FAVOURITE MUSIC OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, a new audiocassette (£4.99) that Roger Johnson describes as a "rather speculative" collection of music by Mendelssohn, Tchaikovsky, Brahms, Offenbach, Beethoven, and others (but without anything by Wagner).
387. Spotted by Al Rosenblatt at a local Grand Union: CURSIVE WRITING (a "Golden Step Ahead" activity book) with Sherlockian art on the cover and on p. 26 (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1990; 32 pp., $2.25).
-
388. Sep 91 #7: THE SCOTTISH STUDENTS' SONG BOOK will no longer be published. A report in The Higher: The Times Higher Education Supplement (Aug. 16, 1991), at hand from Chris Redmond, the book was first published in 1891 and was so popular (sales averaged 11,000 copies a year until World War Two) that it was claimed to be one of two books that could be found in every Scottish household (the other being the Bible). But student songs "are no longer in vogue," according to the secretary of the committee that publishes the book (and a shorter edition published in 1982 was banned at Glasgow University on the grounds of racism in songs such as "The Campdown Races"). For many years the song book contained the words and music for Claude Ralston's "Sherlock Holmes" (D4472a), and for "Mush, Mush" (the song whose tune would seem to have been the source of Jim Montgomery's tribute to his, and our, beloved "Aunt Clara").
389. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: SASSAFRAS HOLMES AND THE LIBRARY MYSTERIES, by Carolmarie Stock, a 61-page pamphlet with a Sherlockian artwork on the cover and Sherlockian characters explaining libraries to youngsters. $9.95 from the Alleyside Press, Box 889, Hagerstown, MD 21741.

390. A revival of Christopher Martin's adaptation of "A Study in Scarlet" toured in Britain this year, and the program from the one-week run at the Theatre Royal in Margate included a bit of history, whence comes this excerpt about a meeting in London: "It turned out to be a fruitful dinner party: from it resulted not only Conan Doyle's next Sherlock Holmes masterpiece, The Gang of Four, but also Oscar Wilde's The Picture of Dorian Gray."
391. Reported by Dick Rutter: AN EXALTATION OF LARKS: THE ULTIMATE EDITION, by James Lipton (Viking, 1991, $20.00). First published in 1968, and revised in 1977 (and again for the new edition), the book explores "the venereal game" (which is not quite what you may be imagining at the moment). Lipton notes in his introduction that Conan Doyle once played the game, and quotes at length from SIR NIGEL, in which young Nigel demonstrates his knowledge of collective nouns, such as a cete of badgers, a skulk of foxes, etc.
392. The City of Westminster and the Arthur Conan Doyle Society have joined in publication of a facsimile of the manuscript of "The Dying Detective", with an introduction by Julian Symons and an afterword by Owen Dudley Edwards. The deluxe edition (limited to 100 copies bound in buckram and signed by Symons, Edwards, and Dame Jean Conan Doyle) costs £105 postpaid ($200 to the U.S.), and the standard edition (bound in paper-covered boards) costs £27.50 postpaid ($60 to the U.S.). See the enclosed flier for details on where to send your checks.
393. Michael Harrison ("The Camberwell Poisoning Case") died on Sept. 13. It is tempting to assume that he was known by everyone: those who were his hosts during his visits or in audiences as he reminisced, or who were readers of his many books, Sherlockian and otherwise. He was truly an Edwardian, ably demonstrating the intelligence and the mischievous humor of a long-gone era (and one that he remembered well). His arrival in the world of Sherlockian literature was almost accidental, in 1958, but IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES was a landmark that led to a series of essays, articles, and books that won him the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1985 and a legion of readers, present and future, who will be the best memorial he could have wished for.
-
394. Sep 91 #8: John Gardner ("Moriarty") has written (and continues to write) books other than his continuation of Ian Fleming's series about James Bond, but it is the Bond series that sells best: a recent article in the Times notes that Fleming's series has sold 75 million copies worldwide, while the Gardner sequels have sold 100 million copies.
395. The Franco-Midland Hardware Company (a British-based international Holmesian correspondence study group) offers an introductory booklet describing their organization, publications and projects. Send $2.00 (currency only, please) to Philip Weller, 6 Bramham Moor, Hill Head, Fareham, Hampshire PO14 3RU, England.
396. A new catalog from Bits & Pieces: The Great International Puzzle Collection offers a Sherlockian chess set for $179.95, and the game 221B BAKER STREET (D3957b) for $16.95. Shipping is extra; their address is 1 Puzzle Place (B8016), Stevens Point, WI 54481 (800-544-7297); and they take plastic.
397. An imaginative and amusing soft-sculpture Sherlockian jack-in-the-box was spotted by Jerry Margolin at The Wood Gallery in Newport, Ore. The price is $73.00 (including shipping), they take plastic, and the toll-free number is 800-359-1419.
398. Only for the completists: THE HOUSE OF AGATHA MYSTRIE, a three-act comedy-mystery written by Robert A. Allen. The cast of parody detectives includes Sherluck Holmes, and the 82-page script is available from Baker's Plays, 100 Chauncy Street, Boston, MA 02111 ($6.00 postpaid).
399. Carol Nelson Douglas reports that GOOD MORNING, IRENE will be followed by DR. WATSON, I PERCEIVE, due in July 1992.
400. Reported by Jennie Paton: A COLLECTION OF HAUNTING TALES, including Conan Doyle's "The New Catacomb") on a set of three audiocassettes (Audio Book Contractors, Box 40115, Washington, DC 20016; $23.50).
401. Our recent booklet pane honoring comedians was designed by Al Hirschfeld, who has included his daughter Nina's name at least once on each stamp (the postal service waived its long-standing rule against secret marks, because those who recognize his style also tend to look for his trademark "NINA"). Laurel & Hardy, Charlie McCarthy, and Abbott & Costello have all appeared in deerstalkers in films, and Charlie McCarthy also on a souvenir spoon.
-
402. Oct 91 #1: THE REAL WORLD OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE TRUE CRIMES INVESTIGATED BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, by Peter Costello (London: Robinson, 1991; 235 pp., £14.95) (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1991; 235 pp., $19.95), offers a wide-ranging examination of ACD's involvement with the police (he was interviewed by a politely-suspicious detective in Southsea in 1885) and his interest in the crimes and criminals of his day. Some of the crimes and criminals will be familiar to those who have read ACD's own books and his biographies, but Costello offers new insight and information on the familiar, and intriguing detail on generally-neglected connections such as ACD's membership in the "Crimes Club" and the club's guided tour in 1905 of the scenes of Jack the Ripper's outrages.
403. The Dec. 1991 issue of Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine has Ellery Queen's script for "The Disappearance of Mr. James Phillimore" (reprinted from THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES). The script is based on "Mr. Short and Mr. Long" (broadcast by NBC in "The Adventures of Ellery Queen" in 1943); no one has ever reported a recording of the show.
404. Plan ahead (suggests Bill Rabe): The Old SOBs3 will hold their first "Aunt Clara Singalong" for those at loose ends at 8:00 pm on Thursday, Jan. 9, 1992, at O'Lunney's saloon and restaurant on West 44th Street, a few steps up (or down) from the Algonquin. Sherlockians are invited to wine and dine from a moderately-priced menu, and raise their voices in traditional and unconventional song (led by Hugh O'Lunney's resident folk singer). Bring your own favorite song sheets. No advance payment is required, but it is not a large establishment and a check for $10.00 for each person in your party, mailed to Mr. O'Lunney (12 West 44th Street, New York, NY 10036), will reserve your table and will be applied to your tab for the evening. Be certain to explain what the check is for (Hugh has a lot on his mind).
405. Diane Ackerman's A NATURAL HISTORY OF THE SENSES, first published in 1990, is now available in paperback (Vintage, $11.00); it is an interesting book, with as much philosophy as natural history, and a discussion of the Canon: "We can detect over ten thousand different odors, so many in fact, that our memories would fail us if we tried to jot down everything they represent. In 'The Hound of the Baskervilles,' Sherlock Holmes identifies a woman by the smell of her notepaper, pointing out that 'there are seventy-five perfumes, which it is very necessary that a criminal expert should be able to distinguish from each other.' A low number, surely. After all, anyone 'with a nose for' crime should be able to sniff out culprits from their tweed, India ink, talcum powder, Italian leather shoes, and countless other scented paraphernalia."
406. THE GREAT DETECTIVE PICTURES, by James Robert Parish and Michael R. Pitts (Metuchen: Scarecrow Press, 1990; 630 pp., $59.50), covers both films and television, and in some detail, with essays and quotes from reviews. The focus, however, is on American films and television: Arthur Wontner's 1937 "Silver Blaze" is discussed as "Murder at the Baskervilles" (the title for the American release in 1941), there is only minor discussion of the Jeremy Brett series (which is credited to Thames Television rather than Granada), and there is no listing for Baker's 1982 "The Hound of the Baskervilles".
-
407. Oct 91 #2: I've now seen a preview videocassette of Charlton Heston's "The Crucifer of Blood" (due to debut on TNT cable on Nov. 4), and I enjoyed it. This won't be a review, since I don't want to ruin some of the surprises for those who aren't familiar with the plot of the play by Paul Giovanni. But I

- will note that the show is thoroughly melodramatic, in the tradition of the Gillette play, and at times Charlton Heston's resemblance to William Gillette in his later years as Sherlock Holmes was striking.
408. Michael Pointer's new THE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (160 pp.) is a large book (10x14 in.) packed with illustrations (many in full color) of material owned by Pointer, Richard Lancelyn Green, and Stanley MacKenzie. Pointer's earlier books include THE PUBLIC LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1975) and THE SHERLOCK HOLMES FILE (1976); the text of his new book is more for the general public than for old hands, but the illustrations are thoroughly spectacular, offering a fine survey of early illustrators, stage, screen, radio, television, and advertising both old and new. The British edition is published by the Bison Group (London), and the American edition by the Mallard Press (New York) with a list price of $19.98.
409. Spotted by Jackie Geyer in the Oct. 1991 issue of Cat Fancy: a photograph of a Maine Coon brown mackerel tabby named Grand Champion Purricoon Arthur Coonan Doyle.
410. Capital Holmes has made its society emblem available on button, T-shirts, golf shirts, and sweatshirts. Write to Sheila Vaudrey (2217 Iris Street, Ottawa, Ont. K2C 1B7, Canada) for an illustrated flier with more information on prices, sizes, etc.
411. John Ruyle is alive and well and versifying, and back on board the Pequod (Press), whence comes an announcement of THE BULL PUP, with 27 "remarkable paraphrastic quartets" devoted to "A Study in Scarlet" (accompanied by a short poem written by Sherlock Holmes himself). The book is available from the author (521 Vincent Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707) for $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
412. The Granada series has indeed been edited for Arts & Entertainment. A&E's version of "A Scandal in Bohemia" had only 49 minutes from Granada, with bits and pieces missing (most noticeably some of the scenes that show Irene being adventurous), and there are frequent appearances of A&E's "bug" (the emblem that is superimposed at the lower right of the screen from time to time, to let you know that you're watching A&E). The PBS-TV versions run 53 minutes, I believe. Of course the good news is that airing the series on the Disney channel, and now on A&E, will allow a far larger audience to see the fine work that Granada has done with Sherlock Holmes.
413. And we will have an opportunity to see much more of Jeremy Brett on PBS-TV, since he has decided that he would like to do all sixty of the stories, and reports that Mobil is enthusiastic. The bad news, of course, is that that means delay in bringing his play to the United States, but Brett said that "The Secret of Sherlock Holmes" will open at the Brooks Atkinson Theatre in New York on Jan. 12, 1994. Yes: 1994. And Granada recently sold its series for broadcast in the Soviet Union, for a new total of 83 countries.
-
414. Oct 91 #3: Marian J. A. Jackson's THE CAT'S EYE (New York: Pinnacle Books, 1991; 256 pp., $3.50) is the third in her series about Abigail Patience Danforth, who continues to ignore Conan Doyle's earlier warning that amateur detecting is no career for a young lady (Sep 90 #5). Abigail is now in San Francisco in March 1900, involved in the high society of Nob Hill and the much lower society of the Barbary Coast (guided through the latter by Jack London).
415. "There's no place like Holmes for the holidays" surrounds a gold silhouette of a pipe-smoking Sherlock Holmes on a bright green Christmas tree ornament (diameter 2.5 inches) now available in a limited edition of 250 copies from Rick Hacker (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213) at $18.50 postpaid. This is the second annual issue of Rick's ornaments; a few of last year's ornaments (in red, with a gold Santa's pipe and "Happy Holidays, Happy Smoking") are still available at the same price.
416. According to Christopher Dunkley, in the [London] Financial Times (Feb. 27, 1991), Britain's most popular television series ("Coronation Street") has about 17 million viewers. Mysteries are also popular: "Dalgleish" has 12.6 million, "Poirot" 12.4 million, and "Inspector Morse" 11.2 million. By way of comparison, the season opener of "Murphy Brown" had a Nielsen rating of 23.8 (that's 21.9 million TV households). The United States has about four times the population, so a program as popular as "Coronation Street" is in Britain would have almost 70 million viewers here. And by way of further comparison, the 1990 TV film "Hands of a Murderer" had a 9.5 Nielsen rating (8.7 million TV households); the Niensens for "Mystery!" (and everything else on PBS-TV) are much lower than that.
417. Our new commemorative honoring the bicentennial of the District of Columbia shows a view down Pennsylvania Avenue toward the Capitol, based on a photograph taken in 1903; this is the view that William Gillette would have seen when he brought his play "Sherlock Holmes" to Washington in Nov. 1900 and in Dec. 1902.
418. The first formal mailing has arrived from Bouchercon XXIII, which will be held in Toronto on Oct. 8-11, 1992, at the Royal York Hotel. This will be the first four-day Bouchercon, with Thursday as a "Special Interests Day" and a farewell cocktail party on Sunday evening. Margaret Millar will be the guest of honor, Charlotte MacLeod will receive the Bouchercon lifetime achievement award, and Otto Penzler will be the toastmaster at the dinner on Saturday evening. Registration is $60.00 through the end of 1991, and the address is Bouchercon XXIII, Box 23, Station "S", Toronto, Ont. M5M 4L6, Canada.
419. SHERLOCK HOLMES ON THE ROOF OF THE WORLD: OR THE ADVENTURE OF THE WAYFARING GOD, by Thos. Kent Miller (Redlands: Rosemill House, 1991; 75 pp., $4.50), is yet another long-lost manuscript, but this one was written by Leo Vincey (whom some will recall from Rider Haggard's SHE and AYESHA). Accompanied by Horace Holly, Vincey is in Lhasa in 1891, where they meet a Norwegian named Sigerson, who is able to resolve both accusations of murder and the theft of a valuable religious document. Available from the publisher (Box 7692, Redlands, CA 92375) for $6.00 postpaid.
-
420. Oct 91 #4: Carolmarie Stock's SASSAFRAS HOLMES AND THE LIBRARY MYSTERIES (Hagerstown: Alleyside Press, 1991; 60 pp., $9.95) offers a pleasant collection of short stories about Sassy Holmes, her best friend Jane Watson, and city librarian Mrs. Hudson, intended to help youngsters learn how to use libraries. There are many Sherlockian allusions, and the book is available from the publisher (Box 889, Hagerstown, MD 21741).
421. Welcome news for those who are tired of eating Klondike ice-cream bars in hopes of winning a Klondike bear in Sherlockian costume (May 91 #5): John E. Stephenson reports that the bear can also be purchased ($16.45 plus two proofs of purchase from Klondike six-packs) from Klondike Holmes Bear, 5400 118th Avenue North, Clearwater, FL 34620.
422. It's not Sherlockian, but gourmets and gourmands (and others) will enjoy A COOK'S ALPHABET OF QUOTATIONS, edited by Maria Polushkin Robbins (New York: Dutton, 1991; $16.95). A sample: "Isn't there any other part of the matzo you can eat?" (Marilyn Monroe).
423. Dick Rutter suggests that political pundits worrying about atomic devices in the hands of the "breakaway" Soviet republics might recall the Latvian "gentleman" who once threatened the world in a story by Conan Doyle.
424. Reported by Troy Taylor: Robert McCammon's BOY'S LIFE (New York: Pocket Books, 1991; 440 pp., $21.95); not Sherlockian (but with an appearance by one of Professor Challenger's dinosaurs).
425. Add one more film to the list of occasions on which Sherlock Holmes can be seen driving an automobile: Jim Vogelsang notes that Holmes is seen at the wheel of the antique car at the end of "Murder by Death" (1976).

426. The new trade-paperback edition of ROUND THE FIRE STORIES (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1991; 226 pp., $9.95) is a fine companion to Chronicle's reprints of THE LOST WORLD & THE POISON BELT (Sep 89 #3) and WHEN THE WORLD SCREAMED & OTHER STORIES (Aug 90 #1). ROUND THE FIRE STORIES offers some well-told tales, including the apocryphal cases "The Man with the Watches" and "The Lost Special".
427. According to a review in The Higher: The Times Higher Education Supplement (Sept. 6, 1991), at hand from Chris Redmond, MANLINESS AND MORALITY: MIDDLE CLASS MASCULINITY IN BRITAIN AND AMERICA, 1800-1940, edited by J. A. Mangan and James Walvin (Manchester University Press, 1991; 278 pp., £12.95), has an essay by Jeffrey Richards on "Manly Love and Victorian Society" in which the discussion of male love and friendship includes "that paramount sign of the complex but in the end confident nature of late Victorian masculinity, the relationship between Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson." And the reviewer suggests that "the enduring power of this relationship in particular underlines the need for continuing research into masculinity in history."
428. Reported: the Promotional Services Center (Box 5062, Janesville, WI 53547) is running a "Whodunit?" mystery sweepstakes with a one-week tour of London as the grand prize ("you'll visit Scotland Yard and the haunts of Sherlock Holmes"). Apparently you are sent two packs of "a leading light cigarette" and an opinion-survey card that serves as your entry in the sweepstakes.
-
429. Oct 91 #5: "There can be only one original of every painting. But this is not true of literature. There is no special virtue in first editions: one would usually prefer to read a later one in which the printing is up to date, the paper has not faded and the author has corrected the errors. All this trade [in rare books and fine bindings] is as deeply boring to people who are interested in literature as it seems to be fascinating to those others who, incapable of literary culture, try to buy the distinction of letters by paying unusual prices for bibliographical rarities. . . . I can assure them that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a collector of first editions to enter the Kingdom of Literature." Edmund Wilson (1926), quoted by Janet Malcolm in the New Yorker (May 6, 1972).
430. Reported: THE EXPLOITS OF BRIGADIER GERARD (Canongate, £4.95), with a new introduction by Owen Dudley Edwards.
431. The Latvian "gentleman" who once threatened the world in a story by Conan Doyle was the evil Theodore Nemor (in the Professor Challenger story "The Disintegration Machine").
432. Thanks to those who reported on the pictures of Anna May Wong in "A Study in Scarlet" on p. 43 of Chris Steinbrunner's THE FILMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. But does anyone have an actual still? And (even better) something showing Mrs. Pike with Sherlock Holmes?
433. The new pin (enamel on metal) for The Parallel Case of St. Louis costs $12.00 postpaid, from Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119). Joe also offers a six-page sales list of Sherlockiana (send him a #10 SASE).
434. The bidding at the auction of the library of Richard Manney by Sotheby's in New York demonstrated considerable interest in the more important Doyleana (prices include the 10% buyer's premium): $82,500 for the manuscript of "The Mazarin Stone"; $23,100 for Beeton's Christmas Annual (with two pages of advertisements and the rear cover in facsimile); $53,900 for the first printing of the first edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in dust jacket (the only known copy of the first printing in a jacket); $18,700 for an inscribed first edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES; $16,500 for an inscribed first edition of THE VALLEY OF FEAR; and $4,950 for a first edition of THE LOST WORLD inscribed to Lady Doyle.
435. There were some other nice items in the collection of Richard Manney, who had an interest in polar exploration, and owned an unpublished manuscript journal kept by T. Orde-Lees, who had been assigned by the Admiralty to Shackleton's trans-Antarctic expedition in 1914. After the wreck of their ship **Endurance**, the party managed to reach an island, whence Shackleton set off for help, leaving most of the men behind through a bitter winter that reduced them to eating boiled seaweed by the time they were rescued. Some years later, Orde-Lees noted in a typewritten continuation of the journal: "We were faced with starvation. For reasons unknown, disclosed to me some thirty years after, I was the one first on their list to be chosen to give sustenance to my comrades, because I was in better health than any of the others. This is one of the drawbacks of Polar exploration."
-
436. Oct 91 #6: Richard Wein reports that the new catalog from The Mind's Eye (Box 1060, Petaluma, CA 94953) offers a "collector's edition" boxed set with the first 13 audiocassettes (with 26 Rathbone/Bruce radio programs) issued by Simon and Schuster at $99.35, and an attractive and colorful portrait of Sherlock Holmes by Bruce Wolff on sweatshirts ($24.95) and T-shirts ($14.95); they take plastic (800-227-2020). The catalog also has previously-available S'ian radio programs, as does a new catalog from Radiola, Box C, Sandy Hook, CT 06482 (800-243-0987). Richard also reports that Harmony Gold has delayed the air dates for "Sherlock Holmes: Incident at Victoria Falls" (starring Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee), pending negotiations over release on videocassettes; the Feb. 17/Mar. 15 "window" for local stations has been postponed until May 18/June 14.
437. Some more auction news: an unsigned typescript of the first three acts of a four-act dramatization of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" will be auctioned by Sotheby's in New York on Dec. 12. Previously owned by Bliss Austin, the typescript is dated Aug. 1902, and was typed at Mrs. Marshall's Typewriting Office in London, an agency that was used by Conan Doyle for typescripts of other plays (Adrian Conan Doyle suggested in a letter to Bliss Austin that the script of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" was "probably discarded by my father as unsuitable.") The auction at Sotheby's will also include a copy of WANDERINGS OF A SPIRITUALIST inscribed by Conan Doyle to Houdini.
438. Further to the discussion of Niagara's "whizzing and buzzing" (Sep 91 #5), Don Pollock reports a comment by Richard Burton: "I well remember not being able to sleep within ear-shot of Niagara, whose mighty orchestra, during the stillness of the night, seemed to run through a repertoire of oratorios and operas." Burton visited Niagara Falls in 1860.
439. Reported: Carin Rafferty's romance novel SHERLOCK AND WATSON (Don Mills: Harlequin Temptation, 1991; $2.99); Sherlockian only by title, and #363 in a subscription series that is also available in bookstores.
440. Two Sherlockian wall calendars have been announced for 1992, showing dates for the cases taken from Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES. The calendar available from Mark Alberstat (6258 Payzant Avenue, Halifax, N.S. B3H 2B1, Canada) has Sidney Paget illustrations (US$10.00 postpaid), and the calendar from Brian and Charlotte Erickson (1029 Judson Drive, Mountain View, CA 94040) offers Ron White's new photographs of the recreation of the sitting-room at the Holiday Inn in San Francisco ($15.00 postpaid).
441. James O. Duval's ceramic Christmas Christmas-tree ornaments (Nov 89 #2) are still available: Holmes on one side and Watson on the other, with a ribbon for hanging on a tree and a pedestal holder for display on a shelf. $17.50 postpaid, and Jim's address is 72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303.
442. Late-breaking news: the next volume in the series of BSI archival histories edited by Jon L. Lellenberg will be called IRREGULAR RECORDS OF THE EARLY 'FORTIES, due from the Fordham University Press in late November at $18.95 plus shipping. Procrastinators are warned that last year's volume sold out very quickly; the toll-free number is 800-666-2211, and they take plastic.
-
443. Nov 91 #1: Readers of the well-written and well-argued chapter on "Brief Writing and Oral Argument in Appellate Practice" in NEW YORK APPELLATE PRACTICE (a book published this year by the New York State Bar Association) may or may not be aware that most of the plaintiffs, defendants, parties,

- and witnesses have names taken from the Canon. The author of the chapter is Associate Justice Albert M. Rosenblatt, who carefully notes the distinction "between a brief that is either joyful and informative, and one that is dark and incomprehensible."
444. Donald Houston died on Oct. 13. His acting career began on stage in 1940, and he made his film debut in loincloth and opposite Jean Simmons in "The Blue Lagoon" (1949), and his many later roles included a stalwart Watson in John Neville's "A Study in Terror" (1965).
445. Further to the report (Aug 91 #3) on the National Farm Medicine Center's test of the best hat for farmers to wear to reduce their exposure to skin cancer, Bob Brusich and Gary Thaden have sent an Associated Press dispatch on the results. The winner (with 41 points) was a modified baseball cap with a detachable flap that covers the temples, ears, and neck. In second place (with 35 points) was a mesh variation of the deerstalker.
446. Plan ahead: there will be (at least) two Sherlockian workshops in 1993. The Norwegian Explorers will sponsor a conference on "Sherlock Holmes' Victorian Criminal Classes: Rogues, Rascals, and Ruffians" on June 11-13 (write to: Bruce E. Southworth, 2600 West 86th Street, Bloomington, MN 55431). And The Scowrers and Mollie Maguires of San Francisco will hold their Sherlockian weekend at Stanford University on Aug. 5-7 (Charlotte A. Erickson, Box 341, Mount Eden, CA 94557).
447. Gene Roddenberry died on Oct. 24. Best known as the creator of "Star Trek" (now celebrating its 25th anniversary), he also wrote more than 80 scripts for other television shows, and was head writer for the series "Have Gun, Will Travel". Susan J. Beasley has reported that several years after the original "Star Trek" series ended, Roddenberry wrote the screenplay for a television film that involved Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson in a case that occurred after Holmes' retirement and was intended as a pilot for a series starring Leonard Nimoy as Holmes. Nimoy did not want to do the series, and when Roddenberry approached the Conan Doyle estate he was rudely rebuffed. Roddenberry then changed the names of the lead characters, and the two-hour film "Spectre" was broadcast by NBC-TV on May 21, 1977, with Robert Culp as William Sebastian and Gig Young as Dr. Hamilton.
448. The Sept. 1991 issue of Canadian Holmes honors Cameron Hollyer, and one of its best features is a reprint of Cam's speech (in Montreal in 1990) about his career and the birth and nurturing of the Arthur Conan Doyle collection at the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library. It's the sort of thing that make one wish one could have been there, and additional recommendation is required, the Sept. 1991 issue also has Dayna Nuhn McCausland's portrait of a bare-breasted Mary Morstan. Canadian Holmes is a quarterly published by The Bootmakers of Toronto, and costs $12.00 a year (checks can be sent to Maureen Green, 47 Manor Road West, Toronto, Ont. M5P 1E6, Canada).
-
449. Nov 91 #2: THE EXPLOITS OF BRIGADIER GERARD (Edinburgh: Canongate, 1991; 188 pp., £4.95) is a fine reprint of the first set of stories about the Brigadier, who was one of best of Conan Doyle's creations. The book also has a new and interesting introduction by Owen Dudley Edwards, and short notes introducing each of the stories.
450. Irwin Allen died on Nov. 2. Famous in the film industry as "The Master of Disaster" for his work as producer of films that included "The Poseidon Adventure" (1972), "The Towering Inferno" (1974), and "The Swarm" (1978), he also produced, directed, and shared writing credit for "The Lost World" (1960). According to press reports, Allen purchased the rights to Conan Doyle's novel for $100,000 and hoped to star Gilbert Roland, Victor Mature, and either Trevor Howard or Peter Ustinov (and it would be nice indeed to have seen Ustinov in the role of Challenger).
451. The manuscript of "The Mazarin Stone" and the copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual sold by Sotheby's last month (Oct 91 #5) were bought for stock by a British dealer. Potential purchasers are invited to write to Vivienne Rudd at E. Joseph, Booksellers, One Vere Street, London W1M 9HQ, England.
452. The second issue of Varieties of Ash has arrived, and it is nicely done, with illustrated articles on events (past and present) at the Reichenbach Falls, and other Sherlockian commentary. The magazine is published twice a year, and annual subscriptions cost $10.00 (from Susan E. Dahlinger, 758 Third Street, Secaucus, NJ 07094).
453. SHEER LUCK HOLMES is an amusing Australian two-act school musical (script by Simon Denver and music by Ian Dorricott), first performed in Brisbane in 1979 and now in its fifth edition, and available for AU$10.50 from Peepshow Productions (Bergann Road, Maleny, Queensland 4552, Australia). Shipping is extra (by airmail if requested), and Peepshow will ship with an invoice (to be paid only in Australian dollars, please).
454. Joan Kerins notes that Daniel Massey (who plays J. Neil Gibson in Granada's version of "Thor Bridge") strongly resembles his father, and suggests that it may not have been mere coincidence that the son of an actor famous for his portrayal of Abraham Lincoln was chosen to play a character described as "an Abraham Lincoln keyed to base uses instead of high ones."
455. "But the Solar System!" Watson protested (in "A Study in Scarlet"). Our new booklet pane shows the nine planets, and the Moon, by way of honoring the exploration of space. Which of the planets is mentioned elsewhere in the Canon?
-
456. Nov 91 #3: Roger Johnson reports that Thorley Walters died earlier this year. He was a generally-bewildered Watson, in the tradition of Nigel Bruce, in films with Christopher Lee in "Sherlock Holmes and das Halsband des Todes" (1962) and Douglas Wilmer in "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother" (1965), and on television with Christopher Plummer in "Silver Blaze" (1977). He also played Watson in an uncredited cameo in the film "The Best House in London" (1969), and Major John Sholto on television in "The Sign of Four" (1983).
457. The Klondike bear in Sherlockian costume (Oct 91 #4) does exist, and you do not need to solve the ice-cream-bar mystery in order to get one (mine has now arrived): you can send $16.45 and two proofs of purchase from Klondike six-packs to Klondike Holmes Bear, 5400 118th Avenue North, Clearwater, FL 34620.
458. The new ten-story Harold Washington Library Center in downtown Chicago is grand indeed, and imaginatively designed, and the largest public library in the world (other libraries are larger but don't allow the public to borrow books). It has about 2 million books (in open stacks except for some fine special collections) and more than 600 staffers (and those that I met were knowledgeable and friendly), and a 400-seat auditorium, and computers that work. And planning is underway for a Sherlock Holmes Center, supported by the local Sherlockians.
459. LESTRADE AND THE MAGPIE, by M. J. Trow (London: Constable, 1991; 224 pp., £12.99), is the tenth novel in his amusing series about Inspector Sholto Lestrade. The time is 1920, and Lestrade is remarried, reunited with his daughter, retired, and nevertheless thoroughly involved in a mystery that offers the now-traditional opportunities for name-dropping, bawdy humor, and puns. And for those who may have missed the first three titles in the series, CONSTABLE CRIME OMNIBUS 2 (London: Constable, 1991; 630 pp., £7.99) is a paperback omnibus reprint with THE ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, BRIGADE: THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF INSPECTOR LESTRADE, and LESTRADE AND THE HALLOWED HOUSE.
460. Newly noted audiocassettes: THE LOST WORLD (read by Jack Sonderlicker on six cassettes), THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (read by Gene Engene on six cassettes), and four volumes of SHORT STORIES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (each with six stories read by Tim Behrens on six cassettes). The fidelity is high, the stories are unabridged, the readings are nicely done, and the sets are available for $33.95 each from Books in Motion, 9212 East Montgomery #501, Spokane, WA 99206 (800-752-3199).
461. Howard Haycraft ("The Devil's Foot") died on Nov. 11. Howard had a long and distinguished career in publishing (he was president and chairman of the board of the H. W. Wilson Co.), and was best-known in our field as an energetic and enthusiastic critic and editor. His first Sherlockian book was THE BOYS' SHERLOCK HOLMES (1936), and his MURDER FOR PLEASURE: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF THE MYSTERY STORY (1941) was a splendid introduction to the field. He also edited THE ART OF THE MYSTERY STORY (1946), and received an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America in 1947 (and a special award in 1975 for his many contributions to mystery criticism and scholarship). He received an Investiture in 1950, and the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1972.

-
462. Nov 91 #4: We will celebrate Sherlock Holmes' 138th birthday on Friday, Jan. 10, with the traditional festivities in New York. But the festivities will actually begin on Thursday at 9:00 am in the lobby of the Hotel Algonquin (59 West 44th Street), whence Allen Mackler will lead participants in the annual Christopher Morley Walk, which includes luncheon at McSorley's. Allen can be reached from Tuesday on at the Iroquois Hotel (212-840-3080).
463. And at 8:00 pm on Thursday the Old SOBs3 will hold an Aunt Clara Singalong at O'Lunney's saloon and restaurant at 12 West 44th Street. Sherlockians will wine and dine from a moderately-priced menu, and are invited to bring their own favorite song sheets. No advance payment is required, but space is limited and a check for $10.00 for each person in your party should be sent to Hugh O'Lunney (12 West 44th Street, New York, NY 10036) to reserve your table (the $10.00 will be applied to your tab for the evening. And be certain to explain what the check is for (Hugh has a lot on his mind).
464. Friday's schedule will begin with the Martha Hudson Breakfast from 8:30 to 10:30 am in the Oak Room at the Hotel Algonquin at 59 West 44th Street (The Stetaks, 15529 Diagonal Road, La Grange, OH 44050); $15.00 (checks payable to The Baker Street Irregulars) for a buffet of juice, eggs, oatmeal (back by popular demand), bacon, sausage, muffins, coffee, and tea. The William Gillette Luncheon starts at noon at the Old Homestead at 56 Ninth Avenue at 14th Street (Susan Rice, 125 Washington Place #2-E, New York, NY 10014; $28.50). Otto Penzler's annual open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) is also on Friday, from 11:00 am to 6:00 pm, and it is as always possible that S'ian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
465. The Baker Street Irregulars will gather at 6:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue at 9th Street, and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at 6:00 pm at the Century Cafe at 132 West 43rd Street between Sixth Avenue and Broadway (Evelyn A. Herzog, 360 West 21st Street #5-A, New York, NY 10011; $50.00). Early reservations are, as in past years, recommended for the breakfast, the luncheon, and the Adventuresses' dinner.
466. On Saturday a posse of purveyors will be selling a variety of S'iana on the second floor at the Algonquin, from 9:30 am to 12:30 pm. Huckster tables are still available (Ray Betzner, 2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, VA 23185); $30.00 for a half table, and $60.00 for a full table.
467. On Saturday afternoon The Baker Street Irregulars will hold their annual reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue at 9th Street. There will be an open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $30.00 a person. Checks (payable to The Baker Street Irregulars) should be sent to Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
468. Mary Ellen Rich has once again kindly provided a list (see the next page) of hotels that offer reasonable (as defined by New York landlords) rates, along with a warning about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, 5% city tax, and 5% state tax on rooms costing more than $99.99. If you plan to arrive on Thursday, it is important to confirm that the weekend-package rates include Thursday.
-
469. Nov 91 #5: Information on hotels: Algonquin (59 West 44th Street): special Sherlockian rate of $150 per night per room (single or double) (800-548-0345). Madison Towers (22 East 38th Street): $99 (single/double) (800-225-4340). Roosevelt (Madison Avenue at 45th Street): $89 (single/ double) (800-223-1870). Iroquois (49 West 44th Street): $75 (single) $85 (double) (800-332-7220). Shoreham (33 West 55th Street): $75 (single) $84 (double) (212-247-6700). Rosoffs (147 West 43rd Street, near the Century Cafe): $50 (single) $60 (double) (212-869-1212). Washington Square (103 Waverly Place just off Washington Square North, about three blocks from 24 Fifth Avenue): $52 (single) $73 (double) (212-777-9515).
470. Further to the query (Nov 91 #2) about the planet mentioned in the Canon, it is in "The Bruce-Partington Plans" that Holmes suggests with regard to his brother Mycroft's impending visit to Baker Street that "a planet might as well leave its orbit," and later comments that "Jupiter is descending today." It is, however, possible that it was the god that was descending, rather than the planet. So: which of the other planets is mentioned by name in the Canon?
471. Reports from Bouchercon .22 in Pasadena suggest that the convention was both enjoyable and hectic. The convention program ran to 100 pages, with Holmesian and Adlerian covers by Stu Shiffman, and the agenda included a panel discussion and a performance of Anthony Boucher's radio play "The Gunpowder Plot", and a presentation by Harry Andruschak on "The Dynamics of an Asteroid" (audiocassettes are available for $8.50 each postpaid from On-Site Taping Services, 29318 Quail Run, Agoura Hills, CA 91301. The convention also published a 100-page EDWARD D. HOCH BIBLIOGRAPHY, edited by Mike Nevins and June Moffatt and with a fine introduction by Marv Lachman ($10.00 postpaid, from SCIFI, Box 8442, Van Nuys, CA 91409).
472. Plan ahead: Bouchercon XXIII in Toronto on Oct. 8-11, 1992 (Al Navis, Box 23, Postal Station S, Toronto, Ont. M5M 4L6, Canada); Bouchercon XXIV in Omaha in Oct. 1993 (Charles Levitt, Little Professor Book Center, 13455 West Center Road, Omaha, NE 68144); and Bouchercon XXV in Seattle in Oct. 1994 (Thom Walls, Box 1095, Renton, WA 98057). And Bouchercons are no longer the only mysterycons: the second annual western regional mystery conference will be held in San Francisco on Feb. 14-16, 1992 (Left Coast Crime, attn: Donna Rankin, Box 1367, Martinez, CA 94553), Malice Domestic IV will be held in Washington on Apr. 24-26, 1992 (Box 701, Herndon, VA 22070), the third annual midwest mystery and suspense convention will be held in Omaha on May 29-31, 1992 (Little Professor Book Center, 13455 Center Road, Omaha, NE 68144), and the International Crime & Mystery Festival will be held in Nottingham on May 29-June 7, 1992 (Shots in the Dark, attn: Adrian Wootton, Broadway, Broad Street, Nottingham, NG1 3AL, England).
473. Howard Einbinder (180 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201) offers a new five-page sales-list of Sherlockiana.
474. Suzan L. Zeder's two-act play "The Death and Life of Sherlock Holmes" was first produced in Louisville in 1987, and it has been revived at The Open Eye: New Stagings at 270 West 89th Street in New York. Performances will run through Dec. 15, and you can call 212-679-4143 for reservations.
-
475. Nov 91 #6: This year's summer-weekend excursion by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London was to Winchester, and the guidebook is a splendid production, with 83 pages of maps, illustrations, and articles by members of the Society. Copies of THE TRI-METALLIC QUESTION cost $33.00 postpaid (surface mail) from Peter Horrocks (22 Old Buildings, Lincoln's Inn, London WC2A 3UJ, England). And Roger Johnson, who will be briefly in the U.S. in Dec., will have a supply available at $27.00.
476. A fine example of the imaginative details in the Granada series occurs in "The Illustrious Client" in the scene that shows the evil Baron turning the pages of his "lust diary" while listening to a recording from an opera. As more than one of my correspondents (more knowledgeable about opera than I) have noted, the aria is the "Catalog Song of Leporello" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" (in which the Don's servant enumerates his master's conquests).
477. The eleventh annual Sherlock Holmes/Conan Doyle Symposium at Wright State University in Dayton will be held on Mar. 14-15, 1992. Contact: Alvin E. Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.
478. "She keeps a quote on her desk from the writer Arthur Conan Doyle: 'Mediocrity knows nothing higher than itself, but talent instantly recognizes genius.'" (from the cover story about Madonna in TV Guide, Nov. 23)

479. As for the other planet mentioned in the Canon (Nov 91 #5), it is of course our own. How on Earth could anyone have forgotten that often-used phrase?
480. A new sales-list of Sherlockiana has arrived from Carolyn and Joel Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45129).
481. Reported by Erwin Schussel: MURDER AT CHRISTMAS AND OTHER STORIES, edited by Cynthia Manson (New York: Signet, 1991; $4.99); contents include James Powell's "Death in the Christmas Hour" (reprinted from EQMM, Jan. 1983), in which a murder is solved by a Sherlock Holmes doll.
482. A new catalog from the Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019) has a section of S'iana, old and new, and an announcement of a hardcover reprint of Richard L. Boyer's pastiche THE GIANT RAT OF SUMATRA in the Armchair Detective Library ($19.95).
483. Yes indeed, times and prices do change. This advertisement was spotted by Ted Schulz in the Sept. 1904 issue of McClure's Magazine. That issue cost 10c on the newsstands (or one-twentieth of the price of an inexpensive room at the Algonquin). Hotels inflate faster than magazines . . .
-
484. Dec 91 #1: An article by Andrew Blum in the Wall Street Journal (Nov. 22) about the continuing battle over where 221B Baker Street really is quotes Grace Riley (who works for John Aidiniantz) as saying that his Sherlock Holmes Museum has had 25,000 visitors over the last eight months. But: that's more than 100 visitors a day, seven days a week.
485. A mailing from Ted Schulz includes a reminder that two collections of S'ian golf stories by Bob Jones are still available: SHERLOCK HOLMES, THE GOLFER (1981; 182 pp., $8.75 postpaid) and SHERLOCK HOLMES SAVED GOLF (1986; 151 pp., $10.95 postpaid). The tales are nicely told, and interesting even to those who are not avid golfers, and the books can be ordered (inscribed on request) from the author (Box 582, Pebble Beach, CA 93953).
486. Further to the multi-part question on the Solar System and its planets (Nov 91), Bob Thomalen was the first to note that Mercury is also mentioned in the Canon (in "The Hound of the Baskervilles"). Yes, but that Mercury was not a planet, but rather a newspaper (the Leeds Mercury).
487. Spotted by Ralph Hall (and presumably available in supermarkets): TINY TOON ADVENTURES, a box of 100 five-ounce paper Dixie kitchen cups with different designs, one of which shows Babs Bunny in Sherlockian costume.
488. An article in MACWeek (Nov. 19), at hand from Mark Erdrich, notes that the ICOM Simulations game "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" (Feb 91 #2) will soon be available on CD-ROM discs for Macintosh and IBM computers (the game was launched earlier on compact discs that play on NEC and other home video-game machines). The game will retail at $69.95 and runs 90 minutes, with some 15-frames-per-second quarter-screen video.
489. Jeremy Brett was interviewed on National Public Radio's "Weekend Edition" on Nov. 17, and John E. Stephenson reports that a printed transcript is available from National Public Radio (Audience Services), 2025 M Street NW, Washington, DC 20036 (mark the envelope "transcript order" at lower left); $10.00 postpaid.
490. Plans are afoot for a Michael Harrison Memorial Bench in Palmeira Square, in front of his home in Hove, and donations for this nice project can be sent to Tina Rhea, 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.
491. Tim O'Connor reports that the Pauline Ralph "Sherlock Holmes Pub" music box is still available, from Shannon Duty Free Mail Order (c/o Aer Lingus/Irish Airlines, Building No. 87, John F. Kennedy Airport, NY 11439 (800-223-6716) Ireland) at $74.00 plus $13.80 shipping (item LC00604). The music box is six inches high, with a trinket compartment under the roof, and they take plastic.
492. Jim Vogelsang reports that theaters showing the new Disney film "Beauty and the Beast" are showing a trailer for "The Great Mouse Detective" as one of the coming attractions, and that Basil is now due for a second release in the spring (probably around Easter). Jim also suggests that you keep an eye out for tie-in merchandise at Disney stores at local shopping malls.
-
493. Dec 91 #2: It would appear that TNT cable broadcast a 15-minute feature on "A Century of Sleuthing" after the premiere of "The Crucifer of Blood" on Nov. 4 -- and did not broadcast the feature after the repeats. I would appreciate hearing from anyone who has an off-the-air recording of "A Century of Sleuthing".
494. The late winter '92 catalog from DAK Industries (8200 Remmet Avenue, Canoga Park, CA 91304) (800-325-0800) has a Sherlockian cover, promoting their new Portable Tale Spinner, a battery-powered XLP audiocassette machine ($49.90) that plays 12-hour cassettes, one of which is Scene of the Crime ($29.90) with unabridged readings of A STUDY IN SCARLET, THE SIGN OF THE FOUR, THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, and THE MOONSTONE.
495. Leslie P. Engelland's THE DESERT GANG MYSTERIES is a collection of stories for young readers, about a young boy whose family moves to Saudi Arabia, where he meets new friends and solves a series of amusing mysteries. The book is Sherlockian only for Marsha Cain's cover art, which is also amusing, showing a Sherlockian camel. $7.50 plus shipping, from SandScripts, P.O. Box 61279, Riyadh 11565, Saudi Arabia.
496. An article in the N.Y. Times (Nov. 24), at hand from Syd Goldberg, reports that London's Isle of Dogs is now a mixed-use community administered by the London Docklands Developments Corp., with homes and offices for a couple of hundred thousand Londoners, and a residential theme park -- certainly quite different from the days when Holmes and Watson rounded the Isle of Dogs in pursuit of the dainty Aurora and the Agra Treasure.
497. BOY'S LIFE, by Robert R. McCammon (New York: Pocket Books, 1991; 440 pp., $21.95), is a delightful book, presenting the story of a young boy growing up in Zephyr, Alabama, in the 1960s. There is a mystery (with plenty of red herrings and a nice solution), and a passing mention Holmes and Watson, and an appearance by one of the dinosaurs from the Lost World, but the real strength of the book is in its fantasy and humor and (most importantly) in its warm style and splendid characters.
498. Our congratulations to Ann Byerly, who is engaged to be married (probably in June) to John Marlowe. Ann's new address is 10324 Castlehedge Terrace, Silver Spring, MD 20902 (301-681-5197).
499. Videotaper alert: Arts & Entertainment cable began broadcasting "In Search of . . ." on Sundays at 6:00 pm (with repeats on Wednesdays at 10:00 pm and Thursdays at 2:00 am). And at some point they may show "In Search of . . . Sherlock Holmes" (1978) [D4622b].
500. "He looks exactly like a Hound of the Baskervilles," according to Bobbye Crawford, "but he has the most loving, playful temperament." And he is at the moment residing with Bobbye, who is seeking someone who needs a canine companion. A photograph and additional details are available from Bobbye Crawford, 1809 Shelby Avenue, Nashville, TN 37206 (615-228-4789).
-
501. Dec 91 #3: Selections from MURDER FOR CHRISTMAS, the anthology edited by Thomas Godfrey and published by the Mysterious Press in 1982, have been issued in a four-cassette boxed set of audiocassettes from Dove Books on Tape ($24.95). One of the stories is "The Blue Carbuncle", read (and nicely read) by John Standing.
502. There's a Sherlockian excuse (in case anyone needs one) to see the new film "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country": in the Orlando Sentinel (Dec. 4), an article by Jay Boyar (at hand from Gary Westmoreland) reports that at one point in the film, Spock and the crew of the Enterprise are trying to determine who has attacked a Klingon ship. "When an unlikely solution is proposed, Spock says that an ancestor of his (whom he doesn't name) once remarked that when you eliminate all the impossible solutions, the one that is left, no matter how improbable, is correct." And Nicholas Meyer, who

- directed and co-wrote the film, confirmed to Boyar that the allusion was a deliberate echo from the Canon. Meyer enjoys seeing the film with preview audiences, he said, "because there are enough Holmes buffs in the audience that people go nuts when that line comes up." Also: the fiendish Klingon General Chang (played by Christopher Plummer), exclaims (elsewhere in the film), "The game's afoot!" (quoting Shakespeare). Where in the Canon does "The game's afoot!" appear?
503. Roger Johnson reports that The Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment will unveil a memorial to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in Crowborough on May 23, 1992. The society is led by Malcolm Payne, who has done much to ensure that Sir Arthur is remembered in Crowborough, and those who would like to attend the festivities can obtain additional information from Philip Weller (6 Bramham Moor, Hill Head, Fareham, Hants. PO14 3RU, England).
504. "It is the mute hound that bites the hardest." --Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (at least that's the attribution in an article about radar detectors in Road & Track, at hand from Paul Martin). The quotation isn't from the Canon: can anyone identify the source?
505. More Sherlockian philately, in a set of stamps issued this year to honor the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Ordnance Survey. The four stamps show the area around the village of Hamstreet in Kent, from maps published in 1816, 1906, 1959, and 1991. The Ordnance maps now cover all of Britain at a scale of one inch to the mile (two centimeters to the kilometer in these metric days), and are as important to travelers now as they were in Sherlock Holmes' time. Ordnance Survey maps are mentioned three times in the Canon (Engr, Prio, and Houn).
-
506. Dec 91 #4: Additional news on the earlier report that Billy Wilder's "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970) is to be restored and released in an uncut version: Bruce Southworth has noted an interview by Andrew Sarris (in Film Comment, July-Aug. 1991) in which Wilder said that the missing footage does exist, but must be cleared through the Mirisch brothers (who produced the film).
507. The mail-order catalogs from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) continue to offer discount and remaindered books, including William Neblett's SHERLOCK'S LOGIC (1985) at $9.95; a college-level textbook that presents a murder mystery investigated by Sherlock Holmes' grandson, using the mystery to demonstrate and analyze methods of logical reasoning.
508. DIE KUNST PFEIFE ZU RAUCHEN is the title of the German edition of Richard Carlton Hacker's THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK, published here in a second revised edition in 1989 with discussion of Sherlockian pipes and pipe-smoking. The German edition is further revised, with color plates, and a few copies are available for $55.00 postpaid from Rick (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213). It should also be noted that the long-stemmed pipe smoked by Jeremy Brett in the latest Granada series was designed by Rick, made by Steve Waddell, and presented to Brett in Jan. 1990.
509. Our new stamped envelope shows a family of country geese (yes, the gemmiverous goose in the Canon was town-bred, but country-bred geese were available at Breckinridge's stall). Unfortunately the envelope was issued only in the #6 size, so I couldn't use it for this mailing.
510. Where in the Canon does "The game's afoot!" appear? Nowhere. What Holmes said (in "The Abbey Grange") was "The game is afoot." One Sherlockian scholar has noted that Sherlock Holmes quoted Shakespeare many times, but never exactly correct. But "the game was afoot" in another Canonical story. In which story? And who said that the game was afoot?
511. Reporting on the auction at Sotheby's in New York on Dec. 12: the copy of first American edition of THE WANDERINGS OF A SPIRITUALIST, inscribed by Conan Doyle to Harry Houdini, sold for $6,050 (including the 10% buyer's premium). But the unsigned typescript of the first three acts of a four-act dramatization of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (estimated at $15,000-25,000) did not make the reserve and was bought in. Previously owned by Bliss Austin, the typescript is dated Aug. 1902, and typed at the agency used by Conan Doyle for other plays, but the lack of firm proof that the dramatization was written by Conan Doyle apparently held down the bidding.
512. A late-breaking report on an addition to the birthday-festivities schedule: "Holmes, Sweet Holmes" will be one of four one-act ballets presented by the Dance Circle Company at the Marymount Manhattan Theatre at 221 East 71st Street (between 2nd and 3rd Avenues) on Jan. 11 (8:00 pm) and Jan. 12 (2:00 pm). "Holmes Sweet Holmes" is an amusing mystery-ballet choreographed and directed by Ernesta Corvino to music by Tchaikovsky, first produced in 1984 and warmly reviewed in the N.Y. Times. Tickets cost $12.00 (or $8.00 for students and seniors), and the box-office phone number is 212-924-0077.
-
513. Dec 91 #5: We learned only recently of the death of Michael L. Cook, in 1988. Michael was an enthusiastic collector and bibliographer: MURDER BY MAIL (1979 and 1983) provided a fine discussion and checklist of the mystery book clubs; MYSTERY, DETECTIVE, AND ESPIONAGE MAGAZINES (1983) included comment on the major Sherlockian journals; MYSTERY FANFARE (1983) was an annotated index to the mystery fanzines; and MYSTERY DETECTIVE, AND ESPIONAGE FICTION (1988) was a massive two-volume checklist of the contents of American pulp magazine from 1915 to 1974. And his contributions to our Sherlockian literature included the Foreword to Sherlock Holmes' PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF BEE CULTURE (Magico, 1981) and a monograph on THE ANCIENT CURSE OF THE BASKERVILLES (Gaslight, 1984).
514. THE FILMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Chris Steinbrunner and Norman Michaels, is not the first of the Sherlockian filmographies, but it was, and is, one of the very best. And it is really Chris Steinbrunner's book, since it is his scholarship and enthusiasm that illuminates his world of Sherlockian films. He gives scant attention to many of the early and long-lost films, but that allows more space for his commentary, and his commentary is often far more interesting than the films themselves. First published in 1978, THE FILMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has been reissued as a large trade-paperback (New York: Citadel Press, 1991; 253 pp., $15.95).
515. It was Watson who said that "the game was afoot" (in "Wisteria Lodge").
516. The latest issue of Anglofile reports a new twist on fan-campaigns to keep series on the air: the "Doctor Who Action Committee" is threatening to file a lawsuit against the BBC to force it to resume production. The committee maintains that the BBC, funded by a mandatory television license fee, has a duty to broadcast fee-payers' favorite shows. Anglofile also has a report on the auction of independent television franchises in Britain (Sep 91 #6): Granada Television won renewal, and Thames Television lost its franchise. Responsible for about a third of ITV's programming (including "Rumpole of the Bailey"), Thames quickly announced that it would become an independent production company, selling programs to everyone (including the BBC). And the magazine has a two-page interview with Jeremy Brett. Anglofile offers the latest entertainment news from Great Britain, and costs $12.00 a year (Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30333).
517. Comic-book news: BAKER STREET (Caliber) is now up to #9, with part IV of a story called "Children of the Night" (a non-Sherlockian Jack-the-Ripper echo, but with the same characters that appeared in "Honour Among Punks"). And BAKER STREET GRAFFITI has old and new material, including a reprint of the Sherlockian "Elementary My Dear" from CALIBER PRESENTS #9. Each of the comic books costs $2.50. And the CALIBER SUMMER SPECIAL ($3.95) includes a reprint of the opening of "Honour Among Punks" (these are all for "mature" audiences, and are quite graphic, though not porno).
518. More comic-book news: THE NINE LIVES OF FELIX THE CAT (Harvey) apparently is reprinting old stories from the 1950s. #3 (Feb. 1992) has Felix with a deerstalker on the cover ($1.25).
519. Video-taper alert: Tom Baker's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1984) will air on Arts & Entertainment cable in two parts on Jan. 28 and Feb. 4.

520. Dec 91 #6: Reported from Great Britain: DETECTIVE STORIES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE and STRANGE TALES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE, edited by Jack Adrian and with forewords by Julian Symons (Oxford University Press, 1991; 374 pp., £15.95 each). Honoring the centenary of the founding of The Strand Magazine, the anthologies offer six stories by ACD (three Canonical tales in the first volume, and three non-Sherlockian in the second). The first volume also has Ronald Knox's fine pastiche "The Apocryphal Sherlock Holmes: The Adventure of the First Class Carriage".
521. SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: INTERVIEWS AND RECOLLECTIONS, edited by Harold Orel (London: Macmillan, 1991; 278 pp., £45.00) (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1991; 278 pp., $59.95), is an intriguing approach to biography, offering extracts from Conan Doyle's own writings, from interviews with him, and from articles, essays, and autobiographies written by people who knew him. Orel has divided his selections into five sections ("The Years at Edinburgh University"; "Sherlock Holmes"; "The Professional Writer"; "Speaking Out on Public Issues, Sports"; and "Spiritualism"), and has added useful notes to help modern readers to whom many names and references will not be familiar. And although the book is expensive, there are many reasons to recommend it: one is that the selection is a good one, providing first-hand insight into many aspects of Conan Doyle's life and career. Another reason is that the opinions and interpretations are those of the writers, who were closer to Conan Doyle than any of us (whether biographers or admirers) can be today. And (possibly most important) there is much material that will be new, and interesting, to almost anyone who wishes to know more about a man who did so much, and so well.
522. And an additional philatelic item: the new postal card commemorating the 150th anniversary of the University of Notre Dame, John Bennett Shaw's alma mater, where he presided over a Sherlockian workshop in 1977. The card shows the University's administration building.
523. "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle had Sherlock Holmes send off to Stanfords for an Ordnance Survey map of Dartmoor to help solve the mystery of the 'Hound of the Baskervilles,'" notes an article on London's "Bookshops for Gadabouts" in the N.Y. Times (Dec. 15), at hand from Syd Goldberg. Founded by Edward Stanford in Covent Garden in 1852, it moved in 1901 to 12-14 Long Acre, where it is still in business, claiming with great pride to be the world's largest map-seller (by stock and range, sales and floor space).
524. Robert S. Paul's WHATEVER HAPPENED TO SHERLOCK HOLMES? DETECTIVE FICTION, POPULAR THEOLOGY, AND SOCIETY (Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 1991; 305 pp., $24.95) is a theological study of the genre, and an examination of how the genre reflects contemporary culture, religion, and ethical standards. Paul begins his study with "Those Eminent Victorians" (and he has consulted Wayne Wall's article on "The Theology of Sherlock Holmes" in the Sept. 1979 issue of the BSJ) and concludes with a view of the modern writers, suggesting that a large part of the reading public welcomes a return to detective fiction set in earlier times.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 92 #1:

1. Some comic-book news: WITHIN OUR REACH is a graphic-novel-format anthology of Christmas stories published by Star Reach Productions ($7.95) to benefit the charities Sempervirens and AmFAR, and the contents include one nicely Sherlockian story: "The Season of Forgiveness" (written by Martin Powell, who has written SCARLET IN GASLIGHT and A CASE OF BLIND FEAR for Eternity, and illustrated by Patrick Olliffe).
  2. Carin Rafferty's SHERLOCK AND WATSON (Toronto: Harlequin Books, 1991; 221 pp., $2.99) is a Harlequin Temptation romance (#363); it's a modern story, and Sherlockian only by title, but worth looking for in shops that deal in used paperbacks if you'd like to see how far romance novels have come from the days when Barbara Cartland invented the genre: Callie (aka Doc) Watson is a pool hustler, and Ian Sherlock is on the lam from the law, and there is sex-before-marriage (though it's carefully safe sex).
  3. If your friendly neighborhood comic-book shop carries trading cards, or if you have a friendly neighborhood trading-card shop, look for Walt Disney trading cards distributed by Impel Marketing: Family Portraits #128 shows a scene from "Lonesome Ghosts" (1937), and Favorite Stories #64-72 has 18 scenes from the film, with Mickey and Goofy in deerstalkers.
  4. An interesting excerpt from a judicial opinion: "In the prosecution of the investigation authorized by the letters, a certain Inspector Lestrade . . . determined to interview the accused." Not our Lestrade, unfortunately, but rather an Inspector Lestrade of the French police, who participated in an investigation of an American soldier accused of pushing the queer in France in 1952. Thanks to Al Rosenblatt, who discovered this Inspector Lestrade in a computer data base of opinions by the United States Court of Military Appeals.
  5. Reported by Richard Wein: Michael Hardwick's THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES (presumably a reissue of the 1986 edition) forecast by St. Martin's Press in Jan. Also: Peter Rowland's THE DISAPPEARANCE OF EDWIN DROOD (the pastiche published by Constable in Britain in 1991) (Mar 91 #2) forecast by St. Martin's in Feb. Gary Lovisi's THE LOSS OF THE BRITISH BARK SOPHY ANDERSON and P. Smith's THE GREY NUN LEGACY are new pastiches, with cover art by Frank Hamilton, published as a Gryphon Double Novel (60 pp., $6.95 postpaid) by Gryphon Publications, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228.
  6. Grace Hopper died on Jan. 1. She joined the Navy in 1943, and retired in 1986 as a rear admiral, and as a legend as a pioneer in the computer world. To cite only one of her achievements, she was leader of the research team that found the first "bug" in a computer: it was a two-inch moth that had interrupted the work of the Mark I at Harvard in 1945.
  7. Reported: Gary Sick's OCTOBER SURPRISE (Times Books/Random House, 277 pp., $23.00) opens with quotations from "Hamlet" and "Sherlock Holmes" (the book details Sick's claims that in 1980 the Reagan campaign made a deal with the Iranian government to delay the release of the American hostages).
-
8. Jan 92 #2 The National Film Preservation Act of 1988 created a National Film Preservation Board in the Library of Congress, responsible for selecting no more than 25 films a year for the National Film Registry, "based on their historic, cultural, or aesthetic importance." The third list of 25 films, announced in Sept. 1991, included Buster Keaton's fine silent film "Sherlock, Jr." (1924).
  9. The third issue of Varieties of Ash is now available, with some excellent "Silver Blaze" scholarship (some serious and some not), an investigation of the Vernets by Jane Morris (whose reference library appears to be unique), and much more. $10.00 for two issues, from Susan E. Dahlinger, 758 Third Street, Secaucus, NJ 07094.
  10. Thanks to Joan Kerins for last year's German stamp issued to honor the 100th birthday of Hans Albers, showing him in the 1932 film "Der Sieger" [The Winner]. His other well-known films included "Der blaue Engel" (1930) and "Der Mann, der Sherlock Holmes war" (1937).
  11. If you watched "The American Experience: The Quiz Show Scandal" on PBS-TV on Jan. 6, you saw (and heard) an attractive brunette contestant give the answer "Gloria Scott", and you may have wondered whether that might have been in some way Sherlockian. It was: the contestant was Bobbye O'Rourke, who appeared later in the program with her husband, Air Force Capt. Thomas O'Rourke. The O'Rourkes each won $32,000 on "The $64,000 Question" in May and June 1956, answering questions on Sherlock Holmes. And "Gloria Scott" was part of the answer to one of the $128 questions: Who was Holmes' only friend in college? (Name the individual and the story in which he appears.)

12. And those who watched the Rose Bowl Parade on New Year's Day may have seen the Sherlockian float decorated by the La Canada-Flintridge Tournament of Roses Association. John Farrell has kindly provided the details from the official program: "The Sherlock Hounds are on a mission to discover who stole a piece of cheese and a dog bone, while the culprit mouse makes its getaway with the stolen goods on a satellite float. The dogs are comprised of mums, Pampas grass, Cocoa palm bark, and Cardone puffs, with accents of seeds, spices, statice, and gladiola petals. In total, 35,000 whole flowers, 400 pounds of seeds, and 200 plants are used to create this dog and mouse chase."
13. "The Master Blackmailer" received quite a bit of advance publicity before the new two-hour version of "Charles Augustus Milverton" was broadcast in Britain on Jan. 2, mainly because of the wooing of Agatha ("Sherlock Shows He's No Holmo!" was the headline in the Sun), and some favorable reviews. Granada has now aired 33 stories for a total of 36 hours in the series, and plans are underway for new shows (one possibility, according to a story in the Sherlock Holmes Gazette, is Jeremy Paul's dramatization of "The Red Circle"); three shows will be shot this spring, and three more this fall.
14. The third issue of the Sherlock Holmes Gazette (Nov. 1991-Feb. 1992) has 36 pages and offers much more than coverage of the Granada series; the cost is £18.00 for four issues, and the address is Theme Publications, 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England (they take plastic).

---

15. Jan 92 #3: The birthday festivities in New York were (as always) enjoyable and interesting, and blessed by unseasonably mild weather. The informal events on Thursday included the Annual Christopher Morley Walk, a meeting of The Pawky Humorists, and for the first time an Aunt Clara Singalong at O'Lunney's with tributes paid to Aunt Clara in more languages than most people recalled at the close of the event. Friday's schedule included the Mrs. Hudson Breakfast at the Algonquin, where more than 70 people were welcomed by Tom and Ruthann Stetak, who presented a commemorative breakfast tray to Bill Rabe (the founder of the breakfast), and the William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead, where Susan Rice's arrangements featured an excerpt from Gillette's play "Too Much Johnson" performed by Paul Singleton and Andrew and Sarah Montague Joffe. And Otto Penzler offered hospitality (and Sherlockian books) at his open house at the Mysterious Book Shop.
16. The Baker Street Irregulars gathered at 24 Fifth Avenue, where *The* Woman was Margaret Walsh, who was toasted by Steve Stix during the pre-dinner cocktail party and then departed to dine at the National Arts Club with other ladies who have received that honor. And there were fifteen ladies at the BSI's annual dinner (for the record, on this historic occasion, they were Maureen Green, Evelyn Herzog, Karen Johnson, Kate Karlson, Eleanor O'Connor, Marsha Pollak, Susan Rice, Lloyd Rose, Sherry Rose-Bond, Julie Rosenblatt, Marina Stajic, Ruthann Stetak, Francine Swift, Jean Upton, and Delia Vargas).
17. The agenda included the usual toasts and other traditions, and Irv Kamil's report on The Asian Travelers (a new Sherlockian society founded last year on the Great Wall of China), introductions of three well-traveled visitors (Jean-Pierre Cagnat from France, and Yuichi Hirayama and Hirota Ueda from Japan), Ely Liebow's discussion of the Sherlockian aspects of "The $64,000 Question" (the 1956 television quiz show), Steve Rothman's revelation of a Sherlockian recording by Christopher Morley, Bruce Montgomery's tribute-insong to his Grand Aunt Clara, Ed Vatz's discussion of "The Gloria Scott", and Joe Fink's investigative report on Dr. Watson's marital affairs.
18. The Two-Shilling Award (for extraordinary devotion to the cause beyond the call of duty) was given to Mike Whelan, and Irregular Shillings and Investitures were presented to Jeff Decker ("Dr. Grimesby Roylott"), Maureen Green ("Kitty Winter"), Michael McClure ("Stimson and Co."), Sherry Rose-Bond ("Violet Hunter"), and Bruce Southworth ("Victor Hatherley").
19. The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes also dined on Friday evening, at the Century Cafe, where the agenda included a joint toast by Bev and Samantha Wolov to their favorite Canonical child, a tribute by Tina Rhea to the late Michael Harrison, a toast to Canonical doctors by Dr. Marillyne McKay, a report on Sherlock Holmes at the North Pole by Marlene Aig, and a series of songs set to various theme music from "Mystery!"
20. On Saturday morning the huckster room at the Algonquin was well attended, and so was the Saturday-afternoon cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue, where the agenda included poetic reports by Al Rosenblatt and Sarah Joffe on the Friday dinners, a fast-and-furious auction that raised $610 for the BSI, and a raffle that featured a bottle of Madeira (1934 vintage) donated to the Dr. John H. Watson Fund by Patricia Guy.

---

21. Jan 92 #4: The cocktail party also featured the presentation of Irregular Shillings and Investitures to Pat Moran ("Patience Moran") and Mary Ellen Rich ("Lady Frances Carfax"). Tom Stix also announced that in December the Investiture of "Pall Mall Gazette" had been awarded to Roger Johnson, and presented the BSI's Queen Victoria Medal to Theresa Thomalen. And on Saturday evening a few die-hard Sherlockians visited the Marymount Manhattan Theatre for a performance of "Holmes, Sweet Holmes" by the Dance Circle Company; choreographed by Ernesta Corvino to music by Tchaikovsky, the ballet offered an amusing finale to the weekend.
22. The Dr. John H. Watson Fund offers financial assistance to Sherlockians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the weekend's festivities. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the fund and welcomes contributions, which can be made by check payable to John H. Watson and mailed (without any return address) to Dr. Watson, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., who will happily forward the checks unopened. Tom's address: 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
23. There's still room on the Sherlockian cruise to Bermuda, departing New York on May 16 and returning on May 23. Bob and Eileen Katz, Mary Ellen Rich, Ed Van der Flaes, and Peg and Chuck Henry will provide some of the deep-sea entertainment, and information is available from Holmes on the Horizon, Box 96, Norwood, NJ 07648.
24. Delia Vargas notes another source for deerstalkers, in a catalog of "Things You Never Knew Existed" (Johnson Smith Co. Box 2550, Bradenton, FL 34206), in sizes S/M/L/XL at $14.95.
25. The sixth volume of Beeman's Christmas Annual is now available (the cost is $10.00 postpaid, from William R. Cochran, 517 North Vine Street, Du Quoin, IL 62832); published as a well-deserved tribute to Newton M. Williams, the 32-page booklet has reminiscences about Newt from some of his friends, and reprints of some of his own scholarship.
26. Bruce Southworth reports two new volumes in the MATCH WITS WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES series adapted by Murray Shaw (Feb 90 #6). Prepared for children aged 8-11, each volume has two Canonical stories (Spec/Suss and Abbe/Bosc now join the series), and splendid illustrations. The books cost $9.95 each postpaid from the publisher: Carolrhoda Books, 241 First Avenue North, Minneapolis, MN 55401 (800-328-4929).
27. Charles Marowitz's "Sherlock's Last Case" will be performed at the Cider Mill Playhouse in Endicott, N.Y., on May 14-31, and Kate Karlson proposes a theater party for Sherlockians on May 30. You can contact Kate at 1259 Fowler Place, Binghamton, NY 13903.
28. Thanks to all who responded to the query (Dec 91 #2) about "A Century of Sleuthing". For those who did not see the broadcast, it appears to be an 11-minute trailer for "A Crucifer of Blood" and aired at the end of the program on TNT on Nov. 4 (and presumably earlier in Oct. and Nov.). The trailer had bits and pieces of an interview with Charlton Heston, scenes from other early and late Sherlockian films, and some associations items such as Sherlockian glimpses of Abbott and Costello, and Harpo Marx.

29. Jan 92 #5: British Airways is offering a tour called "Light Upon the Moor: Sherlock Holmes" on July 19-29, with six days at Cambridge and five days in Devon. The lecturers will include Stanley MacKenzie, and the accommodations on Dartmoor will be at the Manor House Hotel ("Baskerville Hall" in the 1932 film of the story). Call 800-792-0100 for information.
30. The Feb. 1992 issue Playboy has yet another (mediocre) Sherlockian item in its "Playboy's Party Jokes" (oh, for those long-ago days when the magazine was publishing stories from the Canon).
31. The third volume in the BSI's archival series is IRREGULAR RECORDS OF THE EARLY 'FORTIES, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg (New York: Baker Street Irregulars, 1991; 312 pp., $18.95), bringing the history of the early days into the somewhat more organized years that preceded the Trilogy Dinner in Mar. 1944. Peter B. Spivak has contributed an account of Edgar W. Smith's non-Sherlockian career, and Glen S. Miranker a report on The Pamphlet House, and we are fortunate indeed to be able to read so much of the delightful correspondence among those who graced the Sherlockian scene half a century ago. Available from the Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14850 (800-666-2211); shipping costs $2.00, and they take plastic.
32. Plan ahead: there will be (at least) two Sherlockian workshops in 1993. The Norwegian Explorers will sponsor a conference on "Sherlock Holmes' Victorian Criminal Classes: Rogues, Rascals, and Ruffians" on June 11-13 (write to: Bruce E. Southworth, 2600 West 86th Street, Bloomington, MN 55431). And The Scowrsers and Mollie Maguires of San Francisco will hold their "Third International Sexennial Sherlockian Seminar and Celebration" at Stanford University on Aug. 4-8 (Charlotte A. Erickson, Box 341, Mount Eden, CA 94557).
33. A LA RECHERCHE DU CRICKET PERDU, by Simon Barnes (London: Macmillan, 1989; 137 pp., £7.99), is an amusing collection of short pieces about cricket (and more amusing, certainly to those who understand and enjoy the game), as written by famous authors such as Shakespeare, Melville, and Conan Doyle ("The Case of the Masked Captain" opens with: "To Sherlock Holmes, she was always *the* barmaid.>").
34. NEW CRIMES 3, edited by Maxim Jakubowski (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1991; 272 pp., $18.95), is the latest in his series of anthologies, with Julian Rathbone's "Baz" (about a thoroughly modern Holmes and Watson), and John Dickson Carr's "Another Glass, Watson!" (reprinted from the catalog of The Sherlock Holmes).
35. THE ADVENTURE OF THE INDOLENT MAID is J. C. Charles' new contribution in the area of adults-only Watsoniana ("the good doctor gives pretty Nancy's bare backside a 'treatment' that, at least temporarily, makes doing her chores more attractive than sitting"); the 14-page pamphlet is available from The Filmoods Co. (Box 475, Scarsdale, NY 10583); $8.00 postpaid.
36. Tense Moments: The Magazine of Short Suspense Fiction is planning a special Sherlockian issue, and seeks submissions: stories or articles (no erotica), with a maximum length of 3,000 words. Additional information is available from the magazine's editor, Bob Madia (Box 362, Mokena, IL 60448).

---

37. Jan 92 #6: Barbara Alder reports that "Sherlock Holmes et la diva" aired on the French channel of the CBC in Nov. 1991 (that's "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" in French for Canadian viewers). And Jennie Paton notes that Baker & Taylor (who distribute to bookstores) are listing a videocassette of "Sherlock Holmes: The Incident at Victoria Falls" priced at $89.95. The American distribution company reports that the programs are still available to television stations in the United States, in four-week windows starting May 18 ("Victoria Falls") and Aug. 8 ("Leading Lady").
38. Which three weekly American periodicals have the largest circulation?
39. Reported by Ted Friedman (from the Bergen County Record, Jan. 24): William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy hope to interest theatrical producers in "Harry and Arthur" (a new play adapted from an as-yet-unpublished novel BELIEVE, written by Shatner and Michael Tobias). The play is about a fictionalized encounter between Harry Houdini and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, with Shatner as Houdini and Nimoy as Conan Doyle.
40. "Masterpiece Theatre" is one of the most literary series on television, and Books Britain (2170 Broadway #3327, New York, NY 10024) has an interesting catalog of books on which the shows were based. Most of them are imports, of course, and generally not found in book shops.
41. Yuichi Hirayama reports that Bob Jones' SHERLOCK HOLMES SAVED GOLF (Dec 91 #1) was published in Japan as GOLFER: SHERLOCK HOLMES NO SHIN BOUKEN by The Baseball Magazine in 1991 (2,000).
42. The weekly American periodical with the largest circulation is TV Guide. Next largest is the National Enquirer (3.8 million), followed by the Star (3.2 million). The National Enquirer and the Star are owned by the same company (and the circulation figures do not include people who merely look at the tabloids while waiting in supermarket checkout lines).
43. The American Volksmarch Association and three local Sherlockian societies will sponsor a "Lady Carfax Memorial Walk" in Black Forest, Colorado, on July 25 (a special souvenir medal will be presented to all who complete the walk). For additional information, send an SASE to The Falcon Wanderers AVA-072, Box 17162, Colorado Springs, CO 80935.
44. According to my records, my 1992 seasonal souvenir (THE CASTING AWAY OF MRS. LECKS AND MRS. ALESHINE) should be in the hands of all subscribers, received during the birthday festivities in New York, or since, or with this mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.
45. And a few commercials: the revised 12-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, and *The* Women costs $1.10 postpaid. The 62-page list of 566 Sherlockian societies, with names and addresses for the 334 active societies, costs $3.55 postpaid. The run of address labels for 290 individual contacts (recommended for those who wish to avoid making duplicate mailings to people who are contacts for more than one society) costs $10.25 postpaid.

---

46. Feb 92 #1: Sherlockian collectors need not be told that there is hardly anything that is not collected by someone. The American Society of Check Collectors has its own journal (now five years old), and The Check Collector (Nov. 1991) has Lee Poleske's article on "Sherlock Holmes and Cheques", illustrated by photographs of checks issued by the Capital & Counties Bank and by Cox & Co. Dues are $10.00 a year, and the secretary is Charles Kemp (Box 71892, Madison Heights, MI 48071).
47. The Armchair Detective celebrates its 25th anniversary this year, and the winter 1992 issue is nicely Sherlockian, with Jeremy Brett on the cover and with Edward Hardwicke and Michael Cox in a long interview with Elizabeth Trembley, an amusing pastiche by Sally C. Gunning, and a new "Report from 221B Baker Street" by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond. $26.00 a year (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019).
48. Forecast for April from Gaslight Publications: MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES: THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, with revisions included in the 2nd edition published in 1930 only in Britain ($24.95), and MYTH AND MODERN MAN IN SHERLOCK HOLMES: SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE AND THE USES OF NOSTALGIA, by David S. Payne ($24.95).
49. Svend Petersen ("The Mazarin Stone") died on Jan. 18. Svend was one of the four founding officers of The Red Circle of Washington in 1949 (and creator of the scion's formal initiation ceremony), and he received his Investiture in 1951. His varied interests included composing puzzles (and he made sure that there were occasional Sherlockian allusions in the "Trans-O-Grams" he contributed to the National Review for many years) and a long-standing and delightful devotion to puns, and he will be missed by his many friends in Washington and elsewhere in the Sherlockian world.

50. The city of Dundee is celebrating its 800th anniversary, according to press reports at hand from Jon L. Lellenberg: Dundee district councillor Charles Farquhar, dressed in Sherlockian costume, joined Chief Superintendent Ernie Brown of the Tayside Police's central division to celebrate the mention of Dundee in "The Five Orange Pips".
51. A new sales list at hand from Sherlock's Home (5724 East Second Street, Long Beach, CA 90803), with recent books, games, and memorabilia.
52. A COMPOUND OF EXCELSIOR (Dubuque: Gasogene Press, 1991; 92 pp., $10.95) is a carefully-researched and well-written monograph by Susan Rice (who holds the appropriate BSI investiture of "Beeswing") on the whys and wherefores of Sherlock Holmes' retirement years as a bee-keeper on the Sussex Downs. $13.70 postpaid from the publisher (Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52004).
53. Rollin V. Hadley ("Ricoletti of the Club Foot") died on Feb. 2. He was the administrator of the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum in Boston from 1963 to 1970, and director from 1970 until his retirement in 1988, and an energetic and enthusiastic collector of Conan Doyle material, including manuscripts, first editions, and letters. A member of The Speckled Band of Boston for many years, he received his Investiture in the BSI in 1956.

---

54. Feb 92 #2: Dame Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies died on Jan. 27, two days after her 101st birthday. She was one of the last links with the world of Victorian theater, and made her debut at the age of 20 in a walk-on part in "A Midsummer Night's Dream". She won accolades as the finest Juliet of her generation, opposite John Gielgud as Romeo in 1924, and her last role was her appearance with Jeremy Brett in Granada's "The Master Blackmailer" on British television last month.
55. THE ANNOTATED NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS, by Martin Gardner (New York: Summit Books, 1991; 253 pp., $20.00), is a delightful book, offering a detailed history of Clement Clarke Moore's immortal poem, a fascinating collection of sequels and parodies (including William E. Dunning's "An Unusual Visitor in Baker Street", reprinted from the Dec. 1975 issue of the BSJ), and as an epilogue a fine Christmas essay by G. K. Chesterton.
56. New Sherlockian sales lists at hand from Tim O'Connor (6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941) and Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) and Howard Einbinder (180 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201).
57. Reported by Ruthann Stetak: a "Sherlock Holmes" greatcoat-styled cape for ladies, in a blend of cream, beige, and gray wool ($355.00), with matching deerstalker ($40.00), discounted to about $166.00 for the ensemble, in a catalog available from Gray Walsh Capes International, 5604 Erik, Amarillo, TX 79106 (800-999-2214).
58. If you were watching the winter Olympic Games when the S'ian commercial for Lennox Gas Furnace and the American Gas Association aired, that was Patrick Horgan as Holmes and Sandy Marshall as Watson; the commercial premiered in Oct. 1990 during baseball season, and was repeated in 1991.
59. And Dave Galerstein notes that one of the spectators for the ice-dancing on Feb. 17 was dressed as Sherlock Holmes (including deerstalker, Inverness cape, and calabash), and that when the camera focussed in on the man, the announcer said, "Of course, that's elementary."
60. June Thomson's THE SECRET CHRONICLES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: Constable, 1992; 203 pp. £12.99) is her second collection of pastiches, with seven more of the unreported cases mentioned only in passing by Watson, and an attempt to resolve the continuing chronological conflict over the date of his marriage to Mary Morstan. As in the first collection (THE SECRET FILES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, published by Constable in 1990), the style is good and the plots imaginative.
61. The Sherlockian Times is a new combined saleslist-and-newsletter published by Classic Specialties (Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219) -- of particular interest are offers of counted cross-stitch Sherlockian patterns.
62. Reported by Gordon Kelley from the latest mail-order catalog from Signals, 1000 Westgate Drive, St. Paul, MN 55114 (800-669-5225): "Sherlock Holmes Audios" is a boxed collection of eight cassettes, each with two radio shows starring Rathbone/Bruce, Stanley/Shirley, and Langford/Baker. The catalog says that the collection is available only from Signals, but I don't think they have any programs that aren't available elsewhere.

---

63. Feb 92 #3: Barbara Alder has confirmed that "Sherlock Holmes et la diva" was indeed broadcast by Radio-Canada (the CBC French television network), in two one-hour episodes, on Dec. 6 and 13, 1991. We will wait patiently, of course, to see whether "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" gets onto the air in English later this year.
64. Don Hobbs reports a new (1991) addition to the Canonical series published by the Reader's Digest Association: THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with new illustrations by David Johnson.
65. Al and Julie Rosenblatt's splendid 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987, handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with many illustrations, annotations, and explanations, is still available for $17.00 postpaid (checks to Peter E. Blau, at the Spermaceti Press).
66. Peter Crupe reports that Joanne Romano (Mystery Lovers Ink, 8 Stiles Road, Salem, NH 03079) offers coffee mugs with a silhouette of Holmes ($8.95).
67. There wasn't much advance publicity, but Disney released "The Great Mouse Detective" for the second time on Feb. 14 (retitled "The Adventures of the Great Mouse Detective"). And this time round the newspaper advertisements include the credit line: "Based on the 'Basil of Baker Street' book series by Eve Titus and Paul Galdone."
68. One reason for the new title for the film may be hopes that some reviewers may not realize that it's a second release. One local paper in Washington describes "The Adventures of the Great Mouse Detective" as "Disney's sequel to 'The Great Mouse Detective'". The film did reasonably well in its first release (earning $25.3 million in the U.S.), and not all that badly when it opened again on Feb. 14, placing sixth on the list of the ten top-grossing films for the weekend; the estimated weekly gross was $4.1 million (the top film was the just-released "Wayne's World" with an estimated weekly gross of $18.1 million).
69. Bill Vande Water reports that Alex Simmons' play "Sherlock Holmes and the Hands of Othello" (produced at the Westbeth Theatre Centre in New York in 1987) is included in BLACK THUNDER: AN ANTHOLOGY OF CONTEMPORARY AFRICAN AMERICAN DRAMA, edited by William B. Branch (New York: Mentor Books, 1992; $5.99).
70. Further to the report on Walt Disney trading cards (Jan 92 #1), Tom Stix reports that scenes from "Lonesome Ghosts" (1937) are included in a Tyco View-Master 3-D set called "Mickey Mouse and Friends" (one version with a viewer and three reels, and the other version without the viewer).
71. The winter 1991 issue of The Sherlock Holmes Journal has arrived, honoring the centenary of The Strand Magazine (with a fine interview with Richard Osborne, the last assistant editor of the magazine), and with other news and scholarship. There still is a waiting list for full membership in The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, but associate membership (subscription to two issues of the SHJ) costs $15.00 a year to the U.S.; write to G. S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England.

---

72. Feb 92 #4: Ian Wolfe died on Jan. 23, at the age of 95. His long career as a character actor began in 1934 (in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street") and ended in 1990 (as The Forger in "Dick Tracy"), and he appeared in more than 150 films and 200 television shows. He was part of the "crew" at Universal and worked in four of their Sherlockian films: as the clerk in the antique store in "Sherlock Holmes in Washington" (1943), as the butler

- Drake in "The Scarlet Claw" (1944), as Amos Hodder in "The Pearl of Death" (1944), and as the Scotland Yard Commissioner in "Dressed to Kill" (1946). According to Lawrence Nepodahl, Wolfe wrote his own epitaph: "If employers call, tell them 'I'm on location' in some other world."
73. Jim Duval edited and published 41 issues of The Quarterly Statement for Cox & Co. of New England, and achieved a fine record for a scion journal. The first issue (reprinted), the last issue, and a cumulative index are offered for $5.00 postpaid (for all three items), from James O. Duval, 72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303.
74. The Noble and Most Singular Order of the Blue Carbuncle have honored the centenary of the publication of their titular story with a commemorative design (about 10 by 12 inches, in red, blue, and black) on white sweatshirts (M/L/XL at $16.00) and T-shirts (M/L at $10.00). Checks payable to the NMSOBC should be sent to Champ Vaughan, 3224 S.W. Ridge Drive, Portland, OR 97219.
75. Northstar's comic-book series CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES has been resurrected with a new title, and CHRONICLES OF CRIME & MYSTERY: SHERLOCK HOLMES #1 (Feb. 1992; $2.25) has "The Speckled Band" (illustrated by Dan Day); their address is 2551 North Clark Street #402, Chicago, IL 60614.
76. GREAT LAW & ORDER STORIES, edited by John Mortimer (New York: W. W. Norton, 1992; 356 pp., $25.00), is a fine anthology, with "The Copper Beeches" and an interesting introduction in which Mortimer praises the Howard League for Penal Reform and acknowledges his own debt to the strong and vivid writing and the irresistible plots and characters of the Sherlock Holmes stories (and confesses to having occasionally stolen shamelessly from them).
77. The six latest Jeremy Brett one-hour shows are listed on cassette at $24.95 each by The Video Catalog (Box 64428, Saint Paul, MN 55164) (800-733-2232), but only five actually are available: "The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax" will not be offered on cassette until after it has been broadcast by PBS-TV later this year. But: Jennie Paton's video lending-library does have a copy of the missing story (there is a charge of $5.00 per cassette, and borrowers pay return postage). Write to Jennie C. Paton, 206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458.
78. Jack Kerr reports that the Simon & Schuster audiocassettes have now caught up with the subscriptions series of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows. Volume 15 (with "The Guileless Gypsy" and "The Camberwell Poisoners" and comments by Ben Wright) has just been released to stores.
-
79. Feb 92 #5-6: This year's Canonical Convocation and Caper in Door County, Wis., will be held on Sept. 18-20. If you would like to be on the mailing list, write to Bernadette Donze (7224 South Kidwell Road, Downers Grove, IL 60516).
80. Lloyd Rose, who was one of the fifteen ladies present at this year's annual dinner of The Baker Street Irregulars, described the historic event in the Jan. 13 issue of the Washington Post. Her article is copyright 1992 by the Washington Post, and reprinted with permission.
-
81. Mar 92 #1: The Washington Post reported (Feb. 26) on a violent dispute between Hindus and Muslims in Hapur, India, where the Hindus objected to plans by Muslims to build on a vacant lot containing a banyan tree inhabited by a five-foot black cobra that was regarded as the reincarnation of Lord Shiva (and that has not been seen since the riot). But while the cobra was in residence, the Hindus chanted and sang, threw money and gold at the tree, and laid out "bowls of milk for the snake to drink" (obviously rejecting the conclusions of the many Sherlockian scholars who claim that snakes don't drink milk).
82. And another report in the Washington Post reveals that Franz Grillparzer is remembered for more than merely being the subject of Gustav Pollak's FRANZ GRILLPARZER AND THE AUSTRIAN DRAMA, a copy of which records the history of The Grillparzer Club (described in considerable detail by George Fletcher in IRREGULAR MEMORIES OF THE 'THIRTIES). The Grillparzer Prize (an $18,500 award envisioned as one of Austria's most prestigious literary honors) was established in 1991 and given to the nation's foremost living author, Peter Handke. But this year's award generated some controversy when the honoree, Hans Lebert, accused the German foundation that funds the prize of seeking the cultural "colonization" of German-speaking Austria.
83. The new catalog from the Margo Feiden Galleries (75 University Place, New York, NY 10003) offers an Al Hirschfeld lithograph of Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce (26 x 21 inches) for $500.
84. Ray Betzner reports (in the latest issue of The Quarter Note, published by The Cremona Fiddlers) that Douglas G. Greene recommends John Dickson Carr's PATRICK BUTLER FOR THE DEFENSE (1956) as a mystery whose main character was based on Adrian Conan Doyle. And suggests that you attempt to identify another fictional work in which one of the characters was based on Adrian Conan Doyle.
85. "The Adventures of the Great Mouse Detective" had an estimated $7.1 million total gross after two weeks. For comparison: "Wayne's World" (released at the same time) had an estimated $33.5 million gross after two weeks (and did $9.6 million more in the third week, by which time Basil was no longer on the top-ten list). And Disney's "Beauty and the Beast" had an estimated $119 million gross after 17 weeks (one can understand why "The Great Mouse Detective" was considered to have been less than successful the first time out, with a total gross of $25.3 million).
86. Forecast by Bob Burr: THE D CASE, by Carlo Fruttero and Franco Lucentini, from Harcourt Brace Jovanovich in June: Holmes, Marlowe, Maigret, and other great sleuths of fiction convene in Rome to solve the mystery of Dickens' "Edwin Drood".
87. Another Sherlockian allusion from the Olympics, reported by Ruthann and Tom Stetak: "the bootmaker of Toronto" (that was the announcer's description of a man named Knebil who was one of the figure skaters' favorite bootmaker).
-
88. Mar 92 #2: The Pequod Press offers a new collection of Douglas Norman's unusual poetry: VIOLET HUNTING AND OTHER SHERLOCKIAN PASTIMES ("a delightful little garland of verse that often smacks of explicit or implicit sex, with some subjects and language once considered taboo, but here handled with the author's usual good taste"). The book is available for $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper) from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521.
89. Subscriber Kevin S. Moriarty is well aware of his family connections, as demonstrated by the advertisement that will run in his local yellow pages.
90. News from Carole Nelson Douglas: her GOOD MORNING, IRENE will be reissued in paperback by Tor in April, and her third book (IRENE AT LARGE) will be published by Tor in June.
91. The Mar. 1992 issue of Smithsonian has Nancy Shute's report on "The Lab Sleuths Who Help Solve Crimes Against Animals" (the staff of the National Fish and Wildlife Forensics Laboratory in Ashland, Ore., where scientists combat contraband traffic in wild animals and wildlife parts and products. The historical roots of forensic science can be traced back to sixth-century China, according to the article, which quotes from Richard Saferstein's textbook CRIMINALISTICS: AN INTRODUCTION TO FORENSIC SCIENCE (1981): it was Sherlock Holmes who "applied the newly developed principles of serology, fingerprint fingerprinting, firearm identification, and questioned-document examination long before their value was first recognized and accepted by real-life criminal investigators."
92. Alexander Hvatsky (32 High Street #309, New Haven, CT 06510) offers a sales list for a collection of more than 150 Sherlockian pastiches (to be sold as one lot) in return for an SASE.
93. The other fictional work that includes a character based on Adrian Conan Doyle is Anthony Boucher's ROCKET TO THE MORGUE (first published in 1942 as by H. H. Holmes).

94. "Medico stooge of drug-taking London private 'tec tells tale of revenge killings in English metropolis. Despite long flash-back and overseas jump to western U.S. deserts, story has merit and author may go far. Readable." An anonymous capsule review of A STUDY IN SCARLET, spotted by Jennie Paton in the Saturday Review of Literature (Dec. 26, 1936).
95. Spotted by Bill Ballew: EACH NEW DAY (New York: Scribner Laidlaw, 1989); a Scribner Reading Series anthology, with Donald J. Sobol's "The Case of the Broken Window" (with a Sherlockian illustration by Lane Yerkes). The story is adapted from Sobol's ENCYCLOPEDIA BROWN AND THE CASE OF THE DEAD EAGLES (1975), which hasn't been seen but may also have a Sherlockian allusion.
-
96. Mar 92 #3: You too can be lord of the manor (or something). An advertisement spotted by Gary Westmoreland in the Wall Street Journal on Feb. 24 announces that four British lordships (with their associated rights and coats or arms) are available at prices ranging from $9,500 to $21,570. The agents are Stamford, Perry and Fitzgerald, and Anthony Fitzgerald-Hill welcomes enquiries in London (his telephone number is 44-71-379-2823).
97. Heidi Thornberry (Action Graphics, Box 225, Navarre, OH 44662) offers a Sherlockian sweatshirt (screened in green on gray), available in sizes S/M/L/XL ($18.00) and XXL ($20.00), plus $2.00 shipping.
98. Noted by Ron De Waal: THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, with an afterword by Frederick Busch (New York: Penguin Books/Signet Classic, n.d.); a recent reprint of the 1986 edition, with the same cover art.
99. Further to the report (Aug 91 #5) on the Sherlockian line (about eliminating the impossible ...) in Rupert Holmes' new play "Solitary Confinement": there isn't one. But it *was* in the play, for one or two performances in Pasadena, last November, at the end of the first act, and if you see the play you will know how relevant it was. And I do recommend the play, which is now at the Kennedy Center in Washington, on its way to Broadway: it is written with style and ingenuity, and Stacy Keach is splendid in the lead. I also recommend that you do not read more detailed reviews of the play, because it is next to impossible to discuss it without spoiling some of the many surprises devised by Rupert Holmes.
100. The Sherlockian collections published by The Illustrious Clients have all been fine additions to the writings about the writings, and THE ILLUSTRIOUS CLIENTS FOURTH CASEBOOK is no exception. Edited by Steven T. Doyle, Mark Allen Gagen, and William A. Barton, and with 122 cloth-bound pages, the new collection offers an excellent variety of subjects, and of authors such as David L. Hammer, Michael Harrison, Tina Rhea, Patricia J. Ward, and Jerry Neal Williamson (whose reminiscences about the founding of the society in the 1940s offer a splendid look at what those early days were like). The book is available from Steven T. Doyle, 540 West Sycamore, Zionsville, IN 46077; $21.45 postpaid.
101. Newly listed in a catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) THE WASTELAND/FOUR QUARTETS, read by T. S. Eliot on a set of two audiocassettes (item 1783653, $19.00); the set also contains Eliot reading "Macavity: The Mystery Cat" and likely is a reissue of earlier recordings made by Caedmon. One of the "Four Quartets" is "East Coker" (which is of passing interest for Eliot's use of the word "grimpen" (from "The Hound of the Baskervilles").
102. "I don't claim to be yours truly, S. Holmes. I mean I can't glance at a man and immediately know he is left-handed, constipated, has a red-haired wife, and slices lox for a living." MCNALLY'S SECRET, by Lawrence Sanders (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1992).
-
103. Mar 92 #4: Reported by Frank Darlington: a new catalog from Radio Spirits (Box 2141, Schiller Park, IL 60176), offering some Sherlockian recordings, including two six-hour sets ($29.95 each), each set with six stories read by Charles Fuller. The twelve recordings were issued a while back by Irregular Productions (Oct 90 #4), but the prices are now lower.
104. The Sherlockian Walking Stick (D3392b) is still available, with the handle modeled on J. Robert Black's artistic statue and the shaft in ebony ($155) or Dymondwood ($115), in a catalog from the House of Canes and Walking Sticks, 767 Old Onion Mountain Road, Wilderville, OR 97543 (800-458-5920).
105. The Ben Silver Collection offers a fine color catalog of regimental and old school ties (some with Sherlockian and Doylean connections, of course). And some of the descriptions are quite intriguing: the 3rd Gordon Highlanders (75th and 92nd Foot) was formed in 1881 by amalgamation of the 75th Stirlingshire Regiment (raised in 1787) and the 92nd Gordon Highlanders (raised in 1794 by the Marquis of Huntly, whose wife, Jean, recruited offering kisses with the King's shilling between her teeth). Their address is 149 King Street, Charleston, SC 29401 (800-221-4671).
106. Further to the report (Feb 92 #3) on the Reader's Digest Association's 1991 edition of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (with fine illustrations by David Johnson and an Afterword by John L. Cobbs): earlier titles in this series are A STUDY IN SCARLET/THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (1986), THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1987), and THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1988). Has anyone seen anything for 1989 or 1990?
107. Noted by Dick Rutter: Ghost River Images (1600 East Roger Road #22, Tucson, AZ 85719) offers ten of the Canonical short stories as paperbound miniature books at $7.95 each (at 1/6 or 1/12 scales). The firm also offers to print miniature editions of your own work.
108. Baedeker's guidebooks are an interesting addition to Sherlockian shelves, with their detailed descriptions and splendid maps of the long-gone London that Sherlock Holmes knew so well (and the 1891 guide to Switzerland should not be neglected). William B. O'Neill (11609 Hunters Green Court, Reston, VA 22091) has a fine stock of Baedekers, and will be happy to quote against your want-lists.
109. A new sales list of Sherlockiana at hand from Howard Einbinder (180 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201).
110. Reported: VICTORIAN GHOST STORIES, edited by Michael Cox and R. A. Gilbert (New York: Oxford University Press, 1992; 497 pp., $24.95); with ACD's "The Captain of the 'Pole-Star'".
111. Does anyone know someone who owns a Jaguar that has SHERLOK license plates? More accurately: does anyone know someone who used to own a Jaguar that had SHERLOK license plates? A "CBS Evening News" segment, broadcast on Mar. 9, about "repo men" (as an aspect of the current recession) had a short quote from a man who works for a firm called Sherlock Recovery, and a brief view of the repossession of a Jaguar with SHERLOK plates.
-
112. Mar 92 #5: The Mystery Writers of America will hold their Edgar Allan Poe Awards Banquet on Apr. 30, and two of the four nominees for an Edgar for "best episode in a television series" are Sherlockian: Granada's "Shoscombe Old Place" (dramatized by Gary Hopkins) and "The Problem of Thor Bridge" (dramatized by Jeremy Paul).
113. Frank Darlington notes that Educorp Computer Services offers a wide variety of fonts for the Macintosh, including a 12-point Dancing Men font. Their address is 7434 Trade Street, San Diego, CA 92121 (800-843-9797). But you can also contact Tina Rhea, who in 1987 used Fontastic Plus to devise a new Ridling Thorpe font for the Macintosh. The cipher is complete, as devised by Remsen Ten Eyck Schenck (BSJ, Apr. 1955), with flagged (end-of-the-word) letters obtained using the shift key (apparently not available in Educorp's version). Her font is available in 18-point (1822 bytes) for Macwrite and Macpaint, and in 36-point (5494 bytes) for Macpaint, and she offers both of the fonts, and a note on how to use them, free of charge, in return for an initialized Macintosh diskette (single-sided or double-sided) and return postage; if you do not have Font/DA Mover, put a copy of your System file on the diskette and she will insert the fonts. Tina's address is 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770 (see below for another item available from Tina).

114. The "country companions" spotted by Dick Rutter in the Jan. 1992 catalog from Wild Wings include a six-inch figurine of a nicely Sherlockian bloodhound, in handcrafted cold cast resin by artist Robert Harrop. The price is $49.95 plus $7.00 shipping, and their address is Box 451, Lake City, MN 55041 (800-445-4833).
115. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette series continues to offer fine opportunities to hear many of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows not previously available. Vol. 15 is now in the stores ($11.00) with "The Guileless Gypsy" and "The Camberwell Poisoners" (both from 1946 scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher), and fine commentary by the late Ben Wright. New cassettes will be available every three months.
116. Gary R. Westmoreland reports that "The Crucifer of Blood" (broadcast on TNT cable in Nov. 1991, with Charlton Heston as Sherlock Holmes) is available on cassette from Movies Unlimited, 6736 Castor Avenue, Philadelphia, PA 19149 (800-523-0328). The price is $89.99 (the usual level for releases aimed at the video-rental market), but the price should come down within a year or so.
117. Another item at hand from Gary concerns the weekly appearance of Moriarty on television, in the series "Law & Order" (broadcast on Mondays by NBC-TV) this Moriarty is Michael Moriarty, who plays assistant district attorney Ben Stone.
118. The "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" compact-disc game developed by ICOM Simulations for video-game systems (Feb 91 #2) has now been released on a CD-ROM disc for IBM-compatible and Macintosh personal computers (the list price is $69.95, but the street price is about $50.00, according to an article at hand from Paul Brundage). The game includes live-action video (15-frames-per-second quarter-screen digitized video) and runs 90 minutes. And ICOM is already halfway through work on a sequel.
-
119. Mar 92 #6: If you have watched Jeremy Brett's "Sherlock Holmes" series on A&E cable, and have stayed tuned for the next show, you'll know that "Lovejoy" is a good series, too, with Ian McShane doing a fine job in the title role. "Lovejoy" is based on the books by Jonathan Gash, and Gary Thaden notes that THE GREAT CALIFORNIA GAME (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1991; $19.95) brings Lovejoy to the U.S., and involves him in a search for the long-lost manuscript of Arthur Conan Doyle's first novel, THE NARRATIVE OF JOHN SMITH.
120. The Bimetallic Question of Montreal and The Reichenbach Irregulars of Switzerland have commissioned the newest memorial to Sherlock Holmes: a bronze plaque to be installed at the Reichenbach Falls in May. There already are two other plaques in the vicinity, at the Restaurant Roessli in Meiringen and at the base station of the Reichenbach funicular tramway, but the new plaque will be at the actual "fearful place" (to the left of the falls, as in the Paget illustration, and across from the natural viewing area to the right of the falls that is more convenient for visitors).
121. Emory Lee reports that Stone Castle Imports (Box 141, Bardstown, KY 40004) offer Sherlockian miniature figurines (54mm) from firms such as Valiant and Imperial.
122. Spotted by Jack Kerr: Filmfax (Feb.-Mar. 1992) has good coverage by Gary Coville and Patrick Lucanio of "Jack the Ripper" in print and on film and television (with discussion of Sherlockiana), as well as excellent articles about George Zucco and Lionel Atwill, who gave splendid performances in the Rathbone/Bruce films.
123. Reported: LOGIC NUMBER PROBLEMS, by Wade H. Sherard III (Palo Alto: Dale Seymour Publications, 1992; 64 pp., $8.95); a book of problems for students in grades 7-12, with Sherlockian artwork. The publisher's address is Box 10888, Palo Alto, CA 94303 (800-872-1100).
124. The movie "Champagne for Caesar" (1950) has an S'ian connection, and it is available on videocassette (according to the Movies Unlimited catalog, it is a riotously funny film about a genius, played by Ronald Coleman, who goes on a radio quiz program and takes them for everything they've got; Vincent Price is the show's neurotic sponsor, who hires beautiful Celeste Holm to distract Coleman). According to an article in the Jan. 1989 issue of Cinefantastique (which includes a fine tribute to Vincent Price and a review of his many films), Disney's artists modeled Ratigan in "The Great Mouse Detective" on Price's performance in "Champagne for Caesar".
125. Jeremy Brett's publicity tour of the United States last year included an appearance at the WETA-TV studios in suburban Washington on Oct. 26, when he spoke and answered questions for about 45 minutes. Tina Rhea recorded the session, and offers an audiocassette for $5.00 postpaid; her address is 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.
-
126. Apr 92 #1: The plays are old, but the published scripts are new discoveries, and will be of interest to those who pursue Sherlockian drama. THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND is a two-act adaptation by Tim Kelly, published in 1981, and LADY DITHER'S GHOST is a "musical version of a Sherlock Holmes mystery" by DuMont Howard, published in 1985. The publisher is I. E. Clark, Inc. (Box 246, Schulenburg, TX 78956), and the scripts cost $3.00 each; the shipping charges are $1.50 for the first script, and $2.50 for two to five scripts, and they take plastic if your order is more than $10.00.
127. As famous as William S. Baring-Gould is among Sherlockians, he is not the first of that ilk to achieve renown in the literary world. That honor goes to the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould, who in 1864 wrote the famous hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" and then a series of books about country legends that include those of the west country in general and of Dartmoor in particular. And there is a Sabine Baring-Gould Appreciation Society, founded in 1989, with a newsletter published three times a year; membership costs £6.00 a year, and you can write to David Shacklock, 2 Carlton Road, Redhill, Surrey RH1 2BX, England.
128. Members of the original "Star Trek" crew celebrated their 25th anniversary with a photograph made for the American Library Association, spotted by Jennie C. Paton on the cover of American Libraries (Jan. 1992); it is hard to see in this size, but Walter Koenig (who played helmsman Pavel Chekov) is holding a copy of THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES. The photo is available as a poster (22 x 28 inches) for $6.00 (plus $2.00 shipping) from ALA Graphics, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611. Bookmarks also are available ($7.00 for 200 copies).
129. The fifth and sixth volumes in the MATCH WITS WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES series are now available, with four stories (Spec/Suss and Abbe/Bosc) nicely adapted by Murray Shaw for children aged 8-11, and attractive illustrations by George Overlie. $9.95 each (postpaid) from Carolrhoda Books, 241 First Avenue North, Minneapolis, MN 55401 (800-328-4929).
130. Ben Wood (Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222) offers a new sales list that includes some of the publications of The Pleasant Places of Florida, and Sherlockian and Doylean stamps issued by Redonda, San Marino, Dominica, Turks & Caicos Is., and Coromo Is.
-
131. Apr 92 #2: At hand from Jon Lellenberg is an editorial from the [London] Times (Feb. 14, 1992) occasioned by "a deadly plot" to kill off Inspector Morse. Admirers of Morse will be relieved to learn that the plot failed. The plotters were the producers of the television series in which John Thaw plays the title role, and they had hoped that the final episode in the series would have him "bumped off in Bayreuth, no doubt accompanied by the 'Immolation of Brunnhilde' from Morse's beloved 'Gotterdammerung'." Morse's rescuer was Colin Dexter, who created the character and realized that lucrative publishing contracts made Morse worth more alive than dead. "I would not be doing myself any favors by having him killed," Dexter said. "Anyway, I like him." The writer of the editorial, needless to say, noted the parallel with events in the Canon.

132. Reported from Britain: FROM BOW STREET TO BAKER STREET: MYSTERY, DETECTION AND NARRATIVE, by Martin A. Kayman (Macmillan, 269 pp., £40); a discussion of the development of the genre. THE OXFORD BOOK OF GOTHIC TALES, edited by Christopher Baldick (Oxford Univ. Press, 534 pp., £16.96); the contents include "The Speckled Band".
133. "Dover Thrift Editions" are an interesting addition to bookstore shelves: trade paperbacks priced at $1.00, in an move to get good literature into the hands of readers as cheaply as possible. SIX GREAT SHERLOCK HOLMES STORIES (New York: Dover Publications, 1992; 107 pp., $1.00) offers Scan/RedH/Spec/Engr/Fina/Empt and a brief note about Conan Doyle.
134. Barbara Alder reports that The Sherlock Holmes (the pub in Northumberland Street) will reopen in mid-April (it has been closed for renovations), and that a new Sherlockian souvenir shop has opened across the street from 221B Baker Street.
135. Forecast from Britain: Theme Publications have announced that they intend to publish David Stuart Davies' THE TANGLED SKEIN: SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE DRACULA AFFAIR on June 30, at £25.00 (postpaid by surface mail). The book will be "an exclusive worldwide limited edition of 500 copies" that "will not be reproduced in this particular form as an English-language version ever again," and the first 50 copies will be signed by the author and by Peter Cushing (and allocated on a first-come first-served basis). Copies can be reserved only through paid-in-advance orders (sterling check, cash, or money order), and a detailed flier is available from Theme Publications (43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Weymouth, Dorset DR3 6PL, England).
136. The Mapleton Stables at Louisville have a new Sherlockian multi-color lapel pin, available for $9.00 postpaid from Ralph Hall, 2906 Wallingford Court, Louisville, KY 40218.
137. The Arthur Conan Doyle Society has announced a David Kirby Memorial Essay Competition, with a deadline of Dec. 31, 1992, and prizes of £50 offered in each of two categories: "the life, writings and/or criticism or study of the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle," and "studies in the Sherlockian writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" (pastiches and parodies are excluded). The society also plans a weekend visit to Edinburgh in Mar. 1993, guided by Owen Dudley Edwards. Fliers for both items are available from Christopher Roden, Grasmere, 35 Penfold Way, Doderston, Chester CH4 9ML, England.
-
138. Apr 92 #3: Reported by Ron De Waal: CRIME CLASSICS: THE MYSTERY STORY FROM POE TO THE PRESENT, edited by Rex Burns and Mary Rose Sullivan (New York: Viking Penguin, 1990; 390 pp., $22.95), has also been published as a trade paperback (New York: Penguin Books, 1991; 390 pp., $10.95); the contents include "A Scandal in Bohemia" and "The Speckled Band".
139. W. T. Rabe ("Colonel Warburton's Madness") died on Apr. 4. Bill's genius was perhaps best expressed by his talent in making madness respectable, and he did that in many fields: as chief telephone-book critic for the Detroit newspapers, as Detroit Hatchetman of the Friends of Lizzie Borden, as chief executive officer of Hush Records (providing the records with which Silent Record Week was celebrated each year), as public-relations officer for the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island (the Miami Beach of the North), and in so many ways in the world of Sherlock Holmes. His plaque was the first to be unveiled in Meiringen, and he founded the Martha Hudson Breakfast at the Hotel Algonquin, and as Chief Medical Officer of The Old Soldiers of Baker Street he published two editions of the SHERLOCKIAN WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT, a long run of The Commonplace Book, the phonograph records he called VOICES FROM BAKER STREET, and most recently WE ALWAYS MENTION AUNT CLARA. He received his Investiture in 1955, and the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1990, and his contributions to Sherlockiana are not yet complete, since his videocassette BAKER STREET NEWSREEL will soon be available to remind us of how much fun he brought to the world he enjoyed so much.
140. Spotted by Jennie Paton: a sweatshirt (black on gray in S/M/L/XL) offered by The Rare Bear (21 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, NY 12498) at $39.95 plus $5.00 shipping (they take plastic).
141. The Georgetown Frame Shoppe (1083 Thomas Jefferson Street NW, Washington, DC 20007) has a production cel from "Deduce, You Say" (1956), showing Daffy with a magnifying glass ($2,000), and a limited-edition cel (1981) signed by artist Chuck Jones and showing Daffy in full Sherlockian costume ($1,200). And the Old Print Gallery (1220 31st Street NW, Washington, DC 20007) offers an original of the caricature of William Gillette by "Spy" (Leslie Ward) [D4274b], matted and framed ($1,250).
142. Further to the report (Mar 92 #4) on the Sherlockian series published by the Reader's Digest Association, Philip Shreffler reports that THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is scheduled for 1993, containing HIS LAST BOW, "The Man with the Watches", "The Lost Special", "The Field Bazaar", "How Watson Learned the Trick", and an afterword by Philip.
143. Tina Rhea is working on an annotated bibliography of the many books written by Michael Harrison, and would greatly appreciate hearing from anyone who might have copies of BATTERED CARAVANSERAI, THERE'S GLORY FOR YOU!, TRANSIT OF VENUS, A HANSOM TO ST. JAMES'S, COUNT CAGLIOSTRO, and UNDER THIRTY. Her address is 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.
144. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) is offering "Hawkshaw the Detective" comic strip from 1920s and 1930s Sunday papers, and in a 1943 comic books, plus other newspaper comic-strip material. A sales list is available.
-
145. Apr 92 #4: Bill Rabe's BAKER STREET NEWSREEL videocassette is a delightful reminder of the early days of Sherlockian exploration as well as of the days of home movies, in 1951 and 1952, when Lt. Rabe (operating as the photo-analysis section of The Old Soldiers of Baker Street) filmed in England, Belgium, Paris, and Switzerland. Bill relied on a used camera and had no exposure meter, but his fidelity to the Sherlockian spirit was as high then as in later years. His 30-minute excursion into the past is followed by a video transfer of the 10-minute "The Celebrated Archives of Sherlock Holmes" (made to promote "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes") and some interesting audio, including a report on the second running of The Silver Blaze at Aqueduct in Sept. 1953. $20.00 postpaid from Charm Audio (Box 1291, Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783).
146. The Incessant Trumpet is a pleasant and well-produced eight-page newsletter based on Helen Williams' love of literature, and the Nov.-Dec. 1991 issue is nicely Sherlockian. And available from The Prism (Box 2021, Birmingham, MI 48012); $3.00.
147. Michael McClure reports that the just-released videocassette of Disney's "101 Dalmatians" comes with an announcement that the videocassette of "The Great Mouse Detective" will be released this summer.
148. Discovered by Bill Vande Water: John Peel's WHERE IN THE WORLD IS CARMEN SANDIEGO? (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1991; 96 pp., $2.95); a spin-off from the computer game and television series, the book offers four trails to follow hither and yon. And one of the trails leads through Disneyland, where Basil of Baker Street provides a clue.
149. What on Earth (2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087) continues to offer Sherlockiana in its catalogs, such as the Bossons "character wall heads" of Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty ($63.95 each); the Bearlock Holmes doll ($74.95); and Tsukasa Kobayashi's SHERLOCK HOLMES'S LONDON ($16.95).
150. Jack Davis (Davis and Son, Long Leaf Mall, Wilmington, NC 28403) offers a Sherlock Holmes umbrella or walking stick (the handles are in polyester resin) for $70.00. Also available: the Bossons busts of Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty ($65.00 each), deerstalkers ($25.00), and a Holmes-and-Watson meerscham pipe set ($65.00). Shipping costs $5.00, and they accept plastic.

151. Pattie Brunner notes a report from England that Granada will begin work in April on their next "Sherlock Holmes" program, and that it will be a "The Sussex Vampire" (in a two-hour adaptation). And Pattie reports that Jeremy Brett has not been idle: he plays a small part in the film "Patriot Games" (based on Tom Clancy's book and starring Harrison Ford), expected in the theaters this summer. Pattie also offers a sales list of postcards, mugs, prints, and other items autographed by Jeremy Brett: send an SASE to Pattie at 3019 Fire Weed Court, Florissant, MO 63031.
152. At hand from Syd Goldberg is a newspaper report that LumiVision has issued a 90-minute laserdisc ($45.00) with all the surviving footage of "The Lost World" (1925), a trailer, a promotional short, and a demonstration of the stop-motion special effects devised by Willis O'Brien.
-
153. Apr 92 #5: "Though not a great zealot of the detective story he knows his Sherlock Holmes, Agatha Christie, Anna Katharine Green, Mary Roberts Rinehart, S. S. Van Dine." From Christopher Morley's long article on "What the President Reads: Notes on a Visit to the White House" in the Saturday Review of Literature (Sept. 24, 1932), spotted by Jennie Paton. The president was Herbert Hoover (who in 1930 had invited William Gillette to luncheon at the White House, when Gillette was in Washington on tour in "Sherlock Holmes").
154. Isaac Asimov ("The Remarkable Worm") died on Apr. 6. He was a grand master in the world of science fiction (Asimov's Laws of Robotics are now a given for writers in that genre), and he was perhaps more of a master at making science understandable (if the remarkable worm was unknown to science, very little science was unknown to Isaac). Above all, he was imaginative, and that showed as well in his mysteries and in his limericks and in his songs and in his enjoyment of the Canon. His reconstruction of Moriarty's famous essay on "The Dynamics of an Asteroid" was published in BEYOND BAKER STREET in 1976, shortly after Isaac received his Investiture, but it is his S'ian songs and limericks that will be remembered best by those who heard them at our annual dinners and cocktail parties.
155. A two-hour videocassette of "Sherlock Holmes: The Golden Years: Incident at Victoria Falls" is now in the shops (released by Vestron Video), starring Christopher Lee (Sherlock Holmes), Patrick Macnee (Dr. John Watson), and Jenny Seagrove (Lilly Langtry). The third billing for Jenny Seagrove (who played a memorable Mary Morstan in Granada's "The Sign of Four") is perhaps the best demonstration of how much editing was done for the videocassette version: Lilly Langtry does not appear as a character [yes, she signed her name as Lillie Langtry, and that's not the only mistake in this show].
156. "Incident at Victoria Falls" also is available from Jennie Paton's lending library, as is Granada's two-hour "The Master Blackmailer". Her address is 206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458.
157. Credit Susan Diamond and Allan Devitt for their report on "The Rocketeer" (a film that vanished so fast from the theaters that it already is an inflight movie): the villain, played by Timothy Dalton, is a Nazi fronting as an actor, named Neville St. Clair.
158. Reported by Brian MacDonald: THE GREAT ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in a 1990 "Puffin Classics" paperback edition with new cover art ($2.95). And Anne Perry's RESURRECTION ROW and PARAGON WALK (both from Fawcett Crest at $4.95 each), featuring Victorian detective Inspector Pitt, and with Pitt in Sherlockian costume on the covers. And THE MUDSOCK MANUSCRIPTS (vol. 1) by Larry A. Reynolds, illustrated by Greg Shelton, with an illustrated story "Hop 'n Burger" in which Perrier the pig plays Holmes ($12.95 from Larry Reynolds Productions, Box 141, Fishers, IN 46038).
159. THE HORROR OF THE HEIGHTS & OTHER TALES OF SUSPENSE (San Francisco: Chronicle Books, 1992; 242 pp., $9.95) is the latest in the company's series of trade-paperback reprints of Conan Doyle's work. The "other tales" are fine ones, and Chronicle offers a fine companion to its earlier reprints of the Professor Challenger series and ROUND THE FIRE STORIES.
-
160. Apr 92 #6: The Simon & Schuster audiocassette series of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows has reached vol. 16 ($11.00) with "The Terrifying Cats" and "The Submarine Caves" (both from 1946 scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher) and new commentary by series announcer Harry Bartell. Of particular interest is the opportunity to hear a new voice as Watson (Eric Snowden replaced a temporarily ailing Nigel Bruce for one of the shows).
161. A report from an Australian newspaper, quoted by Washington Post columnist Bob Levey: Government chemists in Canberra have isolated a new element--administratium. The heaviest element yet discovered, it consists of one neutron, eight assistant neutrons, 25 vice neutrons, and 256 assistant vice neutrons. Despite its weight, it appears to be completely nonproductive and does not react or produce any real byproducts or end products.
162. VarSe Sarabande Records (13006 Saticoy Street, North Hollywood, CA 91605) have issued a compact disc (VSD-5359) with Henry Mancini's music for "The Great Mouse Detective" (1986). And Patrick Gower's music for the Granada "Sherlock Holmes" series is still available on cassette (VSC-5221) and on compact disc (VSD-5221). Cassettes cost $9.98, and compact discs $15.98; shipping extra ($3.00 plus $0.50 each beyond one item); plastic accepted.
163. Dee Snyder, the founder of The Mini-Tonga Scion Society (for creators and keepers of Sherlockian miniatures) has written to introduce Brian Jackson (the society's new "Islander"), who will be maintaining the registry and publishing the newsletter and keeping the society active; his address is 1500 Crescent Circle #110, Lake Park, FL 33403.
164. The 22-page manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" is scheduled at auction on May 9 (estimated at $85,000-100,000) at the Superior Galleries, 9478 West Olympic Boulevard, Beverly Hills, CA 90212 (800-421-0754). The catalog also includes the first printing of the first edition (London, 1888) of A STUDY IN SCARLET ($9,000-10,000) and a first edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES ($1,000-$1,500).
165. Michael Hardwick's THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, first published in 1986, has been reissued as a trade paperback (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1992; 255 pp., $10.95). The book is similar in approach to his THE SHERLOCK HOLMES COMPANION (1962), but has greater emphasis on the stories; it is a splendid beginners' introduction to the Canon, and no less useful as a general reference work.
166. Peter Rowland's pastiche THE DISAPPEARANCE OF EDWIN DROOD, published last year by Constable in Britain (Mar 91 #2), now has an American edition (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1992; 176 pp., $16.95). The novel opens with the arrival of John Jasper at Baker Street in 1894, to ask Sherlock Holmes to prove that Edwin Drood has been murdered, and offers an intriguing solution to the problems posed by Charles Dickens. It is of passing interest that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was interested in possible solutions to "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" and discussed the story with Dickens (with the help of the medium Florizel von Reuter): Conan Doyle was curious about a solution "from the spirit-pen" of Dickens that had been published in Vermont in 1873, and asked Dickens, "Was the American who finished *Edwin Drood* inspired?" "Not by me," Dickens replied. See THE EDGE OF THE UNKNOWN (1930, p. 149-153).
-
167. Apr 92 #7: LOGIC NUMBER PROBLEMS, by Wade H. Sherard III (Palo Alto: Dale Seymour Publications, 1987; 64 pp., $8.95), is an imaginative collection of problems for grades 7-12, with amusing cover and interior Sherlockian artwork by Rachel Gage. The publisher's address is Box 10888, Palo Alto, CA 94303 (800-872-1100).
168. "Sherlock Holmes in Caracas" is a new 95-minute Venezuelan film, with Jean Manuel Montesinos as Sherlock Holmes and Gilbert Dacournan as Watson, shown at the 32nd International Film Festival in Cartagena, Colombia, on Mar. 13, and reviewed by Paul Lenti in Variety (Mar. 30). "This curiosity owes more to the Firesign Theater's 'Giant Rat of Sumatra' and Monty Python than to Arthur Conan Doyle. Venezuelan filmmaker Juan E.

Fresan's English-lingo venture is a self-conscious, low-budget, free-wheeling satirical mess that might possibly find homevideo interest. Title is misleading since this deconstructed Holmes merely passes through Caracas on his way to Maracaibo to aid an old friend who is married to a former Miss Venezuela. Fantastic plot, which emerges late in the film, seems tacked on to give purpose to pic's constant mugging. While weird dealings point to a pagan-worshipping governess, Holmes discovers that the ex-Miss Venezuela is really a vampire who threatens the lives of her children. In between, Holmes discusses his weak characterization, subtitles that draw attention to the sound effects, Watson shooting everything with his ubiquitous Betacam, and lots of corny costumes and tropical sets. Editing proceeds at a madcap pace, and the 20-gags-a-minute script actually pays off every once in a while."

169. The Gleniffer Press has published THE THREE STUDENTS in a microbook edition (1.00 x 0.75 inches), typeset and illustrated, at £15.00 or $30.00 postpaid (U.S. dollar checks acceptable). Their address is 11 Low Road, Castlehead, Paisley, Scotland PA2 6AQ, United Kingdom.
170. 100 GREAT DETECTIVES, edited and introduced by Maxim Jakubowski (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1991; 255 pp., $18.95), is the American edition of a fine collection of essays in which famous mystery writers discuss their favorite detectives. H.R.F. Keating examines Sherlock Holmes, and the other essays cover a wide and interesting range of detectives old and new, familiar and sometimes unfamiliar, with most of the writers offering personal essays and enthusiastic tributes rather than mere potted biographies. Simon Brett, to cite only one example, notes that "One of the great things about literature is that it offers the safest sex around," and explains his love-affair with Sue Grafton's Kinsey Millhone.
171. Donald Girard Jewell's A FEW HOURS TO THE BIRDS: A MONOGRAPH ON BIRDS AND BIRDING IN THE TIME OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Westminster: Pinchin Lane Press, 1991) is the second in his "Sherlock Holmes Natural History Series" (the first volume covered fish and fishing in A TROUT IN THE MILK, and the next will deal with Canonical cats). The 40-page monograph is nicely done, and available from the author (4685 Geeting Road, Westminster, MD 21158) for $9.95 postpaid.
172. Dr. Fatso's 23rd and (allegedly) penultimate account of the doings of his shrewd and spasmodic colleague Turlock Holmes is THE HESITANT PATIENT, due this month from the Pequod Press. $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper) from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707.

---

173. Apr 92 #8: Sherlockians, meeting formally or informally, sometimes pursue a Canonical version of the game "Twenty Questions" to see how quickly players are able to identify one of the Sherlock Holmes stories. But: what is the smallest set of yes-or-no questions that will identify all the sixty recorded cases? Eight questions would be the theoretical minimum (because sixty-four possibilities will cover the sixty recorded cases). If anyone can devise a set of twenty questions that will serve the purpose, I will be happy to publish such a list (or a shorter one, of course).
174. Jeremy Brett's fans should check their local television listings: WETA-TV (Washington's PBS-TV station) will rebroadcast his four-part mini-series "Rebecca" beginning on May 7.
175. J. Raymond Hendrickson ("The Musgrave Ritual") died on Mar. 7. Ray was for many years a professor of classics at Temple University in Philadelphia, and a stalwart member of The Sons of the Copper Beeches. His translation of the Musgrave Ritual into Greek will be found in the Sept. 1966 issue of the BSJ.
176. Herbert H. Middleton ("Ionides, of Alexandria") died on Apr. 21. Herb was one of the founders of The Sons of the Copper Beeches, in 1947, and as one of the third-generation owners of the Middleton pipe-tobacco company he was an enthusiastic champion of Sherlock Holmes as an inveterate pipe-smoker, and of the many Sherlockians who have shared the great detective's devotion to the briar, cherrywood, and clay.
177. SHERLOCK HOLMES FOR CHILDREN is a new one-hour audiocassette, offering four stories (Maza/Spec/Musg/Blue) told by Jim Weiss, who does an excellent job of combining narration and dialogue. The stories have been edited for the younger target-audience, but the adaptations are imaginative and retain the excitement of the Canon. The cassette costs $9.95 (plus $2.00 shipping), from Greathall Productions, Box 813, Benicia, CA 94510.
178. It was in "The Stockbroker's Clerk" that Watson compared Sherlock Holmes to a "connoisseur who has just taken his first sip of a comet vintage." And the allusion to a comet vintage has been neglected by most of the Canonical commentators. Well, one of the comet vintages was 1811, and it is a bottle of Lafitte 1811 ("an extremely rare wine that just might hold the secret to eternal youth") that is featured in the new film "Year of the Comet" (with a screenplay by William Goldman, and Penelope Ann Miller, Tim Daly, Louis Jourdan, and Ian Richardson in the lead roles).
179. Ronald A. Knox, who did so much to invent our own grand game, is also well known for his "decalogue" of rules for writing detective fiction (one of them suggesting that "The stupid friend of the detective, the Watson, must not conceal any thoughts which pass through his mind; his intelligence must be slightly, but very slightly, below that of the average reader"). SINS FOR FATHER KNOX, by Josef Skvorecky (New York: W. W. Norton & Co., 1989), recently reported by Ely Liebow, is a collection of ten stories, each of which violates one of Knox's rules; the reader is challenged not only to identify the murderer but also to decide which rule has been broken.

---

180. May 92 #1: The fourth issue of the Sherlock Holmes Gazette (spring 1992) has 40 pages and continues its coverage of the Granada series (including good background interviews with author Jeremy Paul and costume designer Esther Dean), plus other intriguing reports on items such as a Sherlock Holmes pub at the Gulf Hotel in Bahrain and Boris Yeltsin's admiration for Sherlock Holmes. The address is Theme Publications, 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England, and the cost is £21.00 for four issues (they take plastic).
181. Further to the challenge to identify a fictional work in which one of the characters was based on Adrian Conan Doyle, Michael McClure has suggested two additional candidates: Eve Titus' BASIL AND THE LOST COLONY (1964) and BASIL AND THE PYGMY CATS (1971), in which "Lord Adrian" appears.
182. Michael also reports that the videocassette of "The Great Mouse Detective" will be released on July 17. And he has added another title to the list of periodicals he edits: Slylock Fox and Friends #1 is an eight-page black-and-white reprint (quite suitable for coloring) of a selection of cartoons by Bob Weber, Jr. The reprint was offered in the Sunday comic strip, and they have already had more than 1,300 requests for copies; it costs $1.00 postpaid, and a set of Slylock Fox stickers is also available for $2.00, and you can order from Michael W. McClure, 1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62233.
183. I. Eugene Willis died on Jan. 17. He was Bud Willis to family and friends, and it is to Bud Willis and his wife Ruth that we owe "Aunt Clara" (one of the unofficial Sherlockian anthems). Bill Rabe's delightful monograph WE ALWAYS MENTION AUNT CLARA (1990) told the story of how the song was written on Christmas Day in 1936, and of Bud's long battles to convince authorities such as Carl Sandburg that the song was not merely anonymous folklore. Bud knew that the S'ian world had adopted the song, and he was (to quote Bill) "somewhat bemused that after all these years all these people are paying all this attention to his old Auntie."
184. SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE: INTERVIEWS AND RECOLLECTIONS, edited by Harold Orel (published last year by Macmillan in London and St. Martin's Press in New York) (Dec 91 #6), is now available from St. Martin's at $35.00 postpaid. The book is an intriguing approach to biography, offering extracts from ACD's own writings, from interviews with him, and from articles, essays, and autobiographies written by people who knew him. Orel has divided his selections into five sections ("The Years at Edinburgh University"; "Sherlock Holmes"; "The Professional Writer"; "Speaking Out on Public Issues; Sports"; and "Spiritualism"), and he has added useful notes to help modern readers to whom many names and references will not be familiar. There are many reasons to recommend the book: one being that the selection is a good one, providing first-hand insight into many aspects of Conan

Doyle's life and career. Another is that the opinions and interpretations are those of the writers, who were closer to Conan Doyle than biographers or admirers can be today. And there is much material that will be new and interesting to almost anyone who wishes to know more about a man who did so much, and so well. Prepaid orders can be sent to St. Martin's Press (attn: Donelle Gladwin), 175 Fifth Avenue New York, NY 10010.

-
185. May 92 #2: "Staff fear for Granada standards after chief executive goes" was the headline on an article in The Times (Feb. 4), at hand from Chris Redmond, about the forced resignation of Granada Television's executive chairman David Plowright, after a disagreement with the head of the parent company, the Granada Group. A letter of protest was signed by 1,000 of Granada Television's staff, and key executives issued statements of concern. The Granada Group, hoping for more profit from its television subsidiary, wants to cut program budgets. Plowright led the recent (and successful) campaign by Granada Television to get its broadcasting license renewed for another ten years; another bidder for the franchise was ready to pay much more than Granada was, but the Independent Television Commission gave great weight to Granada's fine programming in the last decade.
186. A new catalog at hand from Murder Ink (2486 Broadway, New York, NY 10025): they offer an interesting T-shirt (sizes L and XL only) with Steve Cragg's portrait of Conan Doyle for $16.96 plus shipping; they take plastic and the tollfree number is 800-488-8123.
187. The new mail-order catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) has THE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATED ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE (#1788256) at $12.95. And it's in the new catalog from the Strand Book Store (828 Broadway, New York, NY 10003) at $7.95 (#21368). Presumably the book will also be found on the bargain tables in book stores. Published by Castle Books in 1980, the book is a 490-page facsimile reprint from The Strand Magazine, with 17 non-Sherlockian short stories, RODNEY STONE, ACD's article on "Life on a Greenland Whaler", and Harry How's "A Day with Dr. Conan Doyle".
188. The latter-day Avenging Angels, attempting to make amends for the murders committed by an earlier organization using the same name, are planning to install a plaque dedicated to the memory of John and Lucy Ferrier, at or near the Pioneer Trail State Park in Salt Lake City, on Aug. 4. A flier with more information about the plaque, and about the ceremony, is available from Ronald B. De Waal, 638 12th Avenue, Salt Lake City, UT 84103.
189. A report on the May 9 auction at the Superior Galleries in Beverly Hills: the 22-page manuscript of "The Three Garridebs" was opened at $87,500, but received no bid and went unsold. The first printing of the first edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET (London, 1888) was sold for $9,500, and a first edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES was sold for $1,100.
190. Sherlock Holmes meets Nikola Tesla, and Nyarlathotep, in Ralph Vaughan's fantasy-pastiche SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE DREAMING DETECTIVE (62 pp., with illustrations by Earl Geier). Available for $6.95 postpaid from Gryphon Publications, Box 209, Brooklyn, NY 11228.
191. Heritage Travel Services (800-828-9843) offers a tour of England on Aug. 17-25, arranged for fans of public television: an "Inspector Morse" tour of Oxford, a "Sherlock Holmes" tour of Granada studios, an excursion on The Orient Express, a private tour of Castle Howard ("Brideshead Revisited"), and much more. $2,495 including round-trip travel on British Airways.
-
192. May 92 #3: The First Annual Watsonian Weekend will be held on July 24-26 in and around Arlington Heights (near Chicago), featuring the "Great Agra Treasure Hunt" on July 24, "The Canonical Collegium" and "The Royal Berkshires/Fifth Northumberland Fusileers Regimental Dinner" on July 25, and the running of "The Silver Blaze" on July 26. Details available from Robert W. Hahn, 2707 South 7th Street, Sheboygan, WI 53081.
193. "The Sherlock style, modeled here by Fred, is a wool-blend plaid," and it is one-size-fits-all, with a tie under the chin and slots for the ears, and it costs $14.95. Reported by Mary Ellen Rich, from the spring 1992 catalog from Cats, Cats & More Cats (2 Greycourt Avenue, Chester, NY 10918). Shipping costs $3.95, and they take plastic.
194. A packet of illustrated fliers at hand from Peter Melonas (Sherlock Holmes Mystery Bookstore, 4480 Mall of Memphis, Unit 3, Memphis, TN 38118), with offers of T-shirts, dolls, sculptures, and artwork by John Northcross.
195. As noted earlier (Mar 92 #5), "Shoscombe Old Place" (dramatized by Gary Hopkins) and "Thor Bridge" (by Jeremy Paul) were two of the four nominees for an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America for "best episode in a television series." The winning nominee, announced at the MWA annual dinner on Apr. 30, was "Poirot: The Lost Mine". But the Granada series has won Edgars in the past, in 1988 ("The Musgrave Ritual") and in 1989 ("The Devil's Foot").
196. A repeat plug for the microbook (1.00 x 0.75 inches) edition of THE THREE STUDENTS published by the Gleniffer Press (Apr 92 #7). It's set in 3-point Times, and well-produced and nicely-bound, and there are now fewer than 50 copies available and the stock won't last long. £15.00 or $30.00 postpaid (U.S. dollar checks accepted), and the address is 11 Low Road, Castlehead, Paisley, Scotland PA2 6AQ, United Kingdom.
197. For those who don't yet have everything, Alan C. Olding reports a new set of four miniature hats (Holmes' deerstalker, Watson's top hat, Lestrade's bowler, and a Bobby's helmet) cast in silver by Australian master goldsmith Malcolm Walter. The hats are 18mm to 20mm high, and come with hand-turned ebony hat stands, and cost US$200 each, or US$750 for the set. Alan's address is P.O. Box 13, Stirling, S.A. 5152, Australia.
198. Punch died on Apr. 8, after a long decline in circulation. The magazine's Doylean connection was established in 1843, when Richard Doyle joined their staff as an illustrator. His cover design became the magazine's trademark, and was used virtually unchanged from 1849 to 1956, but he resigned in 1850 in disgust over their anti-papist policy, and was quickly replaced by John Tenniel (who achieved lasting renown when he illustrated ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND in 1864). Punch's first Sherlockian piece was a parody by R. C. Lehmann published on Aug. 12, 1893, and in later years the magazine had hundreds of Sherlockian and Doylean items (including ACD's story "The Debut of Bimbashi Joyce"). According to a brief obit in the Wall Street Journal, spotted by Syd Goldberg, the cover of the last issue showed a dejected Mr. Punch stumbling into the sunset with his friend Judy and dog Toby.
-
199. May 92 #4: Manchester, home of Granada Television and its studio tour, has many other claims to fame, according to an article reported by Syd Goldberg in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Manchester boasts more theaters than any city in England outside London, and the fastest-growing airport in Europe, and it has government backing for its bid to host the Olympic Games in the year 2000.
200. Patrick Tull does an excellent job with unabridged audiocassette recordings of THE SIGN OF FOUR (three cassettes, $21.95) and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (five cassettes, $36.95), offered by Recorded Books, 270 Skipjack Road, Prince Frederick, MD 20678 (800-638-1304). Also available are Tull's THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (seven cassettes, $49.95) and THE VALLEY OF FEAR (four cassettes, $29.95), Peter Mesney's A STUDY IN SCARLET (three cassettes, $21.95), and Alexander Spencer's THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (seven cassettes, $49.95)
201. For those who don't yet have everything, Alan C. Olding reports a new set of four miniature hats (Holmes' deerstalker, Watson's top hat, Lestrade's bowler, and a Bobby's helmet) cast in silver by Australian master goldsmith Malcolm Walter. The hats are 18mm to 20mm high, and come with hand-turned ebony hat stands, and cost US$200 each, or US$750 for the set. Alan's address is P.O. Box 13, Stirling, S.A. 5152, Australia.
202. I sometimes forget that some subscribers to this newsletter are relatively new subscribers. Jennie C. Paton reports hearing from some people who were puzzled by the mention (Apr 92 #5) of her lending library for Sherlockian video. She started the library a few years ago to help scions get material

- to show at meetings, and now has a wide variety of major and minor material available. The charge is $5.00 per cassette (borrowers pay return postage, and Jennie's address is 206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458.
203. Ben B. Bodne died on May 12. Bodne and his wife were on their honeymoon in the 1920s when they discovered the Hotel Algonquin, and shared the dining room with Will Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Sinclair Lewis, Eddie Cantor, Gertrude Lawrence, and Beatrice Lillie. He bought the hotel in 1946, and worked hard to maintain its reputation as a meeting place for literary and other celebrities. The Algonquin was sold to a Japanese company in 1987, but Bodne continued to live in the hotel, where (as Jon L. Lellenberg has noted) a table in the lobby was permanently reserved for him.
204. John Dickson Carr's THE DOOR TO DOOM AND OTHER DETECTIONS, first published in 1980, is now available in a trade-paperback second edition (New York: International Polygonics, 1991; 346 pp., $10.95). The book was edited by Douglas G. Greene, and it is a fine collection of Carr's short stories, parodies, and essays, with an excellent introduction by Greene (who is now working on an authorized biography of Carr). The parodies are Sherlockian (dramatizations of "The Adventure of the Conk-Singleton Papers" and "The Adventure of the Paradol Chamber" that were performed in 1948 and 1949 at the annual meetings of the Mystery Writers of America). One of the essays ("The Grandest Game in the World") was written in 1946 as an introduction for a never-published anthology of the "ten best" mystery novels, and while half of the essay has been published before, it appears in full (and with Carr's appreciation of the Canon) for the first time in this edition.
-
205. May 92 #5: Further to the query (Apr 92 #8) asking for the smallest set of yes-or-no questions that will identify all the sixty recorded cases, Chris Redmond noted that the theoretical minimum is six, rather than eight (the relevant equation is 2 to the nth power rather than n squared). And Chris has supplied a list of questions (more than six, but fewer than twenty), which will not be published this month, in case anyone else is working on the problem.
206. Reported: MPI Home Video has released the Granada version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on laserdisc ($29.95).
207. "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" continues to bemuse and bedevil readers who want to know the solution to the unfinished mystery. And an imaginative approach to the problem will be found in THE D. CASE: THE TRUTH ABOUT THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD, by Charles Dickens, Carlo Fruttero, and Franco Lucentini (New York: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1992; 587 pp., $23.95). First published in Italy in 1989 and now available in English, the book offers an account of events at a Forum on the Completion of Unfinished or Fragmentary Works in Music and Literature, and the deliberations of the participants, who include Lew Archer, Father Brown, Hercule Poirot, Nero Wolfe, and Sherlock Holmes. There is considerable humor, and a surprise ending, and the dust jacket is also of interest, with portraits of Holmes and Watson drawn by Edward Gorey.
208. Ray Dubberke's DICKENS, DROOD, AND THE DETECTIVES (New York: Vantage Press, 1992; 192 pp., $16.95) is a more scholarly approach to the mystery, based on his suggestion that Dickens concealed his intentions so skillfully that "almost any conclusion one chooses, however farfetched, can be supported by citations from the novel." Dubberke examines the influence of real crimes, criminals, and detectives on Dickens' story, and proposes a solution based on those influences and on other works by Dickens (suggesting in passing that the team of Datchery and Deputy anticipates Sherlock Holmes and his Baker Street Irregulars).
209. The latest issue of Anglofile includes the second half of an interview with Jeremy Brett, an interview with Lysette Anthony ("Without a Clue"), and (as always) the latest news about British television, stage, and screen. The 12-page magazine costs $12.00 a year for six issues, and their address is Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30333.
210. Peggy Ann Osborne collects buttons used on clothing, and she is writing a book about them, and hopes that someone can provide some information about an intriguing Sherlockian button she has found. It is a metal button (shown here actual size), with a loop shank, and a bronze-tinted face that shows a silhouette of Holmes with initials that appear to be JTM. If you know anything about the button, please write to her at 2613 Knollwood, Hazel Crest, IL 60429.
211. "My Trans Am, like Magnum's Ferrari, is about as easy to track as the linseed oil Sherlock Holmes laid down for Toby." The Trans Am belongs to the heroine of Sara Paretsky's new mystery novel GUARDIAN ANGEL, and the quote was spotted by Bob Brusic. Presumably there are other uses for linseed oil than keeping baseball gloves in good shape, but laying down trails for Toby wasn't one of them.
-
212. May 92 #6: The good news is that a four-hour version of "Sherlock Holmes: Incident at Victoria Falls" (with Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee) does exist, and has been cleared for more than a hundred markets in the United States. The mini-series may have aired on some stations by now, since the four-week "window" opened on May 18, but Washington viewers will see (and surely tape) the show on WDCA-TV on June 9-10. And it will air on WGN-TV (the Chicago superstation that some cable companies carry) on June 10-11. The bad news, for those who rushed to buy the high-priced two-hour videocassette, is that that version was butchered to fit onto one cassette. The window for the four-hour "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" opens on Aug. 8 (and it will be broadcast in Washington on Aug. 25-26).
213. Reported by Paul Brundage: "Sherlock Holmes: Mystery and Murder" is a oneweek tour to England scheduled for September, advertised by the California State Automobile Association Travel Agency (800-352-1955)
214. Insp. Sholto Lestrade is back, in London in 1895, investigating a series of murders in the Underground, and in the usual difficulties with his superior officers, the general public, and assorted inanimate objects. M. J. Trow's LESTRADE AND THE DEAD MAN'S HAND (London: Constable, 1992; 237 pp., £13.99) is the eleventh in his series about Lestrade, and offers an excellent blend of humor and mystery.
215. "It was all that the girl could do to keep herself in the saddle," says the Canonical account of Lucy Ferrier's first meeting with Jefferson Hope (his saddle also is mentioned in the story). But it is unlikely that either saddle was as ornate as the one shown on the Western Americana stamped envelope, designed by Harry Zelenko and issued on April 10.
216. IRENE AT LARGE (New York: Tor Books, 1992; 320 pp., $19.95) is Carole Nelson Douglas' third novel about Irene Adler and her friend Penelope Huxleigh, due to be published in July. The book begins with a description of the battle at Maiwand, but the story begins in Paris in 1889. Irene remains as intrepid and adventurous as ever, and the tale is nicely told, with an ending that indicates that a sequel is likely.
217. Reported by Rosemary Michaud: three Sherlockian references (two to Holmes and one to Hemlock) in Norman Mailer's 1991 spy novel HARLOT'S GHOST.
218. Arts & Entertainment cable is now airing reruns of "Lovejoy" (starring Ian McShane), but a new series of shows started on the BBC on Jan. 12. The 7th program ("Scotch on the Rocks") also stars Edward Hardwicke.
219. Reported: mention of Sherlock Holmes' forays into London's train tunnels in KING SOLOMON'S CARPET, by Barbara Vine (New York: Harmony Books, 1992; 356 pp., $19.00). Barbara Vine is a pseudonym used by Ruth Rendell.
220. Pat Ward reports that the cast of Granada's version of "The Sussex Vampire" (that's their spelling) will include Roy Marsden, who has starred as Adam Dalgleish on "Mystery!" and was featured in the "Sandbaggers" series.
-

221. Jun 92 #1: Harmony Gold (the company that produced the mini-series "Sherlock Holmes: Incident at Victoria Falls") is now at work on "The Lost World" and "Return to the Lost World", and Andrew Jay Peck has noted a report in the Hollywood Reporter (May 14) that Harmony Gold also plan to film "The Poison Belt" and "The Day the Earth Screamed".
222. Andy also spotted a report in Weekly Variety (same date) about the Family Channel's cable plans for the fall 1993: a new one-hour drama series called "221B Baker Street" involves a wealthy modern American couple who inherit a Victorian house at that address in London and find that people still write to Sherlock Holmes to ask for help. And the American couple, with the help of a twelve-year-old street urchin, solve some of the mysteries. At least that's the concept; the scripts have not been written, but the series will be a co-production with New World Television, which will shoot on location in London).
223. The "Everyman's Library" editions of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (1982) and THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1983) have been reissued as THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: J. M. Dent, 1992; 368 pp., £4.99), with a new and perceptive introduction by H. R. F. Keating and cover art showing the "Spy" caricature of William Gillette. The book is distributed in the U.S. by Charles E. Tuttle (28 South Main Street, Rutland, VT 05701), and in the bookstores priced at $8.95.
224. Martin A. Kayman's FROM BOW STREET TO BAKER STREET: MYSTERY, DETECTION AND NARRATIVE (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1992; 269 pp., $45.00) examines in scholarly detail the 19th-century mystery genre, and its eventual focus on detection. Kayman's final chapter deals with the Sherlock Holmes stories, suggesting that in the Canon "the mystery itself is shifted from the crime, its sequel, and even its solution, to the detective's explanation of how he solved it." Kayman also notes the ground-breaking realism of the Canon: it is the power of Holmes' belief in himself and in his world as rational that has made it so easy for so many of his readers to accept him as real.
225. THE MUDSOCK MANUSCRIPTS, mentioned earlier (Apr 92 #5), is nicely done. Written by Larry A. Reynolds and illustrated by Greg Sheldon, the stories feature a close-knit family of farm animals, and will be enjoyed by both children and adults. One of the stories ("The Syncopated Sleuths") is a mystery, and Perrier the pig turns detective, in Sherlockian costume and method. The book costs $12.95 postpaid, from Larry Reynolds Productions, Box 141, Fishers, IN 46038. More stories are planned, including one with even more Sherlockian content and the title "The Hound Is Basking Still".
226. I. E. Clark, who publish the scripts for THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND and THE ADVENTURE OF LADY DITHER'S GHOST (Apr 92 #1), also publish Richard France's 1974 one-act adaptation of SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE ADVENTURE OF THE DYING DETECTIVE (D4382b), and a few copies are still available. $2.00 for the acting script, and $10.00 for the director's script (giving background information, costume sketches, and staging ideas). Shipping is $1.50 for the first script, and $2.50 for two to five scripts; plastic accepted for orders of more than $10.00; the address is Box 246, Schulenburg, TX 78956.
-
227. Jun 92 #2: "Sherlock" is an eponym (a word that can be used to define both the person for whom a thing is or is believed to be named, and the name based on or derived from an eponym). Another eponym is "crapper" (Thomas Crapper was the inventor of the siphonless flushing mechanism used in modern toilets). And when you use the "john" you are indebted to the Rev. Edward Johns, also British, who introduced the "dolphin" toilet to the U.S. at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876 (according to a recent article spotted by Syd Goldberg in the N.Y. Times).
228. The CONCISE DICTIONARY OF BRITISH LITERARY BIOGRAPHY is a new eight-volume set (Detroit: Gale Research, 1992; $395.00), and vol. 5 (LATE VICTORIAN AND EDWARDIAN WRITERS, 1890-1914) has J. Randolph Cox's excellent 24-page entry for Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (updated from the entry Randy wrote for Vol. 70 of the DICTIONARY OF LITERARY BIOGRAPHY (1988)). It's a fine combination of biography, bibliography, and commentary on Conan Doyle's work.
229. Forecast: new editions of THE EXPLOITS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Adrian Conan Doyle and John Dickson Carr, from Marboro's Dorset Press (for the bargainbook tables), and (with a new introduction by Carr's biographer Douglas G. Greene) in paperback from International Polygonics.
230. The South Downers have a new membership pin, available in two versions: the beehive is in brown, with a black silhouette of Holmes on a blue background or on a yellow one. The pins cost $7.50 each (plus $1.00 shipping per order), and you can order from Richard A. Myhre, 1319 Poplar Court, Homewood, IL 60430.
231. Ralph Spurrier purchased David Kirby's mailing list from David's widow, and David's customers should have received at least one catalog from Spurrier, who offers a fine selection of old and new Sherlockiana and Doyleana. You can write to him at Post Mortem Books, 58 Stanford Avenue, Hassocks, Sussex BN3 8JH, England.
232. Further to the report (Mar 92 #1) on "the bootmaker of Toronto" mentioned in the telecasts of the Olympics, Cliff Goldfarb notes that the man's name is (correctly) John Knebli. Cliff was his next-door neighbor in the 1950s, and remembers seeing champions such as Dick Buttons come to be fitted for first-class skates. Knebli is now in his 80s, and still in business.
233. Julian Symons' BLOODY MURDER: FROM THE DETECTIVE STORY TO THE CRIME NOVEL is now available in a third and expanded edition (London: Macmillan, 1992; 296 pp., £10.99). His chapter on the Canon retains the enthusiasm he first displayed in 1972 ("Certainly what needs to be stressed today is something that should be a cliché, and unhappily is not: that if one were choosing the best twenty short detective stories ever written, at least half a dozen of them would be about Sherlock Holmes"), but his new "Postscript for the Nineties" offers scant praise for many of the most popular current writers in the genre. Symons also suggested in the first edition that "the tone of mock-scholarly facetiousness" in the Writings About the Writings "must make them rank high among the most tedious pieces of their kind ever written," but he omitted that harsh judgement from both the second edition (1985) and the current one. He calls his book "a record of enthusiasm and occasional disappointment," and it is exactly that, and well-written and interesting.
-
234. Jun 92 #3: Robert Morley died on June 3, after a long career as a skillful and witty character actor, and portrayed a memorable Mycroft in the film "A Study in Terror" (1965). He claimed that he learned all about acting in about three months, selling vacuum cleaners door-to-door, and he insisted that he was lazy by nature: "Anyone who works is a fool. I don't work--I merely inflict myself on the public."
235. Single pages of the manuscript of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (many of which were distributed to booksellers in the United States in 1902, to be used in window displays) are occasionally available for purchase, and one of them (the thirteen page, beginning "This from Hugo Baskerville...") is offered for $25,000 by Joseph M. Maddalena (Profiles in History, 345 North Maple Drive #202, Beverly Hills, CA 90210). Non-Sherlockian Conan Doyle autograph and manuscript material is also available from the company.
236. William M. Gaines died on June 3. He was a pioneer in the genre of horror comics, publishing series that included The Vault of Horror and Tales from the Crypt (until Senate hearings on the effect of comics on innocent youth prompted the comic-book industry to impose self-censorship). In the early 1950s he turned his attention to another magazine he founded and published: Mad, the first magazine of satire aimed directly at adolescents. Its first Canonical items were "Shermlock Shomes!" and "Shermlock Shomes in The Hound of the Basketballs!" (parodies written by Harvey Kurtzman and

- drawn by Bill Elder in 1953 and 1954), and more recently the magazine skewered the movie "Young Sureschlock Homely". Gaines made irreverence an institution decades before television series such as "Saturday Night Live" found the same sort of audience and the same sort of success.
237. Gary Thaden has forwarded a review of Colin Dexter's new THE JEWEL THAT WAS OURS (Crown, $20.00); the book is an adaptation of an Inspector Morse story that was aired on "Mystery!" (about the theft of the Wolvercote Tongue) and includes a comparison of Morse's leaps of logic to those of Mycroft Holmes.
238. On May 7, at the House of Lords, the Crime Writers Association presented Leslie Charteris with their Diamond Dagger Award ("the supreme accolade in our genre, given in recognition of a superlative career in writing"). Now 85 years old, Charteris shared script-writing credit (using the pseudonym Bruce Taylor) with Denis Green for the Rathbone/Bruce radio broadcasts in 1944 and 1945. And his "Saint" story "The Jolly Undertaker" included as a character Prof. Julian D. Corrington, who (in the story and in real life) had written about some of the scientific aspects of the Canon.
239. The quarterly magazine Scarlet Street continues to offer in-depth coverage of old and new Sherlockian film and television, including interviews with Jeremy Brett, Edward Hardwick, Christopher Lee, and Patrick Macnee, as well as a report on the Granada series by David Stuart Davies. The winter 1992 issue has news (with location photographs) that Patrick Macnee was filmed in Canada in Oct. 1991 in the role of Holmes for a television version of Craig Bowsby's play "The Hound of London" (1987). And Foothill Video (Box 547, Tujunga, CA 91043) advertises a long list of Sherlockian video ($7.95 per cassette, one of them being Clive Brook's "Sherlock Holmes" (1932) (not previously noted as available on cassette). The magazine is published by R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666 ($18.00 a year).
-
240. Jun 92 #4: The new Arpad Publishing comic-book series CHRONICLES OF CRIME & MYSTERY: SHERLOCK HOLMES that began with Dan and David Day's adaptation of "The Speckled Band" (Feb 92 #4) has competition. Tome Press (a division of Caliber Press) has published the first issue of a new series CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES with Dan and David Day's adaptation of "A Scandal in Bohemia" (spotted by Jack Kerr). The Tome Press comic book actually is a reprint from the CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES series that was published by Renegade in the 1980s (and picked up by Northstar, and then by Arpad). The Tome Press address is 621-B South Main Street, Plymouth, MI 48170.
241. "This book is dedicated to our children, one son and seven daughters. As Sherlock Holmes said: 'You know my methods, use them!'" The dedication, noted by Rosemary Michaud, is certainly one of the more intriguing uses of a quotation from the Canon: it is in A CLINICAL GUIDE FOR CONTRACEPTION, by Leon Speroff and Philip D. Darney (Baltimore: Williams & Wilkins, 1992).
242. Five postage stamps with designs showing "animals in winter" were issued by Great Britain in Jan., and two of them show a fox and a fallow deer (both foxes and deer are mentioned frequently in the Canon).
243. A new eight-page catalog (concentrating on S'iana imported from Britain) at hand from Classic Specialties (Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219). They are taking reservations now for a new and expanded edition (due this fall) of the splendid GRANADA COMPANION: A SHERLOCK HOLMES ALBUM that was published by Karizzma in 1987.
244. The four-hour television broadcast version of "Sherlock Holmes: The Golden Years: Incident at Victoria Falls" actually runs about three hours and six minutes plus commercials, and Jenny Seagrove does nicely as Lillie Langtry, and railroad-expert John Paton reports that the train seen in the film was not built until the year after King Edward died.
245. Christopher Roden has moved, and so has The Arthur Conan Doyle Society, and the David Kirby Memorial Essay Competition. The new address is: Ashcroft, 2 Abbottsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester, Cheshire CH4 0JH, England (close enough to the border with Wales that Penyffordd is pronounced Pennyforth). Christopher was one of the guest speakers at a ceremony in Crowborough in May, when a plaque honoring Sir Arthur was unveiled (we can expect a full report in the next issue of The Arthur Conan Doyle Society's journal).
246. Richard D. Lesh (1205 Lory Street, Fort Collins, CO 80524) has reprinted an amusing early parody: "The Weirdly Thrilling Adventure of the Lost Bathing Suit" was written by L. C. Hopkins and illustrated by Robert J. Dean, and stars Herlock Shomes and Dr. Rotson. The piece was first published in Nov. 1908 in Uncle Remus's The Home Magazine, which was founded by Joel Chandler Harris and edited by Julian Harris (Don Marquis, the associate editor, went on to be a respected writer, as well as a long-time associate and friend of Christopher Morley). The reprint, in reduced facsimile, is on high-quality paper and bound in boards, and available from Dick for $25.00 postpaid.
-
247. Jun 92 #5: Richard R. Rutter's carefully researched article about "Cyclic Mysteries: Parallel Tracks in the Detective Fiction of L. Frank Baum and Arthur Conan Doyle" was published in the winter 1991 issue of The Baum Bugle. The parallels are interesting, and Dick also has noted a few possible instances of literary osmosis. The Baum Bugle is published three times a year by The International Wizard of Oz Club; membership is $10.00 a year, and single issues of the magazine cost $3.50 (write to Fred M. Meyer, 220 North 11th Street, Escanaba, MI 49829).
248. Steven T. Doyle reports that the Sherlock Holmes Review's third Sherlockian symposium will be held the weekend of Nov. 21-22 at the Omni Severn Hotel in Indianapolis. For more information on the Sherlock Holmes-SHR Symposium III, write to Steven at Box 583, Zionsville, IN 46077.
249. Further to earlier reports (Aug 91 #3 and Nov 91 #1) on the National Farm Medicine Center's test of the best hat for farmers to wear to reduce their exposure to skin cancer (in which a mesh variation of the deerstalker took second place), this summer the Asgrow Seed Co. of Kalamazoo will become the nation's first seed company to give away non-traditional caps to farmers. According to a report in the St. Paul Pioneer Press (sent by Gary Thaden), the mesh stalker isn't one of Asgrow's choices.
250. A brief note in the British press, at hand from Jon Lellenberg, reported that Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson were expected to arrive by hansom for the official reopening of The Sherlock Holmes (the pub in Northumberland Street) on May 22, after a refurbishment that cost £250,000.
251. Edward D. Hoch's "The Problem of the Vanishing Salesman" (in the Aug. 1992 issue of EQMM) is a fine addition to his series of short stories about Dr. Sam Hawthorne, and rings some intriguing changes on the unrecorded case of the disappearance of Mr. James Phillimore.
252. Fred Fonden died on June 8. An actor, playwright, director, and founder of the Prometheus Theatre, far off-off-Broadway, he wrote and starred in "Sherlock Holmes and the Warburton Conspiracy" at the National Arts Theatre in 1981. At the Prometheus his plays included "Sherlock Holmes Embattles Count Dracula" (1983), "Sherlock Holmes: A Case of Identity" (1988), and "Sherlock Holmes: The Eclipse Conspiracy" (1990).
253. Reported by Ron De Waal: SHERLOCK HOLMES: TALES FROM BAKER STREET (Sandy Hook: Radio Yesteryear, 1990; a set of four audiocassettes, $16.95); with eight of the Rathbone/Bruce shows (none of them new discoveries). Available at B. Dalton (and presumably in other chain bookstores).
254. Further to the report (Dec 91 #2) about the conversion of the Isle of Dogs into a mixed-use community, the project appears to be encountering serious difficulties: Canary Wharf, a huge complex that includes a 50-story office building (the tallest in Europe), has sought bankruptcy-court protection. The Canary Wharf project has been masterminded since 1987 by Paul Reichmann of Olympia & York, an investment company that is based in Toronto and now faces its own financial problems. An estimated £500 million in additional funding is needed to complete Canary Wharf, and it is quite likely that the full redevelopment of the area will be considerably delayed.

255. Jun 92 #6: The Northeast Victorian Studies Association will hold its 19th annual meeting at Rhode Island College on Apr. 30-May 2, 1993, and the topic will be "Victorian Waters". If you'd like to submit a paper, write to Prof. Joan Dagle, English Dept., Rhode Island College, Providence, RI 02908. If you'd like to attend the conference, write to Prof. Earl E. Stevens (at the same address).
256. The latest rumor about the Jeremy Brett series is that Granada has decided to continue making two-hour adaptations, and thus has scrapped plans to use their one-hour scripts for "The Red Circle" and "The Three Garridebs" and at least one other story. And there is as yet no reliable report on which story Granada will do after "The Sussex Vampire" (or "The Sussex Vampyre" or whatever title they decide will be most effective).
257. Andrew Jay Peck has discovered a necktie with a "Sherlock Fox" pattern (brown fox and green deerstalker) on terelene polyester (specially woven in Switzerland, and more durable than silk), available in navy blue or royal blue. Chipp Custom Clothiers and Furnishers (attn: Paul Winston), 342 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10173-0006; $24.75 postpaid, and they take plastic.
258. Reported by Rick Smith: THE OXFORD DICTIONARY OF MODERN QUOTATIONS, edited by Tony Augarde (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1991), has 34 quotations from the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, all from the Canon except one from THE WHITE COMPANY. Bob Dylan has only 11 quotations, and Lillian K. Dykstra just one, but it's an amusing one. Writing to her husband in 1952, about Thomas E. Dewey, she said: "He is just about the nastiest little man I've ever known. He struts sitting down."
259. If you have been wondering how to use the Canon to predict who is going to be elected president in November, in view of the absence from the Canon of anyone named Bush or Clinton or Perot, it is of interest that one candidate has mentioned Sherlock Holmes. On June 21 many of the major papers started running stories about Ross Perot's apparent fascination with investigations and intrigue. Perot responded angrily, and on June 24 announced that the emerging image of him as a sort of "Sherlock Holmes running around with my magnifying glass" is a concoction of the GOP.
260. Stuart M. Kaminsky's OPENING SHOTS (Eugene: Mystery Scene Press, 1991) is a 157-page collection of his short stories, including a Sherlockian pastiche "The Final Toast" (reprinted from the 1987 anthology THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES). $4.95 postpaid from the publisher (Box 1227, Eugene, OR 97440).
261. The list of the smallest set of yes-or-no questions that will identify all the sixty recorded cases will be postponed once again, due to lack of room rather than to lack of response John Bennett Shaw reports that an Italian friend would like to correspond with a S'ian ophthalmologist. If any reader qualifies, or knows someone who does, please write to John (1917 Fort Union Drive, Santa Fe, 87501).

---

Jul 92 #1:

262. Baker Street is not the only place where enthusiasts argue about who lived where. A recent story by Shari Rudavsky in the Washington Post notes that while a seamstress named Betsy Ross did live in Philadelphia in the 1770s, she enjoyed relative anonymity until the 1870s, when her grandson William Canby began spreading the rumor that she designed the first flag. Nobody paid Canby much attention until a tavern owner posted a sign on his bar, at Ross' address, advertising "The Home of the First American Flag". But even if Betsy Ross had indeed sewn the first flag (historians are not sure who really did), the sign would still be incorrect, because the city renumbered its addresses after Ross' time, and her home actually was down the block. "Hype proved stronger than history," according to Temple University history professor Morris J. Vogel, and the alleged Ross home "becomes the structure where the woman who did not sew the flag did not live."
263. If you've had trouble finding the graphic-novel-format anthology WITHIN OUR REACH (Jan 92 #1), with Martin Powell's Sherlockian story "The Season of Forgiveness" (illustrated by Patrick Olliffe), copies are available from Tim O'Connor (6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941) for $12.00 postpaid.
264. The London Zoo (mentioned in "Charles Augustus Milverton") was scheduled to close in Sept. (Jun 91 #6 and Jul 91 #4), but there has been a temporary reprieve: the emir of Kuwait has donated £1 million to the Zoo, in thanks for Britain's contribution in the Gulf War, and the Zoo now hopes to remain open through the winter.
265. Granada's "The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax" may (or may not) air on Thursday, Aug. 27, depending on whether your local PBS-TV station does not have a scheduling conflict. And this has been a summer of conflicts, what with the possibility of the political conventions and the Olympics, and whatnot.
266. The 1992 running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont (in New York) will be held on Sept. 12. Those who would like to attend, and have not yet received the formal announcement, should write to Stephen L. Stix, 10784 South 250 East, Markleville, IN 46056.
267. The two-hour version of "Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady" has reached the video shops, released by Vestron Video, and not recommended either for purchase or for rental, unless you're interested in seeing how it can be possible to edit a third of the material out of a program and still have it tell a reasonable story. The four-hour version due soon on television will make more sense. And it won't cost anything to watch, thanks to all those commercials.
268. It is always a pleasure to find a Sherlockian scholar making use of modern technology. Brad Keefauver has demonstrated a truly Canonical "passion for definite and exact knowledge" in investigating what really went through the mind of Professor Moriarty as he plummeted to his death at the Reichenbach. The modern technology was bungee-jumping, and the results of the experiment are reported in the July issue of Plugs & Dottles (published monthly at $10 a year by Robert C. Burr, 4010 Devon Lane, Peoria, IL 61614-7109).
-
269. Jul 92 #2: Reported by Paul Martin: the early fall 1992 catalog from the House of Tyrol (Box 909, Alpenland Center, Cleveland, GA 30528) (800-241-5404) has a set of Sherlock Holmes desk accessories in hand-cast English pewter: a letter opener and a magnifying glass at $36.00 each, or $69.00 the set. The catalog also offers a Steinbach wooden Sherlock Holmes nutcracker (one of the leading contenders for the title of the most hideous Sherlockian artifact) at $98.00.
270. FORENSIC GEOLOGY, by Raymond C. Murray and John C. F. Tedrow, has a second edition (Englewood Cliffs: Prentice Hall, 1992; 203 pp., $52.00), revised to reflect developments in the science since the first edition appeared in 1975. The first chapter ("History--Sherlock Holmes to the Present") notes that the application of geology to criminalistics began, as did many of the other applications of science to this area, with the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and credits Sherlock Holmes with pointing the way for many of the ideas and techniques now used by forensic scientists.
271. Reported by John Bennett Shaw: UNREALITY: THE METAPHYSICS OF FICTIONAL OBJECTS (Cornell University Press, $26.50); with many Sherlockian and Doylean references.
272. Thanks to Tim O'Connor, there is more information about CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, the comic-book series that is now reprinting Dan and David Day's adaptations of the Canonical stories published by Renegade in the 1987 and 1988 (Jun 92 #4). The reprint series, published by Tome Press (a division of Caliber Press), has new (and more sedate) covers than the originals but offers all the inside artwork. Three issues have appeared, with "Scan" and "Musg" ($2.50 each) and "Nava" ($3.50). Their address is 621-B South Main Street, Plymouth, MI 48170.

273. Georgia Brown died on July 5. She was a splendid singer and actress, best known for her performances on stage as Jenny in ""The Threepenny Opera" and as Nancy in the musical "Oliver!", but she also appeared in two Sherlockian films: as a bawdy barroom singer in "A Study in Terror" (1965) and as Mrs. Freud in "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (1976).
274. The friendship between Harry Houdini and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and their shared interest in spiritualism, and their eventual bitter arguments about it, is a fascinating story, one that truly deserves a book, rather than the short accounts written by both men, and the brief discussions available in biographies. Sadly, BELIEVE., by William Shatner and Michael Tobias (New York: Berkley Books, 1992; 321 pp., $5.50), is not that book. The problem, basically, is that they've got so many things wrong. They're wrong about Houdini and Conan Doyle, about their personal lives and their professional lives. And it's not just the minor details that are wrong. Anyone who is even marginally familiar with what Houdini and Conan Doyle did, separately and together, will quickly recognize that this book is fiction. In justice to the authors, they freely acknowledge that in an authors' note, admitting that "most details that might have harbored even a shred of truth have been freely altered, embellished, imagined or altogether invented." As reported earlier (Jan 92 #6), there also is a script for a play ("Harry and Arthur") that Shatner (as Houdini) and Leonard Nimoy (as Conan Doyle) hope to star in, and they have been trying to find someone interested in producing it.
-
275. Jul 92 #3: SUPER SLEUTHS ($12.99 suggested retail) is a commercial videocassette in the "Chip 'n' Dale Rescue Rangers" series from Walt Disney Home Video; one of the two shows on the 44-minute cassette is "Pound of the Baskervilles" (produced in 1989), involving the Rescue Rangers in the search for the will of Howard Baskerville, author (using a pseudonym) of "The Adventures of Sherlock Jones".
276. Paulette Greene (7152 Via Palomar, Boca Raton, FL 33433) can still supply copies of her Sherlockian publications: Madeleine Stern's SHERLOCK HOLMES RARE BOOK COLLECTOR (1981) and SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE GAME'S A HEAD (1983), signed and in wrappers ($15.00 each); and Trevor Hall's THE LAST CASE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1986), in boards ($25.00).
277. "The Great Mouse Detective" is now out on videocassette, with a list price of $24.99, and (according to the manager of the Disney shop at a suburban mall here) no plans for tie-in merchandise other than the still-in-print book edition from Gallery Books. The film grossed $25.3 million when it was first released, and after the second release to theaters earlier this year had a total gross of almost $40 million. Disney's recent "Beauty and the Beast" grossed $119 million after only 17 weeks, so one can understand why Disney is down-playing Basil. And if you haven't already bought the cassette at your local video shop, Gary Thaden reports that it's available from Target at $15.88; they take plastic, and you can call 800-800-8800 to locate their nearest store.
278. Available from Thomas Biblewski: a chrome-plated lapel pin with a silhouette of Sherlock Holmes. $9.00 postpaid, from the Baker Street Dispatch, Box 5503, Toledo, OH 43613.
279. Reported by Ralph Hall (in a local Toys 'R' Us): a set of Norfin Trolls Playing Cards ($2.99), with the "Sherluck" troll (Oct 90 #3) on the five of diamonds (from the Fundex-Third Quarter Corp., Indianapolis, IN 46222); and the Geoffrey Magnifier ($0.99) with Geoffrey in S'ian costume (from the Hingham Corp., Kowloon, Hong Kong).
280. One of the more amusing aspects of book-collecting is that bookplates, used by collectors to proclaim ownership of their books, have themselves become collectibles (despite claims by purists that bookplates must be affixed to a book if they are to be considered more than mere labels). And it should of course not surprise anyone that there are more than a few Sherlockians who use S'ian bookplates, occasionally commercial productions but far more often specially-commissioned with S'ian themes. Vincent Starrett and Edgar W. Smith were among the earliest S'ians to have their own S'ian bookplates, and their designs (and many more) will be found in SHERLOCKIAN BOOKPLATES, by W. E. Butler (Cambridge: Silent Books, 1992; 57 pp., £8.95). Butler has cast his net widely, in the United States and Britain and on the continent, showing and discussing many examples of how much fun imaginative bookplates can be, and he includes a history of the "Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" ornatelyarmorial bookplate that was used by Adrian Conan Doyle in the books in his library at the Chateau de Lucens (and that has confused modern collectors who may not be aware that the bookplate does not necessarily indicate that a book was owned by Sir Arthur). The publisher's address is: Boxworth End, Swavesey, Cambridge CB4 5RA, England.
-
281. Jul 92 #4: "His favorite author was Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, but not on account of Sherlock Holmes, with his corpses in the fog, but on the strength of the sunlit pages of THE WHITE COMPANY, a novel of chivalry in which nobody pours boiling oil on anyone, except maybe Saracens, who don't count." From Wilfred Sheed's introduction to THE WORLD OF CHARLES Addams (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1991).
282. Discovered by Luci Zahray: James F. Jerger (Alice's Looking Glass (Box 974, Saugatuck, MI 49453) handcrafts Sherlock Holmes in stained glass. Designs, sizes, and colors to order, and prices range from $20 to $2,000. His latest panel (shown here from a photograph) measures about 22 x 28 inches, and was a commission assignment that cost less than $700. Jim's phone number is 616-857-2363.
283. The new reprint of THE EXPLOITS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Adrian Conan Doyle and John Dickson Carr (from Marboro's Dorset Press) is listed at $6.95 in the new catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011). The catalog also has ($3.95) Ruth Lake Tepper's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES CROSSWORD PUZZLE BOOK II (published by Norton); with summaries of twelve stories, accompanied by well-crafted puzzles (blurb as "new" but probably a reprint, since the book was first published in 1979).
284. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) has sent his new sales list; statues, comic strips, the Charlie McCarthy Spoon, etc. And Cathy Childs (1510 Lake Drive, Grand Island, FL 32735) offers a flier on her Sherlockian artwork.
285. Deen and Jay Kogan, who chaired Bouchercon in 1989, will chair the second annual Mid-Atlantic Mystery Book Fair and Convention at the Holiday Inn-Independence Mall in Philadelphia on Nov. 6-8. Advance registration costs $35.00, and additional information is available from the Kogans at Detecto-Mysterioso Books, 507 South 8th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19147.
286. Caliber's BAKER STREET #10 is now in the comic-book shops ($2.50), with the finale of the story "Children of the Night" (non-Sherlockian except for the title-page artwork taken from one of Sidney Paget's illustrations for "The Copper Beeches").
287. For those who missed the earlier report (Sep 91 #8), there's another source for the imaginative and amusing soft-sculpture Sherlockian jack-in-the-box: Aries Fine American Crafts (attn: Brenda L. Rizzo), Box 1702, Ogunquit, ME 03907; $70.00 plus shipping.
288. Further to the report (Sep 90 #3) that Steven Spielberg and Andrew Lloyd Webber were collaborating on a full-length animated film of "Cats", the latest news is that the two principals could not agree on how to proceed with the project, and that Spielberg's studio in London has laid off most of its staff. So it will be some time, at the very least, before we get to see an animated Macavity.
-
289. Jul 92 #5: The summer 1992 issue of The Armchair Detective has a detailed report on the January birthday festivities, by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond, and a nice tribute by Elizabeth Peters (aka Barbara Mertz and Barbara Michaels) to her series heroine Amelia Peabody Emerson (with an acknowledgement of her debt to the Canon). Quarterly at $26.00 a year; 129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.

290. Dee Snyder died on June 16. An avid miniaturist, she was the sparking-plug for The Mini Tonga Scion Society, founded in May 1979 and named in honor of the smallest man in the Canon. Dee was for many years the editor of the society's newsletter (The Tonga Times), and the many creators and keepers of miniature Sherlockian houses, rooms and other displays owe a great debt to Dee for her enthusiasm and energy.
291. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #17 is in the stores (at $11.00) with two 1946 Rathbone/Bruce radio shows ("The Living Doll" and "The Disappearing Scientists"). The introductions are by Peggy Webber (who worked on the series), and nicely done.
292. Forecast by Tim O'Connor (with caution, since many comic books don't keep to firm, or even infirm, schedules): SHERLOCK HOLMES: RETURN OF THE DEVIL #1, in Sept. from Malibu's Adventure Comics ($2.50); the first of a twopart series by Powell and Makinen. And a fourth CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, in Sept. from Caliber's Tome Press ($2.50); with a reprint of the Days' "The Adventure of the Copper Beeches". And SHERLOCK HOLMES: MYSTERY AND SUSPENSE #1, in July from Northstar's Arpad Publishing ($2.75); a pastiche written by Joe Gentile and illustrated by Phil Rittenhouse. The last title will be available custom-inscribed by Gentile (and by Rittenhouse if he is back from Japan in time) from AF Books, 47 East Lincoln Highway, Frankfort, IL 60423 ($3.75 postpaid).
293. Alistair Cooke will retire from American television at the end of the year. He has been the only host that "Masterpiece Theatre" has ever had in its 22 years on PBS-TV, but he won't be idle: "I've been promising my publisher a book for the past two years and I must get to it. The rest of my declining energies I want to devote to the thing I most love doing: the weekly BBC 'Letter from America'." Cooke also hosted the television series "Omnibus" on ABC-TV (they aired "The Fine Art of Murder" in 1956, with Dennis Hoey as Sir Arthur Conan Doyle), and he has written a Sherlockian parody "The Case of the November Sun-Tan" (D5869a). And in 1984 Jeremy Brett told Nicholas Utechin: "Alistair Cooke said to me about two years ago, 'The three most memorable men of the twentieth century so far are Winston Churchill, Adolf Hitler, and Sherlock Holmes.'"
294. It's not too late to register for Bouchercon XXIII, in Toronto on Oct. 8-11 (P.O. Box 23, Station S, Toronto, Ont. M5M 4L6, Canada). Bouchercon XXIV will be in Omaha on Oct. 1-3, 1993 (Little Professor Book Center, 13455 West Center Road, Omaha, NE 68144), and Bouchercon XXV will be in Seattle on Oct. 6-9, 1994 (Box 1095, Renton, WA 98057).
295. The Gleniffer Press microbook edition of THE THREE STUDENTS (Apr 92 #7 and May 92 #3) is now sold out, according to a report received by Syd Goldberg, but the proprietors note that "more Sherlock Holmes books are planned."
-
296. Jul 92 #6: A bibliographic query: John Bennett Shaw has noted a misprint in the first British edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES ("you" for "your" on page 13, line 3), and wonders whether this was caught and corrected (generating a variant in the first edition). Probably not, since the same misprint is found in a "new impression" published from the same plates by John Murray in 1918. But please let me know if anyone has a British issue earlier than 1918 that does not have this misprint.
297. Spotted by Andrew Jay Peck: a review of ANTICS! AN ALPHABETICAL ANTHOLOGY, written and illustrated by Cathi Hepworth (Putnam, $14.95; ages 4 and up); there are ants in all the alphabet words (and Holmes and Watson are shown as observ*ant* insects).
298. The appointment of Tina Brown (now editor of Vanity Fair) as the new editor of The New Yorker got a lot of publicity this month. Her executive editor will be Hendrik Hertzberg, who has been the editor of the New Republic, and who will be returning to The New Yorker, where he was a staff writer from 1969 to 1977. Hertzberg wrote their "Sherlockian Gathering" story (D1919b) about the Culinary Institute of America's grand gourmet dinner in 1976.
299. The 100th anniversary of Basil Rathbone's birth (in Johannesburg, on June 13, 1992) was commemorated by Robert Osborne in an article in the Hollywood Reporter, picked up by a few newspapers, and it probably would have pleased Rathbone that all the newspaper stories were accompanied by non-Sherlockian photos of him. But as Chris Steinbrunner noted in a tribute, years ago on WOR-TV, Rathbone *was* Sherlock Holmes. And he did "own" the role: how many actors have played the same part on stage, screen, radio, and television, as Basil Rathbone did with Sherlock Holmes?
300. Chris Redmond (523 Westfield Drive, Waterloo, Ont. N2T 2E1, Canada) offers copies of his THE TALE OF COPPERELLA, a well-written eight-page pamphlet issued in 1985 ("wherein are related the adventures of a sweet young lady, and also the doings of a noted detective"); $10.00 postpaid. Chris also publishes The Waterloo Sherlockian Letter, to which it is not possible to subscribe (but if you send him one or two dollar bills, he will send some back issues and will try to remember to send you the next one).
301. Ted Schulz is interested in expanding the list of books dedicated to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Richard Lancelyn Green has recorded eleven such books in an appendix to A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF A. CONAN DOYLE, and Ted has recorded others: A KISS FOR A KINGDOM, by Bernard Hamilton (1899); THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN, by Michael Crichton (1969); RAFFLES OF THE ALBANY, by Barry Perowne (1976); THE DISCONTENTED GHOST, by Scott Corbett (1978), PRISONER OF THE DEVIL, by Michael Hardwick (1980); and THE MUMMY, OR RAMSES THE DAMNED, by Anne Rice (1989). If you know of others, please let Ted know about them (his address is 17 Mount Lassen Drive, San Rafael, CA 94903).
302. Alfred Drake died on July 25. His fine voice made him a star in musicals on stage, screen, and television, and as president of The Players he not only attended the BSI's annual dinner in 1971, but delivered a paper that Julian Wolff noted revealed Drake to be a real Sherlockian scholar.
-
303. Aug 92 #1: Does anyone know anything about The Veiled Lodgers of Minneapolis, Minn.? The June issue of Explorations (the newsletter of the Norwegian Explorers of Minnesota) has a brief report on Allen Mackler's discovery of a small medallion with a portrait of Holmes and the name of the society. If you have any information about such a medallion, or about the society, please write to Allen (324 2nd Street NE, Osseo, MN 55369).
304. And the Norwegian Explorers offer a flier with preliminary details on their workshop on "Sherlock Holmes's Victorian Criminal Classes" on June 11-13, 1993. Write to the society at: O. M. Wilson Library #466, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
305. Further to the earlier mention (Jan 92 #6) of Books Britain, their address now is 245 West 104th Street, New York, NY 10025. Their mail-order sales list specializes in books that were sources for "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mystery!" and many of them are imports not found in book shops.
306. If you thought that "Sherlock Holmes and the Prince of Crime" (broadcast by CBS-TV on Aug. 1) was familiar, it was: the working title was "Napoleon of Crime" in 1989, changed to "Hands of a Murderer" when it first aired on May 16, 1990. But this time, at least, there was no gap in the broadcast (as there was in 1990).
307. Mollie Hardwick, who shared credit with her late husband Michael on many of their Sherlockians books and scripts, is a fine writer herself, and has a new mystery series now being published here by Fawcett Crest in paperback.
308. MALICE DOMESTIC features Doran Fairweather, an antiques dealers who lives in a small village in Kent, and PARSON'S PLEASURE will continue the series this fall.
309. Pattie Brunner has a reasonably reliable report on which story Granada will do next: a two-hour version of "The Noble Bachelor" (with filming to start in September). At that length they might be able to include some Apaches in Arizona (or New Mexico, if one believes the Sage of Santa Fe). Perhaps on

- location (and why not: they went to Malta to film the Indian scenes for "The Sign of Four"). Well, in reality distant locations are unlikely, what with Granada's current decision to hold down production costs.
310. The quarterly magazine Scarlet Street continues to offer fine coverage of the Granada series: the summer 1992 issue includes David Stuart Davies' onlocation report (with photographs) about "The Sussex Vampire" (filmed in the Cotswolds, with Roy Marsden in the supporting cast, playing a character that's not in the Canon), and an interview with Jeremy Paul (who wrote the script). The broadcast title still is not certain: it was "The Vampire of Lamberley" for a while, and then "The Last Vampyre". $18.00 a year, from R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666.
311. The latest catalog from Cerebro (Box 1221, Lancaster, PA 17603) is full of cigar-box labels, including two "Sherlock Holmes" items: an inner-lid label (about 9 x 6 inches) at $25.00, and an outer label (about 4 inches square) at $18.00. Their telephone number is 800-695-2235, and they take plastic.
-
312. Aug 92 #2: Pattie Brunner reports THE DISNEY AFTERNOON, an audio-cassette (Disney 60810-0) with songs from four of their animated television series, including the "Chip 'n' Dale's Rescue Rangers" theme song, which includes a mention of Sherlock Holmes. Also DEEP IN THE JUNGLE, by Joe Scruggs (Shadow Play Records BNS 913) with songs for children, one song being "Aunt Lucy" (which has an imaginative Sherlockian verse).
313. "Black magic fear as fire destroys the Church of the Baskervilles." That was the headline on a story in the Daily Mail on July 22, reporting on a fire in the 12th-century Holy Trinity church at Buckfastleigh, where the infamous Richard Cabell lived. The vicar is suspicious, according to the paper, because the fire started at the altar, and because his predecessor had once found a couple about to perform a satanic dance after painting a circle on the church floor. Cabell's tomb outside the church, "a place of pilgrimage for Sherlock Holmes fans from all over the world," apparently escaped the conflagration. Additional newspaper reports, supplied by Jon Lellenberg, were a bit less sensationalized.
314. Spotted by Pat Elrod in Science Fiction Chronicle (May 1992): Avon Books has bought Roger Zelazny's A NIGHT IN THE LONESOME OCTOBER, a fantasy novel with interior illustrations by Gahan Wilson. The book is narrated by a dog who is a companion to someone who may or may not be Jack the Ripper, the action takes place in late-19th-century England, and there are Mummy-like, Dracula-like, and Sherlock Holmes-like characters.
315. It sometimes seems as though there is a new computer product every week, or at least an announcement one that will be available "real soon now." But Sony's "Data Discman" does exist, in Britain at least: it's a pocket-size "electronic book" that plays 3-inch compact discs and displays text on a small screen. and the list price is £350. One of the first discs available offers 150 books, including the Sherlock Holmes stories.
316. The "higher criticism" of the early Sherlockians has long been honored, and sought-after by collectors, and occasionally extended by modern scholars. In the latest issue of the Sherlock Holmes Klubben i Danmark's newsletter Sherlockiana (now in its 37th year), Svend Ranild has reprinted a letter from The Times (Jan. 7, 1892): "Sir,—There is much vagueness and confusion on the subject of the higher criticism. The term is freely used and but little understood. On the one side it is gloried in as triumphant; on the other side, it is feared as destructive. Few of those who write about it seem much acquainted with it."
317. The Sherlock Holmes Memorabilia Company (230 Baker Street, London NW1 5RT, England) offers a handsomely-illustrated catalog of Sherlockiana available in its shop and by mail order. Posters, postcards, pipes, statues, prints, T-shirts, games, mugs, plates, etc. The proprietors owned an estate agency in Baker Street, and used the Sherlockian image in its promotions, and are now in the memorabilia business as well (and they still rent apartments).
318. Articles about the release of "The Great Mouse Detective" on cassette last month suggest that distributors expect to sell about five million copies at $24.95 each. The $124.75 million gross from the cassette will be more than three times the total gross from two releases of the film to theaters.
-
319. Aug 92 #3: THE BOER CONSPIRACY: A TALE OF WINSTON CHURCHILL AND SHERLOCK HOLMES is a pastiche written by John C. Woods (International Churchill Societies, 1992; 88 pp., $15.00 postpaid), involving Holmes and Watson in an attempt to thwart an assassination of Winston Churchill, who in 1900 had just returned from South Africa and was about to embark on his political career. Available from the International Churchill Society of the U.S. (attn: Richard M. Langworth), Putney House, Hopkinton, NH 03229.
320. Cathi Hepworth's imaginative ANTICS! AN ALPHABETICAL ANTHOLOGY (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1992; 30 pp., $14.95) is an amusing alphabet book for adults as well as for children. Ants are in all the words, and they are appropriately in Sherlockian costume for observ*ant*.
321. This year's "Autumn in Baker Street" will be held at the Tarrytown Hilton in Tarrytown, N.Y., on Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, and will feature a dinner and a gasfitter's ball (in costume, since it's Halloween), plus the traditional (and some untraditional) speakers and other events. A flier is available from Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
322. An article in the Wall Street Journal (July 29) reported on problems the Disney Channel is having with some of Disney's older cartoons: a Pecos Bill cartoon from the late 1940s has been edited so that Bill no longer smokes a cigarette, and other "unsuitable" bits have been excised from other films. "The Great Mouse Detective" is scheduled to air soon, but Disney Channel president John Cooke said that no decision had been made so far about what to do about scenes in which Basil smokes his pipe.
323. A mail-order catalog from Cash's of Ireland (Box 158, Plainview, NY 11803) offers a "Sherlock Holmes Pub" music box ("a delightful reproduction of the real-life pub mentioned in 'The Hound of the Baskervilles'") that opens to play "The First Noel" at $79.00 plus shipping (item 745706). The toll-free telephone number is 800-223-8100, and they take plastic.
324. Richard R. Rutter, who has as much fun in the world of Oz as he does in the world of Sherlock Holmes, has prepared a revised and annotated reprint of a pastiche first published in the July 1982 issue of Shadows of the Gnomon. THE ANNOTATED ADVENTURE OF THE RYE BALLOONIST (10 pp.) is available from the author (1620 Granada Drive, Burlingame, CA 94010); $6.00 postpaid.
325. The summer 1992 issue the Sherlock Holmes Gazette (spring 1992) continues the 40-page format, with in-depth coverage of the Granada series, a fine interview with Dame Jean Conan Doyle, a tribute to Basil Rathbone, and a letter from Catherine Cooke reporting on actors (other than Jeremy Brett) who have portrayed Sherlock Holmes being kissed. The publisher is Theme Publications, 43 Bowleaze Coveaway, Weymouth, Dorset DT3 6PL, England, and the cost is £21.00 for four issues (they take plastic).
326. The Northstar/Arpad comic book SHERLOCK HOLMES: TALES OF MYSTERY & SUSPENSE #1 is now in the shops ($2.75), with "The Satherwaite Horror" (story by Joe Gentile and art by Phil Rittenhouse). Gentile notes that "the new creative team all hail from the Chicagoland area (the underground Holmes capital of the U.S.)," and promises that in succeeding issues "all your favorites will eventually be making appearances (yes, even Toby the wonder hound)."
-
327. Aug 92 #4: Brian and Charlotte Erickson (Sherlock's Corner, 1029 Judson Drive, Mountain View, CA 94040) offer their first mail-order catalog, with large and small Sherlockian shadow boxes, jigsaw puzzles, needlepoint and clay ornaments, comic books, and other collectibles.
328. Some reasonably authoritative statistics: according to the postal service, the USPS handles 540 million pieces of mail a day, delivering to 92 million households and 7 million businesses. According to TV Guide, 98 percent of the households have at least one television set, 77 percent have VCRs, 35 percent have CD players, and 33 percent have computers.

329. "Yes, I am Sherlock Holmes and you must be my new assistant; your name is Watson, you like to eat Ho-Ho's, you hail from America, you have a drinking problem, you voted for Gerald Ford, your favorite film is 'Shanghai Surprise, you fantasize about Madonna because you've never had any women in your life, and unless I miss my guess, you listen to Barry Manilow,' said Sherlock and I knew right away I'd hate working for him." The author is Bill Bystricky, of Sunnyvale, Calif., and his was the winning entry in the "detective" category in the 10th annual Bulwer-Lytton Fiction Contest, as reported by the Associated Press in May (and spotted by Ray Rawlings).
330. Donald K. Pollock (19 Putnam Street, Buffalo, NY 14213) welcomes enquiries from anyone interested in purchasing a copy of the Royal Doulton "Sherlock Holmes" Toby Jug that was issued in 1981 to honor the 50th anniversary of Conan Doyle's death.
331. Plan ahead: WGBH-TV plans to broadcast "The Master Blackmailer" on Mar. 25, 1993, according to their press release (at hand from Craig Moore) for "The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax" on Aug. 27. One can only hope that there won't be a political convention ongoing on Mar. 25, 1993 (all of the PBS-TV stations in Washington spent Aug. 27 broadcasting from Houston).
332. Spotted by Ted Schulz: THE BERENSTAIN BEARS PUZZLES (Racine: Western Publishing, 1991; 64 pp.); A Golden Book, with the front cover showing the Bear Detectives in deerstalkers.
333. The Sir Arthur Conan Doyle pub in York Place in Edinburgh, gutted by fire 18 months ago, is now being refurbished (according to a newspaper item at hand from Jon Lellenberg). Tennants Taverns hope to be able to reopen the pub in December or early January. Another article reports that there will be a Conan Doyle Exhibition at Haydon, Radstock (near Bath), keyed to his frequent visits to Dunkerton Rectory, where his sister and brother-in-law, the Reverend and Mrs. Angell lived ("The Adventure of Shoscombe Old Place" was written during one of those visits).
334. And Leslie Bricusse's "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" (which had a brief run starring Ron Moody in the West End in 1989) will be revived, with Robert Powell as Holmes and Roy Barraclough as Watson. The show will tour for six months starting in Mar. 1993, playing 26 theaters in Britain, and then try the West End again. Powell was supposed to play Holmes in the musical at the Chichester Festival Theatre in 1987, but the production was postponed because he had a conflicting commitment; Barraclough is well-known as the landlord of the Rovers Return in "Coronation Street".
-
335. Aug 92 #5: Granada's Michael Cox will be a featured guest at the Sherlock Holmes Review's third Sherlockian symposium, which will be held on Nov. 21-22 at the Omni Severn Hotel in Indianapolis, and other speakers listed include Ed Lauterbach, Paul Herbert, Bill Cochran, Ely Liebow, and Tom and Ruthann Stetak. A flier with more information is available from Steven T. Doyle (Box 583, Zionsville, IN 46077).
336. Dr. Fatso has not yet completed the last chapter of his memoirs of the most spasmodic and tangential man he has ever known, but admirers of the work of the Pequod Press and its proprietor will welcome BYE BYE BIRDY, a new book of quartets (most new, but with a few reprints) devoted to "The Valley of Fear". The cost is $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper), from John Ruyle (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521).
337. If you've been having trouble finding the cassette or the compact disc with Patrick Gower's music for the Granada "Sherlock Holmes" series, Andy Fusco reports that both are offered in the latest catalog sent to members of the Musical Heritage Society (Box 1408, Asbury Park, NJ 07712).
338. And Jon Lellenberg reports that The Folio Society is planning to publish a five-volume set of the Sherlock Holmes short stories in June 1993, with an introduction by Peter Cushing and illustrations by Francis Mosely. Price not yet set, but estimated at $170 for the set. The society's books are sold only to members, and the address is 202 Great Suffolk Street, London SE1 1PR, England.
339. Further to the report (Jun 92 #6) on Stuart Kaminsky's OPENING SHOTS (with a reprint of his Sherlockian pastiche "The Final Toast"), Andrew Jay Peck reports that there also is a hard-cover edition, at $25.00 (as well as the paperback edition, which costs $4.95 postpaid). The publisher is Mystery Scene Press, Box 1227, Eugene, OR 97440.
340. SKEWED SHERLOCK is a delightful collection of Sherlockian essays written by a pseudonymous Miss Violet Hunter (allegedly an elderly lady who lives in somewhat straitened but genteel circumstances in the Hamptons), accompanied by comments and appendices by David L. Hammer, and illustrations by Jeff Decker. The essays are well-written, and occasionally iconoclastic, and the book has just been published by the Gasogene Press, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001-1041 (92 pp., $15.70 postpaid).
341. Al Rosenblatt reports that the Fordham University Press edition of DINING WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES, written by Julia Carlson Rosenblatt and Frederic H. Sonnenschmidt, has been discounted, and is now available (item RS2718) for $13.25 (plus shipping) from Cahill & Co., Box 39, Federalsburg, MD 21632 (800-462-3955); they take plastic. This is the best of all the Sherlockian cookbooks, and recommended. Cahill also offers the current Doubleday onevolume edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES (items AD6896) at $15.75.
342. Ralph Hall has reported a series of hardback children's books by Anthony Tallarico, published by Kidsbooks and all with at least one Sherlockian figure in the artwork. The titles include: HUNT FOR HECTOR; WHAT'S WRONG HERE? AT THE MOVIES; LOOK FOR LISA: TIME TRAVELER; WHERE ARE THEY? DETECT DONALD; SEARCH FOR SYLVESTER; and FIND FREDDIE AROUND THE WORLD.
-
343. Aug 92 #6 Michael R. Pitts has long been an energetic filmographer, and the only reason that his earlier FAMOUS MOVIE DETECTIVES (1979) did not have a separate chapter on Sherlock Holmes was that Ron Haydock's DEERSTALKER! SHERLOCK HOLMES ON SCREEN had just been published. But there is a chapter on Holmes (and a good one) in Pitts' FAMOUS MOVIE DETECTIVES II (Methuchen: Scarecrow Press, 1991; 349 pp., $47.50), with good coverage of television films as well as theatrical releases, and up-to-date through Michael Caine's "Without a Clue". There are chapters on more than a dozen other detectives, and briefer discussion of many more, and the book will be a fine reference work for those interested in detective films.
344. Two out of three isn't all that bad. Dave Galerstein spotted a report in USA Today (Aug. 11) on politicians and cormorants (untrained). Protected by a U.S.-Canada migratory bird treaty, double-crested cormorants nesting on Little Galloo Island in Lake Ontario are being blamed for sharp losses by the local fishing industry. State fish-stocking programs are described as just "meals on wheels" for cormorants by a local fishing guide, worried that without controls on the cormorants the lake "will be one big swimming pool." In nearby Ohio, on the other hand, wildlife officials are bragging about the first double-crested cormorant pair to rise young there in more than a century.
345. Steve Szilagyi's PHOTOGRAPHING FAIRIES (New York: Ballantine Books, 1992; 321 pp., $18.00) is an imaginative and well-written novel, inspired by the Cottingley fairies and the two young girls whose photographs were earnestly defended by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in England in the 1920s. But Szilagyi's novel is in no way a fictionalized account of the actual events; rather it is firmly based on the assumption that fairies do exist, and it deals with an attempt by an American photographer to demonstrate their existence. The story begins with the photographer in a prison cell, condemned and waiting to be hanged the next day for murder, and offering an account of the events of the previous four months. It was during those four months that he first was shown photographs of fairies, in his London studio, and met Sir Arthur and his daughter Mary in their Psychic Bookshop, and then traveled to rural England in a pursuit that involves him with a fine collection of inventive and amusing characters. It should be noted that Sir Arthur and Mary Conan Doyle are only incidental characters in a work of fantasy, but the fantasy is neatly contrived and well-executed.
346. Ben Wood has announced publication of SHERLOCKIAN CLIP-ART (41 pp., with 388 illustrations), described as a "handy resource packet" for editors of Sherlockian publications. $12.50 postpaid from Ben, at Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.

347. The story of the meeting between Arthur Conan Doyle and Charlie Chaplin has been told by many, but the source is never reported. Here is the original, in Conan Doyle's own words, discovered by Jennie Paton in a report in the N.Y. Times (Dec. 7, 1925) about Sir Arthur's speech at the annual dinner of the Savage Club in London the previous evening. "At one theatre," he said, "they had a boy playing the page in 'Sherlock Holmes'. If I had said to him 'we will go halves for all our lives,' I should have made a great deal, for that little boy was Charlie Chaplin." It should be noted that Conan Doyle did not say that he actually had met Chaplin.
-
348. Aug 92 #7-8: Further to the query (Apr 92 #8) about the smallest set of yes-or-no questions that can identify all the sixty recorded stories, it should be noted that the query specified a set (rather than a series) of questions. The distinction is important an important one, since it is impractical (although not impossible) to follow the format actually used in the "Twenty Questions" game, wherein the answers to questions can be taken into account when devising later questions. There are two ways to approach the problem.
349. One approach (and certainly the easiest one) is based on the titles of the stories (Chris Redmond specifies the commonly-used American short titles, and proposes eleven questions):
1. Does the story title contain the letter B?
  2. Does the story title contain the letter C?
  3. Does the story title contain the letter D?
  4. Does the story title contain the letter F?
  5. Does the story title contain the letter L?
  6. Does the story title contain the letter M?
  7. Does the story title contain the letter N?
  8. Does the story title contain the letter O?
  9. Does the story title contain the letter P?
  10. Does the story title contain the letter R?
  11. Does the story title contain the letter V?
350. This approach is "mechanical" (in that one need know only the titles of the stories, and nothing about the actual cases). And Brad Keefauver proposes an even shorter list of mechanical questions (and his list satisfies the theoretical minimum of six questions):
1. Abbe, Bery, Blac, Blan, Blue, Bosc, Bruc, Card, Chas, Copp, Cree, Croo, Danc, Devi, Dyin, Empt, Engr, Fina, Five, Glor, Gold, Gree, Houn, Iden, Illu, Lady, Last, Lion, Maza, or Miss?
  2. Abbe, Bery, Blac, Bruc, Card, Chas, Danc, Devi, Dyin, Five, Glor, Gold, Illu, Lady, Last, Musg, Nava, Nobl, RedH, Reig, Resi, Shos, Sign, Silv, Stoc, Stud, Suss, 3Stu, Twis, or Vall?
  3. Abbe, Blac, Blue, Card, Copp, Croo, Danc, Dyin, Engr, Glor, Gree, Iden, Illu, Last, Maza, Nava, Norw, RedC, RedH, Resi, Scan, Sign, SixN, Spec, Stoc, Suss, 3Gab, Twis, Veil, or Yell?
  4. Abbe, Bery, Bosc, Bruc, Card, Croo, Danc, Devi, Fina, Five, Glor, Iden, Lion, Maza, Miss, Musg, Nava, RedC, RedH, Reig, Seco, Shos, Sign, Spec, Stoc, Stud, 3Gar, Veil, Wist, or Yell?
  5. Abbe, Blan, Bruc, Copp, Danc, Dyin, Empt, Fina, Five, Gold, Free, Iden, Last, Miss, Musg, Norw, RedH, Resi, Reti, Seco, Shos, Silv, SixN, Spec, Stoc, Suss, Thor, 3Gar, Vall, or Yell?
  6. Abbe, Bery, Blan, Blue, Five, Glor, Gold, Gree, Houn, Iden, Illu, Lady, Last, Lion, Maza, Miss, Musg, Nava, Norw, Prio, Stoc, Stud, Thor, 3Gab, 3Stu, Twis, Vall, Veil, Wist, or Yell?
351. The set of six questions will work quite efficiently if one also uses the elegant one-page key that Brad has devised and tucked away in his computer, and he has kindly offered to print out and mail the key on request. Write to Brad Keefauver, 1421 West Shenandoah Drive, Peoria, IL 61614.
352. It would be more elegant, certainly, to have a set of "natural" questions, in which the questions deal with the actual cases, rather than merely with the titles of the stories. And that is not an easy problem to solve, as is demonstrated by the fact that no one (so far) has proposed a list that has only natural questions. The closest approach, again from Brad Keefauver, contains eight questions:
1. Was the story published before 1904?
  2. Does the story have a number, color, or proper name in the title?
  3. Does the main plot involve a murder?
  4. Does the case occur primarily in London?
  5. Was an attractive woman involved in the case?
  6. Does the Christ four-letter code for the title begin with a letter from the first half of the alphabet?
  7. Does an animal figure prominently in the case?
  8. Were Lestrade, Forbes, Baynes, Wilson, Coventry, or Bardle on the case?
353. Well, the second and sixth questions are mechanical, and the first question deals with the dates of publication of the stories, rather than with what happens in the cases, but five of the eight questions do require knowledge of the natural world of the Canon. Brad acknowledges that a couple of his other questions are rather subjective, and that's true indeed. Readers may wish to devise a better set of questions, not necessarily limited to eight, that deal only with the events or places or people or things in the Canon.
-
354. And here's a comic strip by Alex Graham from the [London] Daily Mail that was published in the American papers on Mar. 21, 1992):
-
355. Sep 92 #1: Plan well ahead. "Victorian Sleuth to Modern Hero: The Mysterious Journey of Sherlock Holmes" is be the theme of a conference sponsored by The Baker Street Breakfast Club at Bennington College on June 23-26, 1994 (which is, of course, the centenary year of Arthur Conan Doyle's visit to Vermont). Write to Sally Sugarman (Box 407, Shaftsbury, VT 05262) if you would like to be on their mailing list for detailed information.
356. Jennie C. Paton (206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458) offers an unused commercial videocassette (from MCA Home Video) of the 1976 film "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (ideal for those who aren't satisfied with off-the-air broadcast quality), for $45.95 postpaid.
357. Some comic-book forecasts from Tim O'Connor: SHERLOCK HOLMES: RETURN OF THE DEVIL #2, from Malibu's Adventure Comics ($2.50); the second of a two-part series by Powell and Makinen (the first issue was forecast for Sept.). And THE LAST CASE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #1, from Magic Comics ($2.50); the first of a three-part series. And COMICS FOR KIDS #1, from Parody Press ($2.50); with reprints of the Sunday "Slylock Fox" strips by Bob Weber, Jr. And it is possible that FUNKY WINTERBEAN/LUANN #1, from Parody Press ($2.50) will reprint some of Tom Batiuk's pun-filled S'ian "Funky Winterbean" strips. Finally, there will be a new printing from Tor Books of Fred Saberhagen's pastiche THE HOLMES-DRACULA FILE (first published in 1978).

358. The 15th annual Kennedy Center Honors will be presented on Dec. 5, and will recognize the life-long artistic achievements of six performers, including Joanne Woodward, who played Dr. Watson in the film "They Might Be Giants" (1971), and Ginger Rogers, who won an Academy Award for best actress in the role of Kitty Foyle in the 1940 film based on Christopher Morley's novel.
359. Peter Greenaway, who won considerable critical acclaim for the film "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover", earlier wrote and directed "The Draughtsman's Contract", which was produced by the British Film Institute in association with Channel Four, and starred Anthony Higgins and Janet Suzman. The film was released in 1983 and is available here on cassette from MGM/United Artists, and it is a tale of sexual gamesmanship and murder set in 1649. And, if only to demonstrate how far a Sherlockian net can be cast, the film was made on location at Groombridge Place, and shows to good advantage the house that was the inspiration for Birlstone Manor.
360. There are solve-the-mystery weekends at hotels, and similar excursions on trains and afloat, and Sherlock Holmes is one of the characters involved in "The Game's Afoot, Mon!" (from Ft. Lauderdale through the Caribbean on the Holland-America Line's M.S. Westerdam on Apr. 24-May 1, 1993). Details are available from Omni Group Cruises, 7033 Sunset Boulevard #214, Hollywood, CA 90028 (800-876-6664).
361. I can't remember who asked me about a British film called "The Wild and the Willing" (1962), released in the United States in 1964 with the new title "Young and Willing" (and described by Leslie Halliwell as a "watchable sex comedy"); the film wasn't the first in which Jeremy Brett appeared, but he shared billing with John Hurt, Ian McShane, and Samantha Eggar.
-
362. Sep 92 #2: Martha Hudson had a foster son. She married Jonathan Kent of Smallville, and their foster child was the son of Jor-El and Lara Lor-Van of Krypton, better known as Superman, whose demise this year at the hands of DC Comics may or may not be final. Bill Rabe has reported that Jerry Siegel, one of the inventors of Superman, was a member of The Baker Street Irregulars of Honolulu in 1944-1946.
363. Those (and only those) who managed to survive the second ten-kilometer "Holmes Peak Volksmarch" sponsored by the Holmes Peak Preservation Society and the Green Country Wander-Freunde of Tulsa in Nov. 1990 were presented with an attractive medal commemorating the occasion. Changes in the rules have now allowed the 15 remaining medals to be sold, and the proceeds will benefit the Baker Street Irregulars' John H. Watson Fund and the Holmes Peak Preservation Society's Holmes Peak Roadside Marker Fund. The medals are in pewter-colored metal (the triangle measures two inches at the base), and the ribbons are blue. Cost: $25.00 postpaid, from Head Sherpa Dick Warner, 3168 South Rockford Drive, Tulsa, OK 74105.
364. The third Simon & Schuster Audio gift set of THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES will be released in Oct., in plenty of time for Christmas shoppers. The set will offer vols. 9-12 of the audiocassettes with the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows, and will cost $25.00.
365. Forecast: THE WHITECHAPEL HORRORS, by Edward B. Hanna (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1992; 400 pp., $19.95), due in Oct., with Holmes and Watson again in pursuit of Jack the Ripper.
366. Further to the note (Aug 92 #5) on the Kidbooks series by Anthony Tallarico with Sherlockian figures in the artwork, Ralph Hall reports two additional titles: WHERE'S WENDY (1992) and I DIDN'T KNOW THAT ABOUT STRANGE BUT TRUE MYSTERIES (1992).
367. And further to the note (Aug 92 #2) on the availability of a disc with the Canon for Sony's "Data Discman" (a pocket-size "electronic book"), Mickey Fromkin reports that everything also is available in the U.S., and at much lower cost. The Canon is part of the "Library of the Future" (released in 1991 on a CD-ROM disc).
368. Roger Johnson reports in The District Messenger that Granada, having ended work on "The Last Vampyre" (which was filmed in Gloucestershire rather than Sussex), has cast Simon Williams as Lord Robert St. Simon in their two-hour version of "The Noble Bachelor" (Williams was James Bellamy in the series "Upstairs, Downstairs").
369. A conference on "Tennyson and the End of Empire" will be held on Oct. 14 at Central State Univ. in Wilberforce, Ohio, and the afternoon session (at the Greene County Library in Xenia) will include papers by Clare Simmons, Roy Pilot, and Robert F. Fleissner on connections between Tennyson and Conan Doyle (via Malory and Shakespeare). Additional information is available from Robert F. Fleissner, 367 East Cassily Street, Springfield, OH 45503.
-
370. Sep 92 #3: A reminder from Richard R. Rutter that Rodney Engen's RICHARD DOYLE is still available. Published by the Catalpa Press, the 206-page book covers the life and work of ACD's artist uncle, who designed the traditional cover of Punch and as a freelance illustrator and painter contributed to a long list of books and magazines. The book is distributed by Oak Knoll Books (414 Delaware Street, New Castle, DE 19720); the cost is $35.00 plus shipping, and they take plastic.
371. Bartlett D. Simms ("Professor Coram") died on Aug. 27. Bart discovered the world of Sherlockians in the 1960s, and his first Sherlockian article was a report on "Dr. Watson: An Adventure in Orthopedics" in The ACA Journal of Chiropractic (Feb. 1970). He also contributed to the BSI, and received his BSI investiture in 1974, and was an enthusiastic member of the Sherlockian societies in and near St. Louis.
372. The world is changing, slowly but surely. Nielsen has announced that one Nielsen rating point now represents 931,000 television households, so they figure that there are 93.1 million television households in the U.S. (up from 92.1 million). "Mystery!" on PBS-TV has a rating well under 5 points.
373. Computerized Sherlockian societies continue to appear in the world of bits and bytes, the latest being The Hound of the Internet, administered by Alan J. Block, who can be reached at BLOCKA@BELOIT.EDU (which, for people who are not computerized, is the sort of address that is used by people who use the Internet telephone network).
374. If you haven't received the catalog from the Sherlock Holmes Memorabilia Company (Aug 92 #2), copies are available on request, from Robert C. Hess, 559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718.
375. Stephen Fry, who portrayed a delightful Jeeves on PBS-TV (as well as other characters on "Blackadder") and who can occasionally be seen on Bravo (in "A Bit of Fry and Laurie"), also is a fine humorist in print. PAPERWEIGHT (London: Heinemann, 1992; 470 pp., £14.99) is a welcome collection of his work for magazines and newspapers (and radio); two pieces, reprinted from 1987 issues of The Listener, are of particular interest: a review of Martin Gardner's THE ANNOTATED INNOCENCE OF FATHER BROWN (in which Fry notes that as a schoolboy he was the youngest member of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London), and a Sherlockian pastiche called "The Adventure of the Laughing Jarvey" (which Fry has edited only by "trimming back the typically profuse growth of commas and semicolons familiar to scholars of the Canon").
376. Joanne Zahorsky reports a source for a 16-inch clay pipe (for anyone who wants to emulate some of Sherlock Holmes' smoking habits), priced at $4.95 in a catalog from Theatre House, Box 2090, Covington, KY 41012-2090 (800-827-2414); they take plastic.
377. This year's Christmas card from the The Sherlock Holmes Society of London shows a view of the London poor at their Christmas marketing near Waterloo Station in the 1870s (as shown on the last page of the Sept. issue of the BSI). The price for a packet of ten cards and envelopes, postpaid to North America, is $10.00 (checks payable to the Society, and sent to Capt. W. R. Michell, 5 Old Farm Place, Hinton St. George, Somerset TA17 8TW, England).
-

378. Sep 92 #4: One does hear of Sherlock everywhere, and sometimes others from the Canon. John McAleer, in a review in the Chicago Tribune of Donna Tartt's THE SECRET HISTORY (New York: Knopf, 1992; 524 pp., $23.00), notes that the novel deals with a band of scholarly misfits, one of whom is described in the book as "a sort of Mycroft Holmes of classical philology."
379. The Baker Street Pages are offering a new Sherlockian T-shirt, designed by John Brousch, and an illustrated flier is available from Tim O'Connor, 6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941.
380. An article in the Coulsdon and Purley Advertiser (Sept. 4), at hand from Jon Lellenberg, reports that the house at 12 Tennyson Road, South Norwood, London, is for sale, for £350,000. It was the home of Arthur Conan Doyle from 1891 to 1893, and it has been converted for use as a residential care home (with a planning application pending). The house has ten rooms that could be used as bedrooms for residents, and three bathrooms, one of which is ensuite. And the ground floor has a cloakroom and shower room, communal lounge, dining room, breakfast room, and fully fitted kitchen. And there's a front drive, and a 200-foot rear garden. Interested purchasers may apply to Phillip Hickman and Partners Estate Agents, in Croydon.
381. Another article from Jon notes a production of a new musical at the Bingley Arts Centre in Bingley (west of Leeds, in Yorkshire) in August. Written by John Leaver and Mark Rundle, and based on the Cottingley fairies hoax, the show tells "the tales of the real-live girls' escapades plus the adventures of the fairies who really do live at the bottom of their garden."
382. Copies of Dick Lesh's reduced-facsimile reprint of L. C. Hopkins' parody "The Weirdly Thrilling Adventure of the Lost Bathing Suit" (from the Nov. 1908 issue of Uncle Remus's The Home Magazine) are still available from Richard D. Lesh (1205 Lory Street, Fort Collins, CO 80524); high-quality paper and bound in boards, at $25.00 postpaid.
383. Great Britain has issued a set of stamps marking the beginning of the Civil War that resulted in the execution of Charles I and in the installation of Oliver Cromwell as Lord Protector. Also known as the Great Rebellion (and it was at the time of the Great Rebellion that the Manor of Baskerville was held by Hugo of that name), the conflict is also recalled in the Canonical accounts of events at the Manor House of Birlstone (where Charles was concealed for several days, and which was taken by a Parliamentary colonel in 1644) and at the Manor House of Hurlstone (where coins of Charles the First and a battered and shapeless diadem were found).
-
384. Sep 92 #5: CONAN DOYLE'S TALES OF MEDICAL HUMANISM AND VALUES, edited and annotated by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key, will be published later this year by the Krieger Publishing Co., according to a publisher's flier sent by Al Rodin. The book will include the stories in ROUND THE RED LAMP, six other medical short stories, and an address on medicine delivered by ACD 1910. The pre-publication price is $42.50, plus shipping; they take plastic, and the publisher's address is Box 9542, Melbourne, FL 32902-9542.
385. Welcome news for newcomers to the Canon, and for those who need a new copy: William S. Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES has been reissued by Outlet Books (a division of Random House) in one volume, cloth bound, at $29.99.
386. Ralph Hall (2906 Wallingford Court, Louisville, KY 40218) offers his sales list of more than a hundred items of Sherlockiana.
387. Pattie Brunner reports that the new catalog from Bits & Pieces offers a new 1500-piece "Sherlock Holmes's Stumper" jigsaw puzzle (item #03-H0423) that includes allusions to 29 of the stories (item #03-H0423), for $17.95 (plus shipping). The address is 1 Puzzle Place (B8016), Stevens Point, WI 54481 (800-544-7297), and they take plastic. The catalog has a "Puzzle Corner" challenge: if you order by phone, and give the correct answer ("Sherlock Holmes's Stumper" and the item number), you'll win a small prize.
388. Charlton Heston's "The Crucifer of Blood" (broadcast on TNT cable on Nov. 4, 1991) has been released on laserdisc by Image Entertainment (9333 Oso Avenue, Chatsworth, CA 91311); 103 min., $29.95 suggested retail.
389. There are a few other Sherlockian films and television programs available on laserdiscs: Basil Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939), "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939), "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" (1943), "The Woman in Green" (1945), "Terror by Night" (1946), and "Dressed to Kill" (1946); Peter Cushing's "The Masks of Death" (1984); and Jeremy Brett's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1988). And Wallace Beery's "The Lost World" (1925). Does anyone know of any others?
390. Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine continues its long tradition of Sherlockian content: the Dec. 1992 issue offers Dixie J. Whitted's "Detectiverse: Debt Blow" (on p. 139).
391. Roger Johnson reports that THE TRI-METALLIC QUESTION (the guidebook to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's summer-weekend excursion to Winchester in 1991) is being reprinted, and costs $33.00 postpaid (surface mail) from Peter Horrocks (22 Old Buildings, Lincoln's Inn, London WC2A 3UJ, England). HOUND AND HORSE (the guidebook for this year's excursion to Dartmoor) also is available; $30.00 postpaid (surface) from Shirley Purves, Heronsbrook, Doddiscombsleigh, Exeter EX6 7RE, England). Checks for both items should be payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London.
392. Additional news from Roger: the church where Arthur Conan Doyle and Louise Hawkins were married in 1885 is selling copies of the marriage certificate; the price is £2.50, and orders can be sent to R. G. Taylor, 2 Greta Heath, Burton-in-Lonsdale, via Carnforth, Lancashire LA6 3LH, England.
-
393. Sep 92 #6: Spotted by Al Rosenblatt in the "Notes and Comment" section of the Aug. 31 issue of The New Yorker: a Hitler chronicler noted a few years ago that there are twice as many biographies of Hitler as there are of Winston Churchill; three times as many as there are of Roosevelt and Stalin. "Only Jesus Christ has had more words devoted to him than Hitler." There's some bias involved in that last statement, of course, and one does wonder whether anyone has actually counted all the words devoted to Hitler, or Stalin or Roosevelt or Churchill. Not to mention where Sherlock Holmes might rank on such a list . . .
394. There wasn't much advance notice this year, but the 1992 "Victorian Holmes Weekend" in Cape May, N.J., will be held on Nov. 6-8. The weekend includes a Sherlockian mystery ("The Adventure in Cape May") to be solved by those who attend, and additional information is available from the Mid-Atlantic Center for the Arts, Box 340, Cape May, NJ 08204-0340 (609-884-5404). You might ask to be on their direct mailing list, by way of getting an earlier announcement of such events, if you're interested in this sort of affair.
395. The latter-day Avenging Angels, attempting to make amends for the murders committed by an earlier organization using the same name, are continuing their campaign to install a plaque dedicated to the memory of John and Lucy Ferrier, on the road above Pioneer Trail State Park in Salt Lake City. All Sherlockians are invited to contribute to their project; a flier with more information about the plaque is available from Ronald B. De Waal, 638 12th Avenue, Salt Lake City, UT 84103.
396. The City of Westminster has joined forces with The Sherlock Holmes Society of London to publish a facsimile of the manuscript of "The Lion's Mane", with an introduction by Colin Dexter (creator of Inspector Morse) and an afterword by Richard Lancelyn Green. The deluxe edition (limited to 100 copies in a slipcase, with pages cut to match the original, and signed by Dexter, Green, and Dame Jean Conan Doyle) costs £105 postpaid ($200 to the U.S.), and the standard edition (in boards) costs £27.50 postpaid ($60 to the U.S.). Checks should be made payable to "City of Westminster" and can be sent to Sherlock Holmes Facsimile, Marylebone Library, Marylebone Road, London NW1 5PS, England. And the facsimile of the manuscript of "The - Dying Detective", issued last year in similar formats, is still available in both the deluxe and trade edition, at the same prices and from the same address.

-
397. And thanks to Roy Preece for the cartoon by Delaine & Rasmussen, from the Sept. 12 issue of the [Massillon, Ohio] Independent.
-
398. Oct 92 #1: A clipping from the Sept. 9 issue of the Marylebone Mercury, at hand from Jon Lellenberg, reports that the historic Criterion restaurant has reopened its doors for the first time in three years, redecorated in neo-Byzantine style with gold-mosaic tiled ceiling and marble walls (quite different from the way it was when Watson met young Stamford there).
399. The comic book SHERLOCK HOLMES: RETURN OF THE DEVIL #1 ($2.50) appeared on schedule in Sept. from Adventure Comics (a division of Malibu Graphics), and #2 is due later this year. The story is by Martin Powell and the art by Seppo Makinen (the team responsible for the series SCARLET IN GASLIGHT in 1987-88), and the publisher's address is 5321 Sterling Center Drive, Westlake Village CA 91361.
400. The latest catalog from the Gimbel & Sons Country Store (Box 57, Boothbay Harbor, ME 04538-0057) offers a Sherlock thimble ("miniature hand-painted Toby mug in bone china from England") for $14.95 plus $3.95 shipping; the item number is 5698, and they take plastic.
401. THE CAMDEN HOUSE COOKBOOK, edited by Janet Bensley and Debbie Tinsley from recipes provided by members of The Occupants of the Empty House, is based on the society's long-standing tradition of potluck provisioning at their meetings. First published in 1990, the 48-page booklet has been reissued in a second printing priced at $6.00 postpaid, from Debbie Tinsley, Box 21, Zeigler, IL 62999.
402. Susan Jewell Martin, Marilyn MacGregor, and Jon L. Lellenberg are founding The Clients of Adrian Mulliner as a chapter of The Wodehouse Society, with the goal of enjoying the intersecting worlds of Sherlock Holmes and P. G. Wodehouse. The chapter will hold its first meeting during the weekend of the next Wodehouse Society Convention in San Francisco, on July 31-Aug. 1, 1993 (which happens to dovetail neatly with the Sherlockian workshop to be held at Stanford University on Aug. 4-8, 1993). If you would like to have more information about the chapter or the society or the convention, send an SASE to Jon L. Lellenberg, 3133 Connecticut Avenue NW #525, Washington, DC 20008.
403. John Bennett Shaw's COLLECTING SHERLOCKIANA: AN ESSAY, published last year by the Opuscula Press as a 16-page pamphlet (Apr 91 #2) has been reprinted as a 28-page miniature book (2-7/8 by 2-1/2 inches). The postpaid price is $23.00 (or $25.00 outside the U.S.), and a flier with more information is available from the publisher at 6307 Forrester Drive, Bradenton, FL 34202.
404. "Solitary Confinement" (written by Rupert Holmes and starring Stacy Keach) is scheduled to open at the Nederlander Theatre in New York in late October (the play had a Sherlockian line about eliminating the impossible, but the line was dropped during a tryout production in Pasadena in Nov. 1991). The show was produced in Washington in Mar. 1992, and I recommend it highly: it is written with style and ingenuity, and Keach is splendid in the lead. I also recommend that you do not read detailed reviews, because it is next to impossible to discuss the play without spoiling some of its many surprises.
-
405. Oct 92 #2: You can add Frank Finlay to the very short list of actors who have played both Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Inspector Lestrade.
406. "Encounters" is a British 50-minute television series that was produced by BBC Scotland that has dramatized imaginary meetings between notables such as Marilyn Monroe and Simone Signoret, H. G. Wells and George Orwell, Paul Robeson and Aneurin Bevan, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Sherlock Holmes. The episode "The Other Side" (written by David Ashton and broadcast on Aug. 29) had Sir Arthur at a seance in 1928, confronted by the ghost of Sherlock Holmes, and the BBC mounted a massive (and extremely successful) publicity campaign, achieving wide-spread advance publicity about Frank Finlay (Conan Doyle), Richard E. Grant (Holmes), and Cathryn Harrison (Madame Moshel, the medium). Sherlockians will remember Finlay as a fine Lestrade in "A Study in Terror" (1959) and "Murder by Decree" (1979), although the BBC publicity was focussed on his appearance in the title role in a television version of "Casanova" that was so racy that it was aired once in Britain twenty years ago and has not been seen since. Richard E. Grant was in the recent Robert Altman movie ("The Player"), and Cathryn Harrison (granddaughter of Rex and daughter of Noel) did a splendid job in "Portrait of a Marriage" (seen here in July on "Masterpiece Theatre") as Violet Trefusis, the lesbian lover of Vita Sackville-West. The press campaign also noted that Cathryn Harrison grew up on Dartmoor ("I knew nothing about Conan Doyle before I was offered the role even though 'The Hound of the Baskervilles' was set near Buckfastleigh two miles away"). The blizzard of advance publicity surely won the episode a large audience, but the few reviews seen so far were lukewarm at best. If we ever see the series here, it will likely be on A&E or Bravo.
407. A new and artistic set of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson bears (about four inches high) is available from the Washington Dolls' House & Toy Museum, at 5236 44th Street NW, Washington, DC 20015). They cost $172.50 postpaid for the pair, and plastic is welcome.
408. The twelve programs broadcast by BBC Radio in the series "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (with Clive Merrison as Sherlock Holmes) were released on audiocassettes in Great Britain last year (Jun 91 #4), and they are now available here in the new catalog from The Mind's Eye, Box 1060, Petaluma, CA 94953 (800-227-2020). There are three volumes, each with two cassettes and four stories; the price is $14.95 each ($39.95 for all three volumes), plus shipping (and they take plastic).
409. L. B. Greenwood's pastiches SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF THE RALEIGH LEGACY, SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE CASE OF SABINA HALL, and SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE THISTLE OF SCOTLAND are now out-of-print in hard-cover, but she is happy to offer copies of all three titles, signed or inscribed on request, for US$20.00 per copy, postpaid (US dollar checks welcome). Her address is 1815 Maple Street, Kelowna, B.C. V1Y 1H4, Canada.
410. The demise of Punch (May 92 #3) may be followed by a resurrection, the N.Y. Times reported last month. Bill Tidy, one of the magazine's most popular cartoonists (his earliest-known Sherlockian cartoon was published on Feb. 3, 1965), has made a bid for the title and the archives.
-
411. Oct 92 #3: The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's summer excursions have in the past few years been occasions for excellent scholarship, preserved in a series of guidebooks that offer fine demonstrations of just how much interest and amusement can be found in the world of Sherlockians and of Sherlock Holmes. HOUND AND HORSE: A DARTMOOR COMMONPLACE BOOK was edited by Shirley Purves as a guide for this year's expedition to Dartmoor, and it continues that tradition with a collection of essays that explore a range of subjects that include the life and career of B. Fletcher Robinson, the film-prints of the Hound, the genealogy of Silver Blaze, the geology of the Moors, recipes for curry, and much more. The guidebook has 70 pages in soft covers, and costs $30.00 postpaid (surface mail) from Shirley Purves, Heronsbrook, Doddiscombsleigh, Exeter EX6 7RE, England); checks should be made payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London.
412. THE HOUND'S TALE, by Prudence Moran Swift, a 16-page pamphlet published as a more light-hearted souvenir of the excursion, offers a decidedly canine view of events on Dartmoor, and costs $7.00 postpaid; checks payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London should be sent to Wayne and Francine Swift, 4622 Morgan Drive, Chevy Chase, MD 20815).
413. An acting company called Excaliber Productions offers to tour with four 45-minute Sherlockian plays (based on "The Dying Detective", "The Blue Carbuncle", "Black Peter", and "The Final Problem"). Performances have had good reviews from local Sherlockians (and non-Sherlockians) in St. Louis and St. Charles, and more information is available from Darryl Maximilian Robinson (the director-producer), 15 South Taylor #1 South, St. Louis, MO 63108.

414. The recent sheet of stamps showing American wildflowers serves as an occasion for one of the rare Canonical questions that is not easily answered using the indexes to the Canon or the computerized Canon: where in the Canon is there a mention of the sego lily?
415. Over My Dead Body! (the electronic mystery-magazine bulletin board) plans to publish a print magazine (also called Over My Dead Body!), and is soliciting manuscripts. The first issue, with Nov. 30 deadline, will be published in Feb. 1993 at Left Coast Crime III (the regional convention in Anaheim), and its theme is "blurring the boundaries" (cross-over mysteries: western, sci-fi, horror, vampire, spy, romantic suspense, etc.); additional information is available from Diane E. Amov (Box 1778, Auburn, WA 98071-1778).
416. The television game show "Jeopardy" often poses Sherlockian answers (the contestants are supposed to respond with appropriate questions). Felice Bogus, introduced as a graduate student in Los Angeles and a member of the Sherlock Holmes Society of London, was on the show for three days in Oct., winning a total of $26,801 the first two days (and coming in second on the third day).
417. Yes, there is another actor on the very short list (Oct 92 #2) of those who have played both Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Inspector Lestrade: it's Dennis Hoey, who portrayed an amusing Lestrade in many of Basil Rathbone's films, and Conan Doyle in "The Fine Art of Murder" on "Omnibus" on ABC-TV in 1956.
-
418. Oct 92 #4: STRANGE STUDIES FROM LIFE AND OTHER NARRATIVES: THE COMPLETE TRUE CRIME WRITINGS OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, first published in 1988, now has a second printing. Edited by Jack Tracy, the book offers three "strange studies from life" and Peter Ruber's fine introduction from his 1963 reprint of the stories, three earlier reports, and Conan Doyle's later essay suggesting that psychic science might be useful in solving or preventing crimes. $20.45 postpaid from Gaslight Publications, 626 North College Avenue, Bloomington, IN 47404 (they take plastic).
419. Some people really *are* planning well ahead. More than one Hollywood studio now offers contracts granting producers rights "forever and throughout the universe."
420. A new booklet of stamps showing animals includes stamps portraying a white Bengal tiger and a flamingo. There are many mentions of tigers in the Canon (in "The Empty House" and elsewhere), but there is only one mention of a flamingo: "See how that one little cloud floats like a pink feather from some gigantic flamingo," said Sherlock Holmes (in "The Sign of the Four").
421. Credit Vinnie Brosnan with spotting a newspaper mention of a Sherlock Holmes fan who competed (and did well) in the summer Olympics in Barcelona. Shannon Miller, winner of five medals for gymnastics, is 15 years old and has begun training for the 1993 world championships. She may also compete in the summer Olympics in Atlanta in 1996, and her address is 8 Easy Street, Edmond, OK 73034.
422. Further to the report (Sep 92 #2) on Superman being Martha Hudson's foster son, Tom Kowols notes that Martha Kent's maiden name was Clark, not Hudson (and that that's how the boy got the name Clark Kent). Tom cites a line in the first Christopher Reeve movie: "Martha Clark Kent, are you listening to me?" Of course there are some of us who believe that the Christopher Reeve movies are fiction rather than fact, and that truth is to be found only in comic books that cost no more than ten cents brand new.
423. Amy Jones Frisbie died on Oct. 10. She was the widow of Owen P. Frisbie ("The Musgrave Ritual"), toasted by the Irregulars as *The* Woman in 1977, and an enthusiastic member of The Three Garridebs. She was also a fine Sherlockian artist, and in 1982 created an attractive poster print of the great detective.
424. Shirley Purves, chairman of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, was on tour in the United States in Sept. and Oct., and is now the newest member of The Baker Street Irregulars (as "The Dog in the Night-Time"). She also is half of the first sister-and-brother team in the history of the BSI; her brother is Charles O. Merriman ("Colonel Hayter").
425. Don Pollock reports yet another target for computerized Sherlockians: the news group called alt.fan.holmes on Usenet. One needs a modem to access Usenet, of course. Presumably people who have modems know how to access Usenet. I don't have a modem. I don't do Windows, either.
-
426. Oct 92 #5: It has been some time since anyone reported a non-Sherlockian book with a Sherlockian title, either exact (such as Michael Gilbert's THE EMPTY HOUSE and John Creasey's THE VALLEY OF FEAR), or almost exact (such as Robert M. Coates' WISTERIA COTTAGE and P. M. Hubbard's THE DANCING MAN). The latter category would include the new novel THE COPPER BEECH, by Maeve Binchy (New York: Delacorte Press, 1992).
427. "It is of that daughter that I would speak to you," said Brigham Young to John Ferrier. "She has grown to be the flower of Utah." And the official state flower of Utah is the sego lily (Oct 92 #3).
428. Forecast: THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with twelve watercolor illustrations by Barry Moser (including portraits of Holmes, Watson, and Conan Doyle), from Morrow/Books of Wonder ($20.00).
429. Jennie Paton reports that a dapper handmade "Bearlock Holmes" (holding pipe and violin) is available for $50.00 from Lori Levin (Lori's Bears, 633 20th Street, West Des Moines, IA 50265); you get your choice of colors and such, so write to Lori Levin for a detailed order form.
430. Reported: VICTORIAN TALES OF MYSTERY AND DETECTION, edited by Michael Cox (Oxford Univ. Press, $25.00); 31 short stories, with one from the Canon as well as Conan Doyle's "The Lost Special").
431. The broadcast of "Garrison Keillor's American Radio Company" on National Public Radio stations on Oct. 17 included an appearance by the Hound of the Baskervilles, in a sound-effects contest. This is the first Canonical bit reported on one of Keillor's shows; did anyone record it?
432. The continuing increase in the number of Sherlockian societies (369 active societies are recorded at the moment) has led to some interesting associations. The Cardboard Boxers of Croydon, and of Susanville, and The Crew of the S.S. May Day of Belfast, plan to meet simultaneously (with a telephone link for appropriate toasts) on Jan. 23, 1993, in honor of the centenary of publication of their adventure in The Strand Magazine. If you might be in any of the vicinities, you can contact Andrew A. P. Butler (64 Firth Road, Croydon, Surrey CR0 1TA, England) or William Ballew (Box 1954, Susanville, CA 96130) or R. O. C. Ross (19 Ardcarney Way, Belfast BT5 7RP, Northern Ireland, United Kingdom).
433. Ralph Hall reports an advertisement in the Louisville Courier-Journal (Oct. 10) for a Sherlock Holmes Chess Set issued to honor the 100th anniversary of the publication of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. The 32 pieces are solid pewter on enameled bases, and cost $14.75 each, plus shipping, in a subscription offer (you get two pieces every two months) from Gorham, 1170 Wheeler Way, Langhorne, PA 19047.
434. Jon Lellenberg reports that ICOM Simulations will release the second volume of its "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" computer game in November. The first volume was released on cartridges for game machines in 1991, and then on CD-ROM discs (Mar 92 #5), and has three adventures, each with liveaction video (15-frames-per-second quarter-screen digitized video). Even nicer news is that ICOM is now filming for a third volume.
-
435. Oct 92 #6: Roger Johnson reports that Denholm Elliott has died. He was a fine actor, and he played supporting roles in three Sherlockian ventures: he was the English Delegate in "The Strange Case of the End of Civilisation As We Know It" on television in 1977, Stapleton in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on film in 1978, and Dr. Mortimer in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on television in 1983. According to press reports, he also was one of the early candidates for the role of Watson in Frank Langella's production of "Sherlock's Last Case" in 1987.

436. The Sherlockian Times is the mail-order sales catalog from Carolyn and Joel Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219), offering a fine range of American and British books and other collectibles.
437. Fans of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" will be happy to learn that Dame Jean Conan Doyle has authorized Paramount to resurrect Professor Moriarty from the holodeck's computer. This pleasant news from Jon Lellenberg, who also reports that Rene Echevaria's script ("Ship in a Bottle"), still in an early draft, will have Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson in supporting roles. Earlier reports that Dame Jean had refused permission to use the characters were in error, probably because the series' production staff were not aware of the negotiations underway by the legal department.
438. An illustrated flier from Starlog Press (475 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016) offers back issues of the magazine Star Trek: The Next Generation (issue #6 featured "Elementary, Dear Data" with Brent Spiner on the cover in Sherlockian costume). The series continues to be quite popular, with an estimated 17 million viewers each week (that would yield a Nielsen rating of about 18 if Nielsen had national ratings for syndicated shows). The Los Angeles Times has reported that Paramount made $90 million from the series last year, and the Washington Post notes that a 30-second commercial costs $115,000 (compared with $30,000 to $40,000 for other syndicated dramas).
439. CONAN DOYLE'S TALES OF MEDICAL HUMANISM AND VALUES, edited and annotated by Alvin E. Rodin and Jack D. Key (Malabar: Robert E. Krieger, 1992; 481 pp., $42.50), concentrates on ACD's fiction and emphasizes his medical humanism (which the editors define as "any delivery of health care which emphasizes human interest, values, and dignity, and which is compatible with medical science and technology"). Sources for the tales range from ROUND THE RED LAMP to the Canon (there are three Sherlockian stories), and the book ends with an address on "The Romance of Medicine" given by Conan Doyle in 1910. The commentary and notes are instructive, and the collection offers some fine examples of Conan Doyle's skills both as author and as physician. The publisher's address is Box 9542, Melbourne, FL 32902; shipping costs $5.00, and they take plastic.
440. Mark Alberstat's 1993 Sherlock Holmes Calendar has a Sidney Paget illustration for each month, with dates for the cases taken from Baring-Gould's THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES; Mark's address is 6258 Payzant Avenue, Halifax, NS B3H 2B1, Canada, and the calendar costs US$10.00 postpaid. Brian and Charlotte Erickson's 1993 Calendar of 221B Baker Street also is available ($12.00 plus shipping), along with shadow boxes, jigsaw puzzles, clay and needlepoint ornaments, comic books, and other collectibles, in a Christmas catalog from Sherlock's Corner, 1029 Judson Drive, Mountain View, CA 94040.
-
441. Oct 92 #7: Thanks to all those who responded in time for this one-month earlier forecast of what will be happening during the birthday festivities, by way of offering a better chance for advance planning. We will celebrate Sherlock Holmes' 139th birthday on Friday, Jan. 8, with the traditional festivities in New York. The festivities will actually begin on Thursday at 9:00 am in the lobby of the Hotel Algonquin (59 West 44th Street), whence Allen Mackler and Charlie Shields will lead participants in the annual Christopher Morley Walk, which includes luncheon at McSorley's. Allen's address is 324 2nd Street NE, Osseo, MN 55369, and from Jan. 5 he can be reached at the Iroquois Hotel (212-840-3080).
442. Bob Hahn reports that the 1993 Aunt Clara Sing will honor its founder, the late Bill Rabe, as well as Aunt Clara's friends (intimate and otherwise), beginning at 8:00 pm on Thursday at O'Lunney's Steak House. Song sheets will be welcomed by the folk-singer-in-residence (and others). No advance payment is required, but space is limited and a check for $10.00 for each person in your party can be sent to Hugh O'Lunney (12 West 44th Street, New York, NY 10036) by way of reserving a seat at the party (the $10.00 will be applied to your tab for the evening).
443. Friday's schedule will begin with the Martha Hudson Breakfast from 8:30 to 10:30 am at the Hotel Algonquin at 59 West 44th Street (The Stetaks, 15529 Diagonal Road, La Grange, OH 44050); $18.95 (checks payable to The Baker Street Irregulars) for a buffet that includes the world-famous Algonquin oatmeal. The William Gillette Luncheon starts at noon at the Old Homestead at 56 Ninth Avenue at 14th Street (Susan Rice, 125 Washington Place #2-E, New York, NY 10014; $30.00). Otto Penzler's open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) also is on Friday, from 11:00 am to 6:00 pm; it is possible that S'ian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
444. The Baker Street Irregulars will gather at 6:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue (at 9th Street), and The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes at 6:30 pm at Le Max Restaurant at 147 West 43rd Street between 6th Avenue and Broadway (Evelyn A. Herzog, 360 West 21st Street #5-A, New York, NY 10011-3310; $35.00). As usual, early reservations are recommended for the breakfast, the luncheon, and The Adventuresses' dinner.
445. On Saturday a posse of purveyors will offer a wide variety of S'iana at the Algonquin, from 9:30 am to 12:30 p.m. Huckster tables are still available (contact Ray Betzner, 107 Tendril Court, Williamsburg, VA 23188).
446. The STUD Sherlockian Society plans to hold a Rache Subway Rally (much like a Road Rally) starting at 12:00 noon on Saturday. The rally will last less than two hours, and prizes will be awarded. Pre-registration is required, and additional details are available from Donald B. Izban, 5334 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, IL 60639-1524.
447. On Saturday afternoon The Baker Street Irregulars will hold their annual reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, from 2:30 to 5:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue at 9th Street. There will be an open bar, with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and tickets cost $30.00 a person. Checks (payable to The Baker Street Irregulars) should be sent to Michael F. Whelan, 342 Perry Cabin Drive, St. Michaels, MD 21663.
-
448. Oct 92 #8: The Baker Street Irregulars are now a tax-exempt organization, and Tom Stix arranged with the Hotel Algonquin for rooms (single or double) at $145.00 a night (Thursday, Friday, or Saturday); this is the total cost, since no tax is due for reservations made through the BSI. Please note that all other charges (room service, telephone calls, meals, drinks, etc.) are not covered. Tom's offer is available to all Sherlockians: your reservations, with full names of all occupants, accompanied by checks payable to The Baker Street Irregulars, should be sent to Thomas L. Stix, Jr. (34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648), and are to be received no later than Dec. 16.
449. Mary Ellen Rich has once again kindly provided a list of hotels that offer reasonable (as defined by New York landlords) rates, along with a warning about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, 5% city tax, and 5% state tax on rooms costing more than $99.99. If you plan to arrive on Thursday, it is important to confirm that the weekend-package rates include Thursday.
450. Omni Park Central (7th Avenue at 55th Street): $98 (single/double at corporate rate) (800-843-6664). Roosevelt (Madison Avenue at 45th Street): $89 (single/double FR/SA at Travel Trust rate) (800-223-1870). Journey's End (3 East 40th Street): $88.88 (per room FR/SA) (800-668-4200). Shoreham (33 West 55th Street): $75 (single) $84 (double) (212-247-6700 ask for Terry). Iroquois (49 West 44th Street): $65 (single) $75 (double) $99 (suite) (800-332-7220). Rosoff's (147 West 43rd Street, near Le Max): $50 (single) $60 (double) $70 (triple) $80 (quad) (212-869-1212).
451. Onward, with a few more items to fill the page, and with apologies for not getting this end-of-October issue into the mail until November. I was in Cincinnati most of the last week in October, helping local Sherlockians and visiting geologists honor the world's first forensic geologist. No one was able to find anything in the Canon that seemed like a sure forecast of who would win the election, but it was noted that the word "independent" occurs in ten stories, the word "Republican" in three, and the word "democratic" in only one. There is someone named Stockdale in the Canon, of course. Oh well: you'll know who won by the time you read this item, of course, unless the electoral vote doesn't yield a winner and the House of Representatives selects the next president.

452. Forecast by Jerry Margolin: THE SEVENTH BULLET, by Daniel D. Victor, from St. Martin's Press in Nov. ($17.95); according to the press release, the pastiche brings Holmes and Watson to the United States to investigate the real-life assassination of muckraker-journalist David Graham Phillips in 1911 (Teddy Roosevelt and William Randolph Hearst are among the supporting characters).
453. Pattie Brunner reports that a catalog from What on Earth (2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087) has "Moriarty's of Baker Street" sweatshirts ($22.95) and T-shirts ($12.95). And that Bits & Pieces (1 Puzzle Place, Stevens Point, WI 54481) offers a "Jolly Good!" jigsaw puzzle that shows Sherlock Holmes in a window at the far right ($14.95).
-
454. Nov 92 #1: Sir Kenneth Macmillan died on Oct. 29. He was principal choreographer of the Royal Ballet, and was credited with almost singlehandedly reviving the tradition of full-length ballet in Britain. He starred in the ballet "The Great Detective" in Sadler's Wells in 1953 as both The Great Detective and The Infamous Professor. Knighted in 1983, he died of a heart attack backstage at the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden.
455. Thanks to all who have reported additional Sherlockian films on laserdiscs. Here's the current list: Rathbone's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939), "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939), "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror" (1942), "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon" (1943), "Sherlock Holmes Faces Death" (1943), "The Woman in Green" (1945), "Terror by Night" (1946), "Dressed to Kill" (1946), "A Study in Terror" (1965), "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (1976), "Murder by Decree" (1979), "The Masks of Death" (1984), "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985), "The Great Mouse Detective" (1986), Brett's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1988), "Without a Clue" (1988), and "The Crucifer of Blood" (1991). And "The Lost World" (1925).
456. Nice news for those who weren't aware of the Klondike Holmes Bear available last year. It's 15 inches high, with a real magnifying glass, and costs $9.95 plus two UPC symbols from any six-pack or four-pack of Klondike ice-cream sandwiches or bars or (plus $1.50 per order for shipping) from Klondike Offer, 5400 118th Avenue North, Clearwater, FL 34620.
457. Hal Roach died on Nov. 2. He was one of the great Hollywood film-makers, beginning his career as an extra in a western in 1912, and going on to discover Harold Lloyd and to share with Mack Sennett the honor of inventing film comedy as a genre. There are Sherlockian allusions in many of his films, including the Our Gang comedy "Young Sherlocks" (1922), Arthur Stone's "Sherlock Sleuth" (1925), and the Laurel and Hardy classic "Do Detectives Think?" (1927).
458. Nielsen numbers. We most often see numbers for the programs on the major networks, but there are many people who watch programs available only on cable (Nielsen estimates that there are 93.1 million television households in the United States, and 61.4 million of them have cable). "Larry King Live" had George Bush on the show on CNN on Oct. 30, and scored a 5.0 (or slightly more than 3.0 million cable households); that's about the same as the rating for any of the better shows on PBS-TV.
459. Completists should not neglect variants published by the Quality Paperback Book Club. Andrew Jay Peck reports new exclusive QPB editions of DETECTIVE STORIES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE and STRANGE TALES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE (Dec 91 #6) at $14.95 each or $22.25 the pair, available only to members of the club.
460. And a bit more on laserdiscs, from the Oct. 29 issue of the N.Y. Times, via Syd Goldberg: there are more than 7,000 titles in a new catalog from Movies Unlimited. And industry observers estimate that there are nearly a million disc players in use, and that 12 million discs will be sold this year.
-
461. Nov 92 #2: Further to the news (Oct 92 #6) that Moriarty will return to the holodeck on "Star Trek: The Next Generation" (with Holmes and Watson in supporting roles in an episode tentatively titled "Ship in a Bottle"), Jon Lellenberg reports that Paramount expects the program to air during the week of Jan. 25 (the series is syndicated, so the air date will not be the same nationwide).
462. In case you weren't watching the election coverage on PBS-TV on Nov. 3, one of the anchors was Hodding Carter, who in a conversation with Daniel Schorr mentioned "the dogs that didn't bark in this campaign," in a reference to the many issues that were not really debated during the campaign.
463. Thanks to Victoria Robinson for spotting VICTORIAN DELIGHTS: REFLECTIONS OF TASTE IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, by John Hadfield (New York: New Amsterdam Books, 1990; 128 pp., $24.95). The book was first published in Britain in 1987, and includes a section devoted to Sherlock Holmes and Sidney Paget's illustrations, but it is most welcome for its profusely-illustrated display of the culture of the Sherlockian world, including mantelpiece ornaments, toy theaters, pottery portrait figures, pinup photographs, and much more. The publisher's address is 320 North Jensen Road, Vestal, NY 13850.
464. One of the most important rules in journalism (and many other professions) is "get the names right!" Apologies to the Sherlock Holmes fan who was the winner of five medals for gymnastics at the Barcelona summer Olympics (Oct 92 #4), and whose name, correctly, is Shannon Miller.
465. Bowling Green State University Popular Press (Bowling Green, OH 43403) is having an "Early Christmas Sale" offering discounts on many titles, including Earl Bargainnier's COMIC CRIME, Ray B. Browne's HEROES AND HUMANITIES: DETECTIVE FICTION AND CULTURE, Michael L. Cook's MYSTERY FANFARE, William R. Hunt's FRONT-PAGE DETECTIVE: WILLIAM J. BURNS AND THE DETECTIVE PROFESSION, S. T. Joshi's JOHN DICKSON CARR: A CRITICAL STUDY, Leroy L. Panek's AN INTRODUCTION TO THE DETECTIVE STORY; write for their sales-list.
466. Ben Wood is preparing a new and revised edition of his guide to Sherlockian stamps and coins (THE PHILATELIC & NUMISMATIC HOLMES); the postpaid cost is $5.00 through Dec. 31 (and $6.00 thereafter), and you can order from Benton Wood, Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222.
467. The speculative boom in movie posters and lobby cards seems to have tapered off, slightly, but high-quality photographic reproductions are available at reasonable prices ($6.95 for 8x10, $12.95 for 11x14, $29.95 for 16x20) from Cinema Art, Box 1121, Glastonbury, CT 06033 (800-336-4553). Their catalog has 2 cards from Barrymore's "Sherlock Holmes" (1922) and 16 from various Rathbone films, plus Sherlockian cards from Abbott and Costello's "Who Done It?" (1942), Laurel and Hardy's "The Big Noise" (1944), and Edgar Bergen's "Charlie McCarthy, Detective" (1939), and 4 cards from Wallace Beery's "The Lost World" (1922). And they take plastic.
468. Forecast from the Oxford Univ. Press: THE OXFORD BOOK OF VILLAINS, edited by John Mortimer (in Dec. at $24.95); the villains include Billy the Kid, Mac the Knife, Caligula, Captain Hook, Al Capone, and Professor Moriarty (in a reprint of T. S. Eliot's poem "Macavity: The Mystery Cat").
-
469. Nov 92 #3: Karen Isaacson (Box 1961, Lynnwood, WA 98046-1961) has sent a flier to Sherlockian societies, asking people to write to the Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee (Stamp Development Branch, U.S. Postal Service Headquarters, Washington, DC 20260-6352) to request a set of four stamps showing detectives (similar to the recent booklet honoring famous comedians). Karen's candidates are Charlie Chan, The Thin Man, Sam Spade, and (of course) Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson. She hopes that proposing a set of stamps will help secure a stamp honoring Holmes.
470. Thanks to Bill Smith for a report from Audio Editions (Box 6930, Auburn, CA 95604): for six months their order forms had questions about the customers' opinions on books-on-cassette, such as "What is the all-time best book-on-cassette you have listened to?" The answer listed most often was "Sherlock Holmes" (with "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" as runner-up). "What was the most entertaining book-on-cassette you have heard?" had "Sherlock Holmes" and "Star Trek" as runners-up to "Tom Bodett" (a humorist noted for his "End of the Road" stories). Audio Editions offers all of the Simon & Schuster Rathbone/Bruce cassettes, and other Sherlockian recordings.

471. Bill also notes that DutchGuard by Mail (Box 411687, Kansas City, MO 64141) offers a Sherlock Holmes walking stick from Italy, at $59.95 (this would appear to be the same walking stick advertised by Davis and Son (Apr 92 #4).
472. Eve Titus, back in the United States after a sojourn in Italy, reports with pleasure that the "Basil of Baker Street" series will soon be back in print in hardcover. The books went out-of-print in hardcover some years ago when McGraw-Hill closed its children's division, but they are now expected from the Sherrinford Press next year.
473. A Case of Identifiers is a non-existent scion devoted to identification of past, present, and future Sherlockians in the visual media, including film, videotape, and photographs. The scion's Canonically appropriate motto is "I know him from the photographs," and the first issue (volume 0, number 0) of Baron Gruner's Diary ("photographs, names, details") is available from Bill Vande Water (697 Greenbelt Parkway West, Holbrook, NY 11741); $2.00 postpaid. It's an unofficial publication (needless to say), with 20 pages of photos, identifications, discussions, confessions, and promises, as well as offers of the scion's lapel pin and reproductions of the photographs of the 1940 and 1946 annual dinners of The Baker Street Irregulars.
474. Jim Weiss' one-hour audiocassette SHERLOCK HOLMES FOR CHILDREN (Apr 92 #8) has now won two awards (American Library Association notable, and Parent's Choice Foundation gold). The cassette costs $9.95 (plus $2.00 shipping), and their flier offers other non-Sherlockian titles; Greathall Productions, Box 813, Benicia, CA 94510.
475. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London still has a modest waiting list for full membership, but there is no limit on associate membership, which is the same as a subscription to The Sherlock Holmes Journal: $18.75 a year to the Americas, for two issues. Checks payable to the Society can be sent to Cdr. G. S. Stavert, 3 Outram Road, Southsea, Hants. PO5 1QP, England.
-
476. Nov 92 #4: If you enjoyed the series of "Maigret" programs on "Mystery!" on PBS-TV, you may have recognized the voice of M. Comeliau, the examining magistrate, who was played by John Moffatt. But only the voice: Moffatt played Sherlock Holmes for BBC Radio 4 in "Sherlock Holmes vs. Dracula" (1981), and Dr. Watson (with Roy Marsden as Holmes) in the Grant Eustace series that aired on British Airways flights (1987) and (with Dinsdale Landen as Holmes) for the BBC World Service in "Sherlock's Last Case" (1987).
477. Ruthann and Tom Stetak have discovered SHUR-LOK at a local building-supply store. "SHUR-LOK your 'Holme' and feel secure," the label announces (with a portrait of Sherlock Holmes, of course). It's an add-on lock for sliding glass doors, sliding glass windows, and conventional windows, and it's made by Shur-Lok Inc., 5601 South Meridian, Indianapolis, IN 46217.
478. And Ruthann and Tom report that House of Tyrol (Box 909, Alpenland Center, Cleveland, GA 30528) (800-241-5404) now offers a Bearlock Holmes (from the North American Bear Co.) at $85.00, in addition to the Sherlock Holmes desk accessories in hand-cast English pewter (letter opener and magnifying glass at $36.00 each, or $69.00 the pair).
479. Craig Sodaro's one-act play "Holmes on the Range" (1991) has been published by the Pioneer Drama Service, Box 22555, Denver, CO 80222 (800-333-7262); it's "a comic mystery in five scenes," with a cast that includes Holmes and Watson, Dr. Cavitate (dentist to the stars), Nova Caine (his nurse), and a lot of other suspects, and costs $4.00 plus shipping. Pioneer also offers some of Tim Kelly's scripts: "Sherlock Meets the Phantom" (1975) at $3.25; "Sherlock Holmes" (1977) at $4.00; "Bride of Frankenstein" (1976) at $4.00; and "Hawkshaw the Detective" (1976) at $4.00.
480. Videotaper alert: Richard Wein reports that the "In Search of..." series on A&E cable will go "In Search of...Sherlock Holmes" on Dec. 31 (at 7:00 pm EST): "surprising new evidence suggests that the fictional super-sleuth did actually exist."
481. Fred Levin reports that Lori Levin (Lori's Bears, 633 20th Street, West Des Moines, IA 50265) plans to make a Watson bear to join her "Bearlock Holmes" (Oct 92 #5); write to Lori Levin for details.
482. SHERLOCK HOLMES: LA SANGSUE ROUGE, published in French in 1990 (Jan 91 #1), is now available in English as SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE RED DEATH (Partridge Green: Ravette Books, 1992; 48 pp., £3.99); it's a graphic novel, with a story by Andre-Paul Duch teau and full-color artwork by Guy Clair. And it is nicely done, especially the artwork (Clair has his own strong style, in a pleasant change from the much weaker work in the comic books currently available here).
483. Ravette Books has also published BAKER STREET PUZZLES, by Tom Bullimore, with illustrations by Ian Anderson (160 pp., £2.99); it's a collection of logic problems, number puzzles, and the like (such as: give the next two letters in the sequence OTTFSS..), with Holmes and Watson as characters and in the illustrations. The publisher's address is 3 Glenside Estate, Star Road, Partridge Green, near Horsham, West Sussex RH13 8RA, England).
-
484. Nov 92 #5: Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) continue to include Sherlockiana in their mail-order catalogs: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Philip Weller and Christopher Roden (item #1840107, $17.95); THE EXPLOITS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Adrian Conan Doyle and John Dickson Carr (#1789221, $6.95); THE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Michael Pointer (#1742188, $24.95); THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Michael Hardwick (#1841121, $10.95); THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES, by William S. Baring-Gould (#1840164, $29.95). Also: THE LURE OF THE LIMERICK, by William S. Baring-Gould (#1841675, $12.95); non-S'ian, but great fun. And Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's THE EDGE OF THE UNKNOWN (#1819697, $7.95) and THE STORY OF MR. GEORGE EDALJI (#1764026, $6.95).
485. Paulette Greene (7152 Via Palomar, Boca Raton, FL 33433) offers a new sales list of Sherlockiana and Doyleana, including first editions, letters from various S'ians and a copy of THE LOST WORLD (1914) signed by ACD. The Holiday Catalog from The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10010) has two pages of Sherlockian books, as well as Sherlockian signs and sculpture and such. And the new sales list from Sherlock's Home (5624 East Second Street, Long Beach, CA 90803) is full of interesting material.
486. The fall 1992 issue of Scarlet Street has more fine coverage of the Granada series (including an interview with Rosalie Williams and a report on Brett and Hardwicke as Holmes and Watson in the first ten-minute segment of "The Four Oaks Mystery" on ITV in June), a report by David Stuart Davies on the discovery of videotape of a few of the 1968 BBC television shows with Peter Cushing as Holmes, a long interview with Peter Cushing, and Jeremy Brett's comments on his appearance as Dracula on stage. $18.00 a year from R. H. Enterprises, Box 604, Glen Rock, NJ 07452.
487. Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119) has decided to sell much of his Sherlockian collection, through monthly price lists rather than to a dealer, and his first price list should be ready soon. Write to Joe if you would like to receive the first installment.
488. The Northstar/Arpad comic book SHERLOCK HOLMES: TALES OF MYSTERY & SUSPENSE #2 is now in the shops ($2.75), with "The Triangle of Blood" (story by Joe Gentile and art by Phil Rittenhouse). The story ends with Moriarty still at large, and Holmes predicting that "there *will* be justice!"
489. Sherlockian tourists in Britain seem to spend almost all of their time in London and southern sites such as Dartmoor. There is much more to be seen in Britain, of course, and Michael T. R. B. Turnbull's EDINBURGH CHARACTERS (Edinburgh: Saint Andrew Press, 1992; 156 pp., £5.50) is the sort of book that makes being a tourist fun. The chapters and lively description range from Art and Architecture to Street Life, and the characters include James McLevy (an Edinburgh policeman whose analytical methods might have had some influence on Conan Doyle) and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle himself.

490. And it is by nice coincidence that the dates have been set for the Arthur Conan Doyle Society's "Edinburgh '93" gathering, on Mar. 19-21, 1993. The weekend will feature tours, speeches, and panel discussions, and details are available from Christopher and Barbara Roden, Ashcroft, 2 Abbottsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester, Cheshire CH4 0JG, England.
-
491. Nov 92 #6: Marian J. A. Jackson's mystery series about Abigail Patience Danforth began with three paperback originals (THE PUNJAT'S RUBY, THE ARABIAN PEARL, and THE CAT'S EYE), and she is now deservedly in hardcover in DIAMOND HEAD (New York: Walker, 1992; 167 pp., $18.95). Miss Danforth, continuing to ignore Conan Doyle's earlier warning that amateur detecting is no career for a young lady, is now at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in turn-of-the-century Oahu, and quickly involved in a lively story.
492. Holmes for the Holidays, now entering its fourth year, offers grand fun to young mystery fans; it costs $7.50 a year for five issues, from Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62333). Michael also offers all five of the "Basil of Baker Street" paperbacks, signed by Eve Titus; $5.00 each postpaid.
493. Dr. Fatso's "sad, chilling account of the cataclysmic confrontation between Turlock Loams and the elusive Coroner Sandals in their fatal struggle over the fabulous Rosenbach Folios" is now available from the Pequod Press. THE SPINAL PROBLEM costs $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper), from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521.
494. ROTTEN REJECTIONS: THE LETTERS THAT PUBLISHERS WISH THEY'D NEVER SENT was edited by Andre Bernard and published by the Pushcart Press in 1990, and is now available as a British paperback (London: Robson Books, 1992; 101 pp., £6.99). And the letters are fascinating. A sample: "You're welcome to le Carre--he hasn't got any future" (THE SPY WHO CAME IN FROM THE COLD); "It is impossible to see animal stories in the U.S.A." (George Orwell's ANIMAL FARM); "It is very interesting and has several good points, but it is not quite suitable for our list" (Agatha Christie's THE MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR AT STYLES); "Neither long enough for a serial nor short enough for a single story" (A STUDY IN SCARLET).
495. Dave Galerstein reports an important addition to the birthday festivities: "One Bright Book of Life: Novels and Manuscripts" is the title of a public exhibition at the Berg Collection at the N.Y. Public Library (Fifth Avenue at 42nd Street), and one of the items on display is chapter XI from "The Hound of the Baskervilles". The exhibition will run until March, and the library is open Tue-Wed 11:00-6:00, Thu-Sat 10:00-6:00.
496. David Hammer has kindly forwarded a report from the Evening Standard (Nov. 11, 1992) that Bart's, the oldest hospital in London, already under threat of closure as proposed in a recent government report, has been told that Britain's leading cancer charity, also facing a cash crisis, has slashed £500,000 from its annual grant for cancer research, one of the specialties at St. Bartholomew's Hospital.
497. Roger Johnson reports in The District Messenger that the Merrison/Williams series "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes" has ended on BBC Radio 4, and that recording is well underway on "The Return of Sherlock Holmes". And we can add Michael Pennington to the short list of actors who have portrayed both Holmes and Moriarty: Pennington is Moriarty in the radio series, and played Holmes in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" on CBS-TV in 1987.
-
498. Dec 92 #1: "Is This the Real Sherlock Holmes?" asks the headline on an article in the [London] Evening Standard (Oct. 29), at hand from Jon Lellenberg. And the latest candidate, according to Bill West, is Edwin Holmes, who in 1858 was the founder of the Holmes Protection Group in Boston. Edwin Holmes and his assistant Thomas Watson perfected an electrical burglar-protection system, introduced in the 1870s, when Conan Doyle was studying at Edinburgh. And a search of the university records revealed that one of his fellow students came from just outside Boston, and the letters in THE STARK MUNRO LETTERS are addressed to a fictitious fellow-student living near Boston, and that, as far as Bill West is concerned, demonstrates that the answer is, "yes."
499. Jon also has forwarded a report from the Daily Telegraph (Oct. 19) about a problem faced by John Aidiniantz, director of The Sherlock Holmes Museum in Baker Street: he can't find a suitable driver for the museum's recently purchased hansom cab. "The only people who have come forward so far are tinkers," Aidiniantz said, noting that "we want someone who will play the part and not spend the whole time smoking a fag." The intention is that tourists will pay £200 to be driven round Parliament Square accompanied by an actor dressed as Sherlock Holmes. And the reporter suggests that having worked, once, as a barman at the Sherlock Holmes Hotel in Baker Street, "I can confirm that when it comes to Conan Doyle's hero, there is no limit to the amount of drive! American tourists will swallow."
500. And there is a report on THE SUPERNATURAL COAST: UNEXPLAINED MYSTERIES OF EAST ANGLIA, by Peter Haining (Hale, £6.95), with discussion of the Hound of the Baskervilles and the notorious Black Shuck, a ghostly dog that for many years haunted the area around Cromer.
501. The department-store Christmas window-displays have likely been dismantled by now, but Dave Galerstein has reported that one of the windows at Lord & Taylor (on Fifth Avenue, about 50th or 51st Street) has dolls of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson -- Holmes, however, with a mustache.
502. The full-color deck of Sherlock Holmes playing cards, issued in 1990, with 18 original and imaginative drawings by Jeff Decker, can still be ordered from Frank Vacante, 920 South Franklin Street, Wilkes-Barre, PA 18702; the cost is $6.50 postpaid per deck.
503. John Foreman died on Nov. 20. He was an accomplished Hollywood producer, and his most famous films included "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid", "Prizzi's Honor", and "The Man Who Would Be King". He joined forces with actor Paul Newman in 1968 as the Newman-Foreman Co. production company, and one of the company's earliest films, with Foreman as producer, was "They Might Be Giants" (1971).
504. LESTRADE AND THE SIGN OF NINE, by M. J. Trow (London: Constable, 1992; 223 pp., £13.99), is the twelfth in his series about Insp. Sholto Lestrade, who in this case is investigating a series of murders in 1886 (which means that Sherlock Holmes is still alive, and perhaps more competent than one might believe from Lestrade's complaints). The action is fast and furious, and the puns are atrocious and amusing, and the series is as usual great fun.
-
505. Dec 92 #2: Forecast: trade-paperback reprints from Carroll & Graf: THE ART OF THE MYSTERY STORY, edited by Howard Haycraft, at $15.95 in December (an excellent anthology of critical and informative essays, first published in 1946), and 100 GREAT DETECTIVES, edited by Maxim Jakubowski, at $9.95 in February (with H.R.F. Keating's discussion of Sherlock Holmes). And two more volumes of Murray Shaw's adaptations of the Canon for children (vol. 7 has "The Dancing Men" and "The Three Garridebs" and vol. 8 has "The Hound of the Baskervilles"), from Carolrhoda Books at $10.95 (cloth) and $4.95 (paper) this winter.
506. Joan S. Wood is one of *the* women of the BSI, and her expertise extends far beyond the care and feeding of the BSI's chaplain. Two of Joan's interests are on display in MRS. HUDSON'S HANDBOOK OF SHERLOCKIAN COOKERY AND HOLMESIAN NEEDLEPOINT (51 pp.); the cost is $8.50 postpaid, and orders should be sent to Joan at Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222. And Ben Wood's newly revised and expanded edition of his illustrated PHILATELIC & NUMISMATIC HOLMES (28 pp.) is now available ($6.00 postpaid from the same address).
507. Visitors to the Arthur Conan Doyle Collection at the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library may wish to see the newest major acquisition, bequeathed to the collection by the late Anna Conan Doyle (the widow of Adrian Conan Doyle): the manuscript of his unpublished play "Angels of Darkness". It is an adaptation of the American portion of "A Study in Scarlet" (according to Richard Lancelyn Green, Conan Doyle worked on the play at the end of 1888 and the beginning of 1889); the characters include John Watson (a doctor in practice in San Francisco) but not Sherlock Holmes.

508. Sterling Holloway died on Nov. 22. He began his film career in the days of the silents and then played many comic parts in sound films, becoming well known for his raspy voice, which was put to good use by Walt Disney in a long list of animated films. Holloway was the snake in "The Jungle Book" and the stork in "Dumbo" and the Cheshire Cat in "Alice in Wonderland" --and he was easily recognizable as the 1st Gravedigger in "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970).
509. An additional forecast for the birthday festivities in New York: authors Edward B. Hanna (THE WHITECHAPEL HORRORS) and Daniel D. Victor (THE SEVENTH BULLET) are expected to be signing copies of their books during the open house on Friday at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street).
510. Complaints about Granada Television's new lust for profits continue in the British press. Granada's executive chairman David Plowright was dismissed earlier this year (May 92 #2), and an article in The Times (Sept. 15), at hand from Chris Redmond, now reports that Plowright's successor Andy Quinn lasted only six months and has in turn been replaced by Charles Allen, "an accountant with no background in TV."
511. THE BOER CONSPIRACY: A TALE OF WINSTON CHURCHILL AND SHERLOCK HOLMES is a pastiche written by John C. Woods (International Churchill Societies, 1992; 88 pp., $15.00 postpaid); Holmes and Watson attempt to thwart an assassination of Winston Churchill, who in 1900 had just returned from South Africa and was about to embark on his political career. Available from the ICS Stores, 9807 Willow Brook Circle, Louisville, KY 40223.
-
512. Dec 92 #3: "Collectors will agree, I hope, that the noblest mission of an autograph is to make some good book happy," Vincent Starrett once wrote. "Surely no more appropriate insert for a first edition copy of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES can be imagined than a jolly little ANS from Sherlock Holmes to Dr. Watson; or, indeed, since Holmes' letters are rare, from Dr. Watson to Sherlock Holmes. I am always in the market for such souvenirs of greatness, and the catalogues of autograph dealers are almost my favorite reading." This nice thought will be found in the third volume of THE NEW COLOPHON (1950), in Starrett's essay about "Renfrew the Silent: An Uncompleted Research".
513. Kim Newman's ANNO DRACULA (London: Simon & Schuster Ltd., 1992; 359 pp., £14.99) is a fascinating book, apparently not yet published in the United States, but it surely will be soon. It's an alternate-universe novel, with considerable cross-over: the time is 1888, and Queen Victoria is no longer a widow, having married Vlad Tepes, who is ruling as Prince Consort and as Lord Protector. Many people, including Inspector Lestrade, have willingly become vampires, but not Sherlock Holmes, whose "differences" with the new government have caused his detention in a concentration camp. Nor Mycroft, who with other members of the Diogenes Club is involved in a different kind of resistance effort. And someone is stalking Whitechapel, using a silverplated scalpel in a series of murders of vampire prostitutes (Polly Nichols and Annie Chapman have already perished, and others are endangered). And that's just the first 40 pages . . .
514. Markus Geisser reports that The Reichenbach Irregulars offer a handsome Sherlockian bookend, 20 cm high, handmade from beechwood, and bearing a "Homage to Sherlock Holmes" medallion on both sides. Orders should be sent to Klaus Worner (Torkekgasse 9, D-6990 Bad Mergentheim, Germany), and the price (in German marks) postpaid (by surface mail) is DM 68.00 in Europe and DM 70.00 elsewhere. Payment is requested in U.S. currency or by bank draft in German marks.
515. Spotted by Warren Randall in Liz Smith's gossip column in the Nov. 15 issue of Newsday: Walter Annenberg describing Armand Hammer as "the 20th century Professor Moriarty." Annenberg, who has served as ambassador to the Court of St. James, also suggested that "Hammer was the most unscrupulous character and S.O.B. in America."
516. Warren also is the editor of Prescott's Press, one of the nicer Sherlockian periodicals, and has offered to send a free copy of a back issue to anyone who requests one. He hopes to whet appetites and induce subscriptions, of course, but he also reports that "current subscribers who have the cheek to write in will have their subscriptions extended by one issue." His address is: Prescott's Press, Box 610, Levittown, NY 11756.
517. The comic book SHERLOCK HOLMES: RETURN OF THE DEVIL #2 (of 2) has reached the shops ($2.50), from Adventure Comics (a division of Malibu Graphics). Story by Martin Powell and the art by Seppo Makinen (the team responsible for the series SCARLET IN GASLIGHT in 1987-88); the publisher's address is 5321 Sterling Center Drive, Westlake Village CA 91361.
-
518. Dec 92 #4: Tim O'Connor reports Sherlockian artwork on the front cover of HOOTERS #3 ($2.95), a thoroughly adults-only comic book from Aircel Comics (a division of Malibu Graphics) with cover art by Tom Smith and contents (non-S'ian) consisting of reprints of four-page strips drawn by Don Lomax for Cavalier in the 1980s. And if your friendly neighborhood comic-book shop isn't this adult, the publisher's address is: 5321 Sterling Center Drive, Westlake Village, CA 91361.
519. The computer game SHERLOCK HOLMES, CONSULTING DETECTIVE (available only on cartridges and CD-ROM discs) now has floppy-disk competition from THE LOST FILES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE CASE OF THE SERRATED SCALPEL, which has been released by Electronic Arts on a set of disks for MS-DOS machines. It's an interactive graphic mystery with plenty of visuals (animation rather than digitized video) and sound, and you will need a computer with real muscle to play the game: the specifications call for 640K of RAM, a 286-or-better chip, a sound card (such as Soundblaster) and a mouse (both "recommended" and that means that you won't have much fun if you don't have a sound card and a mouse), and a hard disk with 29 available megabytes (the game won't play from the floppies). The game can take more than 50 hours to play (but don't worry: you can stop and then resume where you left off), and the suggested retail price is $59.95 (it's also available in Britain for £39.99). And Electronic Arts has a toll-free number for orders: 800-245-4525.
520. Ginger Rogers was the sentimental favorite during the weekend celebration of the 15th annual Kennedy Center Honors this month, according to a report in the Washington Post (Dec. 7), with Walter Cronkite and Art Buchwald on hand as enthusiastic fans. Buchwald said that "The first autograph I ever got was an autographed picture of Ginger Rogers. I was 11 years old. It came in the mail, and I flipped." And Cronkite confessed that "I wasn't that excited about Fred Astaire or the dancing. But--boy--her performance in 'Kitty Foyle' just knocked me out." Ginger Rogers won an Academy Award for best actress in the role of Kitty Foyle in the 1940 film based on the novel by Christopher Morley.
521. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #18 is in the stores (at $11.00) with two 1945 Rathbone/Bruce radio shows ("The Speckled Band" and "The Purloined Ruby"). The scripts are by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, and well up to their traditional high standards, and there is additional commentary by series announcer Harry Bartell (who also provides two interviews with Irene Norton, played by Peggy Webber).
522. Jim Hillestad (The Toy Soldier, Paradise Falls, RR#1, Box 379, Cresco, PA 18326) offers a set of ten 54mm Sherlock Holmes figurines (from Little Lead Soldiers in England) at $58.00 postpaid. The figurines are in full color, and extend (left to right) from an irregular to the Hound.
-
523. Dec 92 #5: Further to the report (Sep 92 #2) that Clark Kent (also known as Superman) was the foster son of Martha Hudson, who married Jonathan Kent, some readers have reported that Clark Kent's foster mother's maiden name was Clark. Could be, especially considering how many different alternate universes Superman has inhabited in all those stories over all those years. Does anyone have a working address for Jerry Siegel? Reggie Hudson also notes that the first story about Superman, in the first issue of Action Comics, showed him investigating the murder of Jack Kennedy.

524. Reported by Ralph Hall: CLUE LITTLE DETECTIVE (from Parker Brothers) is a new game (ages 3-6) with a box showing little boys in Sherlockian costume (and the game piece Little Detective Mustard also is S'ian); selling for $7.99 at K-Mart and Target stores. Also: a series of "Molehole Mysteries" paperbacks from the Moody Press, written by Barbara Davoll and illustrated by Dennis Hockerman, starring Dusty Mole and Squirrellock Holmes; two titles (so far) at $7.00 each in religious bookstores are DUSTY MOLE, PRIVATE EYE and SECRET AT MOSSY ROOTS MANSION, and you can join a Molehole Mystery Club and get a S'ian ID card and a free newsletter.
525. The Curious Collectors of Baker Street held their Gasfitters Ball in South Pasadena on Nov. 7, heralded by an imaginative two-color poster (11 x 17") designed by Todd Tilterud. Copies of the poster, numbered and signed by the artist, are available from Jerry Kegley, 110 El Nido #41, Pasadena, CA 91107 ($10.00 postpaid).
526. Ted Schulz has reported that the "Third International Sexennial Sherlockian Seminar and Celebration" scheduled at Stanford University in Aug. 1993 has been, like the Red-Headed League, dissolved. But the Scowrers and Mollie Maguires of San Francisco are now making plans for a 50th anniversary S'ian seminar/workshop/playshop on Aug. 2-7, 1994.
527. But John Bennett Shaw reports that there will be a different event in Aug. 1993: a Sherlock Holmes conference at Santa Fe Community College, on Aug. 6-7, 1993. A similar gathering in 1991 was well-attended, and featured lectures by many of the local Sherlockians; out-of-town (and even out-of-state) visitors are expected in 1993, and you are invited to contact the Community Services Office, Santa Fe Community College, Box 4187, Santa Fe, NM 87502 (505-438-1251).
528. Richard Wein and Luci Zahray note that Sherlock Holmes appears prominently on the cover and in the pages of Thorarinn Gunnarsson's DRAGONS ON THE TOWN (New York: Ace Books, 1992; 295 pp., $4.99). "New York City attracts all kinds of strange people," according to the blurb. "Who would even *notice* Sherlock Holmes, a dragon, and a California ghost girl?"
529. William Shawn died on Dec. 8. He succeeded Harold Ross as editor of The New Yorker in 1952, and spent the next 35 years carefully maintaining the magazine's well-deserved literary reputation. It was in the Shawn years that authors such as Rachel Carson, John McPhee, J. D. Salinger, and John Updike wrote for the magazine, and when he left The New Yorker an editorial in the N.Y. Times noted that for several generations of writers, "winning the chance to work with William Shawn was like being asked to dance with Fred Astaire." Readers as well as writers will long remember his skills.
-
530. Dec 92 #6: The Baker Street Dispatch, now completing its second year of publication, offers a sales list of Sherlockiana, including a one-sheet calendar, rubber stamps, notepads, etc. (Thomas Biblewski, Box 5503, Toledo, OH 43613). And Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters NY 11718) has sent his new sales list, with sculpture, magazines, artwork, games, and other S'ian collectibles.
531. And another additional forecast for the New York birthday festivities: artist Steven Emmons has created a handsome series of full-color "posters that might have been" done in a striking turn-of-the-century style, and his original artwork and prints will be displayed and offered for sale at the Chisholm Gallery on Jan. 5-9 (noon to 7:00 pm) and Jan. 10 (2:00 to 6:00 pm). The gallery is at 43 Greenwich Avenue, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues and below 11th Street (and thus quite convenient for those who are wondering what to do just before or after the Saturdayafternoon cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue).
532. Uncle Ben's Consumer Pulse is an occasional four-page newsletter explaining how best to enjoy rice, and each issue includes a short dialogue between Mrs. Hudson and Sherlock Holmes on matters such as the mystery of how to cook perfect rice. There's no charge, and you can write to Uncle Ben's Inc., Box 740274, Houston, TX 77274.
533. CRIME FOR CHRISTMAS, edited by Richard Dalby (published in 1991 by Michael O'Mara Books in London) now has an American edition (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1992; 280 pp., $18.95); the anthology includes "The Blue Carbuncle" and other nicely seasonal crime stories by other authors.
534. An illustrated Christmas catalog at hand from Joseph M. Maddalena (Profiles in History, 345 North Maple Drive #202, Beverly Hills, CA 90210) (800-942-8856) offers some grand suggestions, including a first edition of GONE WITH THE WIND signed by Margaret Mitchell ($9,500); a first edition of DRACULA signed by Bram Stoker ($19,500); a reprint of THE ADVENTURES OF ROBIN HOOD signed by all the major actors in the 1938 movie, including Basil Rathbone ($15,000); Jane Taylor's HYMNS FOR INFANT MINDS, signed by Lizzie A. Borden ($6,500), and a page from the manuscript of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" ($35,000).
535. Reported: SHERLOCK HOLMES CASEBOOK (two audiocassettes) with "The Priory School" and "The Man with the Twisted Lip" read by John Barnes, new from Buckingham Classics (Box 597441, Chicago, IL 60659); $12.95.
536. The J. Peterman Company has in the past (Sep 90 #6) offered a "Baker Street Coat" (with removable shoulder cape) in 100% Melton wool at $580, and their 146-page Christmas 1992 mail-order catalog is full of interesting clothing and imaginative descriptions. One of the items, on page 129, is described as "the most fiendishly intelligent hat ever designed" (and with additional information written by someone who obviously knows the Canon well). It's a deerstalker, of course, in handwoven Irish tweed, priced at $64. And their address is 2444 Palumbo Drive, Lexington, KY 40509 (800-231-7341).
-
537. Dec 92 #7: Recently reported by Ron De Waal: GREAT TALES OF CRIME & DETECTION, edited by Charles Ardai, with an introduction by Robert Bloch and a foreword by John Lutz (New York: Galahad Books, 1991; 512 pp., $9.98); contents include "The Man with the Twisted Lip" and Mark Twain's "A Double-Barrelled Detective Story."
538. Paul Lester's earlier 20-page monograph on SHERLOCK HOLMES IN BIRMINGHAM (May 90 #6) has now been followed by his SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE MIDLANDS (Studley: Brewin Books, 1992; 124 pp., £9.95). And the new book offers a fine demonstration of the advantages the British have in following in the footsteps of Sherlock Holmes and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: there is much to be learned on the ground, and someone who knows the area well is far more likely to be able to follow the trails. And Lester has done just that, in a carefully-researched and well-illustrated volume that deservedly devotes more pages to ACD than to the Canon. It was in Shropshire that Conan Doyle first found a post as an unpaid medical assistant, and it was in Staffordshire that he investigated the charges against George Edalji, and the book covers many other connections to the region. The cost from the publisher is $30.00 postpaid (surface post), and their address is Doric House, Church Street, Studley, Warwickshire B80 7LG, England.
539. Yet another Canonical landmark has closed its doors. The Bow Street Police Station, described as Britain's "oldest cop shop" in the Nov. 1992 issue of the British Travel Letter (kindly forwarded by Betty Pierce), was 238 years old, and on closing day held an open house for the public, a concert by the Metropolitan Police Band in Covent Garden, and (in honor of the Bow Street Runners) a Truncheon Relay Race. Its cells once housed the likes of Oscar Wilde, Lord Haw Haw, and Hugh Boone, but seem to have escaped the attention of authors of Sherlockian travel guides.
540. HOLMES, SWEET HOLMES is a new one-act comedy written by Jim Sperinck, about the bewildered Bennington-Smythes, who can't quite find peace and quiet in their ground-floor flat at 221 Baker Street. Sherlock Holmes does not make an appearance, but he has more than enough to do offstage. The cost of the script is £3.00 postpaid (surface mail); payment in sterling preferred, but dollar checks accepted, and you can order from Jasper Publishing, 1 Broad Street, Hemel Hempstead, Herts. HP2 5BW, England.

541. British publishers continue to issue selections from the Canon edited for younger readers, and Macmillan has a long list of titles in their "Stories to Remember" series. The latest is THE GREATEST TALES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with four stories (Spec/Abbe/RedH/SixN) adapted by Kerry Edwards, and with a glossary (83 pp., £2.50).
542. Videotaper alert (for those who haven't taped it already): Peter Cushing's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959) will air on The Movie Channel on Jan. 4, 14, and 29.
543. It's not a new book, but it is well worth watching for: PLAYS BY WILLIAM HOOKER GILLETTE, edited by Rosemary Cullen and Don B. Wilmeth (Cambridge: Cambridge Univ. Press, 1983; 276 pp.), has scripts of "All the Comforts of Home", "Secret Service", and "Sherlock Holmes", and an introduction that offers an excellent survey of Gillette's life and career.
-
544. Dec 92 #8: THEY NEVER SAID IT: A BOOK OF FAKE QUOTES, MISQUOTES, AND MISLEADING ATTRIBUTIONS, by Paul F. Boller, Jr., and John George (New York: Oxford University Press, 1989; 159 pp., $6.95), is great fun to browse in, and does not neglect Sherlock Holmes (noting that it was Basil Rathbone, not Conan Doyle, who made the line, "Elementary, my dear Watson" so much a part of our language). There are misquotations in the Canon, of course, one of the misquoters being Sherlock Holmes himself ("They say that genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains"). Holmes was only one of many who use that quote, which usually is attributed to Thomas Carlyle and cited from his biography of Frederick the Great. William S. Baring-Gould reports in THE ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES what Carlyle actually wrote (see annotation 87 in "A Study in Scarlet"), and this is just the sort of thing that Bill Baring-Gould did so well. He certainly relied on the scholarship of his fellow-Sherlockians, but there is much of Bill himself in the book, not only in the commentary but also in the annotations. The ANNOTATED is in the bookshops now, with a list price of $29.95 (but often discounted to $19.95), and it is one of the very best ways there is to see how much fun so many people have had for so many years in the world of Sherlock Holmes.
545. It's not the only way, of course. Another way is to read The Baker Street Journal, which has now completed its 42nd year of presenting the very best of Sherlockian scholarship and wit and intelligence. Philip Shreffler has now completed his eighth year as editor of the BSJ, and has now turned the editor's chair and green eyeshade and whatever over to Bill Cochran. It is all too common at this point to suggest that someone's shoes will be hard to fill (perhaps a bit inappropriate when referring to an editorial chair), but we owe much to Philip for all the work that is all too often invisible to those who aren't quite sure just what it is that an editor really does.
546. For many of the early years the BSJ was almost the only way to participate in or merely watch the game that Sherlockians play. That's no longer true, since there are now many other periodicals in which our game is on display.
547. But none in which it will be seen so well. Those few readers of this newsletter who do not subscribe to the BSJ may (well, should, really) send your checks ($17.50 domestic or $20.00 foreign) to The Baker Street Journal, Box 465, Hanover, PA 17331.
548. The New Yorker, under new management, is now rather more colorful than it used to be, but it continues to give excellent coverage to what's available for Christmas presents. "On and Off the Avenue" (Nov. 30) noted an "anklelength Sherlock Holmes-style fir-green velvet wrapper for women, trimmed with green silk piping and with white quilted satin collar and cuffs," for $895 at Leron (750 Madison Avenue at 65th). And Andy Logan (who for many years has reported on politics at City Hall) noted in "Toys of the Times" (Dec. 7) that A Tisket a Tasket (212-967-9366) offers toy gift baskets for "rich kids of all ages," including a Sherlock basket ($200) with a handmade Sherlock marionette, a hardcover Sherlock book, a 221B Baker Street board game, a supply of English tea, and some cookies (or Irish whiskey cake, if it's going to an adult). And Tenzing & Pema (956 Madison Avenue at 75th) offers sets of "Authors" card games, including one for "Mystery Authors" with Conan Doyle shown on the box, priced quite reasonably at $2.95.

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 93 #1:

1. There have been many truly unusual Sherlockian productions in the performing arts, including a presentation of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in dance, mime, and music by the National Tap Dance Company of Canada in 1987. It is perhaps only appropriate that the same story, adapted into Cantonese, was presented by the Hong Kong Academy of Performing Arts at the Academy Studio Theatre in Hong Kong in December, when by pleasant coincidence Mike and Mary Ann Whelan were in Hong Kong and attended one of the seven performances of the play. Mike reports that they were able to follow most of the plot, and that in this production the Hound was actually seen on stage, and performed well.
  2. Pierre Culliford died on Dec. 24. He was a Belgian cartoonist who used the pen name "Peyo" and was best known as the inventor of the Smurfs, the small blue creatures who have starred in more than 250 animations and who at one time were getting better Nielsen ratings on Saturday mornings than "Dallas" did in prime time. The animations are produced by Hanna-Barbera, and in an 11-minute segment titled "The Village Vandal" you will find Brainy Smurf in appropriate costume as Sherlock Smurf.
  3. Our new "Happy New Year!" stamp honors the oriental year of the rooster (that's the lunar year 4691), and it is unfortunately true that the Canon contains no mention of a rooster. But perhaps we can stretch things a bit to include: "'It is Lestrade's little cock-a-doodle of victory,' Holmes answered, with a bitter smile." (Norw)
  4. It appears that no one has attempted to find Ray Hendrickson's translation of the Musgrave Ritual into Greek in the Sept. 1966 issue of the BSJ (Apr 92 #8). Well, at least no one has pointed out that it isn't to be found in that issue. But it *will* be found on p. 183 of the July 1958 issue.
  5. Sorry about that: Sterling Holloway did die on Nov. 22 (Dec 92 #2), and he did indeed play all those fine roles in all those fine Disney films, but he was not easily recognizable as the 1st Gravedigger in "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970). That actor, as Jon Lellenberg has observed, was Stanley Holloway.
  6. Recommended by Vivian Heisler: VALLEY OF FEAR, read by Christopher Lee on a two-audiocassette set from Listen for Pleasure. "Lee makes it sound like an entire cast!"
  7. Remsen Ten Eyck Schenck ("The Tarleton Murders") died in Mar. 1992. He was an expert chemist by profession, and his avocations included beekeeping and cryptanalysis, and his contributions to our literature reflected all three interests. He received his Investiture in 1954, and his most widely-known work was his completion of the alphabet of the dancing men, first published in the Apr. 1955 issue of the BSJ, and still used by many Sherlockians. He also was responsible for a delightful bibliofoax: THE PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF BEE CULTURE, dated 1911 and published in an edition so limited that the few fortunate recipients were warned not to reveal the source of what still is one of the rarest and most imaginative Sherlockian books.
-
8. Jan 93 #2: The birthday festivities in New York were (as usual) enjoyable, and entertaining. The informal events on Thursday included the Annual Christopher Morley Walk, a meeting of The Pawky Humorists, and the traditional (it only takes two) Aunt Clara Sing at O'Lunney,s Steak House. Friday started with the Mrs. Hudson Breakfast at the Hotel Algonquin and continued with the William Gillette Luncheon at the Old Homestead, where Mr.

- Gillette (impersonated by Tyke Niver) offered a warm welcome, and Paul Singleton and Andrew and Sarah Montague Joffe performed an excerpt from the Gillette play "Clarice". And Otto Penzler offered hospitality (and S'ian books) at his open house at the Mysterious Bookshop.
9. The Baker Street Irregulars gathered at 24 Fifth Avenue, where *The* Woman was Mary Ann Bradley Whelan, who was toasted by Al Rosenblatt during the pre-dinner cocktail party and then departed to dine at the National Arts Club with other ladies who have received that honor. And there were other ladies on hand, of course, and one member of the BSI who didn't attend last year, and who obviously doesn't read either the BSI or this newsletter, and who quietly asked me whether "something had changed."
  10. The agenda included the usual toasts and other traditions (with one signal departure, when Steve Rothman toasted the second coming of Watson's first wife, followed by Bob Katz's promise of a rebuttal next year), Ralph Hall's detailed and expert discussion of Canonical insects, Joe Fink's account of the rise and fall of Prof. James Moriarty, and a tribute by Bob Mangler and Bob Hahn to Vincent Starrett.
  11. And Irregular Shillings and Investitures were awarded to Jean-Pierre Cagnat ("The Bank of France"), Fred Levin ("Abe Slaney"), Eve Titus ("Young Master Rucastle"), Shirley Dickensheet ("Ivy Douglas"), Joe Eckrich ("The Stockbroker's Clerk"), and Yuichi Hirayama ("The Japanese Vase"). And the Queen Victoria Medal was presented to Philip Shreffler, in recognition of all his hard work as editor of The Baker Street Journal.
  12. The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes also dined on Friday evening, at Le Max, where the agenda included Karen Johnson's explanation of the language of the fan, Francine and Wayne Swift's joint presentation on how Sherlock Holmes' attitude toward the fair sex changed as he grew older, and Susan Diamond's revelation that the Master sired the King (in close association with Wallis Simpson, their issue being Elvis Presley). ASH investitures, accompanied by newly-created and highly artistic certificates decorated by Linda Crane, were awarded to Susan Diamond ("Lone Star"), Marilynne McKay ("The Great Dermatologist"), Cate Pfeifer ("Mary Morstan"), Maryellen Utecht ("The Countess of Morcar"), and Dorothy Stix (to be announced).
  13. On Saturday morning the huckster room at the Algonquin was well attended, and all of the participants in the Rache Subway Rally survived the event (according to its organizer Don Izban). The Saturday-afternoon cocktail party at 24 Fifth Avenue also was well attended, and the agenda included poetic reports by Al Rosenblatt and Ev Herzog on the Friday-night dinners, an auction on behalf of the Dr. John H. Watson Fund, and a spirited reading by Philip Brogdon of one of the fine Sherlockian poems written by the late J. W. Sovine. And the Chisholm Gallery stayed open after the party, so that visitors could view Steven Emmons' attractive Sherlockian posters.
-
14. Jan 93 #3: The Dr. John H. Watson Fund offers financial assistance to all Sherlockians (membership in the BSI or the ASH is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the weekend's festivities. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the fund and welcomes contributions, which can be made by check payable to John H. Watson and mailed (without return address on the envelope) to Dr. Watson, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., who will happily forward the checks unopened. Dr. Watson will acknowledge your generosity, and Tom's address is 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
  15. Some interesting material was on display and on offer in the hucksters' room on Saturday morning, as always, including "antique character photoartifacts" created by Kevin Gordon; they are Sherlockian, imaginative, decorative, and difficult to describe (such as the King of Bohemia's note to Holmes mounted and framed with a photograph of someone who might well have been the King of Bohemia). Mr. Gordon offers an illustrated flier, and his address is 340 West 89th Street, New York, NY 10024-2144).
  16. Jon Lellenberg has forwarded a copy of a letter to the Edinburgh Evening News from Edinburgh district councillor James S. Tait, whose complaint in 1987 that the city had been derelict in failing to honor one of her famous sons led eventually to the installation of a statue of Sherlock Holmes in Edinburgh. Mr. Tait's new campaign seeks public support for his proposal to the district council for a permanent exhibition/museum devoted to the life and work of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
  17. Also an item from the [London] Sunday Mirror with the headline "Sherlock reaches sexy new peaks" and a lead that states that "Sherlock Holmes is in for a raunchy image change." Sherlock Holmes is described as "a dark and sexy secret service agent serving Her Majesty the Queen" in a new novel by "Twin Peaks" co-creator Mark Frost, and LIST OF SEVEN has been snapped up for a film. The book is reported to center on how Arthur Conan Doyle met the man who inspired him to write the Victorian classic.
  18. The new movie "Chaplin" (directed by Richard Attenborough and with Robert Downey, Jr., as Charlie Chaplin) is an excellent film, but it skips from Chaplin's childhood to his going to work for Fred Karno, and thus has no mention of Chaplin's acting with William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes".
  19. Further to the videotaper alert (Nov 92 #4) about "In Search of...Sherlock Holmes" on A&E cable on Dec. 31: it didn't air here, or anywhere else. But it may, some day, somewhere... In the meantime, Richard Wein reports that it can be found at Blockbuster video shops (in the documentary section) as one of three programs on a cassette called "In Search of Jack the Ripper".
  20. Three collections of Sherlockiana written by members of The Speckled Band of Boston are still available, from J. Devereux deGozzaldi, Graystone Farm, 79 Frankland Road, Hopkinton, MA 01748 (all prices postpaid): THE FOURTH CAB (1976) and THE BEST OF THE CABS (1980) in paper ($8.00 each), and THE FIFTH CAB (1988) in paper ($15.00). Also available are Mark Faverman's handsome full-color poster honoring the 50th anniversary of the Band in 1990 ($12.50), the society's gold-washed sterling pin (#$35.00), and the society's silk necktie in maroon or navy blue ($20.00 or two for $35.00).
-
21. Jan 93 #4: Tyke Niver reports that L. L. Bean (800-221-4221) advertises a "Classic Bread Mix and Baker" kit (item F376KL) for $26.50, and that the loaf pan is made by the Henry Watson Pottery in England (founded 1800). Tyke suggests that Henry certainly might be related to John H., and having tried the kit, attests that the bread is delicious.
  22. CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE ADVENTURE OF THE COPPER BEECHES ($2.50) is in the comic-book shops; it's the fourth issue in the series from Tome Press (a division of Caliber Press), with a reprint of Daniel Day's artwork from 1987. Tome's address is 621-B South Main Street, Plymouth, MI 48170.
  23. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #19 ($11.00) has two more of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows ("The Book of Tobit" and "Murder Beyond the Mountains"), with scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher ("The Book of Tobit" was Boucher's first contribution to the series). Series announcer Harry Bartell provides new introductions, and two interviews with Mycroft Holmes (played by Elliott Reid).
  24. The twelfth annual Sherlock Holmes/Conan Doyle Symposium at Wright State University in Dayton will be held on Mar. 13-14, 1993. Contact: Alvin E. Rodin, 3041 Maginn Drive, Beavercreek, OH 45385.
  25. The Serpentine Muse is the quarterly journal published by The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes, and always of interest. Joe Fink's inspired report on "The Pregnancy of Irene Adler" will be found in the current issue (winter 1992), and subscriptions cost $10.00 a year, from Evelyn A. Herzog, 360 West 21st Street #5-A, New York, NY 10011-3310.

26. And there's a report from Image Entertainment that "The Baskerville Curse" (the animation with the voice of Peter O'Toole as Holmes) is now available on laserdisc (suggested retail $24.95).
27. The seventh volume of Beeman's Christmas Annual is available (the cost is $10.00 postpaid, and you can order from The Occupants of the Empty House, 105 Wilcox, Zeigler, IL 62999); published as a well-deserved tribute to Bartlett D. Simms, the 30-page booklet has reminiscences about Bart from some of his friends, reprints of some of his own scholarship, and a short pastiche by Sundar Narayan.
28. "The Master Blackmailer" (Granada's two-hour version of "Charles Augustus Milverton") may not be broadcast on "Mystery!" on PBS-TV on Mar. 25, if it turns out to be more than a mere rumor that six new "Inspector Morse" shows will air starting on that date. The rest of the rumor is that "The Master Blackmailer" will be broadcast in two parts in May.
29. AMUSING, HOLMES! is a collection of Sherlockian humor perpetrated by Norman M. Davis, and unfortunately there are only 123 pages in the book. One can judge how good it is by the fact that John Bennett Shaw, in his Foreword, readily admits that he has read the book twice (and anyone who has visited John's library knows that he doesn't have time to read many books more than once). Or you can try to read aloud "Introducing Sherlock Holmes?" without laughing. Recommended. $14.95 postpaid (or $18.00 outside the U.S.) from the Grosvenor Square Press, 2215 Davis Street, Blue Island, IL 60406.

---

30. Jan 93 #5: Pat Ward has sent an article from The Economist (Jan. 16) with more news on a government proposal to close St. Bartholomew's Hospital (Nov 92 #6). It appears that Bart's is the hospital-of-choice of the upper classes, and that Prime Minister Major is wavering on the issue, "worried by criticism from loyal Tories and stung by the 1.5 million signatures which have arrived in Downing Street."
31. Pat also reports that John Thaw is now a C.B.E. (Commander of the British Empire. He played Jonathan Small in Granada's "The Sign of Four" and the title role in "Inspector Morse" (and insists that the series now on the air in Britain will be his last as Morse). Roy Marsden also is insisting that he has filmed his last show as Adam Dalgliesh.
32. Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119) is continuing to send monthly price lists of offers from his Sherlockian collection; if you would like to receive the lists, you need only write to Joe.
33. Sorry about that: the name of the artist who designed the imaginative twocolor poster (11 x 17") for the Gasfitters Ball in Pasadena (Dec 92 #2) is Todd V. Titterud. But I got the price and the address right: copies of the poster, numbered and signed by the artist, are available from Jerry Kegley, 110 El Nido #41, Pasadena, CA 91107 ($10.00 postpaid).
34. Parodies of the Rathbone/Bruce films aren't seen all that often, but the 30-minute ABC-TV series "Doogie Howser, M.D." offered one on Jan. 20, with Neil Patrick Harris (Doogie) and Max Casella (Vinnie) Holmes and Watson in a black-and-white echo of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939). It will surely repeat later in the season, and is worth watching for (Holmes and Watson are mentioned in the TV Guide listing).
35. "In any case, at least in fiction, some collectors may not necessarily be of the finest moral character: the more villainous of both Sherlock Holmes' and Father Brown's adversaries tended to be avid collectors." Spotted by Al Rosenblatt in a "Special Report on Fine Arts and Specie Insurance: Careful Handling Required for Intriguing 'Collectibles'" in Lloyds List (Aug. 18, 1992).
36. Another plug for the facsimile of the manuscript of "The Adventure of the Lion's Mane" published by the City of Westminster and The Sherlock Holmes Society of London (Sep 92 #6). This story offers more opportunities than most to see an author change his mind, and some unpublished clues as to the location of Holmes' retirement villa, and the afterword by Richard Lancelyn Green's is a helpful guide to this sort of research. Available in a deluxe edition ($200) and a standard edition ($60) from Sherlock Holmes Facsimile, Marylebone Library, Marylebone Road, London NW1 5PS, England (checks should be payable to City of Westminster).
37. The New York bookshop Books of Wonder is continuing its series of classics for children in well-illustrated editions (in 1988 they reissued THE WHITE COMPANY with splendid artwork by N. C. Wyeth), and their latest title is THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with twelve new full-color illustrations by the famous artist Barry Moser and an afterword by Peter Glassman (New York: Books of Wonder/William Morrow, 1992; 342 pp., $20.00).

---

38. Jan 93 #6: One of the nicest features of Chris Steinbrunner's THE FILMS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Dec 91 #5) is his enthusiasm for and enjoyment of the films he wrote about, and the splendid way in which he shared that enthusiasm and enjoyment. And Roger Johnson's new 'READY WHEN YOU ARE, MR. RATHBONE' is a similar appreciation of the Universal series. Subtitled as a review of those films, it is far more than that, offering a splendid look at the grand fun the series has given many generations of Sherlockians. It is a nicely-illustrated 48-page pamphlet, and costs £6.00 or $12.00 (dollar payments in cash, please) postpaid from David Stuart Davies, Overdale, 69 Greenhead Road, Huddersfield, W. Yorks. HD1 3ER, England.
39. David L. Hammer's THE WORTH OF THE GAME: BEING A FINAL TRAVEL GUIDE TO THE ENGLAND OF SHERLOCK HOLMES is, one hopes, mistitled. Not that the game is not worth this sort of enthusiastic pursuit, but rather because his books are so much fun to read. He has led us through England thrice, now, and through North America once, and it will be a pity if his readers now must wait until he tours the rest of the world. Or changes his mind about some of the identifications he has made in England. THE WORTH OF THE GAME is written with style, humor, and erudition, and is a grand example of how one can be a Sherlockian traveler, either on the ground or through the eyes of an author who long ago learned to observe what's important. The book has 371 pp. in paper covers, and costs $21.70 postpaid from the Gasogene Press, Box 1041, Dubuque, IA 52001-1041.
40. Schlosser's (attn: John Hickman, 4833 Bethesda Avenue, Bethesda, MD 20814) offers an illustrated sales list of Sherlockiana: statues, canes, teapots, steins, chess sets, ceramic wall masks, tankards, Royal Doulton jugs, and much more.
41. Fred Fondren's play "Sherlock Holmes and the Warburton Conspiracy" is being performed off-off-Broadway through Feb. 27 at the Prometheus Theatre (239 East 5th Street in New York) (212-477-8689); TH-SA 8:00 pm and SU 7:00 pm.
42. You might ask your doctor to give you the Jan. 1993 issue of MD magazine, spotted by Gideon Hill, which has a long essay by editor-in-chief Gerald Weissmann on Conan Doyle and Holmes, and a reprint of Joseph Bell's review of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES in The Bookman.
43. According to my records, you all now should have my seasonal souvenir for 1993 (WHERE DID HE LIVE, THEN?), received during the birthday festivities in New York, or since, or with this mailing. If I missed someone, please let me know.
44. And a few commercials: the revised 15-page list of Investitured Irregulars, Two-Shilling Awards, *The* Women, and the Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes costs $1.10 postpaid. The 67-page list of 610 Sherlockian societies, with names and addresses for contacts for the 375 active societies, costs $3.55 postpaid. A run of address labels for 323 individual contacts (recommended if you wish to avoid making duplicate mailings to people who are contacts for more than one society) costs $10.25 postpaid. Checks payable to Peter E. Blau, please.

---

45. Feb 93 #1: David Stuart Davies reports, via Roger Johnson, that Theme Publications, in financial difficulties last year, have found a buyer and expect to publish the next issue of The Sherlock Holmes Gazette this spring, with Elizabeth Wiggins continuing as editor.

46. If you would like to have even more gossip from Britain, Roger Johnson does an excellent job in The District Messenger, publishing two or four pages at approximately monthly intervals. The cost is $10.00 for twelve issues sent by airmail, and you can send dollar checks (payable to Jean Upton) to Roger Johnson, Mole End, 41 Sandford Road, Chelmsford, Essex CM2 6DE, England.
47. Andy Peck reports a new addition to the list of non-Sherlockian books with Sherlockian titles: THE EMPTY HOUSE, by Rosamunde Pilcher. According to a book-club's newsletter blurb, "A young widow returns to Cornwall to rent a battered seaside cottage for her children and herself...and to discover if she can fill an empty house with love."
48. The Sherlock Holmes Memorabilia Company (230 Baker Street, London NW1 5RT, England) has a new flier, illustrated in full color, showing their S'ian teapots, jugs, Zippo lighters, pocket cups, card cases, playing cards, etc.
49. A new commemorative in our Black Heritage series honors Percy Lavon Julian, industrial chemist who developed a successful treatment for glaucoma in 1935. And his extensive research on the soybean yielded a weatherproof covering for battleships, a male sex hormone, and Aero-Foam (used in fire extinguishers). His glaucoma treatment utilized the synthesis of physostigmine (which in its natural form has been suggested by George Koelle Ruthann Stetak as a candidate for the poison used by Jefferson Hope in "A Study in Scarlet").
50. Tom Kowols reports that the Chicago Tribune reports that Paramount plans to issue "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Sign of Four" on videocassettes in 1993, at $60.00 each. No details available, but it might be safe to assume that these will be the Ian Richardson television films that ran on HBO in 1983.
51. "Sherlock Holmes: Victorian Sleuth to Modern Hero" is the title of the conference that will be held at Bennington College in Vermont on June 23-26, 1994, under the sponsorship of The Baker Street Breakfast Club, Bennington College, and the Vermont Council on the Humanities. Copies of the call for papers, which also serves as a preliminary announcement, are available from Joseph A. Cutshall King, Box 304, North Bennington, VT 05257.
52. Sorry about that: the item (Dec 92 #4) about the 54-mm full-color Sherlock Holmes figurines from Little Lead Soldiers in England should have said that there are two sets: one with Holmes and five other nice people, and another with Moriarty and five other not-so-nice people. The sets cost $58.00 each (postpaid), from Jim Hillestad (The Toy Soldier, Paradise Falls, RR #1, Box 379, Cresco, PA 19326); if you would like to see high-quality photographs of the figurines, just send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Jim.

---

53. Feb 93 #2: At hand from Jon Lellenberg is an article from the [Edinburgh] Scotsman (Dec. 29, 1992), in which Victor Price reported on his discovery, while attending a small music festival in Feldkirch, that Arthur Conan Doyle studied for a year at the Stella Matutina when he was 16 years old. The school is now a music conservatory, and local Holmes enthusiasts are planning to install a plaque honoring Conan Doyle, hoping "to lure to their town members of the Sherlock Holmes Society visiting the nearby Fall of Reichenbach."
54. And a note from the Reading Evening Post (Jan. 6) about a visit by a party of Holmesians led by Philip Weller to Reading to visit the city's historic sites, such as the Forbury Gardens Lion, which commemorates the 1880 battle of Maiwand, in which Dr. Watson was wounded. And according to the Evening Post, "the stories say he was then flown back to Britain, where he teamed up with Holmes to form the famous detective duo."
55. And an article from The Guardian (Jan. 7) about the annual report from the Public Lending Right Office, which keeps track of payments due to authors whose books are borrowed from public libraries (authors now receive 1.86p for each library loan up to a maximum of £6,000). The five most-borrowed authors last year were: Catherine Cookson, Agatha Christie, Danielle Steel, Dick Francis, and Ruth Rendell. The list of "classic authors" (presumably those dead long enough not to collect payments) is headed by Thomas Hardy, followed by Tolkien, Dickens, Milne, Austen, Lawrence, Trollope, Kipling, Orwell, and Conan Doyle.
56. And who is Catherine Cookson? And what sort of books does she write, to be the most-borrowed author in Britain? She writes romantic novels, nearly a hundred of them since 1955.
57. In other news from Britain, reports of an outbreak of horse mutilations in Hampshire and Buckinghamshire have appeared in the American press as well: at least 30 horses have been slashed and sexually abused in the past year, and British papers have noted the case of George Edalji, and the part that Conan Doyle played in helping to exonerate Edalji.
58. Reported by John Baesch: the latest mail-order catalog from the BBC offers THE MODERN SHERLOCK HOLMES (London: Broadside Books, 1991; 96 pp. £14.95). The book is based on a two part series that was broadcast by the BBC World Service in 1991, and discusses the advances made in modern forensic science (with illustrations by Sidney Paget and modern artists). Their address is: BBC World Service Mail Order, Box 76, Bush House, London WC2B 4PH, England; shipping costs extra, and they take plastic.
59. "Ship in a Bottle" aired on "Star Trek: The Next Generation" almost everywhere at the end of January, and if you didn't see it, it's worth watching for when it repeats. The program opened with Data as Holmes and Geordi as Watson on the holodeck, and brought Moriarty (again played by Daniel Davis) back from computer memory in an imaginative script by Rene Echevarria. If holodeck-engineer Lt. Barclay seemed familiar, that was Dwight Schultz, who was Maj. Alistair Ross on stage in "The Crucifer of Blood" (1978), and then played Bassick in Langella's "Sherlock Holmes" on HBO (1981) and "Howling Mad" Murdoch in "The A Team" on NBC.

---

60. Feb 93 #3: Bruce B. Newhall's three-act musical comedy "Sheerluck" had its premiere in Apr. 1980 at the Pleasant Ridge Presbyterian Youth Church in Cincinnati, and it's a pleasant vehicle for youthful Sherlockian actors. It has been updated twice, most recently in 1991 when it was published. The script costs $4.25 and the music $10.00 (both prices include shipping), and the performance royalty is $25.00. Mr. Newhall's address is 8470 Denallen Drive, Cincinnati, OH 45255-2601.
61. The fifth annual Canonical Convocation and Caper in Door County, Wis., will be held on Sept. 17-19, 1993. If you would like to be on the mailing list, write to Jane Richardson, 3456 Exchange Road, Crete, IL 60417.
62. Plan ahead: the third annual Mid-Atlantic Mystery Book Fair and Convention will be held in Philadelphia on Nov. 12-14, 1993. Membership is limited to 350, full registration costs $40.00, and you can contact Deen and Jay Kogan at Detecto-Mysterioso Books, 507 South 8th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19147.
63. Paul H. Brundage (2632 Central Court, Union City, CA 94587-3128) publishes an occasional newsletter called The Appledore Tower, available in return for your name and address and a first-class-postage stamp.
64. Bouchercon XXIII in Toronto in Oct. 1992 had a Sherlockian event: "Holmage to Sherlock" was a one-hour session featuring L. B. Greenwood discussing Holmes, Conan Doyle, and her own novel-length pastiches. An audiocassette of the session (#45) is available for $8.75 postpaid from On Site Taping, 29318 Quail Run, Agoura Hills, CA 91301.
65. Richard Tuttle has supplied names and addresses of some companies that sell movie posters and stills (originals or reproductions): Film Favorites, Box 133, Canton, OK 73724; Jerry Ohlinger Movie Materials Store, 242 West 14th Street, New York, NY 10011; Theater Poster Exchange, Box 27621, Memphis, TN 38127; and Movie Star News, 134 West 18th Street, New York, NY 10011.

66. The Sherlock Holmes Society of London offers copies of the guidebooks for its weekend excursions in 1991 (THE TRI-METALLIC QUESTION) and 1992 (HOUND AND HORSE) for $33.00 each (checks payable to The Sherlock Holmes Society of London); the books are fine collections of essays and articles related to the areas toured (Winchester and Dartmoor). And Prudence Moran Swift's pamphlet THE HOUND'S TALE is a more light-hearted souvenir of the Dartmoor excursion, and costs $7.00 (checks payable to Francine Swift). All prices postpaid, and orders can be sent to Francine and Wayne Swift, 4622 Morgan Drive, Chevy Chase, MD 20815-5315.
67. Peter J. Crupe (1533 64th Street, Brooklyn, NY 11219-5709) offers the lapel pin for The Montague Street Lodgers (black and red on white, with gold trim) for $7.00 postpaid.
68. Peter also reports that Conan Doyle's story "The New Catacomb" is included in HIGH ADVENTURE, edited by Cynthia Manson and Charles Arday (New York: Barnes and Noble, 1992; $9.98). Also that Movieline (1141 South Beverly Drive, Los Angeles, CA 90035) offers a set of twelve 11 x 14" color prints from "Star Trek: The Next Generation" with one showing Data in Sherlockian costume; $14.45 postpaid, and their toll-free number is 800-521-1951.
-
69. Feb 93 #4: Barbara and Christopher Roden are considering the possibility of establishing an Amateur Publishing Association (APA) devoted to informal discussion of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's writings, both Sherlockian and non-Sherlockian, with six mailings a year and a limit of 25 members in the Conan Doyle APA. Additional information is available from the Rodens at (Ashcroft, 2 Abbottsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester CH4 0JG, England).
70. William Pšne du Bois died on Feb. 5. He was a well-known author and illustrator of children's books, winning a Newberry Award for THE TWENTY-ONE BALLOONS in 1948, and the impressive strength and delightful humor of his artwork were an important part of the new edition of Conan Doyle's THE POISON BELT published by Macmillan in 1964.
71. Reported by Dick Lesh: Conan Doyle's short story "How It Happened" is reprinted in CAR TALES, edited by Jane Gottlieb (New York: Viking, 1991; 102 pp.) item #900893 in the mail-order catalog from Edward Hamilton, Falls Village, CT 06031-5000; $3.95 plus shipping.
72. Another laserdisc reported: "Chip 'n' Dale: Danger Rangers /Super Sleuths" from Walt Disney Home Video, with the 1989 television animation "Pound of the Baskervilles".
73. David R. McCallister, who founded The Baker Street Bar Association in 1991, prepared a key-chain fob as a souvenir for the birthday weekend this year, and offers them to souvenir-hunters; just send $0.25 and an SASE to David at 8142 Quail Hollow Boulevard, Wesley Chapel, FL 33544.
74. Granada's two-hour "The Last Vampyre" aired in Britain on Jan. 27, and the two-hour "The Mistress of Glaven" (based on "The Noble Bachelor") on Feb. 3. According to one of our distant correspondents, the two shows "are, in a word, garbage. In two words, complete trash. In three words, waste of time." But there was some praise for Edward Hardwicke, who in the first broadcast "seemed to be the only person who remembered he was in a Holmes story, and at times it was as if he was acting in a completely different show. I wish Granada had shown more of whatever it was he was in."
75. C. Bryan Gassner, who presides over The Shadows of the Elm at the Arroyo del Oso Elementary School in Albuquerque, N.M., assisted her students in presenting half-hour adaptations of "The Norwood Builder" (in 1991) and "Charles Augustus Milverton" (in 1992). The plays were nicely done, and are available on videocassettes ($7.50 each or $12.00 for both shows on one cassette, postpaid), with an assembly of out-takes from both shows included at no additional charge. And The Shadows of the Elm are now hard at work on this year's play ("The Red-Headed League"). Mrs. Gassner's address is: 922 Washington Street SE, Albuquerque, NM 87108).
76. The Arthur Conan Doyle Society is planning a Doylean weekend in Toronto in 1994; if you want additional details, please contact the Society (Ashcroft, 2 Abbottsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester CH4 0JG, England). Also available from the Society are back issues of their journal A.C.D. ($10.00 each for the first five issues, and $15.00 for the sixth, postpaid by surface mail).
-
77. Feb 93 #5: Philip Weller, managing director of The Franco-Midland Hardware Company, reports in the latest issue of The Baker Street Pillar Box that the owner of Groombridge Place will open its gardens to the public this year. Groombridge, acknowledged by Conan Doyle to have inspired the moated manor house of Birlstone (Sir Arthur not only visited Groombridge, but was accused of stealing its ghost), can also be seen to good advantage in the Peter Greenaway film "The Draughtsman's Contract" (1983).
78. And George Welch reports, via Roger Johnson, that the British post office plans to issue a set of stamps honoring Sherlock Holmes in 1994.
79. Check your local comic-book shops for SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE CURIOUS CASE OF THE VANISHING VILLAIN, discovered by Tim O'Connor, with story by Gordon Rennie and colorful artwork by Woodrow Phoenix. The cover price is $4.50, and the publisher is Tundra (The Flag Store, Jubilee Yard, Queen Elizabeth Street, London SE1 2LP, England). Part of the story was published earlier in the Dec. 1991 issue of Blast! (a rather short-lived British comic book), and the new comic book is well worth some searching: the imaginative story begins with Dr. Henry Jekyll asking Sherlock Holmes' help in finding Edward Hyde, who has vanished from the pages of Robert Louis Stevenson's book.
80. In 1991 Canada issued a set of four stamps honoring doctors, and one of them was Dr. Harold R. Griffith (1894-1985), who is noted for being the first to use curare as an anesthetic during surgery. And thanks to Patrick Campbell, here's what the stamp looked like; this may be as close as we ever get to a stamp showing curare ("If the child were pricked with one of those arrows dipped in curare or some other devilish drug, it would mean death if the venom were not sucked out.").
81. Paul C. Merz (Sandpiper Books, Box 1273, Long Beach, WA 98631) has issued a new catalog with a fine section of Sherlockiana, including thoroughly rare items such as four issues of Maximilian Lucke's parodies about HERR LOCK SHOLMES DER AMATEUR DETECTIV (published in German in Oregon in 1917//1921) and a copy of the G. Washington Coffee edition of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES in the company's original cardboard mailer. Many items will surely have been sold by the time you read this, but you might want to ask for a copy of Paul's next catalog.
82. Carolyn and Joel Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219) offer a new catalog of Sherlockiana (in-print books and scripts, audiocassettes, bookmarks, photographs of Rathbone and Brett). Edward C. Rochette (Sherlock, Stock & Barrel, Box 8261, Colorado Springs, CO 80933-8261) also has a new catalog of S'ian collectibles (bookends, sculpture, lapel pins, etc.).
83. Videotape alert: "The Lost World" (1925) will air on cable on AMC on Mar. 13 at 5:00 am. This is the version that stars Wallace Beery as Challenger, with grand stop-motion dinosaurs by Willis H. O'Brien (who went on to much bigger things in "King Kong"). It's listed at 56 minutes, which means that it's even shorter than the 71-minute version available on cassette, but AMC generally has interesting forewords and afterwords. And perhaps some day someone will discover a negative or print of the uncut 106-minute version.
-
84. Feb 93 #6: A catalog from Ralph Spurrier, at Post Mortem Books in England, offers an interesting copy of the Catalogue of the Collection at The Sherlock Holmes, with a note on the half title page in D. Martin Dakin's hand stating: "Copies withdrawn. This is an original copy, before infringement of copywrite [sic] rules were discovered." I know that there were at least six stated printings of the catalogue, but was unaware of a suppressed issue; does anyone have details on what was suppressed?

85. Bouchercon XXIV will be in Omaha on Oct. 1-3, 1993 (Box 540516, Omaha, NE 68154-0516), and Bouchercon XXV will be in Seattle on Oct. 6-9, 1994 (Box 1095, Renton, WA 98057). The competition for Bouchercon XXVI was won by Nottingham, in England (the other competitors were Miami and Washington).
86. A new postal card in the Historic Preservation Series shows the Wren Building at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, where The Cremona Fiddlers held S'ian workshops in 1987 and 1991. John Bennett Shaw led the 1987 event; the sites of three Shaw workshops have now been honored by postal cards (Notre Dame and Stanford are the others).
87. And, to fill some space, here's an opportunity to test your logical powers. Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty have been playing cards. Each of them now has a different number of cards, and together the three of them have a total of twenty cards. Watson has the most cards, and Holmes has the fewest cards. Moriarty asks Watson if he can deduce how many cards each of the three has, and Watson replies that he cannot do so. Holmes then announces the correct answer. Can you deduce what the correct answer is?
88. Spotted by Jennie Paton in Christopher Morley's "Trade Winds" column in the Saturday Review of Literature (May 2, 1936): a report that James F. Drake, Inc., celebrated the Fishing Season by offering ($250) a 20-page manuscript by Conan Doyle, that had an excellent fish story. "Doyle, meeting a braggart angler, wagered that his own last catch was the bigger. The weight of Doyle's take was 200 tons. They were whales." ACD told the story in print in "Some Recollections of Sport" in the Strand (Sept. 1909), and again in MEMORIES AND ADVENTURES (1924), and the manuscript likely is the one titled "Some Reminiscences of Sport" (owned by the Free Library of Philadelphia).
89. This is, of course, a world where it is always 1886, at least during 1993, in case you didn't notice that fact when you examined the calendar enclosed with last month's newsletter. I still have a few copies of Andrew Fusco's imaginative seasonal souvenir, in case anyone needs one.
90. Al and Julie Rosenblatt's splendid 20-page souvenir menu for "An Evening in Scarlet" at the Culinary Institute of America on May 16, 1987, handsomely devised, designed, and produced, with many illustrations, annotations, and explanations, is still available for $18.00 postpaid (with checks payable to Peter E. Blau, please).
-
91. Mar 93 #1: No, it wasn't "The Mistress of Glaven" (a title picked up from a photograph caption, and one that seemed a bit more sensible than the one that Granada actually used for its version of "The Noble Bachelor"). The Granada title was "The Eligible Bachelor" (but at least I got "The Last Vampyre" right). The two television programs, preceded by a full-scale press campaign that included a suggestion that there might be a new program in the works as a Christmas special. Press reviews were mixed, and many reviewers noted the problems involved in expanding stories into a two-hour format (Nancy Banks-Smith suggested in the Guardian that "a decent dairymaid of a story was tarted up as a painted hussy of a film, trolloping about with shrieks and gibbering and sexual innuendo").
92. The reviews also indicate that Jeremy Brett has not achieved ownership of the role of Sherlock Holmes in Britain in the same way that he appears to here, possibly because the two new shows aired in the slot just vacated by "Inspector Morse" (the series has ended and was widely mourned, with much credit given to John Thaw for his fine acting). Sean Day-Lewis suggested in the Sunday Telegraph that "the strength of Sherlock Holmes is that his unique stature makes him actor proof," and predicted that screen variations of Sherlock Holmes "will continue to multiply as the risibly melodramatic detective created by Jeremy Brett is set aside as an eccentric footnote."
93. Well, you can't please everyone, as someone once said. The on-going BBC Radio 4 series starring Clive Merrison and Michael Williams, warmly praised by Sherlockians, was recently savaged in the Manchester Evening News by a reviewer who argued that "Doyle's original dialogue is so pompous, circumlocutory, and stilted that after five minutes of it one doesn't give a damn which one of the duo is mouthing," and demanded a moratorium on Sherlock Holmes dramatizations for the next 20 years.
94. All those clippings were kindly provided by Jon Lellenberg, along with news that Stonyhurst College is celebrating its 400th anniversary. Stonyhurst is the oldest Jesuit college in the English-speaking world, founded in 1593 at St. Omer in France, and having been relocated in Bruges and Liege before arriving at its present site in 1794, and its anniversary fund-raising campaign has raised more than £2 million. Stonyhurst's students have included 22 saints and martyrs, seven winners of the Victoria Cross, actor Charles Laughton, Gen. Vernon Walters (who has served as American ambassador under seven different presidents), and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
95. Not all of the British reviewers are unkind to Sherlockian dramatizations. Russell Twisk, in a review from the Observer at hand from Malcolm Payne, gives high marks to the ongoing Merrison/Williams radio series, and to a new series of six programs on BBC Radio 5 called "The Unopened Casebook of Sherlock Holmes" (written by John Taylor, with Simon Callow as Holmes and Nicky Henson as Watson). These are new stories, "more vivid and horrific," and "not carrying the baggage of shadowing any original, they are freer to use the opportunities radio offers." Twisk also devotes a short paragraph an independent production of "The Valley of Fear" being broadcast by local commercial and BBC radio stations ("the less said about it the better," but he does say a bit more than that).
-
96. Mar 93 #2: And if that's not enough news from Britain, here's some more. BBC Radio 4 broadcast Denny Martin Flinn's 90-minute adaptation of "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution" on Jan. 9 (with Simon Callow as Holmes and Ian Hogg as Watson). And the BBC offered a grand dialogue with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle on "The Miles Kington Interview" on Jan. 26. Kington was for many years a contributor to Punch, and his imaginative script gave Edward Hardwicke a splendid opportunity to perform, and well, as Conan Doyle.
97. That independent production of "The Valley of Fear" that was panned by the British reviewer almost certainly was a new dramatization starring Edward Petherbridge and David Peart, whose first series ("The Cases of Sherlock Holmes") was broadcast here by National Public Radio on "NPR Playhouse" last year (with "A Study in Scarlet", "A Scandal in Bohemia", and "The Speckled Band"). Their second series began on "NPR Playhouse" on Mar. 7 (with "The Valley of Fear", "The Five Orange Pips", and "The Man with the Twisted Lip"). And NPR is now negotiating with Independent Radio Drama Productions for a third series (with "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and two short stories). The first series was excellent, with splendid actors and imaginative dramatizations, and I wish there were a better market here for radio drama. National Public Radio offers two hours of radio drama a week, but relatively few local NPR stations put any of it on the air.
98. And Roger Johnson reports that THE UNOPENED CASEBOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by John Taylor, is a BBC paperback tie-in (£3.99) to the current radio series. And that The Drama Collection has issued audiocassettes of the Petherbridge radio versions of A STUDY IN SCARLET and THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES. And that M. J. Trow's LESTRADE AND THE SAWDUST RING is due from Constable in May (£13.99).
99. The Spence Munro Society have a new badge, in blue on white, and 2.25 inches in diameter. The cost is $2.00 postpaid (in currency, please) from Mark Alberstat, at 6258 Payzant Avenue, Halifax, NS B3H 2B1, Canada.
100. THE WHITECHAPEL HORRORS: A SHERLOCK HOLMES NOVEL, by Edward B. Hanna (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1992; 395 pp., $19.95), uses Holmes and Watson in a third-person account of the investigation of the Jack the Ripper murders. There are 119 footnotes, which probably shouldn't be needed in

- a pastiche (and that's certainly far more than will be found in any Canonical story), and the dust jacket quotes enthusiastic recommendations by Philip A. Shreffler and John Bennett Shaw.
101. Discovered by Ralph Hall: I THINK THAT IT IS WONDERFUL AND OTHER POEMS FROM SESAME STREET, written by David Korr and illustrated by A. Delany (Racine: Western Publishing Co., 1992); a Sesame Street/Golden Book, with Sherlock Hemlock in a one-page poem ("A Silly Mystery").
  102. The latest issue of The Camden House Journal (published by The Occupants of the Empty House) includes an announcement of a Sherlockian London tour from St. Louis on June 11-20 (the itinerary also features a bus tour of Norwood, Crowborough, Forest Row, and the South Downs). Details are available from Ed Moorman, 2045 Nettlewood Court, Maryland Heights, MO 63043.

---

  103. Mar 93 #3: Peter Ackroyd's ENGLISH MUSIC, published last year by Hamish Hamilton in London, has an American edition (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1992; 400 pp., $23.00); it's an intriguing and imaginative book, in which young Timothy Harcombe's spiritual and visionary powers carry him into dream-worlds of English literature, art, and music. And one of those dream-worlds is (for twenty pages) more-or-less Sherlockian.
  104. SAC Ltd. (Studio Anne Carlton, Flinton Street, Hull, HU3 4NB, England) offers letter-openers (£15.70) and magnifiers (£22.70), with handle cameos showing Holmes or Watson (your choice), and a boxed set (£38.50) that also includes a Holmes figurine. A 32-piece Sherlock Holmes chess set also is available (£106.00). Prices postpaid to the U.S.; payment in sterling only, please.
  105. Harvey Kurtzman died on Feb. 21. Sometimes described as the spiritual god-father of underground comics, he was the first editor of Mad magazine, the author of its parodies "Shermlock Sholmes!" (1953) and "Shermlock Shomes in The Hound of the Basketballs!" (1954), the creator of "Little Annie Fanny" for Playboy, and a fine historian (his last book was FROM AARGH! TO ZAP!: HARVEY KURTZMAN'S VISUAL HISTORY OF THE COMICS).
  106. It was nice to see the two repeats from the Granada series, as part of the PBS-TV pledge drive. It is likely that the new series of "Inspector Morse" programs (which will end on Apr. 29) will be followed by "The Master Blackmailer" in two one-hour episodes (and that will be followed by six new onehour "Rumpole of the Bailey" shows).
  107. Further to the earlier report (Feb 93 #1) about Paramount's plans to issue "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Sign of Four" on videocassettes: yes, they are the Ian Richardson television films that ran on HBO in 1983; $59.95 each. And Fox Video is now discounting "The Sherlock Holmes Collection" (the 14 Rathbone/Bruce films) at $14.98 each.
  108. Reported by Ralph Hall: Bob Terrio's LOOK & FIND WITCHES, GHOSTS & GOBLINS (Lincolnwood: Publications International, 1992); a children's book similar to the "Where's Waldo" series, with a Sherlockian skeleton in a cemetery on one of the pages.
  109. "Holmes's smarter brother joins police" was the headline on an article from The Times (Mar. 2), kindly forwarded by Barbara Roden. This is MYCROFT, a new artificial-intelligence computer system that was developed by a team at Portsmouth University and engineers at McDonnell Douglas, and tested by the police in Sussex, and it will complement the present HOLMES system. HOLMES is an acronym (for Home Office Large Major Enquiry System), but when plans for the new computer were first announced (Dec 87 #4), there was no mention of whether MYCROFT might be an acronym. Nor has there been since. But Jim Cleary proposed (Jan 88 #2) that MYCROFT might be a Major Yard Computer for Recovery, Organization, Filing, and Tabulation.

---

  110. Mar 93 #4: DETECTIVE STORIES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE and STRANGE TALES FROM THE STRAND MAGAZINE, edited by Jack Adrian, with forewords by Julian Symons (Oxford University Press, 1991; 374 pp., £15.95 each) are now being discounted here at $14.99 each (in a catalog at hand from Cahill & Co., Box 64554, St. Paul, MN 55114-0554). Honoring the centenary of the founding of The Strand Magazine, the anthologies offer six stories by Conan Doyle (three Canonical tales in the first volume, and three non-Sherlockian in the second). The first volume also has Ronald Knox's fine pastiche "The Apocryphal Sherlock Holmes: The Adventure of the First Class Carriage".
  111. Further to the item (Feb 93 #2) about the most-borrowed authors from public libraries in Britain in 1992 -- the winner was romantic-novelist Catherine Cookson -- a dramatization of one of her novels ("The Black Velvet Gown") will be broadcast by PBS-TV on "Masterpiece Theatre" on Apr. 4 and 11.
  112. Reported by John Taylor: BLOODY BUSINESS: AN ANECDOTAL HISTORY OF SCOTLAND YARD, by H. Paul Jeffers (New York: Pharos Books, 1992; 278 pp., $19.95). Author of THE ADVENTURE OF THE STALWART COMPANIONS (1978) and MURDER MOST IRREGULAR (1983), Jeffers has turned from fiction to non-fiction, and now offers a fine history of the Yard, and neglects neither Sherlock Holmes nor Conan Doyle (who has his own chapter in the book).
  113. At one point in BLOODY BUSINESS, Jeffers notes that Holmes encounters a score of "official" policemen and one policewoman but none more often than "friend Lestrade." Try your hand at identifying that policewoman (don't wait too long, since I'll give the answer this month).
  114. C. Northcote Parkinson died on Mar. 10. He was the inventor of Parkinson's Law ("work expands so as to fill the time available for its completion") as well as important corollaries that include "work expands to occupy all the people available" and "expenditure rises to meet income." His obituary in The Times noted that he considered most Americans to be illiterate, except for Walt Disney, whom Parkinson believed to be a genius ("not a very well educated genius, but a genius all the same"). It was in MRS. PARKINSON'S LAW (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1968) that Parkinson noted (in the chapter on "Romance") that "had Sherlock Holmes married, he would have proved an irritating husband in most ways if not in all. Considered as a conversationalist, however, he would have been at least potentially entertaining at breakfast." And he continued with an example:
  115. "You recall, Watson--I mean, dear--the League of Redheaded Men?" "But, of course, Sherlock. A mysterious affair indeed. Have you finished with the marmalade?" "Perhaps I might swap it for the toast? Thank you.... Well, I solved that case yesterday. Nothing to it, mind you, but memorable, nevertheless, for one or two unusual features."
  116. And the solution to the problem of the twenty cards (Feb 93 #6) is: nine (Watson), six (Moriarty), and five (Holmes). Watson must have from eight to seventeen cards. And if Watson has seventeen or sixteen or eight cards, there is only one possible distribution, which he could have deduced. And if Holmes has from one to four cards, there are multiple possibilities for Watson and Moriarty. So Holmes must have five cards, in which case Watson must have nine, and Moriarty six. [solution from Pollock, Ballew, Preece]

---

  117. Mar 93 #5: "For more than a hundred years, it has been one of the world's greatest literary secrets," Steve Walker reported in The Mail on Sunday (Mar. 7). The secret, according to a long article at hand from John Hogan, is that Sherlock Holmes was based on Dr. Joseph Bell. And the proof was found in a letter "hidden for decades in a tin box" at the Edinburgh home of Bell's great-grandson, Brigadier Nigel Stisted. The letter, written by Conan Doyle to Bell on May 4, 1892, states firmly that "it is most certainly to you that I owe Sherlock Holmes," and that "I do not think that his analytical work is in the least an exaggeration of some effects which I have seen you produce in the out-patient ward." Well, the letter wasn't *that* well hidden: many will already have read the text (and that of a second letter written on June 16, 1892) in Ely Liebow's fine biography DR. JOE BELL: MODEL FOR SHERLOCK HOLMES (1982).
  118. The Men on the Tor offer their lapel pin; $10.00 postpaid, and you can send orders to: Harold E. Niver, Baskerville Hall, 29 Woodhaven Road, Rocky Hill, CT 06067.

119. THE MAXIMORTAL is a comic-book series written by Rick Veitch for King Hell Press, and issue #3 (Dec. 1992) has a Sherlockian cover showing an elderly Holmes, and six pages set in Sussex in 1924, all in color ($3.95). If you can't find the book in your neighborhood shops, the distributor is Tundra Publishing (320 Riverside Drive, Northampton, MA 01060), and they offer a catalog with lots of other strange things as well.
120. And if you haven't been able to find SHERLOCK HOLMES IN THE CURIOUS CASE OF THE VANISHING VILLAIN (Feb 93 #5) in a your neighborhood comic-book shop, a few copies are available from Tim O'Connor (6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941); $5.00 postpaid.
121. John MacGowan reports that the 18 videocassettes, each with two of the old (1954) Ronald Howard television shows, are now available at WalMart stores at $2.96 each. A while back (Mar 91 #6) the cassettes cost $3.95 each at K-Mart stores. One might, however, be at least a bit suspicious about the tape quality in cassettes priced this low.
122. Thorarinn Gunnarsson's DRAGONS ON THE TOWN (New York: Ace Books, 1992; 295 pp., $4.99) is a sequel to two earlier fantasy novels, which makes things a bit confusing for people who haven't read the first two. Sherlock Holmes is both on the cover and in the book, but actually he's an elf who stopped counting birthdays at 25,000, and everyone calls him Holmes because that's who he looks like (usually) and because he's logical (which isn't all that useful in a world of magic).
123. Troy Taylor (805 West North, Decatur, IL 62522), who edited and published The Peruvian Bird-Bow for Ferguson's Vampires, reports that he is planning a new Sherlockian magazine called The Whitechapel Gazette, priced at $6.00 an issue postpaid. If you'd like Troy to let you know when the first issue is ready, send him an SASE or PC.
124. And who was the one policewoman in the Canon? Jeffers doesn't say, but a likely candidate appears in "The Naval Treaty" ("When we reached Scotland Yard she was handed over at once to the female searcher").
-
125. Mar 93 #6: Helen Hayes died on Mar. 17. For many years the First Lady of the American theater, she began her acting career as a 5-year-old at the National Theatre in Washington, and made her New York debut in 1909. Her first major role came in 1918, with William Gillette in J. M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus" (Heywood Broun said she was "as eager as a Christmas morning and as dazzling as a Christmas night"). And, needless to say, she saw Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes". In her interview for the documentary "William Gillette: A Connecticut Yankee and the American Stage" (1986), she said: "I've admired other people in the role because it's such a good play, but William Gillette is the only real Sherlock Holmes for me, or for anyone else who ever saw him, I'm sure."
126. Carole Nelson Douglas reports that IRENE AT LARGE is due in paperback in June, and that she has finished work on the fourth book in her series (the title will be BACK TO BOHEMIA).
127. Jerry Margolin, who is trying to assemble a set of all five printings of THE MISADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, needs a copy of the fourth printing. If you have one you'd like to sell, his address is 10007 S.W. Quail Post Road, Portland, OR 97219-6368.
128. Vinnie Brosnan (Sherlock in L.A., 1741 Via Allena, Oceanside, CA 92056) has a new catalog 9, with 80 pages of offers of out-of-print Sherlockiana.
129. Q: if a Scottish weightlifter married a green-faced woman from outer space, what would he become? Tim O'Connor spotted SHERLOCK Q. JONES'S CASEBOOK OF PUZZLES, RIDDLES & MUDDLES and MORE PUZZLES, RIDDLES & MUDDLES FROM SHERLOCK Q. JONES'S CASEBOOK, written by John Pinkney and illustrated by Gail Brailsford (Mahway: Watermill Press, 1992; 24 pp., $3.95 each). These are children's books, with Jones in deerstalker and accompanied by Watson (his dog). A: her husband, of course.
130. SHERLOCK HOLMES CASEBOOK is a boxed set of two audiocassettes, with "The Priory School" and "The Man with the Twisted Lip" (both unabridged) read by John Barnes with fine accent and expression, issued in 1991 by Buckingham Classics, Box 597441, Chicago, IL 60659 ($12.95). Buckingham also offers SHORT STORIES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES ($7.95), with "The Red-Headed League" and "A Scandal in Bohemia" read by Brian Parry.
131. There's an addition to the list of non-Sherlockian books with Sherlockian titles: Robert Barnard's A SCANDAL IN BOHEMIA (New York: Scribner's, 1992).
132. Benjamin S. Clark ("The Retired Colourman") died on Mar. 18. Ben was for many years the leader of The Five Orange Pips of Westchester County (the oldest scion society of the BSI), and it was always a delight to hear him reminisce about the early days when the scion actually met in Westchester County, in members' homes, then as now for a formal dinner and scholarly papers from each member. And this year, after many annual dinners in clubs in New York City, the Pips were invited to meet once again at Ben's home in Pound Ridge, with the baying of a hound echoing through the woods outside the house, and grand entertainment within. He received his Investiture in 1951, and the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1984, and some of his grand tales of distant days will be found in the Sept. 1987 issue of the BSI.
-
133. Mar 93 #7: Donald Girard Jewell's "Sherlock Holmes Natural History Series" now includes four titles, the latest being CANONICAL CATS: A MONOGRAPH ON FELINES IN THE TIME OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1992) and BUTTERFILES AND BLIND BEETLES: A MONOGRAPH ON INSECTS AND INSECT COLLECTING IN THE TIME OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1993). The monographs are 36-page pamphlets, carefully researched, attractively illustrated, and well-produced, and cost $9.95 each postpaid from the author (4685 Geeting Road, Westminster, MD 21158).
134. Cynthia Wein prepared screened black-on-blue T-shirts for the 10th anniversary last year of "Autumn in Baker Street" and a dozen are still available (three are large and nine extra large). $11.00 postpaid, and Cynthia's address is 65 Briarwood Lane, Plainview, NY 11803.
135. Comic-book alert: Bill Barton reports in The Illustrious Clients News that the DC comic ECLIPSO will have appearances by Sherlock Holmes in issues #7 (due in mid-March) and #8 (due in mid-April).
136. Lincoln Enterprises (Box 691370, Los Angeles, CA 90069) offers scripts for the first five seasons of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" at $11.95 each; scripts with Sherlockian dialogue include "Lonely Among Us" (1987), "Elementary, Dear Data" (1988), and "Data's Day" (1991). The shooting script for the film "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country" (1991), which also has Sherlockian dialogue, costs $16.95. Shipping extra, and they accept credit-card orders.
137. Bill Walston (3763 East Deshler Avenue, Columbus, OH 43227) will send his 8-page sales list of Sherlockiana (mostly books) in return for a #10 SASE.
138. The Poet of the Pequod Press, having exhausted the long stories but still pursued by the muse (and unwilling to make a Lavinia-like exit) announces a collection of 37 quartets. SCANDALS & VANDALS: 'ADVENTURES' IN VERSE is available from John Ruyle (521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521); $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
139. Videotaper alert: Ray Rawlings, a Canadian Sherlockian, will be one of the contestants on Bill Cosby's "You Bet Your Life" on NBC-TV on April 20.
140. William R. Smith ("The Red Circle") died on March 24. Bill was a devoted musician, and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and he was a devoted Sherlockian as well. An enthusiastic member of The Sons of the Copper Beeches, he liked to reminisce about the early days when the scion met at Carl Anderson's copper-beech-shaded home. Bill received his investiture in 1964, and he was the proud owner of the William S. Hall copy of Beeton's Christmas Annual, which includes Conan Doyle's autograph note that it is "the very first independent book of mine that ever was published."

141. If you don't want to wait for the "Mystery!" broadcast of Jeremy Brett's latest shows ("The Last Vampyre" and "The Eligible Bachelor"), they are now available from Jennie C. Paton's video lending-library. There's a charge of $5.00 per cassette, borrowers pay return postage, and there's likely to be a waiting list; her address is 206 Loblolly Lane, Statesboro, GA 30458.
-
142. Mar 93 #8: Jon Lellenberg reports an enthusiastic review in The Observer for a new printing of THE UNCOLLECTED SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Richard Lancelyn Green (London: Penguin, 1993; 400 pp., £4.99). First published in 1983, assembling a wide variety of Conan Doyle's non-Canonical writings about Sherlock Holmes (pastiche, parodies, prefaces, articles, plays, and interviews), with Green's own 138-page introduction in which he provides excellent comment on Conan Doyle's life, writings, and career. Recommended in 1983, and recommended now.
143. Further to the report (Mar 93 #2) on the Edward Petherbridge radio series, Richard Wein reports that the programs will air on WNYC-FM (New York) on Sundays, beginning Apr. 11. Public radio stations don't need to follow the NPR schedule, so it's worth checking your local schedules.
144. Brian MacDonald reports two items that can be ordered through religious bookstores: Barbara Duvoll's THE GYPSIE'S SECRET (Moody Press, $5.99); the third volume in the "Molehole Mysteries" series with Sherlockian artwork. And THE BIBLE WORD SEARCH BOOK (Warner Press, $4.00); with caricatures of Holmes and Watson on the cover.
145. Julie Rosenblatt, who is teaching a course on Sherlock Holmes at Vassar, credits one of her students with observing a nice touch by the production crew at Granada: the cover of Baron Gruner's diary (clearly seen behind the closing credits of "The Illustrious Client") displays the coat of arms of the Moriarty family.
146. Discovered by Harlan Umansky in THE LETTERS OF T. S. ELIOT, VOL. I, 1898-1922 (page xxxi), in a footnote to a letter to Eliot from his older sister Ada Eliot Sheffield (1869-1943): "Intellectually close, he described her as the Mycroft to his Sherlock Holmes."
147. There's a new "Sherlock Holmes" daily comic strip, produced by Tom Alvarez and launched in February, and Jon Lellenberg reports that it's running in five newspapers: the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times-Leader, the Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger, the Middletown (N.Y.) Times Herald Record, the Provo (Utah) Daily Herald, and the Racine (Wis.) Journal Times. If you would like to urge your local papers to carry the strip, editors should write to Magic Comics, 50 Morris Drive, East Meadow, NY 11554.
-
148. Apr 93 #1: Film fans have pointed out that Clint Eastwood, who won Oscars last month for Best Director and Best Picture ("Unforgiven") has appeared in a Sherlockian film. Remotely Sherlockian, to be sure. The film is "The Dead Pool" (1988), one of the "Dirty Harry" series, and one scene shows a framed portrait of Holmes on the wall of the office of Harry Callahan's boss Capt. Donnelly. Even more remotely, Callahan kills the villain by pinning him to a wall with a harpoon through his chest.
149. The third volume in the BSI's archival-history series is still available: IRREGULAR RECORDS OF THE EARLY 'FORTIES, edited by Jon L. Lellenberg takes the history of the early days into the somewhat more organized years that preceded the Trilogy Dinner in March 1944, and offers a grand reminder of the Sherlockian scene half a century ago. You can order from the Fordham University Press, Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14805 (800-666-2211); $18.95 (plus $2.00 for shipping), and they take plastic.
150. One of the more interesting souvenirs of the 1992 Bouchercon was COLD BLOOD IV, a collection of Canadian (and non-Sherlockian) short stories edited by Peter Sellers, bound in cloth and with Sherlockian artwork by Henry van der Linde on the jacket. And it's now available in a trade edition (Oakville: Mosaic Press, 1992; 242 pp., $19.95).
151. Peter A. Spina died on Mar. 24. He was vice president of public affairs for the Mobil Corp. and his projects included Mobil-underwritten publictelevision projects such as "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mystery!" Jeremy Brett reported during his tour of the U.S. in 1991 that Spina had endorsed Brett's suggestion that Granada do the entire Canon.
152. The Second Annual Watsonian Weekend has been announced for July 23-25 in and around Chicago, featuring the "Great Agra Treasure Hunt" on July 23, "The Canonical Collegium" and "The Regimental Dinner" on July 24, and a running of "The Silver Blaze" on July 25. More information is available from Robert W. Hahn, 2707 South 7th Street, Sheboygan, WI 53081.
153. Les Quincailliers de la Franco-Midland (aka the Societe Sherlock Holmes de France) was founded earlier this year in Paris, and continues to win great publicity, possibly because of their proposed activities. According to an article in the Mar. 18 issue of The European, at hand from Andy Fusco, the society intends to picket the Elysee Palace in full Sherlockian costume to demand that the Legion d'Honneur given to Holmes in "The Golden Pince-Nez" be presented to him in real life. Then the society will march to the Gare du Nord, hoping to repossess the luggage that Holmes left there en route to the Reichenbach. And on the 200th anniversary of the Musee du Louvre, the society will demonstrate to protest the fact that the Louvre displays too few paintings by Holmes' great-uncle, Horace Vernet.
154. Penguin Books issued the Canon in 1981 and 1982 in a matching set of nine paperbacks with orange spines and colorful covers (at prices ranging from 80p to £1.25). The set is now being reissued in facsimile, starting with THE ADVENTURES, THE RETURN, THE CASEBOOK, and THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (but with more than ten years of inflation, each volume now costs £3.99).
-
155. Apr 93 #2: A GUIDE TO THE VICTORIAN LONDON OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Tsukasa Kobayashi and Akane Higashiyama (Tokyo: Shinchosha Publishing Co., 1993), is a 120-page collection of the splendid photographs they have taken over the last ten years, with captions and text in Japanese but with numbered keys tied to carefully drawn maps that allow readers to identify the locations and views. The book's subtitle is SHERLOCK HOLMES VIVU POR ETERNE (in Esperanto, carefully designed not to require translation), and they offer copies of the book for $15.00 or $12.00 postpaid (currency only, please); their address is Ohizumi-machi 2-55-8, Nerima, Tokyo 178, Japan.
156. "'She might almost personify Britannia,' said he, 'with her complete self-absorption and general air of comfortable somnolence.'" Britannia was first shown on a British postage stamp in 1913, not long before "His Last Bow" took place, and her latest appearance is on the new £10 stamp, which has more security features than most banknotes: they include (to list only a few) metallic-silver die-stamping, embossing in braille, microprinting, and a grayishgreen ink that is quite difficult to photocopy (which helps to explain why the reduced illustration shown here is so poor).
157. Excellence at chess is one mark of a scheming mind, according to Sherlock Holmes (in "The Retired Colourman"), and Holmes and Watson are occasionally honored in chess magazines and books. Stan Hill reports that Andy Soltis' pastiche chess-problem "The Case of the Mate by 90 Degrees" is in the May 1993 issue of Chess Life (186 Route 9W, New Windsor, NY 19553; $2.95).
158. The spring 1993 issue of Scarlet Street is due soon, and the winter 1993 issue has David Stuart Davies' usual fine coverage of work on the Granada series, an interview with Peter Cushing, and a comic-book forecast: Martin Powell, author of three mini-series for Eternity, has adapted "The Hound of the Baskervilles" as a graphic novel for Innovation (tentatively set for 1993 with a cover by Steranko). Scarlet Street costs $18.00 a year (four issues) from R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666.
159. And Powell said that his graphic novel will be the "definitive version" of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (although "I did have to change the ending to make it more dynamic").

160. Tom and Ruthann Stetak report a new series of collectibles from John Hine Studios (they distributed Malcolm Cooper's miniature reproduction of "The Sherlock Holmes" in 1988). "London by Gaslight" (designed by Bob Russell and Andrew C. Stadden) includes 14 different buildings and 15 sets of accessories, and one set of accessories consists of Jack the Ripper, Ripper's Victim, and Holmes & Watson, but I have no idea what their prices might be. In 1988 they did not sell at retail, but would identify your nearest dealer (John Hine Studios' address is Box 801207, Houston, TX 77280-1207).
161. Paula Brown reports that a new catalog from What on Earth (2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087) has new Sherlockian merchandise: Holmes on the handle of a walking stick ($79.95) or umbrella ($69.95), and magnets with five-inch wooden portraits of Holmes and Watson ($7.95 each).
-
162. Apr 93 #3: Moore Fantoni (5112 West Strong, Chicago, IL 60630) is offering a list of books available on floppy disks, one of them being THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES with text from The Strand Magazine. THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, A STUDY IN SCARLET, and THE SIGN OF FOUR also are available, with text from THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES. You can write for a price list, since prices vary depending on the size of the disk (THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES costs $13.00 postpaid on three DSDD disks or $5.00 postpaid on one DSHD disk).
163. Holmes for the Holidays continues to offer splendid fun for young mystery fans, and value-for-money as well; it costs $7.50 a year for five issues, with a color cover, and games and puzzles and cartoons, and in the latest issue a pleasant interview with Henry Mancini (who wrote the music for the films "The Great Mouse Detective" and "Without a Clue"). It's published by Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62333).
164. The Baker Street Pages have a new lapel pin, in red and blue enamel on brass, and far more colorful than the artwork shown here. $9.00 postpaid from Tim O'Connor, 6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941.
165. Sherlock of the West Country (Box 30521, Stockton, CA 95213) offers a sales list of Sherlockian and Doylean books.
166. Victoria Robinson reports that Jeremy Brett's "The Master Blackmailer" will air on PBS-TV on "Mystery!" on May 6 and 13. For those who have forgotten, this is Granada's two-hour version of "Charles Augustus Milverton" (which was broadcast in Britain in Jan. 1992).
167. Sorry about that. Helen Hayes did not, as reported here (Mar 93 #6) and in her obituary in the Washington Post, begin her acting career at the age of 5 at the National Theatre in Washington. Donn B. Murphy, president of the theater, has noted that while she frequently recalled seeing her first performances from the balcony of the National, she first appeared on stage at the age of 5 in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at Holy Cross Academy.
168. Sorry about that (again). And this is the first time that two such items have appeared in one issue of this newsletter. Ambassador Ralph Earle II, who ought to know, suggests that Gen. Vernon Walters (like Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, an alumnus of Stonyhurst College) was an Ambassador under only two different presidents. Last month's clipping (Mar 93 #1) did note that Gen. Walters served as (lower case) ambassador under seven different presidents, but lower-case ambassadorhood covers a multitude of sins.
169. Leslie Charteris died on Apr. 15. There are millions of readers who will always remember Patricia Holm and Claud Eustace Teal and Hoppy Uniatz, and Simon Templar, who first appeared in 1928 in ENTER THE TIGER and continued for decades to delight fans of the Saint in a long series of short stories and books and in films and on television. There were Sherlockian allusions in many of those stories and books, and in 1944 and 1945 Charteris worked with Denis Green on scripts for the Rathbone radio series (their script for "The Case of the Dead Adventuress" was published in the March 1986 issue of the BSJ); Charteris used the pseudonym "Bruce Taylor" for the radio series.
-
170. Apr 93 #4: A detailed schedule is available for the fifth annual Canonical Convocation and Caper in Door County, Wis., Sept. 17-19, 1993. This year's theme is the Victorian era, and there will be presentations on Victorian romance and courtship, medicine, architecture, religion, horseracing, bookshelves, bathrooms, and other aspects of that now-vanished age. Write to Jane Richardson, 3456 Exchange Road, Crete, IL 60417.
171. The U.S. Postal Service celebrated the 200th anniversary of the first circus performance in this country with a set of four handsome stamps, some of which were cancelled at the first day ceremony in Washington by an inked foot belonging to circus star King Tusk (yes indeed, an elephant). We've had a clown on a stamp before (in 1966, honoring the 100th anniversary of John Ringling's birth), and a circus wagon (on a coil stamp in 1990). The clown would be Griggs, and the circus belle either Eugenia Ronder or Vittoria.
172. And who was it who went to the circus?
173. A couple of months ago I mentioned plans by Barbara and Christopher Roden to start an Amateur Press Association for discussion of the writings of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The Dangling Prussian APA already exists, and is an essentially Sherlockian gathering place (the Dangling Prussian being an extremely peculiar pub with some extremely peculiar patrons), and there are a few vacancies. The rules are simple: you write something (at least two pages would be nice) and send twenty copies to Brad A. Keefauver (the parttime bartender), and he sorts them out and sends them back. You can write fiction about doings at the pub (guidelines available from Brad on request) or non-fiction, and if you don't contribute you don't get the mailing. The DPAPA is published six times a year; the deadline for the next issue is in mid-May, and details are available from Brad at 1421 West Shenandoah Drive, Peoria, IL 61614.
174. Further to earlier reports on the government proposal to close St. Bartholomew's Hospital (Jan 93 #5), the April issue of The Petrel Flyer (the newsletter of The Stormy Petrels of British Columbia) reprints news from London (Feb. 12): the British cabinet has given St. Bart's a reprieve. It was one of 15 hospitals in London recommended for closure, but a campaign to save it, supported by many celebrities, did the trick.
175. Roger Johnson reports in the April issue of The District Messenger that the spring issue of The Sherlock Holmes Gazette has appeared, still edited by Elizabeth Wiggins but now published by Baker Street Productions (P.O. Box 221, Alderney, Channel Islands, Great Britain). And that the Gazette has a report that Edward Hardwicke plans to revive Martyn Read's play "221B" (in which Nigel Stock toured to fine reviews in Britain in 1983). And the High Moorlands Visitors' Centre in Princeton will be opened later this year by Prince Charles, and will have a Conan Doyle/Sherlock Holmes exhibition.
-
176. Apr 93 #5: Jon Lellenberg has forwarded an article from the Mar. 22 issue of the London Evening Standard that may mark the setting of an important precedent: the Canon has been cited in a historical-preservation campaign. The Department of the Environment has required an investigation that will delay (and perhaps prevent) approval by Wandsworth Council of a proposal to demolish the historic board school at Lavender Hill. English Heritage, the Victorian Society, and the local conversation advisory committee have recommended that the brick-built structure, with its prominent turrets, be included in a nearby conservation area. The article notes that in "The Naval Treaty" Sherlock Holmes described the board school as a brick island in a lead-coloured sea, and states that the school now is "virtually the only building of any interest in the area."
177. And an interesting report in the Apr. 2 issue of the Daily Telegraph: "A three-pipe problem for the Arthur Conan Doyle Society: its founder, Chris Roden of Chester, has discovered that his British members care more for slap-up dinners than debating the great man's *oeuvre*. The most recent Conan Doyle weekend--a £165 bash in Edinburgh--drew almost no Brits at all, leading Roden to threaten to hold future conventions in the United States. Roden claims he cannot put together a meeting here 'unless there is a bar and meal-table involved.' Americans apparently need only a cup of coffee."

178. Tom Stix has reported a limited-edition print of John Lennon's caricature "Sherlock Lennon", first published in A SPANIARD IN THE WORKS (1965); the print image is 6 x 10 in. and each print has John Lennon's "chop" in red and is signed by Yoko Ono Lennon. The print is priced at $400 (plus $10 shipping) from Bag One Arts (110 West 79th Street, New York, NY 10024). Or at $300 (plus $10 shipping) from Burd House Frame Shop, 102 Main Street, Nyack, NY 10960; they take plastic, and will be happy to mat and frame the print for another $100.
179. And Bruce Southworth has discovered a cute one-inch-high plastic duck with magnifying glass and deerstalker, from Hallmark at $3.00.
180. Who went to the circus? Sally Dennis, in "A Study in Scarlet". Well yes, Sally Dennis didn't exist, but her mother said that she did. And yes, the mother really was a young man. Well, Holmes does say so, and Jefferson Hope confirms that she was a man. One wonders how Jefferson Hope so easily found a friend so skilled with disguise as to be able to deceive Sherlock Holmes, even that early in his career. It's not all that easy for a man to disguise himself as a woman, let alone an old woman, with enough expertise to get away with it at close range, but of course Holmes eventually gained that expertise himself, and as an elderly woman managed thoroughly to deceive Count Negretto Sylvius.
181. The Mysterious Bookshop (192 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019) has sent its new spring-summer catalog, with two pages of Sherlockiana (in and out of print), and a clearance sale of Mysterious Press paperbacks at five for $10.00 (such as Gahan Wilson's EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE DUCK, with parodies of Holmes and Watson and Moriarty and other heroes and villains).
-
182. Apr 93 #6: Cantinflas died on Apr. 20. He was a splendid actor (Charlie Chaplin called him "the world's greatest comedian"), and he was best known here for his appearance as Phileas Fogg's valet Passepartout in the film "Around the World in 80 Days" (1956). The late Morris Rosenblum, who insisted on including Sherlockian references in every one of his books, suggested in HEROES OF MEXICO (1969) that Cantinflas was "so talented that he could play either a comic Sherlock Holmes or Dr. Watson, either Don Quixote or Sancho Panza."
183. There's no mention of the Cherokee Strip Land Run in the Canon, nor any mention of Oklahoma, and we can't even be sure that any Canonical character actually set foot in that part of the west, but our new centennial commemorative has a nice design, and does serve as a reminder of "the canvas-covered tilts of wagons" (found in "A Study in Scarlet") or perhaps even the same story's "tall, savage-looking young fellow, mounted on a powerful roan horse."
184. Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offers a new sales list of Sherlockiana (statues, postage stamps, magazines, autographed material, cigar-box labels, coins, etc.).
185. Paul H. Brundage (2632 Central Court, Union City, CA 94587-3128) offers a 18-page print-out of the more than 600 people on his Sherlockian address list, with names, addresses, and telephone numbers (if available), sorted alphabetically or geographically, for $2.50 postpaid.
186. The Jan. 26, 1927, issue of the Harvard Lampoon offered readers Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Affair at Hampton Widgets" (not recorded by the bibliographers, but now rescued from obscurity by Dana Richards). The story was not by Conan Doyle, of course, and at this late date the author cannot be identified, but the parody has been reprinted in a 20-page pamphlet, with a new introduction, and is available from Dana at 10814 Rippon Lodge Drive, Fairfax, VA 22032 ($4.00 postpaid).
187. The seventh and eighth volumes in Murray Shaw's MATCH WITS WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES series are now available, with his adaptations of "The Dancing Men" and "The Three Garridebs" in one, and of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in the other. The stories are nicely adapted for children aged 8-11, and have attractive illustrations by George Overlie; you can order from Carolrhoda Books, 241 First Avenue North, Minneapolis, MN 55401 (800-328-4929); $14.95 (cloth) or $4.95 (paper).
188. A new subscriber has asked about ordering in-print books from Britain. And since it has been a while since the last explanation, here are the details: two companies can supply just about anything in print, and they offer two ways to pay without incurring bank surcharges (you can open an account and pay by check in your own currency, sent to a bank in your country, or you can authorize a charge against a credit card such as Visa or Mastercard). They are W. & G. Foyle (119-125 Charing Cross Road, London W.C.2, England) and Blackwell's (Broad Street, Oxford, Oxon. OX1 3BQ, England).
-
189. May 93 #1: Bruce Southworth reports that there's still room for last-minute decisions to attend the Norwegian Explorers' workshop on "Sherlock Holmes's Victorian Criminal Classes" on June 11-13. Lots of papers, a Saturday evening dinner speech on "Conan Doyle's Sense of Justice" by Prof. Harold Orel, and longer hours at the Special Collections Library on all three days. Registration costs $110.00, and you should write to the society at: Wilson Library #466, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.
190. If you wondered why last month's issue was a few days late, it was because the entire staff spent the last week of April in New Orleans, Philadelphia, and New York, attending meetings of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and of various Sherlockian societies, the most elegant being the spring dinner of The Adventureesses of Sherlock Holmes, at which Marilynne McKay delivered an excellent toast to spring, beginning with an old school poem: "Hooray! Hooray! The first of May! Outdoor f***ing starts today!"
191. The complete text of Marilynne's toast (which did draw more directly from the Canon), as well as other adventureess and adventurous scholarship, will likely appear in The Serpentine Muse, the quarterly journal of the ASH; the subscription price is $10.00 a year, from Evelyn A. Herzog, 360 West 21st Street #5-A, New York, NY 10011-3310.
192. Reported by Thomas G. Kowols in the latest issue of The Police Gazette (the newsletter of The Scotland Yarders): Starlog (May 1993) offers an interview with Daniel Davis (who played Moriarty in the two Sherlockian episodes of "Star Trek: The Next Generation"); their address is 475 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016. The Apr. 1993 of Boys' Life has a comic-strip version of "The Blue Carbuncle" (as "The Mystery of the Blue Diamond"); Box 152079, Irving, TX 75015-2079. A new mail-order catalog from Prime Time Nostalgia (MMP International, 261 Van Buren Avenue, Teaneck, NJ 07666) has a set of five CD recordings, four with two each of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows, and one with the Orson Welles version of the Gillette play (about $20.00 for the set). And "Doctor Who: The Tom Baker Years" (a videocassette from CBS/Fox) has Baker watching a clip from each of his shows and reminiscing about them; when he reaches "The Talons of Weng Chiang" (1977), he recalls that making the story served as preparation for his "absolute failure" in the BBC-TV version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1982).
193. And now for something *really* trivial: the Duke of Holderness and Sherlock Holmes were first cousins. Thanks to the Howards. In Granada's version of "The Priory School", the Duke of Holderness was Alan Howard, whose father was Arthur Howard, whose brother was Leslie Howard, whose son was Ronald Howard, who was Sherlock Holmes in the 1954 television series.
194. Barbara Alder Roden reports that the Royal Mail has set Oct. 12 as the day of issue of a set of postage stamps honoring Holmes and Conan Doyle, with a commemorative booklet as a souvenir collectible. The original plans were to honor the opening of the Channel Tunnel, but continuing delays with that grand opening have created an opening in the schedule that will undoubtedly be much more welcome to Sherlockians and Doyleans. Conan Doyle, it should be noted, was an enthusiastic supporter of the Channel Tunnel.
-
195. May 93 #2: The first issue of The Whitechapel Gazette has appeared, edited by Troy Taylor, with 36 pages of nicely illustrated Sherlockian and Doylean articles (and one pastiche). $6.00 postpaid, from Troy Taylor at 805 West North, Decatur, IL 62522.

196. Our new block of four stamps honoring sporting horses includes two stamps with Canonical connections (polo is mentioned in "The Illustrious Client" and "His Last Bow"). Can anyone make Canonical connections for harness and steeplechase racing? The colors worn by the jockey on the horse going over the fence are red and black, but the Wessex Cup wasn't a steeplechase.
197. Dick Warner (who holds the office of Head Sherpa of The Holmes Peak Preservation Society) has noted that the Tulsa Historical Society has added Holmes Peak to the list of 76 "Tulsa Historical Sites" in their new guide to the city. Holmes Peak is still the only officially-approved landform in the United States named in honor of Sherlock Holmes.
198. DC Comics' ECLIPSO #8 is now in the shops with "an untold adventure of the world's greatest detective" (issue #7 had a brief introduction, and future issues presumably have relevant letters to the editor). The story's titled "Good Night, Mr. Holmes!" and it's gory and weird and macabre (not all that unusual for a lot of modern comic books).
199. Charles Stumpp died on Apr. 15. A member of the Giants Rats of Massillon (on detached duty in Roanoke, Va., as he liked to say) and an enthusiastic Sherlockian, he also was a member of the Baker Street Irregulars. In his article "Those Were the Golden Years" (in TALES OF THE GIANT RATS, 1990) he told of reading about the BSI in 1947, and attending the annual dinner in 1952, and receiving a copy of THE NAPOLEON OF CRIME in 1953, inscribed by Edgar W. Smith to "Charles Stumpp BSI" (thus becoming the last person known to have received membership in the BSI unaccompanied by an Investiture and an Irregular Shilling).
200. Baker Street Associates, producers of the continuing series of reissues of the Rathbone/Bruce radio shows, now have a newsletter: the first issue of The Dispatch Box is at hand from Ken Greenwald, who offers a history of the company's work on the series, and discussion of Sherlockian actors, and of Sherlockian books. P.O. Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035-998.
201. Lynn Redgrave's "Shakespeare for My Father" (at the Helen Hayes Theatre in New York) is a one-woman show in which she reminisces about life with her father, and reads from Shakespeare's plays. Harlan Umansky reports that at one point she tells of going to Australia with her husband, hoping to find the grave of her grandfather Rory Redgrave, and finding it in a cemetery near Sydney: the grave was situated between the graves of men named Doyle and Watson. Harlan has asked The Sydney Passengers to investigate.
-
202. May 93 #3: Harvey Kurtzman's colorful Sherlockian cover for the Oct.-Nov. 1953 issue of Mad (which included his fine parody "Shermlock Shomes!") has been reprinted by Lime Rock International and E.C. Publications on one of a series of trading cards showing covers from the magazine, according to Tim O'Connor. The Sherlockian card apparently is part of the second set in the series, and you should try to find a trading-card shop or dealer who opens packets to put complete sets together (and winds up with left-over cards which usually are available for a dime or a quarter each).
203. Carol-Lynn Rossel Waugh makes an attractive teddybear "Sherlock Holmes at Home" (15 in. tall, fully jointed, free-standing, in two-tone German mohair) available for $500. A similar "William Jefferson Bear" also costs $500 (regardless of whether your vote was for or against Clinton). Her address is: 5 Morrill Street, Winthrop, ME 04364.
204. Further to the report (Apr 93 #2) on the "London by Gaslight" collectibles from John Hine Studios, the accessory set that includes Jack the Ripper, Holmes, and Watson retails for $15.00. And they do have a computerized file of dealers who carry their material. Their address: P.O. Box 801207, Houston, TX 77280-1207.
205. Sherlock Holmes' secretary is giving up answering tourist inquiries about the great man to become a detective," according to a report in the Brighton Evening Argus (Apr. 30), sent by Malcolm Payne via David Rush. Erica Harper, who has been answering Sherlock Holmes' mail for three years, will move into Abbey National's security department, where she will investigate frauds and robberies.
206. Plan well ahead. Scott Bond and Sherry Rose-Bond report that "Harry and Arthur" is scheduled at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope, Pa., on Dec. 8-19, 1993. The play is to star William Shatner (as Houdini) and Leonard Nimoy (as Conan Doyle), and is based on the novel BELIEVE., written by Shatner and Michael Tobias and published last year by Berkley (Jul 92 #2). Tickets are on sale now (performances Wednesday through Sunday), and their box-office telephone number is 215-862-2041 (Box 313, New Hope, PA 18938).
207. Henry Brandon died on Apr. 20. He was one of Britain's best journalists, arriving in Washington in 1949 as correspondent for The Sunday Times. He was promoted to associate editor, and then chief American correspondent, and retired in 1983. He was proud and delighted to learn that his phone was tapped by the Nixon administration in 1969 and 1971, and in a column headlined "Elementary, my dear Brandon" (Oct. 15, 1972) he reported in an interview with Sherlock Holmes on the detective's thoughts about Watergate.
-
208. May 93 #4: The spring 1993 issue of Scarlet Street has arrived, with David Stuart Davies' illustrated article about "Sherlock Holmes Meets The Twilight Zone" (that's his report on Granada's "The Last Vampire" and "The Eligible Bachelor"), and news of a new book: PETER CUSHING: THE GENTLE MAN OF HORROR AND HIS 91 FILMS, by Deborah Del Vecchio and Tom Johnson (465 pp., $45.00, from McFarland & Co., Box 611, Jefferson, NC 28640). Scarlet Street costs $18.00 a year (four issues) and it's published by R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666.
209. The Folio Society has sent information about SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE COMPLETE STORIES, with an introduction by Peter Cushing and illustrations by Francis Mosley. This is a five-volume boxed set with all of the short stories in a uniform cloth binding blocked with a design by David Eccles that displays a silhouette of Sherlock Holmes across the spines of the five volumes. The set will be published in June at $149.00, but the Society offers a pre-publication price of $124.00 postpaid to their members and to readers of this newsletter if you order before June 30. They take plastic, and their tollfree number is 800-688-6247, or you can order by mail from Folio Books at 2323 Randolph Avenue, Avenel, NJ 07001; to qualify for the discount price, you mention "Scuttlebutt from the Spermaceti Press" and pay them $124.00. The Society plans to issue a companion set of the long stories next year with a binding design that shows Watson on the spines, so that the entire set will present a complete picture on the shelf.
210. "We're both failed doctors who found storytelling more congenial than healing. Sometimes I think I've devoted my life to rewriting Conan Doyle in different ways." Michael Crichton, interviewed in the N.Y. Times (May 11) about the soon-to-open film based on his book JURASSIC PARK.
-
211. May 93 #5: The Hubble Space Telescope will be used for an experiment that follows the trail blazed by Prof. Moriarty. Three young scientists led by Amherst College sophomore Benjamin Weiss will use the Hubble for a study of "The Dynamics of Binary Asteroids" in an attempt to discover binary asteroids, which are suspected to exist but are as yet unconfirmed (the Hubble is the only optical telescope capable of providing a definite answer). A binary asteroid actually would be two asteroids in orbit around each other; likely candidates are only 200 or 300 kilometers in diameter, and twice as far from the Earth as the Sun is.
212. New theatrical trivia: name the actor who has played both Watson (on stage) and Moriarty (on television).
213. Richard Wein reports that TNT cable will honor Sherlock Holmes on June 24, showing Christopher Plummer's "Murder by Decree" (1979), Peter Cushing's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959), and Charlton Heston's "The Crucifer of Blood" (1991). Starting at 8:00 pm EDT.
214. A new stop for Sherlockians touring in Britain: the Moon Under Water, a new pub in Norbury, southwest of London. According to an article at hand from Jon Lellenberg, the pub honors local history by displaying a painting that shows a scene from "The Yellow Face".

215. The Northeast Victorian Studies Association plans to hold its 28th annual meeting at New York University on Apr. 15-17, 1994, exploring the topic of "Victorian Interiors: Domestic, Metaphorical, Narrative, and Psychological" (if you want to deliver a paper, the deadline for abstracts is Oct. 19, and you can contact Prof. Casey Finch, English Department, New York University, New York, NY 10003).
216. The new musical "Ain't Broadway Grand" (which opened at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre in New York on Apr. 18) is based on the life of Mike Todd, with a cast that has two Sherlockian connections: Richard B. Shull is a member of the BSI ("An Actor and a Rare One"), and Mitchell Greenberg played Sherlock Holmes in Suzan L. Zeder's "The Death and Life of Sherlock Holmes" at the Open Eye Theater in New York in 1991.
217. Television ratings. The final episode of "Cheers" on NBC on May 20 had a Nielsen rating of 45.5 (that's 42.4 million of the nation's 93.1 million television households), making it the 20th highest-rated program ever. The shows that have had better ratings include the final episode of "M*A*S*H", nine Super Bowls, and Nicholas Meyer's television film "The Day After".
218. The actor who has played both Watson and Moriarty is Daniel Davis, who was Watson in Peter Donat's production of "The Crucifer of Blood" in San Francisco in 1980, and Moriarty in the two Sherlockian episodes of "Star Trek: The Next Generation".
219. Further to the report (Feb 91 #4) that filming was to begin in Apr. 1991 in Estonia on a movie that may or may not have been based on Loren Estleman's book, Andy Peck has forwarded a report that "Sherlock Holmes vs. Dracula" was being promoted (in "presales") at Cannes this month. Jeffrey Sneller is the producer, with Christopher Walken and Timothy Dalton as the stars.
-
220. May 93 #6: Further to the report (Apr 93 #4) about the campaign to save St. Bartholomew's Hospital, the latest news from Barbara Roden, in the May issue of The Petrel Flyer (the newsletter of The Stormy Petrels of British Columbia), is that Bart's survives only through merger with the Royal London Hospital. "I have to think of patients, not buildings," said health secretary Virginia Bottomley. "It is not my job to run a department of heritage."
221. Steve Robinson offers two of the teaspoons that portray Charlie McCarthy in Sherlockian costume, offered by Chase & Sanborn as premiums tied to the old radio show. $70.00 each, but Steve would prefer to trade for S'ian books or ephemera; his new address is: 6980 South Bannock Street #3, Littleton, CO 80120 (303-794-9709).
222. Dick Rutter reports that Steve Szilagyi's PHOTOGRAPHING FAIRIES (Aug 92 #6) is now available in a trade paperback edition (New York: Ballantine Books, 1993; 321 pp., $10.00). The book is an imaginative and well-written novel that was inspired by the Cottingley fairies and the two young girls whose photographs were earnestly defended by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in the 1920s. Sir Arthur and his daughter Mary are only incidental characters in a work of fantasy, but the fantasy is neatly contrived and well-executed.
223. "Mrs. Parker and the Round Table" will go into production this summer, and Jennifer Jason Leigh has been "soaking up the vibes" at the Hotel Algonquin in preparation for the title role, according to Liz Smith's gossip column, at hand from Ross Kinnee. The film will be produced by Robert Altman and directed by Alan Rudolph, and will co-star Matthew Broderick as Charles MacArthur and Campbell Scott as Robert Benchley. There's no suggestion that the company will actually film at the Algonquin, which reportedly has been working hard to win back some of the literati who have found other lobbies and restaurants in which to congregate in recent years. Dorothy Parker was once quoted as saying that the Round Table was full of people looking for a free lunch and asking, "Did you hear the funny thing I said yesterday?"
224. A new sales list of Sherlockian books and magazines at hand from Jennifer Steen (Sherlock and Co., 695 35th Avenue #204, San Francisco, CA 94121. And Joseph J. Eckrich (7793 Keswick Place, St. Louis, MO 63119) offers a merged list of the material remaining from the first four lists of material from his collection (the remaining material has been discounted).
225. The latest issue of The Parish Magazine has arrived from Christopher and Barbara Roden, reporting on past activities and future plans for the Arthur Conan Doyle Society (their meeting in Toronto has tentatively been set for May 6-8, 1994). Membership in the society includes an annual journal and a semi-annual newsletter, and costs £14.00 (or $27.00) to U.S. addresses (or £19.00/$35.00 to receive the publications by airmail); the Rodens' address is: Ashcroft, 2 Abbotsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester CH4 0JG, England.
226. And, to fill a bit of space: there are now 616 Sherlockian societies in our computer file, with 375 of them listed as active. 315 in the United States and 60 in other countries. 248 geographical, 18 professional, 109 other.
-
227. Jun 93 #1: More news on the set of British postage stamps that will be issued on Oct. 12 honoring Holmes and Conan Doyle. According to Christopher Roden, there will be five 24p stamps, designed by Andrew Davidson, with artwork for "The Reigate Squire", "The Hound of the Baskervilles", "The Six Napoleons", "The Greek Interpreter", and "The Final Problem". And there will be two sets of first day covers issued by The Arthur Conan Doyle Society. An illustrated information leaflet will be available in August from the Society (Ashcroft, 2 Abbotsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester CH4 0JG, England). Malcolm Payne reports that The Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment also will issue a first day cover, with a cachet and handstamps, posted from Windlesham; the cost is $15.00 (currency only) from Richard Greep, The Limes, Eridge Road, Crowborough, East Sussex, England.
228. Videotape alert (for those who didn't buy the cassette): "The Great Mouse Detective" will be broadcast on the Disney channel in August.
229. Warren Randall (Prescott's Press, Box 610, Levittown, NY 11756) offers a T-shirt and badge that display Scott Bond's "Sherlock Holmes' Rogues, Rascals, and Ruffians" emblem for the June 11-13 conference in Minneapolis. The T-shirt (S/M/L) and badge are in scion [cyan] blue on white, and the price for the set is $15.00 postpaid. Badges also are available in other colors at $3.00 postpaid.
230. The weekend was grand fun, with excellent facilities and papers (the paper that received the most applause was an illustrated discussion of opium dens in turn-of-the-century London, presented by John Pforr in owneroperator costume, mustache, and accent, but it was only one item on a fine agenda). And Austin McLean had mounted a splendid exhibition in honor of Howard Haycraft at the Wilson Library at the University of Minnesota, which was accompanied by a display of some of their many Sherlockian treasures.
231. The most interesting news in Minneapolis, certainly, was the report that Al Navis, who was in charge of Bouchercon XXIII in Toronto last year, and who had told me and others that he expected to net an estimated $30,000 to pass on to future Bouchercons, has refused to account for the money, let alone pass any on, and has even refused to pass on his mailing list. So: if you have been thinking about attending Bouchercon in Omaha on Oct. 1-3, and you have not already received a mailing from Charles Levitt, you should write to Bouchercon XXIV, Box 540516, Omaha, NE 68154-0516.
232. Further to the report (Jan 93 #3) that "Twin Peaks" co-creator Mark Frost has written a book called THE LIST OF SEVEN, about how Arthur Conan Doyle met the man who inspired him to write the Sherlock Holmes stories, Frost (spotted by a Washington Post reporter at one of the publishers' parties at this year's American Booksellers Association convention in Miami Beach) has already started work on a sequel.
233. Plan ahead. 1993's "Autumn in Baker Street" will be held at the Tarrytown Hilton in Tarrytown, N.Y., on Nov. 6-7. Additional details are available from Robert E. Thomalen, 69 Glen Road, Eastchester, NY 10709.
-
234. Jun 93 #2: Jessie Lilley (editor of Scarlet Street) reports that David Stuart Davies reports that ITV has changed its mind about the importance of the two-hour format, and that Granada is now dusting off the old-but-not-yet-filmed one-hour scripts for the Jeremy Brett series, and hopes to continue the series with a one-hour version of "The Red Circle".

235. Michael Senuta (881 Columbine Drive, Barberton, OH 44203) offers copies of two of his chapbooks: PUZZLING OVER SHERLOCK (1978) is a 32-page collection of 23 crossword puzzles based on stories in THE ADVENTURES and THE MEMOIRS ($8.00 postpaid), and SECOND THOUGHTS ABOUT SHERLOCK HOLMES (1991) is a 30-page pamphlet with two new pastiches and an analysis of the stories in the CASEBOOK ($9.00 postpaid).
236. Harry Sayen's newspaper review of some recent mysteries, at hand from Delia Vargas, notes that Colin Dexter's THE WAY THROUGH THE WOODS is a fine book, but includes lots of look-'em-up-in-the-dictionary words like spondylosis, cruciverbalist, and funambulist. So: which funambulist is named in one of the Sherlock Holmes stories?
237. The Simon and Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #20 ($11.00) has two more of the fine old radio shows from scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, with new introductions by Harry Bartell. "The Manor House Case" (15 Oct 45), starring Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce, has long been available on phonograph records and cassettes, but Larry Nepodahl reports that earlier issues all have the east-coast broadcast of the show, while the new cassette offers the west-coast version; in the old days the broadcasts were live, and were performed twice so that west-coast audiences could hear the shows at a reasonable hour (so it now is possible to compare the two versions of this program). "The Stuttering Ghost" (12 Oct 46) is of particular interest, since it is the first program broadcast after Rathbone refused to continue in the series, and was succeeded in the title role by Tom Conway. There was a new sponsor (Kreml hair tonic and shampoo), and a new announcer (Joseph Bell), and the same stalwart Watson (Nigel Bruce).
238. Marjorie H. Buell died on May 30. As Marge Henderson, she created "Little Lulu" for the Saturday Evening Post in 1934, and her cartoon character was widely popular. Little Lulu and her friend Tubby were still seen in comic books well into the 1980s, though no longer drawn by Mrs. Buell; this strip is from the comic book LITTLE LULU #233 (July 1976).
-
239. Jun 93 #3: If any Sherlockians were at the Belmont Stakes, they could have been big winners. Not this year, when Colonial Affair won and paid $13.90, but rather in 1961, when Sherluck won and paid $132.10 (that's the highest payoff in the race since 1940). And $132.10 was serious money, back in 1961, when the BSI annual dinner cost $16.00 (it would take $454.10 to be that serious in 1993, when the BSI annual dinner cost $55.00).
240. The postal service continues to issue annual souvenir sheets commemorating the 50th anniversary of World War II, and this year's sheet includes a stamp that shows Willie and Joe, the classic cartoon characters created by Bill Mauldin. Some of Mauldin's editorial cartoons have used a Sherlockian theme (this one is from 1987).
241. The Oxford University Press has sent information on their nine-volume THE OXFORD SHERLOCK HOLMES, tentatively scheduled for Sept. 1993 at $100. The set will come in a display box, and each volume will have an introduction (Owen Dudley Edwards, Richard Lancelyn Green, Christopher Roden, and W. W. Robson are editors of individual volumes), a chronology, selected bibliography, notes, and a silk-screened cover embossed with a wood-etching.
242. "Sherlock Holmes: Alive and Well in the Hearts of Readers Everywhere!" is the title of the weekend conference at Santa Fe Community College on Aug. 6-7, 1993. Speakers will include John Bennett Shaw, Ely Liebow, Richard H. Miller, Jennie C. Paton, David Skene-Melvin, and Graham Sudbury, and there will be tours of John's library, plus "a highly personal overview of the American Sherlockian experience, with emphasis on seminal contributions by John Bennett Shaw" presented by Evelyn Herzog, Patricia Moran, Mary Ellen Rich, and Linda Patterson. Registration costs $78.00 through July 14 (and $88.00 thereafter), and the address is: Community Services Office, Santa Fe Community College, Box 4187, Santa Fe, NM 87502 (505-438-1251).
-
243. Jun 93 #4: For the completists: Andrew Jay Peck reports that the Quality Paperback Book Club is offering an exclusive paperback edition Carole Nelson Douglas' IRENE AT LARGE at $11.95. The club usually offers trade paperback editions (in the same size as, and printed from the plates of, the hardcover editions, but with paper covers), and they differ from the mass paperback editions (of which there will soon be one for IRENE AT LARGE). The Quality Paperback Book Club is for members only, but it's easy to join: the address is: Camp Hill, PA 17011-9902.
244. At hand from Ted Friedman is a report by Jill Brooke in the N.Y. Post (May 28) about an announcement by CBS-TV of production plans for a made-for-TV movie starring Anthony Higgins as Sherlock Holmes. "In this new version, Holmes--who miraculously hasn't aged in 94 years thanks to a self-induced sleep--will have to outwit the evil offspring of his arch enemy Moriarty. The movie will air some time next season." Production is underway in Vancouver (substituting for San Francisco), according to Fran Martin, and a local paper reports that the title of the show is "Sherlock Holmes Returns in the Adventure of the Tiger's Revenge". Anthony Higgins was in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" (as Goble, presumably one of the Nazis), and his co-star is Debrah Farentino (she was in the Warren Beatty film "Bugs"), as his sceptical new friend, Dr. Amy Winslow. Another report from Vancouver is that the production company was unaware of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (the title of the thawed-out-Holmes film broadcast by CBS-TV in 1987).
245. Further to the report (Apr 93 #4) that The Sherlock Holmes Gazette is now publishing again, Carolyn and Joel Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219) distribute the magazine in the U.S. The newest issue (#6) and all earlier issues are available for $8.00 each postpaid, issue #7 is due this month, and the Senters will accept subscriptions (four issues for $32.00 postpaid) beginning with issue #8. Issue #6 (spring 1993) has an attractive color cover, and 32 pages of news about a wide range of S'ian events, including a visit by Ronald and Nancy Reagan to The Sherlock Holmes in Northumberland Street (as well as the usual in-depth coverage of stage, radio, and television dramatizations of Sherlock Holmes).
246. "Look out for Blondin," Sherlock Holmes exclaims, in "The Sign of the Four" (and Blondin was a funambulist). See Jun 93 #2, if you've forgotten.
247. Jennie Paton has spotted GHOSTS OF DRACULA, a five-issue comic-book miniseries published by Eternity (Sept. 1991-Jan. 1992), with story by Martin Powell and artwork by Seppo Makinen. Harry Houdini is in London in 1925, joining Dr. Van Helsing in pursuit of Dracula, and Sherlock Holmes makes a brief appearance in issue #2.
248. The Bowling Green State University Popular Press (Bowling Green, OH 43403) is having a summer sale, offering a 60% discount on their mystery-related backlist. The sale runs through July 31, and you can write them for their flier, which includes marginally-Sherlockian books such as Earl F. Bargainnier's COMIC CRIME (1987), Ray B. Browne's HEROES AND HUMANITIES: DETECTIVE FICTION AND CULTURE (1987), Michael L. Cook's MYSTERY FANFARE (1983); William B. Hunt's FRONT-PAGE DETECTIVE: WILLIAM BURNS AND THE DETECTIVE PROFESSION, 1880-1930 (1990); S. T. Joshi's JOHN DICKSON CARR: A CRITICAL STUDY (1990), and LeRoy L. Panek's AN INTRODUCTION TO THE DETECTIVE STORY (1987).
-
249. Jun 93 #5: The Poet of the Pequod Press, thundering in hot pursuit of THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Mar 93 #7), now offers 29 quartets, collected in THE HORSE IN THE GORSE, and finely-printed (as always) at The Pequod Press. Available from John Ruyle, 521 Vincente Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521; $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
250. Further to the report (Jun 92 #3) on filming of a television adaptation of Craig Bowsby's play "The Hound of London" (1987) with Patrick Macnee as Sherlock Holmes, Craig reports that the 90-minute special has been sold to (but not yet broadcast by) stations in British Columbia, Ireland, and Botswana. The special is being marketed to independent stations, and you can suggest that your local stations write to Intrepid Productions (2130 West 3rd Avenue #203, Vancouver, BC V6K 1L1, Canada) for more information.
251. Sherlockians in or visiting southern California may wish to visit the Los Angeles County Museum of Art to see the retrospective exhibition of paintings by Mark Tansey that opened in June. But check first to make certain that the exhibit includes Tansey's painting "Derrida Queries De Man" (1990),

- which is described by many critics as derived from Sidney Paget's famous illustration, and which also generates comments such as "they are locked in eternal combat over the meaning De Man gave to the meaning that Derrida gave to Rousseau." There also have been reports that there are lots of words on the rocks on the left side of the painting, but so far no one has explained what they are, or say (the painting is almost seven feet in height, and someone ought to be able to get close enough to it in Los Angeles to find out).
252. Cameron Hollyer retired from the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library in 1991, after more than twenty years as curator of the library's Arthur Conan Doyle Collection, but he definitely has not retired from the Sherlockian world. Quite the contrary: he now has found the time for the research that was needed for his landmark paper "E=M3 squared or: How Many Moriarty's Can Park on the Edge of a Quark?" Cam's imaginative conclusions were unveiled at the annual dinner of The Bimetallic Question in Montreal in January, and they have now been published, in the spring 1993 issue of Canadian Holmes, which is the quarterly journal of The Bootmakers of Toronto; the cost is $15.00 a year, and checks can be sent to Nancy Thorpe, 47 Manor Road West, Toronto, Ont. M5P 1E6, Canada.
  253. Al Hirschfeld turned 90 this month, and was honored at a birthday party at the Hotel Algonquin (where his artistic caricatures of Broadway's famous personalities were on display). He has drawn more than one actor in the role of Sherlock Holmes over the years, and he's still at work.
  254. THE PRIVATE NOSE, by Andrew Taylor, with illustrations by Emanuel Schongut (Cambridge: Candlewick Press, 1993; 90 pp., $13.95), was published in 1989 in Britain and now has an American edition; young Jack Watson's new neighbor Saturday Holmes (who has inherited her ancestor's nose for detection) involves them both in an amusing series of short mysteries for children.
-
255. Jun 93 #6: PETER CUSHING: THE GENTLE MAN OF HORROR AND HIS 91 FILMS, by Deborah Del Vecchio and Tom Johnson (Jefferson: McFarland & Co., 1992; 465 pp., $45.00), offers excellent coverage of a career that started with his appearance as a King's Messenger in "The Man in the Iron Mask" (1939) and included much more than the horror films for which he is best known. The filmography is carefully researched, with comments by the authors (and by Cushing himself), and lots of anecdotes. The book offers eight pages on "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1959), with minor discussion of his Sherlockian television series (1968) and "The Masks of Death" (1984), and an intriguing mention of Paul Giovanni's play "The Crucifer of Blood" (Cushing told the authors in 1975 that "the part of Sherlock Holmes was originally offered to me, but I'm afraid the theatre is a thing of the past as far as I'm concerned"). The address for the publisher is: Box 611, Jefferson, NC 28640.
  256. David Rush reports that the June 1993 issue of Reader's Digest has "The Greatest Quotes Never Said" (condensed from "NICE GUYS FINISH SEVENTH": FALSE PHRASES, SPURIOUS SAYINGS AND FAMILIAR MISQUOTATIONS, by Ralph Keyes, published by Harpercollins in 1992). Keyes notes that "Elementary, my dear Watson" is not in the Canon, and there is nice accompanying artwork by Michael Witte.
  257. S. Tupper Bigelow ("The Five Orange Pips") died on June 13. He was one of Canada's best-known magistrates (and widely known as the "hanging judge of Toronto" although he really wanted only an end to the ban on flogging), and chairman of the Ontario Racing Commission (and an early promoter of various runnings of The Silver Blaze on both sides of the border), and he once told Bill Rabe that "I have been trying to con my brother-in-law, who is a local Alderman, into changing the name of our local street (in his ward, too), to Lauriston Gardens and renumbering us '3', but the silly bastard wants to know why." He received his Investiture and Irregular Shilling in 1959, and the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1969. And Tupper never objected when he was described as the only man I ever knew who had been born in the 19th century but who had been born a century too late (I was off only by a year).
  258. A new catalog at hand from Brian and Charlotte Erickson (Sherlock's Corner, 1029 Judson Drive, Mountain View, CA 94040) offering large and small Sherlockian shadow boxes, jigsaw puzzles, needlepoint and clay ornaments, note cards, and much more.
  259. Tina Rhea reports that a book dealer in Wiltshire is offering some books by Michael Harrison (Sherlockian and non-Sherlockian) that she doesn't need. If you have a Harrison want-list, you can write (and send an SASE) to Tina at 3-E Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.
  260. THE LIFE AND TIMES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Philip Weller (with Christopher Roden), was published last year in England by Studio Editions at £12.95, and there also is an American edition (New York: Crescent Books, 1992; 144 pp., $15.00). The text is for non-Sherlockians, but any Sherlockian ought to enjoy the many splendid full-color illustrations from material in the collections of Richard Lancelyn Green and Stanley MacKenzie.
-
261. Jun 93 #7: "Sherlock Bloodhound" was one of the "country companions" that were available earlier from Wild Wings (Mar 92 #5): an attractive six-inch-high figurine by artist Robert Harrop in handcrafted cold-cast resin. And if you missed it, Paula Brown has reported it offered again, in the Father's Day catalog from House of Tyrol, Box 451, Lake City, MN 55041 (800-445-4833). It's item 16433, and the cost is $49.95 plus shipping.
  262. LESTRADE AND THE SAWDUST RING, by M. J. Trow (London: Constable, 1992, 235 pp., £13.99), is the thirteenth in his fine series about Sholto Lestrade, who in this book is a young detective-sergeant in 1879, pursued by a private detective hired by Prime Minister Disraeli and touring the provinces in "Lord" George Sanger's circus, investigating (as usual) a series of rather bizarre murders. Trow continues his excellent work in presenting a clumsy-but-intelligent Lestrade, with plenty of action, much humor, occasionally atrocious puns, and bravura style.
  263. Bantam Audio (as in Bantam Doubleday Dell) is the American distributor of the BBC Radio audiocassette version of THE MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (vol. 1 has four stories on two cassettes, at $15.99); it's the Merrison/Williams series, and the stories are Silv/Yell/Stoc/Glor.
  264. Jennie Paton spotted a new Sherlockian troll: a plastic doll, five inches high, with purple hair, distributed by Russ Berrie and Co., Oakland, N.J. (item 18515). Not as authentic as the ten-inch-high white-haired Norfin Troll marketed in 1990 (Oct 90 #3), but just as silly.
  265. C. Bryan Gassner, who presides over The Shadows of the Elm at the Arroyo del Oso Elementary School in Albuquerque, N.M., assisted her students in presenting a half-hour adaptation of "The Red-Headed League" last month, and as usual it was nicely done, and videotaped. A videocassette (with an extra 17 minutes of out-takes titled "Rejects from the Artificial Kneecap Factory") is available for $8.00 postpaid from Mrs. Gassner at 922 Washington Street SE, Albuquerque, NM 87108.
  266. Sherlock Holmes will battle the Phantom of the Opera. Twice. Jon Lellenberg has reported that Nicholas Meyer has written a new novel called THE CANARY TRAINER, and that an auction among publishers was delayed when Meyer learned that Sam Siciliano's novel THE ANGEL OF THE OPERA, with a similar theme, was already on offer with use of the characters authorized by Dame Jean Conan Doyle. Meyer quickly received authorization for his book, too, and Norton has announced that Meyer's THE CANARY TRAINER will be published on Sept. 20. And Siciliano's THE ANGEL OF THE OPERA will be published by Macmillan, who have not yet announced a date.
  267. "Three men in a deerstalker" was the headline on Judith Cook's report in the Guardian Weekend (May 22), kindly sent by Malcolm Payne, with details on a joint meeting of The Sherlock Holmes Society and The Jerome K. Jerome Society hosted by Philip and Rose Porter at their home in Worcestershire. "The Holmes Society runs heavily to barristers and solicitors and accountants," according to Miss Cook's account, "though also among its number was an aerial archaeologist who wore shorts and a pith helmet, and remained silent throughout." There was lunch, croquet, rain, Victorian music hall, and a balloon ascent, and the heavily outnumbered Jeromeans all survived.
-
268. Jun 93 #8: The Parallelogram is the newsletter published five times a year by and for The Parallel Case of St. Louis, and the June issue has Michael Harrison's hitherto unpublished essay on "The Unsung Virtues of Dr. Watson" (and it is nice indeed to be reminded of how easy it was for Michael to

- shed new light on the Canon). Subscriptions cost $6.00 a year, to Joseph J. Eckrich, 2757 Baccara Drive, Arnold, MO 63010 (and yes, that's his new address).
269. There's still time for a trip to Washington, to visit the National Gallery of Art to see the fine exhibition of "The Great Age of British Watercolors 1750-1880" before it closes on July 25. Twenty-seven splendid watercolors by Joseph Mallord William Turner (1775-1851), are featured in the show, and one of them is his fine painting "The Great Falls of the Reichenbach" (1804). And if you don't see the painting in Washington, you can visit it later at the Cecil Higgins Art Gallery in Bedford, from which it was loaned to the exhibition.
270. "Poirot Battles Reilly: Ace of Spies on PBS-TV" isn't the name of the series, but if your local station repeats "Reilly" in July you will be able to see David Suchet in the second episode, as the policeman who pursues Reilly in Port Arthur.
271. Richard Wein notes that Al Greengold (who has been a speaker at "Autumn on Baker Street") will lecture on Sherlock Holmes at the monthly meeting of Greater New York Mensa at 7:00 pm on July 8, at the Workmen's Circle (45 East 33rd Street in New York City); you need not be a member of Mensa to attend, and the cost is $5.00 (members) or $7.50 (guests) (and you can be Al's guest).
272. Videotaper alert: the restored laserdisc version of "The Lost World" (1925) will air on AMC cable on July 1, 13, and 29. And "The Deadly Bees" (1967) will air on USA cable on July 22; the film is based on H. F. Heard's novel A TASTE FOR HONEY, and was scripted by Robert Bloch, but Anthony Marriott's revision of Bloch's script "took some vast liberties" (according to Bloch), and Mr. Mycroft vanished from the show.
273. Erik Beckman ("Stapleton") was found dead on June 5. He was a Professor of Criminal Justice at Michigan State University, with particular interest and expertise in the legal aspects of high-speed police pursuits, and a member of The Greek Interpreters of East Lansing, and received his Investiture in the BSI in 1986. After his retirement in 1988 he moved to California and joined The Napa Valley Napoleons, but lived alone.

---

Jul 93 #1:

274. IL RITORNO DELLE FATE (Carnago: SugarCo Edizioni, 1992; 219 pp., 22,000 lire) is an Italian translation of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's THE COMING OF THE FAIRIES (1922), with his article from The Strand Magazine (Feb. 1923) and material from the second edition of the book (1928), and a transcript of the interview filmed by Fox Movietone in 1929 (reprinted from the N.Y. Times), and with an interesting new introduction by Michael W. Homer and Massimo Introvigne that brings the story of the Cottingley fairies up to date through the exposure of the hoax in the 1980s. All in Italian, and the publisher's address is: Via Enrico Fermi 9, 21040 Carnago (VA), Italy.
275. The just-issued THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES offers two audiocassettes with three stories ("The Empty House", "The Devil's Foot", and "The Abbey Grange") read by Edward Hardwicke, who as might be expected does a fine job indeed with Watson's prose and with other voices such as Holmes, and Holmes as the old bookseller. The cost is £9.00 postpaid, from CSA Telltapes, 101 Chamberlayne Road, London NW10 3ND, England; payment in sterling only, but they take plastic (Visa/Mastercard/Eurocard). CSA also reports that Edward Hardwicke will be seen in the film "Shadowlands" (with Anthony Hopkins and Debra Winger).
276. Christopher and Barbara Roden now have a firm date for next year's meeting of The Arthur Conan Doyle Society in Toronto: Apr. 29-May 1, at the Hotel Plaza II. Their tentative list of speakers includes the Rodens, Michael Coren, Michael W. Homer, Roy E. Pilot, Chris Redmond, Alvin E. Rodin, R. Dixon Smith, and Philip K. Wilson, and additional information is available from the society, at Ashcroft, 2 Abbotsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester CH4 0JG, England.
277. The summer 1993 issue of The Sherlock Holmes Gazette has arrived, with a color cover and 48 pages of news about the touring production of "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" and the new Sherlockian society in France and other areas of interest, and more than three pages of comments on comment in the spring issue on how scholarly or social or bibulous many Sherlockians and Holmesians are or ought to be. And a report that Granada's recreation of Baker Street (the exterior set) has been enclosed in an enormous warehouse so that hourly Victorian shows can be presented in the street for visitors to the Granada Studios Tours; it thus becomes more and more difficult for the television series to use the set. Four-issue subscriptions cost $32.00 from Carolyn and Joel Senter at Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219 (credit cards welcome). The Senters' last catalog also is available, offering an assortment of attractive Sherlockiana.
278. Sherry Rose-Bond reports an interesting discovery in the July 1993 issue of Vanity Fair, in an article about Francesca Thyssen, daughter of Baron Hans Heinrich Thyssen-Bornemisza, wife of the Archduke Karl von Habsburg. The Archduke Karl is both an imperial and a royal highness who inherited more than 40 titles, including: Emperor of Austria, Apostolic King of Hungary, King of Jerusalem, King of Bohemia, King of Dalmatia, King of Transylvania, King of Croatia and Slovenia, King of Galicia and Illyria, Grand Duke of Tuscany, Margrave of Moravia, Duke of Salzburg, and Duke of Modena. Thus it would appear that there still is a hereditary King of Bohemia.
-
279. Jul 93 #2: Granada Television, earlier criticized in the press for a lack of high-grade programming (May 92 #2 and Dec 92 #2) has more recently been under attack by MP Ann Clwyd, spokesperson for Her Majesty's Opposition, according to an article from The Times (Mar. 17) at hand from Chris Redmond. She has demanded that the Independent Television Commission revoke Granada's broadcasting license, or that the ITC should be arraigned for dereliction of duty. Stephen Morrison, the Granada managing director with prime responsibility for broadcasting policy and production, was confident that the company would be vindicated (and it still has its license).
280. The Gleniffer Press microbook (one inch high) edition of THE THREE STUDENTS in 1992 was nicely done and they now have announced a miniature (7/8" high) edition of SILVER BLAZE, with 100 pages set in 2-point type and illustrated with line drawings. $25.00 postpaid (U.S. dollar checks and credit cards are welcome), and the address is 11 Low Road, Castlehead, Paisley, Scotland PA2 6AQ, United Kingdom.
281. "Six foot three in height, active as a squirrel, dexterous with his fingers," Sherlock Holmes suggested, describing the suspect in "The Abbey Grange" (and our latest self-adhesive issue shows a red squirrel).
282. Tim O'Connor (6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941) has reported a new play by Mike C. Philipson: "Doctor Watson Investigates" will be performed in small theaters in England from Aug. 26, 1993, to Jan. 20, 1994; if you plan to be in England during that period, Tim can provide a detailed schedule and complimentary tickets.
283. Roger Johnson reports in The District Messenger that Ian Henry Publications (20 Park Drive, Romford, Essex RM1 4LH, England) plan to publish the script of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (the play written by Terry and Rose, and starring Eille Norwood) later this year at £25.00 later this year. Also I REMEMBER THE DATE VERY WELL, a new chronology by John Hall.
284. The July issue of Smithsonian has a splendid article by David Roberts about Sabine Baring-Gould, who is best-known today for writing the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" (he claimed he had dashed off the words in ten minutes as an occasional piece for a procession of schoolchildren). He also was a prolific writer, and one of the best historians of the West Country and its folksongs and tales of dangerous mires and spectral hounds, and the grandfather of William S. Baring-Gould, whose ANNOTATED SHERLOCK HOLMES is one of the Sherlockian classics.

285. Sandra Dare Lubinsky has original 16mm films of two of the 1954 television shows that starred Ronald Howard and H. Marion Crawford ("The Baker Street Nursemaids" and "The Christmas Pudding"), and will be happy to accept bids for one or both until the end of August. Her address is Box 249, Clifton, VA 22024-0249.
286. Further to the earlier mention of a funambulist (Jun 93 #2), there was a cruciverablist at the Sherlockian workshop in Minneapolis. Russell Sparks (6545 90th Street South, Cottage Grove, MN 55016) is selling a book with 67 S'ian puzzles (word squares, acrostics, and crosswords); $6.75 postpaid.
-
287. Jul 93 #3: Prince Charles, who also is the Duke of Cornwall, paid a threehour visit to Princetown on Dartmoor on June 9, and was greeted by Sherlock Holmes enthusiasts at the Duchy Hotel, according to an article in the [Plymouth] Western Morning News, kindly forwarded by Jon Lellenberg. Said to have been used by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle when he wrote "The Hound of the Baskervilles", the hotel now houses the newly-opened High Moorland Visitor Centre. The article made no mention of whether Prince Charles made any reference to his having played Sir Cumberbund Overspill in "The Hound of the Overspills" in 1969, when he was at Trinity College, Cambridge.
288. Tom Kowols reports in the June issue of The Police Gazette (published by The Scotland Yarders) that WFMT-FM (Chicago) broadcast the first six shows from the BBC's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (with Clive Merrison as Holmes) in June, with the remaining six promised in the near future. You might want to check with your local NPR and APR stations to see if they are planning to air the series.
289. Tom also reports that United Airlines is providing a new audience for the Jeremy Brett series by showing at least one of the shows ("Silver Blaze") in-flight on international flights.
290. Creation Entertainment (530 Riverdale Drive, Glendale, CA 91204) arrange for Star Trek conventions here and there (practically everywhere, it might seem), and they merchandise interesting things such as thermal "Holodeck Mugs" (you put hot liquid in the mugs and characters beam into the Holodeck doors which disappear and then the Holodeck characters appear), and (as you may have guessed by now) one mug shows Data changing into Sherlock Holmes. It's item T80 and it costs $12.00; shipping extra, and they take plastic, but they won't ship outside the United States.
291. Carolyn Gassner reports that Marilee Woodrow (1016 Espejo Street NE, Albuquerque, NM 87112) has designed a nicely Sherlockian silhouette available as wooden jewelry. The silhouette is black, and seven cm. high, and available as a necklace (on black cord) or a pin at $5.50 postpaid, or as a set of earrings at $10.50 postpaid.
292. The 1993 running of The Silver Blaze at Belmont Park (in New York) will be held on Sept. 11. If you would like to attend, and have not yet received the formal announcement, you can write to Stephen L. Stix, 203 East Chelly Street, Warsaw, NC 28398.
293. It was, as I recall, in 1980 that the Abbey National Building Society began work on its new headquarters building, and donated the bricks from the old building to charities that sold the bricks, suitably stenciled and boxed, at £2.00 each (or thereabouts). But I don't remember which Sherlockian it was who came back from a vacation in Britain with an extra suitcase full of the bricks, bewildering a customs official or two. And I believe there's at least one Sherlockian who had at least one of the authentic 221-B bricks built into a living-room fireplace. And one of the bricks has finally been offered by a Sherlockian brick-dealer -- well, book-dealer (Pepper & Stern, 1980 Cliff Drive #224, Santa Barbara, CA 93109) -- at $250.00.
-
294. Jul 93 #4: The Knights of the Gnomon have revived their journal after an eleven-year hiatus. The third issue of Shadows of the Gnomon, with 32 pages of contributions by members, is available for $8.00 postpaid from Richard R. Rutter, 1620 Granada Drive, Burlingame, CA 94010-5862.
295. Chris Steinbrunner ("The Tankerville Club Scandal") died on July 7. He was in many ways thoroughly typical of a younger generation who discovered how much fun there was to be had in the Sherlockian world in the 1950s, when he was a student at Fordham University, and wrote a series of radio pastiches which he directed for broadcast by WFUV-FM. He received his investiture in 1957, and was the founder of The Priory Scholars, which was first based at Fordham, where the society broadcast several radio adaptations of Canonical stories, and then wherever Chris happened to be at the moment, sharing the pleasure he found in radio and films and books. He received the BSI's Two-Shilling Award in 1986, and many honors in worlds other than Sherlockian. He loved to act, preferably as Watson on stage and on radio, but surely his most astounding performance was as Charlie Chan at one of the grand gourmet off-year dinners at the Culinary Institute of America. And he was proud to have been the focal point for The Cheap Thrills Club, in which membership required only that one have been a passenger in a car driven by Chris. He had friends everywhere, and we all will miss him.
296. The Curious Collectors of Baker Street, enthusiastically keeping green the memory in Los Angeles, offer their new pin, 1.5 inches high, in white and red on gold, available from Chrys Kegley, 110 El Nido #41, Pasadena, CA 91107 ($10.00 postpaid).
297. Can you identify an Oscar-winning actor or actress who played a Canonical role? Try naming more than one. There are at least seven, in fact, and I will name them, next month, perhaps.
298. Lola Troy Fiur has an imaginative series of mystery-theme photograph notecards (one of them Sherlockian); for an illustrated sales-list flier, send an SASE to LTF Studios, 360 East 65th Street #17-A, New York, NY 10021.
299. Spotted by eagle-eyed Tim O'Connor: RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT! FAIRY TALES & LITERATURE #1 (May 1993; $2.50), a comic-book reprint of the old Ripley panels, with five items about Holmes or Conan Doyle. Tim also reports that Sherlock Holmes appears very briefly in a television commercial for AT&T's "I Plan", and that in the new movie "Last Action Hero" the nemesis quotes a variation of "whenever you have eliminated the impossible ..."
300. Michael McClure reports that Jeremy Brett reported (in a telephone call to wish young Michael a happy birthday) that Granada is now in rehearsal for a one-hour version of "The Red Circle", and that their plans call for a total of six new shows (the other five not yet selected).
301. The Royal Navy has long honored a tradition of exchanging Biblical signals, such as the one sent during WW2 by a submarine returning from a war patrol: "Psalm 17:4" (which is "Concerning the works of men by the word of thy lips I have kept me from the paths of the destroyers"). Of course one can also find Biblical verses that are appropriate to the Canon, and Jack Koelle has suggested that Stapleton surely would have appreciated "Psalm 69:10".
-
302. Jul 93 #5: Further to the report (Jun 93 #5) on the retrospective exhibit of paintings by Mark Tansey at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Bruce Parker reports that "Derrida Queries De Man" is in the show, and that the two figures seem to be dancing rather than fighting, and that the writing on the rocks consists of phrases and clauses from deconstructionist critical works by Derrida and De Man.
303. More from Tom Kowols: the film "Aliens" had two sequels, plus a series of spin-off comic books (published by Dark Horse Comics), and now a series of paperback novels adapted from the comic books by Steve Perry (published by Bantam Books). And in the second book (NIGHTMARE ASYLUM) a character says, "Back on Earth, long time ago, there was a famous investigator working on a crime," and goes on to paraphrase the exchange about the non-barking dog.
304. Ben Wood has spotted a new space-program appearance by Sherlock, in the crew of space shuttle mission STS-57. Mission specialist Nancy Jane Sherlock, an Army captain and a senior aviator, was named an astronaut in 1990. STS-57, launched on June 18 and returned on July 1, was her first shuttle flight. The mission patch is a lot larger, and a lot more colorful, than shown here.

305. Donald Girard Jewell has announced the fifth volume in his Sherlock Holmes Natural History Series: A CANONICAL DOG'S LIFE: A MONOGRAPH ON CANINES IN THE TIME OF SHERLOCK HOLMES; the 38-page monograph is illustrated with contemporary artwork and costs $9.95 postpaid (Pinchin Lane Press, 4685 Geeting Road, Westminster, MD 21158).
306. Syd Goldberg reports that the film "The Name of the Rose" (1986, with Sean Connery as William of Baskerville) is now available on laserdisc. Syd also notes that Anthony Higgins, who is to play Sherlock Holmes in the upcoming CBS-TV television movie (Jun 93 #4), can be seen as one of the Cheka agents in the last five of the twelve episodes of "Reilly: Ace of Spies" (in case your local PBS-TV station is rerunning the series).
307. Check your local supermarkets: Jerry Margolin reports that "Sherlock Sprink and the Mystery of the Missing Sprinkles" can be found inside the cardboard wrapper of some six-packs of Dannon Sprinklins yogurt (strawberry, banana, and cherry vanilla lowfat yogurt with rainbow sprinkles).
308. Christopher Roden reports that Richard Dalby is planning to reprint Hesketh Prichard's stories about the psychic detective Flaxman Low, from Pearson's Magazine (1898-1899), and that Flaxman Low seems to have been modelled on Sherlock Holmes, and that Prichard was a friend of Conan Doyle. Additional details are available from Richard Dalby (4 Westbourne Park, Scarborough, North Yorkshire YO12 4AT, England).
309. Christopher also notes that the diaries of the late Kenneth Williams have been edited by Russell Davies and published as THE KENNETH WILLIAMS DIARIES (London: HarperCollins, 1993; 827 pp., £20.00); Williams played Sir Henry Baskerville in the Cook/Moore film, and began the project with enthusiasm, but became more and more despondent as work continued (Williams could make no sense of Cook's Holmes-with-a-Jewish-accent, nor Moore's Welsh Watson).
-
310. Jul 93 #6: The Dispatch Box is a two-page newsletter published quarterly (in English) by The Japanese Cabinet, a newly-founded Sherlockian society, and edited by Keith Webb, 1297-10 Aobadai, Tokorozawa, Saitama 359, Japan; membership costs $10.00 a year (North America) or $15.00/£10.00 (Europe); currency or postal reply coupons only, please.
311. Dick and Nancy Albright report that The Fifth Northumberland Fusiliers of Pittsburgh are offering Sherlockian T-shirts ($12.00 postpaid) and sweatshirts ($19.00 postpaid) in red-on-white, in sizes S/M/L/XL; you can order from GCS IPS Printers at 125 South Broad Street, Grove City, PA 16127.
312. Tim O'Connor has good news for those who have been in hot pursuit of Larry Townsend's THE SEXUAL ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, published by the Olympia Press in 1971 and long out of print: it's back in print (without any indication that it's a reprint), from Masquerade Books (800-458-9640), priced at $4.95 (plus $1.00 shipping). You are unlikely to find it at your local bookstore, unless your local bookstore deals in hardcore homosexual pornography (the book was far more shocking in 1971 than it is in 1993, but it still isn't something for the easily shocked or annoyed).
313. Tim also reports that the current catalog from the Players Press (Box 1132, Studio City, CA 91614) offers a long list of Sherlockiana published by Ian Henry in England and by Simon & Pierre in Toronto.
314. Further to the report on Sherlock Holmes and the Phantom of the Opera (Jun 93 #7), Otto Penzler notes that Sam Siciliano's THE ANGEL OF THE OPERA will be published by Otto Penzler Books (in association with Macmillan), with a May 1994 publication date scheduled.
315. A new sales-list at hand from Jennifer Steen (Sherlock and Co., 695 35th Avenue #204, San Francisco, CA 94121); Sherlockian books, other mysteries, and an imaginative S'ian T-shirt.
316. SHERLOCK REDIVIVUS displays John Ruyle's poetic investigation of THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with an impressive total of 45 quartets, finely-printed as usual by The Pequod Press (521 Vincent Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94707-1521) and offered at $35.00 (cloth) or $15.00 (paper).
317. The summer 1993 issue of Scarlet Street has arrived, with Boze Hadleigh's fine interview with Gale Sondergaard (the last she granted), David Stuart Davies' review of the touring production of "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical", and a bit of additional news from David about the Granada series (the new programs may include "The Golden Pince-Nez", "The Three Gables", and a combination of "The Three Garridebs" and "The Mazarin Stone"). Well, someone may be confused about Garridebs and Gables, because there also were reports that Jeremy Paul had done a one-hour Garridebs script before Granada went to the two-hour format. Scarlet Street costs $18.00 a year (four issues) from R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666.
-
318. Aug 93 #1: Nicholas Meyer's THE CANARY TRAINER (New York: W. W. Norton, 1993; 225 pp., $21.00) is his third Sherlockian novel, setting Sherlock Holmes in pursuit of the Phantom of the Opera in a pastiche that is a tribute more to Gaston Leroux's story than to the films and the Broadway musical based on it. The story is another long-lost and neglected manuscript, recently discovered at the Beinecke Library ("I urge people to write to the folks at Yale and tell them to get their act together," Meyer suggests in his foreword) [his own papers are at the University of Iowa]; it's a story nicely-told, with some surprises in store even for those who know the Phantom's story well.
319. Norton is widely distributing Nicholas Meyer's THE CANARY TRAINER in paper covers to reviewers and others as an "advance reader's copy not for resale" (as Dutton did with THE SEVEN-PER-CENT SOLUTION in 1974; 1,000 copies were distributed in paper covers at the American Booksellers Association convention, and Ron De Waal records the total issue at 1,500).
320. MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: VOLUME 1 is a welcome addition to the list of Canonical radio on audiocassettes. The two-cassette set has four stories (Silv/Yell/Stoc/Glor) from the BBC Radio series starring Clive Merrison and Michael Williams, and it's distributed here by BDD (as in Bantam Doubleday Dell) Audio at $15.99. The dramatizations and voices are splendid, and the 45-minute format allows plenty of time for good radio theater.
321. The challenge (Jul 93 #3) involved Oscar-winning actors and actresses who played Canonical roles. Note that it did not ask for actors and actresses who won Oscars for playing Canonical roles, which isn't quite the same (and in any case, there aren't any). And note that it specified Canonical roles (which excludes eight Oscar-winners: Ethel Barrymore, Michael Caine, Joel Grey, Ray Milland, Vanessa Redgrave, George C. Scott, Gale Sondergaard, and Joanne Woodward, who played roles that were Sherlockian but not Canonical). And yes, there are indeed at least seven people who do qualify.
322. Nor does the list include Jack Francis, who played Watson in the film "A Study in Scarlet" (1914), since I've not been able to confirm Ron Haydock's suggestion that Jack Francis actually was John Ford, the younger brother of Francis Ford, who both directed and played Holmes in the film. John Ford won four Oscars.
323. So who are the seven? In alphabetical order: Anne Baxter, Charles Chaplin, Donald Crisp, Robert Duvall, John Gielgud, Charlton Heston, John Huston, Ben Kingsley, John Mills, Laurence Olivier, and Orson Welles. Please note that the challenge didn't specify that the actors and actresses had to have played Canonical roles in films; in some cases they didn't. Welles played both Holmes and Moriarty; Heston and Gielgud played Holmes; Mills, Duvall, and Kingsley played Watson; Baxter played Irene Adler; Olivier and Huston played Prof. Moriarty; Crisp played Col. Moran; and Chaplin played Billy.
324. And yes, there are eleven names, in case someone wishes to quibble about Charlie Chaplin, who was awarded an honorary Oscar in 1971, and thus technically didn't win one, or about Ben Kingsley, who won an Oscar but played a Watson that wasn't strictly Canonical -- and thanks to Lawrence Nepodahl, who reported two winners that I had overlooked.
-
325. Aug 93 #2: Reported by John Pforr: Suncoast Pictures (a widespread videostore chain) is discounting the Key Video (CBS/Fox) series of Rathbone/Bruce cassettes (all 14 films) at $14.98 each (they were issued at $19.98 in 1988), and the cassettes carry special stickers that allow you to

- send get a $5.00 rebate if you buy two cassettes. These cassettes likely are the best versions: in 1988 I was told that they had been made from the masters assembled by Leo Gutman when he controlled the films.
326. John Nassivera's play "Sherlock Holmes and the Unseen Hand" (which had its world premiere at the Dorset Theatre in Dorset, Vermont, on July 22, with Time Winters as Holmes, Davis Hall as Watson, and Russell Goldberg as Conan Doyle) is a revision of his earlier "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes" (1978), which was first produced in Dorset and then off-Broadway in New York in 1980 (with Keith Baxter as Holmes). It's an interesting view of the conflict between the creator and his creation; the first version was published by Samuel French and was produced at (at least) a dozen regional theaters, so the second version also is likely to be available eventually.
327. Six of the Canonical stories dramatized by Grant Eustace and produced by Daedalus Productions for British Airways (for in-flight entertainment for passengers beginning in Apr. 1987), with Roy Marsden as Holmes and John Moffatt as Watson, were broadcast weekly by the BBC World Service beginning June 24. The 30-minute series could continue into August and beyond, and each show has repeats, so short-wavers should check their BBC schedules. And if you're not a short-waver, the series was issued on cassettes by The Talking Tape Company (Unit 11, Shaftesbury Industrial Centre, The Runnings, Cheltenham GL51 9NH, England); in 1990, the cost was £7.00 per set of four shows.
328. Ken Greenwald has sent the second issue of his newsletter The Dispatch Box, with six pages of news about the Rathbone/Bruce audiocassette series (which will end with volume 26), a revised edition of his THE LOST ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES to be published by B. Dalton for Christmas (and available only in B. Dalton stores), and a report from Glenhall Taylor that the Jimmy Durante closing line ("Good Night, Mrs. Calabash, wherever you are") does indeed have a Sherlockian source. You can send a #10 SASE to Ken at Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035-998.
329. Ken also reports the death of Mary Green in Nov. 1992. She was the widow of Denis Green, and worked with him, although uncredited, on the scripts for the Sherlock Holmes series, and told some nice tales about those early days in an introduction to the third volume in the audiocassette series.
330. It has been widely reported that Bill Clinton likes to read mysteries, but so far there has been no confirmation that he likes to read mysteries about Sherlock Holmes. The closest connection so far has been in a report in the July 12 issue of Newsweek on seven days in the White House: the evening of June 24 extended well past midnight as the president waited for news of a long-delayed Senate vote, in the solarium on the second floor of the White House. "Some presidents in crisis drink or talk to the paintings. Clinton channel-surfed, flicking back and forth among three movies: 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid', 'Zorba the Greek', a Sherlock Holmes feature called 'The Crucifer of Blood', and whatever else was on at 3 a.m."
-
331. Aug 93 #3: Avram Davidson died on May 19. He was a well-known author and editor in science-fiction and fantasy, but he did not neglect Sherlock Holmes: "The Case of the Doped-Up Doctor", first published in the fanzine Cry (Apr. 1961) and reprinted in the BSI (Sept. 1961), offered his proposal that it was Watson rather than Holmes who was the cocaine addict.
332. Prof. B. J. Rahn has launched a newsletter called "Murder Is Academic" for people interested in the teaching and criticism of crime fiction on campus, and has compiled a 134-page COLLECTION OF CRIME FICTION COURSE SYLLABI that is available for $20.00 postpaid. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle led the list of authors the teachers used (cited by 20 of the 28 teachers who contributed). If you are, or know of, someone who works in this area, teaching Sherlockian or any other mystery fiction, or wish to order the COLLECTION or a copy of the newsletter, her address is: Hunter College (English Dept.), 695 Park Avenue, New York, NY 10021.
333. Dennis France has reported that Richard J. Moore died on July 17. He was a retired school-teacher, and particularly interested in the fatal battle of Maiwand, making a specialty of delivering toasts to the gallant Murray at Sherlockian gatherings in the Chicago area.
334. Von Herder Airguns Ltd. plan to celebrate the centenary of the first German translation of a Sherlock Holmes story (in 1894) by publishing A CENTENARY BIBLIOGRAPHY OF GERMAN SHERLOCKIANA 1894-1994, with text in both German and English, and with some 400 entries about translations, parodies, pastiches, and dramatizations for stage, screen, radio, and television. You can order a copy now (but you need not send payment until delivery), and the postpaid price is DM 25.00 until Oct. 31, and DM 30.00 thereafter (dollar checks are welcome, at $16.00/$19.00). You can order from Michael Ross, Bendheide 65, 47906 Kempen 1, Germany.
335. Malcolm Payne reports that The Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment now has an illustrated flier giving details about their first day cover for the upcoming British set of stamps honoring Sherlock Holmes. You can send an international reply coupon to Richard Greep, The Limes, Eridge Road, Crowborough, East Sussex, England.
336. John Murray VI died on July 22. Born Arnaud Robin Grey, he was part of the family that has been in the publishing business since 1768 (when the first John Murray set up shop in London), and changed his name when he joined the firm. He was a teen-ager when he first met Conan Doyle, and once recalled that meeting ("If this is an author,' I said to myself, 'what fun to be a publisher!"). His son John Murray VII now heads the company, which is the oldest family-run publisher in Britain.
337. MALICE DOMESTIC 2: AN ANTHOLOGY OF ORIGINAL TRADITION MYSTERY STORIES, with an introduction by Mary Higgins Clark (New York: Pocket Books, 1993; 255 pp., $4.99), includes Carole Nelson Douglas' "Parris Green" (in which Irene Adler and Penelope Huxleigh meet Oscar Wilde in 1886). You should look for the book under "C" on the bookstore shelves, since it's "presented by" Mary Higgins Clark, whose name the publisher has likely assumed will attract far more purchasers than the name of Martin Greenberg, who presumably actually edited the anthology, from the copyright credit on the title-page verso.
-
338. Aug 93 #4: Richard Wein recommends John English Gifts (6 Princes Arcade, Piccadilly, London SW1Y 6DS, England) as a reliable source for statues and such: their stock includes Kevin Francis' Sherlock Holmes Toby jug at £169.36; Richard Harrop's "country companions" of Holmes and Watson at £21.92 each; Malcolm Cooper's Sherlock Holmes Pub at £16.98; the Bossons heads of Holmes, Watson, and Moriarty at £17.83 each; and more. They offer an illustrated flier, shipping is extra, and they take plastic.
339. Richard also reports that A&E cable will extend its series of reruns of the Granada "Sherlock Holmes" programs: "Wisteria Lodge" will debut on Sept. 6. And there has been a report quoted from the Los Angeles Times that PBS-TV will broadcast "The Last Vampyre" in the spring of 1994.
340. Tom Biblewski notes in The Baker Street Dispatch that Suzan L. Zeder's play "The Death and Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1987) will be performed at Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio, from Sept. 29 to Oct. 3; the box-office telephone number is 419-372-2719.
341. The Northern Musgraves have gradually turned their newsletter into a fullfledged journal: the spring issue of The Ritual has 52 pages of interesting articles and in-depth reviews of Great Britain's current Sherlockian stage, radio, and television. Membership costs $32.00 a year (with airmail to the United States) and includes two issues of The Ritual and an annual issue of The Musgrave Papers; write to David Stuart Davies, Overdale, 69 Greenhead Road, Huddersfield, W. Yorks. HD1 4ER, England.
342. Reported: THE DEFECTIVE DETECTIVE: MYSTERY PARODIES BY THE GREAT HUMORISTS, edited by Steve Carper (Citadel/Carol, 1992); with reprints of Sherlockian parodies by Stephen Leacock, Bret Harte, and Fran Lebowitz. RADIO MYSTERY AND ADVENTURE AND ITS APPEARANCES IN FILM, TELEVISION OTHER MEDIA, by Jim Harmon (McFarland, 1992); with coverage of Sherlock Holmes.

343. "The Game's Afloat" in the midwest on Oct. 9-10. Yes, at the moment a lot of things are afloat there, but The Harpooners of the Sea Unicorn hope that everything will be high and dry in October, except for the Goldenrod, which is the Victorian riverboat on which they intend to hold their Sherlockian symposium. Additional information is available from Len Cleavelin, 35 St. Lawrence Drive, St. Peters, MO 63376.
344. The Sherlock Holmes Conference at Santa Fe Community College was thoroughly successful, winning good reviews from attendees and from John Bennett Shaw, who gave guided tours of his library to more than fifty people, and praised all the nice people who performed, and the facilities, and the cuisine (the community college has a resident chef).
345. Sorry about that: the cryptic biblical-message story (Jul 93 #4) wound up with an inherited typo, quickly spotted by Wayne Swift. We'll try again. The Royal Navy has long honored a tradition of exchanging Biblical signals, such as the one sent during WW2 by a submarine returning from a war patrol: "Psalm 17:4" (which is "Concerning the works of men by the word of thy lips I have kept me from the paths of the destroyers"). Of course one can also find Biblical verses that are appropriate to the Canon, and Jack Koelle has suggested that Stapleton surely would have appreciated "Psalm 69:2".
-
346. Aug 93 #5: Robert C. Hess (559 Potter Boulevard, Brightwaters, NY 11718) offers a new sales-list, with Sherlockian statues, dolls, mugs, postage stamps, plates, and artwork (including an opportunity to commission original S'ian art from M. J. Trow, author of the series of amusing mystery novels about Sholto Lestrade). And Michel Lanteigne (5468 St. Urbain #4, Montreal, PQ H2T 2X1, Canada) offers a new S'ian sales-list (mostly books and pamphlets, with many older items, and reasonable prices).
347. The Practical, But Limited, Geologists will meet for dinner on Oct. 26, at Jimmy's Harborside Restaurant on the Fish Pier in Boston, during the annual convention of the Geological Society of America. Geologists and Sherlockians (and visitors of either persuasion) are welcome to join us in honoring the world's first forensic geologist; the dinner will cost $38.00, and you can make reservations with (and obtain additional information from) John F. Baesch, 1836 Columbia Road, South Boston, MA 02127.
348. A revival of "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" (with Robert Powell as Holmes and Roy Barraclough as Watson) began a seven-month tour in Britain on Mar. 11, to good reviews (and praise from some Sherlockians who saw the show), but poor box-office response forced a cancellation of the tour after only three months. "It's one of those unfathomables that it didn't manage to grab the public's attention despite the fact it is a very good production," a spokesman for the producer said.
349. Holmes for the Holidays has been recommended in the past for young mystery fans, but older Sherlockians should not neglect it: Jeff Decker's cartoons are delightful, and appropriate for children of all ages. Available from Michael W. McClure (1415 Swanwick Street, Chester, IL 62333); $7.50 a year for five issues.
350. Stewart Granger died on Aug. 16. He started his acting career on stage in Britain in the 1930s, and made his film debut in 1939 in the first of more than 60 movies. He came to the U.S. to star in "King Solomon's Mines" in 1950, and was then cast as a romantic swashbuckler in many more films. And he was Sherlock Holmes in a 90-minute television film of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" that was broadcast by ABC-TV in 1972 in what was planned as a weekly series, alternating with Robert Conrad as Nick Carter, and Eve Arden as Hildegard Withers. Universal produced the series and thought it worked well, but ABC-TV didn't.
351. Rodney Staab's article on "Sherlock Holmes and Geology" is a discussion of his achievements as the world's first practicing pedologist, presented to The Great Alkali Plainsmen earlier this year and now published in Mystery Forum Magazine #7. $5.00 postpaid, and a six-issue subscription is $18.00; 16503 3rd Street North, Independence, MO 64056.
352. Reported: "THE LOST WORLD" OF WILLIS O'BRIEN, edited by Roy Kinnard (Jefferson: McFarland, 1993; 176 pp., $29.95); the original shooting script for the complete film released in 1925, with stills and background information. Also: WILLIS O'BRIEN: SPECIAL EFFECTS GENIUS, by Steve Archer (Jefferson: McFarland, 1993, 149 pp., $28.50); discussion of his most important films, and career, and his collaborators and proteges. The publisher's address is Box 611, Jefferson, NC 29640; shipping extra, and they take plastic.
-
353. Aug 93 #6: George Armstrong ("John o' Groat's") died on July 12. He was a fine folk singer, artist, and illustrator, and was described by his longtime friend Studs Terkel as "one of the unsung musicologists of our time." George was the host of a long-running one-hour radio series on "The Wandering Folksong" for WFMT in Chicago, turning his attention to "The Case of Sherlock Holmes as a Folklore Hero" in a fine show that was broadcast in 1980. He received his Investiture in the BSI in 1984.
354. Taelen Thomas, an actor who has portrayed Jack London in one-man shows on the Monterey Peninsula, brought a special presentation of "Jack London on Conan Doyle" to a meeting of The Diogenes Club this year, and the text has been published by the society as an 18-page pamphlet, available for $6.00 postpaid (or $8.00 foreign). It's Jack London on Sherlock Holmes, too, and Jack London on Jack London, and the text makes one wish one could have been at the meeting. Checks payable to The Diogenes Club can be sent to Michael H. Kean, 3040 Sloat Road, Pebble Beach, CA 93953.
355. Further to the report on Mike C. Philipson's new play "Dr. Watson Investigates" (Jul 93 #2), one performances will be given at the Two Bridges Hotel in Dartmoor during a "Sherlock Holmes Returns to Dartmoor" weekend on Nov. 12-14, 1993. The weekend begins with a reception hosted by Shirley Purves and Clare Taylor, and also features a Dartmoor Treasure Hunt; additional information is available from Philip Davies, Two Bridges Hotel, Dartmoor, Devon PL20 6SW, England.
356. Geoffrey Stavert has passed on an advertisement for a facsimile reprint of the 1888 Ward Lock edition of A STUDY IN SCARLET (reproduced from an original at the Bodleian Library at Oxford); a presentation edition costs £150/ $225, and a special edition costs £38/$53. A flier with more information is available from Dr. Watson Books, P.O. Box 1888, London E3 5PJ, England.
357. Paul Singleton's "newsletter for thespian pursuits in Sherlockiana" has now reached 16 issues, and the latest offers interesting items such as news of Edith Meiser's appearance on "I Love Lucy" and the script for a Holmes-and-Watson scene that was omitted from "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (1939). The Third Pillar costs $5.00 a year (four issues), from Paul Singleton, Box 2882, New York, NY 10185-0025.
358. The annual dinner of The Dedicated Associates of Lomax (active in support of the Sherlock Holmes Collection at the Chicago Public Library) will hold their annual dinner on October 23. Additional details are available from Richard A. Myhre, 1319 Poplar Court, Homewood, IL 60430.
359. The Dundurn Press has announced Chris Redmond's A SHERLOCK HOLMES HANDBOOK ("here in one convenient book by a noted Sherlockian scholar, is everything needed for the study and enjoyment of the Holmes canon"); 250 pp., US$26.50 (plus $3.00 shipping), and they take plastic (2181 Queen Street East #301, Toronto, Ont. M4E 1E5, Canada). Dundurn also has the backlist from Simon & Pierre, and offers Chris' excellent IN BED WITH SHERLOCK HOLMES (1984) and WELCOME TO AMERICA, MR. SHERLOCK HOLMES (1987), Andy and Bill Paton's THE SHERLOCK HOLMES ABC BOOK (1985), and two pastiches by Ronald C. Weyman).
-
360. Sep 93 #1: Further to the earlier report on how Vincent Price was selected to supply the voice for Ratigan in "The Great Mouse Detective" (May 92 #6), there's a bit more to the story, revealed in publicity for the laserdisc. Voices are used to help create the animated characters, and the first plan

- was to use Ronald Coleman as a model, so the Disney staff screened the Ronald Coleman film "Champagne for Caesar" (1950), and as soon as they saw Vincent Price in the film, they realized they had the perfect actor for the role. And it was important to make Basil appealing, so they considered using the voice of Bing Crosby as a model for Basil, but when they set the voice to artwork the character "came out too mellow." It was Leslie Howard's performance in "Pygmalion" that sparked the final design of Basil.
361. 1994 has arrived, at least on the calendar shelves in bookstores. The STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION calendar (New York: Pocket Books, 1993; $10.00) shows Brent Spiner as Data as Sherlock Holmes for January, and a scene with Daniel Davis as Moriarty for August (both from "Ship in a Bottle").
362. Charles O. Merriman ("Colonel Hayter") died on Aug. 28. He was one of the first to join The Sherlock Holmes Society of London after it was founded in 1951, and as a chartered accountant he was of valuable service as its hon. treasurer from 1959 to 1971. He also served as the society's chairman, and received his Investiture in the BSI in 1963. He enjoyed identifying sites of Sherlockian interest such as Holmes' retirement-years bee farm, and his fine six-part "Tourist Guide to the London of Sherlock Holmes" was first published in The Sherlock Holmes Journal in the 1970s and reprinted by the London Tourist Board as a **vade mecum** for visitors.
363. "Rose is a rose is a rose," as Gertrude Stein once said. And a rose is shown on our latest self-adhesive issue, which offers a nice illustration for one of the Canonical roses.
364. Raymond Burr died on Sept. 12. He acted in films such as "Rear Window" and "A Place in the Sun" and "Godzilla, King of the Monsters", but it was television that made him truly famous, first as Perry Mason and then as Ironside and again as Perry Mason in two-hour television films. It was the end of "The Case of the Reckless Romeo" (1992) that Perry Mason, having solved his latest case, proudly asked Della Street, "Who's the greatest detective in the world?" And Della replied, "Sherlock Holmes."
365. Roger Johnson has reported that the six programs in Granada's new one-hour series (to be called "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes") will be "The Golden Pince-Nez" (in which Mycroft rather than Watson assists Holmes), "The Red Circle", "The Three Gables", "The Cardboard Box", "The Mazarin Stone", and "The Dying Detective". The series may be broadcast in Britain as early as Jan. 1994.
366. Completists may wish to pursue the most recent paperback reprint of Michael Dibdin's THE LAST SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY (London: Faber & Faber, 1990; 190 pp., £3.99); it's stated to be a corrected reprint of Faber & Faber's first reprint in 1989. It seems to be identical to earlier editions except for a new dedication "To Benita" and a now-missing two-page "Afterword".
-
367. Sep 93 #2: The new issue of Steven T. Doyle's The Sherlock Holmes Review has 64 pages with good graphics and excellent articles, including an interview with Mark McPherson (about his "Evening with Arthur Conan Doyle") and Pat Ward's warm tribute to Peter Cushing on the occasion of his 80th birthday. Box 583, Zionsville, IN 46077; $6.00 (postpaid) or $20.00 for a four-issue subscription.
368. Michael Ricker Pewter now have a photograph of the prototype of his pewter sculpture of Dr. Watson (the first of the six elements in the subscription series showing the sitting-room); the deadline for ordering is Dec. 31, and a brochure with more information is available (5433 West 88th Avenue #132, Westminster, CO 80030) (800-554-1571).
369. The STUD Sherlockian Society intends to celebrate Sherlock Holmes' birthday in October, with events that will include a traditional Anglican holiday at the American Club in Koehler, Wis., on Oct. 7-9; a ceremony in honor of Vincent Starrett at Graceland Cemetery in Chicago on Oct. 10, followed by a low tea (also described as an eat-a-rama) at the Ridgemoor Country Club; and a meeting of The Solar Pons Breakfast Club in Oak Park, Ill., on Oct. 30. Additional information is available from Donald B. Izban, 5334 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, IL 60639-1524.
370. Howard Waldrop's NIGHT OF THE COOTERS (New York: Ace Books, 1993; 253 pp., $4.99) is a collection of imaginative and fantastic short stories that show real expertise, including one that was written for an unpublished anthology of tales written by fictional authors who were inspired by Kilgore Trout's VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL (1975) and the subsequent Sherlockian pastiches by Jonathan Swift Somers III and Harry Manders. Kurt Vonnegut created Kilgore Trout but did not write VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL, and he blocked publication of the anthology; Waldrop's "The Adventure of the Grinder's Whistle" eventually appeared in a fanzine in 1977. The story is by Edward Malone, best known for his reporting on the exploits of George Edward Challenger; at the age of seven, however, he was a lad of the London streets, and in 1888 was of some assistance to Sherlock Holmes. [Sep 93 #2]
371. Joe Eckrich reports that "Star Trek: The Next Generation: Elementary, Dear Data" (the 1988 television program with Brent Spiner as Data as Holmes) is available on a commercial videocassette (with Data in Sherlockian costume on the box) from Paramount Home Video ($14.95). And that Suncoast Pictures (a widespread video-store chain) is discounting the Jeremy Brett videos at $14.95 each. And that The Mind's Eye (4 Commercial Boulevard, Novato, CA 94949) (800-227-2020) offers three audiocassette volumes (each with four of the Clive Merrison/Michael Williams radio programs from "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes") discounted to $20.00 for the lot.
372. Thanks to all those who have reported the quotation from "The Naval Treaty" in the "Points to Ponder" in the Sept. 1993 issue of the Reader's Digest. So far no one has reported noticing that the magazine edited the quote (not that that's all that unusual for the Reader's Digest).
-
373. Sep 93 #3: The 1993 "Victorian Holmes Weekend" in Cape May, N.J., will be held on Nov. 5-7. The weekend will include a search for clues in the city's Victorian homes, and Paul Singleton's performance as Sherlock Holmes. More information is available from the Mid-Atlantic Center for the Arts, Box 340, Cape May, NJ 08204-0340 (609-884-5404).
374. Ralph Hall reports that Dennis Rosa's adaptation of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes" (1972) will be produced at the Actors Theatre of Louisville from Dec. 30 through Jan. 29, with performances Tuesdays through Sundays. The address is 316 West Main Street, Louisville, KY 40202 (502-584-1205).
375. Ralph also reports "Sherlock Bones and the Great Riddle Caper" on p. 55 of the Aug. 1993 issue of Cricket: The Magazine for Children. And some "Lost World" coverage in the summer issue of Dinosaur Times. And some Sherlockian illustrations in "Grateful Gregory Discovers the Carnival" in Daniel J. Hochstatter's SAMMY'S EXCELLENT REAL-LIFE ADVENTURES: A SEEKING SAMMY BOOK (Nashville: Thomas Nelson, 1993) and at the Royal Wedding and on the back cover of Jim Becker's WHERE'S CHARLES & DI? (a "Where's Waldo?" take-off from Ten Speed Press, 1992).
376. Sherlock Holmes (and Ed Hoch and John Lutz) assisted the participants in a solve-the-mystery cruise through the Caribbean last spring, and a similar cruise ("The Game's Afoot, Señor") is scheduled on the Regal Princess from Acapulco to Los Angeles on Apr. 27-May 4, 1994. Additional information is available from Omni Group Cruises, 7033 Sunset Boulevard #214, Hollywood, CA 90028 (800-876-6664).
377. Save your receipt when you buy your copy of THE OXFORD SHERLOCK HOLMES (the nine-volume set due in October, with introductions by Owen Dudley Edwards, Richard Lancelyn Green, W. W. Robson, and Christopher Roden): if you mail a proof-of-purchase (for any volume or for the whole set) to "Elementary, My Dear Watson", Oxford University Press, 200 Madison Avenue (9th floor), New York, NY 10016, they will send you a set of nine colorful postcards showing the silk-screen cover artwork. And Barbara Roden has reported that the set will offer "the best texts possible, eliminating

- the errors and discrepancies that have crept in over the years," and that the set will be reissued by OUP in paperback at the end of 1994 in their "World's Classics" series.
378. Kim Newman's ANNO DRACULA, published last year in Britain (Dec 92 #3), now has an American edition (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1993; 359 pp., $21.00), and it took longer than it should have. Sherlock Holmes is in detention in a concentration camp (and stays there), Mycroft Holmes and other members of the Diogenes Club are working to overthrow Vlad Tepes (who has married the Widow of Windsor and is ruling as Prince Consort and Lord Protector), and Lestrade (who has willingly become a vampire) is pursuing a serial murderer who is threatening Whitechapel and its vampire prostitutes with a silverplated scalpel.
379. Debbie Clark reports and recommends the two-audiocassette boxed set CLASSIC DETECTIVE STORIES, read by Edward Hardwicke for CSA Telltapes, and found in an American bookshop, so CSA now has a distributor in the U.S. One of the stories in this set is "The Dying Detective", which is not in the CSA Telltapes set THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Jul 93 #1).
-
380. Sep 93 #4: It's interesting to speculate whether Nicholas Meyer eventually will receive credit, in a future edition of THE OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY, for making the phrase "the seven-per-cent solution" so recognizable and so widely used in contexts that have nothing to do with Sherlock Holmes. And the "seven" is not all that necessary: many variants have been seen over the years (including a recent magazine page of "sales & bargains" that used the subhead "The 10 Percent-Off Solution").
381. Ronald B. De Waal's THE UNIVERSAL SHERLOCK HOLMES (the long-awaited revised bibliography that will offer information from the two previously-published volumes and from at least 12,000 additional file cards prepared by Ron, who expects a total of 25,000 major entries) has been scheduled for publication by George Vanderburgh in Jan. 1994, with a price estimated at no more than US$100, and with a firm deadline for orders of Dec. 1. Additional information is available from (please choose one): Richard A. Wein (65 Briarwood Lane, Plainview, NY 11803); Alfred A. Levin (8242 Ridgeway Avenue, Skokie, IL 60076); Philip Weller (6 Bramham Moor, Hill Head, Fareham, Hants. PO14 3RU, England); J.D. Singh (The Sleuth of Baker Street, 1595 Bayview Avenue, Toronto, Ont. M4G 3B5, Canada); or George Vanderburgh, Box 204, Shelburne, Ont. L0N 1S0, Canada.
382. George Vanderburgh also can supply (at US$14.95 postpaid) INTRODUCING JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, a newly-computerized edition of Bang's splendid Sherlockian parodies, with an introduction by Jon L. Lellenberg, in Hypertext format on a 3.5-inch DS-HD (1.44-MB) MS-DOS floppy disk.
383. The new catalog from Signals (Box 64428, St. Paul, MN 55164) (800-669-9696) offers four "Sherlock Holmes Nesting Dolls" (Holmes, Watson, Moriarty, and the Hound) at $16.95 plus shipping; they take plastic.
384. THE LIST OF SEVEN, by Mark Frost (New York: William Morrow, 1993; 368 pp., $20.00) (London: Hutchinson, 1993; 377 pp., £9.99) is alternate-universe fantasy (from the co-creator of the mini-series "Twin Peaks"); the novel opens in 1884 with young Dr. Arthur Conan Doyle in practice in London and hoping to find a publisher for his book-length story about the mysterious Dark Brotherhood, which to his dismay and peril he discovers is not at all fictional, and in fact seriously supernatural and malevolent. The story is told with style and verve, and smash and bang, and buckle and swash, and is full of echoes from the real world in which the real Conan Doyle lived, and there are some surprises. And the book will be widely read: Morrow reports that book-club rights have been sold to the Science Fiction Book Club, the Doubleday Book Club, the Mystery Guild, and the Literary Guild. Warning: the book may well seriously offend readers who do not understand or agree with the basic premise of alternate-universe fantasy (a genre in which the fact that Conan Doyle wasn't really in practice as a doctor in London in 1884, and didn't really do all the things he does in this story, isn't all that important).
385. At hand from John Farrell is a note that Leslie Bricusse's SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE MUSICAL, published this year by Cherry Lane (a division of Hal Leonard) as a 100-page paperback with color illustrations, is available from Hollywood Sheet Music, 7777 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90046, for $19.95 plus $5.00 shipping; they take plastic.
-
386. Sep 93 #5: A dozen audiocassettes with Charles Fuller reading the "twelve best" tales selected by Conan Doyle for The Strand Magazine in 1927 ("The Gloria Scott" has been substituted for "The Dancing Men") were first issued in 1990, and are now available from Radio Spirits (Box 2141, Schiller Park, IL 60176-0141) (800-729-4587); Fuller is a Sherlockian and an actor, and reads the stories well. There are two volumes (each with six cassettes) priced at $29.95 each, and they accept credit-card orders (their catalog also offers a wide variety of vintage radio programs).
387. "1994 Baker Street: Sherlock Holmes Returns" (which was the title when the two-hour television aired on CBS-TV on Sept. 12) was announced too late for a videotaper alert in the previous issue, but I trust that most of you were warned by friends or television listings or advertisements. But it likely will air again, even though it's not likely to lead to the sequels that the ending optimistically hints at. For those who didn't see the show, it was a cryogenic Holmes (again), with Anthony Higgins defrosted in San Francisco and assisted by Debrah Farentino (as doctor Amy Winslow) in pursuit of Ken Pogue (as evil grand-nephew James Moriarty Booth); the show was written and directed by Kenneth Johnson, who has a sense of humor and doesn't take the story or himself too seriously. Roger Johnson notes that Anthony Higgins played Sherlock Holmes on stage in "The White Glove" in England in 1983, as well as Rathe in the film "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985), so we should add Higgins to the list of actors who have played both Holmes and Moriarty.
388. Reported: LOST WORLD II, THE END OF THE THIRD WORLD, by Marcio Souza (New York: Avon, 1993; 362 pp., $12.00), is a Brazilian novel, translated into English, that has nothing to do with dinosaurs or South American plateaus, but rather about a search for the fictional daughter of Prof. Challenger, and how the author finally manages to meet her.
389. Tony Britton's excellent audiocassette readings of THE SIGN OF FOUR and A STUDY IN SCARLET (issued some years ago by Listen for Pleasure) have been followed by his version of THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, done with style and fine attention to voices; HarperCollins AudioBooks has just issued the two-cassette set (HCA 124) at £6.99.
390. This year's summer excursion by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London was to the South Downs (in pursuit of the Lion's Mane), with a stop at Forest Row (to visit Birlstone Manor), and the 42-page excursion handbook edited by Pamela Bruxner was as usual a fine production, and so well-received that it went quickly out of print. But SUNDAY IN SUSSEX has now been reprinted, and it is available for £7.00 (or $10.50) postpaid (checks payable to the Society, please) from Pamela Bruxner at St. Cuthbert's Cottage, 23 North Street, Barming, Maidstone, Kent ME16 9HE, England.
391. The handbooks from earlier Society excursions in 1989, 1991, and 1992, and other items such as Christmas cards issued in past years by the Society and by Lord Donegall, are among the many offers in a sales-list available from Mrs. E. M. Godden, Apple Tree Cottage, Smarden, Ashford, Kent, TN27 98QE, England. And the Society's 1993 Christmas card, with a two-color sketch of New Scotland Yard, costs $12.00 postpaid (to North America) for a packet of ten, from Capt. W. R. Michell, 5 Old Farm Place, Hinton St. George, Somerset TA17 8TW, England (again, checks payable to the Society, please).
-
392. Sep 93 #6: Marina Stajic has forwarded an article from the N.Y. Daily News (Aug. 23) about a shop run by the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office to raise funds for their local Youthful Drunk Driving Program. The shop offers toe-tag key chains from the morgue, beach towels with a chalk body

- outline, and "Sherlock Bones" (a skeleton in appropriate costume) on T-shirts, tote bags, and mugs. An illustrated sales list is available from Skeletons in the Closet, 1104 N. Mission Road, Los Angeles, CA 90033.
393. SHERLOCK IN LOVE, by Sena Jeter Naslund (Boston: David R. Godine, 1993; 236 pp., $21.95), opens in 1922 with Watson having decided to write a biography of Sherlock Holmes, and quickly encountering a series of mysteries, current and past, that involve a mysterious violinist named Sigerson, an attempt to rescue Mad King Ludwig of Bavaria, and much more. The style and voice are consistent with the Canon, and the narrative is cinematic, as is often the case with modern pastiches.
394. The Franco-Midland Hardware Company is offering some intriguing Sherlockian collectibles, including a 69 x 33 x 43 mm reproduction of the company's own Model T Ford van (£9.00/$18.00 postpaid to the United States, with payment requested by sterling check or in U.S. currency), Christmas cards, company sweaters, and first day postcards for the forthcoming set of British stamps honoring Sherlock Holmes. Detailed information on all these and more, and on membership in the society, is available in return for a U.S. dollar bill sent to Philip Weller (6 Bramham Moor, Hill Head, Fareham, Hampshire PO14 3RU, England). The society also is planning a one-day trip from London on Jan. 16, 1994, to "Undershaw" (Conan Doyle's home), Portsmouth, Netley, and other Sherlockian and Doylean sites; details are available from Philip.
395. Bill Nadel reports that this year's "Friends of Old Time Radio Convention" will be held at the Holiday Inn North in Newark, N.J., on Oct. 21-23; the unofficial "Sherlock Holmes" night will be Oct. 22, when Bill direct a recreation of one of Edith Meiser's scripts, with Frank Thomas as Holmes and Earl George as Watson. Convention information is available from Jay Hickerson, Box 4321, Hamden, CT 06514 (203-248-2887).
396. MYTH AND MODERN MAN IN SHERLOCK HOLMES: SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE AND THE USES OF NOSTALGIA, by David S. Payne (Bloomington: Gaslight Publications, 1992; 311 pp., $24.95), is a scholarly approach to the Canon and its author, and remarkably free from the academic jargon that often makes so many books in this genre so impenetrable. Payne suggests that the almost instant success of the Sherlock Holmes stories was aided by their reflection of the truly modern aspects of the 1890s, and he gives thoughtful examples both of this and of the ways in which the stories demonstrate the assumptions, preconceptions, and prejudices of their author and of his readers. Available for $26.95 postpaid from the publisher at a new address (402 West Wilson Drive, Bloomington, IN 47403); credit-card orders welcome.
397. Paula Brown reports that the new catalog from Potpourri (120 North Meadows Road, Medfield, MA 02052) (800-338-7798) offers a Durastone sculpture by Aleksander Danel of a "Gentleman Angler" wearing a deerstalker and period clothes, who might be Sherlock Holmes disguised with a mustache ($59.95); and Levenger: Tools for Serious Readers (Box 1256, Delray Beach, FL 33447) (800-544-0880) offers Peterson's "Sherlock Holmes" pipe ($189.00.).
-
398. Sep 93 #7: Herve Villechaize died on Sept. 4. He was best known as Tattoo in the ABC television series "Fantasy Island" (and his cry "The plane! The plane" was a catch-phrase in the 1980s). An episode that aired in 1979 opened with Tattoo dressed in Sherlockian costume, announcing that he had just finished reading a Sherlock Holmes story.
399. Cathy Childs (1510 Lake Drive, Grand Island, FL 32735) offers a sales-list of her Sherlockian artwork, with realistic-style portraits of Jeremy Brett and other actors in the Granada series, and cartoon material as well. She also does Hercule Parrot (a crime-cracking polly from the Belgian Congo), and is happy to accept commissions.
400. Contrary to the earlier report (May 93 #3) that William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy will star in "Harry and Arthur" at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope, Pa., on Dec. 8-19, 1993: they won't. And for those who arrived late, that's Harry (Houdini) and Arthur (Conan Doyle), and the play is based on the novel BELIEVE., written by Shatner and Michael Tobias and published by Berkley last year (Jul 92 #2). The play will be rescheduled whenever there is room in the stars' busy agenda, possibly in the spring of 1994.
401. MYSTERIES SUSPENDED: MORE EARLY CASES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Richard Stone (Luton: Turnstone Press, 1993; 251 pp., £12.95), offers ten pastiches from the years between 1881 and 1888, sometimes involving a bit of science fiction and even fantasy, and the author has more stories to tell, so readers needn't worry about the last tale in this collection, which concludes with Sherlock Holmes lying exhausted on the dusty plains of Texas in 1883, "a white, barely living speck in a sea of inhospitable, unforgiving terrain."
402. The British Philatelic Bulletin has published Andrew Davidson's designs for the set of five stamps to be issued on Oct. 12 in honor of Sherlock Holmes. The Royal Mail will issue first day covers (with an appropriate pictorial postmark) cancelled at Baker Street and in Edinburgh, a presentation pack, and a set of stamp cards, and there will be first day covers issued by The Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment (Richard Greep, The Limes, Eridge Road, Crowborough, East Sussex, England), by The Arthur Conan Doyle Society (Christopher Roden, Ashcroft, 2 Abbottsford Drive, Penyffordd, Chester, CH4 0JG, England), and by The Sherlock Holmes Society of London (whose covers, as well as the presentation packs and stamp cards, will be marketed here by Ben Wood on behalf of The Baker Street Irregulars, and more information on Ben's material will be available next month).
-
403. Sep 93 #8: Lillian de la Torre died on Sept. 13. She was a fine mystery writer, and called herself a "histo-detector" (describing her calling as the craft of solving mysteries of the long-ago). Best known for her series of short stories about Dr. Sam: Johnson, Detector, she also was skilled as a playwright and as a historical novelist, and her Sherlockian pastiche ("The Adventure of the Persistent Marksman") was published in the anthology THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1987).
404. Chris Caswell has announced a 1994 Sherlock Holmes Calendar, with dates of Sherlockian significance and black-and-white photographs from classic S'ian films. The cost is $11.95 postpaid, if you say the secret word ("Scuttlebutt") and your order is received by Oct. 23; otherwise the cost is $15.95 postpaid. You can send your orders to The Baker Street Emporium, Box 2324, Seal Beach, CA 90740; credit-card orders welcome.
405. Mark Alberstat's 1994 Sherlockian Calendar will have illustrations from The Strand Magazine, with William S. Baring-Gould's dates for the cases; Mark's address is 6258 Payzant Avenue, Halifax, NS B3H 2B1, Canada, and the cost (postpaid) is US$12.00.
406. Forecast: THE BEEKEEPER'S APPRENTICE: ON THE SEGREGATION OF THE QUEEN, by Laurie R. King, from St. Martin's Press, Feb. 1994 ("in his retirement, the great detective Sherlock Holmes grooms a young woman to follow in his footsteps"). Also: THE GAME IS AFOOT; PARODIES, PASTICHES, AND PONDERINGS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, edited by Marvin Kaye, from St. Martin's Press, Apr. 1994 ("the most comprehensive volume of classic writings on or about the world's greatest consulting detective").
407. Edith Meiser ("A Fascinating and Beautiful Woman") died on Sept. 26. She was a fine actress (beginning her career with a stock company in 1921), as well as a director and writer, and her greatest gift to Sherlockians came soon after (as she once recalled) "my career as a Keith Orpheum headliner ended with the demise of vaudeville, killed by talking pictures." That was when she and her husband Tom McKnight decided to enter the world of radio, and to launch a "Sherlock Holmes" series, which began in 1930 with William Gillette in the title role in the first program (and "when Doubleday heard there would be a radio series they got out the Omnibus Edition in time for Christmas"). She wrote the scripts for the series through 1944, and again in 1947-48, and in 1954-55 she wrote the stories for the cartoon strip that Frank Giacoia drew for the N.Y. Herald Tribune. She was honored by the BSI as *The* Woman in 1987, and awarded the Queen Victoria Medal in 1989, and her Investiture in 1991.

408. "Sherlock Holmes Star Brett in a Wheelchair" was the headline in the Sunday Mirror on Sept. 12, with an "exclusive" story reporting that Jeremy Brett has been struck down by a crippling illness, forcing him to halt filming on the series, and that he was so ill on Sept. 9 that he had to miss recording an episode of "This Is Your Life" featuring his co-star Edward Hardwicke. A Granada spokeswoman confirmed that Brett was suffering from pleurisy, and that filming had been halted until Sept. 27 to allow him to rest and recuperate. The Sunday Mirror is one of London's "shock" tabloids.
-
409. Oct 93 #1: Those who feel that they aren't getting enough Sherlockian gossip in these monthly mailings may wish to subscribe to The District Messenger, which is edited by Roger Johnson for the Sherlock Holmes Society of London, and does a better job of covering what's happening in Great Britain (and sometimes elsewhere). He has been newslettering for almost eleven years, and is up to issue 134, and publishes approximately monthly with no guarantee of how many pages or how often. Twelve issues to North America cost £5.00 or US $10.00 (dollar checks should be payable to Jean Upton, please), and Roger's address is Mole End, 41 Sandford Road, Chelmsford, Essex CM2 6DE, England.
410. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #21 ($11.00) has two more of the fine old radio shows from scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, with new introductions by Harry Bartell (Peggy Webber, who worked on the original series, plays Mrs. Hudson in the introductions). "The Great Gandolfo" (22 Oct 45), starring Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce, has long been available on phonograph records and cassettes, but the new-to-audio "The Original Hamlet" (2 Nov 46) stars Nigel Bruce and Tom Conway (as Watson and Holmes, with top billing going to Bruce); Joseph Bell, the announcer, performed the same service for the pre-Rathbone series from 1930 to 1936. "The Original Hamlet" is a new script, rather than an adaptation of Vincent Starrett's pastiche.
411. Leslie Bricusse's "Sherlock Holmes: The Musical" played 4 weeks in Exeter in 1988 and 11 weeks in London in 1989, with Ron Moody in the title role, and was revived this year for 14 weeks on tour with Robert Powell, and it is a lively show. It's not yet available for production in the U.S. and Canada, but until it we can see it on this side of the Atlantic, the script (London: Samuel French, 1992; 100 pp., $11.95) will serve as a reasonable substitute; it is also available direct from Samuel French here (45 West 25th Street, New York, NY 10010) for $13.95 postpaid; they take plastic.
412. Edward B. Hanna's THE WHITECHAPEL HORRORS: A SHERLOCK HOLMES NOVEL was published last year (Mar 93 #2) and is now available as a trade paperback (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1993; 395 pp., $10.95); Holmes and Watson appear in a third-person account of the investigation of the Jack the Ripper murders.
413. Also out in trade paperback is THE D. CASE: THE TRUTH ABOUT THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD, by Charles Dickens, Carlo Fruttero, and Franco Lucentini (New York: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1993; 587 pp., $12.95); first published in Italian in 1989 and then in English (May 92 #5), the book is an account of the events at a Forum on the Completion of Unfinished or Fragmentary Works in Music and Literature, and of the deliberations of the participants, who include Lew Archer, Father Brown, Hercule Poirot, Nero Wolfe, and Sherlock Holmes.
414. Further to the earlier reports of Lumivision's laserdisc of the 1925 film of "The Lost World" (Apr 92 #4) and the more recent books about Willis H. O'Brien (Aug 93 #5), Ted Friedman reports that LSVideo (Box 415, Carmel, IN 46032) offers a video of "Rare Willis O'Brien Films (1915-1930)". O'Brien created ingenious and imaginative special effects for many films (including "King Kong"), and his shorter films also are interesting.
-
415. Oct 93 #2: The third volume of "Sherlock Holmes, Consulting Detective" is now available on CD-ROM disc for IBM-compatible and Macintosh computers, with three new cases with live-action digitized video engineered by ICOM Simulations. See your neighborhood software shop: the shelf price should be $69.95 or less. And an article in Forbes FYI (Sept. 27), at hand from Vinnie Brosnan, reports that ICOM has been bought by the media-giant Viacom, and that with 250,000 discs sold, the Sherlock Holmes discs are the third-best-selling discs in CD-ROM history.
416. Donald M. Grant (Box 187, Hampton Falls, NH 03844) can still supply copies of Sterling Lanier's THE CURIOUS QUESTS OF BRIGADIER FFELLOWES (Jan 87 #2), with his giant-rat pastiche "A Father's Tale" (D5042b), nicely illustrated by Ned Damerson and signed by author and artist ($30.00); and Joseph Payne Brennan's THE ADVENTURES OF LUCIUS LEFFING (May 90 #1), with stories about a psychic detective who owes much to H. P. Lovecraft as well as to Sherlock Holmes (although the stories are not S'ian pastiches), illustrated by Luis Ferreira and signed by author and artist ($30.00); and the now-out-of-print St. Martin's Press "Night Lights" edition of THE SPECKLED BAND (Dec 87 #3) with glow-in-the-dark illustrations by Dean Morrissey ($8.95). Shipping is extra, and there is lots of other well-illustrated science fiction, horror, and fantasy in his catalog.
417. African violets are featured on the stamps in a booklet issued this month, and of course there are many Violets in the Canon. And there is one lower-case violet (in "The Valley of Fear"): "A lovely violet growing upon one of those black slag-heaps of the mines would not have seemed more surprising."
418. MAAJABU YA UTEPE WENYE MADOADOA is Leonard Lisanza Muaka's translation into Swahili of "The Speckled Band" (and it is the first known translation of a Sherlock Holmes story into that language). The translation was proposed by George A. Vanderburgh during a visit to Kenya earlier this year, and is now available as a 24-page pamphlet. The postpaid cost is US$7.95 or CA$9.95 or £4.00, and George's address is Box 204, Shelburne, Ont. L0N 1S0, Canada. George will also be glad to send you a long list of Sherlockian and Doylean material available MS-DOS floppy disks, and he is preparing to publish THE BAKER STREET BRIEFS, a collection of S'ian essays by S. Tupper Bigelow.
419. Sorry about that: the Sherlock Holmes Society of London's reprint of SUNDAY IN SUSSEX (the excellent 42-page handbook for this year's summer excursion) costs $12.00 (postpaid to the United States). Also available is FRANCE IN THE BLOOD: A PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF FRENCH HOLMESIAN CULTURE, WITH SOME OBSERVATIONS, edited by Philip Porter and Catherine Cooke and prepared as a souvenir for the Society's autumn trip to Cognac, Bordeaux, and Montpellier, with 98 pages of fine scholarship; $18.50 postpaid (or $28.50 for numbered and signed copies). You can order from Mrs. E. M. Godden, Apple Tree Cottage, Smarden, Ashford, Kent TN27 8QE, England; checks should be payable to the Society, please.
420. And for those who like to plan ahead, the Society also plans to celebrate the centenary of Sherlock Holmes' return to London in 1894 with a "Festival of Holmes" from May 21 to May 30, 1994, with at least one event scheduled each day, and overseas visitors will be welcome to join the festivities.
-
421. Oct 93 #3: Some years ago, the Land Press in London issued a new edition of THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, with all the Sidney Paget illustrations from The Strand Magazine, a previously unpublished full-page frontispiece of Holmes by Paget, and custom leather binding with four different designs available, at $2,000 a copy (Sep 89 #6). Copies of all four variants are still available, and enquiries will be welcomed by Priscilla Juvelis, 150 Huntington Avenue #SD-L, Boston, MA 02115.
422. Charles Scholefield died on Sept. 23. He was long a member of The Sherlock Holmes Society of London, as well as an excellent barrister, and an expert on public health and on local government, but he became most famous, as his obituary in The Times noted, for impersonating Prof. Moriarty in 1968, when the Society mounted its first invasion of Switzerland. Photos of Moriarty and Holmes (aka Paul Gore-Booth) grappling at the brink of the Reichenbach were published world-wide and are still remembered (one of those pictures was reprinted in the current issue of the British magazine Private Eye).

423. A new catalog from Sound Exchange (45 North Industry Court, Deer Park, NY 11729) (800-521-0042) offers RADIO'S GREATEST DETECTIVES: SHERLOCK HOLMES on a set of five audiocassettes ($19.98) or five CDs ($24.98), with eight of the Rathbone/Bruce shows and Orson Welles' broadcast of his adaptation of William Gillette's play. Rathbone shows also are included in other anthology sets on audiocassettes.
424. William D. Jenkins ("Sahara King") died on Oct. 4. Bill had a fine career in public relations, and then as a science writer and editor, but his great love was literature. He delighted in the associations he found between the Canon and the works of writers such as T. S. Eliot and Vladimir Nabokov and especially James Joyce, and he wrote and talked about the associations with great style and humor. He received his Investiture in the BSI in 1963, and the Two-Shilling Award in 1985.
425. A new catalog at hand from Brian and Charlotte Erickson (Sherlock's Corner, 1029 Judson Drive, Mountain View, CA 94040) offers handmade clay caricature mugs of Holmes and Watson, plastic mugs customized with needlework inserts, puzzles, ornaments, note cards, and much more.
426. Dennis Rosa's 1972 adaptation of William Gillette's play "Sherlock Holmes" is scheduled at the Actors Theatre (316 West Main Street, Louisville, KY 40202) from Dec. 30, 1993, to Jan. 29, 1994. And Charles Marowitz's play "Sherlock's Last Case" is scheduled at the Kavinoky Theatre (320 Porter Avenue, Buffalo, NY 14201) from Feb. 17 to Mar. 27, 1994; the box-office telephone number is 716-881-7668.
427. Malcolm Payne, curator of the Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment, has close associations with Windlesham (his father, aunt, and uncle worked for Sir Arthur), and he has collected some splendid reminiscences by his relatives and by others who were employed by the family. RECOLLECTIONS OF SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE BY RESIDENTS OF CROWBOROUGH has many warm and personal views of Sir Arthur, Lady Conan Doyle, and their children, and is available as a 26-page booklet from Malcolm Payne, 4 Wealden Close, Crowborough, East Sussex, TN6 2ST, England; £6.00 (sterling checks made payable to the Arthur Conan Doyle Memorial Fund) or $12.00 (currency only) postpaid to the U.S.
-
428. Oct 93 #4: The Trifling Monographers, a professional scion for those who labor in the vineyards of public relations, will be meeting on Nov. 15 in Orlando, Fla., during an annual convention. Anyone who plans to be in the vicinity is welcome to attend the festivities (and you can spread the word to friends and acquaintances in public relations), and additional information is available from Graham Sudbury (Box 52062, Tulsa, OK 74152).
429. Troy Taylor (805 West North, Decatur, IL 62522) has published the second issue of The Whitechapel Gazette: $6.00 postpaid for 40 pages of articles about Jack the Ripper, Conan Doyle's home at Crowborough, Conan Doyle and Charles Fort, and more, all nicely illustrated by Troy.
430. New philatelic items: the St. Vincent Grenadines (an island nation in the West Indies) recently issued a set of one sheetlet and two souvenir sheets honoring Disney's animated film "The Great Mouse Detective" (1986). They are quite colorful, with nice Disney art, and the set is available from Ben Wood, who also offers the Britain's recent "Sherlock Holmes" set (the Royal Mail presentation packs and stamp cards, and The Sherlock Holmes Society of London's first day covers). You can send a #10 SASE to Ben to receive his illustrated flier (Box 740, Ellenton, FL 34222).
431. The British stamps also are available with first-day postmarks on a set of five postcards, with a black-and-white portrait of Conan Doyle and different color portraits of Holmes (taken from Abbey's dust jackets for the John Murray series); £8.37 postpaid (Maurice Tanner, 80 Whitehorse Road, West Croydon, Surrey CR0 2LA, England; credit-card orders are welcome (otherwise please send payment by sterling check or in U.S. currency). Henry Murray (Box 1102, Barnet, Herts. EN5 5AF, England) is offering sets of postcards with 10 different first-day postmarks ($30.00), or 15 different ($45.00), and a first day cover signed by Dame Jean Conan Doyle ($19.00).
432. And: there was a contest involving the British set, according to stories in the Independent. The design of each of the five stamps includes one letter (more-or-less hidden), and the five letters can be arranged to form a word with strong Holmesian connections.
433. Chris Redmond's A SHERLOCK HOLMES HANDBOOK (Toronto: Simon & Pierre, 1993) has much to recommend it (and I do recommend it): the book offers detailed exploration of the Canon and of Conan Doyle and his other works, and a fine overview of the Victorian world reflected in the Canon, and a graceful tour of pastiches and parodies and media portrayals and of Sherlockian fans and followers, and a discussion of academic scholarship and why so many people have so much fun in the world of Sherlock Holmes in 250 well-written pages.
434. And it really is what the title promises: a handbook, and one that can be used and enjoyed both by Sherlockians and by those who are wondering just what it is that Sherlockians do, and why. You can order from the Dundurn Press (Box 1000, Niagara Falls, NY 14302); the book costs US$26.50 (plus $3.00 shipping), and they take plastic.
435. There's lots of Sherlockian audio and video and other material in the new catalog from The Mind's Eye (Box 1060, Petaluma, CA 94953) (800-227-2020); nothing new, but it's all convenient, and Bruce Wolfe's colorful portrait of Holmes is still available on sweatshirts and T-shirts.
-
436. Oct 93 #5: "Dr. Watson is the principal protagonist and he's very actionoriented, rather than the quizzical sidekick," is the way Craig Baumgarten described Brian Helgeland's script for "Elementary", which has been bought by Warner Bros. Pictures, according to a report spotted by Andy Peck in the Hollywood Reporter. Insiders estimated that Warner Bros. paid $400,000 for the script; and if anyone has seen the film "The Ticking Man", Helgeland wrote that one, too.
437. "60 Minutes" (on CBS-TV on Oct. 10) had a segment ("Jack the Ripper?") on the recently-discovered diary that is believed by some to prove that James Maybrick committed all those murders. The segment included black-and-white clips from old films, and if you thought you recognized Mary Kelly, it was indeed Edina Ronay, who played the role in "A Study in Terror" (1965). And yes, that film was made in color, but "60 Minutes" cheated.
438. Richard Carleton Hacker, author of THE ULTIMATE PIPE BOOK, has now turned his attention to cigars: THE ULTIMATE CIGAR BOOK has more than 300 pages and 130 photographs, with eight pages in color and, as might be expected, discussion of cigar ash and of Sherlock Holmes' smoking habits. The book retails for $34.95 at tobacconists, and can be purchased (autographed) for $38.50 postpaid from the author (Box 634, Beverly Hills, CA 90213).
439. THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES (New York: Children's Classics, 992; 249 pp., $12.99) is a reprint of the Portland House edition (Oct 88 #3), which was essentially a reprint of the first American edition, with eight additional (and well-executed) color illustrations by Sergio Martinez.
440. The following story is quoted (in full) from the Washington Post's "Around the Nation" section (Sept. 25): "Exotic dancer Michele Roger, 27, stabbed, burned, and mulched her rock band drummer boyfriend, David Alexander Richmond, 28, before mixing his remains in cement and scattering cement chips down Interstate 95 in central Florida, according to police in Sanford, Fla. Richmond had been missing for more than a year; Roger was charged with second-degree murder."
441. Jim Weiss told four Canonical stories (Maza/Spec/Musg/Blue) on his awardwinning audiocassette SHERLOCK HOLMES FOR CHILDREN (Apr 92 #8), and he has now recorded his storyteller's adaptation of "The Red-Headed League" (with Poe's "The Purloined Letter" and Chesterton's "The Blue Cross") on MYSTERY! MYSTERY! The cassette costs $11.95 postpaid, from Greathall Productions, Box 813, Benicia, CA 94510.
442. Stephen King's pastiche "The Doctor's Case" (which was first published in 1987 in the anthology THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES) is reprinted in King's collection NIGHTMARES AND DREAMSCAPES (New York: Viking, 1993; 816 pp., $27.50).
443. The new catalog from Barnes & Noble (126 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011) has a new edition of THE FINAL ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, compiled by Peter Haining from material by Conan Doyle and others and first published in 1981, now with an added (five-sentence) foreword by Jeremy Brett; $6.98 (item 1884097). And (announced as "new!") a reprint of Alan K. Russell's 1978 anthology RIVALS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (D5152b); $9.98 (item 1949296).

-
444. Oct 93 #6: The fall 1993 issue of Scarlet Street has arrived, with Jessie Lilley's excellent interview with Granada producer June Wyndham Davies (with production stills from "The Golden Pince-Nez"), and with other Sherlockian news, and as always lots of illustrated articles about mystery and horror films. And the next issue will have interviews with Ida Lupino and Terry Kilburn, with discussion of their work in Basil Rathbone's "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939). $18.00 a year (four issues), from R. H. Enterprises, 271 Farrant Terrace, Teaneck, NJ 07666.
445. Ray Betzner will present a program on "Sherlock Holmes: Fact or Fiction?" to the Friends of the Library of the College of William and Mary, at 7:30 pm on Dec. 2 at the Botetourt Theater in Williamsburg, Va. (in case anyone is planning to be in the vicinity then). And Robert F. Fleissner's paper "On the Pedigree of the Name of Holmes: Apropos of the First English Detective Work" is scheduled by the Modern Language Association on the afternoon of Dec. 30 in the Varley Room of the Toronto Hilton in Toronto.
446. Sherry Rose-Bond reports two new Sherlockian chess sets: one costs $450.00 (with board) in a catalog from Norm Thompson, Box 3999, Portland, OR 97208 (800-547-1160), and the other costs $368.00 (with board) or $245.00 (without) in a catalog from Museum Collections, 586 Higgins Crowell Road, West Yarmouth, MA 02673 (800-442-2460).
447. Spotted by Tom Stix in the Sept. 1993 issue of Investment Advisor: a nice two-page color view of Holmes and Watson in the railway carriage, as part of an advertisement by Seligman Financial Services. To get a copy of the advertisement, call 800-221-2783 and ask for "the Sherlock Holmes piece".
448. Tim Kline reports an interesting interview with Nicholas Meyer in Mystery Scene #40 (Box 669, Cedar Rapids, IA 52406; $5.25), with discussion of THE CANARY TRAINER and his earlier pastiches, and with an account of his being asked to direct "Young Sherlock Holmes" (he declined). But Meyer did not mention plans for a new project, reported elsewhere to be a film based on Conan Doyle's THE WHITE COMPANY, scripted and directed by Meyer.
449. Tim also notes that a new catalog from What on Earth (2451 Enterprise East Parkway, Twinsburg, OH 44087) has a new "Many Faces of Sherlock" design on T-shirts ($12.95) and sweatshirts ($22.95). And that the current catalog from Mysteries by Mail (Box 679, Boonville, CA 95415) (800-722-0726) has a S'ian word-puzzle (and offers of in-print S'ian books, audio, and video).
450. The Nov. 1993 issue of Architectural Digest (6300 Willshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90048) has Brendan Gill's fine four-page article on "Gillette Castle: An Actor's Folly on a Connecticut Hilltop" (with grand color photographs). Gill has been there before: his "A Reporter at Large: Castle for Sale" was published in the Nov. 26, 1938, issue of The New Yorker.
451. Reported from Britain: Keith Oatley's THE CASE OF EMILY V (London: Secker & Warburg, £9.99) is a dual pastiche: the book offers the journal of Emily (a young girl who has suffered a nervous breakdown after being seduced by her guardian), Dr. Sigmund Freud's notes on her case (she is his patient), and Dr. John H. Watson's account of Sherlock Holmes' investigation of a murder to which she is linked.
-
452. Oct 93 #7: Sherlock Holmes' 140th birthday will be celebrated on Friday, Jan. 7, with the traditional festivities in New York. But the festivities actually will begin on Thursday at 9:00 am at the Hotel Algonquin (59 West 44th Street), whence Allen Mackler and Charlie Shields will lead participants in the annual Christopher Morley Walk, which ends with luncheon at McSorley's. Allen's address is 324 2nd Street NE, Osseo, MN 55369, and from Jan. 3 he will be at the Iroquois Hotel (212-840-3080).
453. Bob Hahn (who claims to be known as the Booming Bittern of Baskerville Bog) will preside over the Aunt Clara Sing (off-hand, off-the-wall, and largely off-key) beginning some time after 8:00 pm at O'Lunney's Steak House. You can reserve a seat by sending a check for $10.00 a person to Hugh O'Lunney (12 West 44th Street, New York, NY 10036); your $10.00 will be applied to your tab for the evening.
454. Friday's agenda begins with the Martha Hudson Breakfast from 8:30 to 10:30 am at the Hotel Algonquin at 59 West 44th Street; $18.95 (checks *payable to The Baker Street Irregulars* can be sent to Tom and Ruthann Stetak, 15529 Diagonal Road, LaGrange, OH 44050).
455. The William Gillette Luncheon will start at noon, and (a new location) at: Moran's Chelsea at 146 Tenth Avenue at 19th Street (Susan Rice, 125 Washington Place #2-E, New York, NY 10014; $30.00). Otto Penzler's open house at The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street) also is on Friday, from 11:00 am to 6:00 pm; it is quite possible that Sherlockian authors will be on hand to sign their books.
456. The Baker Street Irregulars will gather at 6:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue (at 9th Street), and The Fortescue Symposium (sponsored by The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes and two local societies) will convene at 6:30 pm at the St. Moritz Hotel at 50 Central Park South at 6th Avenue (Katherine Karlson, 1259 Fowler Place, Binghamton, NY 13903; $55.00). Early reservations are recommended for the breakfast, the luncheon, and the Fortescue festivities.
457. On Saturday a posse of purveyors will offer a wide variety of S'iana at the Algonquin (aka Covent Garden West) from 9:30 am to noon. Vendor tables are available (contact Ray Betzner, 107 Tendril Court, Williamsburg, VA 23188).
458. The Baker Street Irregulars will hold their annual reception, open to all Sherlockians and their friends, on Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:00 pm at 24 Fifth Avenue (at 9th Street). There will be an open bar, and hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and the cost is $35.00 a person (checks *payable to The Baker Street Irregulars* should be sent to Donald E. Novorsky, 5182 Mahoning Avenue NW, Warren, OH 44483). The Baker Street Irregulars are now a tax-exempt organization, and Tom has arranged with the Hotel Algonquin for rooms (single or double) at $145.00 a night (Wednesday through Saturday); this is the total cost, since no tax is due for reservations made via the BSI. Please note that all other charges (room service, telephone calls, meals, drinks, etc.) are not covered. The offer is available to all Sherlockians: your reservations, with full names of all occupants, accompanied by payment (checks payable to the BSI), can be sent to Thomas L. Stix, Jr. (34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648) and are to be received no later than Dec. 16. And there's more . . .
-
459. Oct 93 #8: Note: payments to The Baker Street Irregulars for more than one event and for reservations at the Algonquin can be combined and made with one check (in U.S. funds, please) or by international money order to be sent to the BSI, c/o Thomas L. Stix, Jr., 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648.
460. Mary Ellen Rich has once again kindly provided a list of hotels that offer reasonable (as defined by New York landlords) rates, along with a warning about non-optional extras: $2.00 a day occupancy tax, 8.25% state tax, 5% city tax, and 5% state tax on rooms costing more than $99.99. If you plan to arrive on Thursday, it is important to confirm that the weekend-package rates include Thursday.
461. St. Moritz (50 Central Park South): $109 (per inside room) or $139 (with a view of the park) if you mention the Adventuresses, who are dining there on Friday (800-221-4774). Roosevelt (45 East 45th Street): $99 (single SU-TH) $109 (double SU-TH) $89 (per room FR-SA) (800-223-1870). Jolly Madison (22 East 38th Street): $99 (per room MO-TH) $89 (FR-SU) (800-225-4340). Omni Park Central (7th Avenue at 55th Street): $99 (promotional rate per room) $165 (family rate for 2 connecting rooms and 3 double beds) (800-843-6664). Gramercy Park (Lexington Avenue at 21st Street): $95 (per room) (800-221-4083). Journey's End (3 East 40th Street): $94.99 (per room FR-SU) (800-668-4200). Iroquois (49 West 44th Street): $75 (single) $85 (double) (800-332-7220). Rosoff's (147 West 43rd Street): $55 (single) $65 (double) $75 (triple) (212-869-1212).

462. Vincent Price died on Oct. 25. He was a fine actor, and once played Prince Albert to Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina", but he was far better known as a villain. He was flattered and amused by his reputation as "the prince of menace," and he was for many years the genially sinister host of "Mystery!" on PBS-TV (winning an Edgar from the Mystery Writers of America in 1988 for his "contributions to the world of mystery"). And he was the model for and supplied the voice of the thoroughly villainous Prof. Ratigan in the Disney film "The Great Mouse Detective" (1986).
463. "First Couple's Intimate Talk: Surgery" was the headline on this story, by Al Kamen, in the Oct. 1 issue of the Washington Post:
-
464. Nov 93 #1: The Dr. John H. Watson Fund provides financial assistance to Sherlockians (membership in The Baker Street Irregulars or The Adventuresses of Sherlock Holmes is not required) who might otherwise be unable to participate in the birthday-weekend festivities in New York in January. A carefully anonymous John H. Watson presides over the Fund and welcomes contributions, which are needed each year, because the Fund is self-liquidating. Contributions can be made by checks payable to John H. Watson and can be sent (without return address on the envelope) to Dr. Watson, c/o The Baker Street Irregulars, 34 Pierson Avenue, Norwood, NJ 07648; letters are forwarded unopened, and Dr. Watson will acknowledge your generosity.
465. The number of different first day covers for the British stamps honoring Sherlock Holmes doesn't really approach infinity, but it might seem that way. The British Philatelic Bureau (acting for the Royal Mail) offered a cacheted cover postmarked in Edinburgh or London, and other cacheted covers were prepared by The Conan Doyle (Crowborough) Establishment, The Arthur Conan Doyle Society, and The Sherlock Holmes Society of London (all noted in previous issues of this newsletter). And reports have been received of cacheted covers issued by St. Bart's (the hospital) and The Sherlock Holmes Museum (at 239 Baker Street); sorry: no information on how to order these. And all sorts of people and societies and companies arranged for all sorts of postmarks on the five stamp cards issued by the Royal Mail (there are no "official" first day cancellations in Britain).
466. Reported by Tim O'Connor: a new graphic novel from DC Comics called BATMAN/HOUDINI: THE DEVIL'S WORKSHOP, written by Howard Victor Chaykin and John Francis Moore (and illustrated by Mark Chiarello); $5.95 in the comic-book shops. Bruce Wayne (as a young man) meets Harry Houdini, who says, "As my dear English friend Conan Doyle says--endlessly--eliminate the impossible and you are left with the improbable." Otherwise non-Sherlockian.
467. Tim also reports a rubber stamp with Sherlockian artwork by John Brousch, shown here actual size; $6.00 postpaid from Tim O'Connor, 6015 West Route 115, Herscher, IL 60941.
468. The fall 1993 issue of The Armchair Detective has a new "Report from 221B Baker Street" by Sherry Rose-Bond and Scott Bond (about the Sherlockian contributions to the Jack the Ripper genre), and an interesting article by William S. Cramer on "The Enigmatic B. Fletcher Robinson and the Writing of The Hound of the Baskervilles". Quarterly at $26.00 a year (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019).
469. Reported by Gayle Harris: the new film "Malice" (described by one critic as "a highly implausible thriller about sex, money, and surgery," was directed by Harold Becker and stars Nicole Kidman, Alec Baldwin, Bill Pullman, and (in a cameo role) Anne Bancroft, who says in one of her scenes, "Now you've proved you're Sherlock Holmes."
-
470. Nov 93 #2: SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE MAJOR STORIES WITH CONTEMPORARY CRITICAL ESSAYS, edited by John A. Hodgson (New York: Bedford Books of St. Martin's Press, 1994; 452 pp., $35.00 cloth, $8.50 paper), is designed as a textbook for literature classes, and offers an excerpt from "A Study in Scarlet" and fourteen of the short stories, and nine essays by modern literary critics, reprinted from journals and books published in the 1980s and 1990s. Hodgson easily supports his suggestion that critical attention to the Canon "has developed into a rich and sustained dialogue."
471. The Maiwand Jezails celebrated their 30th anniversary in high style, and with a necktie commemorating the event, and a few neckties are still available (in gold-red-and-black on navy blue) from Robert F. Cryne, 6407 South 106 Circle, Omaha, NE 68127; $30.00 postpaid.
472. Sorry about that: the wrong mailing address in last month's reports on the new Sherlock Holmes stamps. The new British stamps also are available with first-day postmarks on a set of five postcards, with a black-and-white portrait of Conan Doyle and different color portraits of Holmes (from Abbey's dust jackets for the John Murray series); the set costs £8.37 postpaid from Maurice Tanner, 180 Whitehorse Road, West Croydon, Surrey CR0 2LA, England; credit-card orders are welcome (otherwise please send payment by sterling check or in U.S. currency).
473. The latest issue of Anglofile is at hand, after a year-long hiatus, and the newsletter is now published monthly, as always focusing on news of British television and film (on both sides of the Atlantic). A new James Bond film is in the works (to star Timothy Dalton), "Masterpiece Theatre" will broadcast Ian Richardson's "To Play the King" (a sequel to his excellent "House of Cards"), and the new "Poirot" series on "Mystery!" will be followed by Roy Marsden and Mel Martin in a new "Dalgliesh" mini-series. $12.00 a year (Box 33514, Decatur, GA 30033).
474. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES #22 ($12.00) has two more of the fine old radio shows from scripts by Denis Green and Anthony Boucher, with new introductions by Harry Bartell (and Lou Krugman as Inspector Lestrade). "Murder by Moonlight" (29 Oct 45), stars Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce and has long been available on phonograph records and cassettes (with lower fidelity), but the new-to-audio "The Coptic Compass" (7 Dec 46) stars Nigel Bruce and Tom Conway (as Watson and Holmes, with top billing going to Bruce).
475. The Simon & Schuster audiocassette series has been produced from original transcription disks by Ken Greenwald and his partners at 221A Baker Street Associates, and the third issue of Ken's newsletter The Dispatch Box is now available, offering an excerpt from series director Glenhall Taylor's autobiography, and article by Desmond Tyler, and much more. You can send a #10 SASE to Ken at Box 351453, Los Angeles, CA 90035.
476. For the completists: yet another variant edition of THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES, published in 1992 from the standard Doubleday plates and sold for $14.98 at Barnes & Noble stores. "New York: Barnes & Noble" on the title page and "Published by arrangement with Doubleday" on the title-page verso.
-
477. Nov 93 #3: WETA-TV (Washington) is rebroadcasting the 1978 British miniseries of "Rebecca" (with Jeremy Brett as Maxim de Winter), and Rosemary Michaud reports in Craig Moore's The Brett Gazette that videocassettes of Jeremy Brett's "Macbeth" and of Laurence Olivier's "The Merchant of Venice" (with Brett as Bassanio) are available from Fusion Video, 17311 Fusion Way, Country Club Hills, IL 60478 (800-959-0061).
478. Mary Blount Christian's SHERLOCK STREET DETECTIVE SERIES now runs to ten titles, nicely illustrated by Joe Boddy. The stories are cheerful tales about four modern kids who live on Sherlock Street and have fun solving mysteries (aided by a friendly dog named Watson); grades 1-3, 32 pp. in paper covers, $4.95 each from the Milliken Publishing Co., 1100 Research Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63132 (800-325-4136).
479. The Occupants of the Empty House have a new issue of lapel pins, available for $11.00 postpaid from Debbie Tinsley, 105 Wilcox, Zeigler, IL 62999.
480. Tom Biblewski reports that the 13th Sherlock Holmes/Conan Doyle Symposium at Wright State University in Dayton will be held on Mar 18-20, 1994. Contact Greg Sullivan (2800 North River Road, Yellow Springs, OH 45387) for details.
481. Tom Kowols reports in The Police Gazette that "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" (1970) is scheduled for release on laserdisc this month by MGM/JA, in letterbox format (widescreen, avoiding the pan-and-scan so often used in converting theatrical films to video). And "Elementary, Dear Data" (1988) from "Star Trek: The Next Generation" is out on laserdisc from Paramount. And Skybox has issued a set of "Star Trek" trading cards in - which one card is "The Case of the Errant Holodeck" with artist Sonia B. Hillios' version of Data, Geordi, and Moriarty. And that there's a CD of the soundtrack of the film "My Fair Lady" (with Jeremy Brett as Freddie Eynsford-Hill).

482. The Actors Theatre of Louisville will be performing Dennis Rosa's 1975 play "Sherlock Holmes and the Curse of the Sign of Four" (rather than his adaptation of the Gillette play) from Dec. 30 to Jan. 29. Their address is 316 West Main Street, Louisville, KY 40202 (502-585-1205).
483. Some legal news, from Andy Peck: the N.Y. Law Journal has reported that Justice Albert M. Rosenblatt, who now serves in the Appellate Division in New York state, has been selected by the Commission on Judicial Nomination as one of seven candidates from which Governor Cuomo will choose the next judge of the N.Y. Court of Appeals (the state's highest court).
484. Cinemonde (1932 Polk Street, San Francisco, CA 94109) offers a sales list of original posters and lobby cards for Sherlockian films, from a French poster for "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (1939) at $7,000, to a onesheet for "Young Sherlock Holmes" (1985) at $25.
485. Reported: reprints of the third (and expanded) edition of Julian Symons' BLOODY MURDER: FROM THE DETECTIVE STORY TO THE CRIME NOVEL (Harmondsworth: Penguin Books, 1992) (New York: Mysterious Press, 1993), first published in Britain in 1992 (Jun 92 #2); with an enthusiastic chapter on the Canon.
-
486. Nov 93 #4: There have been no reports of anything particularly Sherlockian at Bouchercon XXIV in Omaha, but everyone appears to have had a fine time regardless. Bouchercon XXV convenes in Seattle on Oct. 6-9, 1994 (Box 1095, Renton, WA 98057) and Bouchercon XXVI in Nottingham on Sept. 28-Oct. 1, 1995 (Broadway, 14 Broad Street, Nottingham NG1 3AL, England).
487. Reported by Melanie Hughes from the Press Association Newsfile (Sept. 25): "A thief dubbed the 'Sherlock Holmes Raider' has been jailed for 11 years at Chester Crown Court. Patrick Neal, 23, from Anfield, Liverpool, wore a deerstalker hat to avoid being identified on cameras. In 26 robberies he stole over £40,000. After his arrest for one robbery, Det. Sgt. Tony Jopson spotted the connection between the different incidents."
488. Spotted by Gertrude Mahoney: pewter Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson thimbles sculpted by Cheryl Harness, priced at $13.95 each in a catalog from Gimbel & Sons Country Store, Box 57, Boothbay Harbor, ME 04538; they take plastic. And you can still get their Sherlockian handpainted bone-china thimble modeled after the pipe-in-the-ear Toby Mug, at $14.95.
489. Thanks to Dick Rutter for spotting Richard Roberts' THE WIND & THE WIZARD (San Anselmo: Vernal Equinox Press, 1990; 239+177 pp. in two vols., $15.95 each). It's a remarkable story: a blend of fantasy and fiction, in which a young boy and his stuffed-monkey companion are transported from WW2 London into the worlds of THE WIND IN THE WILLOWS, WATER BABIES, PETER PAN, ROBIN HOOD, SHERLOCK HOLMES, and THE WIZARD OF OZ. And each of those worlds has some surprises in store, and not only because the presence of the young boy changes them (in the S'ian chapter he meets Holmes and Watson, of course, and James Barrie and Kenneth Grahame and Arthur Conan Doyle). The stories are told well, in styles that match the authors of the originals, and they are not "just" for children, but rather for any adult or younger reader who knows the originals. The publisher's address is: Box 581, San Anselmo, CA 94979.
490. Michael Ricker Pewter have sent a reminder that Dec. 31 is the deadline for orders for their subscription series of sculptures showing the sitting-room at 221B Baker Street (Sep 93 #2). They will be happy to send you a copy of their illustrated flier (5433 West 88th Avenue #132, Westminster, CO 80030) (800-554-1571).
491. The Mysterious Bookshop (129 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019) offers a new mail-order catalog, with two pages of in-print Sherlockiana, including (hitherto unreported): Lord Donegall's BAKER STREET AND BEYOND (Westminster City Libraries, $29.95; the first book edition of his articles in The New Strand Magazine in the 1960s) and T. S. Blakeney's SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OR FICTION? (Otto Penzler Books, $7.95; out-of-print since the reprint by the Baker Street Irregulars in 1954).
492. Mike Philipson, author of the play "Doctor Watson Investigates" now on tour in the provinces, has been bitten by the lapel-pin bug and notes that there aren't all that many Sherlockian lapel pins available in Britain. He would be glad to hear from people or societies who offer pins; and his address is Portway News, 13-15 Portway, Frome, Somerset BA11 1QP, England.
-
493. Nov 93 #5: Further to the report (Sep 93 #3) that you can receive a set of nine colorful postcards if you send a proof-of-purchase for THE OXFORD SHERLOCK HOLMES to "Elementary, My Dear Watson", Oxford University Press, 200 Madison Avenue (9th floor), New York, NY 10016, Frank Darlington now reports that that also enters you in a drawing for a set signed by the editors, and that the deadline of the drawing has been extended to Jan. 30.
494. MEANWHILE BACK IN LONDON.... is a 41-page chapbook with new articles about how various people spent The Great Hiatus, by six authors who were among the contributors to The QuarterLy $tatement, and with illustrations by Troy Taylor; $6.00 postpaid from James O. Duval, 72 Merrimack Street, Penacook, NH 03303.
495. Keith Oatley's THE CASE OF EMILY V. (London: Secker & Warburg, £9.99) is an interesting psychological pastiche, presenting the journal of a young woman who may or may not have murdered the man who seduced her, the lecture-notes of Dr. Sigmund Freud (whose patient she is), and the account of Dr. Watson (after Sherlock Holmes is retained by the British government to investigate the death of the man who may or may not have been murdered). The principal focus of the book is on Emily, but the development of the plot provides an out-of-the-ordinary view of a consistent Holmes and Watson.
496. Stillman Drake ("Porlock") died on Oct. 6. He was an investment banker and for many years a stalwart member of The Scowrers and Mollie Maguires (serving as the society's Bodymaster in the 1950s). He received his Investiture (reflecting his long-standing interest in "The Valley of Fear") in the BSI in 1963.
497. Tim O'Connor reports: two volumes of a "Sherlock Holmes Collectors Edition" each with eight one-hour audiocassettes, in bookstores at $29.95 each, and offered at the same price by Radio Classics (Great American Audio Corp.), 33 Portman Road, New Rochelle, NY 10801; the first volume with radio shows starring Gielgud/Richardson, and the second with radio shows starring Rathbone/Bruce, Stanley/Shirley, and Langford/Baker (all available elsewhere).
498. And Tim reports that twelve in-print Sherlockian playscripts (published by Samuel French, Baker's Plays, and others) are offered in a sales-list from Act I, 2632 North Lincoln, Chicago, IL 60614) (800-557-5297).
499. British bookdealer Robert Temple (65 Mildmay Road, London N1 4PU, England) is offering an interesting Sherlockian item with significant association: a copy of the Baskerrette Press edition of THE CROWN DIAMOND (D813a) that was owned by Charles Farrell, who played the role of Sam Merton in London and on tour in 1921 and 1922. The play is accompanied by related material, and the lot is priced at £1,200.
500. Television numbers: according to a report in the N.Y. Times (Oct. 3, 1993), about 20 million people in Britain pay the required license fee (now $125 a year for color television; less for black-and-white television and radio). BBC-1 and BBC-2 have a combined audience share of 43 percent (down from 51 percent in 1981), facing competition from ITV, Channel 4, and a growing number of cable and satellite channels. The BBC employs 23,000 people, and has an annual budget of $2.1 billion

---

501. Nov 93 #6: Robert N. Brodie ("The *Gloria Scott*") died on Nov. 15. He was the head of an advertising agency, and a member of MENSA (and with other members of the organization's New York chapter founded The Deal-Top Monographers in the 1970s). His BSI Investiture was awarded in 1971, and he was a valued member of The Three Garridebs, fondly remembered by Bob Thomalen as "the last of our courtly gentlemen."
502. Susan E. Dahlinger has announced that Varieties of Ash will resume publication in Jan. 1994; the winter issue will be available at Covent Garden West (also known as the huckster's room at the Algonquin) on Jan. 8, and you can subscribe to the journal for $12.00 a year (two issues). Susan's address: 758 Third Street, Secaucus, NJ 07094.
503. The Sherlock Holmes Gazette (autumn 1993) is at hand, with a colorful cover portrait of Eric Porter as Moriarty (by Cathy Childs); an article about the opening of the High Moorland Visitor Centre at Princetown on Dartmoor, where Prince Charles met Sherlock Holmes (impersonated by Philip Weller); news of work at Granada (Jeremy Brett's tabloid-trumpeted illness turns out to have been an asthma attack that delayed their shooting of "The Dying Detective" for two weeks); and much more in the now-standard 48 pages. A subscription costs $32.00 a year (for four issues) from Carolyn and Joel Senter (Classic Specialties, Box 19058, Cincinnati, OH 45219); credit cards can be used for payment. The Senters' latest mail-order catalog also is available, with an excellent assortment of attractive Sherlockiana.
504. Reported by Ralph Hall: "The Strange Case of the Missing Mermaid Costume" in Muppet Babies, Dec. 1993 (v. 2, n. 3), a comic book published by Harvey Classics ($1.50). This probably is a reprint from Muppet Babies, May 87, from Marvel.
505. Troy Taylor is the author and illustrator of THE ADVENTURE OF THE PARADOL CHAMBER, a new pastiche involving time travel and a bit of romance, available as a 16-page pamphlet, from the author (805 West North, Decatur, IL 62522); $5.00 postpaid.
506. Paulette Greene (7152 Via Palomar, Boca Raton, FL 33433) offers a new sales list of Sherlockian books and pamphlets.
507. And having returned from Santa Fe, I can report that John Bennett Shaw says he breathed a sigh of relief when the moving van drove off with all of the books and other things that were in his library and storeroom, and that he has carefully kept a copy of the shipping papers so that he can prove that by nice coincidence the movers used exactly 221 shipping cartons. I wasn't quite the first visiting Sherlockian to see the library naked (the shelves have been removed, and sooner rather than later there will be a new carpet, and pictures on the walls), and John hopes to have his new desk and chair, as well as his old typewriter, reinstalled quickly, so that he can get back to answering all of the mail, because he hopes that his nice friends will continue to send him all the nice things that they've been sending to him in the past.
-
508. Dec 93 #1: A gift for the Sherlockian who has everything: the door to Selden's cell at Dartmoor Prison. Well, we can't be sure which cell was Selden's, but some of the doors, torn off their hinges during a prison riot in 1990, were sold by the prison governor to benefit a local charity. Tobys (an architectural salvage firm in nearby Newton Abbot) bought 275 doors, and now is marketing them as conversation pieces, priced at about $370. According to the Washington Post (Nov. 25), Tobys' telephone number is 011-44-626-5167.
509. British postage rates have risen: a first-class letter now costs 25p (about 38c), and an airmail letter costs 41p (about 62c). For the benefit of our readers in countries other than the United States, our rates still are 29c and 50c.
510. Bill Bixby died on Nov. 21. His television career started in "My Favorite Martian" in 1963, but he was better-known for his work in "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" and "The Incredible Hulk. He played the Rev. Arthur Ford, with Peter Cushing as Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in the television film "The Great Houdinis" broadcast by ABC-TV in 1976.
511. Anthony Burgess died on Nov. 25. Best known for his 1962 novel A CLOCKWORK ORANGE and the film made from the book in 1971, he was also a fine literary critic and journalist. He was script consultant for the television series produced by Sheldon Reynolds in 1981 (with Geoffrey Whitehead as Holmes and Donald Pickering as Watson), and in his review of Owen Dudley Edwards' THE QUEST FOR SHERLOCK HOLMES in 1982, he honored Conan Doyle as "the greatest historical novelist after Walter Scott." Burgess celebrated the centenary with a long feature essay on "The Sainted Sleuth, Still on the Case" in the N.Y. Times Book Review in 1987, and included a Sherlockian pastiche "Murder to Music" in THE DEVIL'S MODE in 1989.
512. Chess sets, chess sets, everywhere a chess set. Playboy (Dec. 1993) has a report ("Potpourri: The Game Is Still Afoot") on yet another Canonical set: $430 postpaid (but not including a $170 maple board) from British Exports, Box 11240, Merrillville, IN 46411.
513. But one doesn't find Pagets everywhere. The original wash drawing for one of Sidney Paget's illustrations ("With his neck craned, he looked into the room," in "The Three Students"), which was sold at auction at Sotheby's in London in 1980 for £950, is now offered by Pepper & Stern (1980 Cliff Drive #224, Santa Barbara, CA 93109) for $22,500.
514. The Edgar Wallace Society has published the 100th issue of its newsletter The Crimson Circle, with a tribute to John Hogan, who led the society from 1985 until his death this year, Penelope Wallace's memories of her father (first published by Luther Norris in The Pontine Dossier in 1970), and much more. Wallace was one of the most prolific authors in modern literature (and he wrote the dialogue for the 1932 film version of "The Hound of the Baskervilles"), and members of the society are as devoted to their hero as we are to ours; membership, including the newsletter, is £9.00 a year (in sterling checks or U.S. currency), and the society's new organizer is Neil Clark, 9 Hurst Rise Road, North Hinksey, Oxford OX2 9HE, England.
-
515. Dec 93 #2: The deadline for orders for Ronald B. De Waal's THE UNIVERSAL SHERLOCK HOLMES (three volumes with more than 1,500 pages and more than 24,600 entries) has been extended to Mar. 15, 1994, and delivery will be made by mail after May 22, 1994. The price remains at US$100 (or CA$130), but since the set will not be available for delivery in New York in January, there also will be a charge for shipping; details are available from George A. Vanderburgh (Box 204, Shelburne, Ont. L0N 1S0, Canada).
516. Bouchercon XXV is now Bouchercon 25, with a new address (Box 75684, Seattle, WA 98125-0684) and the same dates (Oct. 6-9, 1994), and some fine progress-report artwork by Stu Shiffman. Thom Walls reports that you can expect to see Marcia Muller (guest of honor), Tony Hillerman (lifetime achievement award), Art Scott (fan guest of honor), George Chesbro (toastmaster), and (of course) many other authors and fans. And since Seattle also is known as "The Emerald City" it is not at all surprising to see references to "The Gumshoe of Oz" in the progress report.
517. "The Game Is Afoot: Holiday Season Tributes to Sherlock Holmes" is an 11-page article by John C. Tibbetts about Sherlock Holmes, Sherlockians, and the birthday festivities in New York in 1993 (with many color photos) in the Dec. 1993 issue of The World & I. The magazine is published by the Washington Times Corp., 2800 New York Avenue NE, Washington, DC 20002, and costs $10.00 (that's for the 448-page issue).
518. Video-taper alert: Granada's two-hour shows "The Last Vampyre" and "The Eligible Bachelor" will be broadcast by PBS on "Mystery!" in four one-hour episodes beginning on Jan. 27.
519. The new "British Video Collection" catalog from Fusion Video (17311 Fusion Way, Country Club Hills, IL 60478) (800-959-0061) offers a video two-pack of the 1992 television films ("The Leading Lady" and "Incident at Victoria Falls") that starred Christopher Lee and Patrick Macnee, for $29.98. Note: these are the edited two-hour versions.
-

520. "Sherlock Holmes Chemist" is the name of a shop at 82a Baker Street, Cathy Childs reports. This is not the one chemist's shop mentioned in the Canon: who stood in that chemist's shop's doorway?
521. "Otto Penzler's Sherlock Holmes Library" is the overall title for the new bi-monthly paperback series of reprints published by Otto Penzler Books, distributed by Macmillan, and priced at $7.95 each. The first two titles are Vincent Starrett's THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (1933) and T. S. Blakeney's SHERLOCK HOLMES: FACT OR FICTION? (1932), and Vincent Starrett's anthology 221B: STUDIES IN SHERLOCK HOLMES (1940) is due soon. It is nice indeed to see excellent Sherlockian scholarship from the early days back in print, and the color covers with artwork by Frederic Dorr Steele will help catch the eye when non-Sherlockians browse book-shop shelves.
-
522. Dec 93 #3: The Curious Collectors of Baker Street held their second annual Gasfitters Ball in South Pasadena on Nov. 6, publicized with an attractive multi-color poster (11" x 17") designed by Chuck Kovacic; copies of the poster are available from Jerry and Chrys Kegley, 110 El Nido #41, Pasadena, CA 91107 ($12.00 postpaid).
523. Bill Brown's one-act radio plays have long bedevilled and bewildered The Hansom Wheels of Columbia, S.C., and his first collection (Feb 91 #2) has now been joined by THE UNKNOWN SHERLOCK HOLMES, VOLUME II, which has five new scripts filled with puns and shaggy bull-pup jokes. $15.00 postpaid from Lloyd W. Brown, Jr. (103 Snow Court, Lexington, SC 29073), and both volumes are offered for $25.00 postpaid.
524. Who stood in the doorway of a chemist's shop? Watson (in "The Illustrious Client"): "I have a confused recollection of snatching at a paper, of the remonstrance of the man, whom I had not paid, and, finally, of standing in the doorway of a chemist's shop while I turned up the fateful paragraph." But that shop wasn't in Baker Street.
525. The Sherlock Holmes Memorabilia Company (230 Baker Street, London NW1 5RT, England) has a new and well-illustrated mail-order catalog, offering a wide range of S'iana, including T-shirts, teddy bears, statues, figurines, chess sets, playing cards, plaques, pipes, their own first day cover for the new British stamps, and much more.
526. A late addition to the birthday festivities: artist Steven Emmons, whose attractive full-color "posters that might have been" were on display last year, will exhibit (and sell) new work at the Chisholm Gallery, on the 9th floor at 89 Fifth Avenue (between 16th and 17th Streets) from 3:00 to 8:00 pm on Jan. 8 (in case you're still wondering what to do after the cocktail party on Saturday afternoon).
527. Mark Frost's alternate-universe Conan Doyle fantasy THE LIST OF 7 (Sep 93 #4) also is available an audio book, abridged (to three hours) and nicely read by Rene Auberjonois (who stars in the television series "Deep Space Nine"). The two-cassette set is issued by Dove Audio at $16.95, and if it isn't available in a local shop, you can order direct: 800-328-3683 or (in California) 800-345-9945.
528. Canonical chronology is an arcane art that offers one of the most intricate examples of how people play our grand game, in this case trying to explain and solve the mysterious contradictions and omissions that so often prevent readers from being at all certain about exactly when things happened in the stories written and edited by people who were not meticulously careful. It probably was Arthur Conan Doyle who first noticed such a contradiction, in "The Sign of the Four" in Lippincott's Monthly Magazine; he mentioned it in a letter written in Mar. 1890 to J. M. Stoddart (his editor at Lippincott), but the mistake was not corrected in the first (or any other later) edition of the story. John Hall's "I REMEMBER THE DATE VERY WELL" is a new attempt to reconcile many of the contradictions, and offers a excellent look at how the game is played, in a 78-page monograph from Ian Henry Publications, 20 Park Drive, Romford, Essex RM1 4LH, England (£6.50/$12.00 postpaid); their U.S. agent is the Players Press, Box 1132, Studio City, CA 91614-0132.
-
529. Dec 93 #4: "I would be risking my heart, my head, and my neck if I was to stick it on the block again playing Holmes," Jeremy Brett told the Daily Mail (Nov. 20) in a story at hand from Mel Hughes. After he was hospitalized while working on the new Granada series, doctors diagnosed a heart problem, thought to be a legacy of rheumatic fever when he was 16. Granada producer June Wyndham Davies was more optimistic: "The doctors have assured us that in the next three weeks he should be recovered. He should be returning to us to finish the series at the beginning of the year."
530. And for those who neglected to tape "The Master Blackmailer" off the air, the latest issue of Anglofile reports that the show is available from MPI Home Video (15825 Rob Roy Drive, Oak Forest, IL 60452) and from video shops at $24.98.
531. The winners of this year's Kennedy Center Honors, which were presented on Dec. 5, included lyricist-composer Stephen Sondheim, who began his career as a lyricist for "West Side Story" (1957) and "Gypsy" (1959). Among his many fine contributions to musical theater and film was the song "I Never Do Anything Twice" in the film "The-Seven-Per-Cent Solution" (1976).
532. It is frustrating to consider how many really grand shows were broadcast on television in the days before videocassettes. Among them were the programs in the series "The Rivals of Sherlock Holmes" (with 26 shows broadcast by ITV in Britain in 1971 and 1973). Some of them were aired here in 1972 and they were delightful. The series was triggered by the anthologies edited by Hugh Greene, of course, and offered (to name only a few) Derek Jacobi as Duckworth Drew, John Neville as Dr. John Thorndyke, Robert Stephens as Max Carrados, Roy Dotrice as Simon Carne, Donald Pleasance as Carnacki, Douglas Wilmer as Prof. S.F.X. Van Dusen, and Charles Gray as Eugene Valmont. And I'm sure they'll never be rebroadcast by PBS-TV on "Mystery!" But there is another possibility: Arts & Entertainment cable carries all sorts of grand mystery programming, old and new, and it might not be at all amiss to write to A&E (555 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10017) to suggest that they consider broadcasting this fine series.
533. "Movie Mystery Madness: The Woman in Green" aired on A&E cable in November, without enough notice for a video-taper alert, but it probably will repeat eventually. The L.A. Connection performed in black tie for a live theater audience, providing irreverent dialogue and sound effects to create a new version of the Basil Rathbone film.
534. Durkin Hayes have taken over the Listen for Pleasure line of audiocassettes and are adding new titles. Currently available, in two-cassette sets, are: THE SPECKLED BAND, read by Donald Pickering (who played Watson in the 1981 Sheldon Reynolds television series) in a set with H. G. Wells' "The Invisible Man" read by Gerald Harper; THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, read by Tony Britton; and VALLEY OF FEAR, read by Christopher Lee (who needs no introduction to Sherlockians). Vivian Heisler recommended VALLEY OF FEAR (Jan 93 #1) by suggesting that "Lee makes it sound like an entire cast!" And he does indeed: his reading is splendid. The sets cost $15.95 each in stores, or you can order direct: 800-962-5200 (U.S.) or 800-263-5224 (Canada). THE SPECKLED BAND (read by Pickering) also is packaged as one "Paperback Audio" cassette at $4.99, but only at chains such as Walmart and Waldenbooks.
535. Dec 93 #5: The good news is that there are indeed surviving prints of some long-lost British television shows: "The Man with the Twisted Lip" and "The Illustrious Client" with Douglas Wilmer (1965), "The Hound of the Baskervilles" with Peter Cushing (1968), "Elementary My Dear Watson" with John Cleese (1973), and "Dr. Watson and the Darkwater Hall Mystery" with Edward Fox as Watson (1974). The bad news is that it may well be that the only way to see them is to visit the British Film Institute in London. All five titles were included (along with Jeremy Brett's not-yet-broadcast "The Three Gables") in a long series that focussed on "The Strange Cases of Sherlock Holmes" at the National Film Theatre in November and December.

- Mike Philipson reports that Brett was unable to attend the showing of "The Three Gables" due to ill health, and that during discussion after the film there was some talk of "His Last Bow" being turned into a two-hour special to mark the end of the Brett/Hardwick series.
536. Sorry about that: the correct telephone number for the Actors Theatre of Louisville is 502-584-1205. Dennis Rosa's "Sherlock Holmes and the Curse of the Sign of Four" (1975) will be performed from Dec. 30 to Jan. 29, and the theater's address is 316 West Main Street, Louisville, KY 40202.
537. Sophisticated Shirts (6321 East 30th Street, Indianapolis, IN 46219) (800-844-4801 and ask for Jackie or Buzz) offer a wide variety of T-shirts ($22.00) and sweatshirts ($35.00), including one with a design that honors Sherlock Holmes (on the front) and Dr. Watson (on the back). The fine print states that Holmes "became an international celebrity and even today many people think he was a real person."
538. Tim O'Connor reports that Peter Costello's THE REAL WORLD OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: THE TRUE CRIMES INVESTIGATED BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, published two years ago (Oct 91 #1), has been reprinted as a trade paperback (New York: Carroll & Graf, 1993; 235 pp., $10.95); the book offers a wide-ranging examination of ACD's involvement with the official police (from the time he was interviewed by a politely-suspicious detective in Southsea in 1885), and of his interest in the crimes and criminals of his day.
539. Ted Friedman has an illustrated article on "Jujitsu and Sherlock Holmes" in the Dec. 6 issue of Linn's Stamp News (Box 29, Sidney, OH 45365). Ted also notes that MURDER UNDER THE MISTLETOE AND OTHER STORIES, edited by Cynthia Manson (Signet, $4.99) includes "The Blue Carbuncle".
540. Reported by Ralph Hall: a STICKER DETECTIVE STICKER-SAVER ALBUM featuring a deerstalkered elephant (for kids who collect stickers), published by Trend Enterprises in 1991. And THE CASE OF THE EMERALD EARRINGS and five other titles by Sharon Cadwallader in a juvenile series about young detective Cookie McCorkle, who worships Sherlock Holmes and has named her wirehaired terrier Moriarty (paperbacks from Avon Books priced from $2.95 to $3.50). And a 300-piece jigsaw puzzle for "The Great Mouse Detective" (from the Western Publishing Co. at $5.99). And Kremer's Smoke Shoppe (333 South Preston Street, Louisville, KY 40202) offers Comoy's new Sherlock Holmes humidior ($85.00) and some Sherlockian pipes ($70.00 to $1,560.00); Gayle C. Sallee is the shop's owner, and he will be happy to send more information.
-
541. Dec 93 #6: The U.S. Postal Service has announced plans for 102 new stamps next year, including a set of ten stamps with caricatures by Al Hirschfeld honoring silent-movie stars, among whom will be Charlie Chaplin (who portrayed Billy on stage with William Gillette) and Buster Keaton (who appeared in the film "Sherlock Jr." in 1924). And there will be a stamp in honor of humorist James Thurber, who included some Canonical echoes in "The Gloucester Sympathizer" [D5212b].
542. The Mini-Tonga Scion Society, founded by the late Dee Snyder for collectors of Sherlockian miniatures, has been reactivated by Carol Wenk (Box 770554, Lakewood, OH 44107). If you were or would like to be a member, Carol will be happy to hear from you.
543. Jennie Paton reports that "The Strange Case of the End of Civilization As We Know It" (1977) is now available on videocassette from Facets Video, at 1517 West Fullerton .

Peter E. Blau, 7103 Endicott Court, Bethesda, MD 20817-4401, blau7103@comcast.net

Jan 94 #1:

- This scuttlebutt is now also available in bits and bytes, on the Internet, without charge (and without illustrations), to members of The Hounds of the Internet, which is an electronic society for people who have computers and modems and telephones, or access to them and to the Internet. The society now has about 115 members, and it is easy to join (the list is maintained by Alan Block, and you can send an e-mail message to blocka@beloit.edu and state in the text: subscribe hounds).
  - Robert F. Fleissner's essay "Did Not T. H. Huxley's 'Piece of Chalk' Leave Its Mark on the Canon?" discusses some possible connections between Huxley and Holmes, in the fall-winter 1993 issue of Clues: A Journal of Detection (Bowling Green State Univ. Popular Press, Bowling Green, OH 43403; $7.50).
  - "You Have Been in Afghanistan, I Perceive." is the title of Thaddeus Holt's intriguing article in the winter 1994 issue of MHQ: The Quarterly Journal of Military History. Thad's conclusion is that the fatal battle of Maiwand provided Conan Doyle with the names of both Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson. And MHQ is far more than a magazine: each hard-bound issue offers 112 pages of fine articles and illustrations. $60 a year (back issues cost $20 each plus shipping); Box 597, Mt. Morris, IL 61054-0597 (800-827-1218).
